You really have changed and whenever she interacts with you, she feels that and it makes her guard come down and her old feelings for you come rushing back.

Donâ€¢t Turn Her Off Even More By Continuing to Make the Same Old Communication Mistakes That You Always Have With Her

[image: Turning her off with the same old communication mistakes]

When a woman is saying that she only has negative feelings towards her ex now, itâ€¢s usually because she has lost respect and attraction for him based on his behavior and actions.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was being insecure and needy in the relationship with her, she will feel turned off by him even more if tries to get her back by begging, pleading and saying things like, â€¢I need you so much. I canâ€¢t live without you.â€¢

Alternatively, if she broke up with him because he was giving her too much power in the relationship (e.g. being more dominant than him, letting her make all the decisions), saying, â€¢Please tell me what you want me to do and Iâ€¢ll do it. Just say the word and Iâ€¢ll do anything you want, just give me one more chance,â€¢ will only convince her more that she made the right decision to dump him.

When a guy tries to get an ex back without first making some changes and improvements to his communication style with her (e.g. he becomes needy and insecure when she tells him she doesnâ€¢t have feelings for him, he lets her push him around in the hopes that it will please her and change her mind about him), she will naturally keep pushing him away.

She will behave coldly towards him and may say things like, â€¢How can you expect me to take you back when nothing about you has changed? Don't you get it? Youâ€¢re still the same guy that I *broke up with and I only have negative feelings for you now because of it.*â□□

She will say that if the guy still doesn't understand the real reasons why she dumped him (e.g. he thinks that she dumped him because she doesn't want a relationship right now, but one of her real reasons was that he just wasn't enough of a man for her. He was too insecure, needy, clingy, controlling or feminine in his behavior and expression of feelings).

So, before you do anything that might cause your ex to lose even more respect and attraction for you as a man, try to get clear on what caused her to break up with you in the first place.

Right now, some guys who read this will be very clear about why they got dumped, but many guys will be saying, *â□□I donâ□□t really know why she broke up with me. Iâ□□m not sure what caused her to have such negative feelings for me. I know I stuffed up, but I don't understand how she could go from loving me so much to hating me and not wanting anything to do with me. She used to tell me that she wanted to settle down with me, get married and grow old together. Sure, I stuffed up a bit in the relationship, but how can she turn her back on us like this?*â□□

If youâ□□re one of the many guys who aren't fully sure about what caused your ex to break up with you, here are some questions to ask yourself that will help you figure things outâ□|

- Did you make her feel feminine and girly in your presence, or did she feel more like a friend, one of the guys or a big sister, in the relationship with you?
- Did she feel loved and appreciated by you, or did you take her for granted (e.g. did you fall into the habit of letting her do everything while you watched TV/played video games? Did you put her second to your friends/hobbies/family)?
- Were you rising through the levels of life like a real man, or were you using your relationship as an excuse to hide from your true potential as a man?
- Were you both growing and developing together as a couple, or were you going in separate directions? Did she mature faster than you?
- Were you both working towards achieving the same goals in life (e.g. getting married, having children, buying a house), or did you want different things?

By reading those questions and answering in your mind, you should have a clearer idea about what caused your ex to break up with you.

From here, you will then know what adjustments or changes you need to make when you interact with her again, to respark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

When you respark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she will be able to see that you really are different now.

She feels good around you all of a sudden.

When that happens, it becomes very difficult for her to hold onto her negative feelings about you.

She might act like she still hates you, but once she feels a renewed sense of a respect and attraction for you, her guard will come down (whether she admits it or not).

On the other hand, if you donâ□□t understand what was turning her off in your relationship and make adjustments, you will simply keep making the same old mistakes in your communication style, and she will just keep saying, *â□□I only have negative feelings for you now.*â□□

Do Spark Her Feelings of Respect and Attraction For You Again

[image: Meet up with your girlfriend]

Most people have heard the old expression, âActions speak louder than words.â

Essentially what this means is that you cannot force your ex girlfriend to be with you again by trying to convince her with words.

Instead, you need to show her that you have changed via your actions, the way you talk, behave, interact with her and the way you respond to what she says and does.

When she can see it for herself (or hear it if you're talking to her on the phone), she will see that you have changed and you won't need to try to convince her of it.

Simply focus on triggering her feelings of respect, attraction and love in every interaction that you have with her from now on (e.g. via text, on social media, on a phone call, or in person) and her guard will come down.

You can make her feel that way by making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be interacting with you again, rather than trying to convince her to see you in a more positive light or to give you another chance because you love her so much.

By making some attractive adjustments to your behavior and to the way that you talk and interact with her (e.g. staying confident despite what she says, seeing the humor in every situation despite how tense it might be), being around you suddenly becomes fun for her, so her guard naturally comes down and she opens up to you again.

She then begins to wonder, âWhat's going on here? Why am I only feeling positive emotions towards him all of a sudden?â and she can't stop herself from feeling some level of respect and attraction for you again.

From there, you simply build on that spark of attraction to show her that things really are different now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What is the Best Plan of Action to Get an Ex Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best plan of action to get your ex back is to reactivate her feelings and confidently guide her back into a relationship, even if she is being stubborn, playing hard to get or saying that she's not sure.

You can do that by talking to her on the phone or meeting up with her in person to make her feel SOMETHING for you again.

[image: Meet up with her and make her feel something for you again]

Once she sees that you have really changed and she now feels so much more respect, attraction and love when she's around you, she will eventually thank you for being so confident and getting you and her back to that place.

Prior to Today, Have You Been Using the Right Plan of Action to Get Her Back?

There are many different plans of action that you could follow to get your ex back, which won't actually work.

After helping 100s of guys successfully get women back after a serious break up, I've found that the best plan of action is to be active by making her have feelings for you again as you interact with her.

However, you can try other ways of getting her back too.

For example:

1. You could ignore her and hope that she comes back.

[image: Hopefully she will come running back if I ignore her]

When trying to get a woman back after a break up, a lot of guys make the mistake of thinking that by ignoring her she will come back.

A guy may think, "I've heard that absence makes the heart grow fonder, so if I stay out of her life for a while, she will realize just how much she misses me and then come back on her own."

Alternatively, he might think, "She told me that she is tired of me calling her up all the time, so maybe if I ignore her for a month, she will realize that she's unhappy without me and will then give me another chance."

Yet, here's why that plan of action doesn't usually work to get an ex back:

Ignoring a woman only works when she is still in love with you and regrets breaking up, or if she can't find a replacement guy to move on with.

So, if your ex isn't currently calling you up and saying things like, "I really miss you," or "I think it was a mistake breaking up with you," or "Let's give our relationship another chance," then ignoring her probably isn't going to matter much to her at all.

Think about it like thisâ€¦!

When a woman is feeling negative emotions towards her ex (e.g. sheâ€™s angry, hurt, turned off by him), then not hearing from him for several weeks or months isnâ€™t going to make her think, â€œOh no! Why is my ex ignoring me? Could it be possible heâ€™s moved on without me? Iâ€™d better call him up before I lose him to some other lucky woman.â€

Instead, sheâ€™s likely going to be thinking, â€œWhat a relief! It looks like my ex is finally out of my life now. I can get on with meeting new guys without having to put up with him bothering me all the time. Actually, I might even hook up with a guy this weekend and post up some photos of me and him on social media just to rub it in my exâ€™s face that Iâ€™ve moved on now.â€

If you donâ€™t want that kind of thing happening to you, donâ€™t bother ignoring your ex for longer than 3 to 7 days.

Waiting longer than a week is usually a waste of time because it gives her the opportunity to move on without you.

In some instances, a woman might call her ex to check if heâ€™s missing her or if heâ€™s moved on, but when she realizes that heâ€™s still stuck at the same level he was when she broke up with him (e.g. heâ€™s still insecure, still doesnâ€™t know how to make her feel attracted in the way she wants), she will likely say something like, â€œUmm, well, it was nice chatting to you again. I should go now, bye,â€ and she will then try to move on without looking back.

If you are going to ignore your ex for a bit, at least make sure that you are preparing to impress her when you do interact again, otherwise she wonâ€™t feel very motivated to get back with you.

I recommend that you donâ€™t waste any more than a week of giving her space after a break up, before you then commence the full ex back process and get her back.

2. You could get a new woman and make her jealous.

[image: Making an ex jealous to get her back]

Another plan of action to get your ex back is to start dating other women and hopefully make her feel jealous enough to want to get back together again.

However, chances are high that you almost certainly donâ€™t want a new woman now, right?

You want to get your ex back.

So, dating a new woman is probably going to be a waste of your time and may actually backfire. Why?

If your ex doesnâ€™t have any feelings for you at the moment, you getting a new girlfriend probably isnâ€™t going to matter much to her at all.

Even if she initially feels a little bit jealous or hurt that some other woman has taken her place in your life, when she remembers why she broke up with you (e.g. you had become really insecure, clingy, needy, controlling and jealous, or you had taken her for granted, treated her badly and even cheated on her), the jealousy will change to relief as she realizes, â€œCool. Thatâ€™s great news. My ex has finally moved on, and now so can I. It feels so good to finally be free. Iâ€™m a single woman now. Iâ€™m going to show him how much heâ€™s missing out on now by hooking up with guys and posting up photos on social media of me hanging out with them.â€

Another reason why dating another woman to make an ex jealous can backfire, is because a woman can easily find out if he has truly moved on, or if itâs only a ploy to make her jealous.

Basically, all a woman has to do is call her ex back and say something like, âI just wanted to say that I miss you. Lately, Iâve been thinking if maybe we should get back together again. Itâs a pity youâre dating someone else now though. Oh wellâ!

If he then quickly responds by saying things like, âI miss you too! This new woman means nothing to me. Iâll break up with her today if you want me to, she will know that itâs only been a ploy to get her back.

That can work to get her back in some cases (because women are more attracted to guys who other women find attractive), but it can also backfire.

When a woman realizes that heâs been using the new woman to make her jealous, she may want to reject him to hurt him and then hook up with another guy to make him jealous.

Then, the guy that she hooks up with may turn out to be a great match for her, which then makes the process of getting her back that little bit more difficult.

So, rather than risk turning your ex off even more or losing her to another guy, just focus instead on saying and doing the types of things that will make you more emotionally attractive to her.

That is the most simple, effective and risk-free plan of action to use when getting an ex back.

Donât be afraid to show her that you want her back.

Donât come across as though you need her back. Instead, that you want her back.

Thereâs nothing wrong with that.

For example: Rather than putting on an act of not being interested in her anymore, or dating another woman to hopefully make her jealous, just focus instead on re-sparking her feelings for you.

When she can see for herself that youâre emotionally strong enough to go after her, even when she has been saying âNo, her feelings of respect and attraction for you will start to resurface again and she will then begin to open up to you.

From there, you just need to use every interaction you have with her to keep bringing out the positive feelings of respect, attraction and love she has for you, and then guide her back into a relationship.

3. You could beg and plead with her for another chance.

[image: Begging and pleading for forgiveness]

Begging and pleading is one of the most common reactions that guys have when they get broken up with.

A guy might say to himself, âI donât want to break up! I love her and Iâm going to do whatever it takes to get her back. Whatever she wants me to do, I will do it and hopefully that will make her want me back.

He might then call her up and say things like, âPlease donât do this to us! I beg you. How can you let what we had together just die like this? How can you throw away all we have together? I promise that if you give me another chance, Iâll do anything you want. I just canât live without you. Please let me show you that things can be different between us this time.

Yet, that doesnât work because women are turned off by emotional neediness in men.

So, when a guy begs and pleads with a woman for a second chance, rather than think to herself, â€œWow, he must really care about me if heâ€™s behaving like this,â€ she will instead perceive him as being emotionally weak, needy and insecure and it will turn her off even more.

The best plan of action to get your ex back is to focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you every time that you interact with her.

That is the secret.

Of course, if youâ€™ve already made the mistake of begging and pleading with your ex to give you a second chance, donâ€™t worry about it.

As long as you now understand why begging and pleading can cause a woman to perceive a man as being emotionally weak and turn her off, you can write it off as being a good lesson learned.

In fact, you can even tell her, â€œI know that I was acting a bit immature there for a while. Now that I think about it, I can see that it was definitely not the manliest of ways to handle things. That was definitely a good lesson learned, but I wish I didn't have to learn it with you. It was my fault though and I take responsibility for it. I should have been a much more mature man about it.â€

In this way, not only are you showing her that you have grown as a man from the experience of begging and pleading with her, you are also sparking her feelings of respect for you by taking responsibility for your actions, which is a good thing.

From then onwards, just continue to focus on creating new, positive feelings inside her (e.g. by being confident, making her laugh, staying strong even when she is being negative or hurtful towards you) and she will soon begin to forgive that you once behaved in a way that was unattractive to her.

4. You could tell her how you feel in a letter.

[image: Love letter to your ex girlfriend]

Sometimes, when a woman is being totally closed off to her ex and is refusing to listen to him, a guy might decide that the only way to get through to her and tell her how he feels, is by writing her a long letter.

For example: He might think, â€œSheâ€™s refusing to listen to anything that I have to say. Even though Iâ€™ve tried to apologize and tell her how much I still love her via text, she just wonâ€™t give me a chance. Maybe if I write her a long, detailed letter, she will read it and understand where I am coming from. She will also see how much I still care about her, that Iâ€™m really sorry for hurting her and maybe then she will give me another chance.â€

Yet, a letter rarely causes a woman to suddenly change her mind about her ex, and here's why....

When a woman has broken up with a guy, and may even be refusing to see him again or even talk to him on the phone, itâ€™s usually a good sign that she doesnâ€™t have feelings for him at the moment.

So, getting a letter from him declaring his undying love for her isnâ€™t going to matter that much to her, because she wonâ€™t care that he cares for her.

In fact, it's more likely going to be annoying to read or even look at because he has feelings for her and she doesn't have feelings for him.

She might even say to him that he is being selfish for writing to her like that, but she won't explain why.

The reason why is that the letter is all about him getting her back.

The only time a woman is going to feel happy to be getting a letter from an ex, is if she is still secretly in love with him and hoping to get back together again.

In most other cases, what he writes in a letter not going to matter to her because she just doesn't have enough feelings for him to feel motivated to get back with him based on a letter.

Another reason why telling a woman how you feel in a letter doesn't work, is because she can't see you and gauge your state of mind by listening to your tone of voice and observing your body language and behavior.

It's just words in an e-mail (or on a piece of paper) to her.

So, rather than reading your letter and thinking, "Awww! that's so sweet. My ex really sounds like he's sorry now. Maybe I've been too hard on him. He obviously still loves me a lot, so maybe I should give him another chance and stop being so stubborn about this," she will likely be thinking, "Too little too late buddy! You should have thought about how much you love me when we were together. Writing a letter isn't going to change how I feel!"

One of the main reasons why a woman might perceive your letter in a negative way, is because she can't see and experience the new you with just letters on a screen.

She will most likely still think of you as being the same guy that she broke up with.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was being too needy and clingy in the relationship, if he then sends her a letter pouring out his feelings for her, how do you think she will perceive it?

Will she be thinking, "Oh, wow! my ex has changed. I can see now that he's a lot more confident and secure in himself. The way he wrote that sentence was so confident! Wow! I need to catch up with him and get him back before another lucky girl snatches him up" or will she be thinking, "Oh, here we go again. I see nothing has really changed! my ex is still being his needy, clingy self. He's going on and on about his feelings! he doesn't get it. I don't have feelings for him now, so what he is feeling doesn't matter to me."

Naturally, because she cannot see for herself that he's moved past the level he was at when she broke up with him, or experience his confidence and emotional strength, she's just going to assume the worst of him and she won't be open to the idea of giving him another chance.

It's just not the same as talking to him on a phone call or in person where she can experience the changes in him for herself.

So, don't bother writing her a long letter that she may, or may not, even read.

Instead, get her on a phone call so that you can actively make her smile, laugh and feel good to be interacting with you again.

From there, get her to meet up with you in person so that she can see for herself that you really have changed.

Do What Works and You Will Have the Best Chance of Getting Her Back

[image: Get her back by reactivating her feelings]

The best plan of action to get your ex back is to actively trigger some of her feelings again.

Once your ex sees that you are no longer at the same level that you were when she broke up with you (e.g. you're now a confident, emotionally strong man compared to the insecure guy that she broke up with last week), her feelings of respect, attraction and love will naturally begin to surface again.

[image: Do what works and you will have the best chance of getting her back]

When you interact with her in ways that spark her feelings, she will naturally stop pushing her positive feelings for you (e.g. respect, attraction, love) into the background.

When that happens, she will begin to feel new sparks of love for the new and improved you.

Then, as long as you continue to say and do the types of things that trigger those positive feelings in her, she will open herself up to you and may even thank you for being so confident and mature to get you and her back together again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Miss My Ex and I Really Want Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Being dumped and left behind by the woman you love is a pretty horrible thing to go through as a man.

Yet, you can get her back.

If you miss your ex and really want her back, what you need to do is reactivate her feelings so that she can begin to miss you and how it feels to be around you.

Even if your ex is currently saying, â€œIâ€™m not interested in getting back together again,â€ or â€œI just donâ€™t have feelings for you anymore,â€ when you reactivate some of her feelings for you, her guard naturally comes down and she then begins to open up to you.

You can't just sit around waiting for her to come back and hope that she magically changes her mind. You've got to do something about it and that something is to make her feel a renewed sense of respect attraction for you.

Where Guys Usually Go Wrong During the Ex Back Process

[image: Guys messing up the ex back process]

When a guy doesn't know how to reactivate his ex woman's feelings and get her back, he will often try to get another chance by:

- Begging and pleading with her.
- Promising her that heâ€™ll change.
- Asking her to tell him what she wants him to do.
- Giving her a list of reasons why they should be together.
- Telling her how much he still loves her.
- Giving her space in the hopes that she will realize how much she misses him and then come back on her own.

Yet, what the guy doesn't realize is that unless the woman is still in love with him and is secretly hoping to get back together again; none of these methods really work.

Hereâ€™s whyâ€¦

When a woman breaks up with a guy, itâ€™s usually because she has reached the point where she just doesn't feel enough respect, attraction, and love for him anymore.

When a guy is begging and pleading, making promises to change and saying things like, â€œIâ€™ll do anything for you. Just tell me what you want me to do and Iâ€™ll do it,â€ heâ€™s only highlighting his emotional weakness and that he has no idea what caused her to break up with him in the first place.

So, in moments like that it simply makes her feel even less attracted to him.

In a case where the guy gives a woman a lot of space (e.g. a few weeks, or even several months) in the hopes that sheâ€™ll realize how much she misses him and come back to him, that approach usually only works when:

- She is still secretly in love with the guy and is hoping they'll get back together.
- She can't deal with the emotions of the break up.
- She's struggling to find a replacement guy.

Yet, if a woman doesn't have feelings for her ex, then giving her a lot of space isn't going to matter that much to her and she will likely think, "What a relief not to have to deal with my ex's begging, pleading and promises to change anymore. Maybe it's time I find a new guy" and she will usually then just move on or at least start dating and having sex with new guys.

So, if you miss your ex and really want her back, don't waste a lot of time doing the things that rarely work (e.g. begging, pleading, promising her you'll change, offering to do whatever she wants, giving her a lot of time apart).

Instead, just focus on making every interaction that you have with her (e.g. via text, e-mail, on social media, on a phone call, in person) count.

[image: Getting an ex back via text]

For example: If you interact with your ex on the phone or in person and you make her smile, laugh and feel happy to be talking to you, she won't be able to hold on to her negative, angry feelings about you.

Even if she's convinced herself that nothing you can say or do is going to make her come back to you, when she finds herself feeling good every time she interacts with you, she may begin to think, "Hmmm! I'm actually enjoying talking to my ex again. He's fun to talk to now. I miss him when I don't hear from him for a day or two. Why am I feeling like this? What is going on here? Maybe I should give him another chance."

When that happens, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

That's what really works to get an ex back.

You've got to reactivate her feelings and then quickly guide her back into a relationship with you, rather than giving her lots more time to potentially meet and fall in love with a new guy.

Feeling Unworthy of Your Ex

[image: Please...I will do anything!]

Sometimes, when a guy has a beautiful girlfriend (fiancée or wife), he can't stop himself from letting his insecurities make him feel as though he doesn't deserve her.

For example: As the relationship settles down, he might say to himself, "I got lucky when my girl said yes to going out with me in the first place. She's so beautiful, and I'm just average looking and I have big ears/I'm a bit overweight/have a bald head/aren't very tall. I don't know what she sees in me. I'm sure that she could do so much better than me and just hope that she doesn't wake up one day and realize it."

He then starts to worry about losing her and becomes clingy and needy around her (e.g. always wanting to be with her, constantly asking for her reassurance that she loves him) and focuses all his attention on her.

For example: A guy like that mightâ€¦!

- Stop hanging out with good friends that he had prior to his relationship with her.
- Give up hobbies and interests that don't involve her.
- Text her, or call her up multiple times a day just to tell her how much he loves her and misses her (or to check up on her).
- Makes himself available to her every beck and call 24/7.

Yet, hereâ€¦s the thingâ€¦!

Even a woman does like the idea of being love and adored by her guy, in most cases, she doesnâ€¦t want to become the centre of his universe to the point where he needs her for his sense of identity and purpose in life.

Women are instinctively attracted to the emotional strength in men and turned off by the emotional weakness, so the more clingy and needy that a guy becomes, the less respect and attraction she feels for him.

She then begins to do the one thing heâ€¦s afraid of â€¦ she starts to pull away from him.

This then causes him to feel even more unworthy of her and he clings to her even more.

Over time, her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him get pushed into the background, and are replaced by more negative emotions such as anger, resentment, disappointment and she breaks up with him.

After the break up, he may try to beg and plead with her to give him another chance, but she doesn't want to because she can see that he hasn't even changed.

He's still the same, insecure guy that she dumped and getting back with him would just mean having to go through a break up all over again.

This is why it's so important for you to become completely confident with or without your ex's approval, reassurance or attention.

You've got to be able to feel worthy of being her man, without her having to give you that approval.

When she sees that kind of confidence in you, she will naturally feel attracted to you and respect you, as long as you don't push the confidence too far and become arrogant about it.

I'm not talking about saying, "Hey, I'm good enough for you. Give me another chance."

Instead, I'm talking about letting her experience your confidence based on how you think, talk, behave and take action around her and in life from now on.

Let her see that you are happy with or without her. Don't tell her that; just let her see it based on how you interact with her.

To get that type of confidence, make sure that you're not going around thinking things like, â€¦I donâ€¦t blame her for dumping me. Sheâ€¦s so beautiful. Iâ€¦m just not good enough for her. Even though I miss her and want her back, I donâ€¦t blame her for not being interested. I'm not good enough. She deserves a better guy than me. I stuffed up and can never be the man she needs. I'm just not good enough.â€¦

Remember: Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity, a strong belief in himself and in his value as a man) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. low self esteem, insecurity).

If you interact with your ex (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) and she senses that you believe you're not good enough for her, she will most likely keep feeling turned off by what she perceives as your emotional weakness.

A woman doesn't want to feel like she is with a man out of pity or because she's doing him a favor.

She wants to be with a man she can look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love.

She wants a man who has such confidence in his attractiveness and value to women that he could easily have other women, but he wants her.

He wants her, but he doesn't need her.

Big difference.

He wants to be with her because he loves her and because he knows that a relationship together would now be so much better than ever before.

He has become a better man as a result of the break up and wants to allow her to experience what it would be like, even if they only give it a try for a week to see how they feel.

You've just got to have that kind of confidence in yourself when getting an ex back.

It's so important.

If you put on an act of confidence, she can easily catch you out in that lie and will then lose even more respect and attraction for you as a result.

For example: She might test you by being nice and friendly to you one minute and then suddenly become cold and aloof towards you the next.

She might also say that she's interested in meeting up with you and then change her mind at the last minute.

If you can remain emotionally strong and confident in yourself no matter how cold or rude she is towards you, she will begin to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the emotionally stronger, emotionally mature man that you have become.

She will then find herself thinking, â€œMaybe Iâ€™ve been too hard on my ex. Heâ€™s not like I thought he was before. This is differentâ€ and her guard will come down.

Her Negative Feelings For You Are Not Set in Stone

[image: Re-activating her feelings]

Right now, if your ex is saying things like, â€œLeave me alone. Itâ€™s over between us and Iâ€™m not interested in anything you have to say,â€ or â€œI just donâ€™t have feelings for you anymore. Please forget about us and move on,â€ itâ€™s only natural that you might be thinking that thereâ€™s no hope of ever getting her back.

Yet, even though it might seem that her feelings are unchangeable, the reality is that human emotions change all the time.

Think about it like thisâ€|

When you first met your ex girlfriend (fianc  or wife), she didnâ€™t know you, so her feelings towards you were neutral.

Then, when you interacted with her and sparked feelings of respect and attraction inside of her, she began to like you.

Over time, her feelings changed again and she began to love you.

Yet, by the time she broke up with you, her feelings for you had changed again and she began feeling emotions such as anger, pain and betrayal, rather than respect, attraction and love.

As you can see, human emotions are not static.

They change all the time.

So, just because your ex might be saying she doesn't have feelings for you right now, it doesn't mean that she can never change how she feels.

Her emotions can definitely change.

How fast your ex goes from not wanting to be with you to being open to getting back together, depends on how quickly you reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

When you trigger those feelings inside of her, it takes the emphasis off what went wrong in your relationship because she naturally feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

She can't stop herself from wanting to interact with you again (e.g. via text, e-mail, social media, on the phone and in person), even though she might previously have thought her feelings for you were dead.

[image: Be strong and guide her back into a relationship with you]

From there, you can build on that spark of attraction and show her that things really are different now.

However, without reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction again first, a woman will usually just keep saying things like, "I have no more feelings for you. You need to understand that. I get it that you love me and care about me, but I just don't feel the same way anymore" or "Nothing that you can say or do will change how I feel right now."

You Can Actively Make Her Have Feelings For You Again

When a guy is saying, "I miss my ex and I really want her back," he might also secretly think that there's no chance of getting her back.

Yet, he is wrong (in most cases).

After helping 100s of guys to get women back, I've found that a guy can easily make a woman have feelings for him again if he can regain her respect and attraction for him on a phone call and in person.

One of the ways you can reactivate your ex's feelings of respect and attraction for you, is by showing her that you've moved beyond the level you were at when she broke up with you.

Essentially, if your ex is currently saying things like, "I'm just not in love with you anymore," or "My feelings for you have changed. I don't feel like I used to when I'm with you now," it simply means that the way you are talking to her and the way that you come across as a guy, keeps highlighting to her that you're still stuck at the same level you were at when she broke up with you.

So, if you want to change her perception, you need to make some real adjustments to the way that you interact with her, so she can see that you really are a different guy now.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too insecure, needy, clingy and jealous in the relationship, when he interacts with her from now on, he needs to allow her to experience the new and improved version of himself that is no longer needy and insecure.

No matter what she says to him, how cold and unfriendly she is being towards him, or how much she tries to get a reaction out of him (e.g. by saying that she's enjoying single life, or that she is glad that they broke up), he needs to remain emotionally strong and show her that he really is different now.

Alternatively, if a woman broke up with a guy because he lacked purpose and direction in his life, he needs to show her that he's not at that level anymore.

He needs to find what he really wants to achieve in life and start going after it.

He doesn't have to accomplish everything all at once, but he just has to show her that he now has some goals in his life and is making real progress on the road to accomplishing them.

Then, when he interacts with his ex and she can see for herself that he's rising through the levels of life like a man, rather than wasting his true potential, she will naturally feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the man he has become.

When Her Feelings Change

When you get her respect and attraction back, everything changes.

She stops closing herself off from you because in a way, interacting with the new you is like meeting you for the first time.

You're a different guy now.

You're more emotionally attractive than you were before.

You're more of a man now, too.

Obviously, your ex isn't going to instantly forget about all of your past mistakes, but the negatives of your past relationship will seem less important because she now feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Things to Do While Giving an Ex Space to Figure Things Out

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Just because you're giving your ex space to figure things out, it doesn't mean that you have to sit around waiting and doing nothing.

Instead, I recommend that you use the time to understand what really caused her to want to break up with you and then make some changes to improve those things about yourself.

Then, when you when you interact with her again she will see that you're no longer at the same level you were at when she broke up with you.

She then begins to wonder, "What's going on here? This is not the same guy I broke up with. I wish he was like this before. I like this new version of him. Why do I no longer feel like I need to push him away?" and she feels drawn to you.

From there, you can build on that spark of attraction and show her that things really are different now.

Preparing to Get Her Back

[image: Getting her back into a relationship]

You can get your ex back after the time you and her spend apart, but to ensure that you succeed, it's best to use this time wisely.

Here are 4 things that you can do while giving your ex space to figure things out, that will re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you when you interact with her again.

1. Get Rid of Your Insecurities

[image: Get rid of your insecurities]

As painful as it might be to admit, there has to be a very good reason why your ex is currently taking a break from you, and not in your arms right now hugging you, kissing you and enjoying a great relationship with you.

So, the first thing you need to do while you're giving your ex space to figure things out, is get rid of any insecurities that you might have had during your relationship with her, which were turning her off.

For example: If a guy felt like he "got lucky" when he met his girlfriend and couldn't normally attract and pick up a woman like her, he might eventually begin to feel insecure about his value to her.

As the relationship is beginning, he may think things like, "Wow, I can't believe my luck! This girl is hot! I can't imagine why a beautiful girl like her is interested in a guy like me. She's too good for me, but I'm going to see if I can make this work."

Yet, by putting her above himself in terms of attractive value (i.e. by thinking that she's too good for him), he automatically creates feelings of insecurity, which then begin to change his thinking, behavior and actions.

As a result of feeling insecure, he might then become clingy (e.g. by spending all his time with her to the exclusion of his friends, hobbies or interests), needy (e.g. by asking her repeatedly, “Do you still love me?” or “Have you ever loved anyone else in the same way as me?” or “Are you fully over your ex boyfriend?” or “Do you think you would ever cheat on me or leave me?”) and jealous (e.g. by getting upset if she talks to other guys or wants to do something with her girlfriends and doesn't invite him).

Although his intentions might be good, that type of behavior turns a woman off at a deep level. Why? Being clingy, needy or jealous are not things that women find attractive about men.

A woman does want her man to want her and appreciate her in his life, but she doesn't want to get the sense that he needs her for his emotional security and sense of identity in the world.

She wants him to be an emotionally strong man with or without her support or reassurance.

So, when a man is being insecure around her, she feels turned off by what she perceives to be his emotional weakness.

She feels as though without her, he is just a lost, emotionally weak guy who doesn't yet know what it means to be a man.

Some unattractive or manipulative women do like it when men are lost and emotionally weak, because they can control the guy with a threat of a break up and dump him without a thought if they find a better guy.

However, attractive, normal-minded women do not want to get stuck with an emotionally weak or needy guy.

So, if you have been insecure and that is one of the main reasons why your ex dumped you, she will be looking to see if that has changed the next time you interact with her.

No matter what she says to you, how she is treating you (e.g. cold, bitchy, distant), or how much she tries to get you to react in your old ways, you need to remain confident and emotionally strong.

When she can see for herself that things are different and that you are no longer the same guy that she broke up with, she will begin to feel drawn to you again.

Yet, not all guys prepare themselves to succeed like that and end up turning their ex off even further.

For example: Sometimes, a guy will wait weeks for his ex to contact him and when she finally does, she discovers that he's still insecure, still needy and still doesn't know how to be a confident, emotionally strong man that she can look up to and respect.

Even though he might try to hide his insecurity from her by pretending not to be interested in getting back together, all she has to do is say something like, “I’ve figured things out now! I think I want to get back together again. What do you think? Do you think it’s a good idea?” to test him.

If he then jumps at the idea and excitedly says something along the lines of, “Yes! Yes! Yes! My life has been hell without you. I love you so much. I need you. Yes! Let’s get back together again,” she will know his indifference was just an act and she will close herself off from him even more.

2. Improve Your Ability to Attract Her

[image: Improve your ability to attract your ex]

A mistake that a lot of guys make is only thinking about a woman's attraction to a man in terms of the physical.

So, when a guy learns that he needs to improve his ability to attract his ex, he may assume that it means he needs to improve on his physical appearance to get her back.

He might then go out and buy new clothes and shoes, or go to the gym and workout, in the hopes that when he interacts with his ex, she will take one look at his new and improved appearance and instantly feel attracted to him again.

Yet, thatâs not how it works.

Although a manâs physical appearance is one aspect of what attracts a woman, it isnât as powerful as her emotional attraction to him (i.e. the way he makes her feel when sheâs with him).

For example:

- Does he make her feel feminine and girly in contrast to his masculine vibe and approach to the interaction, or does she feel more like a friend, or big sister when sheâs with him?
- Is he confident and self-assured, or does he crumble when faced with challenges in life?
- Does he make her feel safe and protected because heâs rising through the levels of life like a real man, or does she feel like she has to take care of him because heâs afraid to live up to his true potential as a man?
- Is he emotionally strong, or is he clingy, needy and insecure?
- Does she look up to him and respect him, or does she look down on him and feel like she has to be his teacher in life on how to be the kind of man that she needs him to be?
- Is he the dominant one in the relationship, or does she wear the pants?

These are the kinds of things that a woman looks for and finds most attractive in a man.

So, when a man isn't able to give her the attraction experience that she wants because he is lacking in those areas, she will usually break up with him and say something along the lines of, âI donât know how I feel about you anymore. I just need some space to figure things out.â

A guy might then think that the best way to re-attract her is to redo his wardrobe, add some muscle, get a better haircut and spray on a trendy cologne.

Yet, those things are superficial and a woman know it.

If youâre serious about getting your ex back, you have to improve your ability to attract her based on who you are when you interact with her.

She is much more interested in how you think, feel, talk, behave and act around her than what you're wearing or how you look.

3. Get to a Point Where You Want Her, But Don't Need Her

[image: Get to a point where you are happy with or without her]

Thereâs a big difference between wanting to get your ex back, and needing to get her back.

If you need her and can't seem to function properly without her, she will pick up on that neediness when you next interact and may say something like, âLook, Iâm not sure about this. I still havenât figured things out. I need more time.â

Essentially, she's just trying to keep you at a distance so she can move on without you because she can see that you still don't understand how to be the kind of man she needs.

So, before you do anything else to get your ex back, you first have to get to the point where you feel happy without her in your life.

Of course, you would be excited and happy if she called you up right now and said, "I want to get back together."

However, you need to also be okay if she said, "It's over. I never want to see you again."

I know that it's not easy, but you need to do get to that point emotionally, otherwise you just won't be very emotionally attractive to her.

Women are not attracted to neediness.

You've got to be able to feel more emotionally independent and be happy, confident and excited about life with or without her.

However, if you need her back and simply cannot handle the thought of being without her, then you're not ready to get her back.

The thing is, even if you try to hide it, women are very perceptive and can sense when a guy is putting on act of pretending to be fine without her.

If you want your ex back, you have to get to the point where you truly believe, "If my ex wants to get back together with me, it will be great, but if she decides that she doesn't want to do that, I'll still be happy without her."

When you can feel happy and emotionally fulfilled without her and then let her experience that on a phone call or in person with you, something amazing happens!

Suddenly you seem more attractive to her and she begins to wonder, "How can this be? He said that he still loves me and wants us to get back together again, but instead of being sad and depressed, he's happy. This is so uncharacteristic of him. I was expecting him to be needy and desperate, but he's not. I think I like this new version of my ex. He's like a real man now. I like this. Why am I feeling this way?"

A lot of guys make the mistake of trying to show a woman that they are NOT happy without her, because they don't want to give her the impression that they don't need her.

Yet, that is a huge mistake.

A woman's attraction for a man works completely different to a man's attraction for a woman.

Women are attracted to men who can remain emotionally strong under pressure and who are not dependent on a woman for their sense of confidence, identity or happiness in life.

Without having to think about it, a woman instinctively understands that only a guy who is emotionally strong can feel happy without her, which means that all the behaviors that were turning her off about him in the past (e.g. his insecurity, self-doubt, neediness) are no longer a major part of who he is.

He's a different man now and she feels drawn to him because he has the traits and behaviors that she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

Naturally, your ex might be initially confused about why she feels attracted to the new new version of you, but she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you.

4. Get Ready to Guide Her Back Into a Relationship.

As the man, you have to be masculine enough to take the lead and guide her back into a relationship with you, rather than waiting and hoping that she will figure things out and do it for you.

Most of the time, when a guy doesn't get another chance with his ex, it's usually because he's been waiting too long for her to come back on her own, or he fumbles when she gives him a subtle chance to get her back.

For example: A woman might text her ex as way to open up the lines of communication between him and her.

The right thing for him to do then is to text her back and then call her up to get her smiling, laughing and feeling happy to be talking to him.

From there, he needs to then arrange a time to catch up in person, where he can continue to actively trigger her feelings of attraction for him again.

However, where some guys go wrong, is rather than call or text her back, the guy completely ignores her texts as a way of not seeming needy.

He may think, "If I text back, she's going to think that I have nothing else going on in my life and that I've just been waiting around all this time for her to figure things out."

Yet, here's the thing!

To get your ex back, you need to be a man about this.

[image: Be strong and guide her back into a relationship with you]

You have to be the one who guides her back into a relationship with you.

You can't sit around playing pointless mind games with her, and then feeling hurt or disappointed when she moves on because you didn't act on her subtle hints that she wants you back.

Some guys might ask, "Why can't she just tell that she wants to get back together rather than hinting at it?"

The reason is because you are the man and if you want to get your woman back, you have to be the more emotionally courageous one who guides her back into the relationship.

When getting a girlfriend (fiancée or wife) back, you have to be the stronger one.

If you can do that, your ex will start to look up to you and respect you again.

When a woman respects you, she will be able to connect with her feelings of attraction and when that happens, she will begin to love the new you.

On the other hand, if she doesn't respect you, she won't be able to feel much attraction for you and her heart will remain closed.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Said to Just Give Her More Time to Think About it

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In most ex back cases, a woman will usually move on if a guy just gives her time to think and doesn't actually do anything to reactivate her feelings for him.

Your ex's current perception of you is that you're not giving her the attraction experience she wants (e.g. she might want you to be a very confident guy, but you've become an insecure guy and don't seem to be able to change), so it's unlikely that she will give you another chance if you just give her more time to think.

The fastest way to get your ex back is to actively make her have some feelings for you again.

However, if you give her too much time without any contact from you, chances are that she will move on.

You have to be present in her life if you're going to change how she feels.

Where a guy can go wrong is that when his ex says, "Just give me more time to think about it," he stops all communication with her and literally disappears out of her life for weeks or even months at a time.

He hopes that one day, she will wake up and suddenly feel attracted to him again if she has had enough time to think.

[image: Giving her the space to move on]

Yet, that's not how it works in almost all ex back cases where a woman no longer has feelings for a guy (e.g. because he wasn't giving her the attraction experience that she wanted).

Giving a woman a lot of time to think after a breakup will usually only make her come running back if:

1. She can't find a new guy.
2. She is inexperienced with relationships and can't handle the painful emotions of a break up.
3. She just wants to get back together temporarily until she can find a replacement guy.

However, most women aren't going to suddenly develop feelings for the guy that they dumped if he doesn't interact with her and making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

So, don't waste time being the nice, considerate ex boyfriend who is waiting around hoping she will suddenly realize her mistake and come running back to you.

Use the Time Apart to Fully Understand What She Wants You to Change About Yourself

[image: Understand what she really needs you to change about yourself]

When you understand what caused her to break up with you, and then take action on improving those things about yourself, you will be able to make her feel understood, and then give her a different experience the next time you interact with her.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too insecure, needy and clingy in the relationship with her, to get her respect and attraction back, heâs going to have to show her that he has become an emotionally stronger man in the time that sheâs been gone.

However, he canât do that by saying to her, âIâve changed. Iâm not insecure and needy anymore. Iâm a different man now,â because itâs unlikely that she will believe him.

Instead, he has to show her that heâs changed via his actions, behavior, way of thinking, the way he talks and interacts with her, and the way he responds when she tests him.

For instance, some of the ways that a woman will test a guy to see if he is still needy and insecure is by:

- Saying something like, âI donât have feelings for you anymore. I donât think I want to get back together with you.â
- Being cold and indifferent towards him, especially when he is being really nice to her.
- Telling him, âIâm having so much fun without you. Iâve been out with friends almost every night this week and itâs great. I canât believe how good it feels to be single.â
- Trying to make him jealous by mentioning other guys who like her.
- Saying things like, “I’m happier on my own than I was with you” or, “I don’t think I even need a boyfriend to be happy. I’ve been completely fine since the break up. How about you?”

If he then reacts by getting upset and saying things like, âHow can you do this to me? You know that I still love you. Please baby, just give us another chance to make this work. I canât live without you. I need you!â she will know that he is only pretending to have changed and will lose even more respect for him as a result.

On the other hand, if he remains emotionally strong and doesnât lose his composure, sheâs likely going to be wondering, âWhat just happened here? Isnât my ex supposed to be all insecure and needy? This isnât the way he would have reacted before we broke up. Something has changed about itâI didn’t think it would be possible for him to change so quickly, but he has. Why wasn’t he like this before? I like this new version of him.â

Another example of impressing and winning over an ex is where a woman dumped a guy because he had no purpose and direction in his life.

The guy had been using his relationship with her as an excuse to hide from his true potential because he had a boyish outlook on life and wasn’t yet willing or ready to step up and be a real man who rises through the levels of life to reach for his true potential.

In a case like that, to get her respect back, the guy needs to show her that heâs no longer afraid to stand up and face life head on like a man.

If when he interacts with her and she asks him, âSo what have you been doing?â he says, âOh, nothing. Missing you mostly,â she will know that heâs still hiding from life.

On the other hand, if he says something like, âIâve been really busy actually. You know how Iâve always been interested in photography, right? Well, I signed up for a course and attending the first class last night. This is what I want to do. In a couple of weeks, I’ll be going away for the weekend with my class to take pictures and learn more advanced techniques,â or âIâm great! I finally worked up the courage to apply for a promotion at workâand I got it! Iâve also decided to go to night school so that I can get even better qualifications because Iâ€™m working myself up to getting a partnership in my firm.â€

It doesnâ€™t matter what heâ€™s doing, as long as she can see that heâ€™s no longer hiding from his true potential as a man, and is starting to make progress towards achieving some goals in his life.

Of course, understanding what your ex wants you to change about yourself isnâ€™t going to automatically make her come back.

However, it definitely will spark some of her feelings of respect for you, which will then make her use the time apart to think about how much youâ€™ve changed for the better, rather than trying to think of why you're not good enough.

Some Rules to Remember When You Contact Her

Giving your ex more time to think is fine, but eventually youâ€™re going to have to call her up and get her back.

When you do call her, you are either going to be saying and doing the types of things that renew her feelings of respect and attraction for you, or saying and doing the types of things that will turn her off and cause her to lose even more respect and attraction for you.

So, when you interact with your ex (e.g. via text message, on social media, on a phone call, or even in person) avoid behaving in any of the following, unattractive ways.

- Pleading or begging.

[image: Begging and pleading for forgiveness]

Itâ€™s natural that if a woman is saying things like, â€I donâ€™t know if I still want to be in a relationship with you. I need more time to think about what I really want,â€ a guy who loves her and wants to be with her is going to want to make her change her mind.

Quite often, this involves the guy begging and pleading with his ex and saying things like, â€Please donâ€™t do this. Whatever you want me to do Iâ€™ll do it, I promise. You have my word on that. Just give me another chance to show you that things will be different this time.â€

Yet that approach rarely, if ever, works because women are turned off by men that they perceive as being emotionally weak.

So, when you contact your ex to get her back, make sure that you avoid begging and pleading with her in any way.

Of course, if youâ€™re already done that, donâ€™t beat yourself up about it.

Simply make sure that from now on, you remain emotionally strong, no matter what she says.

If you do, she will feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction to the new and improved you.

- Using texting as a way to stay in touch with her as a friend.

When a woman breaks up with a guy, there are usually a lot of negative emotions swimming around in her head.

For example: She might be feeling angry, hurt, betrayed, frustrated or disillusioned all at once.

As a result, any contact that she has from her ex will likely be interpreted in a negative light, unless she can experience the changes in him first hand.

So, when a guy sends his ex multiple text messages in the hopes that he will stay on her mind and she will then decide not to move on, rather than think to herself, â€œThatâ€™s so sweet! My ex obviously still cares about me because he texts me all the time. Maybe we should get back together again,â€ she will more likely be thinking, â€œWhy is he harassing me like this? I told him I want more time to think but he just wonâ€™t leave me alone. This just makes me want to get away from him even more. Iâ€™m so glad I went through with the break up.â€

Remember: If your ex still perceives you in a negative light, a text from you is usually only going to annoy her, because she wonâ€™t be able to see what your intentions are.

Without hearing the tone of your voice on a phone, or seeing your body language and behavior in person, she has to guess at what your state of mind would have been when you texted her, and she will likely be guessing that youâ€™re the same guy she broke up with.

So, I recommend that you only text your ex as a way of getting her on a phone call, where you can spark her feelings for you and get her to agree to meeting you in person.

- Asking her what she wants you to change.

For example: A guy might say, â€œIâ€™ll do whatever it takes. Just tell me what you want me to change and Iâ€™ll do it. Please, tell me what you need me to do. Explain to me exactly what you need and I will do it. I promise.â€

Yet, a woman doesnâ€™t want to tell her guy what he needs to do, because she doesnâ€™t want to be his teacher in life about how to be a man.

If she has to teach him how to be the man that she needs now, she fears that it will become a recurring pattern, and she will then feel like she has to take care of him for life.

A woman wants her man to figure out how to be a man without her help, rather than him asking her what he needs to do to make her happy.

An Example of How You Can Give Her Time to Think and Spark Her Feelings For You at the Same Time

[image: Attract her over the phone, rather than trying to convince her]

There is a very simple way that you can give your ex the time that she wants to think about things, while at the same time actively re-sparking some of her feelings for you again.

Here is what you can doâ€¦!

Call her up and focus on making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be interacting with you.

For example: If she says, â€œIâ€™m still not sure what I want. I need more time to think about it,â€ rather than respond by saying, â€œOh, okay. If thatâ€™s what you want then sure. Iâ€™ll give you more time to thinkâ€ and lose your chance to spark her feelings of attraction, you can use that to make her smile, laugh and enjoy talking to you.

You can do that by saying (in a joking way) something like, â€œYeah me too! Iâ€™m still thinking about whether I want you back. It's a difficult decision for me. After all, every time I ate anything you cooked, I was risking my life because your cooking was horrible. On the other hand, you do wash the dishes pretty well, so this is a hard decision. I think I'm going to need more time to think about it.

By approaching the conversation in this way, she's most likely going to smile, laugh and feel some respect for you for having the confidence to playfully tease her in a moment like that.

Now, here's the most important part!

After you've sparked some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you, go ahead and end the call by saying goodbye and then avoid contacting her for between 3 to 7 days (not longer).

When she doesn't hear from you after having felt so good on that call, she will likely text you or call you and possibly even ask you to meet up with her.

However, that isn't where you stop reactivating her feelings for you.

From that point onwards, you need to use every interaction you have with her to keep growing her feelings of respect and attraction for you, until she can no longer stop the love from flowing back into her heart.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should I Wait for My Girlfriend to Come Back, or Just Move On Without Her? 5 Questions to Ask Yourself

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're wondering whether or not you should wait for your girlfriend to come back or just move on without her, here are 5 questions to ask yourself that will help you decide:

1. Will she be able to quickly find a new guy, or will she struggle to replace you?

[image: Will she be able to find a new guy to replace you?]

If your girlfriend is the type of woman who can easily find a new guy, then waiting for her to come back could prove to be a waste of time, because while you're sitting around waiting, she could be moving on with someone else.

On the other hand, if she's unlikely to meet someone new very quickly, then if you wait for her, she might change her mind and come back.

So, which category does your girlfriend fit into?

Will she move on with another guy if you wait for her to come back? Does she have single girlfriends who are encouraging her to go out and meet guys?

Or, is she sitting around missing you and hoping that you'll call her?

2. Do you think that the relationship is worth working on, or do you think it has run its course?

[image: Is getting her back the right decision?]

Sometimes a guy might stay in a relationship with a woman because it's comfortable (e.g. you and her share the rent or mortgage payments, you get along well as friends) and that feels better than being alone.

Even if the relationship isn't great (i.e. the respect, attraction and love isn't fully mutual), a guy might still enjoy having a woman around to go out with, have sex with and to share the chores and bills.

In the past, a woman would put up with a relationship that she wasn't happy in because it was shameful to break up or divorce.

However, in today's world, women are free and often even encouraged to move on and find a new guy if they aren't happy in a relationship.

So, the questions now are:

Are you really attracted to her in love with her, or do you just want her back because it's easier than finding a new woman?

Do you know what to say and do to create a new relationship dynamic that is based on mutual respect, attraction and love?

Are you hoping to just get a bit more time with her, but don't really know how to keep the relationship together in the long term?

If you want her back and are not sure how you are going to make the relationship work, make sure that you figure out how to properly re-attract her and establish a new, better relationship dynamic.

If you try to get her back, but she can see that you still don't know how to create a more ideal relationship dynamic, she's just not going to be that interested, if at all.

So, make sure that you are prepared to succeed when you next interact with her.

Get her back and make the relationship even better than it was before.

3. Would you be happy to stay with her for life if you and her fell back in love and had a great relationship again?

[image: Waiting for an ex to come back]

Is your girlfriend a woman of good character?

In other words, is she someone that you can rely on and wisely invest all of your lifetime into?

If you're unsure, ask yourself

- Was she trustworthy throughout the relationship, or was she regularly dishonest?
- Was she loving and caring, or did she sometimes do hurtful things (e.g. disrespect you in front of others, forget to call you, or answer your texts)?
- Were you as important to her, as she was to you (e.g. did she put you first in her life above friends, work or hobbies)?
- Did she do things to make you doubt her devotion to you (e.g. she flirted with other guys, hid things from you)?
- Did she respect you and look up to you, or did she put you down?

By answering these questions you'll have a clearer understanding of where you stand with your ex.

If you can only really see positives about her, or if you see the negatives as being your fault, then yes you should get her back and keep the relationship together for life.

However, if you can only see negatives that were her fault (i.e. because she's a woman of bad character), then you might want to get her back for a bit of fun to hook up and feel good about yourself, but she's not a keeper.

4. Do you know how to make her have strong feelings for you again?

[image: Can you fix the relationship when you get her back?]

A guy can spend weeks, months and even years waiting for his ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) to come back, but if he doesn't actually do something active to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for him again, he is likely going to be wasting his time.

To get your girlfriend to come back you need to know how to reactivate her feelings for you first, before you even attempt to ask her for another chance.

Without triggering her feelings of attraction first, it will be a case of you having feelings for her and really wanting her back, but her not feeling much or anything for you and not feeling motivated to give the relationship another chance.

5. How will you feel if she hooks up with other guys and comes back to you, even though you haven't been with any new women in the meantime?

Couples get back together again all the time.

It's actually very common these days and the numbers are rising now thanks to guys following the steps in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System.

I've found that even when a woman is saying things to her ex like, "I hate you," or "I never want to see you again," when he re-activates her feelings of respect and attraction, she can instantly or very quickly change her mind and then get back together with him.

However, if you wait around for your girlfriend to come back to you on her own terms, the chances are higher than she will hook up with another guy (or guys), have sex and begin to enjoy the single lifestyle.

So, the question you need to ask yourself is this:

Will you be okay waiting around, avoiding other women and being the faithful boyfriend who has put his life on hold for her, while she's out there having sex with other guys?

If you get her back and know that she's had sex with other guys, will that bother you?

If you're a very confident guy who can easily pick up other women, you wouldn't care about that.

However, if you're like most guys (i.e. you don't really know how to attract and pick up women and rely on getting lucky every now and then), the thought of a confident guy having sex with her probably makes you feel sick to the stomach.

If You Wait Too Long to Get Her Back, You Might Lose a Lot of Confidence in Your Attractiveness to Women in General

[image: How long are you prepared to wait for her?]

After a break up, some guys make the decision to wait for their girlfriend to come back.

A guy might say, "I've heard people say that absence makes the heart grow fonder. So, if I give my girlfriend some space to be by herself, she will realize that she misses me and she will then come back. Besides, I don't want to be with any other women. I want her. I also don't want her to *think that I'm over her if she sees me with other women. So, I'm going to patiently wait and hopefully that will show her how much I care.*â□□

He might then wait around for 30, 60 (or even more) days in the hope that she contacts him first.

Then when she doesnâ□□t call, he may wonder, *â□□Why isn't she contacting me? Should I give her more time? How long do other guys wait to get a woman back? I've heard online that you're supposed to not contact a woman and if she comes back then it's meant to be, but if she doesn't, then you have to move on.*â□□

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that the main reason why sheâ□□s not coming back is that he isn't doing anything to actively make her have feelings for him again.

He's just waiting in the background and hoping that she changes her mind on her own.

Of course, waiting for a woman to come back does work sometimes (about 20% of the time actually, based on my years of experience helping men get women back) and itâ□□s usually because the woman still has strong feelings for the guy, or because sheâ□□s struggling to find someone else.

However, if a woman doesnâ□□t have feelings for the guy she dumped (80% of cases) and doesn't hear from him for weeks or months, she will likely be too busy moving on with her life to even notice that heâ□□s not around.

When this happens, a guy might begin to lose confidence around other women because he feels unworthy, unattractive and unwanted by his ex.

He may think, *â□□Iâ□□ve been waiting for my ex to come back for months and she hasnâ□□t even called me once just to say hi. Maybe itâ□□s because Iâ□□m not good enough for her. Maybe Iâ□□m just not good looking enough, rich enough or successful enough for her or any woman.*â□□

Then, when he thinks about dating again, he may begin to feel even less sure of himself and his value to women.

*â□□Iâ□□d love to get out and meet a new woman, but I donâ□□t see why a hot woman would want to be with a guy like me. Clearly I'm not a catch or else my girlfriend would have come back to me when I ignored her, so why would another beautiful woman ever be interested in me?*â□□

He then spirals into a cycle of negative, insecure thinking, which eats away at whatever remaining confidence he has in himself.

If he then goes out and tries to meet new women, he will usually get rejected because the women will sense his emotional weakness.

Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, self-belief, determination) and are turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. self-doubt, insecurity).

So, when a guy is being insecure and self-doubting around a woman, she will instinctively feel turned off by him and will usually reject him.

The guy will then likely say to himself, *â□□See?! Beautiful women are not attracted to me. Iâ□□m just not good enough. Iâ□□m not good looking enough. I just want my ex back. At least she loved me! Maybe I should wait longer and build up my career in the meantime, so I am more appealing to my ex. Maybe I should go to the gym. Hhhh, I don't know what I should do. I want her back!*â□□

He might then start thinking, *â□□Maybe it's all about my appearanceâ□□! Iâ□□ve heard women talking about how hot guys are when they have big muscles and six-pack abs. I need to fix my body and improve on my looks. Maybe I need a new wardrobe and a new hairstyle as well.*â□□

[image: I need her back]

He then starts going to the gym and working out, he spends hundreds and even thousands of dollars buying new clothes and changing his appearance.

Yet, hereâ€¦s the thingâ€¦!

Muscles, clothes, or looks are not as attractive to a woman as a manâ€¦s ability to attract her emotionally.

Essentially, a womanâ€¦s emotional attraction to a guy is based on how he makes her feel by the way he interacts with her (i.e. his body language, his attitude, the way he talks and responds to her, and the way he reacts to what she says and does).

His attractiveness to her is based on who he is when sheâ€¦s interacting with him.

For example: When a woman is interacting with a guy, subconsciously she will be asking herselfâ€¦!

- Am I feeling good in his presence, or is he making me feel uncomfortable, bored or turned off?
- Do I feel like I can look up to him and respect him as a man, or do I look down on him?
- Do I feel feminine and girly in his presence, or do I feel more masculine and dominant than him?
- Is he confident and masculine, or is he insecure and needy?
- Could he attract other women and is choosing me because he really likes me, or is he only interested in me because I'm showing some interest and he's hoping to get lucky?
- Is he the sort of guy that other guys would respect or look down on?
- Would I feel proud to introduce him to my family and friends, or would they pick on him or look down on him?

Those are the things that really matter to a woman.

Women are attracted to confident men who believe in themselves and are turned off by insecure men who doubt themselves.

So, if youâ€¦ve been waiting a long time for your girlfriend to come back and have been losing confidence in the process, you must begin to build your confidence back up by getting rid of your negative beliefs about yourself.

In that way, not only will you be able to attract other beautiful women if you want to, but you will be able to make her your ex feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new and improved you.

Do You Really Want Your Ex Girlfriend Back?

Some guys know they got lucky when they hooked up with their girlfriend, so when they get broken up with, they usually say things like, â€¦I think Iâ€¦ll wait for my girlfriend to come back, rather than move on without her.â€¦

A guy might also say, â€¦Iâ€¦ll never meet another woman like my girlfriend. She is my soul mate. Iâ€¦ll wait for her to come back no matter how long it takes.â€¦

Yet, in some cases, the guy might secretly know that sheâ€¦s not the one for him, and heâ€¦s only holding on to her because:

- Heâ□□s afraid of getting rejected by other women.
- He doesnâ□□t want to take the risk of falling in love and getting broken up with again.
- Heâ□□s focusing on all the positives about his ex girlfriend, but is refusing to think about the negatives.
- He doesnâ□□t know how to start dating again after a break up.
- He feels comfortable with his girlfriend, and itâ□□s easier to stick with her than take on the challenge of getting to know a new woman all over again.

Regardless of what your reasons for wanting her back might be, staying with a woman that you donâ□□t really want to be with is a waste of your potential as a man.

The fact is, there are millions of beautiful, sexy, loving women out there looking to meet and hook up with a guy exactly like you.

You simply need to be confident enough to approach them, attract them and open them up to sex and love.

When you know how to trigger a womanâ□□s feelings of attraction, you can have your choice of women.

So, donâ□□t settle for second best when it comes to women (or anything) in your life.

Should You Stay or Should You Go?

Regardless of whether you decide to wait for your girlfriend to come back, or move on without her, the key is to take action quickly.

If you decide to wait for her, you still need to make the effort to interact with her (e.g. via text, on a phone call, and in person), and actively re-activate her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Don't just sit around waiting for her to change her feelings by herself. Be active and get her back by doing something about it.

On the other hand, if you decide that you want to move on without her, make sure that you actively go out, have fun and meet new women, so you can begin to forget all about her.

The choice is yours.

What are you going to do?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Broke Up With Me For Being Childish and Immature

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

As long as you are willing to start being mature from now on, you can get her to forgive your past mistakes and see your immature behavior as being the old version of you and not who you are now. From this day onwards, make sure that you let her see that you are now a much more mature guy, rather than trying to convince her that you will become mature.

You can show her by the way that you talk, behave and take action and as well as how you react and respond to her.

For example: If you begged and pleaded for another chance when she dumped you, here's how to show her that you're now a lot more matureâ€¦|

Just because you were behaving in what she saw as a childish and immature way, it doesn't mean that you will always be that way.

You are already a better man as a result of the experience, so let her see that from now on.

Changing How She Feels

[image: She said that I am too immature]

Right now, your girlfriend is likely saying things like, â€œI don't want anything to do with you anymore, you're too childish and immature for meâ€¦and I've had enough of it.â€œ

She's probably also convinced herself that nothing you can say and do is going to make her change her mind.

However, human emotions change all the time.

When she can see for herself that you're not the childish, immature guy that she broke up with, her feelings for you will naturally change.

However, showing her that you're at a different maturity level now is not a matter of saying, â€œYou know, I've changed now. I'm different. Please just give me another chance and I'll show you that I'm a new man,â€œ because she's probably not going to believe you.

You have to show her that you've changed.

Start by letting her know that you now understand that your immature behavior was a big turn off and then explain to her it's okay for a guy to make some mistakes in a relationship and then become a better man as a result.

Show her that no matter what she says or does around you from now on, you don't think, feel, talk, behave and act like the immature guy you used to be.

Just make sure that you don't keep saying and doing the types of things that can cause your girlfriend to think you still haven't changed (e.g. beg and plead with her to forgive you, become emotionally sensitive and needy, be insecure about your value as a man) and she will realize that you really have learned from your mistakes.

For example: The next time you interact with her over the phone or in person, you can say, “I can see now that what I was doing was wrong and I understand why you broke up with me. Iâ€™m not proud of the way that I behaved when we were together. I accept that I did make that mistake because I was immature at the time. I now know that being an immature or even childish guy isnâ€™t the right way to go about having a happy and successful relationship with a woman like you. However, I want you to know that Iâ€™m not that guy anymore. I donâ€™t expect you to believe me, and thatâ€™s okay. I just wanted to tell you that Iâ€™ve learned from my mistakes, and Iâ€™m now moving forward in my life as a bigger and better man than I ever was before.”

When you say something like that to your ex girlfriend, it starts to calm things down between you and her.

She begins to wonder, “What is going on here? This isnâ€™t the boyish guy that I used to know. He used to react in such a childish and immature way whenever we were going through troubles as a couple. Rather than face up to things like a man, he would have run away from his problems, or blamed me. Yet, thatâ€™s not what heâ€™s doing now. Heâ€™s actually being mature about the whole thing and is even accepting responsibility for his actions. Wow! Iâ€™m really surprised. Maybe I have been too quick about my decision to break up with him. Maybe we are supposed to get back together.”

Of course, admitting your mistakes doesnâ€™t always make a woman change her mind about breaking up with you and come running back, but it will lay a foundation that you can build on.

The key to getting an ex back is that every time you interact with her, you continue saying and doing the types of things that will prove to her that you are no longer the childish and immature guy she remembers.

3 Additional Mistakes That You Should Avoid

[image: She said that I am too childish]

Where many guys go wrong, is by thinking that saying something like that to a woman is all the proof she needs to believe that heâ€™s changed.

Yet, actions speak louder than words, so if you want your girlfriend to believe that youâ€™re now a different guy, you have to back up your words with the right actions.

To succeed at getting her back, try to avoid making any of these newbie mistakesâ€¦

1. Thinking that you have to be together because you were once a great couple.

[image: Sorry, I've had enough of your childishness. Goodbye!]

In the past, a woman was expected to stay with her man, regardless of whether she was happy or not. Essentially, she was considered his property and he could behave any way he wanted to (e.g. cruel, childish, immature, abusive) and she could do nothing about it.

In todayâ€™s world, women are more confident and independent and they can choose to break up with a guy if heâ€™s not making her feel the way that she wants to feel in the relationship with him.

If she starts to lose too much respect and attraction for the guy because of his actions and behavior, she can choose to break up with him because she is an individual and is not his property.

Where some guys go wrong, is thinking that good past experiences together is enough of a reason for her to want to keep the relationship together.

For example: A guy might say, “Please baby, don’t do this. Think about all the good times we had together. I know that things weren’t that wonderful near the end, but why only remember the bad times when there are so many happy memories to think about? We were great as a couple and we can be again if you give us a chance. â”

Yet, saying that to a woman isn’t going to make her change her mind, if she’s not getting the attraction experience that she wants from him anymore.

So, even though they might have had some good times together in the past, it’s simply not going to matter to her if he has recently been behaving in ways that have been turning her off (e.g. insecure, childish, immature, self-doubting).

Essentially, when a woman loses respect and attraction for a guy, she’s not going to care that they were a great couple before.

Instead, she’s going to be saying things like, â” Yes, we had some good times together, but that stopped a long time ago when you started being childish and immature every time something didn’t go your way. So, don’t ask me to think about how great we were as a couple, because that was before I knew who you really are.â”

If you want to make your girlfriend realize that your relationship is worth fighting for, don’t waste time trying to convince by bringing up the past.

Instead, just focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you right now in the present, so she can naturally reconnect with her love for you.

Her love for you is still there in the background, but she just won’t be connecting with that now because she has lost touch with her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

When you re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, her guard comes down and then she becomes more willing to love who you are right now, rather than always thinking of you as the childish, immature guy that she broke up with.

2. Not trying out new ways of talking and behaving to show her your newfound maturity.

[image: I can change. Just give me a chance!]

If your girlfriend contacts you and you’re still talking and behaving in the same old ways, she’s not going to be very interested in getting back together with you.

So, if you want to get her respect back, you need to prove to her (via your actions and behavior) that you’ve moved beyond the level you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: A guy might have been jealous in his relationship with his girlfriend, causing him to feel insecure and therefore react in ways that she interpreted as being childish and immature (e.g. trying to control her, forbidding her to hang out with any of her friends, throwing a tantrum every time she talked to another guy, constantly checking her phone or social media to see if she is talking to any other guys).

To convince her that he’s changed, he now has to react completely differently to the same situations.

For instance, if he sees her talking to another guy, rather than react by getting upset, shouting at her or sulking, he needs to remain confident and calm.

If she says that she can't see him because she's meeting up with friends, he needs to say something like, âThat's great. I hope you enjoy yourself. Have fun!â

Then, when she tests him (e.g. by saying, "I think there might be some guys there too. My friends are single and are trying to meet guys") to see if he's just pretending to have changed and notices that he doesn't bite, she will start believing that he's not the same immature guy that she broke up with.

It's important to understand that you do not have to become perfect to convince your girlfriend that you are now more emotionally mature.

You just need to be a much more emotionally strong and emotionally mature guy than you've been before.

Essentially, if every time that she expects you to react in a certain way (i.e. childish and immature), you respond in a confident, mature way, she won't be able to hold on to her negative opinions about you for long, no matter how hard she tries.

She will begin to think, âHmmâ|this is new. What happened to the annoying guy who throws tantrums when things don't go his way? He's not doing that anymore. No matter what I say or do to test him, he's emotionally mature about it now. I'm actually enjoying being around him again and rather than trying to avoid him. Actually, I'm now looking for excuses to talk to him again.â

When that happens, she will begin to reconnect with the love that she once had for you, which has been waiting there in the background.

3. Letting her dominate you or walk all over you with her confident personality.

Yes, you stuffed up.

You were childish and immature and your girlfriend broke up with you because of that.

Big deal.

Many guys make that mistake, so don't worry about it.

You are a better man now because of it, right?

Just use the experience as a lesson to quickly grow up and become the emotionally strong, emotionally mature man that you are meant to be.

You can do it.

However, that's not going to happen if you allow your girlfriend to walk all over you by continually complaining about all of your past mistakes.

For example: A way that a woman might dominate her ex boyfriend is by constantly bringing up his past mistakes and trying to make him feel bad about it.

[image: Please, just give me one more chance!]

She might say to him, âRemember that time you were sulking for a whole week because I went away for the weekend with my friends? What about the time you threw a tantrum because I was talking to one of my guy coworkers? I can't believe how childish and immature you were. There *was also the time that you accessed my Facebook and read all my messages and even unfriended some guys. You are such a child sometimes you know. You really need to grow up. I can't believe you did that to me. You're such a jerk.*â□□

That's fine if she says that once or twice, but if she brings it up all the time and he keeps apologizing, she's actually losing respect for him for not standing up for himself and saying, "Hey, that's in the past. You've already brought that up plenty of times and I've apologized. There's no need to keep bringing it up."

If a guy doesn't stand up to her when she keeps putting him down and he apologizes for the 100th time with something like, *â□□Iâ□□m sorry! Please let me make it up to you. I'm really sorry. How many times must I apologize for that before you forgive me? I know I messed up. What do you want me to do to prove to you that Iâ□□ve changed? Just tell me what you want and Iâ□□ll do it,*â□□ she will be disappointed at his lack of a backbone to stand up to her.

When a woman dominates a guy in this way, she canâ□□t look up to him and respect him.

When she canâ□□t respect him, she doesnâ□□t feel sexually attracted to him and without those two things, thereâ□□s nothing much left to base a happy relationship on.

So, if your ex keeps bringing up all your past mistakes and talking to you like sheâ□□s the grownup and youâ□□re the child, you need to show her that youâ□□re now more mature than sheâ□□s giving you credit for.

For example: You might say to her, â□□Youâ□□re right, I did do all those things. However, just for a minute, letâ□□s try to imagine something just for fun. Are you in?"

When she says yes, you can say, *"Let's pretend for a minute that we have amnesia and have completely forgotten about the past. Right now, we have to get to know each other all over again based on who we are right now. So, we can like or dislike each other based on who we are right now, not who we used to be in the old relationship. Obviously, I'm a much more mature guy now, so if you were being honest, you would have to admit that you do like the new meâ□□|even if just a little bit.*â□□

By saying something like that to her, youâ□□re having a bit of fun to lighten the mood and relax her anger.

You're also establishing your role as a mature man, which will likely stop her in her tracks and make her wonder, *â□□What happened here? Who is this new, mature guy? I feel like the woman nowâ□□|I feel like he's actually in controlâ□□|and I like it.*â□□

She will then begin to feel feminine and girly in contrast to your masculine approach to the interaction.

From there, every time that you interact with her (via text message, on social media, on a phone call, and especially in person) focus on showing her via the way that you think, talk and behave that you are now a completely new man.

Initially, she might be a reluctant to accept that youâ□□ve actually changed and she might say, *â□□A leopard doesnâ□□t change its spots. You canâ□□t have changed that much since we broke up. I don't believe you that you are now a different guy.*â□□

Don't worry; her guard will come down when you keep making her feel respect and attraction for you every time that you interact with her.

When her guard comes down, she will allow herself to properly feel attracted to you again and will truly begin to love the new you.

All you need to do then is confidently guide her back into a relationship.

Taking a Positive Step Forward

So, your girlfriend broke up with you for being childish and immature.

What's done is done.

It's fine because you can get her back. So, don't worry.

Once you re-attract her and get her back, you can build a new, more mature relationship with your girlfriend based on mutual respect, attraction and love.

When she feels more respect for you than she ever has before (because you are now making her feel attracted in new and exciting ways), she will realize that it feels right to open herself up to loving you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Said That I Have No Chance With Her Anymore

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

There's always a chance to get a woman back, so what she is saying is simply based on how she feels about you now.

She currently doesn't believe that you will be able to change and give her the relationship experience she wants, so she has given up.

You can get her to go from saying that you have no chance with her to saying that there might be a chance, if you can reactivate some of her feelings (i.e. respect, attraction, love) when you interact with her 1 to 3 more times.

Once she opens back up to you a little bit, you then need to rapidly build up her feelings for you by getting her to experience new feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Feelings Change All the Time

[image: Making her fall in love with you all over again]

Hearing a woman say, *â€œYou have no chance with me anymore. It's really over between us, so please just move on,*â€œ can easily make a guy believe that getting her back is a lost cause and that her feelings will never, ever change.

Yet, regardless of how convinced your ex might be right now that she never wants anything else to do with you, when you change how she feels about you, everything WILL change.

Think about it like thisâ€¦

Throughout your life, you might have noticed how a person can go from disliking someone (or even hating them), to liking them, becoming friends and sometimes, even falling in love with them.

It's possible that something like that might have even happened to you throughout your life, possibly multiple times.

For example: Maybe there was a guy at work, or university who really got on your nerves and you just hated him or despised him.

Something about his behavior and the way he communicated with you just got under your skin (e.g. he was too loud and obnoxious, he disregarded your opinions, he was disrespectful) and you found yourself disliking him and even secretly wishing you could punch him in the face.

Then, somewhere along the line, he changed his communication style, became more respectful towards you and generally improved his behavior.

Chances are that when that happened, your feelings towards him changed.

You may have gone from thinking, *â€œWhat an idiot that guy is!*â€œ to *â€œWell, he's actually not so bad after all,*â€œ and you possibly even became friends.

The fact is, feelings can change.

In the case of getting your ex back; she can literally go from firmly believing that she never wants to see you again, to really, really wanting to be with you.

Whether or not you will be successful at getting her back, all depends on the approach that you use when trying to get her back.

For example: A guy might make some of these mistakes when trying to get an ex back:

- Beg and plead with her to give him another chance.
- Apologize excessively.
- Plead with her to remember the good times.
- Pour his heart out to her and tell her how he can't live without her.
- Give her reasons why they should be together.
- Send her text messages talking about good old memories to hopefully get her to miss him.
- Ignoring her for weeks or months in the hopes that she eventually changes her mind and comes back on her own.
- Lying about having other women interested in him to hopefully make her jealous.

Yet, those approaches rarely work.

Begging and pleading and excessive apologizing doesn't work because it makes a guy come across as being emotionally weak, which is very unattractive to women.

[image: But you promised that we would be together forever]

Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, self-assurance, masculinity, determination), so when a guy begs, pleads or cries to her for another chance, it simply makes her lose even more respect and attraction for him as man.

As for when a guy is pouring his heart out to her and saying things like, "I love you so much! I can't live without you. Please don't destroy what we had together. I know I messed up but how can you forget about all the good times we shared?" a woman simply won't care about any of that if she doesn't have feelings for him.

So, if the current way that you've been communicating with your ex has been turning her off, then it's only natural that she will be behaving coldly towards you and saying things like, "It's really over between us," or "There's nothing that you can say or do that will make me change my mind about you. You have no chance with me anymore, so just leave me alone and move on. We're finished."

That's how she is feeling based on how you've been interacting with her up until this point.

However, when you make some changes and improvements to the way you are interacting with her and talking to her from now on, her feelings will also change.

When you interact with your ex in ways that build up her feelings of respect and attraction for you, everything changes.

She starts to feel drawn to you again in a way that actually feels good to her.

Then, rather than dwelling on her past negative feelings for you every time she thinks about you, she begins to feel more positive emotions and actually begins to miss not having you around.

3 Important Questions to Answer Right Now

[image: Questions about your ex to answer now]

If you want to change the way that your ex feels about you, here are 3 important questions that you should answer right nowâ€¦!

1. Do you know how to make her feelings about you change?

Quite often, when a guy gets broken up with, his first instinct is to ask his woman, â€œWhat have I done? Please tell me what I did wrong. Whatever it is just tell me and Iâ€™ll change.â€

He may be hoping that by telling him exactly what to change about himself, she will then be happy to give him a chance to do that and change her mind about breaking up with him.

Yet, thatâ€™s not how it works.

A woman doesnâ€™t want to be a guyâ€™s teacher in life and have to teach him how to be the man that she wants.

If she has to start explaining to him what heâ€™s doing wrong, she will feel like sheâ€™s taking on the role of his mother, teacher or big sister.

Whatâ€™s wrong with that?

If a woman takes on the role of being a manâ€™s teacher, she also takes on the more dominant role in the relationship, which then makes her lose respect and, more importantly, feelings of sexual attraction for her guy.

Hereâ€™s what you always need to remember about relationships with womenâ€¦!

Regardless of a womanâ€™s achievements outside of her romantic relationship (e.g. she is a leader in an office workplace, she is a leading student at university, she is respected and looked up to by her family), she will always secretly want to be in a relationship where the man is “the man” and she is his woman.

A woman wants to be able to relax into her feminine self and be a feminine, emotional woman, rather than having to think, feel, behave and act like a man to keep the relationship in order.

When a woman feels more dominant than her man in a romantic relationship, she naturally begins to lose respect for him.

If a woman doesnâ€™t respect her man, her sexual attraction for him will begin to fade.

Then, if she doesnâ€™t feel respect and sexual attraction for him, she will gradually fall out of love with him.

This is why itâ€™s not a good idea to ask a woman what you did wrong and what she wants you to change about yourself.

A woman wants you to figure out how to be the man she needs you to be, without her help, because she doesnâ€™t want to be your teacher and feel like sheâ€™s more dominant than you in the relationship.

You have been dumped and this is a crossroads in your life where you are either going to stand up and become a better man, or remain stuck at the level you’re at right now, which is clearly not attractive to your ex.

2. Will having time apart make her miss you?

[image: Giving her the space to move on]

If a guy tries everything he can think of to make his ex change her mind (e.g. beg, plead, apologize, tell her that he loves her, promise to change) and nothing works, it only stands to reason that he might then, as a last resort, give her time apart in the hopes that she will eventually miss him and come back by herself.

A lot of guys go around believing that all a woman really needs is some space to suddenly come to the realization that her ex was the one for her.

Yet, thatâs not how it works for most ex back situations. Why?

When a woman is saying that her ex has no chance with her anymore, it usually means that any feelings that she had for him in the past have now been buried under more negative emotions such as anger, hurt, disappointment, resentment or disgust.

If the guy then stops texting her, ignores her on social media and doesnât call her up to say hi and arrange a time catch up in person, itâs unlikely that she will suddenly be thinking, *âHuh??!!! Why is my ex avoiding me? I know I told him that there was no chance between us anymore, but now that heâs completely ignoring me I just canât stop thinking about him! I want him back soooo bad!*â

Instead, itâs more likely that she will be thinking, *âHooray! Iâm rid of him at last. It looks like he finally got the message and heâs leaving me alone. Now I can move on with my life in peace.*â

So, don't waste time giving your ex loads of space and hoping that it magically makes her change her mind about you.

If you want to back off and give your ex a bit of space thatâs perfectly fine, as long as itâs no more than 7 days before you contact her again to attempt to arrange an in person meet up.

Anything longer than 7 days is a waste of time, and it just gives her more time to go out, meet other guys, have sex and possibly even fall in love.

Where a lot of guys go wrong is by cutting off all contact with their ex for up to 30 or even 60 days after a break up.

Then, when she doesnât come running back, and he possibly even hears from someone else that sheâs dating a new guy, he might wonder, *âWhat went wrong? Shouldnât she be missing me and realizing that Iâm the one for her? Why is she moving on with another guy? I thought it was essential that I not contact her for a long time after the break up. I thought that giving her lots of space was the answer.*â

The reason why she didn't come running back is simpleâ

When a woman doesnât have feelings for a guy, sheâs not going to feel like sheâs missing out on much when she stops hearing from him, so sheâll usually just move on.

The fastest way to get your ex to stop saying that you have no chance with her anymore, is by actively make her have some feelings for you again by interacting with her on a phone call and in person.

After helping 100s of guys to get women back, I've found that giving a woman many weeks or even months of time apart only works 20% of the time if:

- She is still in love with the guy.
- She canât handle the emotions of the break up.
- She canât find another guy to take his place.

So, if your ex doesn't want anything to do with you at the moment, don't waste a lot of time ignoring her and hoping that her feelings for you will change all by themselves.

You have to actively build up her feelings for you by getting her to experience new feelings of respect and attraction for you.

When you do that, she will drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of interacting with you again.

From that moment on, you've just got to continue saying and doing the types of things that are going to keep building up her feelings for you, rather than saying and doing the types of things that were turning her off in the past, or that have been turning her off since the break up.

3. Are you trying to get her back even though you haven't improved your ability to attract her in ways that she really cares about?

When a woman is saying things like, "Forget about me. There is no chance of us getting back together again," a guy will often begin to change all sorts of things about himself.

For example: A guy might think, "Okay, well maybe she needs me to spoil her more than I've been doing so far. If I'm even nicer to her than ever before, tell her how much I care and spoil her with gifts, romantic dinners and special weekends away, she will change her mind and give me another chance. I've got to try to buy her things or help her financially or do something with her to show her how much I care."

Yet, what he often doesn't realize is that a woman's love cannot be bought.

Sure, some women out there are gold diggers and will stay with a man for a while to get lots of gifts and jewelry and live a luxurious lifestyle, but that isn't love.

She's just using him until she's had enough.

A woman's love cannot be bought.

If you want a woman to love you, the solution is to actively create that love by how you make her feel as you interact with her.

For example: Be confident, charismatic and make her laugh, rather than being insecure and stressing her out when you talk to her.

If your ex doesn't have feelings for you at this point and doesn't want anything to do with you, the next step for you is to start building up her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

How can you do that?

You need to be offering her what she really wants, not what you think she wants, whenever she interacts with you.

If you're unsure about what she really wants, here are some questions you can ask yourself to help you work things out:

- Did I make her feel loved and appreciated when we were together, or did I take her for granted and put other people and things (e.g. friends, work, hobbies) before her in my life?
- Did I make her my world and become needy and controlling, rather than having a more balanced, mature approach to life where I spent time with her and also spent time with friends and on working towards my biggest goals and ambitions in life?

- Was she able to depend on me as the man, or did I expect her handle the problems in our relationship?
- Could she look up to me and respect me as a man, or did I use my relationship with her as an excuse to hide from my true potential in life?
- Did I make her feel feminine and attractive in my presence, or did she feel more like a friend or big sister to me?
- Did we want the same things in life, or were we going in different directions (e.g. getting married vs. partying and staying single)?

When you fully understand her real, more subtle reasons for breaking up, you can then begin to say and do the types of things that will show her that youâ€¢ve moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: If a woman wants to feel girly and feminine in comparison to the guyâ€¢s masculine vibe and presence, the best way for him to show her that heâ€¢s changed is by letting her experience the new him when he talks to her on the phone or in person.

Regardless of what she says to him, how coldly or rudely sheâ€¢s treating him, or how badly sheâ€¢s behaving, she will notice that he now responds in an emotionally strong, masculine way. He remains calm and in control of his emotions rather than becoming nervous, unsure of himself or upset at how she is behaving.

Regardless of what she is saying and doing, he focuses on making her laugh, smile and feel girly in his presence.

Initially, she might say to herself, *â€¢Heâ€¢s just putting on an act to impress me. If I keep pushing him by being cold and bitchy, he will eventually crack and become the emotional, wimpy guy that I broke up with.*â€¢

However, when she realizes that no matter how much she tests him, he remains confident and masculine, she will naturally begin to feel feminine and girly in his presence and that will re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

So, if youâ€¢re at a point now where youâ€¢ve been trying to get your ex back and she keeps telling you that you have no chance with her anymore, the quickest way to make her drop her guard and open back up to you is by getting her to feel some respect and attraction you again.

[image: Fully re-attracting her in person]

When she experiences these feelings again, her guard will come down, and she will likely agree to meet up with you to see how she feels.

From there, you just need to continue saying and doing the types of things that will prove to her that youâ€¢re not just trying to impress her, but that youâ€¢re now the kind of man she can look up to, respect and feel proud to call her own.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Does Giving an Ex Space Work?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Giving an ex space works only if she fits into one of the following 3 categories:

1. She is still in love with you.
2. She won't be able to handle the pain of a break up.
3. She won't be able to find a new guy to replace you.

If a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, she will usually be happy that he's not contacting her and will simply move on without him while he waits around giving her space.

If she was completely turned off by him near the end of the relationship and went through a messy break up with him where he tried hard to save the relationship, giving her space may leave her thinking, â€œWhat a relief! I am now free to move on with my life without having to deal with him trying to get me back.â€

She will then start to make plans to hook up with friends, go out and meet new guys.

This is why I only recommend that a guy give a woman 3 to 7 days of space before contacting her to initiate the actual ex back process.

If you leave it too long, you run the risk of her moving on without you, or having enough time to get over the pain of the break up to not want to go through all that again.

What Most Guys Don't Know About Getting an Ex Woman Back

[image: Most guys give a woman too much space]

Most guys don't know much space to give an ex, so they just give her lots of space and hope that it eventually makes her come running back.

For example: A guy might think, â€œShe said that she needs space, so I'll leave her alone for a few weeks or a month. She will then realize that I'm the one for her and she will come back. People say that absence makes the heart grow fonder and that if it's meant to be, she'll come back. So, I guess that the longer I stay away from her, the better. It will give her more time to miss me.â€

[image: Hopefully she will come running back if I ignore her]

He will then spend weeks or even months avoiding his ex, in the hopes that this will be enough time apart to make her miss him and want to come back.

Yet, that's not how it works for most ex back cases.

If a woman has stopped feeling respect and attraction for a guy (e.g. because he'd become an insecure, controlling or emotionally abusive boyfriend or husband), then not hearing from him for a long time isn't going to bother her much at all.

Think about it like this:

When a woman breaks up with a guy, it's usually because she's stopped feeling the way that she wants to feel when sheâs in a relationship.

She was likely feeling hurt, angry, disappointed and a whole bunch of other negative emotions that make it difficult to keep a relationship together.

So, when she stops hearing from him, itâs unlikely that she will be thinking, âOh no! Why isnât he calling me? Why is he ignoring me? What if he leaves me alone and I never see him again? I donât know what Iâd do if he never spoke to me again. I canât live without himâ! Iâd better go running back to him before itâs too late!

Instead, itâs more likely that she will be thinking, âYayy! Heâs out of my life forever. Now I can get on with doing all the things that a single woman can do. I can have fun, meet new guys, and enjoy myself for a change.

This is why giving your ex more than 3 to 7 days of space is actually a waste of time.

The Space to Move on

[image: Giving her the space to move on]

Even if a woman still has some feelings for her ex, if she doesnât hear from him for a long time, she may assume that heâs no longer interested in trying to work things out.

She might conclude, âOh well, I guess my ex doesnât want to work things out between us after all. Iâm not going to waste any more time waiting around for him, Iâm moving on. Iâm going to hook up with that guy at work who has been flirting with me lately.

Then, when she hooks up with that guy or another new guy and feels the excitement of new love and new sex, she begins to lose interest in seeing her ex again or even trying to work things out.

Regardless of whether the new guy is a perfect match for her or not, she will likely be seeing him in a more favorable light compared to her (absent) ex.

For example: If a woman felt that her ex boyfriend (fianc  or husband) was taking her for granted (e.g. by not paying too much attention to her anymore, putting her second to his job/friends/hobbies all the time) and the new guy is attentive, flattering and makes her feel feminine and girly in his presence, sheâs going to think heâs better than her ex.

Alternatively, if a womanâs ex was insecure and clingy in the relationship (qualities that are instinctively unattractive to a woman) and the new guy is a bit more confident and self-assured, she will assume that he is more emotionally strong than her ex (especially when her ex is not around to show her that heâs not the insecure guy she used to know anymore).

In the meantime, she may begin to think, âIâm so glad that my ex has disappeared. If he didnât stay out of my life, I wouldâve never met this great new guy. What a blessing!

Then, if her ex calls her up out of the blue, after giving her weeks or months of space, sheâs likely going to be saying, âSorry, youâre too late. Iâve moved on and Iâm happy with my new guy now.

So, even if the new guy isnât perfect, and even if she eventually breaks up with him (e.g. because heâs just a rebound), right now heâs the only one who is there actively triggering her feelings of attraction in ways that feel good to her.

The way to prevent that horrible outcome from happening to you is to be active about getting your ex back, rather than passive.

Don't sit around hoping your ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) will suddenly wake up one day and realize that she's made a big mistake by breaking up with you.

If you've been out of her life for so long that she hardly remembers what you look like, it's less likely that she's going to assume you've changed and come running back to you.

To get her back quickly, you have to be interacting with her (to reactivate her feelings of respect, attraction and love) every chance that you get.

Whether you're texting her something funny to make her smile, calling her up on the phone so that she can experience your emotional strength, or meeting up with her in person and re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction, you simply can't do that by giving her space.

Giving a woman more than a week of space when she doesn't have feelings for you anymore is usually a recipe for disaster.

It can make some women eventually come back to a guy, but after helping 100s of men get women back, I've found that the highest success rate for getting an ex back happens when a guy actively makes the woman have feelings for him again.

So, rather than wasting weeks waiting for your ex to realize that she misses you, just focus on making her feel attracted to you right now by getting her to laugh, smile and feel good whenever you interact with her (e.g. via text, social media, on a phone call, and in person).

Make Her Smile and Feel Happy to Be Interacting With You Again

[image: Getting an ex back via text]

A common mistake that some guys make is to wait for their ex to give them a 100% clear sign that she's ready to be contacted again.

However, the longer he waits to hear from her, the more time she has to get over him.

So, by all means, give your ex a few days space if she asks for it, but after that time is up, get on with the important business of actively re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Get her on a phone call and start making her smile and laugh again, so that hearing from you is actually something she enjoys now.

On a phone call, you've got to shake her out of her current (negative) state of mind and make her feel curious enough about the changes she's noticing in you, that she actually wants to meet up in person.

You want her to be thinking, It's actually nice talking to him again. He makes me laugh and I feel good. I suppose meeting up with him for some coffee wouldn't be such a bad thing after all.

When you make a woman smile and laugh on a phone call or in person, she can't stop herself from enjoying talking to you again.

From there, all of her angry, negative feelings begin to get pushed into the background and are replaced by more positive emotions such as respect and attraction, which is what you want.

Then, when you meet up with her, you just need to continue saying and doing the types of things that are going to keep turning her feelings on for you and make her feel attracted to you again, rather than saying and doing the types of things that were turning her off in the past, or that have been turning her off since the break up.

For example: If a guy was insecure, needy and clingy in the relationship, when he meets up with his ex after giving her space, he needs to show her via the way he talks, the way he interacts with her, and the way he reacts to her, that he is now an emotionally strong man that she can look up to and respect.

So, if she says something like, âLook, I donât think itâs going to work out between us. I just donât have feelings for you anymore,â he can respond differently than he would have in the past.

He can react in a confident, emotionally secure way that sheâs not expecting.

For instance, in the past he might have responded byâ

- Begging and pleading with her to reconsider her decision.
- Promising her that he will change if she just gives him one more chance.
- Telling her how much he still loves her and that heâs completely lost without her in his life.
- Asking her to tell him what he needs to change about himself to make her happy.
- Offering to do whatever she wants him to do.
- Apologizing over and over again.

So, rather than reacting in any of those ways, which would make her lose even more respect and attraction for him, he instead responds with confidence.

He turns her negative expectations of him into something that not only makes her smile and laugh, but also shows her that heâs moved past the level he was at when she broke up with him.

Hereâs an example â

When his ex says, âLook, I donât think itâs going to work out between us. I just donât have feelings for you anymore,â he can smile, laugh and say in a joking way, âDamn! Thatâs a shame. I won the lottery last week, so now Iâm going to have to keep your share of the winnings since you donât want to be my girl anymore. For a moment there, I thought you were going to be a millionaire too.â

She might respond by saying, âWhat? You won the lottery?â and he can then laugh and say, âNo, Iâm only kiddingâbut, I am doing better at work these days and I think Iâm going to get promoted soon, which is cool. It was funny to see your reaction though â I had you there for a secondâ and then laugh.

She will most likely laugh and smile in that moment, and possibly even be thinking, âWow, that was unexpected. I thought this was going to be an awkward and unpleasant coffee. He seems a lot cooler now. I wonderâwhat else has changed about him?â

Of course, saying something funny and making her smile in that moment doesnât mean sheâs going to throw herself in your arms right away and you can then both live happily ever after.

That is only the beginning.

Saying something like that to her to get her laughing and smiling makes her drop her guard and open herself up to her old feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again.

As the Man, You Need to Lead the Way

[image: Lead the way and get her back]

In a modern relationship, it is still the man's responsibility to lead the way and maintain and grow the love, respect and attraction between him and his woman.

Even though women are now more independent and can make their own decisions about how to live life, when in a romantic relationship, a woman wants a man to lead the way.

If he fails to do that and behaves in ways that cause her to lose respect for him as a man (e.g. he lets her wear the pants in the relationship), she just isn't going to be very excited about staying with him for life.

So, if you want to get your ex back, you need to be the one to make it happen, rather than waiting around by giving her space and hoping she will suddenly realize that your relationship is worth fighting for.

You've got to focus on changing how she feels, rather than hoping that her feelings change without your intervention.

When you interact with her (e.g. via text, on social media, over the phone and in person) and actively trigger her feelings for you again, her guard will come down and she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love she once felt for you.

Remember: Giving an ex space works in most cases, as long as it's not longer than 3 to 7 days, and as long as when you do contact her, you focus on saying and doing the types of things that will renew her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

On the other hand, if you stay out of touch with her for too long, it can make her feel that you don't care and she may just move on and try to forget all about you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Is it Possible to Get Your Ex Back Today, or Even This Week?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Yes, some women will get back with a guy immediately, or after a week of space.

However, some women can take 2 to 4 weeks to fully get back into a relationship depending on how serious the reasons for the break up were (e.g. the guy was very insecure, needy or controlling, or there was cheating involved).

If you want to get your ex back today, this week, or at least very quickly, you must focus on re-sparking some of her feelings for you first.

Without sparking her feelings of respect and attraction again for you before you try to get her back, sheâs just going to be saying, âSorry, but I just donât have any feelings for you,â or âForget it. Iâm not interested in getting back together again,â because youâre not saying and doing the types of things that are making her have feelings for you.

Here are 4 common mistakes to avoid making if you want to get your ex back quicklyâ!

1. Trying to Get Her Back Immediately By Pleading, Crying or Begging

[image: Please I'm begging you]

One of the most common reactions that guys have when they get broken up with is to beg and plead with a woman to change her mind.

A guy may think, âI donât want to break up with her. I still love her. I have to do whatever it takes to convince her that Iâm the guy for her. I have to make her change her mind. Iâm going to beg and plead so she knows how much I care.â

He might then start texting her, sending her e-mails, messaging her on social media, or calling her up and pleading with her to give him another chance.

For example: He might say things like, âPlease forgive me! Iâm so sorry for what I did. I know I messed up but if you just let me explain, we can make this work. Just tell me what you want me to do and Iâll do it. Please donât give up on us. All Iâm asking for is one more chance to show you that things can be different between us. Please. I donât want to be with any other women. I only want you. Please donât do this to us. We can make this work. Please just give me a chance.â

If she then responds by saying something like, âNo, Iâm sorry but itâs over between us,â he might then even start crying and saying, âI need you! Pleaseâ I canât live without you in my life. You mean everything to me. You are my whole world. Without you, life isnât worth living.â

Sometimes a guy behaves in that way because he believes that by getting emotional (and possibly even crying) he is showing her how much she means to him.

He may hope that if she sees the devastating emotional effect that the break up is having on him, she will feel flattered and possibly even think to herself, âWow, I never realized how much my guy loves me. I can't break up with him now. I would never be able to find another guy who could love me as much as he does. It must mean that we're meant to be together.

[image: Begging doesn't work on most women]

Although that might work if a woman is still in love with the guy and is secretly hoping that they will get back together, in most cases it simply turns the woman off even more. Why?

It is a woman's natural instinct to be attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, determination, masculinity, the ability to cope in a crisis), and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, self-doubt, neediness, desperation, an inability to handle what life throws at him).

So, when a woman breaks up with a guy and he responds by becoming emotional, pleading, begging and possibly even crying, she naturally feels turned off by him, because of what she perceives as his emotional weakness.

A woman wants to be with the type of man who is emotionally strong and that she can look up to, respect and feel a strong attraction for, not a guy who can't handle his problems in life without breaking down.

Of course, if you've already pleaded (or even cried) while trying to convince your ex to give you another chance; don't worry about it.

It's not the end of the world.

Now that you understand how begging, pleading or crying can cause a woman to lose respect and attraction for a man, you have learned a valuable lesson and that is a good thing.

From now on, just focus on re-sparking some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you every time you interact with her (e.g. via text, social media, on the phone, or in person) and she will begin to see you in a more positive light.

For example: The next time you're talking to her on the phone, or in person, you can laugh and say in a joking manner, I hope you invested in Kleenex shares. With all the crying I did when we broke up, you'd be a rich woman by now if you had Kleenex shares. On a serious note I know that I overreacted and I'm sorry for putting you in a difficult position. It was silly and immature of me to cry (or beg and plead) like that, which I now realize. I should have been a man about it and I know that now.

Will that make her say, Oh wow! You're so mature now! let's get back together again!

No, but it's a start.

From that point onward, you just need to continue saying and doing the types of things that will re-spark her feelings for you.

2. Promising to Change

[image: Promising to change usually doesn't stop a break up]

Another common mistake that guys make when hoping to convince a woman to give him another chance, is to promise her that he will change anything she wants.

For example: A guy might say, I'm going to change. Whatever you want I'll do it. Just *give me a chance to prove it to you.*â€œ

Yet in most cases, rather than make her change her mind, this will likely annoy the woman even more. Why?

Firstly, this is probably not the first time the guy is promising her that he will change.

They will have probably had many arguments and disagreements before she broke up with him and he may have said things like, *â€œI promise to change this time. Please give me one more chance.*â€œ

Yet, clearly that never happened.

The second reason why a woman doesn't want to hear a guy's promises is because, quite often, he doesn't even know what he needs to change.

For example: A guy might be saying, *â€œI promise to take better care of you,*â€œ or *â€œI promise we'll do more things together.*â€œ

Yet, what the woman really wants him to change is his lack of purpose and direction in life, or for him to stop being insecure, clingy and needy in the relationship.

If you keep promising your ex that you will change things about yourself that she doesn't really want (e.g. she wants you to be more manly, but you're promising to treat her better), she's just going to be thinking, *â€œHe still doesn't get it. Obviously nothing has changed,*â€œ and getting her back today, or even this week will become a lot more difficult for you.

Rather than promising your ex that you will change if she gives you another chance, just focus on making her feel differently about you by completely changing the way you interact with her.

When you make some big adjustments to the way you talk to her and she then starts feeling respect, attraction and love for you again, the process of getting her back becomes a lot quicker and easier.

Even though she might not want to initially, she can stop herself from feeling like she wants to open up to you again.

She becomes intrigued and starts to wonder, *â€œWhat's going on here? Why am I feeling this way?*â€œ and suddenly wants to text you, speak with you on the phone, contact you via social media and see you in person.

3. Showing Her How Much You Care

[image: Trying to buy her love]

When a guy finds himself in the position where his girlfriend (fianc  or wife) is telling him that the relationship is over, it's only natural that he might struggle to accept that reality.

All of sudden, the woman that he loves so much doesn't want anything to do with him.

So, how can he change her mind?

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that if they show her how much they care (e.g. by buying her gifts, offering to take her on holidays, helping her financially, doing favors for her), she will change her mind because he's being so nice and helpful.

Yet, being nice and helpful doesn't make a woman feel sexual and romantic feelings for a guy that she doesn't respect.

If you want to get a woman back, you must start the process by making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction to the new and improved you, rather than trying to suck up to her by being Mr. Nice Guy or Mr. Generous all of a sudden.

There's nothing wrong with being good to her, but you must get her to look up to you and respect you as a man first before she will actually feel any romantic or sexual feelings in response to how well you are treating her.

If you are just being nice to her to show her how much you care, a woman will usually say something like, â€œI appreciate that you still care about me, but I can't change how I feel. I just don't feel the same way any more. I'm sorry.â€

4. Cut Off All Communication With Her

[image: Hopefully she will come running back if I ignore her]

When nothing else works (e.g. pleading, crying, pouring his heart out, promising to change, showing her how much he cares) a guy may then decide to cut off all communication with his ex, in the hopes that it will make her realize her mistake.

For example: A guy might stop replying to his ex's text messages, ignore her on social media, and avoid calling her up on the phone, or hanging out in any of the places that he knows she might be at.

He may think, â€œWhen she notices that I'm missing completely from her life, she will realize how much she actually misses me. She'll see that she made a big mistake by dumping me and that no other guy can love her and take care of her the way I do. Then, when I call her up, she will be happy to hear from me, rather than telling me she doesn't care about me anymore.â€

Yet, unless a woman is still in love with her ex, or she can't find another guy to take his place, that approach just isn't going to work. Why?

If a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy (e.g. she lost respect and attraction for him because he'd become an insecure boyfriend, fianc  or husband), suddenly not hearing from him anymore isn't going to break her heart.

In fact, if a guy has been pleading, crying, promising to change, telling her how much he loves her, and generally making a nuisance of himself around her since the break up, a woman may even feel relieved that he's stopped bothering her.

She will think, â€œWhat a relief! I thought he would never leave me alone. Hopefully this means that he's gone forever and I can now get on with my life without him annoying me any more.â€

This is why it's usually not a good idea to try and convince your ex how valuable you are to her, by cutting off all communication with her for more than 3 to 7 days.

Anything longer than a week of no contact and you're simply giving her more time to meet someone else and move on.

Another reason why you should act fast to get an ex back is that she might look at your no contact as meaning that you and her aren't meant to be together.

She may think, â€œOh wellâ€œI was kind of hoping that we could work things out, but it looks like he doesn't care about me anymore. He's obviously moved on, so I'm going to do the same. I wonder if that cute guy at the gym still wants to go out on a date with me. I'll talk to him tonight and suggest going for a drink together and she will then try to make herself forget all about you.

So, if you want to get your ex back today, or even this week, ignoring her for a long time isn't the best way to do it.

Instead, you need to use every chance you get to interact with her to make her experience the types of emotions that feel good to her (e.g. respect, attraction, romantic feelings, sexual desire, love).

[image: Attract her over the phone, rather than trying to convince her]

After every interaction with you, she needs to be able to say to, Wow it was actually fun hearing from my ex again. I would have never imagined that he could make me smile and laugh like that. I'm actually enjoying talking to him now. It feels good. Maybe it means that we are meant to be together. Maybe it's a sign that I should just meet up with him and see what happens.

When you reactivate her feelings for you again, it makes her think about the negatives of your relationship in a more favorable light, because you're actively replacing her bad memories with new, more positive ones.

The new, positive feelings that she has for you creates an opening for you to then quickly guide her back into a relationship.

So, if you are serious about getting your ex back, focus on making her have feelings for you now, rather than waiting around and hoping that she redevelops feelings for on her own.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

When My Ex Came Back: 5 Real Life Examples

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 5 real life examples of what men did to get an ex woman back and why it worked.

1. I stopped being insecure and began to be the confident guy that she always wanted me to be. We met up, she felt attracted and then gave me another chance.

[image: Changing and improving to get her back]

Women are instinctively attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity, self-belief, drive and determination) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, neediness, clinginess, self-doubt).

So, when a guy is being insecure in a relationship, this comes across as emotional weakness and it turns the woman off at a deep, instinctive level.

For example: A guy might initially get lucky when he hooks up with his girlfriend (fiancée or wife).

Then, after a while, he might begin to doubt his value to her and start thinking things like, “She’s just so beautiful. Why is she with a guy like me?” or “What if she meets a guy who is better looking/richer/more successful than I am?” or “She means everything to me. I just couldn’t live without her.”

Without realizing it, he is actually creating his own insecurity by thinking in that way.

He’s literally adding fuel to the fire of his insecurity every time he questions his value to her and after a while, it’s a fire that gets out of control and spills out into his relationship with her.

Feeling very insecure, he might begin to focus all his energy on her and make her the centre of his world (e.g. by giving up all his friends, hobbies and other interests to be around her even more).

Some women do like it when a man has nothing else going on in his life besides her, but these women are in the minority.

The majority of women prefer to feel that although her man loves and appreciates her, he has big plans and dreams that he’s working towards in life that are independent of his relationship with her.

So, rather than his complete attention on her making her feel loved and appreciated, it causes her to feel smothered and like the guy is using her as an excuse to hide from his true potential in life.

Over time, his insecurity drives a wedge between them and the thing that he has always feared the most ends up happening; she breaks up with him.

So, how can a guy get a woman back in a case like that?

Firstly, he needs to stop focusing all his energy on how much he needs her and get to the point where he wants her back, but can live a happy and fulfilled life without her.

When a guy does that, something remarkable begins to happen.

His insecurity starts to fade away.

He becomes a more emotionally secure, emotionally mature and emotionally masculine man, which is naturally attractive to women.

Then, when he interacts with his ex again (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) and she gets a sense that he is now a confident and self-assured man (e.g. because he is now focusing on pursuing his dreams in life rather than just focusing on being with her), her feelings of respect and attraction begin to resurface.

He suddenly seems more attractive to her than he has ever before because he has grown up as a man and she feels herself drawn to the new, confident, emotionally strong man that he has become.

It feels good to her to be around him. It feels right.

So, in most cases, she gives him another chance just based on that.

Of course, not all women will give a guy another chance just because he has changed and improved.

Sometimes, a guy needs to use additional attraction and persuasion techniques (taught in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System) to get a more stubborn, unwilling, closed off woman to open up and give him another chance.

Here is another example of how a man got his ex woman backâ€¦|

2. â€œI got her to forgive me for taking her for granted, proposed marriage to her, she said yes and we got back together.â€œ

[image: Getting her back into a relationship]

In some ex back cases, a woman has broken up with a guy because she had been waiting too long for him to take their relationship to the next level by getting engaged and then married.

So, after a guy has re-attracted her and gotten her to forgive him for taking her for granted, a woman will sometimes be ready to say, “Yes!” right away to getting engaged.

3. I improved my ability to attract her, met up with her and re-attracted her and we then got back together.

The beginning of a relationship is always the easy part, because the thrill of new love puts a shine on any problems that might be there between the two individuals.

So, even if a couple isnâ€™t fully compatible with each other, they are more likely to think, â€œAh, weâ€™ll worry about that later,â€ while the excitement of being together is still fresh and fun.

However, if the guy is unable to deepen the love, respect and attraction that a woman feels for him over time, the relationship will almost always break up when the initial thrill of new love wears off.

After the initial buzz and excitement of being with someone new wears off, a woman is less likely to overlook the things about the guy that have been turning her off.

For example: She might begin to ask herselfâ€¦|

- Is the love between us growing stronger and deeper over time, or are we already drifting apart?
- Do I look up to him and respect him as my man, or do I look down on him because he behaves in ways that are unattractive to me (e.g. he is clingy, needy, insecure, lacks ambition, isn't able to dominate me in a loving way)?
- Do I feel loved and appreciated, or is he taking me for granted (e.g. puts me in second place in his life behind work, friends, hobbies)?
- Are we growing together as a couple, or is one of us improving and growing up while the other one is stuck at the same old level in life?
- Do we have the same dreams, goals and plans for the future (e.g. get married, start a family together), or are we going in different directions?

If she realizes that he's not the guy that she really needs him to be for the long term, a woman will gradually lose respect and attraction for him and the relationship will then begin to fall apart.

To get a woman back in a case like that, the guy has to improve his ability to attract her, and re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

He does that by making some changes and improvements to his communication style with her.

For example:

- He focuses on making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be interacting with him again.
- He reacts differently to what she says and does (e.g. if she is being cold towards him, rather than get upset about it, he remains confident).
- He shows her via his thinking, behavior and actions that he's moved past the level he was at when she broke up with him (e.g. he's more confident, he has big dreams that he's working towards, he has the same goals and plans for the future as she does).

In response to his new, attractive behavior, she naturally begins to feel more respect and attraction for him as a man, and begins to look back at the problems in the relationship from a more forgiving perspective, because he really has changed.

She then drops her guard and opens herself back up to the love in her heart. They get back together again and their love is stronger than ever before.

4. I cut off communication for 5 days, contacted her, met up with her and got the relationship back together.

Although most people have heard that time heals all wounds, when it comes to relationships, the longer a guy takes to contact his ex after a break up, the greater the risk is of her moving on and meeting someone else.

Most guys don't know what to do when they get broken up with, so they just give up on their woman, or they ignore her and hope that she eventually comes back.

This is one of the main reasons why some guys will spend weeks, or even months ignoring their ex.

For example: A guy might think, Things between me and my ex have been too intense lately. She is always angry with me and has said that she never wants to see me again. Maybe if I give her enough time apart, she will eventually realize that she misses me, and then she'll come back to me.â□□

Yet this approach only works about 20% of the time, and usually only because the woman is still secretly in love with the guy, or is struggling to get over the pain of the break up, or because she canâ□□t find another guy.

Although some women do want their ex back after being ignored, it simply has not worked in 80% of the ex back cases that I've seen.

For this reason, when a guy cuts off communication with his ex for only 5 days and then contacts her (e.g. via text message, e-mail, on social media, or on a phone call) to arrange an in person meet up, he is a lot more likely to get her back than a guy who has been ignoring his ex for weeks, or even months.

A guy who contacts his woman within 3 to 7 days knows that the fastest way to get his ex back is by actively triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for him on the phone and in person.

He knows that if he just leaves her to move on without him, she will most likely do that and it will then be even harder to get her back.

When a guy actively makes his ex woman have feelings for him again, she then starts to wonder, â□□ Why am I missing him all of a sudden? Why does it bother me that heâ□□s not calling me enough? Why am I worried about him meeting someone else now?â□□ and she opens back up to the idea of being in a relationship with him.

5. â□□ I made her jealous by having lots of fun with friends and partying, she saw the photos on social media and then contacted me. We met up and got back together.â□□

[image: Woman jealous that her ex is having fun without her]

When a guy gets into a relationship with a beautiful woman that he loves, he might make the mistake of neglecting the other areas in his life to focus all of his attention on her.

For example: He might stop hanging out with all his old friends, give up his hobbies and interests, and even put any career dreams on the backburner in favor of his relationship.

At the back of his mind, he might try to convince himself that heâ□□s doing the right thing by saying, â□□ Sheâ□□s the one. Spending all my time with her and making her happy is all that matters to me.â□□

Yet, even if his intentions are in the right place, most women will perceive that type of behavior as needy, clingy and a sign of his emotional weakness.

Although a woman wants to feel loved and appreciated by her man, she also wants to know that he has a bigger purpose in his life outside of his relationship with her.

If she realizes that heâ□□s using her as an excuse to hide from his true potential in life, she will gradually lose respect and attraction for him, and eventually she breaks up with him.

If he then understands where he went wrong, and focuses on becoming emotionally independent without her (e.g. he starts partying and having fun with friends, pursues his interests and hobbies, works towards achieving his goals) she will naturally begin to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him as a man.

She might then begin thinking, “He’s changed so much. He’s nothing like the guy that I broke up with. I don’t like the idea of him having so much fun without me, and I definitely don’t want to lose him to some other woman now,” and she feels herself getting jealous.

She then contacts him and they can get back together again by meeting up, reactivating old feelings, hooking up and getting a relationship started again.

However, it’s important to point out here that making a woman jealous doesn’t work is a guy is only pretending to have fun without her.

It’s very important that you don’t try to make your ex jealous if you’re secretly miserable without her, and are only posing in photos looking happy as a trick to try and get her back. Why?

All it takes for an ex woman to catch a guy out is to show some interest in him again by saying something like, “I miss you, but it looks like you’re having a lot of fun without me, so I guess you’re over me now, right?”

If he then admits that he is miserable about her, doesn’t want to be spending time with others and wishes he could be with her, she knows that he’s just putting on an act to get her jealous.

So, to avoid that happening, he needs to say something like, “Yes, I’m having fun. Life has been good lately. I’d still like to catch up with you as friends though. It would be great to get a coffee and say hi one day.”

[image: Get her on a phone call]

She will then see that he is happy and is not rushing to try to get her to meet up with him and will almost always say something like, “Yeah, that would be nice.”

He then just needs to arrange a meet up by saying something like, “Well, I’m going to be busy for the next couple of days, but maybe we could arrange a quick coffee to say hi later in the week. What do you say? Maybe Thursday at 7pm or Sunday at 1pm?”

It’s best to ask her those things on a phone call rather than a text message because when she hears your confident, masculine tone of voice over the phone, it’s much easier to make her feel attracted.

Via text, it’s just too easy for a woman to say, “Let me think about it,” whereas on a phone call, she’s under more pressure to just say yes and go along with it.

When You Change How She Feels Getting Her Back Becomes Easy

One thing that all of the ex back examples above have in common is that the guy changed the woman’s feelings for him.

The ex back approach with the highest success rate is where a guy actively makes his woman have feelings for him again, rather than leaving it in her hands and hoping that she misses him enough to come back.

When you trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you, everything changes.

Her guard comes down and she opens herself up to getting back together again because being around you feels good to her.

On the other hand, if you keep saying and doing the same kinds of things that you used to do before she broke up with you (e.g. insecure questions or comments, emotionally sensitive behavior), sheâs just going to keep saying, âI just donât have feelings for you anymore,â and will move on.

These days, women can easily find a new guy by going out to a bar or nightclub, or by using an online dating site or app.

So, if you want your ex back, donât waste a lot of time trying to convince her to change her mind about breaking up with you.

She needs to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, based on experiencing the new and improved version of who you are right now.

If you havenât improved since the break up, then get to work on that by watching Get Your Ex Back Super System and then contact her immediately.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Long Should I Wait For My Ex to Come Back? 3 Case Studies

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're wondering how long you should wait for your ex to come back, here is what happened in 3 separate case studies based on my experience helping men to get women back.

1. He waited 7 days, contacted her to meet up and they got back together.

[image: Ex back meet up]

I've heard back from many clients who've gotten a woman back after giving her anywhere from 3 to 7 days of space.

In many cases, it's good to give her the week of space so she can properly down after the break up and begin to miss you.

An example from last week was a couple in the USA. They had been together for 3 years and the woman dumped the guy because he'd become too insecure and clingy.

During the 7 days of space, he got my program (Get Your Ex Back Super System) and followed the advice and steps to transform himself into an emotionally strong man.

He wasn't perfect when he contacted his ex, but he was a lot better and his newfound confidence, emotional strength and emotional maturity made his ex feel attracted.

They chatted at the meet up and she felt attracted to the new and improved version of him, which then resulted in them hugging, kissing and then hooking up later that evening back at his place.

2. He waited 30 days, contacted her and she'd moved on.

[image: She had moved on]

I've also heard of many examples like this from clients who had heard that it was best to ignore a woman for 30 days after a break up, before contacting her and trying to get her back.

Yet, the problem in these cases is that the woman usually uses that time to move on without the guy.

In some cases, the woman really does want to get back with him, but she isn't going to make it easy for him by calling him and suggesting that they catch up.

Instead, she waits to see if he has what it takes as a man to get a woman back after a break up.

When she doesn't hear from him, she then opens herself up to other guys (e.g. at work, through friends or while out partying), has sex, experiences new love and begins to move on.

This is why I always recommend that guys only give a woman a maximum of 7 days of space.

In most ex back cases, you've got to act quickly otherwise the woman will try to get over the pain by hooking up with a new guy.

Of course, if that has already happened in your case, don't worry â€¢ you still can get her back from the new guy.

You've simply got to follow the 7-step process that I explain in my program, Get Your Ex Back

Super System and you will get another chance with her.

3. He waited 60 days, contacted her and she was unwilling to catch up.

[image: She was unwilling to meet up]

These cases are less common, but it surprises me that some guys wait that long to contact their ex and begin the ex back process.

Sometimes, a guy will ignore his ex for 60 days because he doesn't want to seem needy or pushy, while other times he will do it because he wants to hopefully teach her a lesson for dumping him.

Yet, in most cases, the woman will have plenty of time to get over the break up and even move on, so she will be less willing to catch up in person.

The guy is then stuck with only being able to text her and if he tries to get her back via text, he will usually fail at that too because she can't experience the new and improved him via text.

To properly impress and re-attract an ex woman, you have to talk to her on a phone call or in person so she can experience the changes in you.

You can't just rely on waiting for her to contact you and guide you and her back into a relationship.

Sometimes a woman does contact a guy if she hasn't heard from him for a long time, but that usually happens because:

- She's still in love with him and is struggling to forget and move on.
- She lacks experience when it comes to relationships and can't handle the pain of being broken up.
- She's struggling to find a new guy and notices (e.g. via social media or by hearing about him through friends) that he is out dating, having fun and moving on with his life without her.

However, in almost all other instances, the woman will just move on and forget all about her ex if she doesn't hear from him pretty soon after the break up.

So, if you want to get your ex back, you have to be active about it rather than being inactive and just waiting around hoping that she comes running back to you.

Waiting a Long Time For a Woman to Come Back Can Really Mess With a Guy's Confidence, Self-esteem and Happiness

[image: Wasting time waiting for ex to shown signs of interest]

Sometimes, going through a break up can really mess a guy up emotionally.

For example: When a guy gets dumped and is sitting around at home feeling lonely and depressed, it's possible that he might be thinking, "I really must have been a pretty lousy boyfriend (fiancé or husband) for my woman to break up with me like this. What kind of guy am I? Why do women seem to react this way to me when in a relationship? I don't know what to do about this!" I still love her and I want her back, but she doesn't want anything to do with me. Maybe if I give her some time apart, she will realize that no other guy will ever love her the way that I do and she will come back to me.

He might then spend months, and in some cases even years, waiting for his ex to come back to him. Yet, the more time passes where he doesn't hear from her, the more it eats away his confidence and self-esteem about women and relationships.

On the outside, he might go around pretending that everything is okay with him, but on the inside, not hearing from her makes him doubt himself and his attractiveness as a man.

For example: He might say to himself, "How long should I wait for my ex to come back? I've been waiting for months now and I still haven't heard anything from her. Why isn't she calling me up? Doesn't she miss me? What's wrong with me? Am I such a terrible guy that a woman who loved me won't even give me another chance? Will she ever come back? Am I doomed to be on my own now? I only want to be with her. I can't deal with the thought of having to find a new woman, date her and go through the whole process of falling in love again. What if that woman ends up dumping me too? I just want my ex back. Yet, she doesn't want me. I've waited so long and she's not coming back. Maybe there's no chance for her and I now."

What can happen then, is that he completely gives up on ever getting his ex back.

Instead of realizing that his best chance of making his ex come back is to actively spark her feelings of respect, attraction, and love for him when he interacts with her via text, e-mail, on social media, on a phone call and in person, he loses confidence in himself and his attractiveness to women.

What's even worse is that he may also give up on the idea of ever attracting other, beautiful women, because deep down he's likely thinking, "My ex clearly doesn't want me back, so why would other beautiful woman be interested in me? Obviously I'm not the kind of guy that women feel attracted to. I probably should just stay on my own."

What he doesn't realize is that women are attracted to confident men who believe in themselves and their attractiveness to women, and are turned off by insecure men who doubt themselves.

If a guy lacks self-confidence, a woman will pick up on that via his body language, the way he talks, behaves and interacts with her, and she will feel turned off by what she perceives as his emotional weakness.

On the other hand, when a guy is being confident, self-assured, determined to succeed and assertive, a woman will instinctively perceive him as being an emotionally strong man and she will naturally feel attracted to him.

Why?

Most women like the idea of being with a man who is able to have his say in the world and who will be able to take care of her, and any children they might have together.

However, when a guy is emotionally weak, he's going to lack the confidence, determination and self-belief to go after what he really wants in life (e.g. getting his ex back, beautiful women, a great career).

The fact is, a woman doesn't want to be with a guy that makes her feel like she's going to have to take care of him and protect him from the world.

For example: When a guy lacks confidence and self-esteem, it's more likely that he's going to rely on his woman for his happiness, confidence, self-esteem and sense of identity in this world.

In a relationship, he might say to her, "I wouldn't want to live if I didn't have you. You're my everything. If you ever broke up with me, I don't think that I would want to stay alive. You are what I live for.

Alternatively, he might continuously ask her, Do you still love me? You wouldn't ever leave me would you?

Here's the thing though!

A woman wants to be with the kind of guy who can easily attract other women, but chooses to be with her because he loves her and looks at her as being the woman for him.

She doesn't want to be with him because he can't get anything else and got lucky when she gave him a chance.

When it comes to getting a relationship back together, a woman doesn't want to get back with a guy out of pity or guilt.

To ensure that you don't make her feel that way, you must be confident in your ability to attract your ex and other women if you wanted to.

Being able to attract your ex and other women makes you less dependent on your ex.

You don't feel like you need her any more. You want her, but you don't actually need her.

That is how she wants you to feel about her.

Being confident, happy and emotionally strong with or without your ex actually makes you seem more attractive to her.

So, whenever you interact with her from now, make sure that you let her see, feel and experience your confidence, self-belief and emotional strength.

The more that you do let her experience your emotional strength, the quicker you will reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you and the more she will feel drawn to you and want to be with you again.

It Sucks if She's Moving On While You Are Still Waiting Around For Her

[image: Don't wait around hoping that she changes her mind]

Sometimes, when a guy is waiting for his ex to come back, he might start thinking about all the things that she's up to, now that she's no longer with him.

He might then begin to wonder if she's been moving on without him, and he feels horrible about the idea of her having sex and falling in love with a new man, while he is still waiting around for her.

Unless you're saying and doing things to reactivate your ex's feelings for you, it's highly likely that she's going to be moving on without you.

You've got to be active to get her back, rather than taking the risk of waiting and just letting her move on because she doesn't see any reason to come back to you.

Even if your ex is still hoping that you and her will get back together again, if she doesn't hear from you for weeks or months, she may just think, Oh well! It looks like he wasn't as in love with me as I thought he was. I guess we aren't meant to be together then. He obviously got over me pretty quickly because I haven't heard from him in such a long time. I guess I'm going to have to forget about him and move on with my life.

When she starts thinking that way, she begins to disconnect from her feelings for you and before long the thing youâve been fearing the most (i.e. her having sex and falling in love with a new man) becomes a reality.

Thatâs not what you want.

You want her back, but you canât count on her coming back on her own without you actually doing anything to reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

So, donât waste a lot of time torturing yourself with images of her happy and in love with some other guy, while youâre sitting at home alone waiting for her to come back.

Instead, use every opportunity you get to interact with her (e.g. via text, on social media, over the phone, in person) to make her have SOME feelings for you again.

When you focus on making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be interacting with you, itâs much less likely that she is going to want to move on and completely forget about giving you another chance.

The more you renew her feelings of respect and attraction for you, the more she will be thinking, âWhy am I feeling this way now? I really thought that I was over my ex, but now Iâm not sure. I actually enjoy talking to him now, and if he doesnât call me for a few days I actually miss him too. Why am I suddenly afraid of losing him, even though weâre broken up and he can date anyone else he wants? What should I do?â

Making her feel that way is the easiest, fastest way to get an ex back.

However, thatâs not going to happen if all youâre doing right now is sitting and waiting for her to come back.

So, stop worrying about what sheâs doing and start interacting with her and making her feel respect and attraction for you again.

When you trigger her feelings of attraction for you again, she stops focusing on how bad things used to be between you and her, and she begins to feel drawn to you in a whole new and exciting way.

She canât stop herself from wanting to interact with you via text, on the phone and in person, even though she might previously have thought that she was ready to move on.

[image: Get her back by reactivating her feelings]

From there, you can build on that spark of attraction and make her want to come back to you.

On the other hand, if you keep waiting for her to come back on her own, itâs highly likely that she will soon be having sex and falling in love with someone else who is actually triggering her feelings of attraction.

Important: If You Havenât Improved Your Ability to Attract Her, Sheâs Not Going to Feel Anything New For You

Quite often, months and even years can pass by in a guyâs life where he is waiting for his ex to come back.

When he eventually interacts with her again (e.g. because he happens to bump into her somewhere, he plucks up the courage to call her) and has a chance to re-attract her, he has to be ready to make it happen.

If he hasn't improved his ability to attract her (e.g. he just talks to her in a nice, friendly way and doesn't even actively create a spark by flirting with her, being charismatic, being confident and charming), she's not going to feel much or anything for him other than friendly feelings or worse, she might ask him to leave the past in the past.

If you don't want that to happen to you when you next interact with your ex, you need to do 2 things:

1. Contact your ex (e.g. via text, on social media, on a phone call) and get her to meet up with you so that you can re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.
2. Make sure that you develop your ability to attract her, by improving on the things that caused her to break up with you in the first place.

For example: If a guy got dumped because he was too insecure, controlling and jealous in the relationship, he needs to show his ex that he's now confident, emotionally independent, emotionally mature and now fully believes in his value to her.

No matter how much his ex tries to test him (e.g. by being cold and indifferent towards him when they interact, flirting with other guys to get under his skin), he needs to remain calm and relaxed to show her that he really has changed.

Don't Wait Until it's Too Late

To get a woman back, you need to take action now to reactivate her feelings for you, rather than waiting and hoping that she comes back on her own.

So, don't waste another day hoping that she comes back on her own.

Just pick up the phone and call her.

[image: Get her on a phone call]

On a phone call, you need to make her feel respect and attraction for you (e.g. by making her smile, laugh and feel happy) and then arrange a meet up.

From that moment on, you've got to continue saying and doing the types of things that are going to keep turning her feelings on for you (e.g. be confident and self-assured, make her feel feminine and girly in contrast to your masculinity, be charming and charismatic), rather than saying and doing the types of things that were turning her off in the past, or that have been turning her off since the break up (e.g. begging, pleading, promising to change, apologizing excessively).

When you interact with her in ways that spark her feelings, everything changes.

The process of getting your ex back then becomes very easy.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex is Confused and Doesn't Know if She Wants to Be With Me or Not

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 5 reasons why your ex might be confused and not know if she wants to be with you or not:

1. She Loves You, But Isn't in Love With You Because You're Not Giving Her the Attraction Experience That She Wants

[image: Not getting the attraction experience that she wants]

To maintain a woman's feelings of attraction and love and to make her feel like a real woman in a relationship, you need to make her feel girly and feminine in comparison to your masculinity.

A mistake that many guys make in a relationship is to treat their woman more like a friend, rather than treating her like a feminine woman that they feel sexually attracted to and aroused by.

When in a relationship, treating a woman like a friend doesn't make her feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional like a woman).

The less feminine and girly a woman that feels in her man's presence, the more she will disconnect from her feelings of sexual attraction for him, because they will feel more like friends than anything else.

Without attraction, she might then begin to focus on the things that she doesn't like about him and start to nag, pick fights and distance herself from him.

So, even if a woman likes her guy as a friend, if she's not getting the attraction experience she wants from him (i.e. he's not making her feel feminine, girly and sexually attracted), she will eventually break up with him.

Unlike in the past where a woman would stay with a man for life regardless of how bad she felt, in today's world, a woman is free to leave any time she chooses if she isn't feeling the way she wants to feel (i.e. feminine and girly, able to look up to and respect her man, sexually attracted).

If your ex is saying, "I'm confused. I don't know if I want to be with you or not," it could be because she hasn't been feeling the way that she really wants to feel in a relationship.

However, you can change how she feels by making some adjustments to the way you interact with her from this point onwards.

When you change the way you interact with her in a way that makes her feel respect and attraction for you again (e.g. make her smile and laugh, feel feminine and girly), then her feelings will also change.

She then starts to think, "I feel good when I talk to my ex or spend time with him now. I enjoy his company and I'm starting to hate the idea of him meeting a new woman and moving on. Maybe it's a good idea to get back together again just for a bit to see how it goes."

However, if you continue to make her feel like a neutral friend in your presence, she will just keep saying things like, "I don't know what I want. I'm confused. I'm just not that into you" *anymore. Maybe we're better off as friends. I don't know. Maybe I need time to think about this.*â□□

2. She Doesn't Like Who She is in Her Relationship With You

[image: She doesn't like who she is when she is with you]

The love between a man and a woman is something that needs to be taken care of, nourished and deepened over time.

However, sometimes a guy can behave in ways that cause a woman to lose respect for him, and make her react in ways that she doesnâ□□t like.

For example: If a guy doesn't follow through on his promises again and again, it might cause his woman to become angry, argumentative and even aggressive towards him.

Naturally, if not following through on his promise is a once off thing, then it wonâ□□t really matter that much to her, but if he is in the habit of letting her down all the time, she will begin to resent coming across as an angry, aggressive woman.

Alternatively, a guy might be very insecure in the relationship with his girlfriend (fiancÃ© or wife) to the point where he becomes overly protective, clingy and suspicious of her, and he might even forbid her to see any of her friends.

She might then react by becoming secretive and having to lie about her whereabouts, which is something that she doesnâ□□t like doing.

Another example is when a guy is using his relationship as an excuse to hide from his true potential in life.

He has dreams and ambitions, but is either too lazy or too afraid (of failure) to follow through on them.

When this happens, a woman might say, *â□□ Why are you always watching TV or playing video games? Why donâ□□t you do something with your life?*â□□ as a way of motivating him.

Yet, over time, she begins to feel like all sheâ□□s doing in the relationship is nagging him and complaining.

It stresses her out and when she sees how happy her friends are with their men, she begins to wonder why she has been trying so hard to make it work with a guy who doesn't even yet know how to be a man.

3. She Doesn't Believe That You Can Change

[image: She doesn't believe that you can change]

Often, when a guy realizes that his girlfriend (fiancÃ© or wife) is feeling unhappy in the relationship, he will then start making promises to stop her from breaking up with him.

For example: A guy might say, *â□□ Please baby, donâ□□t break up with me. I love you. I promise to change. Whatever it is that you want me to do, Iâ□□ll do it. Just give me one more chance. Believe me, I will change this time, I promise.*â□□

Initially, a woman might think to herself, â□□ Okay, Iâ□□ll give him one more chance. However, he better make some drastic changes fast, or else I'm leaving this time.

Then, if he doesn't follow through on his promise to change, she will break up with him.

He might then start his pleading with her all over again (e.g. I promise this time I'm really going to change, just give me one more chance), but by that stage the woman probably doesn't believe that he can change.

He's already made promises to her that he hasn't kept, and it's likely that he doesn't even know what she really wants him to change and he's hoping that she will tell him.

However, a woman doesn't want to be a man's teacher in life.

She doesn't want to have to take him by the hand and lead him through the steps of being the man that she needs him to be.

Instead of becoming his life long teacher about manhood, she'll simply break up with him by saying something like, I just don't feel the same way anymore. I need time apart to figure out if I want to be with you or not.

So, the first step to getting your ex's respect and attraction back is to fully understand the real, more subtle reasons why she broke up with you.

Then, the next time you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) she will be able to notice via the way you interact with her that you truly understand where you went wrong and are no longer the same guy that she broke up with.

When she experiences the new you, it makes her drop her guard and feel more open and even happy to be interacting with you again, because she feels that you've actually made the effort to see things from her point of view.

4. She Thinks That it Might Be More Fun to Be Single Than to Be With You

There are several reasons why a woman will feel that it's better for her to be single than to be in a relationship with a guy.

For example: Some possible reasons could be because

- The relationship has fallen into a rut, and they have gotten into a boring routine as a couple.
- They haven't done anything new and exciting together for a long time.
- He has been taking her for granted and he expects her to stick around just because of what they had in the beginning, even though the relationship hasn't felt good to her for a while.
- He hasn't been able to give her the type of sexual experience she was hoping to have with him.
- He stopped saying and doing the types of things that made her feel attracted to him in the first place.
- She thinks that she's too young to settle down and is jealous of her friends who are enjoying the single life. Yet, if she was happy in a relationship, she wouldn't be worried about that.

Here's what you always need to remember about relationships with women in today's world!
Just because things felt great between you and her at the start of your relationship, it doesn't mean that she will be willing to stick around for life in a relationship that has lost its spark.

To get her to stop feeling confused about whether she wants to be with you or not, you have to actively spark her feelings of respect and attraction again (e.g. by making her smile, laugh, and feel happy when she's interacting with you).

When she feels more attracted to you than she ever has before, because you are now making her feel attracted in new and exciting ways, she will realize that her love for you is stronger than she ever thought and she will look forward to being your girl once again.

5. You Have Given Her Too Much Power Over You and She No Longer Respects You Enough as Her Man

[image: You have given her too much power]

Sometimes, a guy cares about a woman so much that he mistakenly thinks that if he lets her have whatever she wants, make all the decisions and basically boss him around, she will be happy and will want to stay with him for life.

However, the reality is that although a woman might enjoy wearing the pants for a while, if she feels like she's more dominant than her guy in the relationship, she will eventually lose respect and attraction for him.

She will begin to wonder, "What did I ever see in him? He's always letting me push him around and he never stands up to me, even when I'm intentionally being bitchy to him. He's such a wimp. I need a stronger man than this. I don't feel safe with him. He's too easy to push around. This just doesn't feel right to me any more. I've got to leave him and find a better man."

If a woman doesn't feel like the guy that she is with is an emotionally strong man who she can look up to and respect, she will have no reason to stay with him for long.

A woman will usually give a guy like that plenty of warnings by telling him to man up and stop being so sensitive, but if he doesn't change, she will just cut her losses and leave.

3 Mistakes That Will Make Her Not Want to Get Back With You

If you want your ex to come back, you have to show her (via your actions and behavior) that you are now the sort of man she can look up to, depend on, respect and feel attracted to.

However, you're not going to be able to fully get her respect and attraction back if you make any of these mistakes!

1. Trying to get her to see that the relationship is worth fighting for.

When a woman is telling her ex, "I don't know if I want to be with you or not," he might try to convince her by reminding her of what they had together.

For example: He might say, "I know that you're feeling confused right now because you keep thinking about the fights we had, but, if you will just focus on all the good times for a minute, you will see that things weren't that bad between us. We had some great times, and we can have more if you only give us another chance. Please don't let our love die. We can make this work.

Yet, although what he is saying is true, she's not going to be looking at it in the same way as him if he hasn't even reactivated her feelings (e.g. respect, attraction and love) for him first.

Instead, she will likely be thinking, 'You're right, we did have some great times together. However, that changed a long time ago when we started fighting and arguing all the time. You became a completely different guy than the guy I met and you are still that guy. Why would I want to go back to that?'

If you want your ex back, don't waste a lot of time trying to convince you're her by bringing up the good times you shared together in the past.

Instead, focus on renewing her feelings of respect and attraction based on who you are right now.

She needs to be able to feel attracted to the man you are today, not to the guy you used to be a long time ago before things went sour between you and her.

2. Giving her random reasons to consider giving the relationship another chance.

Sometimes, a guy will say whatever he can to convince his girlfriend (fiancée or wife) to give him another chance, even if it means trying to make her feel pity or guilt.

For example: A man might say, 'I love you. If you leave me I'll be lost without you. I'll never be able to find another woman like you,' or 'What about all the plans we made together? We were going to travel the world/buy a house/have a baby? How can you just forget about all that?'

Although from his point of view, these are all good reasons to stay together, the fact is that most women just don't want to stay with a guy out of a sense of guilt.

A woman wants to be with a guy because she loves him and because it feels good to be in a relationship with him, not because she feels pity or guilt.

If a woman feels like she's doing him a favor by staying with him, she will grow tired very quickly and when she sees that nothing has really changed about him, she will lose even more respect and attraction for him and it will then become more difficult to get her back.

3. Trying too hard to show how much you care to the point of being desperate, which then turns her off.

[image: Please...I will do anything!]

If a woman says to a guy, 'I don't know how I feel about you anymore. I'm not sure if I want us to be together or not,' he might decide that the only way to convince her that they were meant to be together is by repeatedly telling her how much she means to him.

He might then say to her, 'I know that you're not sure if you want to be with me or not, but that's because you don't understand how much I love you. When you realize that no other guy can love you the way I do, you will change your mind. All I ask is for you to focus on my love for you, and then give me a chance to show you that things can be different between us. If you ever loved me as much as I still love you, you would give us another chance. Please baby, we can fix this. You *mean everything to me. There is nothing that I wouldn't do for you. I would die for you. I would do anything. Please, just open your eyes and realize that I am the one for you. I love you more than anything else in the world.*â€œ

Yet, hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦!

The love between a man and a woman has to be mutual, otherwise she won't care how much he cares for her.

If she has pushed her feelings of love, respect and attraction into the background because of how much he has turned her off, sheâ€™s not going to care that much (or at all) that heâ€™s still in love with her.

Instead, sheâ€™s likely going to be saying something like, *â€œLook, I accept that you still love me, but I don't feel the same way about you. Please just give me some space to figure things out. I need to be on my own for a while.*â€œ

If he then starts pleading with her, begging her to reconsider and pressuring her every chance he gets, she will begin to feel even more turned off by his desperation because women are turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. self-doubt, insecurity, desperation) in men.

Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, determination, self-belief).

So, if you want your ex back, don't waste time pleading and telling her how much you still love her, because if sheâ€™s not feeling a lot of respect and attraction for you right now, itâ€™s just not going to matter to her.

You Can Help Her Decide What She Wants

If your ex is confused and doesn't know if she wants to be with you or not, itâ€™s mainly because haven't sparked her feelings of attraction for you yet.

When you focus on using every interaction that you have with her (e.g. via text, social media, over the phone, or in person) to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, her confusion will go away and she will be able to see that you and her can be together.

Then, rather than push you away by saying things like, *â€œI'm not sure if I still want to be with you,*â€œ she won't be able to help herself from feeling drawn to you again.

She will begin thinking, *â€œI'm not as happy as I thought I would be without my ex. I think that I'm feeling a lot clearer about what I want now. Well, at least I feel like I should be with him. Maybe we should give our relationship another chance.*â€œ

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Giving Your Ex Space When She Asks For it

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex asks for space, give her 3 to 7 days where both you and her cut off all communication.

Then, contact her via text or on the phone to create a spark and reactivate her feelings for you again.

When you interact with her, try to get her to meet up with you in person.

If she still says something like, â€œIt's only been a week. I still need more time to figure things out,â€œ or â€œYouâ€™re not giving me enough space,â€œ tell her that you will call her in a week and try to arrange a time to catch up.

You can say something like, â€œOkay, no problem if you need more space, I am happy to give that to you. Iâ€™ll call you again in a weekâ€™s time to say hello, or goodbye, if thatâ€™s what you really want.â€œ

That way, youâ€™re still giving her the space she asked for and are also making it clear to her that youâ€™re not pushing her to make a decision about the relationship right now.

After a week, contact her via a phone call (not text) and get her laughing and smiling when you call.

For example: Rather than call her up and say something like, â€œHiâ€œ | well, I said that Iâ€™d call in a week so here I am. What have you decided about us?â€œ which will likely only make her respond by saying, â€œI need more time,â€œ or give her a chance to tell you that itâ€™s over, focus on making her smile from the get go.

In a joking manner you can say to her, â€œHeyâ€œ | how you are going? Well, we said we would speak for a week, so that has passed. I'm outside your front door and ready to have some coffee.â€œ

She will most likely respond by sounding quite shocked and she may say, â€œWhat are you talking about? Why are you here at my house? Iâ€™m not ready to see you yet!â€œ

[image: Get a woman back via phone]

You can then laugh and say, â€œNo, Iâ€™m not at your door yet, but Iâ€™ll be arriving in the next 15 minutesâ€œ | that way you have enough time to fix your hair and put on some lipstick.â€œ

Then laugh again and say, â€œJust kidding. Iâ€™m not on my way. You know that I wouldn't do something like that. We agreed to have some space. Anyway, so how are you?â€œ

She will then most likely laugh about getting caught out with your joke and begin to wonder about your sudden change in attitude.

She will feel curious about your newfound ability to remain confident and relaxed regardless of the situation (i.e. her asking you for space), and she will naturally begin to feel some respect and attraction for you again.

When experiences a transformation of her perception of you in this way, she then begins to opens up to the idea of meeting up in person to see what else is different about you.

From there, just get her to meet up with you and make her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction by continuing to say and do the types of things that are attractive to her.

Once you do that, you just need to continue going through the rest of the quick ex back process to fully get her back into a relationship with you.

Don't Let Fear Stop You From Getting Her to Meet Up With You

[image: What if she doesn't want to see me?]

Sometimes, a woman won't instantly agree to a meet up with her ex after a break up, especially if she has asked for space because the guy has been clingy, needy and possessive.

For example: She might say something like, I'm not ready to see you again, or Why should we meet up in person? What's the point when we can say whatever needs to be said over the phone.

When this happens, a lot of guys lose hope that they won't be able to re-attract their ex in person.

A guy will begin to assume that just because she's not jumping at the idea of getting together, she's likely made her decision to stay broken up.

He might then just stop asking her for a meet up, because he's afraid of coming across as being too pushy or needy.

He may then try to justify his decision to back off by thinking, Well, at least she's talking to me on the phone. That's not so bad. As long as she's still willing to talk to me, there's still a chance that she will eventually want to see me again when she feels ready.

Yet, in most cases, the more time that a woman has apart from her ex, the more time she has to get over him and move on with someone else.

So, don't ever think that pushing for a meet up is a bad thing.

It's not needy or wrong to secure a mature, emotionally rational and friendly meet up, as long as you are being loving, light-hearted and good to her on the phone and in person.

What usually makes a woman refuse to meet up with her ex when he asks is because he is behaving in ways that are unattractive to her.

For example: A guy might

- Demand that she meet up with him.

Sometimes, when a guy asks his ex for a meet up and she keeps refusing and saying, I'm just not ready to see you yet. I need more time, he might respond by getting annoyed.

He may start shouting and saying things like, How can you say you're not ready to see me yet? I've already given you enough space, how much more time do you need?! Why won't you meet up with me? I'm not going to take no for an answer you know?! You have to meet up with me. You owe me that much. Stop being so stubborn about this. What happened to the loving girl that I used to know? You are better than this. Just have some heart and meet up with me once.

Usually, the guy is only reacting like that because he's afraid that if she won't agree to seeing him face-to-face now, he will lose her forever.

So, when she's pushing him away and refusing to meet up with him, he may be thinking, She doesn't want to see me because she doesn't want to get back together again, or even, What if she's met someone else? Could that be the reason why she isn't willing to see me?

However, a guy getting annoyed, or angry and making demands on a woman who has already asked him for space, is not a good idea. Why?

When a woman doesn't feel a lot of respect, attraction and love for a guy after a break up, rather than realize that he's only lashing out at her because of his fear of losing her, she will likely think, âWell, I see that nothing has really changed about him! He's still the same guy I left trying to push me around and control me, getting angry, demanding and wanting things his way. He still doesn't care about my feelings and what I want. If I hadn't made up my mind about getting back together with him before, this little outburst of his had definitely made things clear to me. I need to keep my distance from him, otherwise I don't know how angry he might get and if I would even be safe around him any more.â

It's a fact of modern life that a woman is not a man's property.

[image: A woman is not a man's property]

A modern woman can choose whether or not she wants to meet up with her ex or be in a relationship with him.

So, pushing her and making demands is not what's going to make your ex change her mind about meeting up with you.

What you need to do instead is focus on making her feel attracted and happy to be talking to you on the phone, so that she will then be the one asking you for a meet up, because the idea of seeing you again fills her with excitement and enjoyable curiosity.

- Act needy or desperate.

Whilst some guys react by becoming demanding and aggressive when a woman says that she doesn't want to meet up, other guys might react in needy or desperate ways.

For example: A needy, desperate guy might say, âI can't deal with the pain of waiting to see you again. It hurts so much to not see you. Please baby, I need you. I can't live like this much longer. My life is empty without you. I don't see the point in living or doing anything unless I have you. Please, let's just work things out and get back to the way things used to be between us.â

Yet, rather than melt a woman's heart and make her think, âWhy am I doing this to him? He's such a sweet guy and he loves me so much. I'm just being cold and heartless here,â she will likely be thinking, âThe way that things used to be between us was a horrible experience for me. You might have been happy, but I wasn't. Clearly you don't even know what you've been doing wrong to have turned me off all this time. You're still the same needy, insecure guy, yet you want me to meet up with you and give you another chance. No way!â

So, in response to his neediness, she will likely just keep pushing him away by saying, âI just need more time apart. I need space. I will meet up with you later, but not now. I think I need another month to think things through.â

Yet, secretly, she will be trying to find a confident guy to replace him with, so she can then say, âSorry, I am in love with someone else now. He doesn't want you contacting me. Please respect that and leave us alone.â

- Plead with her to tell him why she won't meet up with him.

When a guy is trying to meet up with his ex and she keeps saying, â€œNo, it's natural that he will want to know why.

He might then start pleading with her and asking, â€œWhy won't you meet up with me? Please just tell me what you want and I'll do it. I really want to see you. Just tell me why you won't meet up with me. I will fix whatever it is that you want. Just tell me. Give me something to work with here. Please!

However, in most cases, a woman isn't going to explain her reasons to him. Why?

Basically, if the guy hasn't been doing anything to renew her feelings of respect and attraction again, she's simply not going to want to see him.

He will have feelings for her, but she won't have any feelings for him, so there will be no motivation for her to want to meet up with.

Of course, she's usually not going to tell him that, because a woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man and how to have a successful relationship.

She doesn't want to take him by the hand and guide him through the steps of what it takes to be the kind of man that is attractive to her.

So, by pleading with her to explain why she doesn't want to meet up with him, the guy is essentially telling her that he's unable to work it out how to be a man by himself.

and that is a huge turn off to a woman, especially after a break up.

How to Get Her to Meet Up With You

[image: How to get her to meet up with you]

If you keep giving your ex space and waiting for her to give you the â€œgo ahead when she's ready to talk to you again, you could end up waiting forever, while she happily moves on with her life without you.

If you want her back ASAP, it's up to you to make it happen.

So, here is how to get her to agree to a meet up with you!

Call your ex up on the phone.

If you're not sure if she will talk to you, just call her and if she doesn't answer, send her a text saying something like, â€œHey Lucy – I tried to call you because there's something important that I want to ask you over the phone. Don't worry, it's just a quick question. Anyway, it seems that you're busy at the moment, so I'll try again some other time.

In most cases, the woman will either call back, or text you back a reply to ask what you want.

Whatever the case, just get her on a phone call.

Then, when you get her on the phone, you've got to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you by making her laugh and feel good.

If she still says that she doesn't want to meet up with you, you can say something along the lines of, â€œI just want to catch up with you for a quick coffee as a friend. All I'm asking for is that we get together for a quick cup of coffee, or a quick bite to eat to say hello as friends. If you don't want to do that, we can get together and say a simple goodbye to each other and then never talk to each other again. That's fine with me if that's what you want.

In most cases, a woman will usually agree because she will be able to see it as an opportunity to get closure.

Of course, getting her to agree to a meet up is only the beginning of getting her back.

When you meet up with her in person, you must to get her to experience the new and improved version of you, so she can see that you really have changed.

When you actively make her have some feelings (e.g. respect, attraction and love) for you again, she will start to relax her guard and open back up to you.

Even if her intention to meet up with you was to say goodbye, after a while she will begin to think, I know that I came here to tell my ex that it's really over between us, but I'm not so sure about that anymore. He really has changed. I feel differently when I'm around him now. I feel happy. It's fun to be talking to him again. Maybe we should see each other again.

That's what you want her to be thinking and feeling.

So, don't waste another day giving your ex space because she asked for it.

If you've been waiting for longer than 3 to 7 days, you don't have any more time to lose.

Don't waste another day hoping the giving her more space will solve the problems between you.

What you need to do is actively make her have feelings for you again by interacting with her on a phone call and in person.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Girlfriend Wants Her Stuff Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When she asks for her stuff back, you should use the opportunity as a way to create a more positive dynamic between you and her by joking about her stuff.

You can say, “Your stuff? Sorry, I already sold all of it to a pawn shop and the rest I gave to charity.” and then let her feel shocked for a couple of seconds and say, “Only kidding. It’s all here. I’ll help you box it up if you like to make it easier for you.”

Why joke about her stuff like that?

By not being so serious about the process, it takes the tension away from what could be a very uncomfortable, stressful time.

If you had been needy, insecure or clingy leading up to the break up and during it, using humor also lets your ex girlfriend see that you are not the same old insecure guy that she broke up with.

Remember that your ex might be feeling quite nervous about asking you for her stuff back.

She might be wondering, “How is he going to react? Is he going to get angry and make a scene when I try to get my stuff out? Are we going to have a huge fight about it? Will I need to get someone to come along with me for protection?”

So, when you make a light-hearted joke and even offer to help her box up her stuff to make it easier for her, she can then relax and go through with the process without worrying so much.

She will then start to wonder, “Hmmm, that’s weird. I thought he would go crazy, but he’s being so nice and he’s even making jokes about it. What’s going on? Could he really have changed that fast? I like how he is behaving now.” I wonder what he will be like in person and her defenses start to come down a little bit.

Even if she tries to convince herself that you’re still the same guy that she broke up with, at the back of her mind she will be wondering why you’re not behaving in the ways she’s expecting you to (e.g. getting angry or upset, begging her to change her mind, trying to stop her from fetching her stuff) and she won’t be able to help herself from feeling drawn to you.

So, just let her have her stuff.

Holding onto it isn’t going to make her change her mind, unless she is still undecided about breaking up with you.

If she is certain that she wants out of the relationship at the moment, then be helpful and let her move her stuff out, rather than trying to hold her back.

Just focus on making her feel attracted to you whenever you interact with her from now on and the relationship will not be over.

You will definitely have a chance to get her back, but don’t try to do that by holding onto her stuff.

Remember: Everything that you say and do from this point onwards is either going to be sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you, or it’s going to be turning her off and confirming to her that she made the right decision by breaking up with you.

4 Mistakes to Avoid Making at This Crucial Time

Right now, you're probably feeling a bit worried about your ex girlfriend wanting her stuff back. At this point, a guy might think, "If she takes all her stuff, then whatever we had is truly over because there's nothing binding her to me anymore. She can forget all about me and find another guy" or, "If she takes all her stuff, I won't have any excuses to talk to her anymore. She can then refuse to see me or take my calls and there will be nothing that I can do about it."

Naturally, it's hard not to panic when your ex girlfriend asks for her stuff back, but you love her and still want to be with her.

However, your actions right now will determine whether the process of getting her back is going to be easy or difficult.

This is why it's important that your words and actions are attracting her to you, and not turning her off.

So, if you're unsure about what types of behaviors will push her away from you even more, here are 4 mistakes to avoid making:

1. Helping her move out, but not using those interactions as a way to spark some feelings of respect and attraction.

[image: Not using the interactions to re-attract her]

Sometimes, when a relationship gets to the point where a woman is asking for her stuff back, a guy might make the mistake of giving up on believing that there's still something he can do to change her mind.

Yet that's where he's wrong.

As long as a guy is still interacting with a woman in person or on phone calls, he can spark her feelings of respect and attraction for him, and make her re-connect with the love that she used to feel for him.

However, if a woman arrives at her ex's house to pick up her stuff, and he just stands around moping and looking depressed, he's not using the interaction to reactivate her feelings for him.

He might even make the mistake of begging and pleading with her, by saying things like, "I'm so sorry for everything. Please don't take your stuff. I beg you! Let's try to work things out. I promise that I will change. Just tell me what you want me to do and I'll do it. I can't live without you. Please baby! Give me one more chance."

Yet, that type of emotionally weak, needy behavior is not attractive to women.

Women are instinctively attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity, the ability to handle stressful situations) and turned off by emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, neediness, an inability to handle difficulties in his life).

So, when a guy is begging, pleading, pouring out his heart and promising her the world, rather than feel flattered and think, "Wow, that's so sweet! My ex must really care about me. Maybe I've been too quick to move out and I should stop and give him another chance," a woman is likely to feel even more turned off by him and what she perceives as his emotional weakness.

If you want to get your ex girlfriend back, you have to show her that youâre not the guy she broke up with.

You need to use every interaction you have with her (even when helping her pack up her stuff) to create feelings of respect and attraction in her.

You can do that by making her smile, laugh and feel good to be around you.

You can take a difficult situation (i.e. her picking up her stuff) and turn it into an interaction that will stick in her mind (in a positive way) for days after.

When you joke around with her, tease her and make her feel relaxed and happy to be around you, rather than feel happy to have her stuff back, she may begin to wonder, âDid I make the right decision? Am I being too hasty about ending things with my ex? Maybe I should just wait a while and see what happens. Maybe I should leave a few things here, so I have an excuse to come back and see him again.â

That is what you want.

So donât worry about your ex girlfriend wanting her stuff back right now.

Instead, just focus on saying and doing the types of things that actively spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

That is what is going to make her see you in a more positive light and bring her guard down.

2. Feeling betrayed because you and her used to talk about staying together forever.

[image: But you promised that we would be together forever]

Itâs only natural that a guy might be feeling shocked, hurt and even betrayed if he had always imagined himself and his girlfriend living together happily ever after.

In some cases, a guy might even feel a little bit angry about what he believes his ex girlfriend is doing to him.

So, when she asks him for her stuff back, he might lash out at her by saying something like, âHow could you do this to me? Where is your loyalty? What about all the good times we shared? Are you just going to throw everything away? After everything Iâve done for you, youâre just going to give up on us just like this? What about all the promises that we made to love each other no matter what? Iâve kept my side of that promise. The least you can do is give me another chance here.â

Yet, hereâs the thingâ!

Being in a relationship is a choice that two individuals make independently of each other.

A woman is not a manâs property, and he is not her property.

Unlike in the past where a woman had no say in who she could marry, and then had to stay with her husband regardless of how miserable she felt, or how badly he treated her, todayâs women can break up with a guy if he stops making her feel the way that she wants to feel.

So, feeling as though you are entitled to your girlfriend, or that she should stay with you because of what youâve done for her, isnât a good enough reason for her to stay.

A woman will stay with a man because she chooses to stay with him and not because she feels obligated to do so.

If you want to get your ex girlfriend back, you can't force her back by making her feel guilty about the promises she made to you in the past.

You have to actively re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you every time you interact with her (e.g. via text messages, e-mail, on social media, on a phone call, or in person) and start building a new relationship with her on a clean slate.

When you re-spark some of her feelings for you, the negative things about your relationship begin to fade into the background and instead of thinking about how much you hurt her, she begins to wonder, "What's going on with my ex? He's so different now! What's changed? I actually enjoy being around him again," and her guard begins to come down.

3. Feeling like holding onto her stuff will somehow change how she feels.

[image: Maybe holding onto her stuff for a bit longer will change how she feels about the break up]

When a guy is feeling desperate to get his ex to listen to him and give him a second chance, he might try to hold on to her stuff as a way of making her change her mind.

For example: He might say something like, "Why don't you wait for a while before you take your things? Maybe we can work things out between us. I'm not ready to let you go yet. Please just give me another chance. I still love you."

Sometimes a guy might even refuse to give his ex her things back.

He might say, "I'm not giving you anything back until you at least give me a chance to explain. I know that we can work things out between us if you'll just listen to me. Just give me a chance to show you that things can be different between us."

Yet, a guy trying to convince his ex to give him another chance is not going to work if she's disconnected from her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him.

She's just going to see it as yet another thing that she doesn't like about who he has become.

Holding onto her stuff is a tactic that can work if the woman is secretly still in love with the guy and is hoping for a reconciliation, but if she has reached the point where she's saying, "I want my stuff back! It's over between us," trying to force her to change her mind is simply not going to work.

So, rather than potentially destroy more of her feelings for you by refusing to give her back her stuff, use the interaction to rebuild her feelings for you instead.

Like the example mentioned earlier in the article, just focus on making her smile, laugh and feel good to be around you.

When you make a woman feel good in your presence, she can't hold on to her negative feelings about you.

Instead, she starts to relax and then opens herself up to the idea that maybe you're not the bad guy that she's made you out to be after all.

She then becomes more willing to interact with you and see where it leads.

From there, you just need to continue saying and doing the types of things that will break down the walls she has built around her heart, and make her reconnect with the love for you that is still there inside of her.

4. Perceiving her moving her stuff out as meaning that you can never, ever get back together.

[image: Does this mean that we are finished forever?]

Seeing your ex girlfriend move her stuff out might feel like the end, but it doesn't have to be. Rather than think of it like a final ending, think of it in terms of a chance to start the relationship afresh in a new way.

By moving out, you and your ex girlfriend can start a new relationship again with a clean slate (e.g. as friends).

Watch this video to understand how that would work!

When she moves her stuff out, both of you can put all the negative issues from the past behind you and get to know each other in a new and more positive way.

It's not the end.

You can re-attract her and get another chance.

You've got to have confidence in yourself that you can do it.

When a woman is currently saying, I don't have feelings for you anymore. I just want my stuff back so that I can move on with my life, some guys tend to lose confidence in themselves and in their ability to attract her back.

For example: A guy might say to himself, Taking back her stuff seems very final. After this point, there's nothing stopping her from meeting someone else and moving on. I've really messed things up and now it's just too late to make her change her mind. Once she takes her stuff out, we are finished forever.

Yet, thinking like that isn't going to get her back.

The truth is that couples (all over the world) do get back together all the time.

These days, (thanks to help available online and for guys who use my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System), it's actually very common for a guy to get his woman back after a serious break up.

So, rather than putting yourself down and wasting a lot of time worrying about her wanting her stuff back, focus instead on showing her that you've moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

That way, she can see that you are changing and are not just pleading with her to give you a chance even though you don't even know what you need to change or how to change it.

How can you show her that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you?

Start by making some changes to the way you interact with her, the way you talk to her and respond to what she says, and the way you behave in her presence.

For example: If a guy was needy and insecure in his relationship with his ex, he now needs to show her that he's emotionally strong and confident around her.

If she says something like, Just leave me alone. It's over between us, rather than react by getting upset, feeling hurt or walking away feeling rejected, the guy needs to remain emotionally strong and confident in himself and respond by making her smile and laugh.

When she sees for herself that heâs no longer the same guy she broke up with and that heâs reacting in a very different way to what sheâs become used to, she will naturally feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the strong man he has become.

Her guard will then come down and he can guide her back into a relationship with him.

So, stop worrying about your ex wanting her stuff back.

Her stuff being at your place isnât whatâs going to make her change how she feels.

You are going to change how she feels, by sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for the new and improved you.

Itâs Not Over

Right now your ex girlfriend is probably convinced that itâs over between you and her, which is why she might be asking for her stuff back.

However, just because sheâs feeling like that right now, it doesnât mean she canât change her mind.

When you spark her feelings for you and allow her to experience the new, more mature version of yourself, she will not be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you.

Suddenly she will be open to seeing you more often, which will give you more chances to build on her feelings.

If you are doing it right, she may even call you up just to talk or send you texts with the secret hope that you might call her, create a spark and arrange a time to catch up in person.

Whatever the case is for you, just make sure that continue sparking her feelings for you as you confidently guide her back into a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Attract Your Ex Back Via Text

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You can create a spark of attraction via text, but you won't completely get your ex back just by using text messages.

To get her back for real, you will also need to attract her on a phone call and in person.

[image: Get her on a phone call]

Text should only be used as a way to create a bit of a spark of her feelings for you again, so you can then get her on a phone call and arrange to meet up with her in person.

If your ex is currently answering your phone calls, I recommend that you call her and arrange an in person meet up.

However, if your ex is currently refusing to take your calls or see you in person, or if you're unsure how she'll respond when you call her, you can start the ex back process by sending her a text message that will reactivate some of her feelings for you.

Then, once you have re-sparked some of her feelings for you, her guard will come down and she will likely be more open to talking to you over the phone and meeting up with you in person.

2 Example Texts to Attract Her With Humor

[image: Using text to get her back]

Warning: The following text examples might not apply to your situation. They might even seem a little cheesy if that's not how you and your ex interact.

You just need to read the examples below to get some ideas of what actually works to create some attraction with an ex via text. I've helped 100s of guys get their woman back via my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System, which includes text messages that use other attraction and persuasion techniques (rather than humor) so that they apply to all situations.

When it comes to attracting your ex back via text, make sure you are making her smile and laugh, rather than annoying her with boring, pointless text messages that don't inspire strong emotion in her.

For example: A guy might send a boring text to his ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) and say something like, Hey, how are you doing? I just wanted to say hello. How is your day going so far?

She might then reply by saying something like, Oh, I'm fine. My day is busy as usual. How about you?

He might then say, Oh, I'm okay. Nothing much is happening with me.

Yet, that type of message is not going to attract her back.

Having a boring conversation via text like that is not going to make her smile and laugh and feel happy to be interacting with him again, and it's probably not going to make her want to talk to him on the phone, or see him in person.

So, rather than wasting your time texting your ex back and forth without getting the results that you want (i.e. meet up with her and get her back in your arms again), here are some examples of what you can text that will get her smiling, laughing and enjoying the text interaction with you.

Using the example above, if your ex says, â€œOh, Iâ€™m fine. My day is busy as usual. How about you?â€

You can then say something like, â€œIâ€™m having a great day, but I donâ€™t know if I should tell you why. Lol...!â€

She might then reply with, “What? Why?” or, “Tell me” and you can then say, “Iâ€™m eating pizza at the moment and I know how much you love pizza, so I didnâ€™t want to distract you from your work day. Hawaiian with extra pineapple. Mmmmâ€¦delicious.”

She might then reply with, “Damn, now Iâ€™m feeling hungry. You bastard! Lolâ€¦”

You can then reply with, “Mmmâ€¦tastes so good. Anyway, Iâ€™m finishing up eating this now with a coworker and heading back to the office in a few mins. Have a great day. Donâ€™t work too hard!”

At this point she is probably going to be smiling and thinking about you in a positive way because youâ€™re not trying to get her back and are just being a bit playful via text.

[image: Getting an ex back via text]

Another example of how to attract her with humor is as followsâ€¦

You can start by saying, â€œHey, how are you doing? I have some big news!”

She might reply with, “What?” or “Whatâ€™s the big news?” and you can say, “I just found out that Iâ€™ve won a million dollars in the Lotto. So, how would you like to meet up and have some coffee with a millionaire? Iâ€™ll pay for the coffees of courseâ€¦lol. I think I can afford $10 out of a million now.â€

She will likely respond with something like, â€œLolâ€¦what? You won a million dollars?â€ or â€œThatâ€™s awesome. Congratulations!â€ or “Yeah rightâ€¦as if you won the lotteryâ€¦lol.”

You can then say, â€œOkay, so I was only joking about the million dollars! Hahaâ€¦but at least now you canâ€™t say that you wonâ€™t have a coffee with me, because everyone will think you were just after me for the money.â€

This type of interaction will at least spark her interest, get her smiling and she might even have a bit of a laugh.

She then starts to experience some positive feelings when she sees your Caller I.D. on her phone, rather than feeling dread, resentment or annoyance whenever she sees that youâ€™re calling.

[image: Creating a spark via text]

By the wayâ€¦

I give another text example in this free videoâ€¦

Of course, sending your ex a funny text message isnâ€™t the magic solution to completely get her back.

To properly get a woman back, youâ€™ve got to use every interaction that you have with her from now (whether thatâ€™s via text, on a phone call or in person), to create a spark of attraction in her.

When you spark her feelings of attraction for you again, it pushes the negatives of your relationship into the background, because she naturally feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

Even though she might have previously been saying, “I just don’t have feelings for you anymore,” or “There’s nothing that’s going to convince me to get back together again,” she now can’t stop herself from wanting to interact with you because she feels drawn to you.

When she continues to smile and laugh after getting one or two texts from you, a woman will then usually get to the point where she is hoping to hear from you and see you in person.

She might start thinking to herself, “He’s not that bad anymore. I’ve really been too hard on him. It wouldn’t hurt to talk to him over the phone sometime, or even just meet up for a quick coffee to catch up. I’ll tell him that we’re just meeting up as friends—but, really, I don’t know that I just want to be friends—maybe I want more—I will have to wait and see how I feel when we catch up.”

Meeting up with her as a “friend” is totally fine, as long as you actively make her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual and romantic attraction for you at the meet up.

Here are some examples of how to attract her in person!

For more examples of how to attract your ex and the full, step by step process to get her back, watch Get Your Ex Back Super System.

Some Texting Rules to Remember

Your main reason for texting your ex should be to open up the line of communication between you and her, and get her laughing and smiling so that she begins to at least feel something for you again.

From there, you need to get her on a phone call and arrange a meet up where you can fully reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you and then guide her back into a relationship.

What you should not use texting for is to...

- Beg and plead for a second chance with her.
- Constantly apologize to her.
- Try and make her feel guilty by telling her how unhappy you are without her.
- Stay on her mind (by constantly texting her) in the hopes that she won’t move on.
- Ask her to tell you what you need to change about yourself.

Why?

Firstly, if a woman doesn’t feel much respect or attraction for her ex, she’s likely going to look at any text she gets from him in a negative light.

She might think to herself, “Why is my ex texting me so often? What does he want? I can’t believe that after everything he’s done, he’s apologizing to me in a text message and doesn’t have the balls to say it to me over the phone or in person,” or “I don’t understand how he still doesn’t have a clue what he did wrong. He still doesn’t get why I ended the relationship. How can he expect me to explain it to him via text?” and she will feel even more turned off by him.

Also, something else to bear in mind is that a woman can easily misinterpret what her ex is saying via text because she can't see his body language, or hear the tone of his voice, so she has to guess at his state of mind and interpret his message based on her current feelings for him.

If she is currently feeling angry, resentful, hurt or annoyed, she will usually just assume the worst of him when he texts her.

Another reason why texting an ex and not getting her on a phone call is a bad idea, is that she can string the guy along for months by texting back and forth, giving him false hope that she might be interested in getting back together again, just to make herself feel good.

In the meantime, she might be thinking, “He is very naïve if he thinks that just because we’re texting each other, I’m going to forget what happened between us. It’s over and he has no idea what he needs to do to get me back. I’m just going to keep moving on because he obviously can’t grow up and become the man I need him to be.”

Just texting your ex won't make her feel enough respect and attraction to feel like she should forgive you and meet up with you in person.

So, make sure that you transition to a phone call and re-attract her in person when you meet up with her.

Getting Her on a Phone Call is the Quickest Way to Attract Your Ex Back

A common mistake that guys make when trying to attract an ex back via text is getting stuck with texting back and forth with the woman for weeks.

Even though she might be open to it initially, if he doesn't make an effort to arrange a meet up to reactivate her feelings and then hug and potentially kiss her in person, she's going to get bored of the texting very quickly.

When getting an ex back, texts should only be used as a way to get her on a phone call, or to spark a little attraction before you call, rather than the main method of getting her back.

If you leave it too long to re-attract her in person, she will experience stronger in-person feelings with other guys that she meets and your texts will quickly become boring, annoying or out of place.

You might eventually get a text from her say, “I have something to tell you. I’ve met someone else and we’re in love. My new boyfriend doesn’t like all these texts coming from you. Please respect that by giving me space and not texting me any more.”

Don't let that happen to you.

Don't get stuck in texting limbo where you hope that if you can just text her long enough, she will eventually say something like, “I’ve been thinking. Why don’t we get together sometime and catch up?”

Unless a woman is secretly still in love with her ex and hoping to get back together with him, it's unlikely that she will initiate a meeting with him first.

You need to be the one to confidently guide her back into a relationship with you, rather than waiting for her to make all the moves and lead the way.

So, from now on, I recommend that you only text your ex with the purpose of getting her on the phone to talk to you.

On a phone call, you can continue sparking her feelings of attraction for you, and then get her to agree to a meet up where she can experience the new and improved version of you face-to-face.

Remember: On a phone call, a woman can sense whether you've changed based on your tonality and how you are now talking to her and reacting to her.

For example: If a guy was insecure in his relationship with a woman and would get clingy, needy and jealous, then his woman would have felt turned off by his behavior.

Over time, she likely lost respect and attraction for him as a man, which eventually led to her breaking up with him.

So, when he now talks to her, he needs to let her see that no matter what she says or does, he is emotionally strong now and doesn't become insecure or self-doubting.

[image: Fully re-attracting her in person]

Displaying confidence and emotional strength is not something a guy can properly show a woman via a text message.

He can't just text her and say, Hey, I'm not that needy, clingy insecure guy from before. I've really changed now, because she doesn't have any in-person or on-call evidence to believe him.

Instead, he needs to get his ex on the phone and say something like, Look, I just wanted to tell you that I'm sorry for what happened between us. I know that I messed up badly. I became a needy, clingy guy and that's just not cool. If I were you, I would have also broken up with me, so I don't blame you for that. The truth is, the break up has been a huge wake up call for me, and I'm no longer the same guy that you broke up with. I'm past all that insecure stuff and I'm a confident, emotionally strong man now. Of course, I don't expect you to believe me right now, and that's okay. I just wanted to let you know that I'm sorry and also that I have changed, but I don't expect my changes to make you want to get back with me.

By saying something like that to her, he's making her feel heard and understood.

She then begins to feel some respect for him again for being man enough to face his issues and make some adjustments to his way of thinking and to his behavior.

At the same time, if he is also making her feel good on the phone (e.g. by making her smile and laugh at times), she will be able to drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of meeting up with him in person.

Then, when he meets up with her, he needs to continue saying and doing the types of things that will reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

So, remember: Texting your ex after breaking up should only be a stepping stone to getting her on the phone, so that you can arrange a meet up with her.

Don't hide behind texts and hope that something that you text her will magically get her to forget about why she broke up with you.

You've got to make sure that you are prepared to re-attract her in person by understanding where you went wrong and quickly making some changes, so she can feel attracted to the new and improved you.

[image: Getting her back into a relationship]

When she sees you in person and experiences the new and improved version of you, her guard will come down and she will then allow herself to feel attracted to you again.

From there, she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love that she once felt for you and will look at you in a more positive light.

You then need to complete the ex back process by getting her to give the relationship another chance.

Don't worry, it's easy and each day, countless guys from all over the world get their woman back.

You can be one of those guys who successfully re-attract your ex and get her back, so don't waste another moment.

Start the process of getting her back now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Asked Me For Time Apart

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your girlfriend has asked you for time apart, you might now be wondering:

- Does this mean that our relationship is doomed?
- Will having time apart make her realize that she still loves me and wants to be with me?
- What if she meets another guy while we're apart?
- How much time should I give her?

It's fine to give your girlfriend 3 to 7 days of space, but if you spend any more time apart than that, a woman will usually start to get over you and may even completely move on with another guy.

If you give her 3 to 7 days of space, you must use that time to quickly understand what it was that really turned her off and made her want to break up with you and then begin to improve those things about yourself, so she can experience the new and improved you the next time you interact.

When she sees that you have changed, she will look at you in a more positive light and become open to giving you another chance.

Do You Fully Understand What Has Made Her to Ask For Time Apart?

[image: Why does my girlfriend want time apart?]

Right now, the most important thing that you need to do is understand what has really been turning your girlfriend off to the point where she has now asked for time apart.

Where many guys go wrong at this point of a break up, is to turn to their woman for a full explanation about why she is asking for time apart.

For example: A guy might say, "Why do you want time apart? What am I doing wrong? You don't have to have time apart for me to change. Just tell me what you want me to fix and I'll do it right now."

Yet, that's not how to get a relationship back together when a woman is dumping a man.

The reason why is that a woman will rarely tell a guy her exact, more subtle and even private reasons for wanting time apart.

Instead of being brutally honest, a woman will usually just say something like, "I don't know. I just don't feel the same way about you anymore. I need some time apart to think things through. I still care about you, but I just don't know what I want any more" or, "My feelings for you have changed. I need space to figure out if I still want to be in a relationship."

Why doesn't a woman just come out and say exactly what she wants the guy fix?

Here are 3 main reasons why!

1. A woman doesn't want to hurt the guy's feelings, and possibly even have to deal with him reacting in an overly emotional way (e.g. cry, beg her to stay, get angry or even become violent).

Even though we now live in a civilized society with police, a supportive government, the court system and the media, some women still get beaten or killed by men as they try to break up with them.

Of course, you are most likely a really good guy and would never do anything to hurt your girlfriend, but women have a natural instinct to protect themselves from being hurt when they are breaking up with a man.

Other than violence, the thing that women worry about is the man breaking down and crying. She then feels sorry for him and if he notices, so he keeps going and ends up begging and pleading with her to give him another chance.

A woman just doesn't want to be put in that position, she usually tries to just get out the relationship with a vague reason like, "I need some time apart for a while to think things through" or, "I need some time apart to find myself and work out what I want. Please respect that."

2. She doesn't want to give him the opportunity to talk her out of her decision.

[image: Please just give me another chance]

For example: A guy might say, "Okay, so you want me to be more manly. I can do that. I will start right away. Give me a week to show you that I can be more manly, rather than being the insecure, needy boyfriend that I have become."

If the couple is married, the man might say something like, "What about the children? We can't do this to them. Do you not care about the effect this will have on them? They won't have a father figure around and you might end up getting into a relationship with a man who treats them badly. How could you do that to them and to me?" or "We've just bought a new house together. What will happen if we split up now? We'll lose everything."

He might also try to convince to change her mind by promising to change, by saying things like, "Okay, I accept that I messed up, but I promise that I'm going to change. Doesn't everyone deserve a second chance?"

He may even say something like, "Look! I'm a different guy from the guy that I used to be. I've changed now! You just have to stick around long enough to see it for yourself. Give me two weeks and I will show you."

3. She doesn't want to have to teach him how to be the kind of man who is attractive to her.

[image: My girlfriend wants time apart]

If she has to explain to him what he's doing wrong now, she will feel like she's taking on the role of his mother or teacher and will have to do it again and again throughout life.

Being in the teacher or mother role is not attractive to her, because a woman doesn't want to feel like she has to hold a guy's hand and guide him through life.

If she has to do that, she begins to feel more dominant than him in the relationship, which makes her lose touch with her feelings of sexual attraction for him.

For a relationship to be successful, the man has to maintain the dominant role so that the woman can relax into her feminine self and feel sexually attracted to his masculinity.

So, even if you don't fully understand what it was that really turned your girlfriend off and made her want to break up with you, it's important that you don't ask her to explain it to you.

You need to figure this out without her help.

If you don't, you will probably be making promises and offering to change things that she's not really bothered about.

For example: You might promise to take her on holidays, clean the house or do the dishes, but what she really cares about is your lack of emotional masculinity and the fact that she can no longer and look up to you and respect you as her man.

How To Figure Out What is Turning Her Off Without Asking Her to Tell You

Some guys know exactly why their woman is asking for time apart and they then get to work on fixing that, so they can impress her by showing her the new and improved version of themselves.

Yet, many guys don't know what they need to change or how to change and fix the problems that they've been creating.

In fact, for some guys it's a complete shock to discover that their girlfriend (fiancée or wife) isn't as happy in the relationship as they are.

So, if you're saying, I don't understand what I've done wrong, and I don't know how to figure it out by myself, don't worry, you can do it.

One of the quickest ways to tap into what is turning her off is by thinking back to the times you and your girlfriend had an argument or disagreement about something.

In most cases, she will have likely nagged you about a certain thing, dropped hints, or even started a fight with you over the same thing more than once.

For example: A woman might have repeatedly nagged her guy about not helping out around the house, as a way of letting him know that she was feeling taken for granted and neglected.

Alternatively, she might have hinted to him, Why don't you hang out with your friends sometime? Don't you miss seeing them once in a while, as a way of letting him know that he was being too needy and clingy around her, and was possibly even using his relationship with her to hide from his true potential in life.

In another example, a woman might have nagged her boyfriend about how much time he spends watching TV or aimlessly browsing social media, because she wanted him to get focused on a career or follow through on his big ambitions so that he could be a successful guy in the near future.

Whatever the case in your relationship, if you think back, you will likely recall an issue that cropped up more than once between you and your girlfriend.

That is the clue you are looking for, because once you understand what is causing your girlfriend to ask you for time apart, you will be able to improve those things about yourself.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was being too clingy, needy and dependent on her, he needs to show her that he has become more emotionally independent and has started to focus on goals, dreams, interests and friendships that are separate from his relationship with her.

Then, when he interacts with her (e.g. on the phone, or in person) she will be able to experience for herself that he is not the same, lost and unmotivated guy that she left behind.

Whatever the case is for you, it's important that you take some action to begin improving or fixing what has really been turning her off.

Once your girlfriend sees that you have understood what caused her to want time apart from you and have also taken action to fix those things, she will begin to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man.

When a woman feels respect and attraction for you, her guard comes down and it becomes a lot easier for her to then reconnect with her feelings of love once more.

Will Giving Her Time Apart Cause Her to Realize Her Mistake?

Not for all women.

Time apart will only work if your girlfriend still truly loves you and feels some respect and attraction for you, if she's unable to deal with the pain of the break up, or if she can't find a new guy to replace you with.

However, if she doesn't feel much (or anything at all) for you, she will almost certainly use the extended time apart to move on and leave you behind.

So, don't waste any more time.

You need to reactivate her feelings by interacting with her (e.g. via text message, e-mail, on social media, on a phone call, or in person) after giving her 3 to 7 days of space.

Where some guys go wrong is in thinking that the more space they give a woman, the more likely she will change her mind.

For example: A guy might think, â€œI give her 30 days or even 60 days of space, she's more likely to notice how much I mean to her. She'll miss how much I spoiled her and took care of her. She'll then realize that she made a huge mistake and come running back to me.â€

Yet, that approach only works about 20% of the time.

In the 20% of cases where it does work, it rarely results in the relationship staying back together because the guy hasn't really fixed his issues and has simply been ignoring her.

When the woman comes back and sees he still hasn't figured out what really caused her to leave in the first place, she just breaks up with him again.

So, not only has the guy wasted a lot of time waiting for his girlfriend to come to her senses, he's also given her plenty of time get over him, and possibly meet and fall in love with a new man.

If you want your girlfriend to realize that she wants to be with you and that life just doesn't feel right without you, then you've got to actively renew her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you by interacting with her on a phone call or in person.

Give your girlfriend time apart if she's asked for it, but any longer longer than 3 to 7 days of space is usually just a waste of time.

Making Her Fall in Love With You All Over Again

[image: Making her fall in love with you all over again]

Itâ€™s not the end of the world if your girlfriend has asked you for time apart.

In fact, you can use that time apart to prepare to reactivate her feelings for you and make her fall even deeper in love than she was before.

Hereâ€™s how you can do thatâ€¦!

Once you’ve given her 3 to 7 days of space, you need to use every interaction you have with her (e.g. via text message, e-mail, on social media, on a phone call, or in person) from then on as an opportunity to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

You can do that by making some adjustments and improvements to the way youâ€™re interacting with her.

You can react differently to what she says.

You can respond differently to her.

For example: If your girlfriend says something like, â€œI donâ€™t know if I want to be in a relationship with you anymore. My feelings for you have changed. I think itâ€™s better that we break up,â€ rather than get upset and emotional about it, you can use it as an opportunity to make her feel respect and attraction for you instead.

A simple way to do that is by responding in an unexpected way and making her smile and laugh.

For example: You might say something like, â€œI bet youâ€™re expecting me to get angry or annoyed right now arenâ€™t you? Okay, here goesâ€!â€ then playfully pretend to sulk or get angry.

You might laugh and say, “No way! We’re not having time apart. We have to see each other every day, 24/7” and in a playfully angry tone or, “Awww, that’s not fair. I want to see you 24/7. please! Let’s see each other at least 3 times a day” in a playfully sulking tone and then laugh with her about it.

You can then say something like, â€œSeriously though, I get why you donâ€™t want to be with me anymore. I did (mention to her that what you know you did wrong), but Iâ€™m not that guy anymore. I donâ€™t expect you to believe me right now and thatâ€™s okay. We can have this space and if you don’t want to be with me any more, that is your choice. However, I think it would be good if we could say hello again as friends sometime soon.â€

In this way, not only are you responding differently to the way sheâ€™s expecting you to, but youâ€™re also making her smile and laugh by making a joke about your past behavior.

At the same time, youâ€™re also acknowledging that you have been behaving in ways that are unattractive to her, while also making her feel heard and understood.

All of this means that you take the pressure off your girlfriend to come back to you right away, and you focus instead on letting her experience for herself the new and improved you at her own pace.

By making some adjustments to the way you talk and interact with her, she naturally begins to look at you in a more positive light, and becomes more open to giving you another chance.

Then, getting back together again becomes easy.

She begins to think to herself, “This isn’t how he usually behaves. What’s changed? He actually understands what made me to want to break up with him. I feel differently about him now. I don’t hate him as much. I kind of like him again. Why am I feeling this way? Maybe we can make things work between us after all,” and she then opens herself up to getting back together again.

Remember: When you renew her feelings of respect and attraction for you, her guard comes down and she naturally feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

From there, all you’ve got to do is to continue saying and doing the types of things that attract her while you confidently guide her back into a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Get Your Ex Back Guide: 4 Tips to Start the Process of Getting Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The ex back process can be confusing if you try to work it out on your own while feeling so much pain and rejection after the break up.

Follow this starter guide to begin the process of getting her back.

1. Understand Where You Really Went Wrong

[image: Understand where you really went wrong]

To begin with, you have to know the real, true reasons why your ex has broken up with you.

You then need to make quick changes in those areas so she can see that you are no longer the same guy that she dumped.

Watch this video for more info!

If you are unsure of what you really should be changing, you might end up promising to change things about yourself that she doesn't even care about.

For example: A woman might want her ex to take the lead in the relationship and be more of a masculine, ballsy man around her.

Yet, if he doesn't realize that, he could be saying to her, "I promise to take better care of you. You can have whatever you want. I will treat you so much better now I promise. Just tell me what you want and I will do it," which isn't what she actually wants from him.

[image: Just give me a chance]

So, the first step to getting your ex back is to fully understand where you went wrong in the relationship.

However, don't expect her to tell you exactly what she wants you to change.

A woman will rarely tell a guy the real, more subtle reasons why she's breaking up with him, and will usually just say something like, "I just don't have feelings for you anymore," or "I need some space to figure out what I want to do with my life," or "I'm not sure I if I want to be in a relationship right now."

Why?

She doesn't want to be his teacher in life about how to be a man, or have to guide him along to become the type of man that she needs him to be.

If a woman has to explain exactly where he has been going wrong, she will fear that she will need to keep teaching him again and again in the future.

That's not attractive to her, because a woman wants to be with a man she can look up to and respect, not look after like a mother or big sister would a little boy.

When a woman doesn't feel respect for a man, she will find it almost impossible to feel sexually attracted to him.

Without respect and attraction, she will find it difficult to connect with her feelings of love for him and the relationship with fall apart.

So, an important part of getting your ex back is to discover the real reasons why she broke up with you (e.g. you weren't manly enough, you had become too insecure, you lacked purpose and direction in life, you lost touch with how to make her feel sexually attracted to you).

You then need to at least begin to make some improvements in those areas so that when you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person), she can pick up on how differently you think, talk and behave now.

When that happens, she will feel that you now understand her and she doesn't have to teach you how to be the man she wants and needs, which then brings her guard down and makes her begin to open back up to you.

She then can't help herself from feeling drawn to you again, even though she previously might have thought that she was completely over you and didn't want anything to do with you any more.

2. Improve Your Ability to Attract Her

When some guys hear about needing to improve their ability to attract their ex, they automatically assume this means they have to improve their physical appearance.

Yet, they are wrong.

A guy like that might then think to himself, "Cool, I can do that. I'll go out and get myself some new clothes and then I'll go to the gym and build some muscles. The next time she sees me, she won't be able to recognize me. I will look so attractive and she'll see that I've changed in a positive way."

Yet, that's not how a woman's attraction really works.

A man's physical attractiveness is not as important to a woman as his emotional attractiveness (e.g. his confidence, charisma, emotional masculinity, charm).

A guy might change his physical appearance (e.g. get new clothes and shoes, change his hairstyle, lose weight), but if he is still the same insecure guy deep down, his ex is going to be able to pick up on that and it will turn her off.

So, if you want to improve your ability to attract your ex, you need to remember one thing!

A woman's attraction to a man's physical appearance isn't as powerful as her emotional attraction to him.

If you can make her smile, laugh and feel good when she interacts with you, she will instinctively feel more attracted to you.

A good way to check how you are making your ex feel, is to ask yourself the following questions when you are interacting with her while on a phone call or in person.

- Does she feel feminine and girly in my presence, or does she feel emotionally stronger than me?
- Can she look up to me and respect me as a man, or does she look down on me?
- Is she feeling happy to be talking to me, or is she looking for ways to get away quickly?
- Am I making her feel turned on, or is her body language, or the tone of her voice telling me that she is feeling closed off?

- Am I reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for me (e.g. via the way I'm talking to her, my body language, my attitude and the way I respond to her), or is she feeling turned off by me?

As long as you focus on displaying traits that make you emotionally attractive, she will begin to warm back up to you and really like the new you.

3. Contact Her and Reactivate Her Feelings of Respect and Attraction

[image: Attract her over the phone, rather than trying to convince her]

If your ex is currently saying things like, â€œPlease accept that itâ€™s over between us. I just donâ€™t have feelings for you anymore,â€ or â€œYou need to let me go. Thereâ€™s no way the two of us can get back together again,â€ it simply means that the way you are currently talking to her isnâ€™t making her connect with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

Of course, that doesnâ€™t mean you canâ€™t change that.

You can.

What you need to do is contact her and actively work towards making her feel respect and attraction for you again on a phone call or in person.

Where many guys go wrong, is that when their ex says, â€œLeave me alone,â€ they quickly back off and give her loads of space.

For example: A guy might think, â€œShe said she doesnâ€™t want to see me. If I keep pushing her she might get even angrier with me and I might blow my chances to get her back. Maybe if I give her some space, she will realize that she misses me and then she will contact me herself.â€

He then stops contacting her; sometimes for up to 30 or even 60 days.

Then, when he doesnâ€™t hear back from her, he begins to wonder, â€œWhy isnâ€™t she calling me? Hasnâ€™t she realized that Iâ€™m the right guy for her yet? Doesn't she miss me? Why isn't she initiating contact and trying to get me back? Was our relationship all for nothing?â€

What a lot of guys don't realize is that most women are passive when it comes to dating and relationships.

In other words, men lead and women follow along.

Some women do lead at times and some women like to lead all the time, but all women feel respect and attraction for men who have the balls, emotional masculinity and maturity to lead the way.

Here's the thingâ€¦

If youâ€™re not actively present in your exâ€™s life and using every opportunity that you have to interact with her and reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you, then youâ€™re only giving her more time to get over you and meet someone else.

So, donâ€™t sit around hoping that by ignoring her she will suddenly realize how much she misses you and then come running back.

That will only happen if your ex is still in love with you, is unable to handle the emotions of the break up, or canâ€¢t find another guy to replace you.

In almost all other cases, not contacting a woman for anything longer than 3 to 7 days is a total waste of time.

You need to get this done now, before it's too late.

For example: If a guy decides to give his ex 30-60 days of space and wait for a sign from her, itâ€¢s unlikely that sheâ€¢s going to wake up one morning and think to herself, â€¢Oh, I miss my ex so much! Why hasnâ€¢t he called me?â€¢ if he hasnâ€¢t done anything to renew her feelings for him since the break up.

So, don't waste any more time waiting for her to give you a sign that sheâ€¢s open to talking to you again.

Instead, get her on a phone call and get her smiling and laughing.

Make her feel curious and happy to meet up with you in person, so she can see the changes in you that she is now experiencing over the phone (e.g. your newfound confidence, emotional masculinity, charisma and charm).

4. Meet Up With Her and Build on Her Feelings

[image: Meet up with her and build on her feelings]

When you meet up with your ex, youâ€¢ve got to continue saying and doing the types of things that will build on her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

You can do that by making some adjustments and improvements to the way you are talking to her and interacting with her.

For example: Imagine that youâ€¢re having a cup of coffee with your ex, and she says something like, â€¢I just donâ€¢t have feelings for you anymore,â€¢ or â€¢Why canâ€¢t you accept that itâ€¢s over between us?â€¢

In her mind, she might be testing you to see if you will react to what she is saying in negative way (e.g. by getting angry with her, getting upset, begging her to give you another chance, becoming insecure, looking rejected).

However, rather than reacting in the way that she is expecting, you can remain confident and self-assured instead.

You can respond by saying something like, â€¢I know you that donâ€¢t want to get back together with me right nowâ€¢and thatâ€¢s okay with me. I know that I canâ€¢t convince you with words that Iâ€¢m a different guy to the one you broke up with, so Iâ€¢m just going let you see for yourself that Iâ€¢ve changed. Maybe you've already noticed it a bit while we've been talking. I don't expect you to want me back because I've changed, but I have changed. I accept that we've broken up. If you don't have feelings for me any more, I accept that too.â€¢

She will then likely begin thinking, â€¢Hmmâ€¢thatâ€¢s not what I was expecting. I thought he would react in the same way that he used to when we were together. Why is he behaving this way? What has changed? How has he changed so quickly? I kind of like the new himâ€¢why am I feeling this wayâ€¢ and she wonâ€¢t be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you.

When she realizes that you really are a different guy to how you were when she broke up with you, her resolve to stay broken up will begin to weaken.

From there, you just need to continue saying and doing the types of things that will build on the spark of respect and attraction that she is feeling for you until you turn it into a raging fire of love, respect, attraction and desire.

As you are doing that, simply guide her back into a relationship with you by remaining confident, relaxed and in control.

Some Pitfalls to Be Aware Of

As you can see, getting your ex back is not really that difficult as long as you have an idea of how the ex back process works.

Many guys lose their woman by not finding a guide to follow, or by not following through on it completely.

A guy who has been dumped is usually in a lot of emotional pain and often can't stop himself from making some, or all, of the following rookie mistakes.

1. Over texting

Some guys feel that constant texting is a good way stay on her mind, and therefore she will be less likely to move on.

However, if a guy isn't actively reactivating his ex's feelings of respect and attraction on a phone call or in person, then getting random texts from him isn't going to convince her to change her mind about getting back together with him.

Texting an ex is completely fine to do as long as it's used as a way of getting her on a phone call, where she can notice the changes in you by listening to the tone of your voice and experiencing your confidence, charisma and charm.

On the phone call, you need to arrange a meet up with her, where you can then fully reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you in person.

2. Pouring his heart out

When a guy gets broken up with, he might feel that his only chance of getting another chance is to convince the woman how much he cares about her.

He might say to her, "I love you more than anything in the world. I can't imagine a life without you in it. Please don't give up on us. Don't you remember all the good things we shared? Please just give me one more chance to prove to you that I'm the only guy who can make you truly happy."

Yet, here's the thing!

A woman doesn't care how much a guy cares for her if she doesn't have feelings for him any more.

He has feelings for her, but she doesn't have feelings for him, so his words feel empty and unimportant to her.

If you want to get your ex back, you need to make her have some feelings of respect and attraction for you first, otherwise sheâs not going to care that you still love her or want to be with her.

3. Promising to change

[image: I promise that I will change]

If a woman is currently saying things like, âIâve had enough. I just donât want to be in a relationship with you anymore,â because she doesnât have feelings for a guy, she doesnât want to hear his sincere promises that he will change.

The thing is that in most cases, a guy will usually have already made some promises to her before the break up that he didnât end up keeping.

For example: During a argument with her, a guy might have said, âOkay, I get it. You want me to stop doing that. I promise I wonât do that again.â

Yet, after a while he slipped back into the habit of doing whatever he promised to her that he would not do again.

So, when she eventually breaks up with him, a woman is then less likely to believe any of his promises to change and become the type of man that she wanted and needed all along.

If you want to get your ex back, remember that your actions will speak louder than your words.

When you interact with your ex from on, donât waste your time or her time making promises about changing.

Instead, focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you by showing her that you now understand what really went wrong between you, and you that have already taken steps to change those things in yourself.

4. Pleading with her to change her mind

Itâs only natural that a guy will feel upset, betrayed, rejected or hurt when his girlfriend (fianc  or wife) breaks up with him.

When this happens, he might try to plead with her to change her mind by saying things like, âPlease baby! I still love you! Iâm so sorry for hurting you. Please forgive me! Just one more chance is all Iâm asking for.â

However, in most cases, rather than make the woman change her mind, his begging and pleading turns her off even more.

Why?

Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, strength of character, masculinity) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. desperation, neediness, clinginess).

So, when a guy pleads with a woman for her to give him a second chance, she will perceive him as being emotionally weak and then want to distance herself from him even more.

Getting Her Back is Easy When You Follow the Right Guide

[image: Getting her back by following the right guide]

In the past, a break up was considered permanent and if a guy asked, âWhat can I do to get my ex back?â€œ the only advice he would get was, â€œForget about her and move on. There are plenty of fish in the sea.â€œ

People used to think that a break up was permanent and there was not way of getting an ex back.

Thankfully, thatâ€™s no longer the case.

In todayâ€™s world, couples get back together all the time.

Couples getting back together after a break up is happening more and more every day thanks to the help that people can now find on the internet (e.g. the proven to work ex back method that I teach in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System), rather than the unhelpful, “Don’t worry, you’ll find another girl one day” advice that family and friends tend to offer.

The fact is, when you re-spark your exâ€™s feelings of respect and attraction for you, she begins to drop her guard and becomes open to the idea of getting back together again.

From there, you just need to guide her into deeper feelings of love and attraction for you, until she canâ€™t stop herself from wanting to be back in your arms again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Is it Possible to Get My Ex Girlfriend to Change Her Mind About Me?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're asking, Is it possible to get my ex girlfriend to change her mind about me? the answer is yes.

However, it's important that you understand that you can't change her mind by talking to her about the relationship, telling her how much you've changed, or trying to make her realize that she will regret it later on.

To get her to change her mind, you've got to change the way you make her feel.

You've got to focus on making her feel desirable emotions (e.g. respect, attraction and love) that will draw her to you, rather than making her feel undesirable emotions (e.g. resentment, disgust, hate).

For example:

- Have you been recently turning her off during conversations by being insecure?
- Does she feel like she is the more dominant one in the relationship and that she can no longer look up to you and respect you?
- Would she be able to get the type of attraction experience that she really wants in a relationship if she got back with you? (e.g. your ex might want you to be a bit more ballsy, but you're just too nice. She might also want you to joke around with her more, but you're too serious and sensitive about things all the time).

If your ex is currently saying things like, You need to accept that it's really over between us. I'm not going to change my mind about you, it means that the way you're coming across to her now is still making her feel the same way that she felt when she broke up with you (e.g. a lack of respect and attraction, anger, disappointment).

So, if you want to change your ex girlfriend's mind about getting back together with you, you have to show her that you've moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

You can do that simply by making some changes and improvements to the way you are talking to her and interacting with her.

When you interact with her in ways that spark her feelings for you again, it then becomes possible to get your ex girlfriend to change her mind about you because she is now feeling more open towards you.

However, if you continue to behave in the same ways that you did before the break up with her (e.g. being insecure, letting her push you around or dominate you, always trying to discuss the relationship or your feelings) she will just keep saying, Sorry, but it's over between us. I don't feel the same way as you do.

4 Things That Won't Change Her Mind

[image: 4 things that won't change her mind]

At this point of the ex back process, your girlfriend has most likely disconnected herself from her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you, so almost anything that you say and do will either be perceived in a negative, or a positive light by her.

Don't worry though; her current negative state of mind is not permanent.

When you actively get her to reconnect with her feelings, she will stop thinking of you in such a negative way.

All of a sudden, she will begin to think, â€œHmmmâ€|my ex has changed now. This is different. I wonder if things would be different between us if we got back together again?â€

On the other hand, if you interact with her in ways that turn her off (e.g. always trying to discuss the relationship and your feelings even though you haven't gotten her to reconnect with her feelings first), she will likely keep saying she's not interested.

So, if you want to change your ex girlfriend's mind about you, here are 4 common mistakes to avoid making:

1. Giving her endless reasons why the relationship is worth saving.

[image: Why can't you see that our relationship is worth saving?]

When a guy still loves his ex, he will usually try pretty much anything to get her back, including giving her a list of endless reasons why their relationship is worth saving.

For example: A guy might say something like, â€œI know I messed up, but we've had so many good times together too, right? How can you forget that now? The bad times don't outnumber the great times we shared,â€ or â€œI still want to be with you. Doesn't that count for something? If you ever really loved me you would at least give me a chance to make things up to you. Love isn't supposed to be thrown away like thisâ€ or, “Your family and friends used to really like me. I know I messed up, but I'm still the great guy that they originally liked. Just give me a chance to prove it to you.”

Yet, although what he is saying is true, when a woman has disconnected from her feelings of respect, attraction and love for a guy, she will usually only focus on the negatives to help herself move on from him.

For example: If a guy (who had become needy, insecure and controlling in the relationship) tries to reason with his ex girlfriend by saying something like, â€œRemember all those times we locked ourselves in my apartment for the whole weekend watching movies, talking and making love,â€ she can easily twist that around and turn it into a negative.

She might think, â€œYeah! I should have realized back then how needy and insecure you would really become. The warning signs were there in the beginning when after a year of being together, you'd abandoned all your friends, given up on pursuing your career and just wanted to spend all your time with me. No way! I don't want a guy like that. I want a man who lives a balanced life and rises up to reach for his true potential, rather than hiding from the world behind me and a relationship. If I knew what kind of clingy, needy and controlling boyfriend you would become in the end, I would have saved myself the pain of falling in love with you and having to go through this break up.â€

He might continue on and say, “I love you so much. I would do anything for you. Isn't that reason enough to give me another chance?"

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that she has seen the needy, insecure and controlling side of him and she knows that he hasn't even changed.

If she gives him another chance based on his reasons, she fears that he would just end up becoming the same old controlling boyfriend he was in the past.

So, if you want to change your girlfriend's mind about you, make sure that you are actively changing her negative perception of you, otherwise she's not going to care about your reasons why you think you and her should stay together.

When you trigger positive, desirable feelings inside of her based on the new way that you now talk to her and interact with her, she will change her mind about you on her own without you having to convince her.

She will then see for herself that the relationship is worth saving, or at least giving a little more of a chance to see how it goes.

2. Telling her how much you care about her and how much she means to you.

[image: But...you are my world!]

Sometimes, a guy makes the mistake of thinking that if he tells his ex girlfriend how much he still loves her, it will make her change her mind about getting back together again.

Although that tends to work in Hollywood movies and TV sitcoms, it doesn't work on most women in real life.

Why?

When a woman has disconnected from her feelings for her ex boyfriend and he says something like, "I care so much about you. You mean the world to me. I don't want to imagine a future without you in it. Can't you see that we were meant to be together?" she's not going to care that he cares so much about her.

She might even be thinking, "So what? Who cares if you still love me? You hurt me. I don't care that you still have feelings for me. I'm moving on."

If a woman currently perceives her ex in a negative way, she won't be able to reconnect with the love in her heart until he actively makes her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

So, rather than waste a lot of time telling your ex girlfriend how much she means to you, focus instead on using every interaction you have with her (e.g. via text message, e-mail, social media, on a phone call or in person) as an opportunity to re-attract her and show her that you've moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too insecure and clingy, he needs to remain confident and self-assured when he interacts with her, regardless of how cold her attitude is towards him.

If she tests him by saying things like, "It's over between us. I'm seeing someone else now," or "It's so much fun being single. I've been partying every weekend with my friends," rather than react by getting upset or feeling threatened, the guy needs to remain calm and relaxed.

He might respond by saying, "That's good to hear. You deserve to have fun, especially after all the crap I put you through or I still care about you, but I'm glad that you are happy.

When she sees that he's no longer the same insecure, needy guy she broke up with, her defenses immediately begin to come down.

A woman will then realize that he's not desperately trying to get her back and often begin showing signs of interest, to see if he will react and become excited.

If he remains calm and doesn't act like he's just won the lottery now that she's showing interest, her respect and attraction for him grows stronger.

Even though she was previously turned off by him, she now begins to feel respect and attraction for the way he is behaving.

She begins to wonder, What just happened here? Why do I feel like I like him again all of a sudden? He's changed. I like the new him. Maybe we should hook up one last time to see how I feel.

Getting her to have feelings for you is what needs to happen to make it possible for your ex girlfriend to change her mind about you.

So, don't bother telling her how much you care about her, because it's not going to make her change her mind.

When you make her reconnect with her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she will find herself opening up to you again, even if she initially tries to fight it or hide it.

3. Thinking that you can win her back by being extra nice to her.

Often, the only way a guy can think of to make his ex realize what she's going to be losing out on if she doesn't change her mind about him, is to be extra nice to her (e.g. he does whatever she wants him to do, pays her bills, buys her expensive gifts, is available to her 24/7).

In his mind, he hopes that she will wake up one morning and think to herself, I've been such a fool to break up with my ex. Look how wonderful he is to me. I will never be able to find another guy who loves me like he does. He's always taking care of me, spoiling me and doing whatever I want. It must mean that he and I are meant to be together and then she comes running back into his arms.

Unfortunately, life is not a scripted romantic Hollywood movie, and in the real world, a woman who has lost respect and attraction for a guy will rarely change her mind about him just because he's being extra nice to her.

Naturally, there's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but when a guy is being so desperate to please her and she can see it, it might make her feel like she is too good for him.

If a woman feels more valuable than a man, she then can't look up to him and respect him, which makes him seem less attractive and appealing to her.

A woman doesn't want to be with a guy out of pity or guilt.

Instead, she wants to feel like she is lucky to be with him because other women would love to be with him too.

As you may know, nice guys who suck up to women and try to impress them are not in high demand.

The type of guy that women find most attractive is a good guy with balls.

This kind of guy treats women very well, but he doesn't suck up to them by putting on an extra nice guy act.

He is confident, emotionally masculine and can handle the challenges of life, but he's not arrogant or aggressive.

Men like that are very rare and when a woman finds one, she doesn't want to let go.

However, nice guys who suck up to women are the majority because most guys have no idea how to be a confident, emotionally masculine man that women can feel attracted to and look up to and respect.

Most guys in this world simply try to suck up to women to get a chance with them and women hate it. This applies to meeting new women, when in a relationship and when getting an ex back.

So, to get your ex girlfriend to change her mind about you, make sure that you're not being super nice to her to the point where you are sucking up to her.

Be a good guy, but don't let her push you around.

4. Thinking that he can win her back by doing whatever she claims that she needs (e.g. she asks him to give her a month of space because she "needs time," so he does it and hopes that it will work to get her back).

Sometimes, when a guy keeps calling up his ex and trying everything he can think of to get her back (e.g. begging and pleading, promising to change, offering to do whatever she wants him to do), a woman might then ask him for some space as a way of letting him down easy.

She might think to herself, "If I can just make him go away for a month or so, I will be able to move on with a new guy. In the meantime, hopefully he'll lose interest in getting me back, or he'll meet someone else and I won't have to put up with him hounding me anymore."

However, when the guy is desperate to get her back, he might take her request for a month of space as a sign that she's open to getting back together again.

He might think, "Maybe if she misses me during that month, she will change her mind about me and will be happy to have me back when I contact her after 30 days."

Yet, that's not how it works in almost all ex back cases. Why?

If a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, having more time apart from him is usually only going to make her forget about him even quicker.

In fact, while her ex is counting down the 30 days on his calendar, she will likely move on with her life and possibly even meet another guy and fall in love with him instead.

So, even if your ex is saying, "I need time apart to figure things out," or "I need some space to see if I still have feelings for you," you must have the confidence to persist and get her to meet up with you, so you can then re-attract her and get her to reconnect with her feelings for you.

The most space that you should give her (before contacting her and arranging a meet up) is 3 to 7 days.

Any more time than that is usually a complete waste of time because it gives her time to move on and forget about you.

To get her back quickly, you need to focus on triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you every time you interact with her from now on, (e.g. via text, social media, e-mail, over the phone or in person).

She will then start to wonder, â€œI know that I said I want some space, but I donâ€™t feel like I need that anymore. In fact, Iâ€™m beginning to miss my ex when I donâ€™t hear from him. Why am I feeling this way? Is it a sign that weâ€™re meant to be together? Maybe I should just catch up with him again and see how I feel.â€

From that moment on, all youâ€™ve got to do is to continue saying and doing the types of things that will attract her, as you confidently guide her back into a relationship with you.

Recycled Relationships

[image: Recycled relationships]

Unlike in the past, where a break up was considered permanent, these days couples get back together all the time.

In fact, according to an American study, the number of couples who get back together again after a break up is as high as 50%.

Of course, that number would be a lot higher if more guys used my advice, but that statistic should at least show you that it is possible.

You really can change her mind about you and get another chance with her.

So, if youâ€™re asking, â€œIs it possible to get my ex girlfriend to change her mind about me?â€ the answer is almost certainly, YES.

As long as you focus on making her reconnect with her feelings for you, getting her back becomes easy.

When you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, her guard comes down and she reconnects with some of her old feelings for you.

As the minutes go by while you and her talk, her feelings come back stronger than ever and she feels magnetically attracted to the new and improved you, even if she tries to hide it from you.

When that happens to her, she naturally changes her mind about you and the break up because she now feels good around you again.

To her, getting back together with you suddenly feels like the right thing to do and a good thing to do.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Want My Ex Girl Back, But She Isn't Interested

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The reason why she isn't interested is that you currently don't know how to make her experience the feelings needed to make her interested.

You can change that though.

Watch this video for some examples:

You can make her interested in getting back with you if you focus on re-attracting her, rather than trying to convince her to give you another chance.

If your ex girl is saying things like, "Please leave me alone, I'm just not interested in getting back together again," or "I just don't have feelings for you anymore," or "You need to accept that it's over between us," it simply means that the way you are interacting with her, talking to her, and the way you come across to her isn't triggering any desirable feelings inside of her (e.g. respect, attraction, love).

However, that doesn't mean that you can't start to trigger those feelings.

When you adjust the way that you interact with her from now on, she will naturally become more open the idea of getting back together with you.

For example: A guy might say to his ex girl, "I still love you. Please let's try and work things out. I really want us to work this out."

She might then respond by saying something like, "Forget it! I'm not interested in anything you have to say. It's over between you and I. Please just leave me alone. I don't feel the same way any more. You need to respect that."

In the past, his natural reaction might have been to get upset about it and make her feel pity for him, or he might have even lost his temper and gotten angry at her.

Yet, those ways of interacting with her is not going to re-spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him, and will simply turn her off even more.

So, if his ex girl says, "Forget it! I'm not interested in anything you have to say. We're finished," he can adjust his behavior by responding to her in a calm and relaxed manner, and confidently saying something like, "Okay, I accept your decision about us breaking up. I understand why you feel this way right now and that is fine. You are entitled to feel however you want and you obviously don't feel good with me any more. I'm not going to push you to get back with me. However, I do want you to know that I still care about you. I know that you probably don't care whether or not I care about you and love you, but I just want you to know that I'm not angry or upset and I accept your decision."

Basically, by calmly accepting her decision to stay broken up, while being confident enough to admit that he still cares for her, he's breaking the old pattern of communication between them (e.g. where she was rejecting him and he was reacting by getting upset or angry with her).

Based on his new approach, she gets to see him in a different, more positive light, rather than experiencing the same old guy that she broke up with.

He is now interacting with her in a way that shows her he has moved past the level he was at when she broke up with him.

This is attractive to her.

It triggers her feelings and she begins to feel drawn to him again.

That's what you need to be doing if you want your ex to be interested in getting back together with you again.

If she currently isn't interested, then what you've been saying and doing lately hasn't been making her have desirable feelings for you.

Without making her experience desirable feelings like respect and attraction, getting her back is going to be a difficult, if not impossible process because she's just going to keep on saying, I am not interested, until you change the way you think, talk, behave and react to her.

So, if you've tried to get your ex girl back and she keeps saying No, it could be because you are making some of the following mistakes:

1. Thinking that if you show her how much she means to you, it will make her change her mind.

[image: But...you are my world!]

If a woman doesn't have feelings for her ex, hearing him say something like, How can you not see how much I love you? Do you really think you could ever find another guy who will love you as much as I do? You are my world. I would die for you. I would do anything for you. Just give me another chance and I will prove to you that my love for you is unbreakable, isn't going to matter that much to her.

Basically, if a woman has lost respect and attraction for her guy, she won't really care that he still loves her.

To her, it's just a bunch of words that he is saying and it's not making her feel the kind of respect, attraction and love that would justify giving him another chance.

It might make her feel pity for him, but a relationship can't be based on pity. It has to be based on respect, attraction and love.

As the old saying goes, Actions speak louder than words.

So, to successfully convince her to give you another chance, you must make her experience the type of feelings she wants to experience when she's with you (e.g. respect, attraction, love), rather than going on and on about how much you care about her.

[image: Please...I will do anything!]

If you don't make her have feelings for you first, she's just going to keep saying, I am not interested, because she's not going to care that you care about her.

It just won't matter to her.

However, when you trigger some of her feelings for you and then build on that, telling her that you care will sound good to her.

Her walls will begin to come down and she will enjoy hearing you tell her that you love her.

It will feel good to her and make her want to be around you again, even though she was previously uninterested in getting back with you.

So, don't worry about telling your ex how much she means to you.

It's fine to tell her that you still love her, but just make sure that you are actively making her have feelings for you, otherwise she's not going to care about your feelings.

From now on, make sure that every time you interact with her, you make her experience the type of desirable feelings that will draw her to you and make her want to give you another chance.

When she feels more drawn to you than she ever has before because you are now making her feel attracted in new and exciting ways, the idea of getting back together again won't seem that impossible to her anymore.

She will feel as though it would be a fun, interesting experience to get back with you, or that her newfound feelings for you might be a sign that you and her are meant to be together.

2. Thinking that because you shared good times together it means that she won't want to lose you.

[image: Why doesn't she care about all the good times we shared?]

Another common mistake that some guys make when trying to convince an ex to get back together, is to try to get her to focus on all the good times they shared, in an attempt to re-spark her feelings of love again.

For example: A guy might say, "How can it be so easy for you to forget all the good times we had together? Sure we had some rough times, but don't all the good times make up for that? Besides, all couples have problems sometimes. Doesn't the love we shared mean anything to you any more? Was it all for nothing? Did I mean nothing to you all along? I believe that what we had together was special, and even if you say it's over between us, I just can't accept that. If you will just take a moment to remember how good it used to be between us, you will see that I'm right. We can't let our love die! you and I were meant to be together forever. What he had was special and shouldn't just be thrown away like this."

All of that sounds really nice, but it doesn't work if the woman's feelings for the guy are now disconnected.

A guy needs to first make his woman reconnect with her feelings before he tries to get the relationship back together, rather than telling her to reconnect with her feelings so they can get back together.

When a woman has closed herself off from feelings of love, respect and attraction for her ex and replaced those feelings with negative emotions such as anger, resentment and pain, it's not easy for her to feel good about how things used to be.

For example: She might think to herself, "Yes, you're right, we did have some good times. That's why it hurts so much now that things between us have gone bad. All I can think about is how badly you messed up, how badly you treated me and how you destroyed our relationship. I'm just over it now. I'm not interested in get back together again. I want space now so I can move on without you. I just don't think that we are meant to be together any more."

Essentially, by highlighting the good times and asking her to reconnect with her feelings because of that, the guy is also reminding her of how much heâs changed (in a negative way) from the guy she first fell in love with.

While he might have been a great guy in the past, she is unwilling to accept that he is any different now (even if he has changed a little bit) because heâs not doing anything to make her feel attracted to him again.

Unless you actively make your ex girl have feelings for you again, sheâs not going to change her mind based solely on how good things used to be between you and her in the past.

Thatâs just not how it works these days.

In the distant past (e.g. 100 to 200 years ago) a woman would stay with a man for life, regardless of how bad things got between them.

However, in todayâs world a woman can break up with her guy any time she wants to, if heâs not making her experience the types of feelings that she wants to feel in a relationship.

So, if you want your ex girl back, donât waste a lot of time trying to convince her that sheâll lose a good thing if you donât get back together again.

The main thing that will make your ex girl realize that your relationship is worth fighting for, is when you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you based on how you now interact with her.

However, without getting to her experience those feelings for you, sheâs likely going to keep on saying, âYes, what we had in the past was great, but itâs over now and Iâm just not interested in being with you anymore.

3. Thinking that she has the answers to your problem about not knowing how to attract her.

[image: Why won't you tell me what I need to change?]

When a woman breaks up with a man, he may feel shocked or even surprised about it.

He might then begin to wonder:

- What did I do wrong?
- Why has she suddenly stopped wanting to be my girlfriend (fianc  or wife)?
- Maybe if I ask her to explain what Iâve done to cause her to stop loving me, I can change and then we can get back together again.

Then, when he interacts with his ex girl he might ask her, âWhat do you want me to do to make you give me another chance? Just tell me what you want me to change and I promise that Iâll do it.

Yet, rather than convince his ex girl that heâs serious about fixing himself for her, it turns her off even more. Why?

A woman doesnât want to be a guyâs teacher in life about how to be a man.

She doesnât want to teach him how to be the kind of man who is attractive to her and that she can look up to and respect for life.

If her guy can't figure out what he needs to do to make her feel attracted, she will have to teach him now and possibly again and again in future.

Yet, by being his teacher, it causes her to take on a more dominant role (i.e. of being like his mother, big sister or teacher) in the relationship, which then causes her to lose touch with her feelings of sexual attraction for him.

So, if a guy makes the mistake of expecting his ex girl to give him the answers to how to be the kind of man she wants him to be, he's basically letting her know that he's unable to work it out by himself.

His actions are saying to her, I don't know how to be the kind of man that you need me to be. I am still trying to work out what it means to be a man, so you have been in a relationship with an immature guy all this time. I don't even know what behaviors of mine are turning you off and how I could change it. Please, just tell me what you want me to say and do and I will begin doing it.

Although he means well by being willing to grow up and be the man she needs, it's just not something that she wants to get involved in.

She wants him to understand what caused her to break up with him (e.g. he was too clingy, needy or insecure, he took her for granted, he stopped moving through the levels of life like a real man) and fix those things without her having to teach him.

Learning from his mistakes to quickly becoming a better man as a result, is attractive to her because that is what a real man does when he makes mistakes in life.

Lost guys go through life making mistakes and blaming the world for their problems, seeking pity from others or hiding away from the world behind their relationship with a woman.

A woman wants to be with a man who continually learns and grows into the real man that he is destined to be, rather than remaining stuck at a boyish level of maturity for life.

When you quickly transform by learning from your mistakes to become a better man, your ex girl will notice that when she interacts with you.

She will see it in how you talk, how you react to her and how you use your body language.

When that happens, her guard comes down and she becomes interested in getting back together with you.

However, when a lost guy expects a woman to hold his hand and guide him through the steps of being a man, she will likely keep saying to him, Look, I'm just not interested in getting back together with you. You need to deal with this on your own. You and I are finished. Leave me alone and give me the space I've asked for to move on. I don't feel the same way about you any more and I need you to accept that.

4. Thinking that you can make a woman want to stay with you by giving her reasons, rather than making her experience feelings.

[image: Why can't you see how much you mean to me?]

Sometimes, when a man doesn't know what else to do to get his woman back, he might try to convince her by giving her every random reason he can think of why they should be together.

For example: He might say to her, "All of our friends and family say we make such a great couple," or "If you break up with me now, I'll end up failing all my exams and flunking out of university" or "If you don't give me another chance, I'm not going to be able to concentrate at work and will probably end up losing my job. Please just stay with me and let's work this out."

In the case of a married couple, he might say, "I can't afford to pay the rent/mortgage all by myself," or "What about the children? How can we let them become another statistic of divorce? Why would you want to do that to our family?"

Yet, regardless of whether his arguments are valid or not, a modern woman doesn't have to stay with a guy out of a sense of duty, or because she feels guilty, or pity for him.

When a guy stops making a modern woman experience the types of feelings that are needed to keep a relationship together and she then decides to break up with him, then the main thing that will make her want to get back together with him is if he re-sparks those feelings in her.

It can't just be all about him getting to be with her because a woman doesn't want to feel like she's doing a guy a favor by being with him.

She wants to be with him because she loves him and because he is the kind of guy she can respect, feel attracted to and depend on.

Feelings Can Change and That is Good News For You

If you're saying, "I want my ex girl back but she isn't interested," you might feel like it's a hopeless situation and she will never have strong feelings for you again.

However, that's not the case all.

When a woman is saying, "I am not interested," it simply means that right now, the way you are talking to her and the way that you're interacting with her isn't triggering her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

The good news is that you really can change the way you're talking to her and interacting with her in a way reactivates her feelings and makes her feel interested in being with you again.

When you interact with her in ways that make her experience feelings of respect, attraction and love, everything changes.

Suddenly, she begins to think to herself, "Something has changed. I actually enjoy talking to my ex now, even though I wasn't interested in him before. It's fun being around him again," and she opens herself up to the idea of getting back together again.

From there, you simply need to continue saying and doing the types of things that make her feel attracted to you and confidently guide her back into a relationship with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Can I Do to Make My Ex Want to Get Back Together With Me Now?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're wondering, What can I do to make my ex want to get back together with me now? here is what really works!

Reactivate her feelings by interacting with her and letting her experience the new and improved you. For example: When you interact with her (e.g. via text, e-mail, on social media, on a phone call, or in person) make sure that what you are saying and doing is creating positive feelings of respect and attraction inside her.

If you're not interacting with her in ways that spark positive feelings of respect and attraction, she's most likely going to remain closed off to you and won't be willing to give you another chance.

From now on, ask yourself questions like these:

- Will this text message or e-mail that I'm about to send her make her smile, laugh and feel happy to hear from me, or will she feel annoyed and think something like, What does my ex want? Why doesn't he just leave me alone?
- Does she sound happy and excited to be talking to me over the phone, or is she saying things like, Look, I really have to go now. Please give me space like I asked you to do before or I'm really busy, I can't talk right now
- Does she now feel as though she can look up to me and respect me as a man, or is she feeling turned off because I'm displaying unattractive traits like self-doubt, insecurity, desperation or neediness?

Asking yourself those questions will keep you focused on what matters most, which is that you are actively making her feel respect and attraction for you during every interaction, so she opens herself up to the idea of getting back together again.

However, don't expect her to want to take you back just because you want her to or because you've changed and now feel so much better about yourself.

You have to make her feel like she is gaining something by getting back together with you, not like she is doing you a favor.

For example: She is gaining the experience of seeing what love and a relationship feels like when the problems are fixed and the couple gets to go back to how they felt in the beginning.

She's also gaining a better man who can now make her experience feelings that she couldn't experience with him before.

Impressing your ex to make her want to get back together with you now is not about putting on an act and pretending to be someone that you're not (e.g. suddenly wearing expensive suits or designer fashions, if you are normally a denim and t-shirt kind of guy).

In fact, if she gets the sense that you're hoping to impress her, it will actually make her feel turned off by your insecurity about your attractiveness to her.

To impress her, just relax and confidently allow her to experience the new and improved you when you interact with her.

Don't force it.

Just be the new, improved man that you now are whenever you interact with her.

This allows her to feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, which reactivates her feelings and makes her guard come down.

Once her feelings are reactivated and her guard is down, she will then become open to forgiving you and giving you another chance.

Changing the Way That You Interact With Her

[image: Changing the way that you interact with her]

Just because your ex is currently saying that she doesn't want to get back together with you, it doesn't mean that her emotions can't ever change.

When you begin to interact with her in a way that makes her feel good (e.g. making her smile, laugh and feel attracted to you again), she will naturally begin to drop her guard and be more willing to reconnect with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

However, if you continue behaving in ways that turn her off (e.g. being insecure, needy, desperate, always wanting to discuss the relationship), then getting her back is going to be very difficult because she's just going to continue saying things like, "I've already told you that I don't want to get back together with you. When are you going to face the fact that it's over between us? You need to just leave me alone and move on with your life. I don't feel the same way any more. When will you understand that?"

So, make sure that you change the way that you interact with her to ensure that she experiences a range of positive, desirable emotions (e.g. happiness, attraction, excitement, surprise, respect) when she interacts with you.

Focus on doing that so you can reactivate her feelings and then quickly guide her back into a relationship.

4 Mistakes That Slow the Ex Back Process Down

Here are some of the behaviors that turn a woman off when a guy is trying to get her back, which then slows the ex back process down or even brings it to a complete stop where the guy loses his chance with her.

1. Trying to get her back by promising to do anything that she wants.

[image: Being willing to do whatever she wants]

It's only natural that when a guy is trying to get his ex back, he might be feeling a little bit desperate to get her back before she fully moves on with another guy.

When a guy is in that panicked state, he might make the mistake of showing her that he would be willing to do anything to convince her to give him another chance.

He might say to her, “I know I messed up and I’m so sorry about it. Please give me another chance and I promise you I’ll do whatever it is you want me to do. I don’t care what it is I will do it. I will do anything you want if you just give me another chance with you. Please don’t leave me like this. I love you and you mean everything to me. Just tell me what you want and I will do it, I promise.”

In some instances, a guy might even promise to change things about himself that he doesn’t want to change just to please his ex.

For example: During the relationship, a woman might have said to her guy, “You’re always hanging out with your friends drinking and partying. I’m sick and tired of waiting around for you. If you don’t change, I’m going to break up with you.”

Then, in a desperate plea to show her how much he cares, he promises to never see his friends again and never party with anyone ever again.

He might say to her, “I get it! I didn’t listen to you when you told me I was spending too much time with my friends. I promise if you just give me another chance, I’ll spend more time with you. I don’t care about my friends. You are what matters to me. Please just give me another chance.”

From his point of view, he is giving her what she wanted all along, so he assumes that it should be enough to make her want to get back together.

Yet, that’s not how it works.

For example: If a woman is saying that a guy spends too much time drinking and partying with his friends, it could just be her way of saying that he is wasting his true potential as a man, and that she needs him to man up and be someone she can look up to and feel proud of.

She doesn’t mind that he has friends, but she is disappointed that she’s ended up with a guy who has no real ambition in life and is wasting so much time just hanging out with people who might not even be in his life 5 or 10 years from now.

So, if he promises to change the wrong things about himself (e.g. stop hanging out with his friends), she will feel as though he doesn’t understand what she really wants from him and it will turn her off even more.

Here’s what you need to get clear on!

If you want to make your ex want to get back together with you now, you need to be offering her what she really wants, not what you think she wants.

Rather than make any promises, focus instead on saying the types of things that will reactivate some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

For example: You can say something like, “I know I messed up. I now understand where I went wrong, and I’m truly sorry for hurting you. However, everyone makes mistakes sometimes in life and as long as they learn from those mistakes, they become a better person as a result. I’m not happy with what has happened between us, but I have learned from those mistakes and I’m a better man as a result. I don’t expect you to believe me right now, and that’s okay. I accept that you’ve broken up with me, but I want you to know that I am now making real progress with [insert whatever applies to you here. For example: Your career, a project, a business, an ambition you’ve always had] and am only spending a little bit of time with friends.”

You’re not asking her to take you back and are simply making her feel understood, which is a great way to start reactivating her feelings of respect for you again.

2. Asking her to explain her deeper reasons for the break up.

One of the most common reactions that guys have when they get broken up with is to ask for all the reasons why.

For example: A guy might ask his woman something like, “Why are you doing this to me? How could you break up with me when I love you so much? What is the reason for this?” or “Please tell me what I did wrong so that I can change it.”

In his mind, he is likely thinking, “I’ve messed things up, but if she tells me exactly what she wants me to fix and I do it, then everything should go back to the way it was and we won’t have to break up.”

Yet, that’s not how it works.

A woman doesn’t want to explain to a guy what he did wrong, because she doesn’t want to be his teacher in life about how to be a man.

If she has to explain to him what he has to do to make her happy and be the man she needs, it will mean that she needs to on a more dominant role in the relationship (e.g. like a mother to a son, or big sister to little brother), which will then cause her look down on him and lose her feelings of sexual attraction for him.

Think about it in this way!

If a woman takes on the role of being a man’s teacher, mother or big sister, she becomes the leader in the relationship.

She then feels like she has to hold his hand, guide him and even protect him from the difficult things in life, rather than being able to relax into his masculine direction and feel protected by him.

Taking on this dominant role causes her to stop feeling feminine in his presence, which then causes her feelings of sexual attraction to fade.

So, if you ask your ex to tell you what you did wrong and to teach you or explain to you how to be the kind of man she needs you to be, she will withdraw from you even more.

This is the main reason why it is so important for you to figure out what went wrong between you and your ex without seeking her help.

You need to take responsibility for the ex back process with her, rather than expecting her to take care of you and guide you back into a relationship with her.

When you take on the role of the man in the ex back process, she will naturally begin to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, which will bring her guard down.

She will begin to feel good about getting back with you because she likes the changes that she sees happening in you.

3. Seeming desperate by pleading with her.

[image: Seeming desperate by pleading with her]

When a guy is in love with his girlfriend (fiancée or wife) and she breaks up with him, he might make the mistake of pleading with her for forgiveness, to change her mind or to give him another chance.

Yet, a man pleading in a desperate way is a huge turn off for women.

It shows a woman that he doesn't have his life in balance and has been placing way too much importance on her, to the point where she has become the main part of his identity and sense of security in this world.

In other words, he's a needy guy. He needs her love and attention to feel good about himself in this world, which is a huge turn off for women.

A woman does want a man who wants her love and attention, but not a guy who needs it for his sense of identity and security.

A typical needy guy will often use every chance that he gets to interact with his ex (e.g. via text message, e-mail, on social media, on a phone call, in person) to plead with her for a second chance.

He might say something like, â€œPlease don't do this to me! I can't live without you. You mean everything to me. Please forgive me for what I did to you! I beg of you! please. I love you so much. Let me have one more chance. Without you I am nothing. You are my everything.â€

Sounds like something that should work, right?

After all, doesn't something like that always seem to happen in romantic Hollywood movies and sitcoms?

Of course, but in the real world, pleading and begging with a woman rarely works.

Unlike in the movies, women in the real world are not attracted to the emotional weakness in men (e.g. insecurity, lack of self-confidence, putting the woman in the more dominant position).

Women are instinctively attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity, being the dominant one in the relationship) and are turned off by the emotional weakness.

So, when a guy pleads and begs with a woman for her to give him another chance, she will naturally perceive him as being emotionally weak and it will turn her off even more.

By the way!

If you've already pleaded with your ex to make her change her mind about getting back together again, don't worry about it.

What happened in the past is over.

As long as you have learned from it, you simply have to now focus on being emotionally strong whenever you interact with your ex, so you can make her feel respect and attraction for you again.

Watch this video for more info!

4. Losing confidence in his ability to make her feel attracted.

When a guy tries everything that he can think of to convince his ex to get back together with him (e.g. begs, pleads, promises to change whatever she wants), and she keeps saying things like, â€œJust stop! I don't have feelings for you anymore and nothing you say and do is going to change my mind,â€ or â€œYou're not what I want in a guy anymore. Please move on,â€ he might begin to doubt himself as a man.

For example: A guy might start thinking, â€œI've tried everything to get her back and she keeps saying no. Maybe I'm just not attractive to her as a man now. Maybe I have to let her go. Maybe she has higher standards now that I just can't live up to.

He might then decide that his last hope is to go to the gym and get big muscles like the male models in magazines, or to get himself a new, expensive wardrobe of clothes to impress her and trigger her feelings of attraction for him again.

Yet, here's the thing!

The majority of women are more attracted to a man's ability to attract them emotionally, than they are to big muscles, looks or expensive clothes.

A woman's emotional attraction to a guy is mostly based on how he makes her feel when she's with him, not on the brand of shirt he is wearing or how big his muscles are.

Some women are very impressed by muscles, money and social status, but when it comes to relationships, the majority of women fall in love and stay in love with a guy based on how he makes her feel by the way he talks to her, behaves, thinks and takes action in life and around her.

When a woman is considering breaking up with a guy, she might ask herself questions like this:

- Does he make me feel like a real woman when I'm around him (e.g. feminine, girly, attracted), or does he make me feel emotionally more dominant than him because he is insecure, self-doubting and lacks confidence now?
- Is he someone that I can look up to and respect now and for the rest of my life, or is he someone who needs me to hold his hand and show him how to be a real man?
- Does he have the confidence to make me smile, laugh and enjoy being around him (especially when I test him by being cold and aloof towards him), or does he crumble at the first sign of resistance from me?

If a guy is mostly making her feel negative, undesirable emotions and she's not happy in the relationship, it's only a matter of time before she says, "I want to break up."

Likewise, when a guy is trying to get a woman back and is making her feel negative, undesirable emotions, she's going to be saying things like, "Sorry, I just don't feel the same way about you any more."

[image: You need to work this out yourself]

She won't explain to him what he needs to fix or how to fix it, so if he doesn't work out how to change and be the man she wants, she will just move on.

So, if your ex is currently saying, "I don't have feelings for you anymore," don't make the mistake of thinking that it's because you don't have big enough muscles, expensive enough clothes or handsome enough looks.

Your ability to attract your ex back is based mainly on how you make her feel when you interact with her.

When you start behaving in the types of ways that actively trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you again (e.g. by being confident around her, making her smile and laugh, making her feel feminine and sexy in your presence) it makes her defenses come down and she becomes more open to the idea of forgiving you and giving you another chance.

On the other hand, if you lose confidence in your ability to make her feel attracted, and possibly start thinking things like, "She said she doesn't want to get back together with me now. What if it's because she has met a guy who is better looking than I am? What if I'm not man enough for her? you will likely push her away even more because women are turned off by emotional weakness and insecurity.

If you want to make your ex want to get back together with you now, you must be confident.

You must be confident as you guide her back into a relationship with you.

You can do it.

Don't waste any more time doubting yourself. You can make her want you back now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Examples of How a Guy Got His Girlfriend Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 4 examples of how a guy got his girlfriend back after a break up...

1. He changed, let her experience the new and improved version of him in person and she then gave him another chance.

[image: Changing and improving to get her back]

For example: She broke up with him because he was insecure and was too needy of her attention. He quickly transformed to become emotionally independent and confident and she felt a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him and then gave him another chance.

2. He accepted the break up and then made her jealous by quickly dating a new woman. She then wanted him back.

[image: Making an ex jealous to get her back]

For example: She saw photos of him and the new woman on social media and it made her miss him and realize that she was losing a guy that was attractive and appealing to other women.

She sent him a text and he then got her on a phone call, had a chat, met up in person and got back with her.

Note: Hooking up with new women to make your ex jealous doesn't always work and is risky.

For example: If a woman has lost respect and attraction for her ex, then him dating another woman won't really bother her that much at all.

She usually won't care that he's moved on and will likely even think to herself, â€œAwesome! Iâ€™m glad that heâ€™s found someone else. Now I can move on with my life without worrying about him trying to get me back.â€

Another reason why trying to make a woman jealous is risky, is because if she finds out that the guy is only using it as a ploy to get her back, she will lose even more respect and attraction for him.

Then getting her back becomes even more difficult because she wants to get revenge to make him feel the way she did.

The best approach is to get an ex back in almost all situations, is by meeting up with her and making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you again.

When you do that, her guard comes down, she stops focusing so much on the negatives of your previous relationship together and she starts to look at you in a more positive light.

The next example of how a guy got his girlfriend back isâ€¦!

3. He gave her a week of space, contacted her to meet up, re-attracted her at the meet up and then agreed to take things slow.

[image: Getting her back by taking things slow]

In most cases, you don't have to give your ex any more than 3-7 days of space before you contact her to arrange a meet up.

When you meet up with her in person, you need to quickly apologize for your mistakes and then begin reactivating her feelings for you.

Some women are a lot easier to get back with right away than others, so if your ex is a more difficult woman to get back, make sure that you don't try to get her to commit to a relationship right away.

Instead, just tell her that you don't expect her to want a relationship with you and if she only wants to be friends, you are fine with that.

Of course, you're not just going to be her friend.

Watch this video to understand what you need to do insteadâ|

Don't just be a friend to her. Be attractive to her. Reactivate her feelings whenever you and her communicate or interact.

The next example of how a guy got his ex woman back isâ|

4. He met up with her, got her to forgive him, reactivated her feelings, hooked up with her sexually and then agreed to see each other again in a couple of days.

Not all ex back situations require you to hook up with the woman at the meet up.

Having sex usually applies to more younger relationships or relationships that didn't last very long.

However, if the couple is a bit more mature or had been engaged or married, a hook up doesn't have to happen at the first meet up.

Whatever applies to your case, you should at least try to get a goodbye hug and kiss when you end the meet up.

Having a hug and kiss breaks the physical barrier between you and her again and brings you back to how you used to behave around each other.

It feels good for both you and her, so don't hesitate to make that happen for the both of you.

Lead the way and guide her back into a relationship with you.

7 Mistakes That Reduce a Guy's Chances of Getting His Ex Back Quickly

[image: Ruining his chances of getting her back]

Some guys don't realize that the quickest and easiest way to get a girlfriend back is by actively making her have feelings for him again in person or at least on a phone call.

Not knowing what else to do, some guys make the following mistakes, which slows down the ex back process and may even cause the woman to completely lose interestâ|

1. Trying to teach her a lesson by not contacting her.

Some guys feel like they need to teach their ex a lesson by not contacting her for a few weeks, or even a few months.

A guy like this is secretly hoping that she really miss him and when she finally gets to hear from him, she will be excited and eager to get back together again.

Yet, hereâs the thingâ!

If a woman doesnât have feelings for her ex, sheâs not going to feel like itâs a big loss to her that heâs ignoring her, and she will usually just shrug it off and get on with dating other guys and having fun.

Ignoring an ex usually only works on women who are still in love with the guy or who can't find a decent replacement to move on with.

Yet, a lot of guys don't know that and because they also want to teach their woman a lesson for dumping them, they cut off all communication and hope that it makes her come crawling back

Then, after ignoring her for 30 or even 60 days, he calls her up, tries to get her to meet up with him and she says, âSorry, I have a new boyfriend now. I ask you to respect that and not interfere. You and I had our chance and now we're finished."

She might even add in, "Besides, you didn't even contact me. So, why are you so interested now? Can't find a new girlfriend? Well, that's your bad luck. I'm happy now, so leave me alone."

Based on all my experience helping guys to actually get a woman back after a serious break up, I've found that ignoring a woman only works if she is still in love with you, is having a hard time getting past the pain of the break up, or sheâs struggling to find a replacement guy.

If your ex is going to be fine without you, don't waste time ignoring her in the hopes that it teaches her a lesson and makes her come crawling back.

If you want to give her some space, 3 to 7 days is more than enough.

If you give her any more time than that, youâre just increasing the chances that she will completely get over you and move on.

So, just wait 3 to 7 days and then contact her so you can reactivate her feelings (e.g. respect, attraction and love) over the phone and in person.

When you reactivate her feelings, she then starts to wonder, *âWhatâs going on here? Why am I suddenly thinking about my ex all the time? Why does the idea of getting back together again sound good to me all of a sudden? Maybe I should meet up with him. I miss him, so maybe this is a sign that we're meant to be together.*â

In most cases, actively making her having feelings for you again works faster than ignoring her and hoping that she misses you.

2. Making her feel guilty for dumping him.

Sometimes, a guy might feel so hurt, betrayed and rejected after being dumped that tries to make his ex feel guilty for making him feel that way.

He might say something like, *âHow could you do this to me? Are you happy with what youâve done to me? I gave you everything I had and you just chewed me up and spat me out like I was nothing to you. How can you be so cold towards me after everything we had together? What we had was special and you're just throwing it awayâand that kills me. I haven't been able to eat or sleep properly since we broke up and I'm stuffing up at work now as well because I can't concentrate.*â

Although he is being honest about his feelings, trying to make her feel guilty for breaking up with him will rarely work to get her back for real.

It might make her feel some pity for him and communicate with him a little more, but his display of emotional weakness under pressure will make her lose even more respect and attraction for him.

If she does give him another chance because she is feeling guilty or selfish for dumping him, that feeling won't make her stay for long.

When she realizes that nothing about him has changed and he's only putting her on a guilt trip to keep her trapped in an unhappy relationship, she will simply dump him again.

Happy and long-lasting relationships are built on positive emotions such as respect, love, and attraction, which cause the couple to sincerely want to be together.

On the other hand, unhappy, short relationships are built on negative emotions such as guilt, pity and revenge.

So, if you really want to get your girlfriend back and build a happy, loving relationship with her, focus on making her feel happy and excited to be interacting with you again, rather than trying to make her feel guilty for making you feel so bad after the break up.

When you approach the ex back process in that way, getting your girlfriend back will not only be a lot easier, but you will also be giving both her and you an unforgettable gift, by creating a new, happier relationship that has been built on a solid foundation of respect, attraction and love.

3. Acting like he no longer cares about her.

Sometimes, the thought of being without his girlfriend can be so painful for a guy that he might try to hide his feelings by pretending not to care about her anymore.

For example: If he interacts with his ex and she says something like, âSorry, I don't want to get back together again. I just don't feel the same way any more,â he might then react by pretending not to care about her or the relationship.

He might say, âWell, that's fine by meâI don't love you any more either,â or âWhat makes you think I want to get back with you? I'm so over you now. My life is better without you in itâ or âI've already moved on with my life, so why would you think I want you back? Don't flatter yourself, I don't care about you anymoreâ or âWhat gives you the impression that I want you back? I'm doing fine without you. I have plenty of options with other women now, so don't worry about it.â

In his mind, he is hoping that by rejecting her it will trigger her fears of losing him, and she will then realize that she still loves him and come running back to him.

However, this tactic rarely (if ever) works.

If the woman is still in love with the guy, she will fear losing him and will want to get back together with him if she notices that he doesn't care about losing her.

However, if a woman doesn't have feelings for her ex, she won't care that he doesn't care about her or the relationship any more.

Her ego might feel a bit bruised at the idea that he has moved on from her, but if another guy comes along and triggers her feelings of attraction, she will soon forget all about her ex.

If her ex contacts her, she will then want to get revenge on him for making her feel unwanted and will say something like, âWhy are you calling me? I have a boyfriend now. You need to respect that. Stop contacting me.”

Creating that resentment, anger and motive for revenge isn't necessary when getting an ex back.

If you want to get your girlfriend (fiancée or wife back) you simply have to reactivate her feelings for you by behaving in ways that are attractive to her (e.g. being confident, charismatic, making her laugh) rather than trying to trick her into wanting you back temporarily by pretending that you don't care about her or the relationship any more.

Watch the video below for more info!

4. Crying, begging or pleading for another chance.

[image: Trying to stop a break up by begging]

Some guys can't handle the thought of being without their girlfriend, so they react by crying, begging and pleading with her to change her mind.

For example: A guy might plead with his ex by saying things like, “You can't let what we had together just die like this. I love you! Don't you get that? You mean everything to me. I'm nothing without you in my life! Please baby, I beg you! Don't do this to us. I'm so sorry for hurting you. Please give me another chance. I need you!”

Yet, here's the thing!

When a woman has already lost respect for a guy, seeing him cry, plead, beg and be emotionally weak in front of her only makes her look down on him even more.

Why?

Women are instinctively attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, self-belief, high self-esteem, the ability to cope with difficulties in his life), and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. lack of confidence, self-doubt, putting himself down, neediness, insecurity, an inability to handle difficult situations).

So, when a guy is crying, begging and pleading around a woman, rather than change her mind about getting back together with him, she will usually pull away even more from what she perceives to be an emotionally weak guy who still hasn't worked out what it means to be a man.

By the way!

If you've already tried begging and pleading with your ex, don't worry about it.

As long as you learn from the experience and focus on letting her see the emotional strength in you from this point onwards, she will be able to forgive your slip up.

Just focus on being an emotionally strong guy from now on whenever you interact with her.

Let her see that you are no longer the begging, pleading, crying guy that lost control of his emotions in a moment of immaturity.

5. Helping her financially.

Real love can't be bought.

Of course, some women will go out with a guy (or even marry him) for his money, but the majority of women are more attracted to a man's inner qualities than anything else he can offer.

For this reason, trying to get an ex girlfriend back by buying her gifts, or helping her financially (e.g. paying her rent, giving her money for groceries) is usually a bad idea.

Although she might smile and accept these tokens of love from her ex, a woman won't necessarily change her mind about being broken up just because he's being generous with her. Initially, she might even think to herself, "Well, why shouldn't he help me financially? After all, we used to split the bills 50/50 when we were together," or "He knows he messed up badly, so why not let him pay for a few things for a while to make up for his bad behavior?" Yet, making her think and feel that way only causes her to lose more respect and attraction for him, which makes her not want to get back with him.

So, rather than trying to help your ex financially in the hopes that it makes her see how much you care, simply focus on making her experience the types of feelings that will regain her respect and attraction for you as a man.

Watch this video for more info!

6. Asking her to help him change.

[image: You need to work this out yourself]

Asking an ex woman to help you change usually doesn't work to get her back, because a woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man.

When a guy says things like, "Please help me understand where I went wrong so that I can change exactly what you want. I can't give you what you want if I don't know what I'm doing wrong. Just tell me what you want me to change and I will do it. I promise. I will do anything you want, so just tell me what it is that you need me to change," he is effectively telling the woman that he has absolutely no idea how to be the man she needs and he will need her to teach him to grow up and become that man.

That's not what a woman wants.

If a woman has to teach her ex guy how to be the man that she needs, she fears that she will end up taking on the role of the man in the relationship (i.e. the dominant role) and he will then take on the role of the woman (i.e. the submissive role).

When the roles in a relationship get switched like that, the woman automatically stops feeling feminine and girly around her man, and she subsequently loses respect and her feelings of sexual attraction for him.

A woman doesn't want to dominate her man, and she doesn't want to feel like she has to take care of him because he can't figure things out by himself.

She wants him to figure out how to be the man that she needs, without her having to help him or guide him.

7. Over-contacting her to the point where he seems desperate.

After a break up, contact with an ex girlfriend can be very limited because she may be feeling angry towards the guy and will be avoiding his phone calls, or avoiding seeing him in person.

This is the main reason why a lot of guys panic about the possibility of losing her forever during this phase of the ex back process.

For example: A guy might begin thinking, "I know what they say about 'Out of sight, out of mind. What if she forgets all about me while I give her space? What if she meets another guy, has sex with him, falls in love with him and then I lose my chance to get her back?

Feeling panicked, he might then begin to repeatedly text her, send her messages on social media or e-mail her as a way to staying on her mind and hopefully stopping her from moving on.

Yet, here's the thing!

Via text, a woman cannot see a man's body language or hear the tone of his voice, so she has to guess at what his state of mind and behavior might be if he were talking to her in person at that moment.

If she is already feeling negatively towards her ex (e.g. because he was insecure, needy or desperate during the break up), how do you think she will react when he continually bombards her with texts, e-mails or messages?

Will she be thinking, "Aww, wow! how sweet! My ex obviously still cares about me. Maybe I'm being too hard on him. I think I'll give him a call now, say hi and suggest that we meet up because he obviously still cares about me. What a sweetie!" or might she be thinking, "Why is he being so needy and desperate like this? He contacts me multiple times a day! what is his problem? Doesn't he realize that we aren't together any more? I didn't know that he was going to be like this. Maybe I need to block him."

She then blocks him on her phone and social media and hopes that he gets the message.

He then panics and might even decide to turn up at her front door or workplace unannounced, in the hope that he can convince her to unblock him and give him another chance.

Yet, his neediness just turns her off even more because he clearly has feelings for her and he hasn't been doing ANYTHING to reactivate her feelings for him.

He's just bombarding her with messages because he doesn't know what else to do.

Of course, there's nothing wrong with texting, e-mailing or contacting your ex girlfriend via social media or text, as long as it's a quick message to get her on a phone call with you.

On the phone call, you need to actively make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and then arrange an in person meet up.

At the meet up, you can continue building on her feelings and then confidently guide her back into a relationship with you.

Getting Her Back Will Be Easier Than You Might Think

These days, most guys can get another chance with their woman within a few days to a few weeks, but they need to make sure that they approach the ex back process correctly.

Regardless of what you decide to do to get your ex back from this moment onwards, the most important thing to remember is that you need to ACTIVELY make her have feelings for you.

Don't expect her to come crawling back to you on her own because that approach only works if she still has a lot of feelings for you, can't find a replacement guy or can't deal with the pain of the break up.

The best way to get an ex back is to be active.

Actively make her have feelings for you when you interact with her and then confidently guide her back into a relationship with you.

Without reactivating her feelings first, a woman will usually just say, “Look, I just don’t have feelings for you anymore,” or “Please just accept that it’s over between us,” or “I don’t feel the same way as you do” because you’re not saying and doing the type of things that are making her old feelings of respect, attraction and love come back.

Remember: When you reactivate her feelings for you, her defenses come down and being back in your arms begins to sound like a really good idea to her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Best Day of the Week to Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Is there a best day of the week to get your ex back?

We have heard most success stories from guys based on meeting up with their ex woman on a Sunday.

Other days are fine, but Sundays are usually the day when a woman has the most free time and can meet up with her ex in person, or at least chat on the phone.

Of course, that depends on your woman and her specific schedule.

For instance, if your woman works throughout the weekend, but has a free day every Monday, then she will likely be more open to meeting up with you on that day, rather than when she is the busiest.

The second most popular day that I've heard of guys getting their woman back is on a Thursday.

Friday's tend to be a bad day because the woman doesn't want to seem too available on a day that most single friends catch up to go out and party, or to have a coffee or bite to eat together.

Reactivating Her Feelings is More Important Than Anything Else

[image: Re-activating her feelings]

The day of the week that you attempt to get your ex back isn't the most important piece of the puzzle.

What matters most is that you use every interaction that you have with her as an opportunity to reactivate her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

Once you have reactivated some of her feelings for you, her guard will come down and she will be more open to meeting up with you, regardless of the day of the week.

For example: A guy can actively reactivate some of his ex's feelings via e-mail, text message, social media or on the phone, by making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be interacting with him again.

Then, when he suggests a meet up, she will likely be a lot more open to seeing him again, because he has been making her feel good every time he has been in contact with her, rather than being one of those annoying ex's who always wants to discuss the relationship or who is continually seeking pity from her based on how bad he's been feeling since she dumped him.

It's very important that you focus on making her feel good when she interacts with you, so the idea of meeting up with you doesn't feel like it would be stressful or annoying.

If you approach the ex back process in that way, your ex will be less guarded and will be more open to hearing what you have to say and willing to meet up with you.

For example: If a guy invites his ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) to meet up with him for a quick coffee and it turns out that she's not available on the day he suggests, she will usually say something like, "That sounds nice, I would like that, but I can't make it on that day. I am *free on (whatever day she is free) if you want to meet up then.*â€œ

Most guys don't approach the ex back process in that way though and instead bombard their ex with texts, beg and plead for another chance or constantly ask her to explain her reasons why she broke up with him.

Then, when he asks for a meet up, she will usually make up an excuse like, *â€œI don't think it's a good idea. Maybe we should just stay away from each other for now because I don't feel ready to see you again.*â€œ

In other words, she is saying, "You have feelings for me, but I don't have any feelings for you, so I want to move on" because he hasn't first actively made her have any feelings for him yet.

He's just begging, pleading and trying to convince her to change her mind, which doesn't work on most women.

Watch this video for more infoâ€¦

If you truly want to get your ex back, you must focus on reactivating some of her positive feelings for you (e.g. respect, attraction and love) first, before you try to get her to reconsider her decision about the relationship.

Are You Letting Any of the Following Mistakes Stop You From Getting Her Back?

[image: Classic ex back mistakes]

Although getting an ex back can actually be a quick and easy for most guys, it gets a lot more difficult if a guy makes any of the following mistakesâ€¦

1. Only texting her and not getting on a phone call to arrange an in person meet up.

Many guys who come to me for help to get a woman back will say things like, *"I've tried everything to get my ex back, but she's being stubborn and won't give me another chance."*â€œ

When I ask some initial questions, I almost always find that he has only been texting his ex because he's too afraid of coming across as being pushy by calling her on the phone and asking her for a meet up.

[image: Hiding behind texts rather than calling her]

He has been hoping that by staying on her mind via text, she won't move on and will eventually contact him and let him know that she wants to meet up.

Yet, in most ex back cases, a woman doesn't text her ex and say, "I miss you. Call me. I want to meet up" because she doesn't want to make it easy for him.

As a man, you need to take responsibility for guiding both you and her back into a relationship.

Don't hide behind texts and hope that she makes all the moves.

Just because a woman replies to a text message, and may even sound sweet and friendly, it doesn't mean that she's not sitting at her desk/on her couch/in her car, rolling her eyes and thinking, â€œHow annoying! he keeps texting me. What does he want? Why does he keep sending me these pointless text messages? I wish he would just get to the point and realize that I'm not interested.â€

Here's the thingâ€

When a guy is not doing anything to reactivate her feelings for him, she's just going to be thinking about him based on how she felt when they broke up.

For example: If a guy was insecure, clingy or needy in his relationship with her, these are the exact things about him that she's going to remember and think about when he texts her.

So, if you truly want to get your ex back, don't waste a lot of time texting back and forth.

Simply pick up the phone and focus on reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

If she's not currently answering your calls (this is common for most ex back situations), just try to call and if she doesn't answer, text her this:

"Hey! I accept that we've broken up, but I just wanted to ask you something quick over the phone. Don't worry, it's not serious. I'll call you in 5 minutes."

Then, try to call her 5 minutes later.

If she doesn't answer, leave it for a day or two and then try to call her again.

If she doesn't answer, text her this:

If your ex is currently not answering your calls, here is an example of what you can text her to get her to talk to you on the phone.

You can say, "Hey Michelle – I tried calling you yesterday to ask you something quick, but I assume that you must have been busy. No problem. I might try to get hold of you some other time so I can ask you this question."

She might text you back asking, "What do you want to ask me?"

Then, just pick up the phone and call her. Don't text her, just call.

In most cases, a woman will be curious about what you wanted to ask her.

Of course, what you want to ask her is to meet up with you in person, but don't get straight into that.

Start off by using some humor to get her smiling and laughing and enjoying talking to you, so her guard comes down.

For example: "Oh, you finally answered. Nice! Getting through to you is harder than getting through to the president" and have a laugh with her about that.

From there, get her to meet up with you in person and reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you at the meet up, by showing her that you are now at a different level from where you were at when she broke up with you.

Whatever you do though, don't try to achieve all that via text!

Text does not work to get an ex back unless she has strong feelings for you and still respects you.

If your ex has been turned off by you and doesn't have enough or any feelings for you, then getting texts from you is going to feel very annoying to her and will turn her off even more.

Talking to her on the phone or in person is infinitely more effective than hiding behind texts or trying to show her that you've changed via text.

When she can hear the confidence and sincerity in your voice, her guard will come down and she will then become open to meeting up with you in person again.

The next mistake that guys make isâ€¦!

2. Thinking that if she doesn't want to meet up on a day that he suggests, it means that she doesn't want to meet up at all.

Imagine that a guy is texting his ex for the first time.

He might be feeling a bit anxious and may be wondering, â€œWhat if she just ignores me?â€œ or â€œWhat if she tells me to get lost and leave her alone?â€œ

Then, something amazing happensâ€¦!

She texts him back.

So, he sends her another text and she responds again.

By this stage he is likely feeling a lot more confident about interacting with her, so calls her up and asks, â€œSo, how about getting together for a cup of coffee sometime? How does Sunday afternoon sound to you?â€œ

She might then say, â€œIâ€™m sorry, but Iâ€™m really busy on Sunday. I just donâ€™t have time to catch up.â€œ

Yet, rather than him saying something like, â€œOkay, no problem. Iâ€™m going to be busy on Monday and Tuesday, but I have Wednesday and Thursday free at the moment. Which of those days would suit you better?â€œ he takes it as a sign that she doesn't want to meet up at all and quickly gives up.

He then goes back to texting her and hoping that she gives him a clear sign that she wants to meet up.

Yet, here's what he fails to realize: There are many reasons why a woman may say that she's not available on a specific day.

For example:

- She could be testing him to see how much he wants to see her. Will he give up at the first sign of resistance?
- She could be testing him to see if he will get angry at her. Will he get angry and accuse her of betraying him, treating him badly or sleeping with other guys and then begin to call her names over the phone? Does she have anything to fear by meet up with him?
- She could genuinely be busy and doesn't have the time for a meet up.
- She could be playing hard to get so she doesn't come across as being too desperate to see him again.
- He might not have sparked her feelings enough during their first conversation, so she's not interested in meeting up with him yet.
- She is going out with her single friends on that day and doesn't want to cancel the outing.
- She's not confident about how she looks lately and doesn't want to arrive at a meet up not looking her best.

Regardless of her reasons for not wanting to meet up with her ex on a particular day, a guy must remember to be flexible on when to meet.

It's not needy or desperate to make himself available at a time that she is, if he can make himself available at that time.

Being needy means that you would say, “Please meet up with me! I can't deal with life now that you're not a part of it for me. I need you. Please say yes and meet up with me. I need to see you."

As long as you're being confident and self-assured when you talk to your ex, being a little bit flexible doesn't have to mean that you're desperate or needy.

For example: When you call up your ex to ask her to meet up with you for a cup of coffee, and she says something like, "I don't know, I'm really busy at the moment," you can say, "No problem, we both have busy days every week and that's fine. I'm going to be busy on Friday and Saturday, but I have Monday and Tuesday open at the moment. Which of those days would suit you better?"

She might then suggest another day, and if you're not doing anything important on that day, it's not desperate to say, "Sure that day suits me as well. I can meet up with you at 7pm. How does that sound?"

Where many guys go wrong is by saying something like, "No problem. I have a job interview on that day, but I'll skip it so I can see you."

A guy like that might be thinking, "I'd better take whatever chance I have with her now, or she might change her mind about meeting up with me and then I won't be able to get her back because I wasn't available to see her when she asked. Also, when she sees that I'm even willing to cancel my important plans for her, she'll realize how much I really love her and then hopefully she'll be more willing to get back together again."

Women do want to feel appreciated, wanted and loved, but they don't want a guy to destroy his life just to see her once.

So, if a guy is letting his ex woman push him around and make him cancel plans to see her, she's usually not going to be thinking, "How sweet! He must really love me if he's so willing to cancel his important plans for me. Maybe I should give him another chance because he obviously cares for me."

Instead, she will begin remembering all the other times that he behaved in a desperate way in the hopes of impressing her.

Then, rather than reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for him, his desperation for her turns her off even more.

Here's the thing!

A woman needs to know that the guy she is with is someone she can look up to and respect now and in the long run.

Even though some manipulative women enjoy making insecure guys jump through hoops to see them, it doesn't actually make the woman feel respect and attraction for him.

She just uses his desperation as a way of making herself feel more valuable, so she is then more confident when she interacts with confident guys.

If she strings the insecure guy along, she will only do that until the moment she attracts a more confident guy.

She might be saying to the insecure ex, "Yes, I want to meet up with you, but not now. Give me a bit more time" and he might be thinking that he has a chance, but she will usually be actively trying to find a more confident guy to replace him with.

This is why you need to be persistent to get your ex to meet up with you in person (regardless of the day of the week), so you can actively make her have feelings for you again.

When her feelings for you are reactivated, she then loses interest in chasing other guys and wants to see you instead.

3. Thinking he needs to act like he is busy, or play hard to get when she contacts him or wants to meet up.

[image: Playing hard to get with an ex usually backfires]

Sometimes a woman will be ready to meet up with her ex because he has either reactivated her feelings, or she is missing him and wants to see him.

Yet, rather than just meet up with her, spark her feelings of respect and attraction for him some more and then guide her back into a relationship with him, he decides instead to play a bit hard to get.

A guy might do that for two reasons:

1. He wants to punish her a little bit for breaking up with him in the first place, so he re-attracts her and then plays hard to get when she wants to see him.
2. He wants to make himself appear valuable in her eyes so that she will feel very lucky to be getting him back.

However, that approach almost always backfires and he completely misses out on the opportunity to meet up with her and reactivate her feelings.

When a woman opens herself up to meeting her ex again because heâs created some feelings of respect and attraction inside her on a phone call, sheâs basically giving him a chance to show her that heâs moved past the level that he was at when she broke up with him.

If he suddenly begins to play hard to get, she might think, âIf he thinks that he can mess me around just because I agreed to see him one more time, he can think again. Itâs now really over between us. Heâs just blown any chance he might have had with meâ or, “Oh, really? You want to play hard to get do you? Two can play at that game. I will show him that I don’t need him by going out with my single girlfriends tonight and posting pics all over social media.”

So, if you truly want to get your ex back and have a happy, loving relationship with her, donât waste time playing games.

Instead, focus on reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you on a phone call or in person.

When you approach the ex back process in that way, things tend to flow more smoothly because she is feeling open to you and attracted to you now regardless of what day of the week it is.

If you want to play it safe, meet up with her on a Sunday or Thursday, when most women are more open to meeting up.

However, if you think that your ex would be cool to meet up on any day, go ahead and make that happen now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Contact My Ex to Get Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you are feeling stuck because you're unsure how to contact your ex to get her back, here is what you need to know...

Any type of contact like text, e-mail or social media message is fine, but it should be short and to the point.

The aim of sending her a short message is to get her on a phone call (not just chat as a friend), so you can then create a spark of attraction to reactivate some of her feelings for you.

Then, on that phone call, you need to get her to agree to meet up with you in person.

Don't waste time texting back and forth with her if you're not actually getting on a phone call to arrange a meet up.

Texting as a friend or texting about the relationship will not make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, so don't do it.

If you want to get her back, you must focus on reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you and that is best done on a phone call or in person.

If you don't want to meet up with her right now, then make sure that you only text her in a way that will get her smiling, laughing and feeling good to be interacting with you.

Try to avoid discussing the relationship via text and definitely do not ask for another chance via text because to increase your odds of getting her back, that has to be said in person.

In the meantime, here are the answers to some questions you might be asking right now about contacting your ex to get her back!

1. Should I Ignore Her For a Long Time to Make Her Miss Me?

No.

Some guys believe that by avoiding contact with an ex for a few weeks, and in some cases, even a few months, when they finally do get in touch with her she will be more open to the idea of getting back together again.

For example: A guy might think, "Right now my ex isn't opening up to me and isn't interested in giving me another chance. It seems that every time I contact her she's always going over my past mistakes and how much I hurt her. Maybe if I just stay away from her for a while, she will stop thinking about the negatives from relationship and will start missing me instead. Then, when I finally do contact her she will be more open to the idea of getting back together again."

Yet, that only works on women who can't move on or who are secretly hoping to get back with him.

In other words, if a woman can easily attract new guys or can easily move on without her ex, then she's not really going to care about the fact that she's not hearing from him anymore.

Likewise, if she has been saying things like, "Leave me alone," or "Just accept that it's really over between us," or "Please stop contacting me, I don't want you in my life anymore,â€œ then not hearing from him for a few weeks or months is going to seem like a blessing to her.

She will simply move on without him.

Yet, what about the kinds of women who do want their ex back, but need to see if he deserves it based on how much he has changed and how he now makes her feel?

With those types of women, a guy needs to actively get her back rather than ignoring her.

[image: I guess I should move on without him]

If he doesn't contact her, she will likely be thinking, â€œI guess my ex didn't really love me as much as I thought he did. He's obviously over me, so I guess I need to forget about him and move on with my life,â€œ and will then begin to disconnect from her feelings for her ex.

When her ex finally contacts her after 30 or 60 days and she tells him that she has a new boyfriend, he will likely ask himself, *â€œI thought ignoring her would make her miss me more! Why didn't it work? Why does she now have a new guy in her life rather than getting back together with me? I read on the internet that ignoring your ex is the best way to get her back. Why didn't it work for me???*â€œ

Here's the thing...

When a woman breaks up with a guy who she no longer feels enough or any respect or attraction for, she will usually move on if he doesn't quickly reactivate her feelings and then confidently guide her back into a relationship.

So, don't waste time ignoring her if what you really want to do is to get her back.

You have to use every opportunity you get to interact with her (e.g. via text, on social media, on a phone call, or in person) to reactivate her feelings for you.

By doing that, you plant a seed of hope in her mind that things really are different now.

She then starts to wonder, â€œWhy am I no longer feeling so angry with my ex? Why am I thinking about him all the time and even missing him? Something has changed here. I want to be around him more. Why am I feeling differently now? This must be a sign that we are meant to be together.â€œ

Then, all you need to do is build on her feelings in person and quickly guide her back into a relationship with you.

Don't waste time ignoring her. Get the job done now. Get her back.

2. If I Keep Apologizing, Will it Convince Her to Give Me Another Chance?

No.

Here's the thingâ€¦

It's only natural that if you've done something bad to cause your ex to feel angry or hurt, you are going to want to apologize to her.

There's absolutely nothing wrong with saying, â€œI'm sorryâ€œ to your ex if you messed up, but where some guys go wrong is by apologizing over and over again and taking the blame for everything that went wrong in the relationship.

For example: A guy might say, â€œIâ€™m so sorry for what happened. I know that what I did was inexcusable and I donâ€™t blame you for being mad at me, but please forgive me and give me another chance. I need you to forgive me because I canâ€™t bear the thought of you not loving me anymore. What can I say to make you forgive me and look at me the way you used to do? Please give me another chanceâ€ | *I promise Iâ€™ll make it up to you.*â€œ

A guy like that is hoping that by apologizing repeatedly, she will eventually accept that his remorse is genuine and will then be prepared to give him another chance.

Yet, in most cases this doesnâ€™t work. Why?

In most relationships, the real reason why a woman breaks up with a guy goes deeper than she might let on.

[image: Why is she really breaking up with me?]

For example: A woman might be tired of being with a guy who has no purpose or direction in his life and sits around watching TV or playing video games all day long.

So, when he says, *â€œPlease forgive me, I promise Iâ€™ll stop watching so much TV if you give me another chance,*â€œ heâ€™s simply highlighting to her that he still doesnâ€™t understand what she needs from him.

He doesnâ€™t realize that she didnâ€™t break up with him because of his TV or video playing habits, but rather that his lack of focus in his life made her lose respect and attraction for him as a man.

If he stops watching so much TV, heâ€™s still going to be the same lost guy that she dumped and he will just take up another pointless hobby to fill in time, rather than growing up and being a man of purpose who follows through on his biggest dreams and ambitions in life.

[image: She doesn't believe that he will change]

So, when a guy is apologizing repeatedly and making promises to change things that really donâ€™t matter to her, what heâ€™s actually doing is highlighting to her that he hasnâ€™t fully understood the seriousness of what went wrong between them.

She can see that if she gets back with him, heâ€™ll still be stuck at the same level that he was at when she broke up with him, which wonâ€™t impress her or make her want him back.

If you messed up in your relationship, you can start the process of regaining your exâ€™s respect by apologizing to her for your mistakes.

However, if you want to get her back after the apology, the most important thing you need to do is make her feel that you understand the real reasons that caused her to break up with you and have already begun to fix those things by taking a new direction in life.

Using the example mentioned earlier where a guy is lacking focus and direction in his life, a way for him to apologize that will spark some of her feelings of respect for him, is by saying something like, â€œIâ€™m sorry about what happened between us. I now see where I went wrong and understand why it was necessary for you to break up with me. I accept that, but I also want you to know that Iâ€™m not the same guy you broke up with any more. Naturally, youâ€™re probably not going to believe me right now and thatâ€™s okay. However, over time you will see for yourself that itâ€™s the truth because Iâ€™ve already started [insert whatever applies to you here e.g. a new course on management, a new job, exercising now that Iâ€™ve quit smoking, making progress with that project I *always wanted to work on]. In the meantime, I accept your decision to break up with me and don't expect you to want me back simply because I'm a better man now.*â€¢

From there, you need to use every interaction you have with her to continue building on that initial spark of respect and attraction she felt for you.

3. Should I Keep Texting Her to Stay On Her Mind?

No.

Contacting your ex for the first time via text message is a good way to get in touch with her, especially if she is currently not very open to the idea of talking to you on the phone or seeing you in person.

However, texting should only be used as a way of getting her on a phone call so that you can properly spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, and then arrange to see her in person.

The main thing to remember is that your goal is to get her back into a relationship with you not to be her new texting buddy while she quietly moves on without you.

A mistake that a lot of guys make is to focus too much on texting back and forth in the hopes that by doing that, they will stay on a woman's mind and she will then be more open to the idea of getting back together again.

For example: A guy like this might think, *â€¢I know that she doesn't want to get back together with me right now, but if I stay in touch with her and text her every day, she will have to realize how much I care for her. She will then want to get back together again because she will see that no guy can love her and care about her in the way that I do.*â€¢

Yet, here's the thing!

When a woman has broken up with a guy, most of her positive feelings about him (e.g. her respect, attraction and love) will be pushed into the background and replaced by more negative emotions (e.g. anger, pain, bitterness) as a way of moving on from the relationship.

So, imagine how a woman who is currently feeling all these negative emotions is going to perceive a text from her ex.

He contacts her with pointless texts like, "Hey, how are you doing today?" or "How was your day at work?" because he's trying to stay on her mind and seem like he is just being a nice, friendly ex who cares about her.

Will she think, *â€¢Oh wow, that's so sweet! My ex still cares about me so much that he wants to know how I'm doing every day. Wow! Maybe I was wrong about him! He's such a great guy!*â€¢ or will she be thinking, *â€¢Why does he keep sending me these pointless text messages all the time? Why can't he just move on with his life and leave me alone?*â€¢

If you guessed that she might perceive his texts in a negative way, you would be right.

Why? Nothing about that type of text will spark her feelings for him.

It's just boring small talk that doesn't make her smile, laugh or feeling attracted to him.

Plus, because she currently doesn't have feelings for him, she will almost always feel annoyed that she has to reply to him.

It will feel like a waste of time for her and she will wonder why he just doesn't leave her alone because she doesn't have feelings for him now.

In his mind, he will hope that the texts will make her think of him in a positive light because he is being so caring and thoughtful.

Yet, it rarely works that way when texting an ex who doesn't want to give the relationship another chance. Why?

Countless scientific studies have determined that up to 90% of all communication between two people is non-verbal.

Since she can't see your body language, hear the tone of your voice or experience your confidence via text, she will usually just assume you're the same guy that she broke up with.

You might feel confident when sending the text, but if you were insecure and emotionally sensitive near the end of the relationship and when she broke up with you, that is who she will be imagining.

This is why I always recommend that guys call their ex or, if she doesn't answer, use humor in a text or two to create a bit of a spark of attraction and then immediately transition to a phone call where he can then arrange to meet her in person.

What Are You Waiting For?

What is stopping you from contacting your ex right now?

Are you letting negative thoughts like, "I don't know how to contact my ex to get her back," or "What if I contact my ex and she tells me she's not interested?" stop you from getting in touch with her today?

Stop worrying about what might go wrong and start feeling excited about what might go right.

It doesn't matter how you initiate contact your ex (e.g. text, social media message, e-mail, in person) as long as you do it as quickly as possible.

Send her a text, a message via social media, or drop her a quick e-mail now so you can get her on a phone call with you as soon as possible.

Then, when you get her on the phone, you must reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you and then arrange to meet up in person.

When you meet up with her in person, you simply need to continue saying and doing the types of things that will reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you, and then guide her back into a relationship.

Guys from all over the world have done gotten women back after a serious break up and you can do it too.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Signs an Ex is Open to Reconciliation

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex is an easy woman to get back (e.g. because she still loves you, she can't deal with the pain of being without you or is unable to move on with someone new) she will give you signs that she's open to reconciliation.

For example: A woman who is open to reconciling might give her ex some of the following signs:

- Contact him without him contacting her, just to say Hi, Hi or to chat about random things.
- Tell him that she wants to be friends and still see each other.
- Talk about the good times they had together.
- Be willing to get together for a catch up.
- Regularly ask him if he's seeing any other women.
- Tell him that she misses him.
- Tell him that she's not interested in dating anyone else right now because she's still trying to get over the break up.

Of course, not all women are easy to get back, so you might not have been getting those signs from her.

For example: If your ex is an attractive, independent woman who can easily move on without you, she might not give you any signs because she doesn't want to make it easy for you to get her back.

So, what should you do if you aren't seeing any obvious signs that she wants to reconcile?

You need to be emotionally courageous enough to contact her and begin the ex back process now, rather than being weak and ignoring her because you don't want to give her any more power than she already has.

You contacting her doesn't give her power.

Instead, you are simply being a man about it and being the emotionally courageous one out of the two of you who is willing to face potential rejections from her along the way as you get her back into a relationship ASAP.

Wasting Time Looking For Clear Signs From Her

[image: Hopefully she will come running back if I ignore her]

Sometimes, a guy can waste a lot of time waiting for clear, obvious signs from his ex that she's open to reconciliation to the point where she ends up moving on because he gives her way too much space.

What you need to understand is that not all women give clear signals of interest when a guy is trying to get them back.

A woman can be open to the idea of getting back together with her ex, but at the same time, she might not want to seem too easy.

To avoid looking desperate or over-eager, she may even act completely uninterested when he contacts her.

For example: When a guy mentions getting together for a meet up, a woman might say something like, â€œHmmmâ€, I donâ€™t know. Maybe itâ€™s too late for us, â€œ or â€œIâ€™m not sure if thatâ€™s a good idea, â€œ and then wait to see if he is emotionally strong enough not to give up at the first sign of resistance from her.

Alternatively, if a woman is a little bit more open to the idea of meeting up with her ex, but still doesnâ€™t want to come across as being too eager, she might say something like, â€œOkay, maybe we can catch upâ€, but Iâ€™m too busy this week, â€œ or â€œMaybe I can catch up sometime later this week, but it will have to be quick. Iâ€™ll give you 10 minutes and then Iâ€™m leaving. â€œ

Regardless of the amount of interest that your ex is currently showing towards you, itâ€™s up to you to be emotionally strong enough to take the lead and reactivate her feelings for you.

If a guy isnâ€™t confident about how to get his ex woman back, he will often try to convince himself to just wait and hope that she contacts him and makes it obvious that she wants to reconcile.

For example: He might be saying, â€œIf I contact her and sheâ€™s not open to reconciliation, she will reject meâ€, and I canâ€™t handle that kind of feeling again. She already destroyed my confidence and happiness by dumping me and I just donâ€™t want to feel that way again, â€œ or â€œWhy should I bother trying to call my ex if sheâ€™s not even interested in getting back together again? Maybe itâ€™s better to wait for her to give me a sign that sheâ€™s interested and then Iâ€™ll make my move. â€œ

Yet, ignoring a woman and hoping that she does all the work to get the relationship back together rarely works.

Even if a woman is still in love with her ex, she might not make it clear to him and will wait for him to make the first move at reconciliation.

She wants to see what kind of man he is and whether or not he has the balls to get her back, regardless of how cold she is being towards him.

If he lacks the confidence to simply pick up the phone and arrange a meet up with her, itâ€™s unlikely that she will wait around forever in the hope that he grows the balls to make something happen.

If you want to get your ex back, you must be emotionally courageous enough to contact her and begin the ex back process, rather than waiting around for signs from her that itâ€™s okay to be contacting her.

[image: Getting your ex to have feelings for you again]

Remember: Women respond positively to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, determination, going after what he wants without giving up when things get difficult), and feel turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, self doubt, giving up when things get tough).

If You Wait Too Long, She Might Be Gone

Where some guys go wrong is that they wait way too long to get a sign from their ex that she wants to get back together again.

Before he knows it, she's moved on and is happy with someone else, or when he tries to contact her, she is completely over him and enjoying life as a single woman.

From the 100s of ex back cases I've worked on, I've found that some guys will waste weeks or even months waiting for signs that their ex is open to reconciliation.

He just waits and hopes because he doesn't know what else to do.

A guy like that is often hoping that his ex will somehow make it clear that she wants him back (e.g. text him and say, "I miss you. Want to catch up?") so he doesn't have to face the possibility of her rejecting him if he reaches out to her to initiate a reconciliation.

Yet, because he's so worried about being rejected by her and because he feels unworthy of her, he won't see the subtle hints that she is giving him as a sign that she's open to a reconciliation.

For example: A woman might say to her ex man, "I think we should be friends. We should stay in touch."

Rather than agree with her about being "friends" and then immediately organize a meet up where he can reactivate some of her feelings for him in person, he instead says, "Sure, lets be friends. Text me or call me if you want to say hi" and he then waits for her to contact him.

Even though she has given him an opening so he can actively get her back by being friends and staying in touch, he still waits for her to give him even more signs (e.g. ask him for a meet up, tell him that she still loves him and can't seem to move on) before he can believe that his ex is open to a reconciliation.

Then, when she doesn't hear from him for a long time, she might begin thinking, "Oh well! I guess he isn't interested in getting back together with me after all. It looks like it's really over between us," and will then likely move on and start having sex with other guys.

Here's what you need to get clear on!

It doesn't really matter if your ex is giving you signs that she's open to reconciliation or not.

What matters is whether or not you are actively making her have feelings for you again when you interact with her.

When you interact with her, either on a phone call or in person, you need to have the courage and ability to reactivate her feelings for you via the way you talk, behave and react to her.

Once you've re-sparked her feelings for you, the next step is to confidently guide her back into a relationship.

So! What's Happening?

[image: Can you get your ex girlfriend back via text?]

Another way that guys go wrong is by sending a woman too many "feeler texts" to see if she responds with signs of interest.

For example: A guy texts his ex something like, "So, what have you been up to? Are you seeing anyone else yet?" in the hopes that she will respond by saying, "No I'm not seeing anyone. I still miss you. Want to catch up?"

Alternatively, he might text, "Hey! I was thinking about you today because I remembered something we did together. Do you remember how we went to Dave's house party this time last year? That was a great night.

He's hoping that by reminding her of the good times they had together, she will realize how much she misses him and then possibly respond by texting him something like, Yeah I remember that. We really had some good times together as a couple didn't we? Do you think we should get back together again?

However, a woman will rarely come out and tell a guy that she wants to get back together with him via text unless she is really still desperately in love with him and can't get over the pain of breaking up, or she is unable to attract a better guy to replace him.

Here's what you need to remember about texting your ex!

Even when a woman says that she misses her ex via text, or asks him if he wants to get back together, it doesn't guarantee that it's a sign that she is open to reconciliation.

In some instances, it's simply a woman's way of checking to see how much her ex is missing her, and if he is unhappy without her.

So, don't waste a lot of time randomly texting your ex in the hopes that she'll give you a clear sign that she is open to getting back together again.

The point of sending any text to your ex should be to get her on a phone call, where you can actively reactivate some of her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

When talking to her on the phone, you can make her smile, laugh and feel happy to be talking to you again.

From there, you then need to arrange a time to meet up with her where you can continue to reactivate her feelings, by saying and doing the types of things that are going to make her feel respect and attraction for you again.

An Example Of How to Reactivate Her Feelings For You

[image: An example of how to reactivate some of her feelings for you]

Rather than wait to get a sign from your ex to let you know whether she's open to reconciliation, you can pick up the phone and start the ex back process right away.

Imagine that you're calling your ex up to ask her to meet up with you for a cup of coffee to say hello and have a chat in person.

You can either use that phone conversation to spark some feelings of attraction and desire in her, or you can leave her feeling like she had a talk with a friend, a brother or an ex that she no longer has any romantic feelings for.

For example: When you call her up, you can say something like, Hi Caroline, I just called to see if it would be okay to meet up for some coffee sometime. There's something I want to talk to you about.

Obviously, that's not going to leave her feeling attracted, feeling happy to be talking to you and feeling excited about the idea of seeing you in person.

On the other hand, you can say something like, Hey Caroline, I was driving past this little Italian pizza place. Today and I instantly thought of you.

She will likely then ask, “Why?” and you can reply by saying something like, “Well, I was just remembering how good you looked that time you ate pizza and had cheese all over your face. You were a total mess that night.”

At this point, she will probably be laughing and feeling a little self-conscious.

You can then say, “Anyway, so I thought I’d give you a call to say hi as a friend. How’ve you been?”

Then, have a bit of a chat with her and add in some more humor to lighten the mood.

By talking to her in that way, she will be impressed to see that you’re confident enough to joke with her, even though you and her are now broken up.

After a bit more laughter and easy-going conversation, just say, “Anyway, so we should catch up and say hi sometime this week. Of course, it’s just as friends, so it doesn’t have to be anything serious. We can catch up to say hi for a quick coffee, but no pizza though because I don’t want to see a repeat of that Mozzarella moustache you had that night.”

She will most likely be laughing, smiling and enjoying the conversation with you because she can sense that you’re being easy-going and are not pressuring her to do anything.

She will also notice that there’s a little bit of teasing and flirting going on, which will be exciting to her and make her wonder, “What’s going on here? I really like talking to my ex now. It’s fun. Maybe it’s not such a bad idea to get together for a bite to eat, or a coffee, and see where things go from there.”

After helping 100s of guys to get women back, I’ve found that when you make an ex smile and laugh when you’re interacting with her, she won’t be able to stop herself from enjoying talking to you again.

When that happens, most or all of her negative, angry feelings she still has about you begin to fade away.

Her guard comes down and she becomes open to meeting up with you and seeing where it goes.

Make Your Move

[image: Actively re-attract her and get her back]

When a woman wants to reconcile with her ex boyfriend, fiancé, or husband she may or may not give him obvious signs to let him know.

You should not wait around forever hoping that your ex is one of those easy women who give clear signals.

Most women want a guy to have the courage and ability to reactivate her feelings and confidently guide her back into a relationship, regardless of whether she’s being open and obvious about her interest in a reconciliation or not.

If a woman realizes that her ex is too insecure or self-doubting to call her up and start the ex back process, she will likely just move on with a more confident man.

So, if you are serious about getting your ex back, you have to make a move right away rather than worrying about being rejected by her or failing the ex back process.

Even when an ex is saying, “Leave me alone. I don’t ever want to see you again,” it’s almost always still possible for a guy to get her back when he reactivates her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him.

When you reactivate your ex’s feelings for you (e.g. by making some adjustments to your behavior and the way you are talking to her and interacting with her) she will open up to the idea of getting back together again, even if she was previously sure about being broken up with you.

Her feelings of respect, attraction and love become flooding back and she becomes open to reconciliation.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Say to Get Her Back After Taking Her For Granted

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you are wondering what to say to get your woman back after taking her for granted, here is what you need to do...

Tell her that you're sorry, that everyone makes mistakes and you regret that she had to be the one to teach you a lesson.

Let her know that you don't expect her to get back with you, but that you still love her.

[image: Getting an ex back after taking her for granted]

Once you've done that, don't waste any more time dwelling on past mistakes (e.g. by constantly putting yourself down, letting your ex get away with complaining about how you treated her) to hopefully gain pity from her.

Instead, just show her that you now understand where you went wrong, while at the same time explaining to her that it's okay for a guy to slip up in a relationship, as long as he learns from it and becomes a better man as a result.

Make sure that you tell her, "I'm not expecting you to agree with that or take me back because it's okay for a guy to make mistakes and then become a better man. I'm just saying that it happens, that it's common and that I'm sorry that you had to be the one to teach me a harsh lesson by dumping me for taking you for granted."

Tell Her on a Phone Call or in Person, Not Via Text

[image: Mistakes to avoid when texting your ex after breaking up]

Pretty much every man that I've helped to get a woman back has made the mistake of trying to apologize, explain and reason with his ex woman via text.

Believe me, it doesn't work.

Text is the worst way to explain to her that you're sorry and to let her sense the changes in you.

She has to hear the tone of your voice and how you come across on a phone call or in person to be able to sense the real changes that you have made.

If she currently hates you, despises you or thinks negatively of you and doesn't believe that you have changed, you will not be able to change her mind via text.

She has to hear it on a phone call or see it by talking to you in person.

So, the next time you interact with your ex on a phone call or in person, start by saying something like, "Hey, I just want you to know that I now understand where I went wrong when we were together. I really did take you for granted and made you feel like you were not very important to me. Of course, you were important to me, but I can now see how my behavior could have made you think that I didn't care about you. I get that now, and even though I can't take back the things I did that caused you pain, I can show you from this point forward that I accept responsibility for my actions and I am a better and stronger man now because of everything that happened between us. I also understand that it's probably difficult for you to believe me right now, and you most likely don't even want to consider giving me another chance and that's okay. I accept that.

By saying something like that to her, it takes away her need to continually hold your past mistakes against you.

Basically, what you're telling her is, Yes, I messed up and I understand that now. I know what I did wrong and I've made the effort to change and become a better man because of it.

You're not asking her to take you back though.

This is really important.

Don't ask her to reconsider the relationship and give you another chance at this point.

[image: I want her to give the relationship another chance, but she's just not listening to me any more.]

Don't put any pressure on her to change her mind about breaking up with you.

Simply make her feel heard and understood.

From there, every time you interact with her (e.g. via text message, on a phone call or in person) you've got to focus on saying and doing the types of things that will rebuild her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, so that she can begin to trust you and open up to you.

Say What She Needs to Hear, Not What You Think She Might Want to Hear

[image: Please forgive me!]

When a woman breaks up with a guy who took her for granted, she will have usually allowed negative emotions such as anger, resentment, disillusionment and disappointment, to push her positive emotions for him (e.g. respect, attraction and love) into the background.

From her perspective, she once loved him and felt so much for him, but now all she feels are negative emotions that make her want to stay away from him.

Depending on how the guy approaches the ex back process, he will either turn her off even more or, if he does it correctly, actively rebuild her trust and respark her feelings of respect, attraction and love.

[image: I took her for granted and she won't give me another chance!!!]

For example: Some guys feel so desperate to get their ex back that they seem to be willing to say or do almost anything she wants to just get another chance with her.

Yet, while that might get a woman back temporarily, it doesn't work to keep the relationship together because women are not attracted to desperation in men.

3 Common Mistakes That Guys Make When Trying to Get a Woman Back After Taking Her For Granted

If you want to get your ex back after taking her for granted, try to avoid making the following mistakes.

If you've already made these mistakes â€¦ don't worry, you can recover from it by doing the right things from now on.

Here are the 3 mistakes that a lot of guys makeâ€¦

1. He goes overboard to show her how much he cares and ends up behaving in a desperate way.

[image: Trying to win her back with gifts]

Naturally, being broken up with because a guy took his woman for granted is going to leave him feeling upset, rejected and annoyed with himself.

He might even be thinking things like, â€œYou've ruined the best relationship of your life with the most amazing woman you've ever met! You're such an idiot! How could you let a good woman like her down? What got into you? How could you have treated her so badly. You have to show her that you truly care about her now. Be the absolute best boyfriend (or husband) that ever walked the face of the Earth. Show her how much you care!â€

He might then go completely overboard (e.g. buying her expensive gifts, showering her with attention, offering to run errands for her or pay for things) and he might even resort to begging and pleading with her, or apologizing excessively, in an attempt to show her how sorry he is and how much he cares for her.

For example: He might buy her an expensive gift and then when he gives it to her, say something like, â€œI know I took you for granted, but I'm willing to do anything you want me to do to show you how much I regret hurting you, and to prove my love for you. I can't go on without you in my life. I just want you to forgive me and let me show you that I've changed. I promise that I'll never treat you like that again if you give me another chance.â€

However, when a guy behaves in a desperate way (e.g. runs around after his ex and begs or pleads for forgiveness or attention from her) it actually makes the woman lose even more respect and attraction for him, because women are turned off by emotional weakness in men.

Women are instinctively more attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, determination, the ability to face his problems head on in a confident, calm and controlled manner) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. neediness, handing all his power over to the woman, becoming an emotional wreck when going through challenging times in life).

So, when a guy goes overboard by begging, pleading, apologizing and generally doing whatever his ex wants in order for her to give him a second chance, she will perceive him as being emotionally weak and that will cause her to lose respect and attraction for him even more.

How about you?

Have you been behaving in desperate ways around your ex?

If you have, don't worry about it.

It's not the end of the world. You can fix it by simply changing the way that you interact with her from now on.

When you adjust how you're talking to her in a way that sparks some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, everything begins to change.

For example: Rather than buying her lots of expensive gifts that she doesn't really want or need, or saying that youâll do anything if she gives you another chance, you simply need to think, talk, behave, take action and react to her in an attractive way from now on.

Be confident, funny and charming, rather than being insecure, serious and annoying to her.

Be a man that she can look up to and respect, rather than being someone who needs her approval or is an emotional wreck without her and needs her support.

When you focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you based on the changes you've made, the process of getting her back becomes easier because she is feeling open to you.

She's no longer thinking, âI canât forgive him for taking me for granted. I just donât trust him anymore,â because she is now seeing you in a different (and more positive) light.

The next mistake that guys often make after being dumped for taking a woman for granted is thatâ!

2. He pours his heart out to her.

When a guy loses the woman that he loves because he took her for granted, he might decide that the only way to make her see how sorry he is, and to convince her that he will treat her better if she gives him another chance, is by repeatedly telling her how much she means to him.

For example: He might say things like, âI want you to know that you mean more to me than anyone else in my life. Without you my life would be meaningless. I know that I messed up before, but I would rather die than hurt you like that again. I just lost my way during our relationship, but if you give me another chance I will treat you like a princess for the rest of my life. You can ask for anything and I will do it for you. Just give me one more chance and Iâll show you that Iâm a changed man. You mean everything to me and I don't care about anything unless I have you.â

Yet, here's the thingâ!

A woman doesnât care that a guy is pouring his heart out to her if she doesnât have feelings for him anymore.

Even though heâs trying to make her see that heâs a changed man, sheâs usually just going to say something like, âLook, I trusted you and you let me down. I loved you and I was a good girlfriend (fianc   or wife) and you just took me for granted for way too long. I know that youâre sorry about it now, but itâs just too little too late. Itâs over between us.â

If you want to get your ex back, donât waste your time pouring your heart out to her before making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you first.

If sheâs not feeling enough respect and attraction for you right now, pouring your heart out (i.e. talking about your feelings) just isn't going to matter to her.

When you re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she wonât be able to stop herself from letting her guard down, even just a little bit.

She will start to think, âI know he took me for granted, but it's trueâeveryone makes mistakes in relationships. He really seems to be sorry about it now and I can see that he means it. Maybe if I give him another chance things will be different between us this time.â

Important: From all of my experience helping men to get women back, I've found that a woman will only begin to feel that way if the guy actively rebuilds her feelings of respect and attraction first, before asking for a relationship.

If you just pour your heart out to her and ask for another chance, sheâs probably not going to care about your “feelings” because she doesn’t have enough feelings for you.

3. He sends her long texts, e-mails or letters explaining what he has learned and how things would be different if she’d just give him another chance.

The shock of getting dumped after taking their woman for granted is usually motivation enough for most guys to change their behavior for real.

In cases like this, a guy will know that heâs learned his lesson and that things will be different between him and his woman if she just gives him another chance.

He might then send her a long text message, e-mail or letter explaining that heâs figured out where he went wrong and ask her to give him another chance.

For example: He might write something like, âI know I took you for granted because I didnât spend enough time with you and I didnât help out with the chores around the house. I see that now and Iâve really changed. If you give me one more chance, I promise that things will be different.â

Yet hereâs the thing thoughâ!

If he has turned her off and ruined her feelings of trust for him, sheâs probably not going to believe him.

She will likely be thinking, âThatâs what you say now, but you told me you would change many times before we broke up and always went back to behaving in the same ways. Why should I believe that this time things would really be different? I just donât trust you anymore. My heart wants to be with you, but my mind is telling me to leave you.â

Texting her or e-mailing her your explanations is the worst way to try to get her back, so just don’t do it.

If you’ve already been messaging her and e-mailing her to try to convince her to give you another chance, just stop it now and only communicate with her if it’s on a phone call or in person.

Here’s whyâ!

When a woman canât see a guyâs body language, hear the tonality of his voice, or judge his actions and behavior in person or on a phone, she only has her past experiences with him to judge him on.

He might have sent her a perfectly crafted text that took him a long time to come up with, but the text, social media message or e-mail are just empty words on a screen to her.

She can’t know for sure if he is for real this time.

If the guy often said things like, âIâve changed. I promise I wonât do that again,â and then fell back into the habit of doing the same things again, she will expect that it will keep happening.

Even if he has sincerely learned from his mistakes and has now changed, she wonât believe him if he tells her that in a text, e-mail or letter.

As the old saying goes, âSeeing is believing.â

This is part of the reason why I have videos on this page, so you can watch and listen to me, rather than only have words on a screen from a faceless teacher.

By watching my free, helpful videos, you get to see that I am for real.

You can see that I really am here to help you and that I have a lot of knowledge and experience helping men to get women back.

So, if you want to convince your woman that you've really changed, don't waste a lot of time writing to her, texting her or messaging her and hoping that the way you type your words will make all the difference to her.

You have to get her on a phone call and then meet up with her in person, so that she can hear, see and experience the new you for herself.

Only send her a quick text or e-mail, as a way to get her on a phone call, where you can then actively make her laugh, smile and feel good to be interacting with you again.

From there, get her to meet up with you in person and actively work on rebuilding her feelings and trust via the way you talk, think, behave, react to what she says and does.

When she begins to trust you again, her guard will naturally come down and you can then quickly guide her back into a relationship.

Getting Her Back

[image: She doesn't believe that I have changed]

Right now, your ex might be saying things like, "I can't forgive you for the way you treated me," or "It's just too late. You messed things up and I'm not going to put myself through that again."

Yet, that doesn't mean her feelings for you will never change.

Think about it this way:

When she first met you, her feelings for you were neutral. In her eyes, you were just another random guy that she had no feelings for.

Then, over time, your actions and behavior made her feel attracted to you and she gradually fell in love with you.

That was the first time her feelings about you changed. She went from nothing and neutral to attracted and in love.

Yet, when your behavior and actions changed during the relationship (e.g. you began to take her for granted), she stopped feeling enough respect, attraction and love for you to want to stay in the relationship.

Her feelings then changed.

A woman can literally go from feeling nothing for you to loving you, to falling out of love with you and then back in love with you again when you trigger the right emotions inside of her.

Remember: Mistakes in relationships do happen.

What you did wasn't good, but it's not something that you should beat yourself up over for life.

You are a better man now because you've learned from your mistakes.

Yes, you took your woman for granted, and yes, she broke up with you because of that.

However, thatâs not what defines you as a man.

The main thing to focus on now is that you have learned from your past mistakes and are now a better man because of it.

In summary, what to say to get her back after taking her for granted is thisâ

1. Apologize for what you did (as mentioned in the example at the start of the article).
2. Begin to rebuild her feelings of trust, respect, attraction, and love over the next 2-3 interactions (via your actions, behavior and thinking) in person or on a phone call.

Her guard will then come down and you can quickly guide her back into a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Girlfriend Feels Pressured to Be With Me Again

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex girlfriend is feeling pressured to be with you again, you need to stop trying to convince her to give you another chance, and start making her feel happy and attracted around you.

She will stop feeling pressured if she begins to feel like getting back with you will be a good thing for her, rather than just being a good thing for you.

To make that change happen you need to begin triggering feelings of respect, attraction, and love, rather than trying to get her to understand how much you care, how much you need her, or how it's such a waste to throw away your relationship together.

A Woman Doesn't Want to Feel Forced to Be in a Relationship

[image: Pressuring an ex to get back with you]

The more needy, urgent pressure that a guy applies to a woman to force her to get back together, the less respect and attraction she feels and the more she wants to get away from him.

Women don't want to feel like they are being forced to be in a relationship, but instead they want to follow their heart based on the positive, desirable feelings they experience.

To make her feel positive, desirable emotions, you have to stop saying and doing the types of things that were turning her off in the past, or that have been turning her off since you broke up (e.g. begging and pleading with her for another chance, telling her that your life is over without her, telling her to remember how good you were together as a couple in the early part of the relationship), and start saying and doing the types of things that are going to trigger her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again.

For example: A guy might be in the habit of texting or calling up his ex and saying things like, â€œPlease don't be so stubborn. Why won't you give us another chance? What we had before is too special to just throw away like this. You're being unreasonable. I said I was sorry. Why don't you believe me and give me a chance? You know that I can't live without you. Please babe, just give me a chance to show you that I can change.â€

With that type of approach, she's naturally going to feel that he's pressuring her into being with him again even when she doesn't really want to.

Instead of trying to make your ex girlfriend feel guilty or pressured to be with you again, you need to make her feel like she'll be losing out if she doesn't get back with you.

How do you do that?

Start the ex back process by making sure that every time you interact with her, you trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you via the way you are talking to her and interacting with her.

For example: If you've been pleading with her, convincing her how special your love is, and generally behaving in a needy and insecure way around her, you need to focus on making her feel understood (i.e. you realize why she broke up with you, have already begun to change those things, but are not expecting her to get back with you just because you know understand), as well as on making her smile, laugh and feel good to be talking to you.

When you are talking to her on the phone, or in person, and she says something like, “I’m not sure what I want. Why do you keep pressuring me?” the old you might want to tell her, “It’s because I love you so much. I am willing to fight for what we had. What we had was special and I don’t want to lose you. Please just open your eyes and see that. I’m willing to do whatever it takes.”

However, saying that isn’t going to change how she’s feeling right now and it’s not going to make her smile, laugh or feel happy to be talking to you.

[image: Pressuring an ex to get back with you]

It’s also not going to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Every interaction you have with your ex girlfriend from now on needs to be used as an opportunity to make her smile, laugh, feel happy and feel new feelings of respect and attraction.

Don’t keep saying and doing the same old things that have been turning her off.

Change your approach.

When she says, “I’m not sure what I want. Why do you keep pressuring me?” a good way to respond would be to say something like, “I know that I’ve been pressuring you a bit lately and I now understand that it’s not cool to do that. I understand how you feel and I don’t want you to just give me another chance because I’m pressuring you into it. I want you back because you love me and because it now feels good for us to be together.”

She will then thank you for your understanding and you can then switch to making her smile and laugh by jokingly saying, “But, the main reason why I’ve been pressuring you to give me another chance is because I’d feel sorry for any other guy who would have to put up with you—especially your horrible cooking.”

She will then laugh and you can say, “Only kidding. You are the best cook I know—but, then again, I don’t know many cooks, so you’re probably still pretty bad at it. No, just kidding—your cooking is awesome.”

Again, she will most likely laugh and you can say, “Well, I tell you what—if you’re feeling up for it sometime soon, maybe you can cook me one of your delicious lasagnas. No pressure though” and then laugh with her about that.

In this way, you are making her feel understood and you are also taking the pressure off her to get back together with you again.

Then, by making a small joke about her cooking, you get her smiling and laughing, which makes her enjoy talking to you rather than looking for ways to end the conversation as quickly as possible.

When you interact with her in ways that trigger the positive feelings in her (e.g. respect, attraction, love) everything changes.

She can’t stop herself from actually looking forward to talking to you again.

She might even begin thinking, “I wonder what quirky thing he’s going to say next,” and she starts to look forward to interacting with you via text, on the phone and in person, even though she previously felt pressured to do so.

She feels drawn to you in a positive way and wants to interact with you, rather than feeling like you are forcing her to interact with you.

However, if you don't focus on first triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, she will just keep saying things like, â€œStop pressuring me to get back with you! Leave me alone.â€œ or â€œI just don't feel like I want to be in a relationship with you anymore. Give me space so I can think about it.â€œ

She Doesn't Have to Stay With You Just Because You Were Once in Love

[image: Pressuring an ex to get back with you]

As difficult as this may be to read, the truth is that you cannot convince, force, or guilt a woman into getting back together again based on the fact that you were once in love with each other.

Why?

A woman is not a man's property.

She is an individual who is free to make her own decisions based on how she feels in a relationship with a guy.

Where some guys go wrong is by trying to pressure a woman to give him another chance because he feels that it's his right as her boyfriend to demand that of her.

He feels like he somehow owns her and that she owes it to him to give their relationship another try, based on his past title of boyfriend, fianc  or husband.

Yet, that's not how a modern relationship works.

A relationship is a decision taken by a man and a woman to be together, for as long as they both feel like they want to be together.

In the distant past, a woman was considered to be her husband's property and she was bound to him for life whether she wanted to be or not.

However, in today's world, a woman won't stick with a man for long if he can't maintain her feelings of respect, attraction and love over time; and society supports that.

If you look at divorce statistics, you will see that nearly 50% of marriages end in divorce, and according to research, women initiate 69% of the splits, compared to 31% by men.

Based on those statistics, you can see that a woman is not obligated to be with a guy if she doesn't really want to and if she isn't happy, she just leaves.

These days, to make a woman want to stay with you for life, you actually need to make sure that you deepen the love, respect and attraction she feels for you over time by being the sort of man she can look up to and respect.

At the start of a relationship, it's very easy to make a woman feel some respect, attraction and love for you because you're both feeling a lot of excitement, lust, and feelings of new love.

However, as the relationship develops, if a guy can't maintain and develop those feelings in his woman, or if he is turning her off with his behavior (e.g. being clingy, needy, and insecure, taking her for granted, being jealous and controlling) then her initial feelings of respect, attraction, and love will begin to fade away.

So, don't expect your ex girlfriend to want to get back together again just because she once said that she loved you.

If you want her back, you've got to actively trigger positive, desirable feelings of respect, attraction and love inside her again, rather than turning her off by pressuring her with begging, pleading, convincing and other unattractive behavior.

Take the Pressure Off By Making Her Smile and Feel Happy to Be Interacting With You Again

There's an old expression that goes like this, "You can catch more flies with honey than you can with vinegar."

A loose interpretation of what that means is, "it is easier to persuade others with a positive, win-win approach, than with negativity or unfair demands."

In the same way, you cannot force your ex girlfriend to be with you again by pressuring her with a vinegar-like approach.

Instead you need to make her feel that the prospect of being with you will be a sweet proposition for her.

If you focus on trying to pressure her back into a relationship, she will feel like she'd have a miserable relationship with you that is based on her giving you another chance through guilt or feelings of pity for you.

That's not what you want from her, and it's definitely not a good basis for a loving and lasting relationship.

I'm a happily married man and I can tell you with absolute confidence that a real relationship is based on mutual love, respect and attraction, rather than on pity or guilt.

So, don't waste any more time trying to pressure your ex girlfriend to be with you again.

Simply focus on triggering her feelings of respect, attraction and love in every interaction that you have with her from now on.

It's actually easier to do than you might think.

From now on, every time you interact with her, you need to show her that you are at a different level than you were before.

For example: If a guy has been saying to his ex girlfriend, "We need to get back together again. Can't you see we were meant for each other? Think about the love we shared, we can't let it die. Please just give us a chance," it's only natural that she will be feeling pressured to be with him again.

To change how she feels and make her open herself up to the idea of getting back together again, he needs to adjust his communication style and behavior in a way that makes her feel attracted.

He needs to make her smile, laugh, and feel happy to be interacting with him again.

A simple way to do that is by making a joke of the pressure he has been putting on her in the past.

For example: He might say something like, "Wow! I can't believe you're still talking to me after all the pressuring, begging and pleading I've been putting you through lately. I always knew that you couldn't resist me and have a laugh with her about that.

In this way, he is firstly acknowledging that he has been behaving in ways that are unattractive to her, while also making her smile by turning it around and making a joke about his attractiveness and appeal to her.

When you say something like that, you take the pressure off your ex girlfriend to get back together again, and you focus instead on making her feel good in your company.

By making some attractive adjustments to your behavior and the way you talk and interact with her, being around you becomes fun for her, so her guard naturally comes down and she opens up to you again.

She begins to wonder, What has changed? Why am I feeling this for him all of a sudden? and may even start to feel confused or shocked at the sudden changes in her desire, but she's not going to be able to stop herself from feeling attracted to you again.

Attraction is an automatic reaction that men and women have to each other when attractive traits are displayed.

By being an emotionally strong, making her feel understood and using humor to get her smiling and laughing, she will naturally feel attracted to you whether she wants to or not.

When you approach the ex back process correctly, she will reconnect with her feelings of love for you and feel like she will burst if she can't be with you again.

There's only so long that she can keep her feelings for you bottled up inside before you get a text like, "I miss you. Want to catch up tonight?" or a phone call where she is happy, friendly and willing to meet up with you.

That's how it works.

Most guys can get their ex back (or at least get her to meet up in person) with one or two attractive interactions and you can too.

In difficult cases, it sometimes takes 3 or 4 interactions (on the phone and in person) to get the woman back, but those cases are rare.

Most guys can get it done pretty quickly and have their woman back with simple adjustments to their approach and by following the correct ex back process.

Once you trigger her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again, her heart will begin filling up with new, exciting emotions and she will feel excited about becoming your girl again rather than feeling like you're pressuring her into it.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex is Telling Everyone That I'm Crazy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

That's usually a woman's way of saying that you've been obsessing over her since the break up. For example: You've been texting her and calling her way too much, begging and pleading for another chance and panicking about losing her.

To calm down your feelings of panic and worry, you need to start using a different approach of attracting her back, rather than trying to convince her to give you another chance.

What you need to understand is that when a woman breaks up with a man, it's mainly because she has lost respect and attraction for him over time.

Her feelings of love get pushed into the background and get replaced by negative feelings such as frustration, resentment and disappointment, and she then decides breaks up with him.

This is why the main thing that a guy has to do to get his ex back is to get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

If you spark her feelings for you again and she begins to reconnect with the love that she used to feel for you, her guard will come down and she will open up to interacting with you again.

However, if you behave in ways that keep turning her off, that's just not going to happen.

Classic "Crazy Ex Boyfriend" Mistakes to Avoid

[image: Crazy ex boyfriend]

Some common mistakes that guys make when they are desperate to get their ex back include the following:

1. Trying to beg her back.

It's natural for a guy to feel upset when he gets broken up with, especially when he is still in love with his girlfriend (fiancée or wife).

He might say to himself, "I don't want to break up with her! I still love her. She is the only woman that I've loved in this way. She means so much to me. I am not going to let her go without a fight!"

So, what does he do then?

He tries to beg her back.

[image: Crazy ex boyfriend]

For example: He might use every chance he gets to interact with his ex (e.g. via text messages, on social media, over the phone, or in person), to beg and plead with her to take him back.

He may say things like, "I'm sorry! Please, just listen to me. Please forgive me! I will do anything you want me to do, just give me another chance. Please don't do this to me. You know how much you mean to me. Please just give me one more chance."

He might even go as far as to start crying and say, "I beg you! Please don't do this to me! I canâ€™t live without you!

Although this is something that you might see a Hollywood actor saying and doing to get the girl back in a romantic movie, in the real world, this rarely works. Why?

One of the main reasons why begging, pleading, and crying doesn’t work, is because women are not attracted to the emotional weakness in men (e.g. a lack of self confidence, an inability to handle what life throws at him).

Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, determination, the ability to face his problems head on).

So, when a guy begs and pleads with a woman for her to give him a second chance, she will naturally perceive him as being emotionally weak and it will turn her off even more.

He then begins to feel hopeless because nothing that he is saying or doing is working, which then makes him look desperate and lost and it turns her off even more.

[image: Crazy ex boyfriend]

She then begins telling everyone that he is crazy because he’s trying to get her back and is becoming more and more desperate and unattractive.

However, her saying that is not the end of the world.

As long as you change the way you talk to her and interact with her from now on, you can turn it around and use it to spark some feelings of respect and attraction in her.

For example: The next time you interact with her on a phone call, or in person, you can laugh and say to her, “Wow! I was being a bit of an emotional wimp there for a while, wasn’t I? I guess I overreacted like that because I still love you and I want us to be together. However, I know I should have been more mature about it and I accept your decision.”

Will saying that fix everything between you and your ex?

No, but it’s a start.

To get your ex to want to get back together again, you have to focus on making her feel respect and attraction for the new version of you, every time you interact with her.

2. Thinking that constantly pouring his heart out to her will change her mind.

If a woman says to a guy, “It’s over between us, I don’t want to be with you anymore,” he might decide that the only way to make her change her mind is by repeatedly telling her how much she means to him.

He might say things like, “I want you to know that I love you more than anything else in life. What we had together was so special and I will treasure it for the rest of my life. I really don’t want us to be over because I believe that we can fix this. I ask you to please think about all the good times we had together, rather than just throwing our relationship in the trash like it meant nothing. One more chance is all I’m asking for and I’ll show you that things can be different between us.”

Yet, here’s the thing!

A woman doesn’t care how much a guy cares for her if she doesn’t have feelings for him anymore.

Even though heâ€™s trying hard to make her see how much he really cares for her, sheâ€™s usually going to just say something like, â€œI know you care for me, but I think itâ€™s better for both of us if we go our separate ways.â€

Essentially, what sheâ€™s saying, is that she just doesnâ€™t feel any respect and attraction for him at the moment, and more importantly, she doesnâ€™t believe that he even knows how to make her have those feelings for him again anyway, so she doesn't see any point in giving him another chance. Heâ€™s just going on and on about how much he cares for her, but thatâ€™s not triggering her feelings for him.

So, if you want your ex to stop telling everyone that youâ€™re crazy, and to get her to start taking you seriously again, you need to make her have some feelings for you first, otherwise sheâ€™s not going to care that you still love her.

3. Thinking that constantly that texting her will keep him on her mind and will stop her from moving on.

[image: Crazy ex boyfriend]

When a woman isnâ€™t open to seeing her ex in person, or even talking to him on a phone call, he will usually try to stay on her mind via text.

For example: He might think, â€œIf I canâ€™t talk to her, and if sheâ€™s refusing to see me in person, what is going to stop her from meeting another guy and moving on? Iâ€™ve got to do something to stop her! I've got to stay on her mind 24/7 and hopefully something that I text her will make her realize that she misses me and wants to give me another chance.â€

Yet, hereâ€™s the thingâ€

When a woman is going around telling everyone, â€œMy ex is crazy,â€ heâ€™s clearly not saying or doing anything that is sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for him as a man.

Sheâ€™s probably even feeling annoyed by him, and all the things heâ€™s already been doing trying to get her to give him another chance (e.g. begging, apologizing, convincing) which means that anything else that he does is likely going to be misinterpreted by her as another desperate attempt to get her back.

Constantly texting her as a way of stopping her from moving on is one of the worst things he could do.

Why?

Firstly, in most cases, the texts are pointless conversations, (e.g. â€œHow was your day?â€ or â€œWhat are you up to?â€), or desperate attempts from the guy to stay in touch with her in whatever way he can.

Yet, those texts usually do nothing more than annoy her further.

Rather than thinking to herself, â€œWow, how sweet. My ex is so caring. He wants to know how my day was. Awww, what a great guyâ€ she will probably start to ignore him or be rude and tell him to get lost and leave her alone.

Secondly, if his ex is already telling everyone how crazy he is, the next thing will be telling everyone is that he is stalking and harassing her if he keeps up the constant texts.

Lastly and most importantly, this type of texting doesnâ€™t do anything to renew a womanâ€™s feelings of respect and attraction for a man.

If anything, it convinces her even more that heâs not the mature, alpha male that she is looking for in her life.

So, if you want to get your ex back for real, donât waste a lot of time texting her about random things in the hopes that you will be on her mind and in her heart in a positive way.

When getting an ex back, the only time you should be texting her is to get her on a phone call, so you can then arrange a meet up, where you can make her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

4. Having absolutely no idea how to make her feel respect and attraction for him again.

[image: Crazy ex boyfriend]

Right now, your ex is telling everyone that youâre crazy because she has lost all respect and attraction for you based on your recent actions.

So, sheâs not going to start wanting you back unless you make a sudden, dramatic change in how you communicate and interact with her.

Sheâs going to be behaving coldly towards you and sheâs going to be saying things like, âWhy wonât you just leave me alone?â or âYou need to face reality – itâs over between us. Move on.â

She will be trying to push you away, get away from you, and make it clear that she just doesnât have feelings for you anymore.

However, when you make some changes and improvements to your communication style with her (e.g. remain confident no matter what she says, make her smile and laugh, react differently when sheâs trying to pick a fight) she will naturally begin to change her perspective of you, drop her guard and open back up to you.

On the other hand, if you continue to interact with her in ways that turn her off, then sheâs just going to be saying, âYouâre crazy! Leave me alone!â because youâre not moving past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

You are still saying and doing that same kind of things that made her lose respect and attraction for you in the first place.

Changing Her Perception of You

When you interact with your ex from now on, you need to allow her to experience the new and improved version of yourself that is no longer behaving in the ways that were turning her off in the past.

For example: If youâve been obsessing over her, calling her up or texting her all the time or telling her that you canât live without her, you now need to change that.

You need to show her via your actions, behavior, body language and the way you interact and respond to her, that you are now an emotionally strong man that she can look up to and respect.

All it takes is a quick interaction on a phone call, or in person, to make her feel a new spark for you based on how differently you are now communicating and interacting with her.

During the interaction, she will sense the changes in you and will then test you by playing hard to get, pretending that she doesn't want to listen to you, and by calling you crazy, in the hopes that you will lose it, and prove to her that you're still the same guy that she broke up with.

However, if you can remain composed no matter what she says to you, how she treats you, or how she tests you, and continue to make her feel respect and attraction to the new version of you, she will open back up and be willing to spend time with you.

Initially, she might try to ignore her reactivated feelings of attraction for you, but as long as you keep building on her feelings, she won't be able to stop herself wanting to interact with you.

She will want to keep interacting with you because it now feels good, interesting and enjoyable.

She will also want to interact with you more to see if you have really changed, or if you're only putting on an act to try and get her back.

Once you've reactivated her feelings and shown her that the new you is real, you just need to continue building on her respect and attraction for you, and guide her back into a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex is Telling Me to Move On

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

This usually happens when you've continually tried to get a woman back, but have never actually improved your ability to make her feel respect and attraction for you as a man.

She eventually gets to the point where she feels like you just don't understand what she wants, so she tells you to move on.

The good news is that even if things are looking hopeless right now, and even if your ex is saying things like, "Forget about us getting back together again, it's just not going to happen," or "You need to move on because you have no chance with me ever again," when you make some adjustments to the way you are talking to her and interacting with her, her feelings for you will naturally begin to change.

She will begin to open up to you once again because the feelings of respect and attraction will naturally make her drop her guard and look at you with a new perspective.

Even if she tries to fight it, deep down she will likely begin thinking, "I know I told my ex to move on, but suddenly I don't feel so angry at him anymore. I actually enjoy being around him now. I don't remember why I was so angry and turned off. I just miss him now. What does this mean? Does it mean that we are meant to be together? Is it a sign?"

To begin the ex back process, you simply need to make her feel small sparks of respect and attraction for you again via the way you talk and interact with her.

You build on her renewed feelings as you guide her back into a relationship with you.

Sometimes, it only takes one or two interactions to get a woman back who is telling you to move on, but in really extreme cases, you might need to have 3 to 4 attractive interactions with her before she fully drops her guard, opens back up to you and gives you another chance.

However, if you don't change your approach from today onwards and instead continue to interact with her in ways that turn her off, then getting her back becomes a very difficult, if not impossible thing to do.

She's just going to be saying, "Sorry, but you really need to move on. I just don't feel the same way about you as you feel about me. You need to find a new woman," because you're not saying and doing the types of things that are making her have feelings for you.

Asking Her if There Will Ever Be a Chance of Getting Back Together

[image: Will there ever be a chance for us?]

When a guy is in a position where the woman that he loves is telling him to move on, it's only natural that he won't want to accept that.

He might then plead with her, "Do you think that sometime in the future we can get back together again? At least give me some hope to hold on to. I will wait as long as it takes."

In a way, he's hoping that she will realize how much he cares for her so she then says, "Wow, you really love me don't you? How silly of me for breaking up with you. No other guy would love me as much as you do. I simply have to give you another chance. I'm sorry for being so blind to the fact that you care so much about me."

It would be nice if a woman's psychology worked that way, but it doesn't.

When a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, she won't really care that he so cares for her, or if he's not dating other women and getting on with his life.

It doesn't matter to her.

She might say, "I really appreciate how much you care," but she's just saying that to be nice.

What she'd really like to say is, "You don't know how to make me feel respect and attraction for you any more. You have been turning me off for a while and you're still turning me off. If you don't change, you will never have a chance of getting me back. If you do change, then who knows, I might just open back up to you."

Yet, she's not going to say that because he will then say, "Tell me what I need to change and I will do it."

She would then have to be his teacher in life about how to be the type of man that she and pretty much every other woman on the planet wants and needs (i.e. a real man).

She's not going to put herself in that position. She wants a ready made man who knows how to make her feel deeper respect, attraction and love.

If he doesn't know how to be that man, he needs to learn from his male friends or family members or find a male role model (i.e. me) to help him.

To avoid getting into long discussion with him about if there will ever be a chance of getting back together, a woman will usually just say, "No" or she might say, "Maybe" if she wants to string him along (to make herself feel better as she moves on because he still wants her) or because she simply doesn't have the courage to say no.

The fact is, asking, begging, or pleading with a woman for a second chance rarely works. Why?

When a guy is asking a woman if there will ever be a chance for him to get her back, he almost always hasn't changed anything about the way he's communicating with her to make her feel like getting back with him will be in her best interests.

He's still being a turn off and doesn't even know what to change to start making her feel respect, attraction and love for him again.

So, because she doesn't have feelings for him at that point and doesn't feel attracted to him, she's not going to be saying "Yes" or "Maybe" to the idea of getting back with him unless she doesn't have the guts to tell him how she really feels.

Here's what you need to remember!

You do not have to wait around hoping that your ex will hopefully change her mind about wanting you back someday.

You can get her back very quickly.

When you rapidly transform yourself and then interact with her to reactivate her feelings, she will naturally open up to the idea of being with you again.

All it usually takes is to make her feel a small spark of respect and attraction for you again.

You can do that by making some changes and improvements to the way you are behaving, talking to her, and the way you respond to the things she says to you.

For example: When your ex tells you to move on, rather than react in your usual way (e.g. get upset, beg her not to say that, get angry with her, seek pity), you can react in a way that will spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you (e.g. be confident and make her laugh and smile).

When you interact with her in ways that spark her feelings, everything changes.

Will Moving On With Another Woman Make Her Come Running Back?

[image: Maybe if I hook up with a new woman my ex will come back to me]

Trying to make her jealous by going out with another woman rarely works if your ex doesn't have feelings for you, because she's just not going to care about what you're up to.

It might make her feel a bit of pain for a moment, but when she remembers how turned off by you she was, that painful feeling will turn into the pleasurable feeling of relief when she realizes that it probably means that you're over her and won't be trying to get her back.

Imagine thisâ

A woman notices that her ex boyfriend is with a new woman and decides to contact him to see if he has really moved on or is only trying to make her jealous.

She texts him something like, â I miss you. Lately, Iâve been wondering if we should get back together again, but I see that you've now moved on, so maybe it's too late for us.â

[image: Woman testing her ex boyfriend]

If he then jumps on the idea and says, âMe too! This new woman means nothing to me. Itâs you that I really want,â she will know that he was just doing it to make her jealous, the emotional pain will go away and she will likely lose even more respect and attraction for him as a man.

So, if you are thinking about going out with another woman to make your ex jealous, just remember that if she currently doesn't have strong feelings for you, she's probably not going to care at all.

If you want her back, you need to focus on quickly transforming yourself to become more emotionally attractive to her (i.e. more confident, charismatic, emotionally masculine).

When she can see for herself that you really have changed and are now the type of guy she can look up to and respect, she will naturally begin to open up to you.

All you need to do then is guide her through the rest of the ex back process and she will no longer be your ex.

The Way She Feels

When a woman is telling her ex to move on, itâs usually because her feelings of respect and attraction for him have been replaced by more negative feelings like anger, disappointment and resentment.

She doesn't believe that he has the know how or the willingness to put in the effort to quickly change and improve himself as a man, so she just tells him to move on and leave her alone.

In her mind, your ex still thinks that you're the same guy who she left behind.

However, if you interact with her and let her see that you really have changed, she won't be able to stop herself from opening up to you again, even if it's just a little bit at the start.

She will naturally feel attracted to you because she will no longer be seeing the things about you that were turning her off.

Basically, when you don't react in the same way as you always used to (e.g. with insecurity), she has nothing to fight against.

All her excuses (e.g. you're so insecure, you don't listen to me) begin to fall away and she starts to allow feelings of respect, attraction and love to come flowing back into her heart and mind again.

An Example of How to Spark Her Feelings For You Again

By now, you've probably realized that the only thing that works in getting your ex back is to reactivate her feelings for you by letting her experience the new and improved version of you.

She needs to see for herself that you really have changed before she will let herself open back up to her feelings of respect, attraction, and love for you again.

So, how can you spark her feelings for you?

In a situation where your ex is being cold and unfriendly towards you, what usually works the best is to focus on making smile, laugh, and feel good to be interacting with you rather than letting her create drama or negative feelings between you and her.

When you make a woman smile and laugh when she is being cold, she will instantly enjoy talking to you again and won't be able to hold on to her negative, angry feelings about you for long.

For example: If a guy is talking to his ex on the phone and she is being cold, giving short answers to his questions, and generally being a bit of a bitch, it's easy for the guy to become upset and give up on trying to talk to her.

However, if he lets her get to him, he will miss out on the chance to spark her feelings again.

So, imagine that you're talking to your ex on the phone and she says something like, "Look, I want my stuff back. Get it through your head that it's over between us."

You can reply with something like, "Okay, sure. When do you want to pick up your stuff?" but nothing about that will make her smile, laugh, and spark her feelings of attraction.

On the other hand, if she says, "Look, I want my stuff back. Get it through your head that it's over between us," you can respond by saying something like, "No problem. Of course, it will cost you $10 per item."

She might then flip out and say, "What?" at which point you can laugh and say, "Only joking. I'll get everything ready for you so you can pick it up whenever you want. I'll only charge you $1 per item, plus tax" and then laugh and say, "Just kidding. I'll get your stuff ready for you. When you do want to come around to pick it up?"

She will then most likely laugh about getting caught out with your joke and begin to wonder what has brought about such a sudden change in you.

She will feel curious about your newfound relaxed and confident attitude towards her, which will naturally make her feel some respect and attraction for you again.

When that happens, she then opens herself up to the idea of talking to you again.

From there, you just need to build on that spark of attraction she is feeling for you, and guide her back into a relationship with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Feel Depressed Because My Girlfriend Dumped Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're feeling depressed because your girlfriend dumped you and doesn't want you back, you need to change your thinking and actions to break free of the negativity and become hopeful and optimistic about getting her back.

When you're feeling depressed and focussing on the negatives, getting her back seems impossible. You keep reminding yourself that she doesn't want anything to do with you and that you're all on your own.

No one in your life seems like they are interested in helping you and are probably just telling you that it's for the best, that there are plenty of fish in the sea and that you'll get over it.

Don't listen to them.

You can get her back, but first you need to address the core reason why you are feeling depressed because women aren't attracted to emotional weakness in men.

To re-attract your girlfriend, you will need to switch off the depression and flick the happiness switch back on.

The fact is that you will continue to feel depressed if you don't do anything to create feelings of hope and optimism.

You have to develop a belief in yourself that you can re-attract her and get her back.

For example: Here are 5 ways that you can make her feel some attraction for you again, so her guard comes down and she opens back up to being with you.

You don't have to be perfectly confident and emotionally strong, just better.

You've got to turn off the depression and turn on the happiness, emotional strength and sense of optimism in your life again.

Getting Stuck in the Negative, Never Ending Cycle of Depression

[image: Stuck in a never ending cycle of depression]

Sometimes, a guy will make the mistake of focusing on all of the negative, painful emotions related to getting dumped by his girlfriend, which naturally leads him to feel depressed.

He creates that ongoing, negative cycle by constantly replaying all the memories of the good old times and focusing on how lost, lonely and depressed he feels now that she's no longer in his life.

He also focuses on where things went wrong and spends all his time wondering about things like, â€œIf I was only more attentive and loving, maybe she would have stayed with me,â€ or â€œIf I could have made our lives more fun, maybe we would still be together,â€ or â€œIf only I would have listened to her warnings and changed, I wouldn't be feeling this way now. I'm a complete screw up of a guyâ€ | I've ruined the relationship with the love of my life and now she doesn't want anything to do with me.â€

What he doesn't realize is that the longer he keeps blaming himself, while at the same time creating an unrealistic picture of how perfect his ex girlfriend really was, he will only keep himself stuck in the dark and hopeless place called depression.

You can't really blame a guy for feeling sad and blaming himself, but if you want to stop going through your life saying, "I feel depressed because my girlfriend dumped me and I don't know what to do," you must pull yourself out of the negative cycle of thinking that you are currently in, and find reasons to feel more positive and optimistic about your life and your chances of getting her back.

What you need to remember is that going from feeling depressed, to feeling positive and excited about your life, is a physical and mental action.

In other words, you have to physically pick yourself up and start doing the types of things that will make you feel more positive and happy in your life.

You also need to mentally begin to think in a more positive, optimistic and forward moving way.

For example: You can't

- Feel happy to have learned a lesson that has caused you to become a wiser and stronger man as a result of being dumped. Feel happy about that, feel proud and feel excited that you really have become a better man already and will continue to improve today, tomorrow and this week. When you interact with your girlfriend again, she is going to notice the changes in you and feel attracted to the confidence that you now have about yourself as a man.
- Focus on the positive things you gained from your relationship with your girlfriend, such as the realization that it's a man's role to deepen the love, respect and attraction in a relationship rather than taking his woman for granted and expecting her to just stick around. You won't make that same mistake again with her or (if you decide not to get her back) with another woman.
- Make a choice about what you want to do about being dumped (i.e. are you going to focus on getting your girlfriend back, or are you going to get out there and start dating other, beautiful women). You are a man who has choices in life. You're not stuck; you have choices.
- Focus on the other areas of your life that you may have neglected while feeling depressed (e.g. follow through on your goals and dreams).

As you can see, feeling depressed is a choice that you make or don't make.

You can choose to feel depressed or happy depending on how you think and act from now on.

I understand that it doesn't seem like the right thing to do to feel happy after getting dumped by the woman you love, but believe me it's the exact process you need to follow if you want to be attractive to her the next time you interact with her.

Women are not attracted to the emotional weakness of men (e.g. depression, insecurity, anxiety).

Women are sexually attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence, happiness, high self-esteem), so if you want to re-attract your girlfriend and get her back, you must begin the rapid process of becoming emotionally strong and happy again.

When you make an active effort to think and act in a more positive, forward moving way, you will notice that the depression instantly begins to fade away day by day until it's completely gone.

However, if you keep thinking negative thoughts and acting depressed, you will find reasons to hold on to your negative, which will keep you locked in a negative cycle of depression for a lot longer than is necessary.

[image: Stuck in depressing thoughts]

You can stay stuck in your negative cycle of depression and self-blame if you want, but that's not really going to change anything for the better.

What is going to make things change for the better is if you accept that what has happened between you and your girlfriend is now in the past.

As long as you learn from your past mistakes from this moment onwards, you can move forward and focus on re-attracting your ex girlfriend.

When you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, and you see how differently she reacts (e.g. she smiles, laughs, is happy to be talking to you) compared to how she used to respond to you (e.g. angry, refused to listen to you), you can prove to yourself that there really is hope to get her back.

Guys from all over the world get women back every day and you can do it too.

4 Action Steps to Get Over Your Depression and Get Your Girlfriend Back

You can choose to stay stuck in a low emotional state saying, 'I feel depressed because my girlfriend dumped me,' but that won't change anything.

On the other hand, you can focus on becoming a man that she can look up to and respect, feel attracted to and love again.

You can do that by following these 4 action steps!

1. Recognize the Good and the Bad Things About Your Relationship

The worst thing that you can do to yourself is to keep remembering the good old times and think about how good things used to be with your ex girlfriend, versus how terrible it feels now that she's gone.

Not only does that make you feel depressed (i.e. because it feels like you can't have that with her any more), but it also turns your relationship and your ex into something that was perfect and flawless.

The reality is that if everything was that perfect between you and her, you would not be in the situation you are in right now where you've been dumped.

Here's what you need to recognize!

Even though you might have messed up pretty badly and turned her off, it doesn't mean that she didn't have her own faults or play a part in the break up.

She's not perfect, even though you probably want to think she is.

No one is perfect.

Yes, she is special and you love her so much that you want her back, but don't make her become Miss Perfect in your mind to the point where you feel unworthy of her.

Rather than sit around thinking, 'I'm a failure as a man. My ex was so amazing and beautiful and

I hurt her so much. She will never want me back, â€” make an effort to put her value as a person into perspective.

For example: Ask yourselfâ€”

- What did you and her fight about? Was it always your fault or did she sometimes do things that annoyed you?
- Was she always a good, loving girlfriend, or did she do things that were hurtful towards you (e.g. forget to return your calls, not take your goals and interests seriously)?
- Did she make time for you in her life, or did she make work/friends/hobbies a bigger priority than you?
- Was she loyal, or did she give you reasons to doubt her (e.g. flirted with other guys in front of you, texting other guys without telling you, lied about important things to your face)?
- Did she always treat you with respect?

If you spend some time thinking about it, you will discover that your ex isn't perfect or way more valuable than you are.

Even if you feel as though she was a great woman who was always loving and beautiful and did nothing wrong, there were clearly many things wrong in your relationship, otherwise she wouldn't have dumped you.

However, by refusing to focus on any of the bad things, you are not allowing yourself to move forward in a mature way so you can then build a stronger, better, and more lasting relationship with her.

You need to say to yourself, *â€”I accept that I feel depressed right now because I really loved my ex and I thought we would be together forever. Our relationship wasn't perfect and both her and I could have done things a little better, but we made mistakes. When I make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for me the next time we interact, she will open up and want to get back together again.*â€”

If you can't think and act in that positive, optimistic and forward moving manner, you will remain stuck feeling depressed rather than working towards getting your ex girlfriend back into your life.

2. Feel Genuinely Happy With or Without Her

Right now the idea of feeling genuinely happy without your girlfriend might seem impossible.

However, until you can accept that you can be happy, regardless of whether your ex is in your life or not, you will be unable to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when you next interact.

Remember: Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, the ability to cope with whatever life throws at them) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. low self esteem, unable to pick himself up when something difficult happens).

So, if you interact with your ex (e.g. on a phone call or in person) and she sense how depressed you feel without her, and that you're unable to pick yourself up and get on with your life, she will most likely interpret it as emotional weakness and feel turned off.

Seeing that you are feeling sad and depressed without her, isn't going to make her feel sorry for you and want to get back with you out of pity.

Sometimes a woman will do that for a few hours or a day just to mess with her ex boyfriend's head and make him feel even worse, but most women will just turn and walk away and not look back.

If she senses that you are depressed without her, it will further destroy what little feelings of respect, attraction and love that she still has for you.

If you want her back, you must take action and think in ways that will make you feel positive, optimistic and genuinely happy with or without her.

You've just got to do it if you want her back for real.

Your girlfriend is almost certainly not going to want to get back with you if she thinks that you only want her back because no other quality women are going to want anything to do with you at the moment because of the low emotional state that you're in.

Even though a woman will rarely admit this, she likes the idea of being with a man who can have any woman he wants, but chooses to be with her.

The benefit of being happy without your ex is that, not only does she feel more respect and attraction for you, but that you can also naturally attract other women that you interact with as well.

I know that you probably don't even want to think about other women right now, but remember what women prefer about a guy.

Women want to be with a guy who could easily have other women if he wanted to, but is choosing to be with her.

If your ex senses that you are depressed, she will know that other women won't find that attractive and therefore, she will feel turned off by you even further.

If you don't know how to make yourself feel genuinely happy without her, you might want to try one of the following:

- Work towards achieving your goals and ambitions in life.
- Challenge yourself to learn something new that will make you become an even better man that you are.
- Take up a new hobby (e.g. rock climbing, surfing, cycling).
- Enroll in a class (e.g. martial arts, dancing). I included dancing because it's an easy way to get yourself around other women and feel confident about your attractiveness, which your ex will then notice.

When you focus on taking action to become genuinely happy without her, you are taking your mind off being dumped and improving yourself as a man at the same time.

The next time you interact with your ex, she will see that you're not a lonely, depressed guy who has been sitting at home alone, which will make her begin to feel some respect and attraction for you again.

3. Rapidly Become a Man That She Can Look Up to and Respect, Feel Attracted to and Love

Going through a break up can give your confidence and self-esteem a severe beat down to the point where you might feel that you're unworthy of your ex girlfriend or that she will never, ever change her mind about you.

For example: A guy might say to himself, “I was such a bad boyfriend. No wonder my girlfriend dumped me. I hurt her so much and I let her down. I don’t deserve to be her boyfriend anymore.”

Yet, thinking like that isn’t going to get him out of his depression or get her back.

So, rather than putting yourself down and feeling like you don’t deserve to get your girlfriend back, focus instead on making yourself worthy of her, by rapidly becoming a man that she can look up to and respect, feel attracted to and love.

How can you do that?

By making sure that every time you interact with her from now on, you’re showing her via your actions, behavior and the way you talk and respond to her, that you’ve moved beyond the level you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: If a guy got dumped because he was too insecure in his relationship and was too clingy and needy, he needs to show his ex that he’s now confident and emotionally strong.

Even if she is cold or rude when they interact, if he can remain emotionally strong and confident in himself, she will begin to feel a renewed sense of respect for the stronger man that he has become.

Alternatively, if a guy got dumped because he wasn’t going anywhere in life, and was spending a lot of time playing video games, watching TV or passing the time in some other non-productive way, he needs to find what he really wants to achieve in life and start going after it.

He needs to set some goals for himself, actively go after them and make some progress that she will be able to see or believe when he tells her.

Then when he interacts with his ex, she will realize that he is now for his true potential as a man and is no longer the no hoper that she dumped, which will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

When you are confident and self-assured about your value to your ex girlfriend, she will naturally feel more respect and attraction for you than if you were to doubt yourself and feel unworthy of her love.

Women can’t stop themselves from feeling respect and attraction for a guy who is emotionally strong no matter what life throws at him.

So, as long as you have improved and have risen past the level you were at when she dumped you, she will naturally feel some level of respect and attraction for you again.

She will then realize that you have the potential to become an even better man than before and all you need to do then is guide her through the rest of the ex back process and she will be your girlfriend again.

4. Make Her Feel a Renewed Sense of Respect and Attraction

If your ex girlfriend has been saying, “I don’t have feelings for you anymore,” or “Look, just accept that it’s over between us,” it simply means that the way you are talking to her and interacting with her now isn’t making her feel a lot of respect and attraction for you.

Yet, that’s just what she is saying now.

When you make some adjustments to the way that you are talking to her, how you respond to what she says and the way you react when she tries to test you (e.g. by being cold and distant, telling you that there's no hope), she will not be able to stop herself from feeling some respect for you.

That's what you want.

When you get her respect back, everything changes.

She drops her guard, opens herself up to feeling attracted to you again and begins to feel drawn to you.

As long as you are triggering her feelings of attraction, she will want to interact with you more and more.

However, if you're not saying and doing things that are making her have feelings for you, then she's just going to be saying, "Please stop bothering me. It's over. Why don't you get it? We're finished. Move on."

She is saying that because you're not actively making her have feelings for you again, so it's only natural that she would react in that way.

If you want to get your girlfriend back, don't waste another moment sitting around feeling depressed because she dumped you.

When you re-spark her feelings of attraction for you again, it will begin to make the negatives about your relationship seem less important to her, because she can see that you are now a completely new and improved man that she suddenly feels something for.

[image: Beat the depression and get her back]

Finally, one important thing that you need to remember is this!

You are going to be doing her a favor by getting her back, because when you renew her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she will feel like she is winning by getting back together.

The feelings that a woman experiences when she falls back in love with a guy that she dumped is unlike anything else in life.

It's such an emotionally rewarding and enlightening experience for both the man and the woman and the new love feels better than any love that they ever shared before.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make a Woman Change Her Mind About Breaking Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To make a woman change her mind about breaking up, you need to change how she feels, rather than trying to change how she thinks.

To change how she feels, you need to actively interact with her and make her laugh, smile and feel good when interacting with you, especially if she is being closed off or distant.

Laughter, smiling and feel good emotions bring her guard down, and when you're able to make her feel that way when she's being cold towards you, she will naturally feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction to the emotionally strong, attractive man that you've now become.

From there, you just need to guide her through the rest of the ex back process.

Without First Changing How She Feels, it Will Be Difficult to Get Her to Change Her Mind

[image: She will change her mind when you change how she feels]

Making a woman change her mind about breaking up is usually very easy when you simply focus on changing how she feels when she interacts with you, rather than trying to convince her with reasoning and logic.

For example: Right now, your woman might be saying things like, It's too late there's nothing that you can say or do to make me change my mind, or I just don't love you anymore. You're a nice guy and I know that you love me, but I just don't feel like you're the right guy for me any more.

Hearing that, it sounds like you have no chance, but you do.

When you make adjustments to the way that you talk and interact with her so that you're triggering her feelings of respect, attraction and love, she will naturally open up and be more willing to give you another chance.

All of sudden, her mind will begin to change as she looks at the new, improved you in a more positive light and realizes that she does have feelings for you and was wrong to say that she was over you and didn't want to take you back.

She feels something for you now and no matter how hard she tries to ignore it, those feelings are filling up her heart and mind.

Mistakes to Avoid

[image: She won't care until you reactivate her feelings]

Most guys need help to get an ex back because it's not something that we are taught by parents, teachers or friends.

In fact, most people don't know what they should say or do to successfully get an ex back.

So, out of desperation, some guys will make one or more of the following mistakesâ€¦!

1. Trying to change her mind with gifts.

A guy might think to himself, â€œShe is saying that I took her for granted, so maybe if I buy her a thoughtful or expensive gift, she will see how much she means to me.â€

He might then buy her a bunch of red roses, or maybe even a special ring or pendant.

When he gives it to her, she might smile and look happy and thank him for finally putting in some effort to show her that he values her.

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that these feelings are only temporary, and if he doesn't do anything else to regain her respect and attraction for him as a man, she's not going to remain happy for very long.

The fact is, a woman doesn't fall in love with a guy because of what he can buy for her; she falls in love with him because of the way he makes her feel when she's with him.

Yes, some women are gold diggers and only want a man who will buy them lots of pretty things, but those women are the minority.

Additionally, they don't always love the guy who is buying them loads of gifts.

The majority of women fall in love with a guy based on his personality, behavior and inner qualities.

For example: Most will find it easy to fall in love with a confident, charismatic guy compared to an insecure, awkward guy.

It won't matter if either guy doesn't buy gifts. What matters the most is how she feels when she is around him.

Of course, a woman will smile when a guy buys her a gift, but ultimately, she's likely going to be asking herself, â€œDo I really want to be with a guy who is trying to convince me to give him another chance by buying me gifts, even though he doesn't know how to make me have feelings for him as a person?â€

So, rather than wasting a lot of time trying to convince your woman to change her mind about breaking up with you by trying to buy her love back, focus instead on making her experience feel good emotions (e.g. respect, attraction, happiness) that will bring her guard down.

2. Being extra nice to her in the hopes that she will suddenly realize what a great guy he is and then change her mind.

Sometimes a guy will think that if he's really, really nice to her (e.g. does everything she wants him to do, is available to her every beck and call, sucks up to her, helps her pay her bills) she will suddenly realize that he's too valuable to lose, and will change her mind.

Some guys might even say things like, â€œYou will never find another man who can love you as much as I doâ€ or â€œI would do anything for you. You only have to ask and it's yours.â€

A woman only appreciates that type of devotion from a man that she looks up to and respects, feels attracted to and in love with.

If she notices that he's acting that way out of desperation, it will turn her off and she will lose respect for him, especially if he keeps trying to suck up to her even though she is treating him badly.

Here's how it worksâ€¦

If a woman has lost respect and attraction for a guy, she will find it difficult to allow herself to feel sexually attracted and romantically interested in him, even when he is being extra nice to her.

A woman doesn't want a guy to tell her how valuable he is as a guy. Instead, she wants to feel it for herself.

She wants to wake up in the morning and feel excited to be talking to him and interacting with him, rather than feeling like she's doing him a favor by being his girlfriend (fianc  or wife).

So, even though there is absolutely nothing wrong with being a good guy and being nice to a woman, it's not what's going to get her to change her mind about breaking up with you.

3. Sending her long letters, e-mails or texts to explain his feelings.

Sometimes, when a guy is trying to tell a woman how much he cares for her and she is refusing to listen to him, he will attempt to get through to her by writing her a long letter, sending her a long e-mail, or sending multiple long text messages to explain his feelings.

However, this rarely causes the woman to change her mind. Why?

Firstly, a guy can pour his heart out to a woman and tell her how much he loves her all day long, but if she doesn't have feelings for him, she won't care how much he cares for her.

It just doesn't matter to her because she doesn't have feelings for him.

A woman only appreciates and loves it when a guy expresses his love for her if she has feelings for him.

If he has turned her off and killed her respect for him, she's going to feel annoyed and even repulsed when he starts pouring his heart out to her.

Secondly, when a woman can't see a guy's body language, hear the tonality of his voice, or assess his vibe and energy in the moment, she then has to guess at how he was feeling when he wrote the letter, e-mail or text.

Rather than reading the message and thinking, â€œWow! That's so sweet. My guy really loves me. Maybe I'm being too hard on him by wanting to break up. I think I'll give him another chance. He's just so sincere, loving and sweet. He obviously cares about me! How silly of me for not seeing that. I just have to give him another chance now,â€ she will most likely be thinking, â€œI know that you mean well, but I just don't want to be in a relationship with you anymore. I don't feel the same way as you do.â€

What most guys fail to remember is that she can't experience the new and improved him via a text, e-mail or letter.

She has broken up with him and hasn't yet experienced the new and improved version of him, so she will read the message and imagine it coming from the exact version of him that she recently dumped.

So what should you do if you want to make your woman change her mind about breaking up with you?

Only text her as a way to get her on a phone call with you, where you can then actively make her laugh, smile and feel good to be interacting with you again.

From there, get her to meet up with you in person and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new and improved man that you are now.

4. Asking her to give him a chance because he doesn't know what he will do without her.

[image: I can't live without you. I need you]

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that a woman should take pity on them, or give them a chance because they are truly in love with her, are feeling lost without her and will do anything to fix the relationship.

For example: A guy might say something like, I can't live without you in my life. You are my reason for being, or Without you my life is over. You're the only woman for me and without you I'm lost. I'm not interested in other women. I just want you.

He hopes that it will make her see that she is so important to him and therefore, it must mean that they are meant to be together.

Yet, if he hasn't first reactivated her feelings of respect, attraction and love, she's just not going to care about how much he cares.

If she were to get back with him, it would feel like she's doing him a favor and losing out because he still hasn't worked out how to be the type of man that she wants and needs.

A woman doesn't want to stay in a relationship out of pity, and most women also don't want to be a man's reason for living.

The majority of women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. his confidence, his ability to rise through the levels of life to achieve his biggest goals and ambitions no matter how difficult things get) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. is self-doubting and insecure, uses his relationship as an excuse to hide from his true potential in life).

So, when a guy is asking, begging and pleading with a woman to give him another chance because he doesn't know what he'll do without her, rather than convince her to stay, he is actually causing her to lose even more respect and attraction for him.

For a woman to want to stay in a relationship with a man, she has to be able to respect her man and look up to him, not feel like she has to take care of him because he needs her for emotional security and for his sense of identity in this world.

5. Thinking that all the good times that they shared should be enough for her to realize that the relationship is worth fighting for.

In the distant past, a woman was considered to be a man's property.

He essentially owned her and could treat her however he wanted.

Yet, today's world is different.

A woman can now decide to be in a relationship or leave a relationship based on how she feels.

In other words, as long as a woman is feeling the way she wants to feel in the relationship, she will choose to stay with her man.

However, if she starts to lose too much respect and attraction for him, she can then choose to break up with him because he doesn't own her and she can do what she pleases.

A common mistake that some guys make is think that all the good times they've shared together in the past should be enough for her to realize that the relationship is worth fighting for now.

Unfortunately, that's not the way that the ex back process works.

Your woman will want to get back with you if you can reactivate her feelings and begin to build on them, rather than trying to convince her that things could be good again if she just gives you another chance.

Here's what you always need to remember about relationships in today's world!

In a modern relationship, it is a man's responsibility to maintain and grow the love, respect and attraction between him and his woman.

If he fails to do that and instead begins to behave in ways that are unattractive to her (e.g. takes her for granted, becomes needy, clingy and insecure, allows her to be the dominant one in the relationship and make all the decisions) she can decide to break up with him if she wants to.

The only thing that will make your woman realize that your relationship is worth fighting for, is when you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, so she can then reconnect with her love for you.

She will then begin to feel that she will be losing out if she breaks up with you and doesn't give you another chance.

That's how it works.

Any other strategy will never work as well as that, no matter how much you try to plead with her or convince her.

Ignoring her, trying to convince her and trying to suck up to her are failing strategies that cause most guy's to lose their ex and have to move on without her.

If you want her back, you've got to focus on changing how she feels.

[image: Focus on changing how she feels]

When you interact with her and actively make her have feelings for you again, her guard will come down and she will naturally begin to change her mind about the break up.

You don't have to convince her to change her mind.

Instead, you simply need to focus on triggering her feelings of respect and attraction and she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love that she once felt for you.

Once that happens, she will be open to giving the relationship another chance and you and her will be back together.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Won't My Ex Get Back With Me? What's the Real Reason?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex won't give you another chance, it's usually due to one of the following 3 reasons:

1. She doesn't look up to you and respect you as her man.

[image: She doesn't respect you]

The beginning of a relationship is the easy part because both the man and the woman are feeling a lot of lust and excitement, and will pretty much do anything to impress each other.

Even if a couple isn't 100% compatible with each other, they are more likely to turn a blind eye at this time, because the sex and the feeling of new love is so much fun that it makes up for any small problems that might exist.

Yet, when the initial novelty wears off, what often happens is that everything that was overlooked in the beginning stages of the relationship now becomes a bit of a problem and then the fights start.

For example: A woman might start complaining and saying things like, "You are so selfish, you always expect me to do everything around here," or "Stop being so jealous of me all the time, I'm not your property you know?" or "You're always watching TV. Why don't you do something with your life? I didn't think you'd be like this."

Although this might sound like she's nagging and just being an emotional woman, it's simply a woman's way of letting a guy know that she's not feeling the way she wants to feel in the relationship with him.

When she calls him selfish, what she is trying to tell him is that she feels that he's taking her for granted.

When she tells him that she feels smothered, she's saying that he's being too insecure, clingy and needy, and when she whines about him watching too much TV, what she really wants to say is that he's wasting his life and not reaching for his true potential as a man.

Over time, if nothing changes and the guy continues to behave in those ways, she will begin to lose respect for him.

So, if you're wondering why your ex won't get back with you, one of the real reasons is because she has likely lost too much respect for you and can't see you being able to quickly change and become the man she needs.

Here's how it works:

If a woman loses respect for you as her man, she will then begin to feel less attraction for you and when that happens, the love that she feels for you will begin to fade into the background and get replaced by negative emotions (e.g. anger, resentment, disappointment).

2. She doesn't feel enough attraction for who you've become.

[image: You have become unattractive to her]

One of the most common reasons why a woman will lose respect and attraction for a guy and then want to break up with him, is if she realizes that heâs just not man enough for her at this point of his life.

What that means is that when she interacts with him (e.g. via text message, on a phone call or in person) he is displaying behaviors that are instinctively unattractive to her (e.g. he allows her to boss him around, he is emotionally sensitive around her, she is more dominant than him, she doesnât feel girly and feminine enough around him and feels like more of a friend or like a big sister or mother figure in his life).

Even if the man is doing everything that he thinks will get her to forgive him and take him back (e.g. apologizing, promising to change, offering to do anything she wants), she still wonât get back with him because she can see that he hasnât yet moved past the level he was at when she broke up with him.

If you want to regain your exâs respect and attraction for you, one of the ways to do it is by showing her youâre not at the same level that you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: If a guy got broken up with by a woman because he was being too clingy and needy in his relationship, he needs to show her that he is now confident and is getting on with his life in a positive way, with or without her.

You donât have to change everything and become perfect to get you ex back.

Instead, you simply have to show her that youâve moved beyond the level you were at when she dumped you, so that she can begin to reconnect with her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

3. She doesn't believe that you know how to change.

[image: She doesn't believe that you can change]

If the current way that youâve been communicating with your ex has been turning her off more and more, sheâs not going to be thinking that she wants to get back with you anytime soon.

Instead, she is likely going to be telling you things like, âYou really need to accept that itâs over between us,â or âI just donât feel the same way anymore and nothing is going to change that.â

Where Most Guys Go Wrong When Trying to Get a Woman Back After a Break Up

It doesn't matter how intelligent or successful a guy is, when he is faced with the horrible, shocking news that the love of his life is leaving him, it's only natural that he might react in one of the following ways:

1. Asking her to explain why.

[image: Just tell me what I need to change and I'll do it]

Pretty much every guy asks his woman what she wants him to change, but he doesn't get the answers that he is hoping for.

For example: A guy might ask his woman:

- How can you just turn your back on me after all we've been through?
- Why are you doing this to me?
- Why won't you tell me what I've done wrong?
- Why won't you tell me what you want me to change?

It seems like a smart thing to do, right?

Yet, it actually annoys the woman more and convinces her to want to go through with the break up. Why? Most women don't decide on the spur of the moment that they want to break up with a guy.

It is usually a decision that has taken her a long time (e.g. weeks, months and sometimes even years) to make, so in her mind, she usually feels that she's given the guy enough information (e.g. by nagging, starting fights, hinting) for him to be able to figure out by himself why she is breaking up with him.

For example: A woman might have continuously nagged her guy about playing TV games all the time, as a way to encourage him to become more focused and goal driven in his life.

Alternatively, she might have complained about him not noticing her new dress/hair style/shoes, as a way of letting him know that she was feeling neglected and taken for granted.

Yet, the guy never really picked up on what she was trying to tell him, and might even have brushed it off as her being unreasonable, or by calling her a nag and telling her to stop being such a pain.

So, when he starts asking her why she's breaking up with him, it only annoys her more because it highlights that he wasn't paying attention to what was going on between them.

A woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher in life and have to teach him how to be a man, so she will only hint or nag and hope that he gets the message.

If she has to explain to him what he has been doing wrong, she will feel like his mother, or teacher, and like she has to hold his hand and guide him through his life.

She fears that if she leads him now, she will need to lead him again and again in the future.

If that keeps happening time and time again, she will feel like she is the more dominant one in the relationship (like a mother figure or big sister), and then she won't be able to respect him and look up to him as her man.

This is why it's not a good idea to ask a woman why she is breaking up with you.

She wants you to figure out how to be the man she needs you to be, without her help.

When guys learn that truth, they often ask, "Why do women have to make it so complicated? Why can't they just tell us?"

Simple: Women do not want to be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man.

2.Â Thinking that being nicer to her than ever before will change her mind.

Another common mistake guys make when they are trying to get an ex back is to be extra nice to her (e.g. promising to do whatever she wants him to do, lavishing her with gifts and tokens of his affection, being available to her at a moments notice) in the hopes that she will realize how much he cares for her, and she will then change her mind.

However, what a guy like that doesn't understand is that when a woman is saying things like, â€œGo away. You need to accept itâ€ really over between us, â€œ or â€œLeave me alone. I don't want anything more to do with you,â€ it's because she doesn't have feelings for him anymore.

So, when he's being extra nice to her, it doesn't make her have sexual and romantic feelings.

She may appreciate that he is being nice, but it's not going to make her think, “You know what? I should love him and give him a chance. Why am I being so cold, selfish and stubborn? He's being nice, so I should be nice back to him and give him another chance.”

Unfortunately, that's not how the ex back process works.

In almost all cases, a woman won't give a guy another chance unless he can make her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction, which will then make her reconnect with the love that she once felt for him.

Making her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction doesn't come from sucking up to her and being extra nice.

You've got to make her have romantic feelings for you, not friendly feelings or feelings of pity for you.

So, don't waste your time being nice to your ex and then feeling hurt and dejected when she keeps saying â€œNoâ€ to you.

Instead, you need to focus on making her have some feelings for you first, otherwise she's not going to care that you care so much for her and that she means so much to you.

When you re-spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction (e.g. via the way you talk and behave when you interact with her), she will naturally drop her guard and care that you care, because it will feel right to her to give you another chance.

3. Thinking that she will eventually realize her mistake and come back one day.

When trying to get a woman back after a serious break up, a lot of guys make the mistake of ignoring her and hoping that it will make her realize that she misses him, and she'll then come running back.

Ignoring a woman only works when a woman is really in love with the guy and she regrets breaking up with him.

Then, when he ignores her for a while, she begins to miss him and starts fearing that he will meet someone else and forget her, so she then contacts him.

In most cases though, when a woman doesn't have any feelings of respect and attraction for her ex, not hearing from him for a while (e.g. a few weeks or even months) isn't going to make her think, “Oh no! The guy who I don't want to be with at all is not contacting me! I need him!!!”

Instead, she's likely going to be thinking, â€œGood. I'm glad he's moving on with his life and isn't hassling me to get back together with him. I don't feel anything for him any more,â€ and she will then start dating and having sex with other guys.

This is why ignoring a woman after a break up is usually a bad strategy and doesn't result in her fully coming back.

She might get in contact to check that he's still missing her (so she then feels good about herself), but she's not going to get back with him.

On the other hand, if he was to actively re-spark some of her feelings for him again before ignoring her for a few days to a week, that would definitely get her attention and make her miss him.

For example: He calls her up, makes her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction over the phone and then ends the phone call and doesn't try to contact her for 3 to 7 days.

In most cases that I've worked on, the woman will then contact the guy within the 3 to 7 days to say hi and he can then arrange to meet up with her in person and get her back.

So, rather than waste a lot of time ignoring your ex in the hopes that she will come back to you, focus instead on using every interaction you have with her as an opportunity to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Whenever you interact with her from now, make sure that you let her see, feel and experience the new and improved you.

The more that you let her experience that, the more she will enjoy interacting with you and the more her defenses will come down.

4. Thinking that because she once loved you, she has to give you another chance.

A lot of romantic movies would like you to believe that the love between a man and a woman is unconditional.

However, it's simply not true.

Love is conditional and is based on how a man and a woman make each other feel in the relationship together.

If a man continues to guide both himself and his woman to deeper levels of respect, attraction and love, the relationship will grow and become stronger over time.

On the other hand, if a guy begins to behave in ways that erode the feelings of respect, attraction and love (e.g. he becomes needy, clingy and insecure, starts taking her for granted, gives up on his goals and ambitions and becomes very negative about life, becomes emotionally weak and lets his woman lead in the relationship), it's only natural that a woman will stop wanting to be around him.

The reality is that a man and a woman are in a relationship together because they choose to be with each other.

It's a decision.

A guy doesn't own a woman (and she doesn't own him), and she doesn't have to stick with him simply because she once loved him.

She can decide to be with him or not be with him.

That's how it works.

A relationship stays together when both people decide that they want stay together, not out of a sense of duty or obligation or because they used to be in love.

In the past, a woman had to stay with her man even if he treated her badly, and even if he was mentally or physically abusive towards her.

Yet these days, a woman can leave a man if she decides that she wants to.

So, don't make the mistake of expecting your ex to give you another chance based on the fact that she loved you before.

If you want to get her love back, you are going to have to re-spark her feelings for you and get her to fall in love with the new you again.

Luckily, it's actually pretty easy to do.

When She Experiences the New and Improved You, Her Feelings Will Change

Right now, your ex might be saying things like, It's really over between us, just accept it, I just don't love you anymore, but that doesn't mean her love for you is really dead.

It simply means that she's not willing to connect with the love right now.

Basically, she has allowed negative feelings like anger, pain and resentment to block any positive feelings of love that she still has for you.

When you can quickly change the things about yourself that turned her off (e.g. insecurity) and then interact with her to let her experience the new and improved you (e.g. let her experience your confidence, make her smile and laugh, make her feel happy when she interacts with you), she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you once again.

Even if she fights it at first, something inside her will be saying, He's different now. He's changed in a good way. I actually like the new him! I want to see him and her heart will be full of new feelings, which she won't be able to ignore.

So, now that you know the real reason why your ex won't get back with you, and you also know what you need to do to make her love you again – what are you waiting for?

It's time to start getting her back!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Can't Eat or Sleep Properly Since Being Dumped

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

That hot, stinging emotional pain that you are feeling at the moment, will either pass quickly, or slowly, depending on how you approach the ex back process from now on.

If you want the pain to pass quickly so you can feel confident and re-attract your ex, you will need to spend the next 48 hours improving on your weaknesses that led to the break up, and then contact your ex to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction to the new you.

Watch this for examples:

When you see that you are making real improvements to the things about yourself that caused her to lose respect and attraction for you, it gives you boost of confidence and self esteem that helps take some of the pain away.

You suddenly begin to feel hope that you can re-attract her and get her back and all you need to do then is actually do that.

She might not want you back immediately, but you will notice that she will begin to react to you in a more positive, open way from now on as long as you are making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when you interact with her.

Of course, if you want the pain to take a long time to go away so you can live in misery for the next 3 months to 3 years of your life, then just don't do anything to improve your attractiveness to her.

Sit around, feel sad and ignore her while she gets on with her life, and you become increasingly unattractive to women as they sense your deep feelings of unworthiness as a man.

You Are Not Doomed For Life Just Because You Got Dumped

[image: You are not doomed for life just because you got dumped]

When you can't eat or sleep properly because you got dumped, the idea of actually getting your ex back may seem like an impossible thing to do.

Right now, it's likely that you can't see any way to get her back, especially if everything that's happened since the break up is confirming that it's really over between you and her.

For example: Your ex could be saying things like, "I'm never getting back together with you," or "I need you to accept that it's really over between us" or "We're finished. I don't want anything to do with you any more."

That alone is enough to convince most guys that getting her back is a hopeless situation.

Yet, that's just what she's saying now based on her lack of respect and attraction for you.

What she doesn't realize is that you can change how she feels.

The amount of respect, attraction and love that she feels for you is pretty much within your control.

You're either saying and doing things to reactivate her feelings, or you're not.

Another reason why a lot of guys give up on the idea of getting their ex back, is because they think something like, "I've tried everything and she still doesn't want anything to do with me. If anything, she's now acting like she's turned off even more than before. I have no chance."

It's over. She doesn't want me.â€œ

At that point, a guy might:

1. Beg, plead, whine or cry to his ex, in the hopes that she will feel sorry for him and will want to get back together again.
2. Try to explain, reason and convince her to give him another chance, even though he doesn't know how to make her have feelings for him again.
3. Offer to do anything she wants him to do.
4. Ask her to explain why she broke up with him.
5. Ask her to tell him what he needs to change about himself to make her happy.
6. Tell her how much he loves her and that no one will care for her the way that he does.
7. Bombard her with text messages or e-mails in the hopes that he will stay in her thoughts.
8. Promise to change things about himself that don't matter to her (e.g. he's offering to spend more time with her, when what she really wants him to have more purpose and ambition in life outside of his relationship with her).
9. Ignore her in the hopes that she'll realize how much she misses him and will then come running back.
10. Tell her that he can't eat or sleep properly since being dumped by her to make her feel guilty, and then hopefully, get back together with him.

These are some of mistakes that guys make in a desperate attempt to get an ex back.

Then, when none of those things seem to work, a guy might start to feel that there's nothing more he can do to get her back.

However, that's not the case at all.

There is a way that works.

Essentially, the main thing you need to understand, is that when you make some changes to the way you talk, behave and interact with your ex, her feelings towards you will change as well.

Even if right now she's saying, It's over and I don't want anything more to do with you, when you interact with her in ways that spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, everything changes in her mind and heart automatically.

She starts thinking, "Why do I suddenly feel like I want him back? Does this mean that he is the one? Is it a sign that we should be together? Maybe I should just see him and check how I feel because I really do miss him and my heart is telling me to give him another chance."

That's how it works.

So, from now on, stop thinking that it's impossible to get back and don't worry about any mistakes you might have made either.

Pretty much every guy makes mistakes when trying to get his ex back, but the guys who succeed in getting their woman back are those who remain confident, actively make her have feelings again and guide her back into a relationship.

No Relationship Mistake is Unfixable

[image: Make improvements to prepare for re-attraction]

When some guys hear that the fastest way to get an ex back is by renewing some of her feelings of respect and attraction, they often don't believe it's possible for them because of how bad their break up was and how determined she is to move on.

For example: A guy might say, "Yeah, maybe it will work for other guys, but I really stuffed things up badly with my ex. I don't think I can fix that with her. My situation is different. She really doesn't want anything to do with me now."

What he doesn't realize is that pretty much every other guy says the same thing and thinks that his situation is so unique that it can't be fixed.

It can.

All you've got to do is focus on the fundamental secret to getting her back!

Another reason why some men give up hope on ever getting their ex back, is because most of them believe that a break up is permanent.

Yet, that's just not true.

To begin with, according to a recent American study, about 50% of couples break up and get back together again.

So, contrary to popular belief, most guys are able to get their woman back again these days.

The fact is: A break up is not permanent, if you can make your ex feel differently about you.

Even if you messed up quite badly in your relationship with her (e.g. took her for granted, became clingy, became insecure, allowed her to be the dominant one in the relationship), and even if she currently hates you, when you spark some of her feelings again, she won't be able to help herself from opening back up to you.

She might try to resist what she is feeling because she doesn't want to go back on her decision to break up with you, but her heart will be telling her to give you another chance.

She might even try to keep reminding herself that she doesn't love you anymore, but she won't be able to hold on to her negative feelings for long, when you are making her smile, laugh and feel happy every time you interact with her.

So, when your ex is saying, "You stuffed up. I just don't love you anymore," and she's refusing to even listen to you, it doesn't mean that her love for you is dead.

It doesn't mean you can't get her to reconnect with her feelings of love for you and make her want to get back together again.

Feelings are not static; they change all the time.

For example: Have you ever met a person that you didn't like?

Yet, over time when they changed their behavior and communication style, you found yourself liking them, and possibly even became good friends with them?

That was possible because the person stopped behaving in the ways that were unattractive to you (e.g. being critical of others, talking loudly, pushing their opinions on you, being selfish or rude).

In the same way, right now your ex's feelings have changed towards you and she's thinking of you in a negative way (e.g. sheâs feeling angry, hurt, disappointed, turned off).

Sheâs pushed her love for you into the background and her words and actions confirm that she isnât willing to connect with that love right now.

However, that doesnât mean she will never want to connect with her love for you today, this week or next.

When make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new you (e.g. by making her laugh, smile, feel happy to be interacting with you), then she will naturally become more open to reconnecting with her feelings of love for you again.

The process of getting her back then becomes really easy, because she is feeling open to you.

Nobody is Perfect

When a guy is sitting around at home feeling sad and lonely after a break up and thinking to himself, âI canât eat or sleep properly since being dumped, â itâs not unusual for him to begin idolizing his ex.

Suddenly, rather than seeing her as a normal person, with normal hang-ups and faults just like everyone else, he begins to focus only on the good things about her, until he starts to see himself as being unworthy, or less than, compared to her.

For example: He might think to himself, *âShe was so beautiful and sexy while Iâm so plain and unattractive. No wonder she broke up with me. Why would a hot woman like her want to be stuck with a guy like me? Sheâs out of my league and I got lucky by getting her in the first placeâ|thereâs no way she would want me back now.*â

However, what he doesnât realize is that attracting women is easy because most women feel more attraction for a guyâs behavior and inner qualities than anything else.

Yes, your behavior (e.g. insecure, needy) might have been a turn off, but you can change that and become confident and emotionally secure.

Yes, your inner qualities (e.g. lack of purpose in life, lack of direction, jealousy) may have turned her off, but you can change that and become a purposeful, forward moving man with loves fearlessly.

You donât have to change who you are and become perfect, just better.

Youâve just got to let her experience the new, improved version of you who has improved the things about yourself that were turning her off.

So, before you start idolizing your ex and putting yourself down for not being as valuable as her, consider the fact that she was obviously attracted to you before, otherwise she wouldnât have gone out with you in the first place.

Realize that she isnât perfect.

For example: Ask yourselfâ|

- Did she ever treat you with disrespect?
- Did she ever make you feel unloved and unappreciated?
- Did she accept you for who you are deep inside or did she try to change you?
- Did you feel supported by her, or did you feel like she was using you at times?

- Were you able to grow together as a couple or did she slow you down at times?
- Did you have fun together as a couple or was she sometimes a little boring?

When you ask yourself these types of questions, you will realize that you are not the only one to blame for your break up, and that she also bears some of the responsibility.

The fact is that nobody is perfect.

Yes, maybe your ex is a great woman, but she has faults just like everyone else does and when you can focus on that, you will stop putting her on a pedestal and stop feeling so bad about the break up. Even if it just helps a little bit, it's better than feeling the full emotional pain that you've been experiencing lately.

You've got to realize that you are a good man.

Yes, you made some mistakes, but that is who you were before, not today.

You've become a better man since and you're becoming a better man now as you read this.

When you accept and believe that you are more than good enough to be her man, the idea of having being dumped by her will no longer have so much power over you.

Suddenly you will realize that you can eat and sleep properly because you feel okay with or without her.

Believe That You Can Get Her Back

[image: Change how she feels and she will change her mind]

When you can't eat or sleep properly because you've been dumped, believing that you can actually get your ex back might seem like some impossible dream.

Yet, it's not a dream.

You can make your ex feel differently about you today or tomorrow, by making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction to the new you when you interact with her.

You don't have to sit around wasting time and hoping that things will somehow change by themselves, because changing how she feels is entirely within your control.

You can make the changes happen to her emotions very quickly if you simply interact with her and let her experience the new and improved you.

When you start saying and doing things that actively trigger her feelings of respect and attraction, she won't be able to stop herself from opening up to her feelings of love for you again.

She will begin thinking, "This feels so good. Maybe I was wrong to break up with him," and she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

So, don't sit around feeling helpless because you got dumped.

Instead, focus on using every chance you get to interact with your ex as an opportunity to renew her feelings of respect and love for you.

Then, simply guide her through the final steps of the ex back process until she's back in your arms again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Still Wants Me in Her Life, But Doesn't Want to Be in a Relationship

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When your girlfriend still wants you in her life, but doesn't want to be in a relationship, it usually means that she will be actively trying to find a new guy behind your back, while giving you the impression that there's still hope for you.

It's fine to accept the friendship with her, but you must use any interaction you have with her, to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for you, so that she changes her mind and wants to be with you again.

Watch this video for more info!

The only way to get her to see you as being her boyfriend and lover again, is by actively making her have sexual feelings for you.

Don't try to be an innocent friend who isn't allowed to make her feel sexually attracted, flirt with her or contact her whenever you want.

Be an attractive friend who makes her feel some respect and attraction every time you interact with her.

Telling Her That it's All or Nothing is a Bad Move

Many guys make the mistake of saying something like this to their girlfriend, "Well if I can't be your boyfriend anymore, then forget about being a part of my life."

He is essentially telling her that it's all or nothing. She is either going to be his girlfriend or break up with him, but he can't deal with being her friend.

The girlfriend then feels turned off by his immature, insecure, sulky approach and feels more determined to completely break up with him, so she says, "Fine, let's stay out of each other's lives then."

A guy will then ignore her for weeks or months in the hopes that it make her realize that she made a big mistake.

However, if a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, she's not going to feel like it's a big deal that he's ignoring her, and she'll usually just shrug it off and move on with her life.

Watch this video for more info!

Ignoring her is only going to work if she has strong feelings for you, can't find a replacement guy or if she sees you hooking up with new, hot women.

If that doesn't apply to your situation, you need to actively get her back by making her feel SOMETHING every time you interact with her.

In most cases, all it takes is one successful, attractive interaction on a phone call and the woman's guard comes down, she opens up and meets up with her ex.

However, with really stubborn women who are determined to stick with the break up, it takes 2-3 attractive interactions before she says yes to meeting up or giving the relationship another chance.

So, if your ex currently doesn't have much feelings for you, I don't recommend that you ignore her and hope that she comes back because it rarely works.

The highest success rate approach is the active ex back process where you actively get her back by having attractive interactions that make her drop her guard and open back up to you.

Not all guys ignore their ex in the hopes of getting her back...

[image: Putting up with bad treatment just to be around her]

Some guys are so determined to stay in their girlfriend's life that they accept bad treatment, bad behavior and unreasonable requests from her as long as they can still be around her.

Don't do that either.

Your girlfriend isn't going to respect you if you let her walk all over you and push you around.

Be good to her, but don't be a pushover.

The Choice You Need to Make

Right now, it might seem that you only have two choices, but you actually have three.

Your first choice might be to simply give up and lose the woman that you love.

Your second choice might be to accept that she doesn't want to be your girlfriend anymore, and simply hang around being her friend while you watch her fall in love with new guy.

Fortunately, you do have a third choice.

You can use her offer to be friends as an opportunity to secretly renew her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Whenever you talk to her via text, on the phone, or meet up with her in person, make sure that you spark some of her feelings for you (e.g. by making her laugh, smile and feel happy to be around you, turning her on by being confident and charismatic, making her feel feminine and girly).

She will then naturally start reconnecting with her feelings of love.

She won't be able to help herself, because she will be feeling good whenever she is in your company.

Here are some other ways to attract her!

When you re-attract her in many way during interactions, she her guard will naturally come down.

She will then begin to wonder, "Why do I feel happy when I'm around him, but feel sad when I'm not? Maybe I made a mistake in saying I don't want to be in a relationship with him anymore. Maybe I should just hook up with him again to see how I feel. Why do I miss him so much? Does this mean that we are meant to be together? Is it a sign?"

That's what you want her thinking.

You want her to reconnect with her original feelings of respect, attraction and love for you, while also making her feel newer, more compelling feelings for you.

What you don't want is for her to slot you into the friend zone and give you false hope that she is almost ready to get back with you, while she moves on with some other guy.

If you want to get your girlfriend back into a relationship with you, make sure that you don't make these classic ex boyfriend friend zone mistakes:

1. Becomes a nice, helpful friend to her.

A mistake that some guys make is to think, “My girlfriend still wants me in her life, but doesn’t want to be in a relationship. I’m completely in love with her, but I don’t know how to make her feel the same way. Maybe, if I stick around long enough and be a nice, helpful friend to her, she will eventually see that I’m a good, reliable guy who she can count on, and then she will change her mind and want to be my girlfriend again. I’ve just got to show her how much I care and how willing I am to do what it takes for her to give me another chance.”

Yet, it rarely works that way.

Although there’s nothing wrong with being a part of your ex girlfriend’s life, or even being a good friend that she can turn to from time to time, the main thing to remember is that you should only be her “friend” as a way to get her back.

Don’t do it as a way to show her how nice, generous and kindhearted you are because that isn’t going to make her feel respect and sexual attraction for you.

She might think that you’re so sweet and kind, but if you’re still turning her off in the ways that caused the break up (e.g. lacking confidence, don’t know how to make her feel feminine and girly in comparison to your masculinity, don’t know how to turn her on during conversation), she’s just going to keep you in the friend zone and hook up with a guy who makes her feel attracted.

When a guy becomes available to his ex girlfriend 24/7, where he is always there when she needs him (e.g. she calls him up when she’s having problems with her latest guy, hangs out with him when she’s got nothing else going on in her life), he is usually hoping that she will realize that he’s the one for her, and begin to regret her decision to break up.

However, being a nice, sweet guy to her is not the same as making her feel sexually attracted to him.

A woman might really love and appreciate that a guy is being so mature about their break up and that he’s now such a great friend, but that’s not going to stop her from dating someone else if a guy comes along who makes her feel attracted.

It might seem like she is betraying her ex by doing that, but she’s simply following her feelings and the feeling of attraction beats all other feelings when it comes to relationships between men and women.

So, by all means be a nice friend to your ex girlfriend, as long as you remember that you are only doing it as a way to renew her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you.

2. Pretends that he’s not interested in her in a sexual way anymore.

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that just because they’ve broken up with their girlfriend, they now have to pretend that their feelings for her are suddenly gone.

A guy like this avoids doing anything to actively attract her, because deep down he hopes that this will make her change her mind.

He might be thinking, “If I behave myself around her and show her that I care about her as a person more than anything else, she will see that I respect her and she will then change her mind about us.”

Yet, thatâs not how it works.

In most cases, a woman doesnât suddenly start feeling sexually attracted to a guy if heâs not actively doing something to make her feel that way.

In fact, she loses even more respect and attraction for him for friend zoning himself and letting her treat him like heâs not attractive.

The reality is that you still love your girlfriend and you still want to be in a relationship with her.

So, pretending that youâre not interested in her sexually is being dishonest, and unfair, to both you and her.

Of course, you donât have to go around saying things like, âI still love you so much and Iâm going to do whatever it takes to make you see that weâre meant to be together,â but you do need to continue being a confident, masculine, loving man around her.

How can you do that without scaring her off?

When you interact with your girlfriend, whether by text, on a phone call or in person, make sure that your behavior, the way you talk to her and the way you interact with her is turning her on.

For example: Rather than always being on your best behavior around her and having neutral conversations that she is quickly going to forget, flirt with her, make her laugh and make her feel attracted to you in every chance you get.

Her respect and attraction for you will grow when she sees that you have the confidence to show your desire for her, even though youâre no longer together.

So, donât fall into the trap of being a sweet, platonic friend to her.

Thereâs nothing wrong with flirting with her and making her feel attracted.

Youâre a man and youâre going after what you really want, and thatâs something that all women feel respect and attraction for.

3. Patiently waits around for her even though she is actively looking for another guy.

Many guys who say, âMy girlfriend still wants me in her life, but doesnât want to be in a relationship,â will consciously decide to wait around for their ex in the hopes that she will see how much he really cares for her, and will then give him another chance.

For example: A guy like this might stop going out, even with friends, and stay home alone at night or on the weekends in case she calls him.

Alternatively, he might also refuse to date other women, even though his ex is dating other guys.

In his mind, a guy like this is likely thinking, âIf I show her that Iâm willing to wait for her no matter what, and that nothing else can make me happy besides her, she will see how much I care for her and she will then give me another chance.â

Yet, in most cases, the opposite is true when it comes to women.

When a woman notices that a guy has no life without her, she begins to wonder, âDo I really want to be with a guy who has nothing else going in his life, and needs me to give him purpose? Do no other people or women like him? What did I see in him if others donât even want to be around him? Maybe I made a mistake and was with a guy who didnât deserve me.â

Women love to know that the guy they are with is valuable and that he can have any woman he wants, but he is choosing to be with her.

A woman doesn't want to feel like she's doing him a favor by being with him because no other woman out there wants him.

So, if you want to make your girlfriend feel like she will be losing out by only being friends with you, you need to show her that you're a happy and fulfilled man with or without.

4. Lets her use him.

Sometimes a woman will tell a guy that she doesn't want to be in a relationship with him, but that she still wants him in her life because he is useful to have around.

For example: A guy might let his ex use him to do handyman jobs around her house, help her with bills, or running her errands.

Again, there's nothing wrong with being helpful to an ex, as long as you don't let her walk all over you.

If your ex gets into the habit of calling you up at any time of day or night, and she knows that you will drop everything to rush to her rescue, she will begin to feel like she has power over you.

Some women won't take advantage of that, but many women will.

More importantly, when a woman feels more dominant than a man, she can't feel feminine in contrast to his masculinity, which kills her sexual desire for him.

She also loses respect for him because he lets her push him around, which makes the idea of him being her boyfriend and lover almost impossible because she is just not attracted to that.

Here's the thing though!

You should be helpful to your ex, because if she calls you up and invites you over to help her with some job around her house, it is the perfect opportunity for you to spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Just don't be her Mr. Helper and hope that if you suck up to her enough, she will give you another chance.

Be available to help her, but when you do something for her, make sure that she is there so you can interact with her and re-attract her.

For example: If she calls you and asks you to help her with some repairs in her house, you can say something like, "Sure, no problem, but it's going to cost you. I'm not cheap you know."

She will then likely laugh and say, "Oh, okay, how much do you charge?"

You can say, "10 billion," or "A pizza" and then after you get to her house, and help her out, you can say, "Okay, where's my 10 billion?" or "Where's my pizza?"

Again she will be laughing, smiling and enjoying your company.

You can then say, "The next time I help you with something, maybe you can cook me up some dinner or something. I always enjoyed your cooking" and you are then giving her a reason to want to ask you for more help.

If she is missing you and wishing that you could come over, she will text you or call you and ask you to help her with something.

You can then immediately ask, “What are you cooking me for dinner?” before you say anything else or agree to come over.

The main thing to remember is that every interaction you have with your girlfriend should be used a way to flick her feelings back on.

Actively Making Her Have Feelings For You is the Key to Getting Her Back

[image: Actively re-attracting her while being a friend]

A woman’s attraction to a guy is mostly based on how he makes her feel when he interacts with her.

So, even though right now your girlfriend still wants you in her life, but doesn’t want to be in a relationship with you, it doesn’t mean she will be stuck feeling that way forever.

When you make her feel the way she wants to feel when she’s with a man (e.g. she can look up to you and respect you, she feels feminine and girly in your presence, she laughs and enjoys herself when talking to you, she feels like she can be her real self and open up around you), she naturally begins to see you in a different light.

She naturally starts asking herself, “What’s changed here? Why do I feel so good when I’m with my ex now? Why am I thinking about him all the time? Maybe I should give him another chance who cares what my friends or family think. This is my life and my heart is telling me to give him another chance.”

She feels drawn to you and from there, you just build on the attraction and let her see that things really are different now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Odds of Getting An Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The odds of getting an ex back are high, if you follow the right process.

These days, guys get women back all the time, because there is actually a process you can follow that has been proven to work.

Basically, the fastest way to get an ex back is to actively make her have some feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again.

Once you do that, her guard comes down and you can then guide her through the ex back process.

Where Most Guys Start

[image: Where most guys start]

Most guys start trying to get their woman back when she says something final like, â€œItâ€™s over between us. I donâ€™t have feelings for you anymore.â€

In her mind, she is convinced that she no longer has feelings for him, but the reality is that human feelings are not set in stone.

Feelings change all the time.

Just think about how you have gone from hating someone to liking them, or really disliking a person to really liking them.

You might have even done that with an ex girlfriend. Why? Human emotions can change.

You can change the way your ex feels.

Even if sheâ€™s been saying, â€œThereâ€™s nothing you can say or do that will make me change my mind,â€ she wonâ€™t be able to help herself from feeling drawn to you if you are actively making her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

She will want to get back together with you because it feels good to interact with you now.

Thatâ€™s how it works, regardless of how complicated the break up was or how much the guy stuffed up.

Most guys donâ€™t focus on actively making their ex feel respect, attraction and love again and instead go inactive by ignoring their ex in the hopes that she will come running back.

Other guys donâ€™t give her an inch of space and keep talking, behaving and acting in ways that are unattractive to her.

So, if you want the highest odds of getting your ex back, make sure that you approach this by focusing on her feelings, rather than trying to explain to her why she should give you another chance or by wasting time ignoring her and hoping that she comes back.

Absence Makes the Heart Grow Fonder...or Does it?

[image: Ignoring an ex and hoping that she comes back on her own]

Some guys will waste weeks or even months ignoring their ex, in the hopes that she will come running back.

A guy might think, â€œIâ€™ve heard that absence makes the heart grow fonder. So maybe if I stay out of touch for a while, my ex will forget about all the bad things that happened between us and she will begin to miss me. Then she will either call me up and we can get back together again, or when I call her, she will be happy to hear from me again, rather than tell me she doesnâ€™t want to see me anymore.â€

Yet, thatâ€™s not how it works in almost all ex back cases. Why?

If a woman doesnâ€™t have feelings for a guy, sheâ€™s not going to feel like sheâ€™s missing out on much if she stops hearing from him, and she will usually just move on.

Look at it this wayâ€¦

Imagine what must be going on in a womanâ€™s head when she has just broken up with a guy. She is likely feeling hurt, angry, disappointed, and a whole host of other negative emotions.

So, if a woman currently feels like she hates her ex, not hearing from him is not going to suddenly make her think, â€œHmmmâ€¦ I miss my ex so much! Even though I hated him previously, now that I havenâ€™t heard from him in such a long time, I canâ€™t get him out of my mind. I didnâ€™t have feelings for him near the end, but wow â€œ I canâ€™t bear not having him in my life. Not hearing from him has made me realize that I canâ€™t live without him. I need him!â€

Instead, she is more likely going to be thinking, â€œGood riddance to that rubbish boyfriendâ€ or â€œI knew he was the wrong guy for me, and now his actions are confirming that. He hasnâ€™t even called me to try and get me back. What an assholeâ€ or â€œThank you for not contacting me! It forced me to go out and meet some guys and I hooked up with a few. Iâ€™m now moving on with my life and forgetting all about you.â€

This is why I only recommend that a guy give his woman 3 to 7 days of space before contacting her to guide her through the ex back process.

Ignoring her for too long often makes her feel like you donâ€™t even care.

She might be saying to you that sheâ€™s over it and doesnâ€™t want you back, but thatâ€™s just what she is saying.

What she says and what she will respond to are two completely different things, which is why you need to have the confidence and courage to guide her back into a relationship.

When you do get back together, she will thank you for giving her the exciting, exhilarating experience of falling back in love with a guy that she once hoped was the one.

Getting back with an ex is a really enjoyable experience for both the man and the woman, so donâ€™t deprive you and her of that by ignoring her because you think contacting her will make you look needy.

You will only look needy if you are actually needy (i.e. you need her for your emotional security, youâ€™re not happy without her).

If you are happy with or without her and then contact her to get her back, then youâ€™re a confident, loving, masculine man who is doing the right thing and guiding his woman back into a more amazing, loving relationship than before.

Yet, if you donâ€™t call, she may begin to think, â€œWell obviously I didnâ€™t mean that much to him, so Iâ€™m not going to waste any more time crying over what could have been. Iâ€™m going to go out and get laid,â€” or â€”I canâ€™t believe I thought he loved me when that is obviously not true. If he loved me he would have called, so Iâ€™m getting on with my life from now on. Iâ€™m going to let that guy at work take me out on a date to make me feel special. Heâ€™ll treat me nicely and I may just sleep with him at the end of the night.â€”

When she starts thinking that way, she begins to disconnect from her feelings for ex and before she knows it, she feels fine without him.

Thatâ€™s not what you want.

Based on all of my experience helping guys to get women back, the odds of getting an ex back by ignoring her are only 20%, whereas active re-attraction has about an 80% success rate.

Of course, some guys could have gotten her back, but simply didnâ€™t follow the attraction instructions that I provide in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System.

Active re-attraction, plus the courage and confidence to keep pushing forward as you guide her back into a relationship will give you the highest odds of getting her back.

Donâ€™t waste time ignoring her if you are ready to start re-attracting her.

If you ignore her for a long time and are stuck at pretty much the same level that you were when she broke up with you, sheâ€™s just going to disconnect from you again.

On the other hand, when you actively make your ex have feelings for you again (e.g. by making her feel like a real woman around you, allowing her to look up to you and respect you as a man, making her laugh and smile) the odds of getting her back go way up.

She then starts to wonder, â€”Whatâ€™s going on here? Why do I feel good when Iâ€™m around him and miss him when Iâ€™m not talking to him? Why am I suddenly worried that he might find another girlfriend? What is this feeling? I want to see him.â€”

From that moment on, all youâ€™ve got to do is to continue saying and doing the types of things that attract her while you confidently guide her back into a relationship.

Decreasing the Odds

[image: Decreasing the odds of getting your ex back]

If you are saying and doing the types of things that turn your ex off, your odds of getting her back are going to plummet.

On the other hand, when you make some attractive changes and improvements to the way you are talking to her and interacting with her, your odds go up.

So, what are the types of things that turn a woman off?

1. Trying to convince her to change her mind.

One of the most common reactions that guys have when they get broken up with is to try to convince their ex to change her mind with long explanations, debates, or discussions, rather than triggering her feelings of respect, attraction and love to allow her to naturally change her mind on her own.

What a guy like this doesnâ€™t realize, is that for his woman to come to the decision to break up with him, she will have probably been thinking about it for a long, long time.

She may even have said something like, “If you don’t change this thing, I’m going to break up with you,” or “I can’t live like this for much longer. If you don’t make some changes I’m going to leave you.”

He might just write that off as her being emotional and acting like a typical woman, but they are honest warning that a woman will eventually act upon.

Saying things like that is a woman’s way of giving a guy a second (and even in some cases a third or fourth) chance to change and become the man that she needs him to be.

So, by the time she breaks up with him, his explaining, debating, or discussing with her why she should give him another chance usually falls on deaf ears, because she’s likely thinking, “I’ve given you so many chances and nothing has ever changed. Why should this time be any different?”

The fact is, a guy cannot convince a woman to change her mind with mere words, if he’s not also getting her to feel real respect and attraction for him again via his actions and behavior.

Without properly re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction first, she’s usually going to be saying things like, “I know you mean well, but it’s just not working out between us anymore,” or “I know you still care about me, but I just don’t feel the same way about you anymore.”

Essentially what she’s saying is that his explanations, debates and discussions are not actually triggering any strong feelings for him, and therefore, she’s not seeing any point in giving him another chance.

So, if you want to increase your odds of getting an ex back, the most important thing to focus on is triggering her feelings of respect, attraction and love by behaving in some of the ways that are attractive to women (e.g. by making her feel feminine and girly when she’s in your presence, making her smile and laugh when she’s interacting with you, being charismatic).

By triggering her feelings of respect and attraction, you are allowing her to change her mind on her own, rather than trying to force her to do it by pleading, begging, asking, convincing, and debating with her.

Then, getting back together will feel like the right thing for her to do, not like she is doing you a favor or being forced into giving you another chance out of pity or because you feel like you deserve it.

2. Thinking that improving your physical appearance will increase your odds of getting her back.

When some guys learn that the fastest way to get an ex back is by triggering her feelings of attraction, the mistake they make is thinking about attraction in terms of their physical appearance.

For example: A guy might start going to the gym and working out because he has heard women saying things like, “Oh! Guys with big muscles are so hot,” or “Look at his abs. Wow” or, he has seen women drooling over the male models in magazines.

He may then think something like, “If I have to trigger my ex’s feelings of attraction to get her back, then I’ll need an excellent gym physique. Being just an ordinary guy isn’t going to turn her on. I need to look good.”

Alternatively, some guys will go and buy lots of new clothes and shoes, hoping to attract her back with their new, fashionable look.

Yet, here's the thingâ€¦|

Looks, clothes or muscles are not as attractive to a woman as a manâ€™s ability to attract her emotionally.

Essentially, a womanâ€™s emotional attraction to a guy is based on how he makes her feel when sheâ€™s with him.

For example: Does he make her feel like a real woman around him (feminine, girly, submissive, emotional), or does she feel emotionally stronger than him because he is being needy, clingy or insecure?

Can she look up to him and respect him as a man, or does she look down on him and feel like she has to be his teacher in life on how to be the kind of man she needs him to be?

Is he confident enough to be able to make her laugh and smile (especially when she is being cold towards him), or does he crumble at the first sign of resistance from her?

These are the things that are much more attractive to women than a guy's looks.

Yes, some women are attracted to the more superficial things in men (e.g. muscles, clothes, cars) but the majority of women are more attracted to behaviors and inner qualities about men and how it makes her feel.

So, if youâ€™re serious about getting your ex back, you have to understand one thingâ€¦| her emotional attraction for you is what she refers to as her "feelings."

If, right now, sheâ€™s saying things like, â€œI don't have feelings for you anymore,â€ or, â€œMy feelings for you are gone,â€ what sheâ€™s basically saying is that the way you are interacting with her now is not triggering her feelings of attraction for you.

However, that doesn't mean that you can't start to trigger those feelings inside of her. You can.

When You Trigger Her Feelings of Respect, Attraction and Love She Will Naturally Change Her Mind

[image: It's not too late to change how she feels]

If you are serious about getting your ex back, the main thing you need to focus on, is to use every interaction that you have with her (e.g. via text, on social media, on a phone call, in person) to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

How can you do that?

You can do that byâ€¦|

- Adjusting the way that youâ€™re talking to her.
- Making some changes and improvements to the way you are interacting with her.
- Reacting differently to what she says and does (e.g. not taking her bitchy or cold behavior so seriously and instead turning it into something to laugh about together).

- Making her feel feminine and girly in your presence.
- Making her smile, laugh and feel happy when she's interacting with you.
- Showing her that you've moved beyond the level you were at when you broke up.

When you interact with her in ways that trigger her feelings of respect and attraction, everything changes automatically.

The odds of getting her back go way up, because she is now feeling drawn to you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Can I Prove to My Ex That I Am the Right Guy For Her?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're asking, How can I prove to my ex that I am the right guy for her? the simple answer is!

Prove that you are the right guy for her by showing her, rather than trying to explain why.

You need to interact with her on the phone or in person and make her have the type of feelings that naturally make her want to be in a relationship with you.

For example: Does she currently look up to you and respect you as a man?

If not, that's the main thing that you need to fix first, otherwise she will not allow herself to feel attracted to you.

Are you able to make her feel attracted, and laugh, smile and feel good when interacting with you?

If not, that's the second thing you that need to improve.

Once you get some of her respect and attraction back, she will then look at you in a different light.

All it takes is a little spark to begin the process, and you then build on it immediately, or during 2-3 more interactions that bring her guard down and make her want to get back together with you.

Once you have re-sparked your ex's feelings and begun to build on them, she will realize that you really have changed and that she now feels so much better when interacting with you.

In most cases, the woman will then consider giving her ex another chance because things really are different now.

Common Mistakes That Will Make Her Think You Are NOT the Right Guy For Her

When a guy is feeling desperate about getting his ex back, he might begin to make mistakes that turn her off even further and cause her to close up and not even want to discuss the relationship any more.

So, if you're going to prove to your ex that you're the right guy for her, here are 5 mistakes you should avoid making!

1. Apologizing excessively.

[image: Apologizing excessively]

Most guys in the world are good guys.

So, when a woman breaks up with a good guy, it's only natural that he will want to apologize for causing her so much emotional pain and frustration in the relationship.

Although there is nothing wrong with apologizing to a woman after a break up, there is definitely a right way and a wrong way to do it.

The wrong way to do it is by apologizing to her over and over again, and taking the blame for everything that happened between you and her.

For example: A guy might say something like, I'm so sorry! Please forgive me. I know that itâ€™s all my fault. You treated me so nicely, gave me so many chances and I just took it all for granted. I’m sorry. I can’t bear the thought of being the one to cause you so much pain. I can’t say sorry enough times. Can you ever forgive me? Pleaseâ€¦letâ€™s just start over again. I’m sorry.â€

He assumes that if he shows her just how sorry he is for what happened between them, it will change how she feels and she will then open up and take him back.

Yet, thatâ€™s not how it works.

The main reason why excessive apologizing doesn’t work is that in most cases, a woman will have broken up with a guy for deeper, more complex reasons.

So, him simply saying, â€œIâ€™m sorry,â€ and hoping that everything will then be better again, makes her feel like heâ€™s not really aware of the deeper reasons why she broke up with him.

For example: A guy might have used her as an excuse to hide from his true potential in life.

Initially, she was flattered that he wanted to spend so much time with her, but she eventually realized that he was going nowhere fast and was yet another guy who was afraid to rise up to reach for his true potential as a man.

Instead, he just used her and the relationship as a way to waste time and hide away from following through on his ambitions and dreams.

She may have nagged him to do more with his life, get promoted or start that project he used to tell her about when they first met, but he just didn’t listen to her warnings.

Since they had been so in love at the beginning of the relationship, he assumed that she would just stick around and love him for who he had become.

Yet, that’s not how it works.

Another example is when a guy becomes clingy, needy and insecure and needs his woman to constantly reassure him of her love.

Initially, she might think that it’s sweet how attentive he is, but when it turns into jealous insecurity, controlling clingy behavior and neediness, it quickly begins to turn sour.

These examples (and many more) are the types of deeper, more complex reasons that cause a woman to break up with a guy.

So, when a guy is apologizing, taking the blame for everything and expecting her to just forgive him, heâ€™s not making the woman feel like heâ€™s fully understood the seriousness of what went wrong between them.

Sheâ€™s not feeling heard and understood and feels as though he is saying sorry to get another chance, but doesn’t have a clue how to quickly transform into the type of man that she needs him to be.

So, by all means, go ahead and apologize to your ex, but if you want to prove to her that youâ€™re the right guy for her, the right way to do it, is by showing her that youâ€™ve begun to understand what caused her to break up with you in the first place.

For example: A way to apologize that will get some of her respect and attraction back, is by saying something like, â€œIâ€™m sorry for what happened between us. I now see what I did wrong and understand why you felt that you needed to break up with me. I accept that, but I do want to tell you that Iâ€™m not the same guy that you broke up with. I understand that you can’t believe me right away and that's okay, but I want you to know that I'm sorry and I accept the break up.

From there, make sure that you use every interaction you have with her as an opportunity to spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you even more.

2. Using text or e-mail to write long messages explaining how much you have learned since the break up.

[image: Bombarding ex with texts]

It's only natural that when a woman is saying, "Leave me alone. I don't want to see you or talk to you again. I've realized that you're not the right guy for me," a guy is going to feel completely stuck about how he can go about convincing her that he's really changed.

He might then decide that if she won't talk to him on the phone, or see him in person, the only way he can get through to her is by sending her a text message or an e-mail to explain to her how much he's learned since their break up.

Although this might seem as the only way to get through to her, rather than convince her that he's a different man, in most cases it actually makes her lose even more respect for him as a man. Why?

Look at it this way:

When a woman has broken up with a guy and is currently feeling negative emotions about him (e.g. anger, resentment, a lack of respect), she's likely not going to look at a text message or e-mail from him in a favorable light.

Basically, because she cannot see him, she has to guess at his state of mind.

So, if in her mind she is thinking negative things about him (e.g. "He's clingy," "He has no purpose in his life," "He's emotionally weak") she's not going to give him the benefit of the doubt that he's now a completely changed man and is no longer insecure.

Instead, she is likely going to be thinking, "What does my ex want? He keeps telling me that he's changed, but I don't believe him. Why should I?"

Essentially, most things that he says via text or e-mail, will usually be judged by her in a negative way.

On the other hand, if he talks to her in person, she can notice for herself that he's changed without him having to tell her.

She can experience his confidence, and she can see that he's learned from his past mistakes via the way he talks, behaves and interacts with her.

So, if you want to prove to your ex that you're the right guy for her, then you should only text her as a way to get her on a phone call, where you can then spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you by making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be interacting with you again.

From there, you need to get her to agree to see you in person, so that you can continue to build those feelings of respect and attraction in her.

When you spark her feelings for you again, her guard begins to come down and she opens up to being with you again because it now feels good to her.

3. Pleading with her to remember the good times.

[image: Please remember the good times]

A mistake that some guys make is to beg and plead with their ex to remember how good it used to be between them.

For example: A guy might say, â€œHow can you forget all the good times we had together? Yes, I messed up, but don't all the good times make up for that? What we had can't be found with anyone else! Please give me another chance to show you that I'm the right guy for you. What you and I have is special. I screwed up I know, but please give me another chance. I'm begging you. You are the only woman I've ever truly loved. I don't want anyone else. Please give me another chance! Please!

Obviously, the guy really loves her, but it's not an approach that works on a woman who has lost touch with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for a guy.

In most cases, when a woman is not feeling attracted to him and not feeling respect for him, she just doesn't care that he cares about her, the relationship or anything else.

His feelings just don't matter to her because she no longer feels respect, attraction and love for him. She has to be cold in that way to disconnect herself from the relationship.

If she cares about his feelings, he will be able to get her back very easily, so she disconnects.

When he tries to reason with her and explain that what they had together was special, she's likely going to say something like, â€œYes, what we had in the beginning was good, but it hasn't been good for a long time. The fact that you don't even know why I'm breaking up with you, tells me that nothing has really changed. So, there's really no reason to get back together again. You just don't understand me. You're not the right guy for me.

Essentially what she's saying is that her positive feelings for him (e.g. respect, attraction, love) have been replaced by negative feelings (e.g. anger, resentment, pain), so she no longer feels like he is the guy for her.

Unless he actively makes her have feelings for him again, she's not going to change her mind.

She won't start thinking, â€œHmmm, hang on a second. He's right! Our relationship was so wonderful in the beginning. We had such great times together. He was so nice to me, so romantic, so sweet. Well, based on that I'm going to stick with him and hopefully one day things will get better. I don't care that he doesn't understand what I want. I'm just going to get back together with him because things used to be good.

Unfortunately, that's just not how it works.

These days, women no longer have to stay in a relationship that doesn't suit them.

In the past, a woman was expected to stay with her husband until death, regardless of whether she was happy, or even if he was a bad man.

Today, if a woman isn't feeling the way she wants to feel in a relationship, she can break up with her boyfriend (fianc  or husband) and move on.

So, if you want your ex back, don't waste a lot of time pleading and trying to convince your ex that you're the right guy for her based on the past.

She needs to feel respect and attraction for you right now based on experiencing the new and improved version of you.

How you make her feel now is what counts.

4. Telling her that no other guy will love her like you do.

[image: Begging and pleading for forgiveness]

You know how much you love her.

Yet, that isn't what she is going to care about now that she has disconnected with her feelings for you.

If a woman doesn't have feelings for her ex, hearing something like, â€œYou will never find a guy who will love you like I do. You are everything to me. Why can't you see that I'm the right guy for you? I love you more than life itselfâ€ isn't going to matter that much to her.

Basically, a woman won't care that a guy loves her, if she doesn't respect him or feel attracted to him.

If there is no respect or attraction, she will disconnect with the love and she won't be able to reconnect with it until he makes her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new and improved version of him.

If you don't make her have feelings for you first, she's not going to care how much you love her compared to other guys.

If another guy comes along and makes her feel respect and attraction for him in ways that you are currently unable to, she's going to value him more than she does you.

I know, it sucks to even think about that, but that's how human relationships work.

It's a value exchange.

You get a lot of value from her based on the feelings you have for her, but if she doesn't get that same value in return, it's a bad deal and she won't want to be a part of it.

She will seek to find a guy who can give her the value that has been missing and that she feels she deserves.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too insecure and clingy, her new guy will usually be more confident and self-assured.

If a woman broke up with a guy because he lacked purpose and direction in life, she will likely choose a guy who is more focused and driven.

Ultimately, it won't matter to a woman how much her ex loves her and cares for her, if he's unable to give her the experience she wants in a relationship.

So, don't worry about telling your ex how much you love her.

She's not going to care about that until you can prove to her that you are the right guy for her by actually being that guy.

Not talking about it with her, but doing it.

When she feels respect and attraction to the new and improved you, she will automatically start to reconnect with the love that she had for you before, even if she doesn't want to or didn't intend to.

Once it feels like more of an even value exchange, she will begin to appreciate that you really love her more than any other guy and she now feels attracted and respectful towards you whenever she interacts with you.

5. Saying that your life would not be worth living without her in it.

Some guys simply can't deal with the reality of being dumped by a woman that they love.

This is especially true when a guy has made the classic mistake of detaching from everything else in his life (e.g. his friends, interests, hobbies), to focus all of his attention on his girlfriend (fiancée or wife).

When he gets broken up with, he feels like his entire world is coming crashing down around him.

He might also feel betrayed because she would have most likely said that she wanted to grow old with him and stay with him forever.

Now, she wants out of the relationship?

It's a horrible moment for a guy to go through when he realizes that relationships are a decision.

Both people either decide to be together or not and each of them have the individual power to say, "Yes" or "No" to staying or leaving themselves.

A guy then realizes that he doesn't own his woman and that she can leave him for her own reasons, regardless of what he says.

He might say something like, "How can you do this to me? I've devoted my life to you and now you're leaving me. I can't live without you. There's just no point anymore everything I did was for you and now that you're gone, why should I carry on without you? I don't want to be alive any more. You are what I live for, our relationship that is what I care about."

Yet, here's the thing!

A woman does want to be appreciated, love and wanted, but she doesn't want to be a guy's reason for living or purpose in life.

So, when a guy tries to prove to his ex that he is the right guy for her by threatening to hurt himself, it usually backfires and turns the woman off even further.

She realizes that he isn't mature enough to keep an adult relationship together and she decides to just leave him and try to find a man who is ready to be what she needs in a relationship.

So, the best way to prove to your ex that you're the right guy for her is by re-sparking some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you, and the way to do that is to show her that you are being an emotionally strong guy who can live with, or without her.

It's not about telling her that you don't want her in your life.

You want her, but you don't need her.

You can show her that you don't need her by making progress in your life without her.

However, if she asks whether or not you still love her or miss her, the answer is, "Yes."

You still love her and miss her, but you accept the break up and are moving on with your life.

That then allows her to relax and feel like you're not trying to force her back into a relationship.

Then, as you build on her feelings of respect and attraction for you, her guard comes down and she opens back up to being in a relationship with you again.

A Break Up Doesn't Have to Be Permanent (Most Aren't)

It's frustrating when you can clearly see that you're the right guy for your ex, but she can't.

It's like she is completely forgetting all the good times you had and only focusing on the negatives. While that might be true, it's nothing to waste any more time worrying about.

What works to get a woman back is to make her feel the types of feelings she wants to feel (e.g. respect, attraction) in a relationship, so that she naturally begins to feel drawn to you again.

So, rather than doing the kind of things that will turn her off even more (e.g. sending her long e-mails or messages, begging, pleading, apologizing excessively, telling her how much you love her, threatening to hurt yourself), just focus on using every interaction that you have with her as an opportunity to re-spark some of her feelings for you.

When you make her smile, laugh and feel happy to be interacting with you, she will naturally drop her guard and be more open to the idea of getting back together again.

Respect and attraction comes first, and then everything else will follow on naturally from there.

You can do this.

You can prove to her that you are the right guy for her, reactivate her feelings and quickly guide her back into a relationship with you.

These days, guys all over the world are able to get their woman back after a break up, because you and other guys are no longer on your own with this.

I'm here to help you get your ex back and make her realize that you are the one for her.

You can leave my site now and try to work out what you need to say and do to get another chance with her, or you can let me help you further.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Doesn't My Ex Girlfriend Care That We've Broken Up?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex girlfriend doesn't care that you and her have broken up, it's usually only a temporary phase that she is going through.

Here's how it worksâ€¦!

When a woman loses respect and attraction for a guy (e.g. because he has become too insecure, needy, clingy or controlling), she disconnects from the love that she used to feel.

The love that she has for you is still there in the background, but she is no longer connecting with it because you haven't been able to respark her feelings for you since the break up.

Of course, that doesn't mean that you can't start to respark those feelings now.

You can.

You can make some changes and improvements to the way you are talking to her and interacting with her, so she starts to smile, laugh and feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

For example: When a guy is interacting with his ex, she might say something like, â€œI know you still care about me, but I really don't have feelings for you anymore. I'm doing fine on my own. Please just leave me alone,â€ or â€œIt's over between us. I'm moving on with my life and you should do the same. I'm much happier now without you.â€

If he reacts by getting upset or continually asking her why she is being so cold, she will want to close up even more because she's just not feeling it with him any more.

If he wants to make her feel some respect and attraction for him, he needs to react by remaining calm, confident and focused on making her smile, laugh and feel good when talking to him.

When he does that, she can't help but begin to look at him in a new, more positive light.

Rather than feeling as though she wants to completely cut him out of her life, she will open back up and be willing to talk to him.

â€¦and that is how he gets her back.

With every interaction that he has with her, he actively makes her feel more respect and attraction for him and she then naturally begins to reconnect with the love.

When you have successfully reactivated her feelings, she then begins to want to spend more time around you or at least talk to you on the phone to see how she feels.

When you and her aren't interacting, she begins to miss you and wonder why she has feelings for you again.

Then, she either says that she wants to get back together, give the relationship another try for a while or at the very least, just meet up in person to say hi so she can see how she feels.

So, if you've been thinking, â€œIt's hopeless. I don't think my ex will ever have feelings for me again. She currently doesn't even care that we've broken up,â€ you need to stop believing that you can't do anything about it.

You can.

You can respark her feelings and get her to begin caring that you're not around and are probably going to move on with another girl if she doesn't act soon.

Mistakes That Some Guys Make When Their Ex Doesn't Care About the Break Up

[image: My girlfriend doesn't care that we have broken up]

When a guy realizes that his woman is totally fine with the break up, it can feel like a huge punch in the guts.

It hurts.

When a guy is hurting emotionally, he might sometimes make one or more of the following mistakes, which pushes his ex away even further!

1. Pleading With Her to Change Her Mind

Naturally, getting broken up with sucks, especially if it's with a woman that you truly love, care about and want to be with.

However, privately feeling sad and disappointed that a relationship had ended, is not the same as breaking down and becoming an emotional wreck by begging and pleading to her.

For example: A guy might plead with his ex by saying things like, â€œYou can't let what we've had together just die. I love you! Don't you care about that? You mean so much to me. Why can't you see that? Just give me another chance and I'll prove to you that things can be different between us. Please!!! or â€œI'm so sorry for hurting you. Please! Please! Please! Don't do this to us. Just let me show you that I can change. I'm begging you, please!

In most cases, the more that a guy pleads, begs, cries to her or carries on behaving in an overly emotional way, the more it annoys and turns the woman off.

Why? Women are not attracted to the emotional weakness in men.

[image: My girlfriend doesn't care that we have broken up]

It's a huge sexual and romantic turn off.

Women are always attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, self-assurance, self-belief, high self-esteem, determination to succeed), and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. self-doubt, insecurity, clinginess, neediness).

So, when a guy is falling apart around a woman, rather thinking to herself, â€œWow, he must really care about me to be such an emotional mess, she will usually feel repulsed, disgusted and disappointed that he lacks the emotional masculinity of a real man.

If your ex has lost respect and attraction for you and doesn't care that you've broken up, pleading with her to change her mind will only make her further disconnect from the love she used to feel for you.

So, how should you react if your ex is saying things like, â€œI don't love you anymore, or â€œYou mean nothing to me now. It's over get used to it, instead of pleading with her to change her mind?

A good way to react is by accepting her decision in a confident way without making a big fuss about it.

For example: You might say to her, “I understand why you’re feeling like that about me now and I accept that. I now understand what I did wrong when we were together, and I accept full responsibility for my actions. I’m sorry that I hurt you.”

From then on, every time you interact with her, you need to focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by displaying some of the traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, maturity, self-assurance, determination, charisma, emotional masculinity).

You need to let her experience the new, improved, more attractive version of yourself, based on how you talk to her, behave, think and take action.

All of that is within your control.

You can actively respark her feelings of respect and attraction for you by the way you behave around her, without ever having to plead with her to change her mind.

To get an ex back, you need to change how she feels by interacting with her in an attractive way, rather than trying to change mind by explaining things to her in a logical way.

For example: Rather than saying, “I think you should give me another chance because of these reasons,” you simply need to think, talk, behave, feel, take action and react to her in an attractive way and she will change her mind on her own.

It will then become her idea to want to get back together with you.

It will feel right to her because she will feel attracted and drawn to you and won’t feel like you’re trying to force her to get back together with you because you need her for your own emotional security.

2. Pouring Your Heart Out to Her to Show How Much You Care

It’s painful to still be in love with a woman who says she isn’t in love with you.

You feel so much for her, but she is acting like you didn’t ever mean a thing to her or that you no longer mean anything.

It sucks.

Yet, you have to retain control of your emotions and not turning into Mr. Romantic who wants to pour his heart out in texts, e-mails, letters, voicemail messages, social media messages or in person.

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that the only way to get through to her is by letting her know how much he really cares.

For example: A guy might call up his ex girlfriend, text her, or even write her a long love letter or e-mail, telling her how much he cares for her.

He might say things like:

- “Why don’t you care that we’ve broken up? You mean so much to me. I can’t think, eat, sleep or work properly since the break up. I love you so much. Please don’t be like this. I care about you and I want to work this out.”
- “Doesn’t what we had together mean anything to you? How can you turn your back on me? What we had was special and it means so much to me. I've never loved another woman the way that I love you. Not even close. Does that even matter to you?â€œ

- â€œI just can't get over you so easily. I'm disappointed to see that you don't even care that we've broken up. It's like I meant nothing to you.â€œ
- â€œYou mean too much to me for me to give up on us being together again.â€œ
- â€œCan't you see that I'm nothing without you?â€œ
- â€œYou're my reason for being. You mean the world to me. My life is not worth living without you.â€œ

The guy is simply being honest and he really does love her, but that isn't what gets a woman back after a break up.

The truth is that a woman doesn't care how much a guy cares for her, if she doesn't have feelings for him.

It has to be mutual.

If he is madly in love with her and she's feeling nothing or not much at all, she is going to feel annoyed or even emotionless when she gets his messages of love.

If he wants her back, he needs to actively make her have some feelings for him first, otherwise she's not going to care that he cares for her.

So, if you want your ex girlfriend back don't waste time telling her how much you care for her, because if she's not feeling a lot of respect and attraction for you right now, it's just not going to matter to her.

She might reply with, "Thanks, but please respect my decision," to be nice, but she'll likely be thinking, "Whatever! I'm over you and nothing that you say or do is going to make me change my mind."

Yet, she's wrong.

What will change her mind is if you respark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Then, she won't be able to help herself from feeling drawn to you.

She will start to think, "Why am I missing him all of sudden? Why does it feel good to talk to him now? Why do I want to hug him and kiss him all of a sudden? Could this mean that he is the one? Should I at least give him another chance?"

She will only think that way if you first reactivate her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

However, if you just want to tell her how much you care about her, she's probably going to continue ignoring you and moving on because there's nothing for her to feel drawn to.

She has disconnected with her feelings for you and if you want her back, you need to get those feelings reconnected and charging.

When she's fully charged, she will be fully back in love with you again and will thank you for giving her the exciting experience of falling back in love with the guy that she once felt so much for.

3. Asking Her to Explain Her Reasons For the Break Up So You Can Change

When a woman finally decides to break up with her man, he may feel shocked or even surprised by the sudden news.

He might then ask her questions like, “But why? What did I do wrong?” or “Please tell me what you want me to change and I’ll do it. Just explain to me what the problem is and I promise that I will fix it. I will do anything to fix this. Just tell me what I need to change.”

Prior to making her decision to break up with him, she would have given him many clues (e.g. by nagging him, complaining and having fights about unimportant things to show him that she was unhappy), so if he hasn’t been able to read between the lines and make the necessary changes, she’s not going to want to spell it out for him now.

Why? A woman doesn’t want to be a guy’s teacher in life about how to be a man.

Life would be a lot easier if women were completely explicit and open about exactly what they want, but that’s not how women work.

Women don’t want to take on a mother, big sister or teacher role in a guy’s life and guide him through a process of understanding what a real man is.

A guy either knows it by learning from male role models as he is growing up, or he learns it by seeking out male role models who can teach him.

However, if he turns to his own woman for advice on how to be a real man, she isn’t going to want to take on that role because it will further destroy her feelings of sexual attraction and respect for him.

He needs to work this out himself or with help from other men.

For example: If a guy was insecure and needy during the relationship, his woman will want him to realize that by himself and then show her that he is now a confident, emotionally secure man.

If a guy lacked purpose and direction in his life, his woman will need to see that he has set some big goals for himself and is working towards accomplishing them.

Just doing that isn’t going to get her back, but it will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him and he can then use that feeling to guide her back into a relationship.

However, if a guy can’t even step up to a new level of manhood without her help, then she will feel like he needs her to hold his hand and guide him through the process of becoming a better man.

That’s not attractive to her.

She wants him to figure out how to be a man without her help, rather than him asking her how or what to change to make her happy and give him another chance.

If he can figure out how to be attractive to her by himself, she will then look up to him, respect him and feel a renewed sense of trust in him as a man.

4. Demanding That She Give You Another Chance

[image: My girlfriend doesn't care that we have broken up]

When a guy gets broken up with, he will go through a range of emotions (e.g. shock, pain, depression, disbelief, loneliness, panic).

In some cases, a guy might even begin to feel angry about what he believes his ex girlfriend is doing to him.

He will feel as though she is betraying him, which will cause him to feel anger and want to verbally attack her about that.

For example: He might say to her, “How could you do this to me? You selfish bitch. I’ve done so much for you in this relationship and now you want to turn your back on me? I refuse to accept this. You can't just throw away what we shared. You owe me another chance for all that I've done for you.

Yet, here's the thing!

Feeling as though you are entitled to your girlfriend, or that she is obligated to be with you because of what you've done for her isn't going to make a woman suddenly change how she feels about you.

As much as it sucks to hear this, the truth is that a woman is not your property.

She is an individual, and she can choose to be with you, or choose to break up with you and move on with someone else if she wants to.

I know, that is pretty annoying to think about her being with another guy. It sucks.

However, what you need to understand is that being in a relationship is a decision that can change if either person can't make the other person experience a sufficient amount of feelings to want to stick with the relationship.

For example: If a woman is a complete bitch to her boyfriend, but really loves him, he doesn't have to stay with her.

If he expects to be loved and treated well, it doesn't matter how much she loves him because she has been a complete bitch to him.

So, he will decide to break up with her and replace her with a new woman who will treat him well.

She might then feel betrayed and feel like she is entitled to get another chance because of all the great sex she gave him, but he is an individual and can dump her if she isn't giving him the relationship experience he feels he deserves.

If you want to get your ex girlfriend back, you can't do it by demanding that she give you another chance just because of the love that you shared, how nice you were to her or how much you care.

Just because she was in a relationship with you doesn't mean she owes you anything.

She loved you before and now she has disconnected herself from that love because you weren't making her feel the way that she wanted to feel in a relationship.

Of course, that was then and this is now.

When you respark your ex girlfriend's feelings of respect and attraction for you again, she will begin to wonder all by herself (without you forcing her), Why am I feeling this way? Why am I even considering giving my ex boyfriend another chance? Why do I miss him now? I'm trying to stop thinking about him, but I can't. I just want to look at our old photos|look at us|we used to be so happy. I want to catch up with him in person and see how I feel.

Suddenly, the negative things about your relationship seem way less important to her, because she naturally feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

What You Need to Do to Get Her Back

You can waste a lot of time wondering, Why doesn't my ex girlfriend care that we've broken up? and wait around hoping that she will somehow realize that she's made a mistake, or you can actively make her want to get back together with you.

How do you do that?

You need to use every interaction that you have with your ex girlfriend (e.g. via text, on a phone call, or in person) to respark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

When you respark her feelings for you, her guard comes down and you can then build on those feelings and guide her back into a relationship with you.

However, if you continue to interact with her in ways that turn her off (e.g. plead with her, tell her how much you care, ask her to tell you what you need to change, demand that she give you another chance, seek pity from her), then getting her back is going to be a very difficult, if not impossible process for you.

She's just going to be saying, "Why can't you get it into your head that I just don't have any feelings for you? You need to move on," because you're not saying and doing things that are making her have feelings for you.

So, when you interact with her from now on, focus on re-sparking her feelings for you by making her smile, laugh, feel happy, and by showing her that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

When you make her feel the way she wants to feel when she's interacting with you, she won't be able to keep her guard up for too long.

Even if she fights her feelings at first, eventually she'll begin to think to herself, "What's different? What's changed? Why am I feeling drawn to him again?" and from there you can continue to build on her feelings of respect and attraction for you and guide her back into a relationship with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Can't Deal With the Thought of My Ex Being Happy With a New Man

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When you're thinking, I can't deal with the thought of my ex being happy with a new man, it might feel like it will be impossible to change how she feels and get her back.

Yet, it is possible and you can get her back.

However, before you can get her back, you need to make sure that you become independently happy without her.

If a woman is trying to get a guy back, she doesn't have to become independently happy without how. However, when a man is trying to get a woman back, he needs to become emotionally independent because that is attractive to women.

If you are sad, lost and lonely without her, she will feel turned off by your emotional weakness. However, if you are happy, forward moving and emotionally fulfilled without her, she will feel attracted to you.

So, if you are serious about getting her back, you must start the process of feeling happy with or without her.

I know, it doesn't seem possible, but you really need to do it if you're going to be able to attract her back when you next interact with her.

You can become independently happy in a matter of days, and then begin the ex back process where you contact her, make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, and get her to meet up with you.

Even though she has a new man, you can get her to catch up with you over a cup of coffee and at that meet up, you can get her to feel respect and attraction for the new, improved you.

You can do that.

Once you create that initial spark of attraction for the new and improved you, her perception of you changes and she becomes more open to you.

However, since your ex is currently happy with her new man, she might not want to get back with you right away, but there are ways to get her to change her mind.

What Does She See in Him?

[image: Dealing with the thought of her being happy with a new man]

Even if her new guy isn't a better guy than you, all he has to do is not make the relationship mistakes that you were making and he will seem more appealing.

For example: If a woman felt that her ex was taking her for granted (e.g. treating her badly, showing up late for his dates with her, not returning her calls, letting her do all the housework or run all the errands, expecting too much from her), then all her new man has to do is be more attentive and considerate towards her and she will automatically see him as being a better option than her ex.

Alternatively, if her ex lacked confidence in himself and behaved in a needy and insecure way during the relationship, she might perceive her new confident, emotionally secure man as being a better option than her ex.

He might not be half the man you are, but he's different in a way that has been missing in your relationship with her.

As she experiences the differences and feels happy about it, she may initially think, "Wow! I can't get over how sweet and loving my new man is. This is how I deserve to be treated. My ex was always putting me in second place and treating me like dirt," or "It's so great to be with a guy who is so confident and self-assured. I'm glad I don't have to put up with my ex's insecurity any more."

Of course, that doesn't mean you can't change how she thinks about you.

When you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new, improved you, she will not be able to stop herself from letting go of her negative perceptions about you.

The more respect and attraction she feels for you, the more that the negatives and flaws of her new guy will become visible to her.

However, don't make the mistake of trying to compete with her new man to show your ex that you're better than him!

Competing With Her New Man Turns Her Off Even More

A big mistake that guys make when they see that their ex has moved on with another guy, is to try get her back by making the other guy look bad.

For example: A guy who might go around badmouthing his ex's new man (e.g. by criticizing his sense of dress style, mocking his haircut, by comparing cars/finances/jobs) to friends, coworkers, family members and to her directly.

He might think that by pointing out her new man's faults, his ex will suddenly wake up and realize that she has made a mistake.

Yet, rather than make his ex girlfriend think, "Hmmm, he has a point. Now that he mentioned it, I can see that my new man is not as great as he was. He is a little bit awkward at times and he doesn't seem as cool as my ex when we're out socializing. Okay, I'm going to dump my new boyfriend and hook back up with my ex."

Instead, she's likely going to be thinking, "My ex is just jealous. He so immature and insecure. I'm glad that my new guy isn't like him."

Here's the thing!

Her new guy would probably act the same way if she left him for another man and she'd think the same thing about him.

Why? Women aren't attracted to a guy when is being insecure by looking at another guy as competition.

You shouldn't look at this new guy as your competition.

He is nothing compared to you.

That is what you need to believe and not doubt for a second.

Don't give her new man any credit.

You are better than him.

So, whatever you do, don't waste time trying to get your ex back by competing with her new man.

[image: Dealing with the thought of her being happy with a new man]

Right now she's probably feeling happy to be with him, so trying to make him look bad in her eyes will only make you look like a sore loser.

You're not a sore loser, so don't be.

You are a winner and you are going to get her back.

Remember: When you spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, her walls will begin to come down and she becomes open to seeing you again.

Sometimes it happens right away and a guy gets his ex back, but in cases where she is happy with her new man, it might take a few days for her to become open to meeting up with you in person to see how she feels.

When you respark her feelings for you, the idea of spending time with you feels good to her. It feels right.

She might be confused at first because she thought she was happy with her new guy, but her heart will be filling up with new feelings for you, which she won't be able to ignore.

Don't Expect Her New Guy to Make it Easy For You

Although, the fastest way to get your ex back is to actively make her have some feelings for you again, chances are, her new guy probably doesn't want you interfering.

If this is the case, your ex is probably avoiding you as much as possible, and might not even be answering any of your calls or text messages at this point.

So, how can you get through to her?

Try calling her and if she doesn't answer, send her a text like this:

"Hey Jenny, it's Dan here. There is something quick that I wanted to ask you over the phone. I guess you're busy at the moment. I might try giving you a call another time."

In most cases, your ex will either call you back to find out what you want, or if you call her again in a few days, she will be much more likely to answer her phone.

On the phone call, you need to make her feel a spark for you again (e.g. by making her laugh, smile and feel happy) and then get her to agree to meet up with you.

At the meet up, you need to let her experience the new and improved you, so she can begin to feel differently about you.

She will sense the changes via your body language, conversation style, the way you are talking to her, interacting with her and the way you respond to what she is saying.

When you interact with her in ways that spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, everything begins to change.

She might try to act like she isn't feeling anything, but she will automatically begin to look at you differently.

Her perspective of you will begin to change and her guard will come down.

From there, you just need to build on her feelings of respect, attraction and love during the conversation and either get her back at that meet up, or get her to agree to say hello again in a few days or week.

Actions Speak Louder Than Words

[image: Dealing with the thought of her being happy with a new man]

If you are still in love with your ex and want to give the relationship another chance, you must understand and accept that it's completely up to you to take action and get her back.

You can't expect her to be the one who guides you back into a relationship.

You've got to make it happen.

Getting an ex back isn't about convincing her that you've changed. It's about changing, interacting with her and letting her experience new feelings that tell her that things are now different.

Where many guys go wrong is by thinking, "Maybe if I can explain to her how much I care, apologize and promise to change, she will realize that what me and her had was really special. She will dump her new man for me."

Yet, that's not how it works.

If she doesn't have feelings for him, she's going to be thinking, "Good for you. I'm flattered that you care about me, but I really don't care about us any more. I just don't have feelings for you like you have for me. I'm feeling great with my new guy. Besides, why should I believe you're going to change when I already have a guy who is giving me what I want? You don't even seem like you've changed at all. If I got back with you, it would be the same thing over again. You still haven't changed the subtle things about you that were turning me off."

It doesn't matter how much a guy tries to convince his ex that he will change or has changed.

If she doesn't experience the type of feelings that she wants to feel when interacting with him, she's going to remain closed up.

For example: If one of the reasons why she dumped him was due to his insecurity and she can still sense a lot of insecurity as she talks to him, she won't be able to feel respect, attraction and love for him.

She will feel turned off by his insecurity and it will remind her that he still hasn't even changed.

On the other hand, if she could see that he had become so much more confident and was no longer the insecure guy that she dumped, she would then naturally feel drawn to him.

Suddenly, she will begin to think, "Maybe there is a chance for us" or "He's so different from what he was like when I broke up with him. Why do I feel differently now? Does this mean that he is the one? Is he going to be the one that got away if I don't get back with him?" or "I really enjoy talking to him again. This feels different. Maybe the break up was good for us and we are even better for each other now. Maybe the new relationship is going to work."

When that type of thought process happens in her mind, she naturally opens up and wants to spend more and more time with him.

If you want your ex back, that's how you need to be making her feel from now on.

You need to actively re-spark your ex's feelings of respect and attraction for you every time you interact with her from now on.

If she's currently saying that she doesn't have feelings for you, or that she's happy with her new guy and doesn't want to ruin that, it means that the way you are talking to her and interacting with her isn't sparking those feelings of attraction inside of her.

However, that doesn't mean you can't start to trigger those feelings.

You can.

You can adjust the way that you're talking to her, make some changes and improvements to the way you are interacting with her and react differently to what she says and does.

When you interact with her in ways that spark her feelings, everything begins to change because she feels drawn to you.

She enjoys interacting with you because it now feels good to her.

All you need to do then is guide her through the rest of the quick ex back process and she will be yours again.

If she is happy with her new guy, it might take a few weeks to get her back, but you can do it.

However, if you don't focus on re-sparking her feelings and instead continue to interact with her in ways that turn her off, then getting her back is going to be very difficult.

She's going to be saying things like, "I'm sorry, but I've moved on. I'm happy with my new man now and I'm not interested getting back together with you" or "Just leave me alone. You and I are over now. Move on" because you're not doing anything significant to make her have feelings for you again.

Are You Ready to Get Her Back?

Statistically, about 65% of rebound relationships will fail within the first six months of getting together.

Right now, the new man in your ex's life might be making her feel happy for a while, but if he lacks the fundamental qualities that women look for in a man (e.g. confidence, drive, determination, a life purpose, someone she can look up to and respect, emotional masculinity), she's gradually going to lose interest in him.

Even if she has told you, "I'm happy with my new man. It's over between us, so please let it go. I'm not going to change my mind", don't let that put you off.

Feelings never stay the same.

Just like your ex's perception of you changed from positive to negative near the end of the relationship, when you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you again, her feelings will naturally change back to being positive again.

As long as you focus on making her feel attracted when you interact with her on the phone or in person, the process of getting her back will be a lot easier because she will enjoy interacting with you and will look at you in a new, positive light.

She might feel confused for a while because she might genuinely believe that she's happy with her new man, but she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you once again.

Whatever you do though, make sure that you don't see the new guy as your competition.

You are a better man than him.

Believe it.

If you don't think that you are a better man than him, then let me help you quickly develop that type of confidence and show you the final steps that you need to take to get her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Doesn't Want to See Me Anymore

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex doesn't want to see you anymore, it might feel like there's nothing you can do about it and you just have to accept her decision, even if you don't want to.

Thankfully, it doesn't have to be that way.

Guys now get ex women back all the time and you can do it too.

How?

Watch this video!

When you interact with your ex and respark some of her old feelings for you, she will then begin to think about you in a more positive light and be open to talking to you and seeing you more.

Even if she currently thinks that she is 100% certain about not wanting to see you anymore, when you respark those all important feelings in her (i.e. feelings of respect, attraction and love) she won't be able to help herself from feeling drawn to you.

She will want to see you again because you make her feel good.

Where most guys go wrong when an ex doesn't want to see them anymore, is that make even more mistakes that push her away even further.

Watch this video for an example!

If you want her to feel good about seeing you, make sure that from now on, you always think, talk, feel, behave and take action in a way that will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

While doing that, make sure that you avoid making the following mistakes:

1. Begging her for another chance

Not all guys make this mistake, but a lot of guys do.

Unfortunately, some guys can't handle the emotionally painful thoughts that come rushing to the surface when they are dumped by the woman they love.

Often, this happens when a guy secretly feels as though he got lucky in getting her to be his girlfriend in the first place.

He fears that if she leaves him, he will struggle to find another quality girlfriend like her.

Some guys also give up all their friends and interests when they get into a relationship with a woman, which then causes the guy to become clingy and needy as he focuses all of his attention on her.

So, when she decides that she wants to break up with him, he feels like the biggest, most important part of his life is being taken away from him.

It's a horrible feeling to go through as a guy, but it's a good wake up call that will either force you to quickly become a better man and get her back or hurt you so much that you will hide away from women and relationships for years.

Some guys can't handle that feeling and immediately begin to beg and plead with a woman when she gives him the final news that she's breaking up with him.

However, in most cases, rather than make a woman change her mind and take him back, the begging, crying and whining usually has the effect of turning her off even more. Why?

It is a woman's natural instinct to be attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, self-assurance, determination, the ability to handle a difficult situation), and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, neediness, self-doubt, an inability to cope in stressful situations).

So, when a woman says to a guy, "It's over between us and I really don't want to see you anymore," and he responds by becoming emotional, begging, crying and pleading with her, she naturally feels turned off by what she perceives as his emotional weakness.

It's an instinctive reaction that she can't control. It's similar to how we men are instinctively attracted to healthy women.

It might be politically incorrect to say that unhealthy women aren't as attractive as healthy women, but that's how our instincts react.

Likewise, a woman instinctively feels turned off when a guy displays emotional weakness.

It might be politically incorrect to say that emotionally weak guys aren't as attractive as confident guys, but that's how a woman's instincts react.

Not knowing that or accepting it as reality, some guys believe that if they show a woman how emotional and lost they feel without her, she will be flattered that he cares so much, and will then change her mind.

Yet, it doesn't work that way because emotional weakness isn't appealing.

Most women don't want to see their man begging, crying or being emotionally weak.

She might give him a chance for a day or two, or string him along for a little while, but she will have every intention of dumping him again when she feels like she is ready to do so.

A woman wants to be with an emotionally strong, masculine man that she can look up to, respect, and feel a strong attraction for, not a guy who breaks down when he is faced with a challenge in life.

Of course, if you've already made the mistake of begging your ex to give you a second chance, don't worry about it.

It's not the end of the world and it's not unfixable.

Here's how to fix it!

As long as you now understand that begging is the kind of behavior that causes a woman to lose even more respect and attraction for a guy, then you can write it off as a lesson learned.

Don't be ashamed of the mistakes you've made. Instead, be proud of the man you've become and are currently becoming.

You're becoming a better man each and every day. You're not the same guy that she broke up with.

So, instead of worrying about the fact that you begged (if you did, that is), simply move forward from that by focusing on making your ex feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new you whenever you interact with her (e.g. by being confident, making her laugh, staying strong even when she says negative things to you).

Another mistake to avoid is

2. Getting angry with her

The opposite reaction to begging and pleading, is getting angry and demanding that she change her mind.

For example: A guy might try begging and pleading for a while, but if his ex keeps saying, â€œPlease stop pushing me. Canâ€™t you just accept that I donâ€™t want to see you anymore and that itâ€™s over between us?â€ he might then become angry with her.

He might start shouting at her and saying things like, â€œWhy are you being such a bitch? How can you do this to me?â€ or â€œI promise you one thing, you will regret it if you break up with meâ€ | you will regret it big time,â€ or even â€œWhy wonâ€™t you give us another chanceâ€ | Are you seeing someone else? You cheating bitch!â€

In cases like that, the guy canâ€™t deal with the thought of being without her, so he attempts to use anger to make her fearful about leaving him.

However, this type of reaction will rarely, if ever, have a positive effect. Why?

When a woman doesnâ€™t feel enough respect, attraction and love for a guy, rather than see his anger as him simply getting a little upset, she will likely think to herself, â€œWell, if I wasnâ€™t sure about moving on before this, but his behavior has convinced me that Iâ€™m making the right decision. I get the feeling that he might be the kind of guy who could hit me or even kill me for leaving him. Iâ€™m going to be better off leaving him as soon as I can.â€

What guys like that donâ€™t understand is that you never really own a woman.

Getting angry, shouting and even becoming violent in some way isnâ€™t going to make his ex say, â€œWow, he must really care about me. How silly of me for wanting to leave him.â€

Instead, sheâ€™s just going to feel the need to get away from him before something worse happens.

Hopefully you havenâ€™t made the mistake of becoming very angry or threatening towards your ex.

If you have, donâ€™t worry, it is recoverable as long as you have sincerely learned a lesson, changed and can be sure that you wonâ€™t ever want to react that way towards her again again.

Regardless of what has happened between you and her since the break up, when you focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you (e.g. by being confident and emotionally strong around her), it will be a lot easier for her to begin thinking about you in a more positive light, and she will naturally become more open to talking to you, and seeing you again.

The next mistake to avoid isâ€œ

3. Constantly ask her why

Although some guys are very clear about the reason their girlfriend (fiancÃ© or wife) is breaking up with them, a lot of guys arenâ€™t really sure what is going on and why she suddenly wants to get out of the relationship.

So, when a guy doesnâ€™t know the real reasons why, itâ€™s only natural that heâ€™s going to be asking all sorts of questions like, â€œWhy are you breaking up with me? What did I do wrong? Why wonâ€™t you explain to me what is going on? Why wonâ€™t you listen me? Why wonâ€™t you tell me what I need to change? What is wrong with you all of a sudden? Why are you acting this way? Donâ€™t

you remember the good times?â€œ

Hereâ€œs the thing thoughâ€œ

A woman rarely wakes up one morning and thinks, â€œHmmmâ€œ today looks like a good day to break up with my guy.â€œ

Most women will have spent a long time making the decision to break up with their guy and usually only after she has given him several hints along the way.

In some cases, a woman won't truly break up with a guy unless she has given him a second or third chance to improve his ways.

So, by the time that a woman reaches the point of breaking up, sheâ€œs usually made up her mind that her guy isnâ€œt listening to her and heâ€œs probably not going to change.

Then, when a guy starts asking her, â€œWhy are you doing this? Why wonâ€œt you tell me what I did wrong so that I can fix it?â€œ sheâ€œs likely going to think, â€œIâ€œve told you so many times before and you havenâ€œt been paying attention to me. Why should I believe you that this time will be different?â€œ she realizes that he still doesn't get it and she closes up even more.

If you want to get your ex back, you need to work out (or learn from me) all of the real reasons why she broke up with you.

You can't expect her to want to tell you.

Most women don't have the guts to explain the real, more subtle reasons why they feel turned off and want to get out of a relationship.

When you know the real reasons why your ex broke up with you, you can make the correct changes that actually matter to her.

Then, when youâ€œre interacting with her, she will be able to pick up on the new ways that you talk, behave, and interact with her and she will begin to feel understood and happy.

She will begin to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new you, and she will open up to the idea of seeing you more.

4. Asking her to explain what you need to change

After the initial shock of being broken up with, some guys are able to calm down and say things like, â€œOkay, I get itâ€œ I stuffed up. So, just tell me what you want me to change and Iâ€œll do it,â€œ or â€œI know I messed up badly, but I can change. Tell me what you want me to do and Iâ€œll do it. I promise that things will be different this time.â€œ

However, rather than get the answer heâ€œs hoping for (e.g. something precise he can apologize for and then fix), a woman will likely give him a vague answer like, â€œI just donâ€œt feel the same way about you anymore,â€œ or â€œI need some space,â€œ or â€œThings change. Itâ€œs not you, itâ€œs meâ€œ I donâ€œt want the same things as you do anymore.â€œ

Why do women not come out and tell a guy what he did wrong and what he has to do to change?

The main reason is because a woman doesnâ€œt want to be a guyâ€œs teacher in life about how to be a man.

If she has to tell him what heâ€œs doing wrong and then have to hold his hand and guide him through the steps he needs to take to change, she will feel like she is his mother, teacher or big sister in life.

She doesn't want to take on that role.

She doesn't want to teach him how to be the kind of man that will be attractive to her now or in the future.

She wants him to figure it out by himself without her help, so that she can look up to him and respect him as her man, not look down on him as like being a little brother to her.

If she has to teach him how to behave like the kind of man that she needs him to be, she will feel more dominant than him in the relationship, and she won't be able to look up to him and respect him as her man.

So, if you've already asked your ex what you need to change about yourself, don't stress about it.

Just focus on figuring out what really went wrong in your relationship (e.g. Did you take her for granted? Did you become needy, clingy or insecure? Did you stop reaching for your true potential as a man?), and then begin to fix those issues before you try to tell her that you've changed.

You don't have to completely fix everything, but you need to let her see that you know the real reasons why she broke up with you and have already changed and improved.

She will be able to see for herself that things are different by the way you talk, think, behave and respond to her and now and she will naturally begin to think about you in a more positive light.

5. Asking if she will change her mind if you wait for her

When a woman is saying, *â€œGo away. I don't want to see you anymore,*â€œ a guy usually doesn't know what to do other than to accept it, give her space and hope that she changes her mind. Yet, it rarely works.

Here's why!

In most cases, giving a woman more than 3-7 days of space is complete waste of time and increases the chances of her finding a new guy, falling in love and moving on without him.

When a guy gets dumped, he will sometimes think, â€œOkay, if my ex doesn't want to see me any more, maybe, I should just stay away for a while until she changes her mindâ€œ or *“Hopefully if I give her space, she will eventually realize that I am a good man and she'll come back to me.*â€œ

He might then decide that if he waits a few weeks, or even a month or two, when he calls her up again, she will have softened towards him.

Yet, it usually doesn't work that way. Why?

If a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, she's not going to feel like she's missing out on much if he doesn't contact her for a while.

In fact, she will likely be relieved not to have to deal with his constant begging, pleading, convincing, asking, and going on and on about the same old things.

So, unless your ex has strong feelings for you, don't waste time ignoring her because she's not going to come running back.

You've got to actively make her have feelings for you again.

The sooner a guy makes a woman feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him, the quicker she will begin to reconsider her decision to break up.

When a woman begins to feel respect and attraction again for her ex, she begins to see him in a new, positive light.

He stops being the same guy that she dumped.

He is different now and she feels differently when she interacts with him.

In most cases, a guy usually just needs to create an initial spark of respect and attraction, and in most cases, the woman will open back up and will be interested in seeing him again or at least talking a bit more to see how she feels.

Some very difficult women will need to experience those feelings of respect 2-3 times on a phone call, or in person, before they will open back up to the relationship.

However, a guy isn't going to respark her feelings for him by ignoring her and cutting off all communication for weeks or months.

Most women don't come running back if they don't have feelings for a guy when they dump him, or if they are fine on their own (e.g. she is attractive, has lots of friends, has many guys interested in her).

So, if you're serious about getting your ex back, don't waste a lot of time giving her space or ignoring her, in the hopes that she'll suddenly want to see you again.

You have to actively respark her feelings of respect and attraction for you when you interact with her.

You Can Change How She Feels

When you're saying, "My ex doesn't want to see me any more," it's easy to feel that you're at her mercy.

It seems like she calls all the shots and unless you suck up to her or obey all of her commands, she will cut you off even more and block you out of her life completely.

Yet, here's the thing!

In reality, she is at your mercy.

When you respark her feelings of respect and attraction for you again and don't desperately try to get her back, she feels interested and intrigued.

You then interact with her more, build on her feelings and her walls then begin to come down.

Before she knows it, she is the one who wants to see you again.

Interacting with you feels good to her.

It feels right.

She might feel confused at first and ask herself, "What's going on here? I really thought I was over him. I really believed that I didn't want to see him any more," but her heart will be full of new feelings for you that she won't be able to ignore.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get My Ex to Listen to Me, Rather Than Being So Stubborn

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you've been trying to talk to your ex so that you can patch things up with her, but she doesn't want to open up and listen, it's only natural that you'd be feeling annoyed with her right now.

After all, you and her used to have something great together and you still really care about her, so what is her problem?

It's simple.

To get her to listen to you from now on, you must first understand why she hasn't been interested to hear what you have to say.

Essentially, the reason why she is being so stubborn is that she's just not feeling enough respect, attraction and love for you right now; but you can change that.

How?

By making her feel the kind of respect, attraction and love that will make her pay attention to you.

For example: A guy might be calling up his ex and saying things like, "I need to see you. Just give me a chance to talk to you," or "I'm sorry. Why won't you let me explain?" or "Things will be different this time, I promise. Please just hear me out."

Yet, if she's not feeling much respect and attraction for him, she won't care that he wants to talk to her or apologize.

It doesn't matter to her because her feelings are switched off.

Even though he's trying to explain to her that he still loves her and will change if she gives him another chance, she's usually going to say something like, "Look, I know you mean well, but you just have to accept that it's over between us," or "Please just stop bothering me, I don't want to talk about it anymore" or "Move on. Leave me alone."

Essentially what she's saying is that she just doesn't have feelings for him, and him trying to force her to listen to his explanations, is only making her lose respect for him even more.

[image: Why are you being so stubborn?]

So, if your ex doesn't want to listen to anything you have to say right now, it means that the way you are talking to her, interacting with her, and coming across to her, isn't making her feel the kind of respect, attraction and love that she needs to feel so that she will start paying attention to you again.

Most guys know that they need to apologize, but what should they do after that?

Ask for another chance? Plead with her? Ignore her?

No.

You've got to actively make her feel respect and attraction for you again when you interact with her. When you do that, she then starts to think about you and look at you in a more positive light and her guard comes down.

You can then guide her through the rest of the ex back process and get her back.

If you go through that process, she will feel like SHE wants you back, rather than feeling like she will be doing you a favor by giving you another chance.

You must understand that...

She Doesn't Have to Be With You if She Doesn't Want to

Some guys feel entitled to their girlfriend.

A guy will feel as though because he's been her boyfriend (fiancé or husband) and has invested his time and energy in loving her, she somehow owes it to him to listen to him, forgive him and stay in a relationship with him.

Yet, here's the thing!

A woman doesn't have to be with a guy if she doesn't want to.

Essentially, when a woman agrees to be in a relationship with a guy, she's not handing over all her rights to him, she's not saying, "I'm your girlfriend now, so no matter what happens between us, and no matter how bad I feel in the relationship with you, I will never leave you because I initially said yes to being your woman."

That's not how it works.

The fact is, a man doesn't own his woman and she doesn't own him.

In most relationships, a man and a woman simply choose to be together and therefore, can also choose not to be together.

For a woman to continue wanting to be in a relationship with a guy, she has to feel like she is getting what she wants from him.

She needs to feel that she's with the kind of man she can look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love.

If those feelings begin to fade, she might:

- Begin to withdraw her affection and not be as interested in sex.
- Initiate a break up to hopefully scare him into changing.
- Cheat on him and then dump him, rather than trying to fix the relationship.
- Stick around for a while until she finds a replacement guy.
- Begin to treat him badly to hopefully cause a break up.

Some women will put up with an unhappy relationship for a long time (e.g. to keep a guy around to pay half the rent or mortgage, or because she's afraid of being alone), but most modern women will usually break up with a guy if the feelings just aren't there any more.

If a woman breaks up with her guy and he then behaves in ways that are unattractive to her (e.g. insists that she owes him another chance, begs and pleads with her, accuses her of being stubborn if she doesn't want to listen to him), rather than convince her to come back, he is effectively pushing her further away.

What you need to understand is that if you try to force your ex to listen to what you're saying, you will actually be achieving the exact opposite of getting her back because you will be pushing her away further.

[image: Why won't you listen?]

A woman is an individual and is allowed to make her own decisions regardless of whether you've just met her, are on a date with her or in a relationship with her.

You don't own her and she can choose to be in a relationship with you or ignore you if she wants to.

It may suck to hear that, but it's the reality of modern life. Men don't own their women.

If you want a woman to stay with you for life, you've got to be the sort of man that she actually wants to stay with or at the very least, the sort of man that has the potential to quickly become the type of man that she wants.

So, if you've been asking, How do I get my ex to listen to me, rather than being so stubborn? the answer is simple!

She will only want to listen to you and want to be with you, if you make her feel the kind of respect, attraction and love that will make her pay attention again.

When you interact with her in ways that spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, everything changes.

She stops being so stubborn and it feels good for her to open up and interact with you again.

Different Day, Same Mistakes

One of the main reasons why a woman might be acting stubborn with her ex, is because he's using the same old mistaken approach on her that he's used so many times before.

For example: Before the break up a guy might have been in the habit of begging and pleading with his woman for a second chance, every time she threatened to break up with him.

He might have said things like, I'm so sorry. Please forgive me. I promise this time I will change, just give me one more chance.

If she kept giving him chances and he continued to revert back to his old behavior, she would eventually sick of hearing his empty promises.

In his mind, he might think, Well it worked before, so it should work now as well, but she's not going to fall for his old tricks over and over again for life.

Now that she has closed up and is being stubborn about not giving him another chance, his old approach isn't going to work.

So, if you are trying to get your ex back by saying and doing the same old things that you've done in the past, it's only natural that she will be acting stubborn and won't be willing to listen to you.

To get her to listen to you, you have to start saying and doing things that actively trigger her feelings of respect, attraction, and love for you.

When you change your communication style to be more attractive and appealing, her guard will come down and she will naturally open up to you again.

For example: Imagine a guy whose main style of communicating with his ex was begging, pleading, whining or nagging.

If he then happens to bump into her (e.g. while out shopping, at a party) and doesn't beg, but instead focuses on making her smile, laugh and feel good, her feelings for him will automatically change.

Even if her mind is telling her, "Stop! Remember what he's done to you in the past," she won't be able to stop herself from feeling good in those moments.

She might then begin wondering, "Why do I have feelings for him again all of a sudden?" and she may start to feel confused, but she's not going to be able to stop herself.

So, if you want your ex back, forget about using the same old approach on her that you've been using all along because it isn't going to work this time.

Instead, focus on making her feel the kind of respect, attraction and love that will make her pay attention to you again and actually want to be around you.

Avoid Making These 3 Mistakes

When a guy is wondering, "How do I get my ex to listen to me, rather than being so stubborn?" he's usually willing to say or do anything to get her to pay attention to him.

It's great to be that enthusiastic, but just understand that not every approach that he might come up with will actually work.

For example:

1. Trying to get her back by making her feel pity for him or guilty about leaving.

Sometimes a man will get so frustrated with his ex because she is being stubborn and refuses to hear what he has to say, that he might try to make her feel guilty for leaving him by threatening to hurt (or even kill) himself if she doesn't listen to him.

Alternatively, he might try to get her to feel pity for him by letting her know how lost and miserable he is without her.

He might cry to her over the phone or in person, send her sad texts, tell her friends or family how upset he is or post sad status updates on social media.

Yet, rather than making her think, "Wow! My ex must really love me if he is so sad about the break up and can't seem to cope without me. Maybe I should give him another chance," his desperate, insecure, emotionally weak behavior only makes her lose even more respect and attraction for him. Why?

The majority of women are sexually attracted to the emotional strengths in men and turned off by the emotional weaknesses.

So, when a guy is threatening to hurt himself, seeking pity or trying to get her back by making her feel guilty for putting him through so much emotional pain, a woman will instinctively feel sexually turned off by him.

Her instincts will tell her that he has become or is the type of guy that needs a strong woman to take care of him, because he's not emotionally strong enough to take care of himself.

A woman doesn't like to feel like she's doing a guy a favor by being with him and she also doesn't want to feel like a big sister, mother figure or teacher in his life.

This is not sexual attractive to her.

In fact, it's a direct, instinctive turn off and unless the guy stops acting like that, her instincts will keep making her feel turned off by him.

No matter how much a guy loves his ex, or how desperate he is to get her back, if she doesn't feel enough respect and attraction for him as a man, she simply won't care about any of those things.

The harder he tries to hold on to her by making her feel guilt or pity for him, the more she will pull away and refuse to listen to him.

He will look at her as being stubborn and even betraying the promises they once made to each other (e.g. to grow old together), but he's missing the point.

She's just not feeling it and he's making it worse.

Trying to seek pity or make a woman feel guilty for dumping you is not how to get her back.

It can sometimes work to get a woman back for a day or two, but she will just break up with the guy again when she realizes that he just doesn't get it and won't be able to change what she really cares about, unless she becomes his teacher in life about how to be the type of man that women actually want.

Don't put her in that position with you.

You've got to get clear on what you need to start saying and doing to be the sort of man that she can look up to and respect.

When you begin to trigger your ex's feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again, you won't have to play useless mind games (i.e. making her feel guilt, pity) in the hope of somehow, magically getting her back.

When she's feeling attracted, respectful and reconnecting with her original feelings of love for you, she will want to listen to you because it will feel good to her; not because she feels like she has to.

2. Trying to convince her to change her mind, rather than focussing on changing how she feels.

When a guy is feeling desperate and is all out of ideas on how to get his ex to listen to him and give him a second chance, he might try to convince her to change her mind, by offering to change certain things about himself.

Yet, if he's offering to change the wrong things, she will feel as though he doesn't understand her and it will make her lose even more respect and attraction for him.

For example: A guy might say to his ex, "Why won't you just listen to me? I promise if you just give me another chance I'll take better care of you. I'll take you out more often, and you can ask for whatever you want and I'll do it for you."

However, if that's not really what caused her to break up with him, and she is actually turned off by something else entirely (e.g. his lack of purpose and direction in life, his inability to make her feel feminine and girly during interactions), she's going to feel that he hasn't been listening to her all along and she will then refuse to listen to him when he wants to discuss fixing the relationship.

If you don't know what caused your ex to want to break up with you, you're probably going to be offering to change all the wrong things.

So, rather than try to convince her to change her mind by promising to change all the wrong things, focus on figuring out the real reasons why she broke up with you.

Then, when you interact with her, you will be offering her what she really wants, not what you think she might want, and she will begin to pay attention to you because you are making her feel respect and attraction for you once again.

3. Being extra nice to her in the hopes that she will realize how good of a man he is.

Another common mistake guys make when their ex is being stubborn and won't listen to them, is to be extra nice to her (e.g. let her get away with being rude or unfriendly behavior towards him, acting like a really good friend who just wants to help her and see her happy, buying her gifts, paying for her rent or bills) in the hopes that she sees how much he cares and then changes her mind.

However, a woman doesn't care how much a guy cares for her if she doesn't have sexual and romantic feelings for him.

If you allow your ex to treat you badly, or let her think of you as her doormat that she can walk all over, you are simply helping her to feel good about herself while she finds herself a new guy.

She will realize that even though she's treating you like dirt, you're willing to put up with it because you desperately want another chance with her.

This won't make her feel sorry for you to the point where she thinks, "Wow, he's such a great guy. Why have I been so bitchy towards him? I've got to be nicer and return the favor to him. He's being nice to me, so I should be nice to him."

That's not how it works.

When a woman feels way more valuable than a man, she can't look up to him and respect him, which then makes him seem less attractive in her eyes.

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but if you're letting your ex treat you badly because you're desperate to get her back, you are actually pushing her further away from you.

To get your ex to listen to you rather than being so stubborn, you have to actively make her feel respect and attraction for you by behaving in the ways that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confident, self-assured, masculine, determined, charismatic).

If your main approach to get her back is to suck up to her and try to show her how much you care, I can guarantee you that she will lose more and more respect for you every time she interacts with you. Don't put yourself in that position.

Be the type of man that she can naturally look up to and respect, feel attracted to and fall back in love with.

Getting Her to Listen to You Again is Easier Than You Might Think

If you want your ex to listen to you rather than being so stubborn, you need to interact with her in ways that make her feel respect and attraction for you again.

When you adjust the way that you're interacting with her right now by making some changes and improvements to the way you are talking to her, and responding to what she says, she will begin to see you in a different light.

Even if she has recently been saying, â€œLeave me alone. It's over and I don't want anything more to do with you,â€ she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you when you interact with her in a way that sparks her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

She might try to fight it at first, but something inside of her will switch back on and she will begin to wonder why she suddenly feels drawn to you.

Then, all you need to do is guide her through the rest of the ex back process and she will be yours once again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Said That Our Relationship is Unfixable

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, your ex said that your relationship is unfixable, and youâre probably wondering, âIs it true? Will her and I never be able to get back together?â

No.

Essentially, her saying that the relationship is unfixable is only based on how she's feeling right now because she doesn't believe that you can change.

If you waste time trying to convince her that you've changed, she will close up and you won't get much more opportunity to interact with her.

So, what should you do instead?

You need to use any interactions that you're having with her (e.g. via text message, social media, on the phone, in person) to let her experience the new and improved version of you, without sucking up to her to the point where you seem desperate or are giving her too much power.

Women are turned off when a guy goes into desperation mode and tries to get her back in a frantic, pleading or "pity me" kind of way.

The main thing to remember is that women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity, determination and focus) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, desperation, neediness).

If she senses emotional weakness when you interact with her (e.g. if you beg her for another chance, promise to do whatever she wants you to do, tell her you can't live without her), she will lose even more respect and attraction for you as a man, and she will continue to keep herself closed off from the idea of getting back together again.

Understand What She Really Wants You to Change About Yourself

[image: Understand what she really needs you to change about yourself]

Understanding the things that caused your ex to break up with you, is the first step to getting her to open back up to you again.

If you don't know what your ex really wants you to change about yourself (usually completely different to what she is admitting to your face), you will keep behaving in the same ways that were turning her off, and she will then keep on telling you that your relationship is unfixable.

For example: A guy might have fallen into a habit of letting his woman be the more dominant one and left all the important decision making up to her.

Over time, this caused his woman to stop feeling girly and feminine in his presence, and her feelings of respect and attraction for him began to fade because she had to take on the masculine role in the relationship.

She wants to be with a guy who makes her feel feminine because he thinks, talks, behaves and takes action in a more masculine way than she does.

Yet, most women don't want to admit that to a guy's face, so they will often say things like, "Sorry, I just don't feel the same way anymore" or, "You just don't understand me. I don't know what it is, but I don't love you anymore."

A guy who doesn't understand the real problem might then begin trying to suck up to her by being extra nice, understanding, respectful and generous (e.g. paying her bills, buying her gifts).

Yet, he's not giving her what she really wants, which is to feel feminine and girly around him.

and she's not going to tell him that either.

So, in order for a guy like that to convince his ex that he's changed, he must think, talk and behave in a more dominant and masculine way around her from now on.

It's not about being overly assertive or domineering (i.e. bossing her around), but being lovingly assertive and dominant (i.e. leading the way).

Most guys who are being dumped for not being enough of a man for their woman don't actually want to be more dominant.

In the guy's mind, he wants to be sweet, gentle and extra caring because that's what he believes is the right thing to do with a woman.

Yet, what he doesn't understand is that a woman only appreciates a sweet, gentle and caring approach from a guy that she can look up to and respect.

In other words, a guy who is more dominant and masculine than her, but who also treats her nicely.

Of course, she's not going to tell him that though because a woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher about how to be a man.

[image: Just give me a chance]

So, if he continues being emotionally weak around her (e.g. tries to suck up to her, tells her how lost he is without her, begs, plead and cries), her respect and attraction will fade away and she will say that the relationship is unfixable.

On the other hand, when you clearly know the real reasons (usually different to what she is telling you) that caused your ex to say that your relationship is unfixable, you can show her how wrong she is, by instantly changing those things about yourself, and by actively making her feel positive emotions of respect, attraction and love for you again.

Right now, you probably know some of the reasons that caused your relationship to break up, but there could be some that you might be missing.

Here are some questions to help you figure out any other possible reasons you might have missed!

- Did you start taking her for granted in the relationship (e.g. stopped making her feel loved and appreciated, put her in second place to your job/friends/other interests)?
- Did you become emotionally weak in the relationship (e.g. insecure, jealous, unsure of your value to her)?
- Did you have a life purpose that you were working towards outside of the relationship, or did you use the relationship as an excuse to hide from your true potential as a man?
- Did you stop making her feel feminine and girly in your presence (e.g. started to treat her like a friend, allowed her to be the more dominant one)?
- Did you stop trying to make her feel attracted to you?

- Did you say or do things that caused her to lose respect for you as a man (e.g. broke your promises to her, too controlling and bossy, cried to her)?

By understanding the reasons that apply to you and her, you can then make the right changes that will actively make her feel more respect and attraction for you.

Be warned though!

If you try to get her back without first changing anything about yourself, she is just going to keep telling you that your relationship is unfixable.

You've obviously pushed your relationship to the point where she is sick and tired of giving you chances.

Now is not the time to take a lazy approach to getting her back. You've got to do this right and do it without her help.

Don't Expect Her to Tell You What You Need to Change

[image: No idea what to change for her]

When a guy doesn't really know why his ex is so convinced that their relationship is unfixable, it's only natural that he'd want to ask her what he did wrong so he can change and improve the things that are important to her.

However, asking a woman to tell you what you need to change about yourself so that she will feel attracted to you again doesn't work.

A woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man.

She doesn't want to have to show him how to think, act and behave to make her feel the way she wants to feel in the relationship with him.

If she has to teach him how to be the man that she needs him to be, she will feel like she has to take care of him like his mother or big sister would, which is a huge sexual turn off.

She wants him to figure out how to be the kind of man she needs him to be without her help, rather than him asking her what he needs to change to make her happy.

You Are Either Attracting Her or Turning Her Off

If your ex is telling you that your relationship is unfixable and you want her back, it's only natural that this will make you feel upset, and maybe even a little bit disheartened.

However, just because she is saying â€œNoâ€ to you right now, it doesn't mean her feelings are set in stone and can never change.

Feelings change all the time (e.g. think about someone you didn't like and then when they changed their communication style towards you, you started liking them) and when they do, a person's perspective changes too.

When you first met her, your ex went from seeing you as a stranger, to liking you, and then loving you as her boyfriend (fianc  or husband), to finally feeling like she didn't want to be with you anymore.

Her feelings for you literally changed four times.

So, nothing is stopping you from getting her feelings for you to change again, as long as you use every interaction you have with her from now on as an opportunity for her to experience the new you.

Remember: You are either attracting her, or turning her off by what you are saying and doing.

If you are saying and doing things that turn her off, you can't expect her to want to open up and give you a chance.

However, if you are saying and doing things that make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, her perspective of you and the relationship will change.

She will begin to see that it is fixable because it's already begun to change and feel better.

Here's what you need to rememberâ€¦!

1. What your ex says she wants and what she will actually respond to are often two completely different things.

Based on her memories of you and your relationship together, your ex has now made up her mind that she doesn't really believe you can change, and therefore, she has decided that she doesn't want to get back with you.

However, when you change your communication style with her in a way that actively makes her feel the positive emotions of respect, attraction and love for you, she will naturally become more open towards you even though right now she is saying things like, â€œGo away! Our relationship is unfixable. Leave me alone.â€

A common mistake that guys make is thinking that by leaving her alone for a few weeks or months, she will change her mind about him and come running back.

However, the reality is that if a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy when she breaks up with him and is thinking, â€œThis relationship is over. It's unfixable. He doesn't get it,â€ she's not going to feel like she's missing out on much if she suddenly doesn't hear from him for a while.

In fact, she will likely feel relieved and will usually find another boyfriend very quickly and move on with her life in other ways as well.

So, regardless of what your ex is saying to you right now, and despite how hopeless the situation might look to you, you need to understand that what she says she wants, and what she will actually respond to, are often two completely different things altogether.

A woman might be saying to her ex that she wants time apart and for him to respect that.

In her mind she is still likely remembering all the problems in their relationship together (e.g. he was insecure, he was emotionally weak and she had to be the dominant one) and therefore, she feels happy about the idea of not seeing or hearing from him.

It makes total sense for her to be telling him to leave her alone and that there's no chance to get her back.

Yet, her perspective of him will change if he actively interacts with her and gets her laughing, smiling and feeling attracted to him.

For example: If he calls her up and she says something like, â€œI told you to leave me alone.

It's over between us,â€ rather than him reacting like he would have in the past (e.g. get upset, beg her to listen to him) he instead reacts in a calm, relaxed way that displays his masculinity and emotional control.

When this happens, it's only natural that she will stop in her tracks and begin wondering, What's going on here? This isn't the way my ex usually reacts? Why is he behaving so differently? What's changed about him? and she won't be able to stop her guard from coming down a little bit.

He can then build up some attraction and make her feel good by using some humor to get her laughing and smiling.

Then, her guard comes down even more and before she knows it, she's saying, "Yes" to meeting up with him for a chat or a meet up to just say hi as friends.

Then, at the meet up, he makes her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for him and her guard comes down, she opens up and he's able to get her back.

So, if you're saying, My ex said that our relationship is unfixable and I must leave her alone, and you're considering giving her lots of space so she will hopefully change her mind on her own, think again.

In most ex back cases, a guy doesn't need to give his woman more than a few days of space.

Giving her a week of space is usually the maximum that I would ever recommend because any longer than that is simply a waste of time and it also increases the chances of her moving on with another guy.

The best approach to use to get your ex back is to do it quickly by interacting with her and actively making her have some feelings for you again.

By actively making her have feelings for you again when you interact with her (e.g. by making her laugh, smile, feel attracted, feel respectful of you again) you are much more likely to get her back, than if you spend a lot of time ignoring her hoping she'll change her mind all by herself.

2. The more he panics, the less respect and attraction she feels.

Sometimes, when a guy is faced with the reality of losing his woman due to a break up, he starts to panic.

Rather than doing the things that will attract her and make her re-think her decision to stay broken up, he begins to behave in ways that make her lose even more respect, attraction and love for him.

For example: A guy might start begging and pleading with her and saying, Please! Please! Please! Don't do this to us. I know we can work things out. I will do anything to make you happy. Just tell me what you want from me and I'll do it! I promise. I will change anything you want. Just please give me another chance.

Yet, that actually makes her lose more respect for him because she sees him being desperate.

Women simply aren't attracted to desperation in men.

By the way!

If you did beg and plead, here's how to recover from it!

Just don't look at the fact that you begged and pleaded with her as a big deal, because it really isn't. You're a better man because of any mistake that you've ever made and learned from.

Be proud of the man you have become, rather than feeling ashamed of the mistakes that taught you valuable lessons in life.

Most guys don't ever get told what you just read there.

We're made to feel ashamed of the fact that we are human and need to learn a few things along the way.

Don't beat yourself up for the mistakes you've made in the past. Be proud of how the great man that you've become and are becoming.

3. The more he tries hard to work things out with her, the more stressed and overwhelmed she feels.

Another common reaction that guys have when an ex refuses to give them a second chance, is try to work things out with her by constantly texting her things like, â€œI'm deeply sorry for what I did. How many times must I tell you that Iâ€™m sorry for you to believe me?â€œ or â€œI miss you. Please donâ€™t ignore me,â€œ or â€œI need you to let me explain my point of view. I believe we can fix this,â€œ or even, â€œAt least let us be friends if you donâ€™t want to be together anymore.â€œ

Yet the only thing this accomplishes, is to make her feel even more stressed out and overwhelmed. Why?

Essentially, nothing about this type of communication is addressing the core problems that led to their breakup, and nothing about it is indicating to her that she has been heard and understood.

He's just the same guy with the same mistaken mindset, trying to get her to give him another chance for his own reasons.

She doesn't see the benefit to her because she can see that he still doesn't understand how to make her feel the type of respect and attraction that she wants to feel for a man in a relationship.

Eventually, she gets to the point where she says that the relationship is unfixable and asks to be left alone, because she doesn't want to help him get her back and have to teach him so many lessons about how to be the man that she wants and needs.

So, if the only means of communication that you have with your ex is via text messages, donâ€™t waste that opportunity by saying and doing things that will make her close herself off from you even more.

Instead, use texting as a way to make her laugh and smile, so her guard comes down.

Then, get her on a phone call where you can actively start making her feel respect and attraction for you again, so her guard comes down even more.

From there, you need to get her to meet up with you in person.

When you meet up with her in person, focus on making her feel the important positive emotions that she needs to feel (e.g. respect, attraction, love) to make her open up to giving the idea of giving the relationship another chance.

All Relationship Problems Are Fixable

[image: Get her back by reactivating her feelings]

Every relationship problem (e.g. jealousy, lack of attraction, trust issues) have a quick and easy solution that millions of other couples use to keep their relationship happy and problem free.

It's not her role to fix the problems in your relationship though.

As a man, you have to take responsibility as the leader of the relationship to provide solutions to relationship problems and lead the way.

If you don't know how to fix the problems between you and her, you need to quickly learn that rather than expecting her to want you back even though nothing will actually change.

You don't have to be perfect, just better.

Just do a better job at communicating with her and interacting with her from now on and her guard will come down, she will open up to you and you can then quickly guide her back into a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Stop My Wife From Leaving

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To stop your wife from leaving, you need to make a sudden change in how you communicate with her and interact with her, to let her see that you really have changed.

For example: If one of the reasons why she is tired of the marriage is that there is no romantic spark anymore, you need to actively create a spark by getting her laughing, smiling and feeling good around you from now on.

If another reason why she wants to leave is that she doesn't respect you anymore, you need to begin thinking, talking, behaving and taking action in a way that makes her feel a renewed sense of respect for you.

In other words, the main thing you need to focus on is changing her feelings right away.

Don't try to convince her with logic and reasoning.

Focus on changing her feelings by using a different approach to your interactions.

That is what really matters and what works to stop a wife from leaving and to get her back if she does decide to leave.

What Happened to the "Until Death Us Do Part" Promise?

[image: What happened to until death do us part?]

A sad, but important truth about marriage is that it's not bulletproof.

Even when a couple makes a vow to stay together for life on their wedding day, the reality is that they will usually only stay together for as long as they are both happy, and want to stay together.

Unlike in the past, where marriage was for life and a wife had to stick with her husband regardless of whether she wanted to or not, in today's world, thinking that a woman will stay married just because she once said, "I do" is unrealistic.

A modern woman can leave her husband if she decides to do so, because she is not his property.

If a woman feels that her husband is treating her badly (e.g. being mentally or physically abusive), or he is turning her off (e.g. by being insecure, taking her for granted, being controlling, not being a man of his word), and her feelings of respect and attraction for him fade away, she lives in a society that says it's okay to leave.

She might stick around for a while, but if she gets sick and tired of being in an unhappy marriage while her friends or other family members are in happy marriages, she will eventually want to leave.

These days, a woman doesn't stick around just because a relationship felt good at the start.

As a husband, you've got to be able to build on her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you over time, and not just rely on the wedding vows that she made in the beginning or on the idea that marriages are supposed to last a lifetime.

If you want your wife to stay with you for life, you've actually got to be the sort of man that she wants to stay with for life.

A Renewed Sense of Respect and Attraction Will Change Her Perspective

[image: Make your wife feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction]

When you actively spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, it suddenly makes the negatives of your relationship seem less important to her.

For example: Depending on her reasons for wanting to leave, she might begin to change how she feels about leaving you.

She might think, “I know that life has gotten pretty boring and we’ve fallen into bit of a rut, but lately he really has changed. He’s making an effort to make me feel like the sexy woman I was at the beginning of our relationship. It feels good. Maybe we can still work things out, or Wow! My husband has really changed in his thinking and behavior. He seems so much more lovable and attractive. Maybe I’ve been too hard on him. Maybe I should give us more of a chance here.”

Regardless of the troubles you and her have been through, she suddenly begins to feel drawn to you in a way that feels good to her, and she can’t stop herself from wanting to stick around a bit longer.

On the other hand, if you continue talking, doing, and behaving in ways that turn her off, she’s going to be saying “I know you want to save our marriage, but I don’t feel like there’s anything more we can do. I just don’t love you anymore. I don’t the way that I used to. I’m sorry.”

Desperate Times Call For Desperate Measures

Most husbands are good men, so when a wife says that she doesn’t want to be married anymore it’s only normal for a good husband to think, “How do I stop my wife from leaving? I’ll do anything. I love her so much. I am willing to change whatever she wants to keep her happy.”

Unfortunately, that is where many men go wrong because they begin saying and doing things that make their wife feel even more determined to leave.

Some examples of the desperate measures a guy might resort to, include the following:

1. Begging her to stay.

[image: Sucking up to her with flowers]

When a wife tells husband that she’s leaving, it’s completely natural that he might feel shocked by her change of heart and how it will now impact his life.

In his panic, he may then lose control of himself and start begging her to stay, “Please darling! I love you so much. We can work this out. I beg you, don’t do this to us. Please don’t throw away what we have together. I am begging you to give me another chance. I would be lost without you. I need you. Please!!! ❑ ❑

Yet, falling to pieces in front of his wife and begging, pleading or even crying, in the hopes that she will change her mind, usually makes her pull away even more.

Why?

Women are instinctively attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. self-respect, his ability to cope with stressful situations) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. lack of self confidence, falling to pieces when things get difficult), so when a man begs and pleads because he doesn't know how to handle a difficult situation, it's a huge turn off for a woman.

This is especially true in a marriage because one of the main reasons a woman gets married is to have a man who will make her feel safe and protected for life, not an emotionally weak guy that she has to take care of like a mother would take care of her son.

So, when a man resorts to begging his wife to stay, a few things happen in her head:

1. She loses even more respect and attraction for him because he is being emotionally weak in front of her.
2. She feels that he's not really facing the deeper issues in their relationship and he's just hoping that by begging and pleading, she'll stop wanting to leave and will give him yet another chance.
3. She feels like she has to console him like a mother would for a child and that only makes her lose more attraction for him.

More than anything else, a wife needs to know that her husband is someone she can look up to, respect, and rely on to guide both of them through the difficult times.

She doesn't want to feel that he can't really cope without her and she will have to stay without him out of pity.

However, don't worry if you've already begged your wife to stay.

Here's how you can fix it!

You can still change how she feels about you by being emotionally strong from now on, and by focusing on making her feel a renewed sense of respect, sexual attraction and love.

Another mistake that husbands often make when a wife wants to leave is!

2. Promising her the world.

[image: Promising her the world]

When a man realizes that his wife is on the verge of leaving him, he might start promising her all sorts of things in an attempt to make her change her mind.

For example:

- I will start taking you on holidays. Where do you want to go?
- I'll give you more of my paycheck so you can have extra spending money. How much do you want?
- I'll work longer hours to earn more money.
- I'll do anything you want me to do.

- I'll clean up around the house. You don't have to do anything anymore.
- You can call all the shots now. I will listen to anything that you say and do anything you want.

While a wife might be flattered at how much her husband cares, him becoming her slave isn't going to make her feel more respect and attraction for him.

In fact, the more he tries to suck up to her, the less she feels for him.

Watch this video for more info! [\[link\]](#)

What a wife wants to see is that her husband understands the problems and is already making changes because he wants to do it.

She doesn't want to see her husband frantically promising her the world in the hope of keeping her happy because it then means that he is just her puppet.

She wants a man who is his own man and does the right thing because he enjoys doing it, wants to do it and is happy to do it.

Not because he is feeling desperate, is trying to suck up to her and is willing to hand over all of his power to her to make her stay.

In most cases, a husband will begin to promise things to his wife that she doesn't even really care about deep down.

For example: He might suddenly remember that his wife has been nagging him about watching too much TV and not going out enough.

He might then promise her that he will stop watching TV at nights and will plan a romantic dinners or "date nights" for the two of them often.

What he doesn't realize is that when a woman nags about a man's TV habits, it's usually because she doesn't like the idea of being married to a guy who has no drive and ambition in life.

He thinks that he's offering her what she wants by suggesting date nights and no TV at night time, but he's failing to see the deeper problem behind her nagging, which is the fact that he's either stuck in a dead end job or has no desire to make their life better by rising higher in his career.

Almost all women want to be with a man who has a bigger purpose in life that drives him.

She wants to feel proud of her man when they attend family gatherings and when she introduces him to new friends and coworkers.

So, when a husband with mediocre or no ambition starts promising to do extra nice things for his wife, it doesn't hit the mark with her.

It only highlights to her that he's still clueless about the real problems in the marriage, and that even if she gives him another chance, the same problems will probably continue.

So, rather than promising your wife that you will do anything she wants you to do, focus instead on changing the real things about you that have been turning her off.

Maybe you are a man of purpose and have achieved great things in life, so for you it might be about the fact that you've taken her for granted lately instead.

Whatever the case is for you, when your wife sees that your thinking, talking, behavior and the way you take action is different from what has been turning her off, she will begin to feel a renewed sense of respect for you.

That is a lot more effective and long lasting than making promises about things that she doesn't really care about or want anyway.

3. Trying to use the children or a mortgage as the main reason to stay together.

[image: Focus on what makes her feel respect and attraction]

Sometimes, a man will do whatever he can to stop his wife from leaving, even if it means trying to make her feel guilty.

For example: A man might say to his wife, “What about the children? Do you really want to be the one responsible for scarring them for life and ruining their ability to keep a marriage together? We should try to make our marriage work for their sake. They need good role models. If you leave me, you will be a horrible role model for our children” or “We’ve just bought a new house. We’ll both lose a lot of money if we get divorced. Do you really want to do that to yourself?”

Although they are good arguments, the fact is that a modern woman doesn’t want to be forced to stay with a man out of a sense of guilt or pity.

She wants to be with him because she loves him and because he is someone she can look up to, rely on and respect.

Even if a wife decides to stay out of feelings of guilt, if nothing about him really changes she will be even more determined to leave the next time.

4. Not focusing on making her feel a renewed sense of respect, sexual attraction and love.

[image: No sexual spark anymore]

Albert Einstein apparently once said, “Insanity is doing the same thing over and over again and expecting different results.”

In the same way, if you are saying and doing things that are turning your wife off, you can’t expect to get different results to the ones you’ve been getting (i.e. your wife wanting to leave).

So, if you want to stop your wife from leaving, you’ve got to start saying and doing things that will make her feel a renewed sense of respect, attraction, and love for you from now on.

When you do that, her guard will slowly come down and she will naturally feel her resolve slipping away.

A wife seldom wants to give up on her marriage if she doesn’t absolutely have to, so she will usually try to look for ways to make things better.

However, if her husband never steps up to the plate, she has to start the process of leaving to scare him into changing or to move on and try starting a new chapter of her life without him.

You can stop that from happening before it’s too late.

How?

When you change the way you communicate and interact with your wife in a way that sparks her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, it makes the negatives of your relationship seem less important to her, because she naturally begins to see you in a different light.

In the back of her mind, she may begin to wonder, “Maybe it’s not too late to save our marriage. Maybe I should stick around for a while longer and see if we can work things out. I feel differently now. I'm not as determined to leave. Things seem okay now. It will be so much hassle trying to start again on my own. Iâll stick it out for another year and see how it goes.â

That's what happens when you focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Husbands who try to skip that step and focus only on trying to convince her to stay are the ones who lose their wife.

For example: If a man tries to reason with his wife and explain to her that he can change, sheâs usually going to say something like, âLook, I think we need to accept that this isnât working out between us. I just donât feel the same way anymore.â

Essentially, what sheâs saying is that she just doesnât have feelings for him and that he doesnât even know how to make her have enough feelings for him to warrant sticking with the marriage.

5. Getting into arguments and debates rather than focusing on making her laugh, smile and feel good.

[image: Arguments are not the answer]

When a marriage reaches the point where the wife is getting ready to leave, itâs not unusual for the couple to catch themselves getting into crazy arguments and verbally attacking each other.

However, arguing and debating about the same things over and over again, only keeps the situation at the same level, where both the husband and wife feel hurt, misunderstood and betrayed.

So, rather than getting into endless arguments and debates with your wife, focus instead on making her laugh and feeling good again.

Instead of talking about how good things used to be in the beginning of your relationship, which will only remind her how bad things have really gotten now, focus on replacing her negative feelings with positive ones.

For example: If your wife gets upset with you about something, rather than react in the usual way by defending yourself, or blaming her, turn it into something you can laugh about together.

Itâs not about cracking jokes in a disrespectful way, but about finding the positive in every situation.

When she can relax, smile, laugh and be her feminine self in your presence once again, it will be difficult for her to hold on to her decision to leave.

She will feel good around you, she will be smiling and the negatives of your marriage will begin to feel less important to her.

So, if you want to stop your wife from leaving make sure that you focus on making her experience a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Don't try to convince her to stay with endless logic and reason.

Make her want to stay by making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction to the new and improved you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Tips to Get Her Back After Being Needy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 4 tips to get your ex back after being needy.

1. Want Her Back, But Don't Need Her Back

[image: Want her back, don't need her back]

There's a big difference between wanting to get her back and needing to get her back.

If you focus all your energy on how much you need her back to stop the emotional pain that you've been experiencing since the break up, you will remain stuck in a cycle of neediness, which is what made her break up with you in the first place.

Before you try to do anything else to get your ex back, you first have to believe and know that you don't need her in your life to be happy again.

Sure, you want her back, but you don't need her back.

If you need her back because you are in emotional pain without her, then you're not ready to start re-attracting her.

[image: Neediness will turn her off further]

She will sense your neediness and it will turn her off.

It doesn't matter if you try to hide it by acting like you're totally fine without her. She will sense it based on the subtle differences in your body language, conversation, vibe, attitude and reactions to her.

If you want an ex back after getting dumped for being needy, you really have to start being less reliant on her for your sense of emotional well being and happiness.

When you allow yourself to feel happy, content and emotionally fulfilled without her, the idea of not being with her in a relationship starts to feel okay and your neediness begins to go away.

Neediness can't have a place in your mind when you are busy getting on with other important things in your life, having a good time with friends, enjoying the things that you've been putting off and even meeting new women who are attracted to you and want to be with you.

Here's the really cool part...

When you get to the point where you still want your ex back, but you sincerely, honestly feel good about yourself even if you don't, something strange happens!

You suddenly become more attractive to her.

When you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) and she gets a sense that you are confident and happy and getting on with your life without her, she begins to see you in a new light.

You seem more attractive, appealing and likeable now. She feels drawn to you in a way that she hasn't in a long time, or probably hasn't ever.

Why?

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strengths in men (e.g. confidence, self-belief, the ability to cope with difficult situations in life, drive and determination) and repelled by the emotional weaknesses (e.g. insecurity, self-doubt, neediness, inability to handle what life throws at him).

So, when your ex realizes that youâ€”re now an emotionally strong man without her, she automatically feels attracted to youâ€”even if she doesn't want to.

Attraction is an automatic reaction that humans have to each other. A person either displays attractive traits or they don't.

If a guy displays attractive traits to his ex girlfriend, fianc  or wife, she can't help but feel attracted.

It happens automatically.

She can't also stop herself from beginning to look at you with a new, more positive perspective because you are now behaving like the kind of man that she can actually look up to and respect.

2. Become More Emotionally Independent

[image: Become more emotionally independent]

When an insecure guy happens to get lucky and attract a hot woman into a relationship by luck, he will often make the mistake of focusing way too much attention on her and might stop caring about other important parts of his life.

For example: A guy might stop hanging out with all his old friends because he wants to spend all his time with his new girlfriend.

After a while, he might also give up any hobbies and interests that he had before he met her.

He might have a big dream or passion that he wanted to pursue throughout his life, but he will hide from it behind the safety of being in a relationship with her.

At the back of his mind, he might try to convince himself that heâ€”s doing the right thing by saying, â€”My ambitions aren't important to me anymore. Sheâ€”s the one. Without her, my life would have no meaning. I just want to do whatever it takes to keep her happy and show her that nothing else matters to me as much as she does. She is what my life is about now.â€”

Yet, even though he might seem to be behaving the way that a good boyfriend (fianc  or husband) should behave, becoming emotionally dependent on a woman is the fastest way to lose her respect. Although a woman loves to be in a relationship with a guy who is loving, attentive and devoted to her, most women understand that a real man is someone who can love her, without needing her to be his main purpose in life.

So, if your neediness caused your ex to break up with you and not want you back, you must show her that you are now man enough to have your own dreams and goals in life, which are completely independent of your relationship with her.

How can you do that?

By focusing on doing all the things youâ€”ve been putting off because of your relationship.

If youâ€”re unsure about what those things are for you, now is a good time to find out.

Answer the following questions:

- What is your purpose in life? Do you have a big dream that you want to accomplish, and what are you doing about making it happen? If you don't have a big dream or ambition, now is a good time to find one, and then take the necessary action to make it a reality.

- What have you always wanted to do/see? Think about the things you've always wanted to do in your life that you've been putting off (e.g. go traveling, challenge yourself by trying something that you really want to do) and start doing it now.
- What are the things you've been avoiding in your life? If you've always wanted to go to university, do it now. If you've always wanted to learn something new (e.g. how to cook, fly an airplane, sail a boat, rock climb) start learning now.
- Have you neglected your friends because of your relationship? Now is a good time to rekindle old friendships, or make new ones.

Once you've answered the above questions, you might realize that you've been letting a lot of good things pass you by in your life due to being so focused on her.

When you have a life purpose, ambitions, goals, dreams, interests and friendships that are separate from your relationship with a woman, it is less likely that you will ever feel needy, because your relationship is not who you are; it does not define you.

I know this because my purpose in life is The Modern Man and even though I have a hot, young wife (she was 20 when I met her and I was 35), nothing that she says or does ever makes me feel needy or lost.

She knows that she is the most important person in my life, but the most important thing to me is The Modern Man.

She knows that I would never let anyone, not even her, get in the way of the work that I want to get done here at The Modern Man to help guys succeed with women.

As a result of that, she has always respected me and looked up to me. She also respects and admires the hard work that I put into help men succeed with women and is proud that she has a man who is doing his best in this world.

She also loves the fact that she is loved, wanted, respected and cared about, but that I would never, ever let anyone take my focus away from following through on my purpose in life. Nothing that anyone could ever say or do would stop me from working on The Modern Man and following through on my purpose to help men succeed with women.

When you stay focused on your biggest, most important goals and ambitions in life that are separate to your relationship with a woman, you are the kind of man that a woman can continually look up to and respect.

In your case, you are the type of man that your ex can look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

Rather than her feeling like you're smothering her with your neediness and that she has to mother you because you're a lost boy in this world, she will feel lucky to be with a man who has so much going for him in his life, yet still has time to be a loving and devoted boyfriend (fiancé or husband) to her.

3. Show Her That You're No Longer the Needy Guy She Broke

Up With

[image: Show her that you're not the same guy that she dumped]

Actions speak louder than words.

So, rather than tell your ex, â€œIâ€™ve changed. Iâ€™m really not needy anymore,â€ which sheâ€™s not going to believe, you need to show her that youâ€™re not the same guy that she broke up with.

How do you do that?

You show her via your behavior, what you say, how you think and the way you respond to what she says.

Most guys can overcome their neediness in days with help, but if a guy doesn't get help, he will try to mask it by acting like he's no longer needy.

Yet, when a guy is only trying to mask his neediness, rather than quickly fixing it before he contacts his ex, it continues to come through in subtle ways when he communicates with her.

For example: When a guy interacts with his ex, he might put on an act of being confident around her and pretend that he doesn't want to get back together with her.

However, in most cases, a woman will pick up on the act and she will then test him by showing interest and then pulling back to see how he reacts.

She might say something like, â€œHmmmâ€, you seem different now. I was wonderingâ€, maybe we can get back together again. I don't knowâ€.

If he then jumps at the idea and says something along the lines of, â€œYes! Thatâ€™s what Iâ€™ve been wanting all along! You know you mean everything to me. I want us to get back together again more than anything else in my life! I've been trying to hold back from saying it, but it hasn't been easyâ€ she will know that his confidence and emotional independence has only been an act.

Another way she might test him is by telling him about how great her life has been without him, to see if it hurts him.

For example: She might say something like, â€œI know that I probably be saying that I've missed you, but that would be a lie. Iâ€™ve been having such a great time being single. I'm sorry to be honest, but I just feel so much better as a single woman. My girlfriends and I have been clubbing all the time. Itâ€™s just so much fun!â€

If he then looks hurt, gets upset or angry, she will instantly see that he hasn't really changed anything about himself and that heâ€™s still at the same level he was when she broke up with him.

The best way to show your ex that youâ€™ve moved to a different level from the one you were at before your break up, is to show her via the way you talk and interact with her.

For example: How do you currently react to what your ex says to you? How do you behave when she ignores you, talks to other guys, pretends sheâ€™s not interested in getting back?

When she sees for herself that things are different, she will begin to feel drawn to you again.

She will enjoy talking to you and interacting with you because it feels good to her.

4. Stop Discussing the Relationship and Start Having Fun Together

If you really want to get your ex back after being needy, what you need to do is use every interaction that you have with her (e.g. via text, on a phone call, or in person) to spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

However, if every time you interact with your ex, the only thing you're doing is going over what was wrong in the relationship, you will never be able to move past that and start a new relationship with her with a clean slate.

For example: When on a call with his ex, a guy might say, "I really messed up. I'm so sorry I was so needy. I know that I made things really difficult for you, but I can change. What do you think I should have done differently? Just tell me and I promise that I'll do anything you want. I will change whatever you want me to change. I promise!"

Yet, that's not what a woman wants to hear.

In fact, begging, pleading, apologizing and asking her what he needs to do only turns her off even more. Why?

A woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher in life and have to teach him how to think and behave like the man that she needs him to be.

If she tells him what he needs to do to be considered a real man, it will put her in the position of being a mother or big sister figure to him, which will completely turn her off.

A better way to get your ex back would be to forget about what went wrong in the relationship, and focus instead on having fun, and getting to know each other in a whole new different way.

For example: You might say to your ex on the phone, "Just for a minute, let's pretend we've only just met and that there's no bad history between us. We can then get to know each other all over again without all the negative stuff. That way, you can like me or dislike me based on who I am now, rather than us constantly focusing on my past mistakes."

From there, every time you interact with her (via text message, on social media, on a phone call, and especially in person) focus on making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be with you.

Show her via the way you think, talk and behave that you've moved beyond the level you were at when you were together, and make her feel respect, attraction and love for you all over again.

[image: Getting her back after being needy]

Initially she might be a bit hesitant and she might say, "I don't know! I'm not sure I can forget about the way that you used to be when we were together."

However, no matter what she says or does, you need to stay relaxed and keep guiding her into deeper feelings of respect and attraction for you.

As long as you keep making her feel respect and attraction, her guard will come down and she will open up to being with you again or will actively try to get you back herself.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Undo a Break Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The fastest way to undo a break up is to apologize to your ex and make her have strong feelings for you from now on whenever you interact with her (e.g. via e-mail, text message, social media, on the phone or in person).

Once you have re-sparked some of her feelings for you, it's only natural that her guard will come down and she will open up to you.

Even if she tries to fight the change in her feelings, if you have started to regain her respect and attraction for you, she won't be able to resist feeling drawn to you again.

She will find herself thinking about you, missing you and wondering why she isn't giving you another chance.

All you need to do then is meet up with her and guide her back into a relationship.

So, if you are serious about wanting to know how to undo a break up, here are five mistakes that you should avoid making:

1. Begging and Pleading For Her Forgiveness

[image: Begging and pleading for forgiveness]

There's absolutely nothing wrong with apologizing to a woman for past mistakes.

In fact, getting her to forgive you is an important step to making her have strong (positive) feelings for you again.

However, where many guys go wrong, is that instead of apologizing to their ex in a mature and emotionally strong way that will attract her, they resort to begging and pleading with her, in the hopes that she will forgive him and change her mind about not wanting to be together anymore.

For example: A guy who is desperate to undo a break up with his ex might text her, or call her up, and say something like, I'm so sorry for what I did to you. I can't bear the thought of having hurt you so much. Please forgive me. I'll do anything to get you back.

Yet, rather than soften her up and make her feel more open to the idea of taking him back, begging and pleading actually turns her off even more. Why?

The main reason is because men and women are different.

To better understand these differences, first look at it from a man's point of view:

When a guy breaks up with a woman, and she reacts by begging and pleading with him for a second chance, a lot of guys will actually respond to her emotional weakness in a positive way.

A guy might even feel more attracted to woman when she begs and pleads with him, because he might choose to interpret her needy behavior as a sign of how much she loves him, and that she's willing to do anything to keep him.

Since a guy might think, If I broke up with her, I would most likely give her a second chance if she was begging me to do it, so she will hopefully do that for me.

Yet, thatâs not how it works for women.

From a womanâs point of view, begging and pleading brings up negative emotions in her because women are sexually turned off by emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, neediness, low self esteem) in men.

In most cases, rather than making a woman think, *âAwww, how sweet! He really does love me. I think Iâm going to give him another chance now,*â sheâs likely going to be thinking, *âOkay! This is not how I want my man to be behaving. I feel disgusted and disappointed at how weak he is acting right now. I think Iâve made the right decision here to break up with him.*â

When a guy is begging and pleading with a woman for forgiveness, she will usually interpret it as a sign of emotional weakness and will then feel even less respect and attraction for him as a man.

Of course, some women will give a guy another chance for a day or two if he begs and pleads with her, but when she realizes that nothing about him has changed (e.g. his still promising to change things about himself that she doesnât really care about, heâs still asking her to explain to him what he did wrong), she will likely break up with him again.

So, one of the main steps to undoing a break up is to stay emotionally strong, so that you can re-spark your exâs feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

However, if youâve already begged and pleaded with her, donât worry about it. Itâs not the end of the world.

Just make sure that from this moment onwards, every time you interact with her, you are behaving in ways that will make her start having strong feelings for you again.

2. Ignoring Her in the Hopes That She Comes Running Back

[image: Hopefully she will come running back if I ignore her]

Some guys will spend weeks, or even months ignoring their ex, in the hopes that she will realize that she canât live without him, and then come running back.

However, if a woman doesnât have feelings for a guy, sheâs not going to feel like sheâs missing out on much, and she will usually just start dating or having sex with new guys.

In some cases, she might even feel relieved not to have to deal with her ex begging and pleading with her for a second chance and will be glad that heâs giving her so much space to move on.

So, if youâre considering ignoring your ex as a way to undo your break up, youâre likely just going to waste a lot of time.

The fastest way to get her back is by actively making her have strong feelings for you, whenever you interact with her.

If youâre ignoring your ex, sheâs not interacting with you and will almost certainly hold onto her negative opinions about you, which caused her to break up with you in the first place.

Since youâre not interacting with her, she canât feel drawn to those things about you that are attractive to her (e.g. your confidence, masculinity, sense of humor, charisma, charm).

If she doesnât hear from you for a long time, she may begin to think, âOkay, so my ex is clearly over me now, so Iâm not going to wait around for him anymore. Iâm going to go out and meet new guys and have a great time without him. Iâm going to have a lot of sex and really enjoy *myself to get over the pain that I feel due to him not contacting me. I'm not going to let him make me feel this way. I'm going to get laid and then let him find out about it on social media or through friends.*â□□

This is why ignoring a woman after a break up is usually a bad idea. It's very easy for a woman to go out and get laid.

Based on advice found online about the so called No Contact Rule (ignoring your ex for 30-60 days) a lot of guys will waste 30, 60, or even more days ignoring their ex in the hope that it makes her come running back.

Yet, it rarely works for men who want a woman back because the woman has usually lost most or all of her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

Rather than chasing a guy that she no longer respects or feels attracted to, she just lets a new guy have sex with her and begins to enjoy herself and move on.

Then, when her ex contacts her one day and she tells him that sheâ□□s dating another guy, he thinks to himself, *â□□Why didnâ□□t ignoring her work? Why isnâ□□t she coming back to me? Isnâ□□t she supposed to have missed me so much that she comes running back to me? I thought that all I needed to do was ignore her and I could get my ex back.*â□□

Based on my vast experience successfully helping men to get women back, I've found that ignoring a woman only works about 20% of the time.

If she does come back and notices that the guy hasnâ□□t really changed, she simply breaks up with him again.

So, not only has the guy lost a lot of time ignoring her, but he has also given her the space she needs to move on, get over the pain of the break up and forget all about him.

To undo a break up quickly, you need to actively make your ex have strong feelings for you again whenever you interact with her via text, on the phone, on social media and in person.

She then starts to wonder, *â□□Whatâ□□s going on here? Why am I always thinking about him now? Why am I feeling jealous about the idea of him meeting another woman? Why do I want to at least have sex with him again? What does this mean? Do I want him back? OMG, I want him back.*â□□

If you want to undo a break up, donâ□□t waste time ignoring her and hoping that time apart will bring her back.

Instead, use every interaction with her (e.g. via text message or e-mail, on social media, over the phone, in person) as an opportunity to make her feel strong feelings of respect and attraction for you.

The more she feels attracted to you, the more open she becomes to the idea of being with you again.

3. Promising to Change Whatever She Wants

[image: I will change whatever you want me to change. Just tell me and I will do it.]

When nothing seems to be working to change her mind, a man will often say something like, *â□□I love you so much! Just tell me what you want me to do. I will change for you. I will be whatever you want me to be. Just give me one more chance. Please just tell me what you want and Iâ□□ll do it.*â□□

Yet, that doesn't work either.

By saying these sorts of things to a woman, a guy is only confirming to her that he doesn't really know, or understand, what he has been doing wrong, or why she has broken up with him.

Why is this important?

If a guy doesn't know what caused a woman to break up with him, then it means that she has to explain it to him.

She has to take on the role of being his teacher about how to be the kind of real man who is attractive to her and pretty much all other women.

A woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher and have to instruct him on how to be a real man.

After a break up, a woman wants her man to work that stuff out on his own and then come back to her and show her that he has truly improved and changed himself.

Watch this video for more info!

So, rather than make promises to your ex that she's not going to really care about, ask yourself, "What are the real reasons she broke up with me?" and "Do I need help to improve and change, or have I already made improvements and changes that she is going to find attractive?"

For example: Ask yourself!

- Did I take her for granted in any way? If so, do I now know how to not take her for granted?
- Was I the emotionally strong man she needed me to be, or did I become clingy, insecure and needy? If I was emotionally weak, am I now emotionally strong?
- Was I the dominant one in the relationship, or did I allow her to wear the pants? If I wasn't dominant enough, do I know what to do to be a loving, dominant man whenever I interact with her from now on?
- Did I have a life purpose outside of my relationship with her, or did I make everything about her?

When you understand the real reasons why your ex broke up with you, you can begin to offer her what she really wants, not what you think she wants.

4. Over Texting Her

[image: Over texting an ex]

While some guys will completely ignore their ex hoping that it will make her come running back, other guys do the complete opposite and don't give her a minute of space.

Some guys mistakenly think that the best way to undo a break up is to keep in constant contact, so he is always on her mind.

A guy like this might think, "If I keep in touch with my ex, she won't be able to forget about me. She will gradually realize that she misses me, that I really love her and that she means more to me than anything else in the world. We can then get back together again," or "My ex says she doesn't want to see me. So, if I text her in a friendly way, it will hopefully appear as though I'm not pushing her to get back together and she will then talk to me and gradually decide to get back with me."

He then starts to text his ex every day or even several times a day.

Although it might seem tempting to use texting as a way to contact your ex in a casual, non-threatening way, it usually does more harm than good.

Generally speaking, you should only text an ex as a way of getting her to talk to you on the phone, or in person or to create a bit of a spark of attraction to bring her guard down so she will talk to you on the phone.

To use texting as anything more (e.g. to apologize in long messages, to ask for a second chance or to tell her how much you miss her) will usually be taken the wrong way.

Why?

When a woman looks at a text message, she has to guess at what state of mind the guy is in, where heâs coming from and why heâs texting her.

For example: If a woman currently feels anger, resentment, or any other negative emotions towards her ex, even a seemingly innocent, âHey, how are you doing? I hope you doing okay,â can make her wonder, âWhat does my ex want now? Why is he asking if Iâm okay? Does he think Iâm going to tell him I canât live without him? Yeah right. I'll let him see how happy I am and that will hurt him."

She might then reply with, "I'm doing great. I am so much happier now that I'm single. Please leave me alone."

That isnât because sheâs being a cold-hearted bitch, but because he hasn't reactivated her feelings of respect, attraction and love and he is expecting her to reply in a positive, friendly way.

She doesn't want to give him the idea that she wants him back, because he hasn't even said or done anything to make her want him back.

She is basing her opinion of him on past experiences of him behaving in ways that were emotionally weak and unattractive to her.

She cannot see his body language, experience his conversation style or hear the tonality of his voice via text messages, so she will simply judge his texts based on how she felt about him leading up to, and during, the break up.

Even if the guy has completely changed and is now more confident, interesting, ambitious, someone she can look up to and respect, than he was when they broke up, she just canât experience that in a text message.

So, rather than send your ex a lot of pointless text messages that might actually annoy her, focus only on texting her with the intention of getting her on a phone call so that you can reactivate her feelings on a phone call and then arrange an in person meet up.

On the phone, she will be able to hear the tone of your voice and sense whether you are more confident and emotionally strong than you were when she broke up with you.

From there, you can apologize, get her smiling and laughing and make her open up to the idea of meeting with you in person.

Then, when you meet up in person, you can make her feel strong feelings for you again and she will naturally become open to giving you another chance or at least hooking up one last time to see how she feels.

5. Showing Emotional Weakness

Most women like the idea of being with a man they can look up to and respect, feel attracted to and feel proud to show off to their family and friends.

So, when a man becomes an emotional mess during, or after, a break up, a woman feels turned off by him at a deep instinctive level.

Some examples of emotionally weak things that guys do are:

- Crying to her in the hope that she feels pity and gives him yet another chance.
- Taking the blame for everything that happened in the relationship, without fully understanding her reasons for wanting to break up.
- Threatening to hurt himself (e.g. by saying something like, I can't live without you. I'm going to kill myself or If I can't have you, there's no point on living anymore.)
- Begging family and friends to put in a good word for him, to make her change her mind.
- Being extra nice to her, even though she treats him badly, in the hopes that she sees how much he cares and then changes her mind.

In most cases, if a guy shows his emotional weakness in any of these ways, rather than undo the break up, he will convince his ex even more that she is better off without him.

The truth is, a woman doesn't care how much a guy cares for her, how badly he's hurting, or even that he's thinking of killing himself, if she doesn't have feelings for him.

He needs to make her have some feelings for him first, otherwise she's not going to care about any of the things he's saying or doing to get her back.

Undoing a Break Up is Easier Than You Might Think

[image: Undoing a break up at a meet up]

Before you arrived at my site, you might have been thinking that it seemed almost impossible to undo a break up, especially if your ex has been saying things like, Leave me alone, I never want to see you again, or even, I hate you and I'll never forgive you.

However, no matter how determined she is about staying broken up with you, what she doesn't realize is that feelings can and do change.

When you make her have strong feelings of respect and attraction every time you interact with her from now, she won't be able to stop herself from changing how she feels about you.

It happens naturally and automatically whether she wants it to or not.

Think about it!

How can she carry on hating you or ignoring her when she is feeling so much attraction and respect for you as a man now?

How can she hate interacting with you if she always smiles, laughs and feels good when she talks to you?

She can't.

She can fake it and pretend like she's not interested, but you will see her smiling, laughing and opening up to you again.

You will notice that she texts you or calls you and is open to seeing you again and again.

You might get her back the first time that you meet up with her, or if your break up was pretty bad, it might take a couple of meet ups.

Yet, it's going to happen.

You are going to undo this break up and get her back.

That is, as long as you focus on reactivating her feelings whenever you interact with her!

If you're trying to undo a break up without trying to make your ex have feelings for you again, then it's going to be a really difficult, drawn out process for you.

She's just not going to be interested.

She's not going to care how much you care until you make her have feelings for you again.

When you focus on making her have feelings for you again and build on that, all her walls come down and she literally wants to be back in your arms again.

The idea of being held by you feels good. It feels right.

That is how you undo a break up!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Dumped Me For Being Clingy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you are saying, “My girlfriend dumped me for being clingy,” it’s understandable if you are feeling hurt, alone and lost right now without her.

She was your girlfriend and you used to be in love, but now she’s on her own and possibly thinking about being with other guys.

If you want her back, the first that thing you need to get clear on, is that clingy behavior can be forgiven.

Watch this for an example of how to recover from begging and pleading for another chance!

To get her to see that you’ve learned from the experience, all you need to do is laugh at how you were behaving, apologize and let her see that you are now a better man.

You were clingy a clingy boyfriend before, not now.

Being clingy is not something you have to be stuck with.

It is something you can change.

When you understand what causes a guy to become clingy in his relationship, you will also see that it’s possible and often easy to quickly change and get rid of clinginess.

Here are some of the main reasons why a guy might become clingy in his relationship:

1. He Lacks Purpose and Direction Outside of the Relationship

[image: He lacks purpose and direction outside of the relationship]

Although being in a relationship is great, and is something that most people strive for, it cannot be a man’s main purpose in life.

When a man makes his woman the main reason for his existence and really only cares about her and not much else, it’s only natural that he will begin to behave in a clingy way.

She is his main reason for living, so worries that if he loses her he will then have nothing valuable left in his life.

He will try to explain to her that she means everything to him and that his life would not be worth living without her, but she will be thinking, “That’s not what I want.”

A woman wants to be loved and appreciated, but not needed for a man’s emotional security, sense of identity or reason for living.

Some guys mistakenly think that clingy, insecure and over-protective behavior is a sign that they are being loving and supportive towards their woman.

He assumes that the more that he shows her how much he loves, cares and needs her, the more she will love him, care about him and need him.

Yet, that’s not how it works.

For example: A clingy, insecure and overprotective guy might

- Stop pursuing his goals, and focus most or all of his attention on supporting his woman and trying to make her happy.
- Give up all his friends and other interests so that he can spend every spare minute he has with her.
- Do whatever she wants him to do, as long as she stays with him.
- Need her to reassure him of her love and devotion all the time (e.g. ask her “Do you still love me? You know I would die without you don’t you? You wouldn’t leave me would you?”).
- Constantly text or call her to see what she is doing.
- Repeatedly tell her things like, “I love you so much. I would be so lost without you. You are my everything. You are my reason for living.”
- Help her out with everything (e.g. pick her up and drop her off wherever and whenever she needs him to, run errands for her, cook and do the housework for her).

On the other hand, a real man who is loving and supportive will:

- Have a life purpose that he is striving towards outside of his relationship with her (i.e. a big, long term ambition that is extremely important to him).
- Have some friends and hobbies out of his relationship with her.
- Strive to reach his true potential as a man.
- Work hard on the things that are important to him (e.g. his purpose, career) while at the same time be emotionally supportive and loving towards her.
- Lead the way as the man, while also taking her opinions, needs, wants and desires into account.
- Maintain her respect and attraction by being confident, masculine, driven, focused and self-sufficient.

There’s nothing wrong with texting or calling your woman, but a real man doesn’t waste his time worrying about whether or not she is still interested.

He knows that she is still interested, attracted and in love with him because he’s a real man.

A clingy guy needs to constantly be shown that he is loved by her, otherwise his whole world begins to come crumbling down because she is what his life is about.

As you can see, there is a clear difference between being the kind of man a woman can look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love, and being a clingy guy she feels smothered by.

[image: Get tired of her clingy boyfriend]

Most women understand that a real man is someone who can be 100% devoted and loving towards her, while also working hard at achieving his own dreams and goals in life that are independent of their relationship.

Naturally, there are some women who like to be with a man who has nothing else going on in his life other than her (usually unattractive women or women who plan on cheating on or leaving the guy eventually), but the majority of women like to be in a balanced relationship with a man they can look up to and respect.

When a woman feels respect for her man, she will also feel attracted to him, and her love will grow and expand.

On the other hand, if a woman feels like she can’t look up to her man and can’t feel proud to be his girl because he is too emotionally weak to stand on his own two feet in life, she will lose respect for him, and her feelings of attraction and love will soon begin to fade.

If your girlfriend is no longer impressed by the man that you have become, that is something that you can change today.

Watch this...

Another reason why a man might become clingy in a relationship is that...

2. He Feels Unworthy of Her

[image: He feels unworthy of her]

Some guys go through life always comparing themselves to other guys.

Even when a guy has a really beautiful girlfriend (fiancée or wife), and even if she's always telling him how much she loves him, often, it doesn't help settle his insecurities, because deep down he doesn't believe he deserves her.

For example: When a guy feels insecure about himself in some way (e.g. because he is overweight, bald or has a modest income) and then sees his woman talking to a guy who has six-pack abs, a full head of hair and a flashy sports car, he might start thinking, "Why is she talking to him? It must be because he's so much better looking and richer than me. I knew my luck wouldn't last forever! she finally decided she can do better than me."

In his mind, he is creating a problem that isn't really there, because deep down he simply doesn't believe he is worthy of his woman.

He doesn't know how to be an attractive, real man for her, so he panics and feels like pretty much any other guy is a threat and might be able to steal her from him.

He then starts to become clingy and needy around his girlfriend because he is afraid of losing her and wants to hold on as tight as he can, in the hopes that it will make her realize how important she is to him.

Here's the thing!

If your girlfriend chose to date you, it was because she initially found in you the types of behaviors and personality traits that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, masculinity, determination, humor, charm, charisma).

However, if you have doubted your attractiveness and value to her during the relationship and allowed your insecurities to overshadow those great qualities in you, it's only natural that she would then begin to feel turned off and eventually dump you.

Women want to be with an emotionally strong man and if a guy is unable to grow up and become that man, a woman will almost always lose interest and dump him.

Another reason why a guy might become clingy in a relationship is that!

3. He Didn't Get Enough Love As a Child

[image: He didn't get enough love as a child]

Unfortunately, not every guy grows up in a loving and nurturing environment.

For example: A guy might be raised by a single parent, and then goes through life feeling like he missed out on the love from his absent mother or father.

Alternatively, a guy might grow up in a home where his parents are emotionally closed off from him (e.g. don't give him a lot of attention, are critical and judgmental, miss all the important events in his life), or they seem to love one of his brothers or sisters more than him.

There are also guys who struggle to make friends in school and grow up feeling left out and lonely.

Whatever the case, if a guy grows up feeling like it is difficult for him to be loved by others, it's only natural that when he finds a woman who wants to be his girlfriend, he might cling to her like she's his love lifesaver.

Yet, no matter how much she reassures the clingy guy that she really loves him and wants to be with him, if he is going through life believing he's not loveable, nothing that she can say to him will convince him that he is truly loved and will not be dumped by her.

He tries to take more and more of her love in the form of compliments, reassurance that she loves him, affection and attention.

However, no matter how much of her love that he takes and stores up inside his mind, it's never enough to fully put his insecurities at ease.

He can't stop himself from being clingy because, deep down, he knows that he needs her love to feel good about himself and stop being so affected by the painful memories of his childhood.

Yet, the more that he clings to her, the more that she will want to pull away from him.

Think of it this way:

Have you ever been in an elevator where people kept coming in at every level and no one ever got off?

It became jam-packed and you could hardly breathe without feeling a bit nauseous.

What did it feel like to be crammed in a tight space with so many people?

Did you feel relaxed and calm, or did you begin to feel smothered and even a little bit panicky?

If you're like most people, the idea of feeling trapped and not able to ease the stress probably doesn't appeal to you.

In the same way, a woman who feels trapped in a relationship can't feel happy for very long.

Love is something that has to flow freely between a man and woman in order for it to grow and expand.

You can't force a woman to love you.

You have to create the love based on how you think, talk, feel, behave and take action around her and in life.

If you are displaying traits that make a woman feel respect, attraction and love (e.g. confidence, masculine mindset, charisma, charm, calm under pressure), she will naturally love you and want to be with you.

However, if you're displaying traits that turn a woman off (e.g. clinginess, insecurity, neediness, stressed under pressure), a woman will be unable to maintain her feelings for you for very long.

The good news is that you can turn it around.

You can get her to have feelings for you again. Here's how!

You can get her to stop looking at you as the clingy, insecure guy that she dumped.

You are different now.

You are a better man and you are now able to make her feel respect, attraction and love for you once again.

Another reason why a guy might become clingy in a relationship is that!

4. He is Insecure About His Ability to Attract Another Quality Woman

Some guys know that they got lucky when they hooked up with their girlfriend, so the idea of having to go out and find someone else if she breaks up with him is very scary.

If a guy has been going through life believing that it's very difficult to attract a new, beautiful woman for sex or a relationship, he will have that insecurity in the back of his mind when in a relationship.

He may think, "I got lucky with my girlfriend, I'd better hold on tight to my girl, because I don't believe it's possible for me to get this lucky again. In fact, it will probably be even more difficult than it was before because I've been out of the dating game for so long."

He might then react by becoming clingy and getting jealous if his girlfriend happens to go somewhere without him, or talks to other guys at work or through friends.

If she happens to comment about his clingy behavior and tell him to relax and trust her, he might then say, "I'm acting this way because you mean so much to me. I don't want to lose you. I know what these other guys are like. They just want to have sex with you."

Here's the thing though!

Although initially a woman might think he's being sweet, and that it's cute that her guy is so possessive over her, she will eventually begin to feel that he doesn't trust her and his insecurity and self-doubt will start to annoy her.

If his insecurity becomes an ongoing issue in the relationship, a woman will slowly start to lose respect for him as a man, and then her attraction will also begin to fade.

The truth is, without respect and attraction, a long-lasting love cannot be maintained over time.

A woman needs to be able to look up to her man and feel like she is lucky to have him, not like she's doing him a favor by being his girlfriend, because he believes he can't get anyone else other than her.

You've got to be able to maintain her respect for you.

If you've lost her respect, you can get it back. Here's how!

When your girlfriend sees that you really have changed and are not just saying that you will change, she will naturally feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

5. He Doesn't Know That Women Are Disgusted By Clingy Behavior

It's a fact of nature that women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, determination, high self esteem) and turned off by emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, clinginess, self-doubt).

This is why, when a man becomes clingy in his relationship with a woman, she instinctively starts to pull away, because she is sensing his emotional weakness and that is very unattractive to her.

For a woman to maintain sexual attraction for her man, she has to feel as though he is the man.

If she begins to feel like she has to be his mother, or big sister, who has to keep saying to him, It's okay sweetie, I still love you, or Don't worry babe, I won't leave you, or I'll be here for you honey. I won't let you go, she will begin feeling like she's the emotionally stronger one in the relationship.

Essentially, it is a man's ability to be the more emotionally dominant one in the relationship that makes her feel feminine around him.

She can relax into being an emotional, vulnerable woman rather than having to be strong and take care of him and her.

If a woman feels like she has to hold her boyfriend's hand and guide him as though he is a lost little boy, she will not only feel turned off, but she will usually feel disgusted by who he has become.

6. He Doesn't Know That Love is Meant to Be Shared Not Taken

[image: Taking her love, rather than sharing love together]

A relationship stays together when both the man and woman continually decide that they want to be together.

Each day, they feel happy to be in a relationship together because there is mutual respect, attraction and love.

The man makes her feel loved and appreciated and the woman makes the man feel loved and appreciated.

It's the perfect balance that keeps a relationship happy, healthy and forward moving.

However, if it's only the woman who is giving love, being supportive and caring about her man's feelings, the relationship will begin to fall apart.

For example: If the man gets to a point where he feels like he is entitled to her love and demands that she gives it to him, a woman will wonder why the relationship feels like so much work all of a sudden.

She might not know why she is feeling stressed around him or what he needs to do to fix the relationship, but she will know that it doesn't feel right.

She will then try to break up with her guy and he will become clingy or possibly even angry at her for wanting to break up with him.

Hereâs the thing thoughâ

A man canât convince a woman to stick with him just because he loves her, any more than she can convince him.

For example: A guy might think, âShe knows how much I love her, and Iâve given her my all. She owes it to me to give me another chance. After all, isnât that what love is all about? Isn't it about sticking together through both the good and the bad times?â

Yes, only if the love is equally shared.

Some guys ruin a relationship by constantly taking love and emotional energy from a woman and not giving enough back to her, which leaves her feeling exhausted and empty.

She then doesn't feel like he deserves any more effort from her because she's already given him so much, only to end up with an emotionally weak (i.e. clingy) boyfriend, which is naturally unattractive to women.

Modern Relationships

[image: Modern relationships - she can walk away if she wants to]

In the distant past, a woman was considered to be her husbandâs property and she was forced to stay in a marriage for life, regardless of how miserable she felt.

Yet, that just isn't the case anymore.

In todayâs world, women are free to leave a relationship if they aren't feeling the way that they want to feel (i.e. loved by an emotionally strong man, respectful of her man, feminine and girly, protected, happy).

If a woman does feel like she is with an emotionally strong man who she can look up to and respect, she has no reason to want to leave him or cheat on him.

Couples like that are the reason why approximately 50% marriages and relationships last an entire lifetime.

However, the emotional weakness of men is one of the main reasons why couples split up, even if the relationship was great at the start.

If a woman doesn't feel like she can respect her man, she begins to feel unsafe and like she might be better off just leaving him and trying to find a new guy who is more of a man.

If you want a woman to stay with you, then you have to be the sort of man that she wants to stay with, and that means someone she can look up to, depend on, respect and feel attracted to, and love, over time.

Being Clingy is Not Something You Have to Be Stuck With For Life

Right now, it might be true that your girlfriend dumped you for being a clingy boyfriend, but thatâs what happened in the past.

You don't have to get stuck with the label of being her clingy ex.

People change all the time, and by understanding what caused you to behave in a clingy way in your relationship, you can change too.

When you meet up with her your ex and let her see that you have changed, she will let go of the label of you being her clingy ex and she will see you as a man that she can now respect and feel positive emotions towards.

Start Making Her Feel Attracted and She Will Open Back Up to You

[image: Getting her to open back up to you]

If you are serious about getting your ex back, you have to understand one thing: Her emotional attraction for you is based on how she feels when she's interacting with you.

In other words, she is either feeling attracted while talking to you, or she's feeling turned off and saying things like, "It's over between us. Please leave me alone," or "I just don't believe you can change" or "I don't have feelings for you anymore."

However, that doesn't mean you can't change how she feels.

You can.

The reason why she doesn't have feelings is that you haven't been making her feel respect and attraction for you.

When you begin to make her feel respect and attraction during interactions, her feelings will come back quickly and naturally.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Got Dumped For Being Too Nice

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you got dumped for being too nice in your relationship, you might now be feeling confused about what women really want in a man.

You may have asked yourself, “Do I have to treat a woman mean to keep her interested in me? Is that what she wants?”

Luckily, the answer is “No.”

You don't have to be a mean guy to your woman to make her want to stay with you.

In fact, being nice to a woman in a relationship is essential, but it's not enough on its own to keep the relationship together for life.

[image: Being nice is not enough]

To keep a relationship together, a woman has to be able to look up to you and respect you as her man, rather than feeling as though she can treat you badly, never do anything nice for you and you will still continue to be super nice and generous to her all the time.

If she senses that you are just putting up with her bad behavior to stay with her, she will lose respect for you and begin to feel like she needs to find a guy with more of a backbone.

Be Nice, But Don't Be a Pushover

[image: Be nice, but don't be a pushover]

If you're wondering, “I really don't understand why I got dumped for being too nice,” it could be because you believe that “niceness” is the main thing that women need from a man, to be happy in a relationship.

The truth is, there is nothing wrong with being nice to your woman.

Nothing at all.

However, being nice is not the main thing that's going to maintain her feelings of respect, sexual attraction and love over time.

For example: When a man is too nice in his relationship, he might eventually fall into a habit of allowing his woman to get away with treating him badly (e.g. she always gets her way, she treats him disrespectfully, she expects him to do everything for her).

If she continues to get away with her bad behavior, the dynamic between him and her will go out of sync, and she will become the more dominant one in the relationship.

A woman who feels more dominant than her man might eventually resort to treating him worse and worse (e.g. disregard his opinions, treat him disrespectfully, expect him to do everything/pay for everything, ignore him), so that she can see how far she can push him, and whether he will be man enough to stand up to her.

If he simply takes her bad behavior and continues to be extra nice and sweet to her, she will perceive him as being emotionally weak and she will likely begin to lose respect and attraction for him as a man.

Eventually, if a guy continues to be nice to her regardless of how badly she behaves, she will stop feeling like she wants to stay with him and she will dump him. Why?

Itâs a womanâs natural instinct to be attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity, determination) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, self-doubt, letting her push him around).

The truth is, you donât have to be a jerk to a woman to keep her in a relationship with you, and you also donât have to be a super nice guy who gets pushed around.

As long as you can maintain a relationship dynamic between you and her where she feels like sheâs the lucky one to be with a great guy like you, rather than you are lucky to have her, she will be able to look up to you and respect you as a man.

When a woman respects her man, she also feels attracted to him and her love for him grows stronger over time.

You Donât Have to Be Mean to Her Get Her Back

[image: You don't have to be mean to her to get her back]

After being dumped for being too nice, some guys mistakenly think that the best way to get their ex back is by making a point of being mean towards her.

For example: A guy might behave arrogantly, sarcastically and by putting down his ex when he gets the chance to interact with her.

In his mind he is likely thinking, âIf she dumped me for being too nice, then it makes sense that if I treat her badly, she will want to get back together again.â

However, thatâs not how it works.

If you stop being as nice to her as you used to, she will accuse you of being mean to test whether or not youâll go back to being Mr. Nice Guy.

For example: A woman who is testing her ex might say something like, âHow can you be so cruel to me? You know I still love you and Iâve been thinking about getting back together again, but youâre just a bully!â

Then, if he crumbles and says something like, âIâm so sorry! I didnât mean any of it. I will do anything for you. You know that I can never be horrible to you. I love you so much,â she will be able to see that nothing about him has really changed, and she will not be very interested in getting back together again.

On the other hand, if he continues to treat her badly and stays stuck in being mean towards her, she will feel hurt and turned off by his lack of respect for her, and she wonât want to get back together with him.

To get your ex back, you need to have a more balanced approach with her from now on, where you treat her well, but you also make her feel respect for you.

When she feels like she can look up to you and respect you as a man, she naturally feels drawn to you, because you are giving her what she has been looking for in a man all along.

You Can Get Her Back, But Avoid Making These Mistakes

[image: You can get her back, but avoid making these mistakes]

Being dumped for being too nice isn't a death sentence for your relationship.

You can get your ex back, but you first have to make her feel respect and attraction for you as a man.

Growing her feelings of respect for you happens every time you interact with her (e.g. via text message, on social media, on the phone or in person).

However, that's not going to happen if you make any of these mistakes:

1. Asking her what she wants you to do differently.

It's only normal that when a guy gets dumped for being too nice, he's going to be wondering why.

He's going to be asking, What happened here? Why did I get dumped for being too nice? Why don't women like nice guys?

Yet, where some guys go wrong, is by turning to their ex hoping that she will spell it out for them.

For example: When a guy is being dumped, in desperation he might say to his ex, Okay, so what should I do? Just tell me how you want me to be and I'll be that way. I can change. I can be whatever you want me to be. Just give me a chance to show you that I can be different. Just tell me how you want me to be and I'll do it.

In his mind he might be thinking that if she can tell him what to do and he does it, she will be happy and then everything can go back to being the way it was before.

Yet, by saying that sort of thing to her, he is simply confirming to her that he will bend to her will and change for her, just to keep her. She will most-likely see that as him just being extra nice to her as usual.

Although some women might respond to a guy who is willing to do anything to keep her, the majority of women won't. Why?

A woman doesn't want to take on the responsibility of teaching a man how to grow up and be the type of man she needs. She doesn't want to be his teacher in life and then have to teach him how to be the kind of man that will be attractive to her.

She wants him to be able to figure out by himself what he's doing wrong and then take action, without her telling him what to do or how to behave.

If he can't figure out for himself what she wants him to do differently, it means that she has to teach him.

Yet, most women don't want to be man's teacher in a relationship. If she has to take on the role of being his teacher or mother, the relationship dynamic will change.

She will become more dominant and this will make her feel less feminine and girly in his presence, and that's not how she wants to feel when she's with her man.

If a woman cannot feel feminine around her guy and be able to look up to him and respect him, there will be no point to sticking with him.

These days, women don't put up with that type of situation and simply dump the guy and move on.

However, if you've already asked your ex to tell you what she wants you to do differently, don't worry about it.

It is fixable.

As long as you change what you are saying and doing when you interact with her, from this point onwards.

Remember: The best way to change her mind is to change how she feels.

You can do that by making sure that you are saying and doing the sort of things that make her see you as being emotionally strong (e.g. being confident, being nice but assertive, not letting her push you around or get away with bad behavior) when you interact with her.

By having a more balanced approach towards her when you interact with her, you can re-spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

2. Pleading with her to give you another chance.

Another normal reaction that some guys have when they get dumped, is to beg and plead with their ex for a second chance.

For example: A guy might be thinking that if his girlfriend (fiancée or wife) sees how much he really loves her, she will change her mind.

He might then say something like, "Please give me another chance. I love you so much. I know we can work things out if you stay," or even, "I can't live without you. How can you do this to me? All I want is to make you happy; why won't you let me do that?"

Yet most of the time, begging and pleading doesn't work.

One of the reasons why pleading with a woman doesn't work, is that women aren't attracted to the emotional weakness in men (e.g. insecurity, emotional neediness, low self-esteem).

Women are instinctively drawn to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, emotional independence, high self esteem), so when a guy is pleading with a woman and behaving in other emotionally weak ways (e.g. crying, begging, threatening to harm himself), she's not going to feel attracted.

Her instincts will be telling her, "This guy is not emotionally strong enough to hold his own in life. He won't be able to take care of me if life gets challenging for him. He needs me to protect him like a mother or big sister" and she feels turned off by him.

The fact is, no matter how strong and independent women have become in the modern world, that majority of women still like to feel taken care of and protected by their man.

However, unlike in the past where protection meant a man with big muscles and a club in one hand, in today's world, protection means that a guy is emotionally strong enough to stand up for himself and to go after what he really wants in life without fear.

So, when a man is pleading or begging, it usually doesn't make a woman think, "That's so sweet. He loves me so much that he'll even plead with me to stay. Maybe he's the one for me after all"

To get an ex back after being dumped for being too nice, you have to behave in the ways that make her see you as the emotionally strong man she really wants.

She has to be able to look up to you and respect you as her man, rather than feeling like she has to give you another chance because she feels sorry for you.

3. Thinking that you need to start treating her badly.

You don't have to suddenly become a bad guy and start treating your ex badly (e.g. ignore her, say hurtful things to her in front of other people) in the hopes that she'll be convinced that you're not too nice anymore, and she'll then come back to you.

In any case, this approach doesn't work most of the time, for several reasons!

1. If a woman tests a guy (e.g. by accusing him of being mean, acts hurt and breaks down and cries in front of him) and he then crumbles and reverts back to being his nice, sweet self, she will realize that it was all only an act to try and get her back, and she will feel even more turned off by him.
2. If she was having second thoughts about breaking up with him and he treats her badly, she might then make up her mind that he's not really the right guy for her, and then he will have to work twice as hard to make her feel respect for him again.
3. If he tries to get her back by ignoring her (e.g. taking weeks and even months to contact her, not answering her calls/text messages) she's not really going to care that much about it, if she doesn't respect him and isn't attracted to him. If she doesn't have feelings for him she's going to be thinking, "This is great. He's making it so much easier for me to move on."

However, if instead of wasting time ignoring your ex, or treating her badly in other ways, you were to take a more balanced approach with her from now on, where you treat her well, but you also make her feel respect for you (i.e. via the way you interact with her, e.g. by remaining confident even when she tries to test you, you don't agree with everything she says and does), she'll begin to feel drawn back to you out of her own free will.

She will message you on social media, call you up to say "Hi, I click like on something, show up where you like to hang out, or find some other way to get in touch with you."

From there you just need to continue to say and do that things that will keep making her look up to you and respect you as a man.

4. Feeling afraid to be more confident and assertive around her.

Probably one of the most attractive qualities that women look for in a man is self confidence and the ability to stand up to her when necessary.

Most women will test a guy, whether they have only just met him, or are in a relationship with him for a long time, as a way of testing his confidence and to see if he's man enough to handle her.

Regardless of how good a relationship is, a woman will always test her man's confidence. Why? No, it's not because some women are mean and like to be hurtful.

It's simply a woman's way of checking to see that her man has, or still has, the emotional strength to handle her.

She feels that if he can handle her when she's behaving in a challenging way towards him (e.g. throwing a tantrum, being sulky, being demanding and petty), then it is also likely that he will be able to handle other challenging people and situations in life.

This makes her feel safe and like she's with a man she can truly look up to, feel proud of, and respect.

Yet, some guys feel that if they say no to their woman, stand up to her and refuse to accept her bad behavior, she will stop loving them and she will want to break up with them.

In fact, the opposite is true.

The more confident and assertive you can be around your woman, the more she will be able to look up to you, respect you and feel attracted to you.

She will then want to get back together again because it will feel like it's the right thing for her.

Nice Guys Can Attract Women

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but it's not what makes her feel sexually attracted to you.

If you want to stop saying, "I got dumped for being too nice," and convince your ex to want to get back together, you have to focus on making her feel so much respect and attraction for you as a man, that she cannot help herself from wanting to be with you.

You don't have to be a bad boy, or treat her in a mean way to get her to see you differently.

When you trigger her feelings of attraction and respect for you again, it makes her see you in a new light.

She feels drawn to you because you are making her feel the way she wants to feel when she's with you. She can look up to you and respect you, and that feels good to her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Girlfriend Has Lost All Respect For Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex girlfriend has lost all respect for you at this point, you need to get clear on the real reasons why and then show her that you've changed.

Don't plead with her to take your word for it and believe that you've changed, just show her by how differently you think, talk, behave, feel and take action from now on.

Remember: Actions speak louder than words and if you can show her that you're not the same guy she remembers (e.g. a guy who was unreliable, a guy who didn't keep his word), she will slowly stop feeling so closed up and defensive towards you.

You need to be able to show her that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you, and then actively make her have feelings for you again.

Here's how you can start doing that!

1. Identify What Caused Her to Lose All Respect For You

[image: What caused her to lose respect for you?]

Some guys are very clear about what caused their girlfriend to lose respect for them, but there are also some guys who will be saying, "My ex girlfriend has lost all respect for me and I don't know why. I know that things weren't perfect between us, but I just don't understand why she stopped respecting me or how I can change the way that she sees me now."

If you're feeling unsure about what caused your ex girlfriend to lose all respect for you, don't beat yourself up about it.

You can turn this around and get her to respect you again.

The first thing you need to understand is that most women will rarely come out and say exactly what is bothering them about a guy's behavior.

A woman might hint, or even make suggestions to him about changing certain things about himself, but she usually won't tell him the real, more subtle reasons why she has lost respect.

For example: A guy might be in the habit of always complaining to his girlfriend about his job.

Every day when he gets home from work, he might say to her, "I hate my job! My boss is such a pain! He's always on my case about something. My co-workers are just as bad! Most of the time they don't do what they're supposed to do and I end up having to pick up their slack! I'm really tired of working there, but I have no other options. I'm stuck in a dead end job. I hate my life."

Yet, he never does anything to change his situation (e.g. by asking for a transfer to another department, finding a new job).

[image: Losing her respect]

Instead he prefers to whine about his situation like a victim, rather than making the effort to face the problem head on and fix it.

If a woman sees that her guy isn't facing his problems she might then say things like, "You can't let them treat you like that; you deserve better. Why don't you find another job?â or â You can't keep telling me about this every day without doing anything about it. If you're feeling unhappy at work, then you need to do something to change it.â

Alternatively, she might listen to him complaining, and then the next time she gets the newspaper or browses online for available jobs, she might let him know about the great job opportunities that are out there.

Essentially, she is trying to tell him that she needs him to stop the whining and get on with fixing his problem.

If he can do that, her respect and attraction for him will grow, and she will feel good about being in a relationship with him.

She will feel proud to be with a man who faces a challenge in life, takes action to overcome that challenge and then lives a better, happier and more fulfilling life as a result.

Yet, if a guy continues to complain and act like a victim in his life, no matter how many hints or suggestions his woman throws his way, in most cases, she will lose respect for him, and eventually her attraction and love will also fade, and she will break up with him.

[image: Losing her respect]

Sometimes a woman will tell her man that she needs him to change and she will tell him exactly what is bothering her.

However, most women won't explain it directly by saying something like, â You're being whiny and you're not facing your problems head on like a real man. Your behavior is making me lose respect for you. If you don't stop doing that, I'm going to break up with you because I cannot be with an emotionally weak man who doesn't have the courage to stand up for himself and succeed at life when things get a little tough.â

Instead, she might just say, "Stop whining about it. Do something about it" or "I'm so stressed in this relationship. I don't know how much longer I can do this."

Why doesn't she just come out and say what the exact problem is and how he can fix it?

The main reason is because most women don't want to be a man's mother, teacher or big sister in life and have to teach him how to think, behave and face the problems in his life.

She doesn't want to have to show him how to be the kind of man she needs him to be.

If she has to teach him once how to behave like a man, what is going to stop him from acting like a victim again and again in the future?

Will she then have to keep on holding his hand and teaching him how to be a man in his life?

She doesn't want to do that.

She doesn't want to feel like she's taking care of him like he's a little child.

[image: Making the same mistakes over and over again]

That is the main reason why a woman won't come out directly and tell a guy why she is losing respect for him.

So, if you want to make your ex girlfriend have feelings for you again, you need to be able to show her that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

If you're unclear about why your ex girlfriend has lost all respect for you, start by asking yourself, â€œDid I do any of these things in my relationship with her?â€

- Did you take her for granted (e.g. stopped being a man of your word, stopped letting her know how much you love and appreciate her)?
- Were you too insecure and clingy (e.g. stopped having interests and friends outside of your relationship with her, felt jealous when she made plans that didnâ€™t include you, or talked to other guys)?
- Did you have goals and a life purpose (e.g. something big you were working towards achieving vs. sitting at home watching TV or playing video games)?
- Did you criticize or belittle her in any way (e.g. make fun of her in front of others, disregard her opinions or ideas)?
- Did you allow her to be the more dominant one in the relationship (e.g. let her make all the decisions, let her win every argument or disagreement)?

Basically, by understanding what caused your ex girlfriend to lose respect for you, you can make some adjustments to how you interact with her (e.g. via your behavior, body language, the way you talk to her, the way you respond to her).

She will then be able to see for herself that youâ€™re not the way she remembers you any more, and her feelings for you will begin to change in a positive way.

However, if you donâ€™t fully understand what you need to change, when you get the opportunity to interact with her (which right now is probably not often), you will simply keep making the same old mistakes in your communication style, or be offering to fix the wrong things about yourself, and she will close up even more.

For example: A woman might lose all respect for a guy, because he is insecure and allows her to wear the pants in the relationship.

If he doesnâ€™t fully understand that, he might then be telling her things like, â€œIâ€™ll do anything you want me to do. Just tell me what it is and Iâ€™ll do it, as long as you can forgive me,â€ when he interacts with her.

Yet thatâ€™s not what she wants.

By trying to get her back with the wrong reasoning, a woman will feel as though the guy doesnâ€™t really understand her and it will make her feel even less respect and attraction for him.

2. Make the Most of Every Interaction You Have With Her

When a woman has lost respect for her ex, chances are sheâ€™s not going to want to interact with him much, if at all.

If youâ€™re going to make your ex girlfriend see that youâ€™re no longer the same guy you used to be when she broke up with you, you have to make sure that every chance you get to interact with her (e.g. via text message, on social media, on a phone call or in person), youâ€™re showing her that youâ€™ve changed.

By showing her that youâ€™re now at a completely different level than before (via your thinking and how you talk, behave, feel and take action) and then focusing on actively making her have feelings for you again, it will make the negatives of your relationship seem less important to her because she will naturally be feeling drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

Remember: If you keep making the same old mistakes in your communication style, she will end up losing even more respect for you, and then it will make it even more difficult to get her to drop her guard.

So, to avoid doing that, here are some do's and don'ts to bear in mind when you're interacting with her.

- Don't plead, beg, whine or try to convince her with words that you've changed.

Consider that, right now, everything your ex girlfriend thinks about you is negative.

If you then get an opportunity to communicate with her, and you overwhelm her with begging, pleading, whining and trying to convince her that you're different now, she's naturally going to shut you out even more.

Why?

Women respect the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, self-belief, determination) and feel turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, neediness, wimpiness).

When she sees that you are displaying the types of behaviors that turn her off (e.g. begging, pleading, crying, giving her power over you), her lack of respect for you is naturally not going to change because she will be perceiving you as being emotionally weak.

The main thing to remember when you are interacting with her is that you need to use that time wisely.

Focus on actively changing her feelings for you by letting her see how different you are from when she broke up with you via the way you talk, think, behave and take action.

- Do apologize in a sincere, yet confident way for past mistakes.

One of the quickest ways to start proving to your ex girlfriend that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you, is by showing her that you are more mature and emotionally stronger than you were when in a relationship with her.

By giving her a sincere apology for past mistakes (without whining, pleading or begging), she can see for herself that you have started to change and she will slowly start to open up.

For example: A way for a guy to apologize to a woman who has lost all respect, is to say to her, âI know that right now you don't have much or any respect for me as a man and I accept that. After having taken a good look at myself and my actions in the past, I don't blame you for feeling that way. I just want to say I'm sorry for how I behaved. I now see that my behavior was wrong. I just want to apologize to you so that we can both move forward on our own in a more positive way.â

She might respond by saying something like, âI don't know. I don't believe that you've really changed,â and he might then say, âI know you don't believe me right now and that's okay. I know that I was a fool to behave like I did before, but I just didn't know how to express myself in a better, more mature way. That's just not how I am anymore.â

Then, by also showing her that he is really different (e.g. via his body language, behavior, and the way he talks and he reacts to her) the walls she has built around her heart will begin to break away. Of course, you need to bear in mind that each guy's apology will be different and has to be relevant to him and what caused his ex girlfriend to lose all respect for him.

- Don't bombard her on social media or with endless text messages.

Desperately trying to get her attention by bombarding her with messages on social media or via text, is not the best way to go about re-gaining her respect for you.

Remember: If a woman is currently not feeling any respect or attraction for her ex, she's not going to be happy to be hearing from him all the time. In fact, the more pressure he puts on her to talk to him, the more she will want to avoid him.

Think of it this way: When a woman cannot see the guy or hear his voice, she cannot pick up on his emotional state.

So, even if he's really changed and is being a confident, mature and emotionally strong guy, because she cannot experience that through the tonality of his voice or by seeing his actions and body language, even a simple, "Hey, how are you? Just let me know that you're doing okay," will potentially be seen by her in a negative light.

So, although his intentions might be good, her interpretation will likely be more negative.

For example: Rather than think, "That's sweet. How nice of my ex to be concerned about me," she will likely be interpreting his message as saying, "Hey, where are you? I'm so lost without you. I need you. Please talk to me," and she's going to switch off from him even more.

If you want to show your ex girlfriend that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you, regain her respect for you, and then actively make her have feelings for you again, then the best way to do that is by getting her on a phone call so that she can experience the new you first hand (e.g. via your tonality, by making her laugh, by being positive and confident).

Then you need to arrange a meet up where you can continue to actively change her feelings for you.

People Can Change the Way They Feel About Someone

[image: It's not too late to change how she feels]

Feelings change all the time.

Consider that when you first met her, your ex girlfriend was just a stranger to you and your feelings towards her were neutral.

Yet, over time as you got to know her a bit better, your feelings began to change from neutral, to like, to love.

In the same way, your ex girlfriend's feelings also went from neutral, to like, to love, but then they changed again.

Right now she might be saying, "Go away! I have lost all respect with you and I don't want you in my life anymore," but that doesn't mean she has to stay stuck feeling that way.

Just like she didn't stay stuck feeling neutral towards you in the beginning, but grew to love you, when you actively change the way she feels, her feelings for you will change too.

By identifying the reasons why she has lost respect for you, and showing her that you've changed (e.g. via the way you talk to her, behave, take action), you can actually make her feel differently right away.

You don't have to keep sitting around wasting time and thinking, "My ex girlfriend has lost all respect for me and there's nothing I can do to change that," because you can actively change how she feels. It's really up to you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make My Ex Feel Guilty For Leaving Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Making an ex feel guilty for breaking up with you sometimes works to get her back for a day or two, but it doesn't last, because a woman doesn't want to stay with a man out of pity.

She wants to be able to respect you and look up to you as her man, not feel as though she is obligated to be with you because you're hurting now that she's gone.

If a guy can get his ex back through guilt, he has to then wonder, â€œHow long will her guilt last for? What happens if she stops feeling guilty? Will she leave me again?â€œ or â€œEven though sheâ€™s with me now, Iâ€™m not sure if itâ€™s because she really loves me or if itâ€™s just out of pity. How long can I keep making her feel guilty for breaking up with me?â€œ

Building a relationship on guilt and pity is never a good idea, because these are negative emotions. Lasting and committed love cannot grow and flourish from negative emotions.

If you really want to get your ex back and at the same time build a relationship that is strong, long-lasting, healthy and loving, then you need to focus on making her feel the positive emotions that she needs to feel, so that she can start to look up to you, respect you, feel attracted to you and feel love in her heart for you again.

If she comes back to you because she feels a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man, then you can be sure that her love for you will be genuine and deep.

On the other hand, if she comes back to you out of pity or guilt, she will slowly begin to resent you, and eventually, the love in her heart will go cold.

A Woman Doesn't Have to Be With a Guy if She Doesn't Want to [image: She doesn't have to stay if she doesn't want to]

Sometimes, a guy can make his ex feel guilty for leaving him by:

- Begging and pleading with her.
- Showing her how lost he is without her.
- Pretending to be dating, or having sex, with other women to try and make her feel jealous.

Yet, she won't remain stuck on a feeling of guilt for long, because she will eventually realize that you don't own her and that she doesn't have to be with you if she doesn't want to.

A relationship stays together when both people in it are happy and want to stay together; not because one person wants it and is forcing the other person to want it too.

So, when a guy is trying to convince a woman to be in a relationship with him by making her feel guilty, regretful, or any other negative emotions, he is behaving as though it is his right to stay in a relationship with her.

He is assuming that because he has been her boyfriend (fianc  or husband), she owes it to him to come back.

However, that's not how a healthy, strong and happy relationship works.

A man doesn't own a woman, and a woman doesn't own a man. They are a couple because it is something that they both want, and because it feels good to both of them to be together.

In the past, men had authority over their woman and could treat her any way they wanted, without her being able to leave, but in today's world things are very different.

Modern women are a lot more independent, can make their own money and can take care of themselves.

They don't have to stay stuck in a bad relationship out of feelings of guilt; especially when there are so many other guys out there for them to choose from.

If you want a woman to stay with you, you've got to be the sort of man that she desperately wants to stay with and is afraid of losing.

If you focus on getting your ex back through guilt and other negative emotions, you are not giving her the opportunity to experience the amazing feeling of falling back in love with you because of who you are as a man.

Ultimately, the best way to get an ex back is to make her feel the positive emotions that she needs to feel to look up to you and respect you, feel attracted to you and feel the warmth of real love in her heart.

That is the power of actively making her have feelings for you again, rather than wasting time and energy trying to convince her to give you another chance by making her feel guilty for leaving you.

Love is More Powerful Than Guilt

Making an ex feel guilty by begging and pleading with her, and telling her things like, "How could you do this to me?" or "I'm broken without you. Are you happy with what you've done to me?" usually doesn't work, because women are turned off by emotionally weak men.

Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men and turned off by the emotional weakness.

So, in moments like that it simply makes a woman look at the guy, and feel like he's behaving more like a child that she has to take care of, rather than a man she can look up to and respect.

Even if she does feel some level of guilt (e.g. if she was harsh and unkind during the break up, or she said some hurtful things to him), she will likely still be thinking to herself, "If I go back, he's probably going to be the same guy he was before I broke up with him. Nothing has really changed. He hasn't done anything about fixing the things that were a problem in the relationship," and that's not very attractive to her.

As for trying to make her feel guilty in other ways, for example:

- By pretending to be dating other, attractive women.
- By working out in the gym and improving his physical appearance.
- By posting lonely, look what you've done to me photos on Facebook and other social media sites.

That doesn't work either, because if a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, she's going to be thinking, â€œGood for you buddy. I'm feeling great, and I'm getting on with my life. Bye!â€

On the other hand, if he actively makes her feel positive emotions of attraction and respect again, then she's naturally going to start thinking, â€œHmmm, he seems so different now. What's changed? Why do I suddenly miss him so much? Why am I worried about losing him all of a sudden?â€

Sounds better than making her feel guilty, doesn't it?

So here are 2 simple steps you can take, that will make your ex want to get back together, without forcing her to do it out of feelings of guilt or pity.

1. Understand what really went wrong with the relationship.

[image: Understand where you really went wrong]

The only way you're going to make your ex feel the positive emotions she needs to feel (e.g. look up to you and respect you, feel attracted to you) to want to get back together again, is by facing up to what really went wrong in your relationship.

For example: When a woman decides to break up with a guy, she usually has a very good reason.

However, in most cases, she's not just going to come out and say what's bothering her, because it's in a woman's instincts to let a guy down gently.

So, rather than come out and tell him what went wrong, she will give him some kind of excuse like, â€œI just don't feel the same way anymore,â€ or â€œMy feelings have changed. You're just not the guy I fell in love with.â€

For some guys this can be confusing. They might even say, â€œWhy doesn't she just tell me? Why does she have to be so vague? At least if she told me what went wrong between us, I would know what I have to fix.â€

However, that's not how it works.

A woman doesn't want to have to be a man's teacher.

She doesn't want to have to spell things out for him and teach him how to be the kind of man she needs him to be.

Also, in her mind she usually feels like she's given him enough clues along the way.

For example: In the relationship a guy might have become clingy, needy and insecure.

Yet, rather than tell him directly, his woman might say to him, â€œYou know I love you, but you have to trust me. I need to do my own things once in a while,â€ or â€œWhy don't you go out and see some of your old friends? It's been ages since you had a boys night out.â€

She's hoping he will get the message and change his clingy behavior.

If a woman dumps a guy because he is being insecure, needy and clingy in their relationship, she's naturally going to interpret any attempts by him to try and make her feel guilty, or to push her to get back together because he's hurting, as another sign of his insecurity and neediness.

She's going to assume that nothing about him has really changed, and she's not going to want to get caught up in his drama again.

Yet, if instead of trying to make his ex feel guilty for leaving him, a guy focuses on understanding the reasons why she left him, he would then be able to change the way her interacts with her (i.e. when talking on the phone with her, at meet ups).

By making her feel the types of positive emotions she needs to experience, she can look up to him, respect him, feel attracted to him, and once again feel love in her heart for him.

When he makes her feel this way, wanting to get back together will feel good to her.

So, if you want to get back with your ex, don't waste time trying to make her feel guilty.

Let her see that you really have changed and allow her to experience what it feels like to interact with the new and improved you. Her perception of you will then automatically change, whether she wants it to or not.

It's so much easier to get a woman back when you understand what really caused her to leave you, because you then focus on making her feel understood when you interact with her (e.g. via your tonality, body language, attitude, conversation style and how you react to what she says or does) by letting her see that you have changed the things about you that mattered most to her.

If you don't have a clear idea about why your ex really broke up with you, ask yourself these questions:

- Did you make her feel loved, appreciated and taken care of, or did she feel like you were taking her for granted?
- Did you have goals and a purpose in your life outside of your relationship with her, or did you make her the focus of your life?
- Were you confident in yourself and in your value to her, or did you feel like you got lucky when you hooked up with her?
- Were you emotionally strong in the relationship, or did you become clingy, needy, insecure and jealous?
- Did you focus on maintaining and growing the attraction between you and her, or did you stop making her feel feminine and girly in your presence?

These and many other reasons are what cause a woman to break up with a guy.

When you fully understand the reasons applicable to you and your ex, you can then interact with her in ways that make her feel the types of positive emotions she wants to feel.

She begins to feel heard and understood and these positive feelings cause her to feel drawn to you.

2. Stop saying and doing things that are turning her off when you interact with her.

[image: Stop turning your ex off]

When a guy gets broken up with, it's only normal that he will experience many different emotions (e.g. hurt, anger, confusion, sadness).

So, when he is going through these different emotions, what may happen is that he responds by saying and doing things that, rather than convince his ex to give him another chance, actually continue to turn her off.

For example: A guy might use every interaction he has with his ex to beg and plead with her to give him another chance.

He might tell her things like, "I promise to change if you give me one more chance," or "Please don't do this. I can't live without you. You mean everything to me," or â€œLet me explain. I can change, if only youâ€™ll give me another chance to prove it to you.â€

However, begging, pleading or being made to feel guilty usually doesnâ€™t work, because women are not attracted to the emotional weakness in men.

Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men and turned off by their emotional weakness.

So, in moments like that, it simply makes any negative feelings she is having about him become even stronger.

Also, a woman wants to be able to respect and look up to her man, not feel as though she is obligated to be with him because he is hurting and canâ€™t cope in his life without her.

Another way guys go wrong after they break up with their woman, is by spending weeks and even months ignoring her, in the hopes that she will come back.

However, if a woman doesnâ€™t have feelings for a guy, sheâ€™s not going to feel like itâ€™s that much of a big deal that sheâ€™s not hearing from him.

She might even feel relieved to be free of him, and sheâ€™ll usually just move on.

The fastest way to get an ex back is by actively making her feel the positive emotions that she needs to feel so that she will want to be with you again.

Yes, in some cases a woman might get back with her ex after heâ€™s been ignoring her for 30 and even up to 60 days, but usually, if a woman comes back and sees that the guy hasnâ€™t really changed, she will break up with him again.

So, not only has the guy wasted a lot of time ignoring her, by doing that heâ€™s also given her more time to move on.

Then, if he somehow does get another chance with her, she will usually break up with him when she sees that he really hasnâ€™t changed, and that heâ€™s still unable to make her feel the way she wants to feel when sheâ€™s with him.

The main thing you need to remember, is that after a break up, you will likely not be interacting with your ex as regularly as you did before.

This is why itâ€™s very important that when you do interact with her, you are saying and doing things that are attracting her to you, not turning her off.

Rather than wasting a lot of time begging, pleading, convincing, asking, or trying to make her feel guilty for leaving you, focus instead on making her feel good around you every time she interacts with you.

When you actively make your ex feel positive feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again, she then starts to wonder, â€œWhy am I missing him? Why am I always thinking about him and wondering about who heâ€™s with and what heâ€™s doing?â€

She is feeling like this because you have triggered her feelings of attraction for you again in a positive way.

From that moment on youâ€™ve got to continue saying and doing the types of things that are going to keep turning her positive feelings on for you, rather than saying and doing the types of thing that were turning her off in the past, or that have been turning her off since the break up.

Make Her Reconnect With Her Positive Feelings For You

[image: Make her reconnect with her positive feelings for you]

Right now you might be feeling hurt and angry because your woman broke up with you, so it's only natural that you might think, "I want to know how to make my ex feel guilty for leaving me. I want her to see how badly she hurt me."

However, trying to get an ex back through negative feelings of guilt or pity is not how you're going to build a long-lasting and loving relationship with her.

Think of it this way...

Would you want to be forced into being in a relationship with a woman who keeps doing things to upset you and turn you off, simply out of some misguided feeling of obligation, pity or guilt?

No, you probably wouldn't, because that would suck, and you would likely be waking up every morning thinking, "I hate being here. I hate being stuck with this woman when everything about her is turning me off, and I can see that nothing is ever going to change."

So, don't waste time trying to make your ex feel guilty for leaving you, and focus on making her feel all the positive emotions she needs to feel so that she can look up to you, respect you and feel attracted to you again.

Once she feels that she can respect you again, she will automatically feel drawn to you.

She will begin to realize that her love for you is more powerful than she ever knew, and she will choose to be with you again because it will feel good to her.

[image: Changing how she feels to get her back]

Getting back together will feel like the right thing to do for her. She will feel drawn to you and want to experience it.

That is the power of love vs. getting her back via feelings of guilt or pity.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Stop a Break Up and Make Her Stay

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The quickest way to stop your girlfriend, fiancée or wife from breaking up with you, is to get her to forgive your mistakes and make her feel a sudden and renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Right now she is probably feeling certain that she wants to break up with you, and she's probably thinking that nothing you can say or do is going to change her mind.

This is why it's important to get her to agree to see how you and her feel together for just a few more days, before she makes a final decision.

She may initially be resistant to the idea, but if you remain calm and say to her, "I know you're fed up with me, but all I'm asking is for you to give me a few more days before you make your final decision about us," most women will agree, because deep down she could still be hoping that you can convince her that things can be different between you and her.

Then, no matter what she says or does, you need to remain calm and be emotionally strong, so that she doesn't lose respect for you during this time.

If you behave in a desperate way (e.g. beg and plead for her to stay, tell her that she's ruining your life, shout and lose control of yourself), it will make her want to break up with you even more.

Attracting Her vs. Turning Her Off

It's difficult to not panic and feel worried if she's talking about breaking up with you, but the most important thing to remember right now, is that everything you are saying and doing is either persuading her to want to stay together, or convincing her to break up with you.

This is why it's important that your words and actions are attracting her to you, and not turning her off.

So, if you're unclear about what types of behaviors will push her away even more, here are a few examples to help you.

1. If you beg and plead with her, she will lose respect and attraction for you.

[image: Trying to stop a break up by begging]

What most guys do when they realize that their woman wants to break up with them, is immediately try to convince her to give them another chance by begging and pleading with her.

However, in most cases, rather than make her change her mind, a woman feels even more repelled by him and by what she perceives as his emotional weakness.

In fact, the more a guy begs and pleads, the more respect and attraction a woman loses for him as a man, because he is behaving like a little boy in her eyes.

Essentially, women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity, determination) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, neediness, desperation).

So, when a guy is going around crying, begging, pleading and saying things like "I'm sorry. Please forgive me. If you give me one more chance I promise I'll change," or "I'm sorry."

*canâ€™t live without you. You mean everything to me. Just give me a chance to show you that I can change,*â€” rather than convince her to stay, it turns her off even more.

Yes, sometimes this tactic might work, especially if itâ€™s the first time a woman is considering breaking up with her guy and she still has some feelings for him, but eventually, if he doesnâ€™t do anything to change and be the guy she needs him to be, she will reach the same point again.

Then, because he hasnâ€™t actually done anything to gain back her respect and attraction, when he tries to beg and plead with her again, she wonâ€™t fall for it a second time.

Even though, in his mind, he might be trying to reason with her and explain to her that he can change, sheâ€™s usually not going to believe him because her feelings of respect, attraction and love are not there anymore.

Instead, she going to be saying things like, *â€œI know you mean well, but I just donâ€™t feel the same way about you anymore,*â€” or *â€œMy feelings for you have changed,*â€” or *â€œI need some time apart to think about what I really want in my life,*â€” or *â€œI just donâ€™t want to be in a relationship anymore.*â€”

Essentially what sheâ€™s saying is that she just doesnâ€™t have feelings for him and that he doesnâ€™t even know how to make her have feelings for him. Heâ€™s just begging, pleading, crying and going on and on about the same old things, but thatâ€™s not triggering her positive feelings for him.

So, if begging and pleading is a bad idea, then what should you do to stop the break up from happening?

When you understand that a womanâ€™s attraction to a man is based on how he makes her feel when sheâ€™s with him, you will then focus more on triggering her feelings of attraction for you, and less on trying to change her mind by begging, pleading or trying to convince her.

For example: Every time youâ€™re interacting with her from now on, ask yourself things likeâ€”|

- Am I making her feel good to be interacting with me, or is she feeling upset, annoyed or uninterested?
- Is she feeling turned on, or is she turned off?
- Does she feel like she can look up to me and respect me as a man (i.e. because youâ€™re portraying the types of personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women, e.g. confidence, masculinity, determination), or is she feeling turned off (i.e. because youâ€™re portraying the types of personality traits and behaviors that naturally turn women off, e.g. insecurity, self-doubt, clinginess, neediness).
- Am I the dominant one in the relationship, or does she feel like sheâ€™s emotionally stronger than me?

By asking yourself these questions every time you interact with her, you will automatically begin to make some changes and improvements to the way you are talking to her and interacting with her.

For example: If every time you interact with your woman from now on, you make a point of asking yourself, *â€œAm I making her feel good during this interaction with me, or is she feeling upset or annoyed?*â€” and you notice that she is feeling upset, you can then adjust the way that youâ€™re talking to her.

You can react differently to what she says.

You can respond differently, and you can behave in ways that will make her stop and think to herself, What is going on here? This isn't how my boyfriend usually reacts. He's being so grown up. He's changed, and she won't be able to stop herself from feeling a sudden and renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

2. She doesn't want to hear you promise that you will do anything, or change anything, for her.

[image: Promising to change usually doesn't stop a break up]

It's only normal, that when a guy is faced with the possibility of a break up, to want to say and do anything to stop that from happening.

So, what often happens, is that he rushes into saying the things that he thinks his girlfriend wants to hear, in the hopes that she will then change her mind about breaking up with him.

For example: A guy might say to his girlfriend, I know it's not your fault that you want to break up with me. I deserve it, but please don't do it! Just hang in there a little bit longer! I'll do anything. I'll change whatever you want me to change if you just give me another chance.

However, that's not what she wants.

She wants him to change because he wants to, and because he's suddenly grown up and realized that he should have changed all along.

If she has to tell him to change, or if he doesn't fully understand what he needs to change by himself, then she will end up feeling like he hasn't really understood why she wants to break up with him.

When a man desperately promises to change for a woman, she loses respect for him because she doesn't want to be the director of his life.

She doesn't want to tell him what to do and be his boss.

If she has to take on the more dominant role in the relationship, she will stop feeling feminine and girly in his presence, and that will kill her attraction for him.

Without respect and attraction, it's very difficult for a woman to maintain her feelings of love for her man, causing her to focus more and more on the negative things about him (e.g. he is too clingy and insecure, he has no motivation to better himself in life, he takes her for granted).

Eventually, if a woman finds herself in a relationship with a guy that she cannot look up to, respect and feel attracted to, she will see no other choice but to break up with him.

If you want to stop the break up from happening, you need to understand what is causing her to want to leave, and then change those things about yourself.

You don't have to put yourself in a position of weakness, or promise her the world, to convince her to stay.

It's only by understanding her reasons for wanting to break up with you, that you can then make the right changes that will show her that you have grown up, and that you understand what she's been needing you to change.

If you try to get her to stay by making promises and offering things that don't even matter to her, she is just going to keep saying, No. I can't do this anymore.

3. She doesn't want you to ask her what you should change about yourself, because she wants you to figure that out on your own.

[image: She doesn't want to teach you how to be a man]

It's a natural reaction for a guy who is about to be dumped to be saying to his girlfriend (fiancée or wife), Please don't break up with me. Just tell me what you want me to change and I'll do it.

In his mind he's probably thinking, If she tells me what to change, then I will know what she wants, and then everything will be okay between us.

However, that's not how it works.

A woman doesn't want to be a man's teacher in life and have to teach him how to be a better man.

She wants him to be able to figure out for himself what he is doing wrong (e.g. by talking to friends or getting help) and then start being the type of man she wants, and needs, him to be.

If he can't figure out what's causing her to want to break up with him on his own, it means that she has to teach him, and in most cases a woman doesn't want to take on the role of being a guy's teacher or mother.

When a woman has to take on the role of being a man's teacher the relationship dynamic goes out of sync, and she stops feeling feminine and girly around him.

She stops feeling feminine in his presence, and eventually her feelings of attraction begin to fade.

If you try to get your woman to teach you how to be the kind of man she needs you to be, she will close up even more.

This is the main reason why it is so important that you figure things out by yourself.

When you can do that, she will be able to see for herself that you are the kind of guy she wants you to be, and she won't be able to stop herself from feeling a sudden and renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

It's Not Too Late to Make Her Change Her Mind

[image: Change how she feels and she will change her mind]

Right now, she probably believes that it's in her best interests to break up with you.

She might have even thought up a big list of reasons why it's the best possible solution to her unhappiness.

However, just because she is feeling like that now, it doesn't mean that if you present her with a better, more grown up version of yourself, she won't want to change her mind.

In fact, when she sees that not only have you taken her concerns seriously, but have also taken the necessary steps to change, she will not be able to stop herself from feeling more attracted to you than she ever has before.

She will begin to see you with new eyes and she will begin to feel attracted in new and exciting ways.

So, don't waste any more time thinking, I don't know how to stop her from breaking up with me.

When you get her to forgive your mistakes and make her feel a sudden and renewed sense of respect and attraction for you via the way you behave, talk and interact with her, she will be the one who is holding on to you, in case you decide to break up with her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	--------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Works Better? Using the No Contact Rule or Remaining Friends With Your Ex?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What should you do to get your ex back. Should you:

1. Ignore her in the hope that she'll come running back, or;
2. Agree to remain friends with her and see what happens from there.

Remaining friends with her always works better, because you get a chance to actively re-attract her.

Ignoring a woman with the No Contact Rule (i.e. not contacting her for 30-60 days) usually leads to her moving on, or making her feel like you don't care, so she then hooks up with another guy to make herself feel better.

Don't Waste Time Ignoring Your Ex

[image: Don't waste time ignoring your ex]

Ignoring an ex doesn't work in most cases, but it can work for some guys when the woman still loves him and wants to be with him.

She will feel the pain of losing him and will miss him when he doesn't contact her.

However, if she doesn't have feelings for him anymore or is very turned off by him (about 95% of ex back cases), she will just use the time that he ignores her to move on.

Watch this video for more info!

Your ex will only feel tremendous pain if you ignore her and she still has strong feelings for you.

Is that the case in your situation, or is your ex turned off by you and currently doesn't even want you back?

If she is turned off and doesn't want you back, what you need to do is actively re-spark and rebuild her feelings for you.

You can choose to ignore her and risk never getting her back if you want, but I don't recommend it.

I recommend that you actively get her back.

Deep, Strong, Unforgettable Feelings

[image: Deep, strong, unforgettable feelings]

In a relationship, it is the man's responsibility to guide both himself and his woman to deeper feelings of respect, attraction and love over time (i.e. by being the kind of man she can look up to and respect, feel attracted to and feel grateful to be in love with).

If he fails to do that, a woman will slowly start to lose respect for him and she will eventually break up with him or cheat on him and then break up with him.

Now imagine thisâ€¦!

A woman has broken up with her boyfriend who had ruined her feelings of respect, love and attraction for him and she feels relieved to be out of the relationship.

She doesn't want him back at all and he then tries to get her back by ignoring her for 30-60 days.

Will she be thinking, â€œIt's been so long since I heard from my ex. Why isn't he calling me? What is he doing? I miss him so much. I just can't live without him!!! I need him!â€ and want to get back together with him, or might she be thinking, â€œIt looks like my ex has moved on. Good, I can now get on with dating and having sex with other guys who can make me feel the way I want to feel in a relationship.â€

Naturally, if a woman doesn't have feelings for her ex anymore, she's not going to feel like she's missing out on much when he doesn't contact her, so she'll usually just move on.

Alternatively, if a woman is having second thoughts about breaking up with her man and he then ignores her for weeks or months, she might think, â€œWell, I guess didn't mean that much to him if he isn't even calling me to say hi or see how I'm doing, so I will find someone else who does appreciate me.â€

She will usually then hook up with a nice, caring guy who treats her well so that she can feel better about herself.

So, if you're considering trying out the No Contact Rule on your ex, here are 3 main reasons why you're better off remaining friends with her instead.

1. Ignoring her doesn't change how she's feeling right now

Some guys ignore their ex for 30-60 days and then contact her and don't get a response, so they give up.

He might then begin to wonder, â€œWhat's going on here? Why isn't it working? Isn't she supposed to be missing me and wanting to come back to me by now?â€

However, ignoring her just doesn't work in most cases because he has done absolutely nothing for weeks, and even months, to actively re-attract her and regain her respect for him.

He has done nothing to change and he's still stuck at the same level he was when she broke up with him.

He is still the same guy.

So, not only has the guy lost a lot of time while ignoring her and giving her space to get over him and move on with her life, he's also done nothing active to change how she feels about him.

In most cases, he doesn't even know what he could do to re-attract her.

If you don't know how to re-attract your ex, here are 5 examplesâ€¦!

It's only when you actively re-attract your ex that she will actually begin to care, miss you and want you back.

If your ex doesn't see you or hear from you for a long time, there is nothing stopping her from moving on.

There is nothing attracting her back to you.

When a woman breaks up with a guy, most of her positive feelings of love, respect and attraction get pushed into the background and replaced by negative feelings such as anger, disrespect, annoyance and indifference.

If a guy then actively makes an effort to re-attract her and re-spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love (e.g. by making her smile, laugh and feel happy when she interacts with him, showing her that heâs moved beyond the level that he was at when she broke up with him), she will begin to feel good about being around him again.

Her negative feelings will start being replaced by the positive feelings of love, respect and attraction again and her guard will come down.

On the other hand, if he ignores her, she will usually just continue to focus on her negative feelings for him, and in some cases, a woman might get even angrier the longer she doesnât hear from her ex.

Then, if he calls her up after 30-60 days, sheâs usually not going to be happy to hear from him and will speak to him rudely or in a cold, distant way.

She may think, âIf you really wanted me back, you should have done something about it long ago. Iâm over you now and Iâve moved on, so leave me alone now!â

If you want to get your ex back, the best approach to take is to actively make her have feelings for you again. You canât wait around hoping that if she misses you enough sheâll want you back. Donât wait around hoping her negative feelings will change on their own. You have to be the one to actively do that for her if you want her back now or in the next few weeks.

[image: Ignoring a woman rarely gets her back]

If you want to wait years for her to hopefully think positively about you, then go ahead and waste all that time.

However, if you want her back now, youâve got to actively do something about it.

You have to make her feel so good to be interacting with you that she then starts to wonder, âWhy am I missing him all of a sudden? Why am I worried he might meet another woman?â

Remember: In most cases, a guy cannot re-attract a woman if heâs not even talking to her.

If you remain friends with your ex, you can regularly interact with her and then use that time to actively regain her respect and attraction for you.

Another reason why you should avoid ignoring your ex is thatâ

2. She gets more time to meet and hook up with a new guy

Some guys hope that by ignoring their ex, she will somehow change her mind, but if she is an independent woman or can easily attract a new guy, she will usually just move on and start to forget about her ex.

Youâve probably heard the old saying, âOut of sight, out of mind,â right?

If her new guy is emotionally stronger than her ex (e.g. her ex was jealous and insecure while her new guy is confident, or her ex was clingy and needy while her new guy is driven and full of purpose) then not hearing from her ex for 30 or 60 days isnât going to be too much of a problem to her.

She will be too busy getting on with having sex, going out and enjoying her life with the new guy or with new men and usually wonât even give her ex a second thought.

Of course, the No Contact Rule works in some cases.

For example: If a woman lacks relationship experience, is insecure about her attractiveness to men and is worried about finding another guy, or she's struggling to find a replacement guy and she's afraid her ex will hook up with someone else before she does, then she will likely call him up if he's been ignoring her.

However, if she decides to come back to the ex who has been ignoring her (this happens in about 5% of cases. 95% of women just move on), it is almost always just a temporary thing, and as soon as she finds another guy, or becomes confident enough to be without him, she will break up with him again. The only proven, high success rate way to get an ex back is to actively re-attract her during any interactions that you have with her.

One of the best ways to achieve that is to accept a friendship with her that allows you to interact with her.

3. Her calling you doesn't mean that she wants to get back with you.

Sometimes, a woman will call up her ex after he has been ignoring her for a while, but that doesn't mean she wants him back.

For example: A woman might call her ex because

- She wants to gloat about getting on with her life without him (e.g. she has been dating and having fun, while he has been grieving and hiding away pining for her and not going out much).
- She wants to find out how much he misses her, or to see if he's still trying to figure out how to get her back.
- Her ex was once a big part of her life and she simply wants to know how he is doing.

Of course, her contacting him might also mean that she's been missing him or that her feelings of anger or hurt are no longer as intense as they used to be.

However, until your ex is back in your arms, kissing you, loving you and telling you how grateful she is to have you back in her life, you have not gotten her back.

Even if she is the one who is contacting you, she will feel turned off if she senses that you're still the same guy and haven't yet changed or improved enough to meet her standards or make her happy.

For example: You still feel insecure, she has too much power over you or you're not happy and emotionally strong with or without her.

If she senses that nothing has really changed, she will instantly reconnect with her negative feelings about you and the relationship and think that it was a bad idea to get in touch with you again.

If you want to get your ex back, you have to actively make a point of re-attracting her every single time you're interacting with her and you can't do that if you're ignoring her.

Being Friends is a Great Way of Making Your Ex Feel Attracted to You Again

[image: Flirting with ex]

If you show her by the way you talk, your behavior, actions, attitude, body language and the way you respond and react to her, that you are at a different level from the one you were at when she broke up with you, she will naturally feel drawn to you as more than just a friend.

Watch this video for more info! |

As long as you let her experience the new and improved you, she will begin to think and feel differently about you.

She will begin thinking, “I don’t know what’s happening to me now, but I feel so good when I talk to him now. I thought that I just wanted to be friends with him, but now I’m worried that he might meet another woman and I’ll probably lose him forever. Maybe I should just get back with him for a bit and see how I feel.”

Remember: A woman’s attraction to a guy is based on how he makes her feel when he interacts with her.

That’s what is most important to women.

When you trigger enjoyable feelings of attraction for you every time you’re interacting with her, it makes the negatives of your relationship seem less important to her, because she now feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

[image: Using the friendship angle to get her back]

She can’t stop herself from wanting to interact with you more and more, even if she had told herself, friends or family that she was not going to give you another chance.

You’ve brought her guard down by making her feel like it would be a good idea to get back, rather than trying to get her to give you another chance because you need her or love her so much.

It’s about her and her feelings and she feels about that.

[image: Using the friendship angle to get her back]

From there, you just need to build on that spark of attraction and show her that things really are different now.

However, don’t make the mistake of falling into the friend zone.

Mistakes to Avoid When Being Friends With Your Ex

If you want to get her back into a committed, sexual relationship with you, make sure you don’t make these classic ex back friend zone mistakes:

1. Being too neutral around her.

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that they have to be on their best behavior around their ex in order for her to give him another chance.

A guy like this will avoid doing the things that actively attract women (e.g. flirting, making her feel attracted via his personality and behavior), and will instead play it safe by staying neutral (i.e. by never saying or doing anything to suggest that he finds her attractive and wants to be more than friends again) in the hopes that she will realize all by herself that she still has feelings for him, and will then suggest to him that they get back together again.

However, that's not how it works.

If you're not actively re-attracting her by making her feel respect, sexual attraction and love for you, then some other guy will.

She needs to be flirted with and to feel sexual attraction, so rather than making her feel like she needs to get that elsewhere, let her experience it with you.

Don't be afraid to flirt with her, make her laugh and make her feel attracted every chance you get.

Don't look at her as being your ex.

Look at her as being your girlfriend (or fiancée or wife or whatever applies to you) and feel welcome to flirt with her and make her feel attracted.

She will actually feel respect and attraction for you based on having the confidence to interact with her in that way even though you're currently broken up.

2. Being her shoulder to cry on.

The trap that a lot of guys fall into while being friends with their ex, is making themselves available to her as the person that she can rely on and call when she's feeling upset.

A guy will hope that if he's there for her when she's feeling vulnerable, or has been hurt emotionally by another man, she will suddenly realize that he's dependable and reliable and that she can count on him no matter what.

She will then want to get back with him.

It sounds like such a sweet Hollywood movie, but that's not how life works in the real world.

In the real world, if a guy doesn't actively make his ex woman feel attracted to him (e.g. via his behavior, communication style), she might appreciate him for being a good friend to her, but she will easily hook up with another guy if he comes along and makes her feel sexually attracted.

3. Being at her beck and call.

Being available to your ex 24/7 is not a good idea, because it can make her begin to disrespect your time and expect you to be ready to help her at a moment's notice.

If she a woman feels that she can call her ex up at any time and he will drop whatever he's doing to rush over to her, she feels like more dominant and powerful than he is.

She will then lose respect for him and as a result, she will find it difficult or impossible to feel any sexual attraction and desire for him.

Women are instinctively attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity, determination) and repelled by emotional weakness (e.g. self-doubt, insecurity, neediness, clinginess, being a pushover).

So, if her ex is always available to her and she feels she can make him do whatever she wants, she won't feel much or any respect for him.

The main reason for being friends with your ex is so that you can use interactions to attract her back and a good way to do that is to make it a little bit difficult for her to get your attention.

Don't push it too far where you ignore her texts and phone calls, but simply take your time replying sometimes and don't always be willing to do whatever she wants when she calls.

Turning a Friendship Back Into a Relationship

Based on the 100s of ex back cases I've worked on, remaining friends with your ex almost works better than using the No Contact Rule in 95% of cases.

Almost every guy who comes to me for help to get his woman back has already made the mistake of ignoring her and it hasn't worked.

I rarely hear from a guy who says, "I got my ex back using the No Contact Rule."

I've probably heard that 5 or so times, but the guy then explains that he lost her again because he still hadn't changed or improved in the ways that were important to her.

For example: He was still insecure, didn't know how to attract her in the ways that she wanted, made the same old communication mistakes and wasn't able to get her to respect him.

He then needs to learn how to do that to get her back.

So, if you want your ex back in the quickest, easiest, least painful way possible, don't waste time ignoring her and thinking that it will change and fix everything.

It won't.

What you need to do is start re-attracting your ex to the new and improved you in every interaction that you have with her as a "friend."

She will begin to think, "Something has changed. Even though I thought it was over him, I don't like the idea of being without him in my life anymore. I at least want to give it one more try. Who cares what anyone else thinks. I want to be with him again."

Based on the changes you have made, your ex will begin to feel good when she interacts with you, and will naturally become open to giving your relationship another chance or at least just having sex with you again to see how she feels afterwards.

That is how to approach getting your ex back.

Don't make the classic mistake of wasting loads of precious time ignoring her and hoping she will decide all by herself that she wants you back.

If you want her back and are deciding between accepting a friendship or ignoring her, go with the friendship and then use the interactions you have with her to re-attract her and get her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Girlfriend is Happy With Her New Guy: How to Get Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex girlfriend seems to be happy with her new guy, that doesn't mean you cannot get her to re-connect with her original feelings of love for you.

What you need to do is stay in touch with her by any means possible (e.g. via text messages, social media, talking to her on the phone, or seeing her in person), so you can use the interactions you have to re-spark and rebuild her feelings for you.

Watch this video for more info!

When getting an ex back from a new guy that she is happy with, her new guy might not care if you contact her or he might be very worried about you contacting her and taking her back.

Sometimes the guy is going to be insecure and will try to block your ex from talking to you and other times, he's not really going to be that into your ex and won't care if she goes back to you.

He might be telling her that he cares about her and wants to stay with her, but most rebound relationships break up and most relationships in general go through a break up.

So, while it might seem like they are perfect for each other because she is happy with him, don't forget that your ex girlfriend used to be happy with you too.

If you want her your ex girlfriend back, you've got to make the most of any contact you have with her.

Watch this video for more info!

Essentially, the main thing you need to focus on is getting her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, every time you interact with her, while also making her new guy seem less attractive compared to the new you.

If you can do that, she will change the way that she thinks about you and when that happens, she will begin to feel differently about you.

[image: She will open back up to you]

Once you achieve that, your ex girlfriend will become open to communicating with you, meeting up with you and getting back with you again.

The Main Reason Why She Feels Attracted to Her New Guy

[image: Why is she so happy with the new guy?]

Right now, if your ex girlfriend feels like she is happy with her new guy, it's usually because he is very different from you, and he is filling in the emotional gaps that were missing in your relationship with her.

For example: If a woman felt that her ex boyfriend was taking her for granted (e.g. by not paying too much attention to her once the relationship got past the early stages of excitement, he put her second to his job/friends/family all the time), then her new guy will be someone who makes her feel like a princess (e.g. always tells her how beautiful she looks, puts her first in his life).

If you took your ex girlfriend for granted, watch this video on how to recover from that and get her starting to forgive youâ€¦!

If a womanâ€™s ex boyfriend was insecure and clingy in the relationship (qualities that are instinctively unattractive to women), then her new guy will usually be someone who is confident and comes across as being emotionally strong.

The new guy only has to be a little bit more confident in subtle ways and it will usually be enough for the woman to feel like she's getting a better experience with him, compared to her insecure ex.

So, what is making your ex girlfriend feel happy with her new guy right now, is that she is comparing the negative things about her relationship with you to the positive things she is experiencing with her new guy.

Sheâ€™s not really noticing the negative things about him yet, because sheâ€™s only focusing on how he is making her feel in comparison to how she was feeling when she was with you.

For example: If a woman was feeling taken for granted with her ex, and now sheâ€™s feeling loved, appreciated, and is enjoying being treated like a princess; she will focus on that.

She will tell her girlfriends, "It's so nice to be taken care of for once. My ex was such a selfish asshole. I deserve the nice treatment that I am getting now."

Even if her new guy is lacking in other areas of the relationship (e.g. heâ€™s not moving through the levels of life like a man, he has no big plans for his life), sheâ€™s not noticing those things about him yet, because of how happy he is making her feel in comparison to her ex.

Right now, your ex girlfriend is simply focusing on the one thing about her new guy that is different from her relationship with you, and it is making her feel good.

So, the way for you to stand out as being more attractive than him, is to be the more emotionally strong and mature one whenever you interact with her.

You should also focus on making her feel attracted to you by getting her to laugh, smile and feel good whenever you interact with her.

Let her see that she still has a good relationship with you (i.e. as a friend), rather than telling her that she would have a good relationship with you if she came back.

She will become interested in you again if she can see that you do make her feel good in different ways.

After all, that's most of what a woman wants in a relationship. She just wants to feel respect for you, feel attracted to you, love you and see that you feel the same way about her.

You can make your ex girlfriend look at you in that way again if you are willing to do what it takes to improve on your weaknesses and strengthen your strengths.

You can be even more attractive to her that you've ever been before.

You really can.

You haven't reached your true potential as a man yet. You are better than who you've been so far in life.

You are now at a crossroads in your life where your either going to become a better man, or feed sad and depressed and become an insecure man who thinks that he's not good enough to keep a woman happy in a relationship.

You are.

You can do that with your ex, who will then become your girlfriend again.

You can then make the relationship even better than it was before by being a new, improved man that she can look up to and respect as well as feel attracted and happy around.

When you do that (even just a little better than you did before), she will start to reconnect with her original feelings for you.

How to Make Your Ex Girlfriend Want to Come Back to You

The way to get your ex girlfriend to want to dump her current boyfriend and want to come back to you, begins by understanding and starting to truly change the things about you that didn't make her happy.

At this point of the ex back process, some guys might wonder, â€œI don't know what to change about myself to get her back, so where do I even start?â€ or â€œMy ex girlfriend never told me what was wrong before she broke up with me. How can I know what she wants me to change?â€

The first thing you need to be clear on, is that a woman will almost never come out and tell a guy directly what he's doing wrong in the relationship. Why?

A woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man.

If she has to teach him how to be the man that she needs him to be, she fears that she will need to teach him again and again in the future.

If that keeps happening, she will end up feeling like she has to take care of him like a mother, big sister or teacher, and that's not attractive to her.

A woman wants her man to figure out how to be a man without her help, which is why she will give him hints (e.g. throwing tantrums, arguing with him, changing her behavior), in the hopes that he will notice and then make the necessary changes.

So, if you want your ex girlfriend to see you as being better than her new guy, you have to begin to fix the things that were a problem in her relationship with you, but are great in her relationship with her new guy.

Here's the really cool part!

Once you change the things about you that made your her unhappy and you begin to make her feel respect, attraction, love and happiness when she interacts with you, she will start noticing the problems with her new guy, because you will now be giving her what she really wants in a relationship.

So, if you're still unsure about what caused your ex to become unhappy in your relationship, here are some questions to get you thinking about what you might:

1. Were you clingy?

[image: Being needy, clingy or insecure]

A guy who is clingy and needy in a relationship is a big turn off for most women, because it is a sign of emotional weakness.

Some insecure, dominating women like a clingy guy, because he is easy to control and can make her feel good about herself, but most feminine women prefer to be with a guy who is emotionally strong with or without her.

When a guy is clingy, a woman will subtly try to let him know that she doesn't like it so that he can then change (e.g. by showing less affection, changing her behavior).

For example: A woman might say something like, “Why don't you call up your friends? You haven't seen anyone for weeks now; don't you think it would be nice for us to hook up with them for some drinks or coffee?”

A clingy guy might then say, “I'd rather be with you than with anyone else. Who cares about my old friends? I love being with you. That is what makes me happy. I want to spend every waking moment with you.”

In his mind, he thinks that she might be impressed by how much he loves her by rejecting the idea of spending time with friends.

Yet, what she's trying to tell him is, “You're smothering me by being so clingy and needy all the time. If you don't start having some interests outside of our relationship, I'm probably going to ask for time apart or break up with you because I don't want to be with a guy who hides from life behind me.”

Another example of being clingy is just needing her to tell you that she loved you all the time, or needing her hugs to feel better about yourself.

There's nothing wrong with enjoying your woman saying, “I love you” or enjoying her hugs, but needing them to feel emotionally secure means that a guy is needy.

So, in your relationship with your ex girlfriend, did you become clingy? Did you stop having serious interests outside of your relationship with her?

2. Did you take her for granted?

A common reason why a woman will break up with her boyfriend is if he takes her love, attraction, respect and commitment for granted.

For example: At the beginning of the relationship, a guy might be attentive, charming and romantic towards his new girlfriend.

He might take her out to romantic dinners, compliment her about her appearance (e.g. “You're so beautiful,” or “I love the way you always look so sexy. Even when you're wearing an old tracksuit you look sexy to me.”) always return her calls, never cancel plans at the last minute and generally be a loving, caring boyfriend.

Yet, what often happens is that when the relationship gets more comfortable, a guy falls into a habit of taking her commitment to him for granted.

For example: He no longer compliments her about her looks, because in his mind he's thinking, “I've already told her so many times. She knows that I think she's sexy. Why should I tell her over and over again?”

If they start living together, he might then stop taking her out to romantic dinners, because in his view, her cooking is so much better than takeout or restaurant food.

However, in her eyes, she starts to feel like the cook and that heâs just taking advantage of her without ever putting any effort into romance.

If a woman stops feeling loved and appreciated in her relationship, she will naturally start to feel unhappy.

Then, if a really nice guy comes along who makes her feel loved, appreciated and special, she will naturally feel drawn to him and consider herself to be happier with him, because he is filling in the emotional gaps that were missing with her ex.

3. Does she feel as though you're not emotionally tough enough for a girl like her?

Women are instinctively attracted to the emotional toughness in men (e.g. confidence, determination, purpose in life, high self-esteem) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, self-doubt, lack of ambition and direction in life).

If a woman is stuck with a guy that she perceives as being emotionally weak, she will naturally begin to lose respect and attraction for him.

Here are some examples of emotional weakness:

- He lacks confidence in himself around her and other people.
- He feels unworthy of her because he places her above himself in terms of attractive value.
- He believes that he got lucky with her and that he wouldn't be able to attract other quality women if she left him.
- He hides from his true potential in life because heâs afraid of failure or being embarrassed if people make fun of him for losing.
- He is shy, submissive or nervous around confident men.
- He often whines about life and complains that it's all too difficult.
- He lets his girlfriend get away with treating him badly (e.g. not calling him when she says she will, flirting with other guys when they go out together).

Some guys feel as though their girlfriend should put up with that kind of emotional weakness because he loves her so much.

Yet, a woman doesn't want to be a guy's mother or big sister figure in life. She wants to be a man's woman or man's girl.

4. Does she feel like she wears the pants in her relationship with you?

Regardless of whether a woman is a doctor, a lawyer, or even the president of her country, when she is with her man, she wants to know that he is the man, and that she can then relax into being a feminine woman around him.

If a woman gets a sense that she is the more dominant one in the relationship, no matter how much she might initially enjoy having so much power over him, eventually sheâs going to lose all respect for him because heâs taken on the role of being the submissive woman and she then has to behave like the man.

Some women are more masculine and enjoy being in a relationship where the male/female dynamic is reversed, but most women prefer to be with a man who is the man all the time.

If your ex girlfriend is a feminine woman, she doesn't want to be able to dominate you. She wants to be your girl, not your friend, your big sister, teacher or mother figure in this life.

5. Did you make her feel stressed out when she was around you?

One of the biggest things that cause a woman to feel unhappy in her relationship with a guy, is when the guy makes her feel unsafe and stressed out.

For example: He's always annoying her to get her attention, he's too clingy, he starts arguments for the heck of it or puts too much pressure on her to follow strict relationship rules.

Another example is where he isn't making enough of an effort to become successful in life and as a result, he's often struggling to pay bills or getting into trouble at work or falling behind at university.

[image: Make her see you as being emotionally stronger than him]

If a woman wants a man who is emotionally strong enough to rise up through the levels of life, she's going to feel stressed out when she feels like she is the more responsible one of the two of them.

A woman might then say to her boyfriend, "Why are you always hanging around watching TV? You're so lazy; you'll never get anywhere in your life with your attitude and approach to things."

Even though she can earn her own money and succeed in a career on her own, a woman just doesn't want to get stuck with a man who is going to struggle to put food on the table, or will be unable to take care of her and any children they might have in the future.

It's a very competitive world these days and if a guy is going to do well, he has to be emotionally strong, mature and consistent, otherwise other guys are just going to overtake him and he will be left behind.

If a woman feels like she is with a potential loser, she's will often say things like, "I need time apart to find myself" or "I want to be alone for a while to focus on what I want."

What she is essentially saying is, "You aren't making me feel safe. You have forced me to have to think like a man and focus on my own success in life. I can't relax and be your girl. I have to be more of a goal-focused, driven, determined, strong woman with you and because of that, I now feel like you are more of a burden than a benefit to me in this life, so I want out."

Most women want to know that their man is in control of his life and is the kind of man she can look up to, respect and depend on through challenging times.

She doesn't want feel like she's living on the edge and that their whole life could come crashing down at any moment.

So, if you want to get your ex girlfriend back from this new guy, you've first got to clear on what caused your ex girlfriend to break up with you, so you can then impress her with the changes you've made.

When she sees that you understand where you were going wrong and have already changed or begun to change, she will naturally feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

You Can Get Her Back By Using Every Interaction With Her as an Opportunity to Rebuild Her Feelings For You

[image: Make her fall back in love with you]

If your ex girlfriend is happy with her new guy, you have to remember one thing:

Regardless of how you're communicating with her (e.g. via text message, on social media, on the telephone, or in person) you have to make sure that every time you're interacting with her you're making her feel a renewed sense of attraction and respect for you.

You can do that by making her smile and laugh, and by showing her via your body language and the way you talk, behave and communicate with her, that you've changed and that you're no longer the same guy that she broke up with.

[image: Take her back from this new guy]

When you trigger a your ex's feelings of attraction for you in this way, it makes the negative aspects of your relationship seem less important to her now, because she is naturally feeling drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

If she constantly experiences you as being a new man who is very different from the ex that she remembers, she won't be able to stop herself from wanting to be around you again, even though she previously might have thought that she was over you and was happy with her new guy.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex Back After Taking Her For Granted

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How can you get your ex-girlfriend or fianc  or wife back after taking her for granted?

What you need to do first is apologize. Of course, you've most likely done that already. You've probably apologized to her many times at this point.

So what else do you do?

You've got to start being nice to her, but don't suck up to her.

A lot of guys make the mistake of really going overboard in trying to suck up to their woman and really show her how much they've changed (e.g. a guy might start buying her gifts, paying for things, taking her on holidays, and just going overboard to show her how much he cares).

What you need to do start being nice to her, but don't suck up to her. If you suck up to her in a desperate way, it'll actually turn her off because women are turned off by emotional weakness and desperation in men.

You also need to mix in some of your original behavior that attracted her to you in the first place.

[image: Remember what attracted her to you in the first place]

Go back to being the confident, cool guy that you were at the start of the relationship. She is attracted to that about you, but in the relationship she just needed you to treat her better, and make her feel more appreciated while being like that.

Don't let her see you taking her for granted as the worst thing in the world.

[image: Making her forgive your mistakes]

Everyone makes mistakes, but what makes a man a great man is when he learns from his mistakes and becomes a better man as a result.

You can say to her, "Look, I've learned from my mistakes, and you probably don't care, but you should at least be able to see that, rather than continually telling me how bad I was before. I know that I've made some mistakes, and I don't expect you to take me back now, but you could at least acknowledge that I'm not like that anymore."

Laugh off her attempts to continually complain about how you treated her before.

For example: If she's going on and on about things that you used to do, you can laugh, and in an easy-going kind of way, you can say to her, "Okay. Well, look, that's the second time you're bringing this up on the call. I don't blame you for wanting to talk about it, but look, it's the second time you've brought it up, so let's try to just say it this one last time."

Then if she brings it up again later in the call, you say to her, "Look, alright, now that's the third time that you're bringing it up. Let's see if we can get to 5 or maybe even 10 by the end of this call."

Make light of it rather than continually apologizing over and over again for the same things when she just keeps bringing it up.

Let her see the funny side of things, let her laugh. Let her relax. Let her not be so serious about what she's talking about.

Yes, you've made some mistakes before.

Yes, you didn't treat her perfectly, but there's no need to keep going on and on about that.

If she keeps going on and on about it, just turn it into something funny. Turn it into something to laugh about, rather than be so serious about.

Finally, make her feel respect and attraction for you in new and exciting ways.

[image: Bring back the love]

In some cases, it's not enough just to go back to how you were at the start and begin to attract her in those ways.

In the cases where I've helped guys get a woman back after taking her for granted, he often has to start making her feel respect and attraction in new and exciting ways.

By the way, how to make her feel respect and attraction for you in new and exciting ways is explained in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

The Main Mistake Guys Make When Trying to Get a Woman Back After Taking Her For Granted

When it comes to getting a woman back after taking her for granted, the main mistake that guys make is that they forget that she used to feel attracted to the fact that he wasn't so attentive and such a great boyfriend, fiancé, or husband before.

She used to like that he was a little bit hard to get, a little bit hard to please.

So a guy will make the mistake of becoming super attentive, and nice, and supportive, and polite, and respectful, and everything is just really nice, and he's trying to show her how much he cares, how much he loves her, but the thing is that isn't the right approach to take.

You need to approach it in a more balanced way (i.e. be nice to her, but be sure to mix in some of your original confident behavior that attracted her to you in the first place).

When I've helped guys to get a woman back in a situation like this, there are many different examples and reasons why he was taking her for granted (e.g. he was too distant, he was emotionally unavailable, he wasn't willing to commit, he was a bit of an asshole to her, he was a bit too controlling, and he just expected her to put up with his bad treatment).

So to get her back, it's not about continuing to be a bad boyfriend, fiancé, or husband, and treating her badly, etc., being controlling.

Instead, it's about understanding that if she put up with that for a long time and she liked it and enjoyed it at the start, and maybe for a couple of months or a couple of years into the relationship, then it means that she's the sort of woman who does like a guy who is a bit more of a challenge.

What you need to do is mix in some of your original behavior that attracted her to you in the first place, as well as be nice and treat her well from now on. You then need to work on getting some of her trust back.

A great way to do that is to put a percentage on it.

So, say for example, you talk to her and you say, "Hey, look. I know I took you for granted. I was a bit of an asshole. I did this, or I did that (briefly mention whatever you did to take her for granted). What's it going to take for you to trust me again?"

If she says she doesn't know because she can't really trust you, what you can ask her is, "Okay. Well, how much do you trust me now as a percentage? Do you trust me 50%, 30%, 60%, 80%, or maybe 100%?"

Have a little bit of a laugh with her about it. That questions isn't designed to be serious and formal, and you don't need to get an accurate answer from her, like, "What percentage do you trust me now? Like 63.2?" sort of thing.

Be more light-hearted about it, but get her to answer the question so you've got a definite starting point.

If she says that she trusts you 50%, you can then ask her, "Okay, so what's it going to take to get to 70%?"

Don't Ask Her to Help You Understand What You Need to Improve or Change

In most cases, when a man asks what he needs to improve or change, a woman is usually going to say, "I don't know."

The reason why a woman says, "I don't know," is that she doesn't want to teach her guy how to be the type of man that she wants him to be.

A woman doesn't want to be in a situation where she's with a guy that she constantly has to teach, and mother, and be like a big sister to throughout life. She wants him to understand how to be the type of man that she needs with or without her encouragement, reassurance, teaching, advice, etc. She just wants him to figure it out and get on with being the sort of man that she needs.

[image: Get her to see the new you]

However, if your ex is the sort of woman who will openly explain things, she might say to you, "Oh, well, I'm going to need to see that this is consistent. I'm going to see that you really have changed. I'm going to need time. I'm going to need time to assess this. I'm going to see how I feel."

So what you need to do then is continue to show her that you really have changed, but don't get desperate about it (i.e. don't start sucking up to her by being extra nice).

Women don't like to see a guy in desperation mode where he's lowering himself and is going overboard trying to show her how much he's changed, to hopefully impress her.

What she wants to see is that you're changing because you want to change, and you are becoming a better man. You're learning from the mistakes that you've made, and you're becoming a better man as a result.

Taking a Woman For Granted is Common

One final point that I want to make about taking a woman for granted in a relationship is that it's a very common that men make.

It's not a fatal mistake; you're not a failure as a man for doing it. You're not a bad man for doing that.

Yes, you did make a mistake.

Yes, you could have treated her better, but you've learned that now.

As we go through life, we live and learn, and what separates the great men from the not-so-great men are the men who learn from their mistakes and become a better man as a result.

You learning from the mistake of taking her for granted and becoming a better man as a result, that's a good thing.

That's something to be proud of. That's something to lift your chest up about, to keep your chin up about. Not to look back on it and think, "Oh, I'm such a failure. I'm such a bad boyfriend, or fianc  , or husband. I'm such a bad man. I'm such a horrible relationship partner."

No.

You HAVE learned from your mistake.

You ARE becoming a better man.

Everyone makes mistakes throughout life, but what separates you as being a great man compared to not-so-great men is if you actually learn from this experience, and you do become a better man as a result.

Yet, don't expect her to jump up and down, and be excited because you've learned from the experience.

When a guy is trying to get a woman back, he often makes the mistake of learning from the experience, and then trying to tell her, "Hey, I've learned from the experience. I'm a better man now. I'm sorry. Things are different now!"

But that rarely works because it's more about talking to her and trying to convince her rather than actually making her have feelings.

What you need to do if you want your woman back is you need to actively make her have feelings for you again rather than trying to explain to her that you've changed.

If she doesn't have strong enough feelings of respect, attraction, and love for you, she's not going to care enough that you've learned from the experience to want to get back with you.

What really matters to her is how she feels, and what you can do, if you approach the Ex Back process correctly is you can actively make her have feelings for you again.

[image: Laugh off her attempts to keep complaining about the past]

You can actively start to trigger her feelings of respect, attraction, and love, and you can also get her to forgive the mistakes that you've made in the relationship.

Part of getting her to forgive the mistakes that you've made is to let her know that everyone makes mistakes in life, but don't put too much emphasis on that and think that she's going to forgive you, and forget everything and rush back into a relationship with you just because she now understands that everyone makes mistakes in life, and it's possible for a person to learn and grow and become a better person as a result.

That isn't what really matters to her.

What matters the most is how you make her feel when you interact with her now, whether you are able to actually make her connect with the love again, whether you are able to make her feel respect and attraction for you again.

That is what really matters.

Get Her to Fall in Love With You Again

Okay, so I hope you've enjoyed this post and it has been helpful for you.

If you want a step-by-step solution to follow, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

It's 10 hours of video that you can begin watching right now or you can download it, you can watch it later, you can go into your Modern Man account and watch it online.

By the end of watching the 10 hours of video, you will be ready to contact her, get her to meet up with you, get her to respect you, and forgive you, and feel attracted to you again; reconnect with the love and give the relationship another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex Back After Begging and Pleading

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How can you get your ex back if you've made the classic mistake of begging and pleading with her? It's pretty simple.

You've got to laugh it off.

You've got to see it as not being a serious mistake because the truth is we all make mistakes in life.

We all live and learn, and sometimes when a person is going through an emotional situation, a challenging situation, sometimes they will make mistakes in their communication and behavior and they might even learn from that.

If a guy is a great man, if he's becoming a better man over time in life, then he's going to learn from his mistakes. He's not going to continue making the same mistakes over and over and over again.

Just because he made a mistake, it doesn't mean that he's a failure. It doesn't mean that he's a bad man, a hopeless man, an unattractive man, a no-hoper.

No way.

Instead, it's simply a learning opportunity. It's a mistake that he has made and he has learned from it.

What to Say to Your Ex About How You Begged Her For Another Chance

When you talk to you ex about the fact that you were begging and pleading, you can laugh and say that we all make mistakes in life.

"Yes, I was being silly. You've probably said or done silly things in the past, too," and then just laugh it off. Tell her, "I get it now. I was being a bit silly and I now look back and laugh at how I reacted. I care about you, but that was just an immature way to react, as you'd probably agree."

From then on, you just need to be a confident, masculine man in every interaction that you have with her, and she will then begin to respect you again.

She'll begin to forget about the mistakes that you've made because, hey, you're able to look at it and laugh at it and say, "Yeah, I was being a bit silly there. We all make mistakes in life. I'm sure you've made some mistakes at times. When I look back at it now, I think that was pretty silly of me to react like that, but, hey, we all live and learn."

From then on, just be the confident, masculine, mature man that you have now become.

Don't let her continue to bring that stuff up or don't let it continue to make you feel bad and feel like you've made a fatal mistake, a horrible mistake, that you're hopeless, that you're a horrible man for doing that.

No.

You're not hopeless for doing something like that.

It's simply something that has caused you to learn and become a better man.

You have learned from it.

You have grown from it.

There's nothing wrong with that. We all make mistakes in life.

Everyone makes mistakes, but what sets a man apart and makes him a great man is when he learns from his mistakes and becomes a better man as a result.

Getting Her Back

Some guys reading along now will now say, "Oh, thanks, Dan. That's awesome. I'm going to use that advice to get my ex back" and he will then contact his ex, have a chat with her, meet up with her and get the relationship back together.

Whereas other guys might say, "Well, that's great. It's awesome, but I still feel emotionally weak. I feel like I'm not going to be able to be that strong around her. So what should I do?"

That's where my program comes in.

If you do need help, if you're not feeling emotionally strong, if you don't know what to say or do around to her to make her feel respect, attraction and love for you, that's when I recommend you should watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

It's 10 hours of video, and by the end of it, you will feel emotionally strong. You will be confident when you interact with her, and you will know how to get her to feel respect, attraction, and love for you again.

Getting Past Your Mistake

If you have made the mistake of begging and pleading to your woman after she broke up with you, just don't worry about it.

Seriously, it's not that big of a deal.

People make mistakes all the time.

You are a great man if you learned from that mistake and become a better man as a result. You're not a failure for doing that.

There is nothing wrong with you for doing that.

You've simply learned something in life, and have become a better man as a result.

That is something to feel proud of, to feel confident about and to be happy about.

So, make sure that you let your ex see that you are confident in yourself now and are already way past learning a lesson from that experience.

You now know that begging and pleading is a silly, immature reaction and you are confident, wise and mature enough to be able to laugh at it and see it as a lesson learned.

When she notices that you have that kind of confident, forward-moving, mature mindset, she won't be able to stop herself from respecting you for it.

However, regardless of how she reacts, you need to be confident and guide her through the reconciliation process.

You can't ever expect her to say, "Wow! You learned a lesson! Okay, let's get back together."

Letting her see that you've learned a lesson is simply about allowing her to relax and see that you're not the same guy who was begging and pleading with her.

You've matured, become stronger and become wiser and are now a more appealing option to her than you were before.

From there, you need to have the confidence to guide her back into a relationship with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make Your Ex Miss You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to make your ex miss you seems like a pretty obvious answer, but it isn't.

Most people will tell you, "If you want her to miss you, then just don't contact her. Ignore her, and then she's going to miss you. Absence makes the heart grow fonder," blah, blah, blah, all that sort of stuff.

Yet, the reality is if a woman doesn't have feelings for her ex-boyfriend, fianc  or husband anymore and he starts ignoring her, it might make her miss him a little, bit but in a lot of cases, it just gives her time to move on and forget all about him.

So, if you are one of the many guys who have made the mistake of ignoring your ex in the hopes that it will make her come running back to you, what should you do instead?

Here's what you need to do:

1. Interact with her.
2. Actively make her have some feelings for you when you interact with her.
3. Step back (give her space) for a few days.

For example: Interact with her via text, on a phone call, or in person if you can.

Make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when you're interacting with her, and then step back for a few days. Give her space for a few days so she can actually miss how good it feels to interact with you these days.

Then contact her again, and repeat the process until you get her back.

[image: Making your ex miss you]

By interacting with her and making her feel something for you (e.g. feelings of respect, attraction, and love) and then stepping away to give her space for a few days, it allows her to miss you a bit.

The first time a guy tries it, it's not going to necessarily get his ex back in every situation.

Sometimes it will in the easy cases, but in the difficult cases where the woman doesn't want anything to do with her ex-boyfriend, fianc , or husband, if he interacts with her, actively makes her have feelings for him and then ignores her, she might miss him, but she's not necessarily going to come running back to him saying, "Oh, I want to be back with you. Please, let's get back together. Let's catch up!"

In really difficult cases, sometimes a guy has to repeat that 3-step process three or four times and then the woman really wants to get back together with him.

However, he shouldn't just keep repeating the process of interacting with her, stepping away, and not doing anything about it.

What he needs to do is make sure that he's stepping up the significance of the interactions.

For example: If he starts out by actively making her have some feelings for him via text (e.g. getting her laughing and smiling, making her feel good). Then, the next time he contacts her, he must get her on a phone call, and he must make her have some feelings for him on the phone call.

Then, the next time he contacts her (if he's not able to arrange this when he calls her the first time), he needs to get her to meet up with him in person so he can then make her have some feelings for him in person.

A lot of guys are able to get their woman back at that point, but if you aren't able to get her back at that point, don't worry about it.

You can actively make her have feelings for you in other ways when you're not even interacting with her.

You can start to plant seeds in her mind where she starts to miss you and wants to be with you, she forgives you and she starts to reconnect with the love. All of that is possible.

I'm going to continue helping you throughout this post, but I just want to point out before I continue on that if you do need a lot of help (i.e. you don't know what to say or do to make her have feelings for you, miss you, want to be with you, forgive you, etc) all of that is explained in my step-by-step program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

It's 10 hours of video that you can begin watching immediately.

When you finish watching the video, you will be ready to start interacting with her and making her have feelings for you again, getting her to forgive you, getting her to hook up with you again, and want to be in a relationship with you again.

Making Your Ex Miss You

[image: How to get your ex girlfriend to miss you]

By actively interacting with your ex and making her have some feelings for you again and then stepping back, she then starts to think of you in a positive light, and begins to forget about the bad times.

She begins to think, "Why am I having feelings for him all of a sudden? Why do I miss him? Why am I feeling good about him now? Why am I not so concerned about how bad the relationship was near the end? Why do I feel differently now?"

The reason why she feels differently about you is that you have been actively making her have feelings for you again.

You've been actively triggering feelings like respect, attraction, and love. You've been doing that while interacting with her.

That's why the old saying of, "Absence makes the heart grow fonder" isn't always correct.

That saying is about when someone is absent that you respect and love and feel attracted to, then the heart grows fonder.

Yet, if a woman is broken up with you, and she doesn't want anything to do with you, she doesn't have feelings for you and then you ignore her and hope that it makes her miss you, then the absence, the space and the time apart isn't going to necessarily make her want to come back and be with you.

It might make her miss you a bit and think, "Oh, I don't have him in my life anymore," but it really doesn't work on a lot of women because the woman usually just moves on, or she keeps focusing on the negatives of the relationship and she then finds a guy who has different qualities about him that the ex was missing, she feels happy in the new relationship and she just moves on.

So, that's why I don't recommend guys waste time ignoring their ex and hoping that if they just ignore her for long enough, then she'll realize how much she misses him and she'll come running back.

It's just not an effective approach to use to get a woman back in most cases.

It does work in a very small percentage of cases (e.g. where the woman doesn't have much experience with relationships and breakups, and she can't deal with the pain of the breakup and she then comes running back, or she can't find a new guy, etc) but in most cases, the woman just uses the time when a guy is ignoring her to move on, to find a new guy and forget all about him.

So if you want your ex to miss you, you've got to be active. You've got to actively interact with her and make her feel something for you.

What if She Has Blocked You From Everything or Won't Answer Your Calls or Texts?

Of course, not every guy can actively interact with his ex because sometimes a guy is in a situation where his ex has blocked him on social media, she won't answer his calls, she won't reply to his texts and she just won't see him at all.

So, how is he going to actively make her have some feelings for him again?

What a guy needs to do is use whatever communication method is available to him with his ex (e.g. e-mail) to get a message through to her so he can then get her on a phone call.

For example: A worst case scenario where a guy has only got access to his ex via e-mail. She's blocked him on her phone. She's blocked him on social media, and he can only send her an e-mail.

What he needs to do is send her an e-mail saying something like this, "Hey Jenny. I know that we're broken up and I accept that, but there's something quick that I wanted to ask you over the phone. So, if you can just unblock me for a day or answer the phone tomorrow, I'm going to call you up and have a quick conversation with you. If you don't ever want to talk to me after that, that's totally fine. I will accept it."

What he needs to do then is get her on a phone call and use that interaction as an opportunity to make her feel SOMETHING for him.

He needs to create a spark of attraction again. He needs to get her laughing and smiling. He needs to allow her to see that he has changed.

He's talking differently, and he's reacting to her differently. It's not the same old version of him.

Another example is where a guy has got access via phone so he can actually call her up.

If he calls her up and she doesn't answer, he can send her a text message saying, "Hey Jenny. It's Dan here – there's just something quick I wanted to ask you over the phone. I guess you're busy at the moment. I might try to call you another time."

In most cases, the woman will then text back, and then the guy can call her up and get her on a phone call. On the phone call, he needs to spark her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

So, if a guy is being blocked or his ex is ignoring him, essentially what he needs to do is get to the point where he can have an interaction with her on a phone call or in person.

The reason for that is when you interact with your ex on the phone and in person, she can experience the new and improved version of you much better than just via text.

For example: If a guy had an interaction with her on the phone and he got her laughing and smiling and she was feeling good, he then needs to give her some space for a few days to let her miss him. On the second phone call, a guy can usually then get his woman to meet up with him.

From Missing You to Kissing You

[image: From missing you to kissing you]

By the way...

If you need help getting your ex back and you don't know what to say or do at each step of the process, you don't know what to text her, you don't know what to say on the phone to get her to meet up with you, you don't know what to say in person to get her to forgive you and give you another chance, all of that is explained in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

You'll learn how to make her go from missing you to kissing you and then telling you that she loves you and is sorry for how she treated you when she broke up with you. 100s of other guys have already done it and you can too.

So, if you're serious about getting your woman back, don't make the classic mistake of ignoring her and wasting a lot of time sitting around hoping that if you just ignore her, then she will miss you, and her life will be sad and lonely without you.

It's really an ineffective strategy, and it usually causes a woman to feel like she needs to move on and find another guy either to get emotional revenge on her ex-boyfriend, fianc  or husband for ignoring her, or just to make herself feel better and get a new relationship so she's not feeling sad, lonely, rejected and confused about why her ex isn't contacting her.

Of course, when I say to contact your ex and interact with her, I'm not talking about contacting her in a needy way, in an insecure way, trying to convince her to give you another chance, promising that things will be different, begging, pleading, etc.

What I'm talking about is interacting with her and when you interact with her, you use that as an opportunity to make her feel something for you.

You've got to make her have some type of feelings for you again. Feelings like respect, attraction, and love, you've got to be triggering that.

When you do that, a woman's guard naturally comes down and she opens up to you.

She starts to look at you differently, think about you differently, and she becomes open to texting with you, talking to you on the phone, meeting up with you in person, getting intimate again, and giving the relationship another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Re-Attract Your Ex (5 Examples)

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I'm going to provide you with five different examples of how you can re-attract your ex-girlfriend (or if she's your ex-fiancée, or ex-wife, the same rules apply).

This is how to re-attract an ex-woman who has broken up with you, and currently doesn't want anything to do with you.

She doesn't want to get back with you. You want to get back together with her, but she's just not feeling it.

So, how can you make her feel attracted? How can you re-attract your ex?

1. Be emotionally stronger than her

[image: Be emotionally stronger than her]

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, self-esteem, self-assurance, assertiveness, determination to succeed, etc). Those types of emotional strengths and more are naturally attractive to women.

On the other hand, women are naturally turned off by emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, self-doubt, low self-esteem, passiveness, lack of determination to succeed).

So, when you're interacting with your ex, what you need to do is just remain confident no matter what she says or does to test you or throw you off or mess with you.

What you need to understand is that if you can remain confident no matter what she says or does, she will feel naturally attracted to you, whether she likes it or not.

Attraction is an automatic response that people have to each other.

When you see a woman that you find attractive, the attraction that you feel is automatic; you don't have to think about it.

Likewise, when you're interacting with a woman, and you're displaying traits that women naturally find attractive, they feel attracted automatically without having to think about it.

Your ex might hate you at the moment and she might not want anything to do with you, so when you make her feel attracted, she might start to close up a little bit and try to fight it on the inside, but she cannot stop it.

Attraction is an automatic thing that happens, and it cannot be turned off.

Of course, just being emotionally stronger than her isn't the secret magic cure to get a woman back. It's just one way of making her feel some attraction for you again.

If your ex doesn't feel any attraction for you, then don't even worry about trying to get her back, because it's not going to happen. She's just going to keep saying, "No, no, no, no."

What you need to do if you want to get your woman back is you need to actively be making her feel attracted to you, and one great way to do that is to be emotionally stronger than her.

2. Show her that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you

[image: Re-attracting your ex]

For example: If a guy was insecure, he needs to now show her that he's emotionally strong.

If a guy lacked ambition, he needs to now show her that he has big goals, and he's starting to make progress towards his big goals in life.

If he took her for granted, he needs to let her know that everyone makes mistakes, and that it's possible for a guy to change. Then he needs to make her feel appreciated, but not in a desperate way.

The next example of how to re-attract your ex is...

3. Use humor to make her smile, laugh, and feel happy to be interacting with you

[image: Use humor to make her feel good around you]

For example: If she asks you, "What have you been up to?" you can jokingly say, "Oh, nothing. I've just been sitting here by the phone for the past four days waiting for you to call. I haven't eaten or slept." Then just laugh.

She's then going to most likely laugh, and she's going to know that you're joking, and you can add in, "I've also grown a beard while I've been waiting for you to call. I can finally shave it now that you've called me. It was getting pretty long."

The point of talking to her like that is when you use humor to make a woman laugh, and smile, and feel good when interacting with you, it gets rid of her focus on the negatives.

The negatives of the relationship don't seem as important anymore because she is feeling good around you.

When she interacts with you now, she can laugh, and smile, and feel good, and she's not feeling tense or awkward or weird around you. It just feels comfortable, and happy, and positive.

Focus on using humor, but don't go overboard with it. Just add it in to your interactions with her.

Get her laughing and smiling because it just relaxes the vibe between you and her, where she is feeling attracted to you, and is open to interacting with you.

4. Get her to forgive your past mistakes, so she will allow herself to feel attracted to the new you

[image: Get her to forgive your past mistakes]

When a guy is trying to get his woman back, he will often ask, "Can you forgive me?" sort of thing.

Sometimes a woman will just say it for the sake of saying it, "Yeah, I forgive you," but she won't really forgive him. She's just saying it.

To allow her to feel attracted to the new version of you, you have to get her to forgive you for real. How? Get her to forgive you for her own benefit.

Tell her that if she forgives you, it's going to make her feel better about herself. (This is actually true).

It's going to make her have less baggage or no baggage when she goes into a future relationship, and it's going to allow her to look back in a positive way on the relationship that you and her had rather than focusing on the negatives, and feeling bad about it.

Once you've told her that, ask her, "Can you forgive me? Are you able to forgive me and let that go, so you can feel better about it, I can feel better about it, and we can be mature about this, rather than being immature and holding onto grudges, and holding onto negativity, and going over problems and issues from the past again and again?"

If you can get her to that point where she really does forgive you, it then allows her to start looking at the new you, because she's drawn a line in the sand with the forgiveness, and the old you is the guy that made all those mistakes.

The new you is the guy who is no longer like that, and she can start to look at you as being the new version of you.

When you are saying and doing things to actively make her feel attracted, she's no longer holding onto the old version of you as much as she used to. That then allows her to have more feelings for you, such as respect, attraction, and love.

5. Don't look at other guys as being competition for her

Whether guys like this fact of nature or not, it is true, and that is women are more attracted to alpha males than any other type of guy.

To make your ex see you as being alpha, you must not look at any other guy as being competition to you.

This isn't about being a bad boy, a jerk, an asshole, an arrogant guy, and walking around saying, "Oh, I'm so good. Every other guy is crap. No one's like me," sort of thing, and really going on and on about it.

It's just a very simple alpha male mindset, and you don't have to be a bad guy or a bad boy to have that mindset.

The good guy alpha male approach to life is to see yourself as the best guy out there, while also being respectful and considerate of others.

The bad boy alpha male approach to life is to be selfish, mean, hurtful, and look down on others. Yet, you don't need to be like that to have an alpha male mindset.

You can still be the good guy that you are, so don't look at other guys as being competition for her. See yourself as the alpha male.

See yourself as being the best guy out there, but also be respectful and considerate towards others. Continue to be the good guy that you are, but just believe in yourself and your attractiveness to her and other women.

Note: When you believe in yourself and your attractiveness to women, it naturally and automatically makes women feel attracted to you because women are naturally attracted to confidence and alpha male thinking in men.

When your ex picks up on your calm, relaxed alpha male mindset, she will naturally feel respect and attraction for you.

She won't be able to stop it. It's an automatic reaction that women have. It's a natural attraction, and women cannot turn it off. Women naturally feel respect and attraction for alpha males.

Getting Her Back

[image: Getting her back]

Okay, so I hope you've enjoyed this post, and learned something from it.

If you're looking for a step-by-step solution to get your ex back, then I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

When you use the techniques from Get Your Ex Back: Super System, not only will you be able to get her respect and attraction back, but you'll get her to fall back in love with you again.

Re-attracting your ex is actually a very easy thing to do when you know what to do. If you don't know what to say or do to make her feel attracted to you again, then getting her back is a very difficult thing to do.

Some guys try to get their woman back by begging, and pleading, and trying to explain to her that things will be different now, and trying to convince her that he really has changed, but that really doesn't matter to her.

What works to get a woman back is when you actively make her have feelings for you again (e.g. feelings such as respect, attraction, and love). That is what matters.

If you're not actively making her have feelings for you again, then she's not going to care about what you've got to say about how the relationship could be or how you've changed.

If you want to get her back for real, you've got to actively make her have feelings for you again.

Don't waste time ignoring her.

Don't waste energy trying to convince her.

Just start actively triggering her feelings of respect, attraction, and love.

It's very easy to do, and it's an automatic reaction that she will have once you start doing it.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

7 Simple Rules For Getting Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy is trying to get a woman back, he will often make a lot of mistakes that make the whole ex back process frustrating, disheartening and annoying.

It's really sad when you're trying to get back the woman that you love, you really care about her, you really know you can do it differently this time and make the relationship better.

You're trying to let her see that and you're trying to explain it to her, but she is not opening up to you.

She is remaining closed off, she is ignoring you and she just doesn't care.

If you are at that point with her and she just isn't interested in having a relationship with you again, here are seven simple rules that you need to follow to get her back.

1. Actively re-attract her rather than ignoring her

[image: Hopefully she will come running back if I ignore her]

When trying to get an ex back, a lot of guys make the mistake of ignoring her, hoping that it will make her miss him, and she'll come running back.

She'll forget all about the problems in the relationship, and she'll just want to get back with him.

She'll forgive him because she misses him so much, but the problem with that is that it rarely works.

It only works when a woman really loves the guy and she does feel attracted to him, she does respect him, and when he stops contacting her after they break up, she then feels the pain of not having him in her life.

However, if a woman breaks up with a guy and she doesn't have feelings for him, she's at the point where she resents him, she doesn't feel much respect for him, etc., then she's not really going to worry so much when he doesn't contact her.

She's not going to really feel much pain of not having a guy in her life that she doesn't have much feelings for.

She might get a bit curious at some point and contact him to see if he's still missing her. If he is, then she realizes that he is using that no-contact rule that people talk about on the Internet, and then she loses even more respect for him as a result.

So what you need to do if you want to get her back is you need to actively re-attract her.

You can actively re-attract her via text, on phone calls, and in person.

For example: A guy got dumped by a woman because he was too insecure in a relationship. Maybe he was jealous, he was emotionally sensitive, he was clingy, he was controlling, etc.

When he interacts with her from now on, he needs to allow her to experience the new and improved version of himself that is no longer insecure. He's emotionally strong now.

Whatever she says to him, how she is treating him, how she is testing him, how she is behaving, she will notice that he now always responds in an emotionally strong way. He is not the insecure guy that he used to be.

That is one way of actively re-attracting her. It is not the only way to re-attract her, but for a lot of guys that example really does apply because most guys who get dumped, did get to a point where they were insecure with her.

As you may now know after getting dumped by your woman, insecurity is a real turn off for women. Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength of men, and turned off by the emotional weakness.

If a man is emotionally strong, he is going to have confidence, high self-esteem, he is going to be self-assured, he is going to be determined to succeed, he is going to be assertive, etc.

If a man is emotionally weak, he is going to be insecure, he is going to be self-doubting, he is going to have low self-esteem, he is going to lack determination to succeed, and he might even be a bit passive.

Whenever you interact with your ex from now, make sure that you let her see, feel and experience your emotional strength. The more you do that, the more naturally attracted to you she will feel.

2. Don't beg, plead or try to convince her to give you another chance

[image: Begging for another chance]

This is a very common mistake that guys make, so if you have made this mistake, don't worry about it.

It's not the end of the world.

It's not a fatal mistake that you can't recover from.

The way to look at it is to understand that we all make mistakes in life, and what separates great men from not so great men is when a man can learn from his experiences, and become a better man as a result.

If you begged and pleaded when she was breaking up with you, and you can now look back at that and think, "Well, that was pretty silly. I was a little bit of a wimp there. I shouldn't have done that," then you are a better man now.

You've learned from your experience.

So don't be ashamed of it, don't be embraced about it, and don't keep apologizing for it. It is what it is. You made a mistake, but you're a better man now, you're a stronger man now, you're a wiser man now.

3. Don't ask for forgiveness if you haven't changed anything yet or if you don't even know how to change

[image: Please I'm begging you]

Some guys make the mistake of asking their woman for forgiveness before they've changed anything.

“Please, forgive me. Just give me another chance. I promise I won’t be doing that stuff anymore. I really care about you. Please just forgive me. Give me another chance.”

Yet, if a woman can see that he doesn’t even know what he needs him to change, she’s not going to believe him. She’s not going to really forgive him.

Likewise, if she can see then that he hasn’t already changed, then she can see that it’s an empty promise that he’s making. He’s saying that things are going to be different, but she’s not seeing any of those changes and usually won’t be willing to believe that he will change.

If you want her to forgive you for real, you need to understand some of her real reasons for breaking up with you.

For example: Sometimes a woman will break up with a guy, and she will say, “I need space. I need time for myself. I need to find myself. I don’t want to be in a relationship anymore,” etc., but that is not the real reason why she is breaking up with him.

One of the real reasons why a woman will lose respect and attraction for a guy and fall out of love with him, and then want to break up with him, is that she will see that he’s just not enough of a man for her at this point of his life.

What that means is that when she interacts with him, when she is around him, she is able to potentially push him around, he is emotionally sensitive around her, he isn’t dominant enough, she doesn’t feel girly and feminine enough around him, etc.

So, if a guy has made that mistake and he’s asking for forgiveness and he doesn’t even know what the problem is, she is not going to give him the forgiveness.

She’s not going to forgive him and take him back because she can see that he doesn’t even understand what her real reason for breaking up with him is.

By the way, before I continue on with the rest of this video, I just want to point out that in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I explain more than 70 of the real reasons why a woman will break up with a guy.

It’s only when you understand the reasons that apply to you, that you can then make the right changes that actually matter to her. If you try to get her back offering things that don’t even matter to her, she is just going to keep saying no to you.

4. Only text her to get on a phone call or to spark some attraction

[image: Mistakes to avoid when texting your ex after breaking up]

A classic mistake that guys make these days when they get broken up with by a woman is to text the crap out of her, just texting her about all sorts of stuff, “I am sorry” or “I miss you so much. Please reply to me!” or “Please understand where I am coming from,” as he tries to explain himself to her.

When all of that is not working, a guy will then sometimes pretend to be a friend and just say, “Hey, how was your day?” and talk about her life, talk about his life, but it just doesn’t go anywhere.

The reason why it doesn’t go anywhere is that it doesn’t solve any of the core problems in the relationship. It doesn’t make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

So what I advise when guys are getting women back is that you should only text her if the point of the text is to get her on an actual phone call or if you are going to spark some attraction.

An example of sparking attraction via text is to get her laughing and smiling. Joke around with her a little bit rather than being serious, and get her to laugh and smile, and enjoy texting with you.

However, don't do that for too long.

There is only so much laughing and smiling that can go on before she starts to realize that she is feeling attracted to you, and then she starts to close up.

You've got to get to the point where you get her on a phone call and you get her to meet up with you.

Then, when you meet up with her in person, you really make her feel a lot of respect and attraction for you, and you get the relationship back together.

5. Don't be afraid of telling her that you love her or miss her

When I recommend that you don't be afraid to tell her that you love her or miss her, I'm not suggesting that you say that in a needy, desperate, insecure type of way.

It's not about saying, "I love you, I miss you. My life is hopeless without you. Please, please," that sort of stuff.

If she asks you, "Do you miss me or do you love me," you say in a masculine, matter-of-fact way, "Yeah, of course I love you. Of course I miss you."

You own it, you are not afraid of it.

That masculine way of approaching her (i.e. you own what you feel and don't feel afraid to admit it, but also don't get all soppy and wimpy about it) gets respect and attraction from a woman.

Yet, when a guy "ums" and "ahs" when a woman asks him, "Do you still love me? Do you miss me?" and he then starts saying, "I don't know. Maybe, I'm not sure. Don't ask me that. It will hurt me to talk about these sort of things," it doesn't make a woman to feel respect and attraction for him.

If you want her to feel some respect and attraction for you, just own who you are, own how you're feeling, but don't be a wimp about it.

I am not saying, "I love you!!! I miss you!!! I think about you all the time!!!" It's just a matter-of-fact, masculine type of way. "Yeah, of course I love you. Of course I miss you."

One of the reasons why it's important to do that in addition to making her feel respect and attraction is that if you do lie about it, she can catch you out in a lie very easily.

For example: If a woman asks her ex-boyfriend, fianc  or husband, "Do you still love me? Do you still miss me?" and he says, "No," she can then test him and she can catch him out in a lie by saying, "Oh...well, I miss you. I think I still love you."

Then she sees that he jumps all over it, and he's excited, and he says, "I miss you too. I love you too," sort of thing. She realizes, "Okay, he was lying to me," and she loses even more respect and attraction for him as a result.

6. Don't feel as though you're not allowed to make her feel attracted to you anymore

A lot of the guys that I help to get a woman back, they are often at a point where they don't feel it's their place to flirt with her anymore, joke around or make her feel attracted.

Instead, a guy will act like more of a friend or acts really innocent and platonic around her.

If you want her to respect you and her to feel natural attraction for you, don't be afraid of actively making her feel attracted to you.

It is your place.

You are allowed to do that.

There is nothing wrong about it at all.

You are not doing anything wrong by being a confident, loving man, and making her feel some attraction in a moment when you interact with her.

There is nothing wrong with that.

In fact, there is everything right with that.

She is going to feel good, and you're going to feel good.

That then is going to bring her guard down and make her more open to interacting with you again, meeting up with you in person, getting intimate with you again, and getting back together.

7. Stop saying and doing things that are turning her off

When I help guys to get their women back via my phone coaching service, for example, I often hear examples of what a guy has been saying and doing.

After the break up, there is the begging and pleading, the endless convincing and trying to explain to her that things will be different, being insecure around her, being afraid to flirt with her, being hesitant, being wimpy, being closed up emotionally, etc.

If you are saying and doing things that are turning her off, you can't expect her to feel like she wants to get back with you.

If you want to get her back, you've got to start saying and doing things that actively trigger her feelings of respect, attraction, and love for you.

When you do that, her guard will naturally come down, and she will naturally feel attracted to you.

Attraction is a natural, automatic reaction that humans have to each other.

When a woman displays traits that we feel attracted to, we don't have to think about it. We just feel attracted to her.

Likewise, when you display traits that are naturally attractive to women, they don't have to think about it. It just happens automatically.

With your ex, when she is feeling attracted to you, she might close up a little bit and try to stop herself from having feelings for you again, but she won't be able to turn it off.

She might begin wondering, "Why am I feeling this for him all of a sudden?" and she may start to feel confused, but she's not going to be able to stop it.

Attraction is an automatic reaction, and you can make your ex feel respect, attraction and love for you again regardless of how turned off you she is today.

You can begin triggering her feelings of respect, attraction and love you and then confidently guide her back into a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Back Together With an Ex Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to get back together with your ex basically comes down to the following three things.

1. Apologize for your mistakes and let her see that you've already changed or improved the things that she broke up with you for (e.g. insecurity, lack of ambition, taking her for granted).
2. Switch your focus to making her have some feelings for you (e.g. making her feel attracted to you by using humor, flirting, making her feel girly and feminine around you, etc).
3. Guide her back into a relationship.

Of course, if you're looking for advice on how to get back together with your ex, you've most likely already apologized to her, but have you done the following two steps above?

Have you actually showed her that you've improved and changed? Have you switched your focus to begin making her have feelings for you, feelings like respect, attraction and love? Have you actually been doing that?

[image: Will my ex ever want me back?]

A lot of guys who are trying to get their woman back are at a point where they're saying, "She's not opening up to me. She's not listening to what I've got to say. I'm trying to get her to see that things will be different," but that isn't what works when getting a woman back.

You've got to actively make her have some feelings for you again.

You've got to make her feel respect, attraction and love for you again, otherwise, she just doesn't care about what you're saying or how you're promising that things will be different this time.

She doesn't care that you really love her and you really care about her because from her perspective, she doesn't have strong enough feelings for you.

So, if you want her back, you must switch your focus to actively make her have feelings for you again.

Reactivating Her Dead Feelings

[image: Getting back with your ex girlfriend]

When I help guys to get back together with their ex-girlfriend, fiancée or wife, a guy will often be at the point where he's saying that his ex doesn't have feelings for him anymore.

Your woman might have even said to you that she doesn't have feelings for you anymore, it's over, it's too late, she can't change how she feels, etc.

So, at this point where you're trying to get back together with your ex, you've most likely already tried to make her have feelings for you again, but if you are making the mistake that most guys make, you'll be trying to achieve that by telling her how much you care, apologizing over and over again, being extra nice to her, etc.

Yet, that isn't what makes a woman have feelings for her ex guy again.

What is going to make her have feelings for you again is when you stop saying and doing the types of things that have been turning her off, the types of things that have led to the breakup, and that have caused her to feel less respect, attraction, and love for you after the breakup.

For example: Leading up the break up, some guys will be turning their woman off by being insecure, taking her for granted, smothering her emotionally, etc.

After the breakup, a guy might start being needy, desperate, begging, pleading, apologizing and some guys might even go as far as to cry to their woman.

As you may know by now, none of those things will make a woman think, "Wow, I want to get back with him!"

So, what is an example of something that will make her have a renewed sense of respect and attraction for a guy?

One example is where a guy has been insecure in a relationship. Maybe he was clingy, jealous, controlling, he was emotionally sensitive, etc.

When he then interacts with his ex via text, on a phone call, and in person from now on, he needs to be able to show her that he's no longer like that anymore.

It's not about telling her, "Hey, I've changed. I used to be emotionally weak and needy, and now I've changed." She's just going to be thinking, "Yeah. Well, good for you."

The only thing that matters is her feelings, and the only way to get her to care is to actively make her have feelings for you when you interact with her.

When you're interacting with her via text, on a phone call, and in person, you can then show her by the way that you're talking, feeling, thinking, behaving, moving, responding to her, etc., that real changes have been made.

Of course, just showing her that doesn't get the relationship back together; it just allows her to have a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When she feels a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, she automatically starts to look at you differently.

She starts to feel differently about the relationship and the possibility of getting back together.

However, if you don't actively make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, then don't even worry about trying to get her back because she's just going to keep saying no to you.

If your overall approach to getting her back is all about you loving her, wanting her and needing her, she just not going to care.

It's got to be about her having some feelings for you.

To get back together with an ex girlfriend, you've got to be able to make her feel SOMETHING when she interacts with you from now on.

What matters is that you're able to make her feel differently. You're able to make her feel the type of respect, attraction, and love that will make her want to consider getting back with you again.

When you make her feel that way, a woman doesn't necessarily immediately say, "Oh, I want to get back with you," because sometimes she's a little bit confused or thinks, "What will other people think? I told him that I wanted to break up with him, and now having feelings for him. What should I do?"

That's why you need to be confident as you guide her back into a relationship. You need to know what to do at each step, rather than messing up and losing confidence as you go through the ex back process.

If you are currently going through the process of trying to get back together with your ex girlfriend and you're confused about what to do, I recommend that you watch my program.

It's called Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

It's 10 hours of video, and by the end of watching the 10 hours of video, you'll be ready to contact her; get her to forgive you; get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you; meet up with you in person; feel even more respect, attraction, and love for you again; and then follow your lead as you guide her back into an intimate relationship with you.

She Isn't Going to Help You

Another thing to point out about how to get back together with your ex is that you can't expect her to help you by telling you what you need to do.

A lot of guys that I help to get back together with their ex girlfriend (fiance or wife) have made the mistake of continually asking her things like, "What do you need me to do? What do you want me to do? What should I change? What is the problem? Please tell me. Please explain how can I make you happy? What am I doing wrong?"

They are all very valid questions and are very important questions that you need the answer to, but she doesn't want to give you that answer because a woman does not want to take on the role as a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man.

She doesn't want to be in a relationship with a guy where he needs her to be his teacher or to take care of him like a mother would take care of a boy or a big sister would look after her little brother. She doesn't want to be in that position.

She wants to be able to look up to you, and respect you as her man. The only way for you to be able to do that is for you to figure it out on your own or to get someone like me to help you.

If you don't have other men in your life who are willing, and able, and capable of teaching you how to be the type of man that she needs you to be, then I'll recommend that you watch my program.

I don't recommend that you ask her questions and seek her help to explain what you need to say, do or change to get her back. If you try that approach with her, she's just going to get pissed off and annoyed and get even more turned off by you.

Women do not want to be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man. They want a ready made man or a man who has the ability to improve, change and grow quickly.

Getting Back Together With Her

[image: Making your ex girlfriend have feelings for you again]

To close up here, I want to make it clear that the only real way to make her want to get back together with you is to actively make her have some feelings for you again.

It's got to be about her having feelings for you rather than you telling her how much feelings you have for her, and how important this is to you, and how much you care, and how things will be different this time.

What makes a difference is when you create that spark in her again, when you trigger her feelings for you again; feelings like respect, attraction, and love.

When that starts to happen, she starts to look at you differently.

She starts to think differently.

She starts to talk to you differently.

She starts to make different decisions.

She becomes open to meeting up with you.

She becomes open to hugging you, kissing you, having sex with you, and starting the relationship again.

So my question to you now is, “Are you ready to get her back? Do you know what you need to say and do to get her back at each step of the process?”

If you don’t know what to do, you can either continue watching my free videos which have loads of helpful advice or you can get right into it and follow a step-by-step program by watching Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

Guys get back together with women every day all over the world, and you can do it, too.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Say When Your Girlfriend Says She Misses You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What to say when your girlfriend says she misses you depends on why she is saying it.

Sometimes women say it and don't mean it, whereas other times it has a very specific meaning.

For example: Here are 4 common reasons why a girlfriend might say that she misses you:

1. You've recently broken up and she's regretting it. She wants to get back together and it's her way of letting you know that she's open to meeting up with you to see if you can hook up again.
2. You've just started dating and she's really crazy about you. She thinks you're an awesome guy and she wants to make it clear to you that she's interested in you and likes getting attention from you (e.g. when you're texting her, calling her, seeing her on a regular basis).
3. She's feeling insecure in the relationship because she's not getting to spend enough time with you (e.g. you have a long distance relationship, your schedules don't coincide so you can't see each other very often), and she wants to check whether you miss her too.
4. She feels that you're drifting apart in the relationship and it's her way of trying to let you know that she's not feeling happy about it.

Note: An ex saying that she misses you is sometimes what is known as a "breadcrumb," where she is trying to get you back

Watch this for more info...

So, here's what to say when your girlfriend says she misses you, depending on which reason rings true for you...

1. You've Recently Broken Up

[image: What to say when your girlfriend says that she misses you]

If you and your girlfriend have recently broken up and she says she misses you, this could be her way of letting you know that she's willing to give the relationship another chance.

Of course, she could also just be testing to see how much you're missing her so that she can feel better about herself.

As a man, the best approach to take relationships is to be fearless with love and not be afraid to say, "I miss you too" if you do.

Just remember: You don't lose any power in a relationship unless you think you do.

If you think that saying, "I miss you too" doesn't make you lose any power, then it won't.

Why? Your girlfriend will sense that you are confident and don't feel like you need to lie to gain any power over her.

She will sense that you already feel empowered and don't need to put on an act (e.g. pretend that you don't miss her) to hopefully gain some power in the situation.

On the other hand, if you think that saying, "I miss you too" will make you seem weak, desperate or unattractive, then it will.

Why? She will be able to pick up on your insecurity as she talks to you further. She will sense that you're worried about saying that you miss her because it might make you look weak.

So, what will she do?

Well, if she's like most women, she will try to get emotional revenge on you (for not saying that you miss her too), by talking about other guys who like her or saying that she likes a new guy.

In other words, she will play games with you because you are playing games with her.

If you want to be a man in this life, you should always speak directly in relationships by being fearless with love.

By the wayâ€¦

Being fearless with love doesn't mean that you start acting like an emotional wussy and saying things like, "Oh, I miss you tooâ€¦my life is worthless without youâ€¦you mean everything to meâ€¦I love you more than I love myself. I think about you 24/7."

That's not what women want.

A woman wants you to love her, want her and miss her, but not NEED her.

Big difference.

There's nothing wrong with loving a woman, wanting her and missing her, but the moment you start needing her for your emotional security and stability is the moment she will lose attraction and respect for you.

A woman doesn't want to be responsible for your emotional strength.

She wants you to be a strong man with or without her approval, love, support or reassurance.

After you tell her that you miss her too, you also need to make her feel some respect and attraction for you for other reasons (e.g. get her laughing and smiling while talking to you, turn a cold, distant conversation into a warm, connected one).

Her guard will then come down and she will open herself up to feeling love for you again.

From there, you need to get her to agree to a meet up.

When you see her in person, you have to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for you.

Of course, if you don't want to get back together with your girlfriend, it's pointless worrying about what to say to your girlfriend when she says she misses you.

You don't need to be cruel or unkind towards her, but you also shouldn't fall into the trap of saying, "I miss you too," and giving her false hope, just because you're trying to be kind and not hurt her feelings.

If you don't want her back, just let her go and get on with meeting and having sex with other beautiful women.

If you do want her back, then admit that you miss her (but in a confident, relaxed manner) and then meet up with her in person to get the relationship back together.

2. You've Just Started Dating

If you and your girlfriend have only been dating for a short time and she says she misses you, it's usually her way of telling you that she likes you and wants to see more of you.

For example: She's hoping that by saying she misses you, you will pick up on how much she likes you and make an effort to call her and see her more often.

She's basically making sure that you know that she's interested in you and would like to see where the relationship can go in the long-term.

In a situation like this, it's up to you to maintain and grow the respect and attraction she is clearly feeling for you, by continuing to display the types of personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, charisma, sense of humor, making her feel feminine and girly in contrast to your masculine vibe).

As long as you keep making her feel the way she wants to feel, your relationship will only get stronger and better over time.

Watch this video to understand how it works!

A woman's attraction for you is something that needs to be taken care of and built on over time.

For example: Just because a woman says that she misses you now, it doesn't mean that she will continue feeling that way if you start saying and doing unattractive things.

When a guy's new girlfriend says that she misses him, he will often make the mistake of taking that as a sign that he should see her or contact her everyday to prevent her from missing him.

So, he stops paying attention to his hobbies, ignores his friends and essentially puts his entire focus on her.

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that many women like having a new boyfriend who is a bit of a challenge to keep interested.

Why? Watch this video for more info!

To be successful at keeping a relationship together, you have to understand what type of attraction experience your girlfriend wants.

For example: Some women will like having to chase their boyfriend's attention sometimes, rather than him always giving it to her without her having to do anything to impress him.

Yet, if the boyfriend goes too far and ignores her too much or treats her badly, she will then stop feeling the need to chase him and will want to make herself feel good by getting other guys interested in her.

As you can see, keeping a woman happy in a relationship is not as simple as ignoring her or being difficult to impress.

You've got to get the balance right by understanding the kind of attraction experience that makes your girlfriend truly happy to be with you.

Another reason why a girlfriend might say that she misses you is that!

3. Your Schedules Clash

When you have a busy schedule (e.g. you're studying really hard, working in a different city or town from your girlfriend, working shifts that don't coincide with hers), it's only natural that your girlfriend will feel as though she's not spending enough time with you.

When your girlfriend says she misses you under these circumstances, it could simply be because she's feeling insecure about your feelings for her.

It could be her way of trying to find out if you miss her too and still value your relationship with her, or if you've met other women and are losing interest in her.

If your schedule and lifestyle has been keeping you apart from your girlfriend, a good way to respond when she says she misses you is by saying something like, "I really miss you too. I know things have been really hectic lately, but I hope to see you soon so that we can spend some quality time together. I'll chat to you again in the next couple of days and make arrangements so that we can meet up."

In this way, you are letting her know that you care for her, and no matter how busy you are with other things, making time to see her is also important to you.

As long as you keep building on her respect and attraction for you, her feelings for you will grow.

She will be supportive of your busy schedule because she will see that you are a man who is not afraid to move through the levels of life and make things happen.

Women instinctively know that it's best to stick with a man who makes progress in life and achieves his goals, rather than hanging around with a guy who only wants to spend time with them.

4. You're Drifting Apart

If a woman is saying, "I miss you" to her boyfriend and they are seeing each other every day, or even living together, this is a sign of deeper problems in the relationship.

Somewhere along the way, her boyfriend may have become neglectful of her needs, and telling him she misses him is her way of letting him know that she's not feeling connected to him like she used to.

So, if your girlfriend is telling you she misses you and there are no external reasons why this could be happening (e.g. any of the reasons mentioned above), then she is feeling neglected, unloved and unappreciated by you.

If you don't identify the real reasons why she is feeling like that, she will eventually begin to lose respect and attraction for you and she will then want to break up with you.

If you don't want that to happen, you have to identify the real reasons for her unhappiness.

For example, ask yourself these questions:

- Have I been taking her for granted (e.g. expecting her to do everything in the home, expecting her to run errands for me)?
- Have I broken my promises to her too many times (e.g. canceled dates at the last minute, not going with her to a party / wedding after you said I would)?

- Have I stopped reaching for my true potential as a man (e.g. being stuck in a dead-end job, playing video games and not doing anything else)?
- Have I become too clingy and needy in the relationship (e.g. feeling jealous when she does something without me, giving up my friends and interests to spend all of my time with her)?
- Have I allowed her to wear the pants in the relationship (e.g. allow her to make all the decisions, let her have her way in everything)?

If any of the above reasons ring true for you, your girlfriend might be saying that she misses you now, but if you don't make some adjustments to your behavior, her feelings of respect, attraction and love will slowly begin to fade.

Actions Speak Louder Than Words

No matter what your situation, you can begin to make your girlfriend feel a lot of respect, attraction and love for you as a man today, or you can make her feel insecure and unloved.

The choice really is yours.

So, if you want to be in a relationship with her, simply focus on building her on her feelings for you and she will naturally want to be with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Fastest Way to Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The fastest way to get your ex back is to actively make her have some feelings for you again.

Three examples of feelings are attraction, respect and love.

In most cases, a guy can make his ex-woman have feelings for him again immediately, or within a few days of trying.

How can he do that? He can actively re-spark some of her feelings by email, text, social media, on a phone call, or in person.

Once you have re-sparked your ex's feelings for you, she will then relax her guard and begin to feel drawn to you.

She suddenly has feelings for you again and no matter how hard she tries to fight it, she can't ignore the fact that she is feeling drawn to you now. She wants to be around you, she wants to see you, she wants to be in your arms again.

At that point you simply need to guide her through the rest of the ex back process and she will be yours once again.

Where most guys go wrong, is that they either go inactive and they ignore her in the hopes that she comes running back, or the guy continues to talk to her in ways that are unattractive to her.

[image: Hopefully she will come running back if I ignore her]

For example: If a woman says to a guy, "I don't want to be with you anymore," a guy will usually then beg and plead with her and say things like, "Please give me another chance," or he'll try to ask her why, "Please tell me why you're breaking up with me. Tell me what I need to do, I'll do anything, I'll change anything."

But the thing is, neither of those approaches work.

Begging and pleading doesn't work because women aren't attracted to the emotional weakness of men.

Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men and turned off by emotional weakness, so in moments like that, it simply makes her have even less feelings for him.

[image: Why won't you tell me what to do? I'll do anything you want]

As for asking her why she's breaking up with you, that doesn't help either because a woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man.

If she teaches her guy how to be the man that she needs now, she fears that he will need her to teach him again in the future.

If that keeps happening time and time again, she will feel like she has to take care of him, or as though she is his big sister, mother, or teacher in life.

She wants him to figure out how to be a man without her help, rather than asking her to tell him what he needs to change to make her happy.

This is why some guys will waste months trying to ask a woman for another chance, when she just isn't interested because he doesn't know how to make her have feelings for him anymore.

Likewise, some guys will waste weeks or months ignoring their ex in the hope that she comes back, but if she doesn't have feelings for him, she's not going to feel like she's missing out on much, so she'll usually just move on.

Actively Make Her Have Feelings For You Again

[image: Actively re-attract her and get her back]

The fastest way to get her back is to be active, rather than inactive.

By active I mean that you're actively making her have feelings for you again, rather than ignoring her and hoping that it does the trick.

A lot of guys come to me for advice on how to get their ex back, after they'd been ignoring their woman for 30 or 60 days and they come to me and ask, "Why isn't it working, Dan? Why isn't my woman running back to me?" and the reason why is that ignoring a woman just doesn't work in most cases.

I've only seen that approach work in about 20% of cases, and when it does work, the woman comes back temporarily, and then she sees that the guy hasn't changed, and she breaks up with him again.

So, not only has the guy lost a lot of time where he's been ignoring her and she's been moving on without him, but if he does get another chance with her, she breaks up with him because she sees that he really just hasn't changed.

[image: A woman who has had enough of her boyfriend, fiancé or husband]

He's still stuck at the same level that he was at when she broke up with him, and he's just not able to make her have the type of feelings that she wants to feel.

On the other hand, when you actively make your ex have feelings for you again, she then starts to wonder, "Why do I miss him all of a sudden? Why am I worried about losing him now?" because you have successfully flicked her feelings back on, you flicked that switch, you've re-sparked her feelings.

From that moment onwards, you just need to continue saying and doing the types of things that are going to make her have feelings for you again rather than continuing to say and do the types of things that were turning her off in the past, or that have been turning her off since the breakup.

Stop Turning Her Off and Start Turning Her On

During or after a break up, some guys turn their woman off further by:

1. Trying to convince her to give him another chance even though he doesn't know how to make her have feelings for him again.
2. Begging or pleading for another chance in the hope that she takes pity on him.
3. Displaying emotional weakness or being insecure.
4. Asking her to tell him what he needs to change to make her happy.
5. Being extra nice to her in the hope that she sees how much he cares and then changes her mind.
A woman doesn't really care how much a guy cares if she doesn't have feelings for him. He needs to make her have some feelings for him first, otherwise she's just not going to care how much he cares).

6. Constantly texting or messaging her about his feelings.
7. Apologizing about things that she doesn't really care about (e.g. a guy is apologizing for not treating her better during the relationship when what she really cares about is that he doesn't make her feel feminine enough around him. She feels more like a friend, she feels neutral, rather than feeling like his girl. So, when he apologizes about not treating her better, she doesn't really care about that and she's not going to tell him what she really wants him to do).
8. Showering her with gifts.
9. Being afraid to flirt with her or joke around with her during conversations and instead just being neutral, polite, cautious and hesitant about what he says or does.
10. Lacking confidence around her.

None of those things make her have feelings for you again because they're not the type of things that turn a woman on and make a woman want to get back with a guy.

However, when you create a spark of attraction, she then starts to feel intrigued.

She starts to wonder, "Why am I feeling this way?" and she wants to text you, she wants to speak to you on the phone, she wants to look at you on social media, and she wants to see you in person.

When you trigger her feelings of attraction for you again, it makes the negatives of your relationship seem less important, because she naturally feels drawn to you, in a way that feels good to her.

She can't stop herself from wanting to interact with you via text, on the phone and in person, even though she previously thought that she was over you. She feels drawn to you, and from there you can build on that spark of attraction and show her that things really are different now.

Without sparking her feelings of attraction for you again, it's going to be very difficult for you to get her back no matter what you try to do.

For example: If a guy tries to ignore his ex in the hope that she comes running back, she's not going to care if he's ignoring her if she doesn't feel attracted to him or doesn't have feelings for him.

She's going to be thinking, "Yeah, good for you...you're ignoring me...I'm moving on, I'm feeling great. Bye!"

Yet, if he was to spark her feelings of attraction and actively make her have some feelings for him again, and then he didn't contact her for a couple of days, that's a different story. Then she's going to start to miss him.

Don't Ignore Her For More Than 7 Days

When I've helped guys to successfully get their woman back, what I found is that a guy doesn't need to use any more than 3-7 days of space.

Anything more than that and it's usually a huge waste of time.

As long as you are sparking her feelings for you again, even just a day or two without her hearing from you will often result in a message, either on social media, on your phone, or she'll call you, she'll click 'like' on something, she'll send you an email, she'll suddenly show up where you are, etc.

Actively making her have feelings for you again is so important.

When a guy is trying to beg and plead with his ex and say, "Please give me another chance," or he's asking her, “Please tell me why,” and she’s not feeling attracted to him, she doesn’t have feelings for him at that point, she not going to care.

It just doesn’t matter to her because she doesn’t have feelings for him.

If he’s trying really hard to reason with her and explain to her that he really can change, she’s usually just going to say something like, “Look, I know that you mean well but I’m sorry, I just don’t feel attracted to you anymore,” or “I don’t feel the same way anymore,” or “I need time apart,” or “I just don’t want to be in a relationship anymore.”

Essentially, what she’s saying is that she just doesn’t have feelings for him, and he doesn’t even know how to make her have feelings for him.

He’s just begging, pleading, convincing, asking, going on and on about the same old things, but it’s not triggering her feelings for him.

By the way, when I talk about attraction and making her have feelings for you again, a mistake that a lot of guys make is thinking about attraction in terms of the physical.

Guys will go and buy lots of new clothes and shoes and work out at the gym, and really work hard to add an extra centimeter to their biceps and maybe a little bit more definition on their abs or whatever, or lose a bit of weight, put on a bit of weight, etc.

However, if you are one of the guys who understands how a woman’s attraction really works, you will know that a woman’s attraction to a man’s physical appearance isn’t as powerful as her emotional attraction to him.

A woman’s emotional attraction to a guy is based on how he makes her feel by the way he talks, interacts with her, his body language, his attitude, the way he responds to her and reacts to her, etc.

It’s about who he is.

When she’s interacting with him, is she feeling good? Is she feeling turned on? Is she feeling like she can look up to him and respect him?

Or is she feeling turned off? Does she feel like she can’t really look up to him and respect him? Does she look down on him?

Does she feel like she’s emotionally stronger than him? Does she feel turned off in all those sorts of ways?

That is what really matters.

Emotional Attraction

If you are serious about getting your woman back, you must understand one thing...

Her emotional attraction for you is what she calls her feelings.

If she’s saying to you that she doesn’t have feelings for you right now, it means that the way that you’re talking to her, the way that you’re interacting with her, the way that you come across to her, doesn’t trigger those feelings (emotional attraction) inside of her.

Of course, that doesn’t mean that you can’t start to trigger those feelings (e.g. respect, attraction, love).

You can.

You can adjust the way that you're talking to her, you can make some changes and improvements to the way that you talk to her and interact with her. You can react differently to what she says and you can respond differently.

You can do that.

When you interact with her in ways that spark her feelings for you, everything changes.

The process of getting her back becomes really easy, because she is feeling open to you, she's feeling drawn to you, she likes interacting with you, she enjoys it, she feels good when she's interacting with you.

However, if you continue to interact with her in ways that turn her off, then getting her back is going to be a very difficult, if not impossible process for you.

She's just going to be saying to you, "Sorry, I don't have any feelings for you," because you're not saying and doing things that are making her have feelings for you.

If you don't know what to start saying and doing when you interact with her, then all of that information is provided in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

All of the examples of what to text her, what to email her, what to say to her on the phone, what to say to her in person, how to behave, how to pass her tests, how to get her to bring her guard down, how to get her to feel respect, attraction and love for you again, are included in the program.

By the way...

If your ex isn't currently talking to you, and won't respond to your texts, emails, or phone calls, don't worry about that. There are techniques that you can use prior to that point to get her to bring her guard down. All of that is explained in the Get Your Ex Back: Super System program.

I developed the program by helping more than 100 phone-coaching clients to get their woman back, so I know about all the problems that guys experience when trying to get a girlfriend, fiancé or wife back.

I know that most guys who are starting out are at a point where their woman doesn't want anything to do with them. It's not as simple as calling her up and saying, "Hey! Let's catch up," and then he re-attracts her.

Guys who are looking for help to get their woman back are usually at the point where they've screwed things up and the woman is saying, "Get away from me," or she's no longer responding to what he's saying or doing.

So, just know that I've got you covered there. I've got all those techniques for you.

My program has all of my best, proven to work examples of what to do to get her to bring her guard down, get her to text with you, get her to answer phone calls, get her to meet up with you, get her to bring her guard down, get her to forgive you, get her to feel respect and attraction for you, get her to fall in love with you again.

The Best Gift You Will Ever Give to Her

One final point that I want to make for you, is that you are actually going to be giving her a gift by getting her back, because the love, respect and attraction that she will feel for you will be beyond anything that she's experienced before.

You will open her eyes to the fact that falling back in love after a breakup is one of the most amazing feelings that she will ever experience in life.

When she feels more attracted to you than she ever has before, because you are now making her feel attracted in new and exciting ways, she will realize that her love for you is more powerful than she ever knew.

You will show her what true love really feels like.

When I hear back from guys who have used my techniques to get their ex back, I'm often told that the woman cried with joy when their relationship got back together, because she was so overwhelmed with how good she was feeling.

That is the power of actively making her have feelings for you again rather than wasting time ignoring her, or wasting energy to convince her to give you another chance by telling her how much you care.

When you spark her feelings for you again and then build on that, all of her walls come down and she literally wants to be back in your arms again.

Being held by you feels good.

It feels right.

She might be confused at first because she was certain that she wanted to break up with you, but her heart will be full of new feelings for you that she won't be able to ignore.

What she probably doesn't realize now is that falling back in love in you will be one of the best feelings that she's ever going to experience in life.

Of course, it's going to feel great for you too, but you are going to be giving her an unforgettable gift by getting her to fall back in love with you and allowing her to experience the true power of love.

You are going to make her have such strong feelings for you that she not only wants to get back together, but she doesn't want the relationship to break up again.

As you begin to make her have feelings for you again, her heart will start to fill up with new, exciting emotions and she will feel compelled to be around you.

You then simply need to guide her through the final steps of the process until she is back in your arms and feeling so happy to be with you again.

What a lot of guys don't know, is that getting a woman back after a breakup is an exciting, rewarding and fulfilling process for the man and the woman.

It feels good for both of them.

However, I just want to remind you though, that is only when you're making her have feelings for you again, when you're re-sparking her feelings and you're building on it.

If you are trying to get your ex back without even making her have feelings for you again, then it's going to be a really difficult process for you. It's going to be drawn out and it will be highly unlikely that you get her back.

On the other hand, when you focus on making her have feelings for you again and building on that, it becomes very easy and things just start to fall into place.

You guide her from one step to the next until she's back in your arms, telling you that she loves you again and she's feeling happy to be back together with you.

Are You Serious About Getting Her Back?

So, what are you going to do about your woman?

Are you going to just ignore her and hope that she comes running back?

Are you going to continue to try to convince her to give you another chance, even though you are not re-sparking her feelings for you?

Are you going to continue to ask her why? Are you going to try to be really nice to her in the hope that she takes pity on you, or are you actually going to make her have feelings for you again?

Are you going to re-spark her feelings and make her feel new and exciting emotions when she's interacting with you?

Are you going to give her the gift of seeing the true power of love (i.e. having the experience of falling back in love with a guy that she broke up with, he improved, he made her feel even more amazing than he's ever made her feel before, and she then gets to experience the true power of love)?

Other guys have done it, and you can do it too, so the question is, what are you going to do?

What are you going to do about her?

Are you going to ignore her? Are you going to hope that she comes running back by some magical reason?

Are you going to try to convince her, or are you going to actively make her have feelings for you again and give her the gift of falling back in love with the guy that she should be with?

Okay, so I hope this post has been helpful for you, and if you want to follow a simple, step-by-step process to get her back, go ahead and watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

It's 10 hours of video, and by the end of watching 10 hours of video, you will be ready to contact her, make her have feelings for you again, get the relationship back together and enjoy an even better relationship than you had before.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Text to Your Ex After a Break Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're wondering what to text your ex after a break up because you're hoping that if you say the right thing she'll give your relationship another chance, you're most-likely approaching the ex back process in the wrong way.

To get your ex to forgive you and be willing to take you back, you have to focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man when she interacts with you on a phone call and in person.

You can get a little bit of respect and attraction back via text, but the most powerful moments happen when you talk to her on the phone and interact with her in person.

Of course, if you are looking for some examples of what to text your ex after a break up, here's what I recommend:

1. Directly after the break up: "I just want to let you know that I accept the break. I love you and of course I'd be happy if we were together, but I will accept the break up and move on."
2. A week later: Try to call her and if she doesn't answer, send her this text, "Hey Jenny – I was just calling because I have something quick I wanted to ask you over the phone. I guess you are busy at the moment. I might try to call you another time." The quick thing that you wanted to ask her was to catch up in person. The full wording of how to get a meet up with your ex is provided in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System
3. A month later (if you haven't met up with her to get her back): "Love you."

With the third text message example above, you are simply saying, "Love you" because if she is missing you by then, she will text back.

Of course, if she isn't missing you, then you haven't been approaching the ex back process correctly.

If you want to get your ex back, you have to re-spark her feelings for you rather than just ignoring her and hoping that she misses you and wants you back.

Why? Watch this video!

As you will discover from the video above, ignoring your ex isn't going to achieve much if she doesn't currently have feelings for you.

It will sometimes cause an insecure woman to come running back, but if your ex doesn't want anything to do with you, she's not going to care if you ignore her and she's also not going to feel much when you text her.

Why You Shouldn't Use Text as Your Main Weapon to Get Her Back

Right now, your ex is most likely thinking of you in a negative way.

So, getting a text message from you will usually just reinforce all the negative thoughts and memories she's already having about you and your failed relationship.

For example: If a guy was behaving in a needy, clingy, insecure or jealous way during the relationship and then sends her a simple text like, â€œHi Cindy. I just wanted to ask how you are doing? Are you okay?â€ how do you think she will perceive it?

Will she be thinking, â€œOh, how sweet. My ex is being so nice and caring. I miss him so much, I just wish we could get back together again,â€ or might she instead think something like, â€œHere we go again! So annoying. Even now that weâ€™re broken up heâ€™s being needy and insecure. He cares about my feelingsâ€¦big deal. I bet heâ€™s only texting me to find out what Iâ€™m doing and who Iâ€™m with because heâ€™s a mess without me. I wish he would just leave me alone.â€

From his point of view, he is just being a friendly ex who is just checking to make sure sheâ€™s okay.

However, in her mind, she will assume that heâ€™s just up to his usual needy, insecure tricks and will then feel turned off by him.

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦!

In a text message, your ex has to guess at what tonality you are using and at your state of mind (e.g. are you feeling confident and positive, or are you being a needy, hurting guy).

In most cases, she is going to think in a negative light, which is why you shouldnâ€™t try using text as your main way of getting her back.

What should you do instead?

Get Her On a Phone Call and Let Her Hear and Experience Your Confidence Coming Through

[image: Attract her over the phone, rather than trying to convince her]

According to various studies by psychologists and social scientists, the communication between two humans is comprised of about 70-90% body language and tonality.

So, if you want to get your ex to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, the best way to do that (apart from meeting up with her in person) is to get her on a phone call so that you can shock her (in a positive way) out of the way she is thinking about you right now.

For example: If right now sheâ€™s thinking, â€œIâ€™m so glad heâ€™s out of my life,â€ you want her to feel attracted to you over the phone and begin thinking, â€œI think I made a mistake, I really miss him. I wonder if he would like to get back together again?â€

So, just pick up the phone and give her a call, get her to experience your confidence and make her laugh and feel good to be talking to you.

Then get her to agree to a meet up with you just one last time (donâ€™t worry, it wonâ€™t be if you use my attraction and persuasion techniques on her), where you can continue to regain her respect and attraction for you.

What should you do if your ex isnâ€™t answering your calls?

If you were calling her non-stop after the break up and sheâ€™s no longer answering your calls, make sure that you avoid the following mistakes:

1. Calling her when itâ€™s not convenient for her (e.g. during work or class, too early in the morning or late at night).

2. Calling her over and over again throughout the day (e.g. every 10 minutes or half an hour).
3. Texting her and asking her why she's not picking up the phone.

As mentioned earlier in this post, what you can do instead is:

1. Call when she's available.
2. Only call once and if she doesn't answer send her a quick text message saying something like, "Hey Kate. I just tried to give you a call because there's something I need to ask you. It looks like you're busy right now. I might try getting in touch some other time."
3. She will either call you back, or she will text you to ask what you want.
4. If she calls you back, go ahead and say and do the things that will get her feeling respect and attraction for you again (e.g. make her laugh, apologize for what happened between you) and then arrange a time to meet up with her.
5. If she sends you a text, don't text back, just call her again.
6. If she doesn't answer, leave it a few minutes and call again.
7. If she still doesn't answer, just send the emoticon with the tongue sticking out ☺ on its own.
8. If she doesn't reply to that, wait for a couple of days and try to call her again.
9. If she doesn't answer, send her this text, "Hey Kate, as mentioned above there's something quick I wanted to ask you over the phone. Can you chat for a minute now?"

Eventually she'll be so curious to find out what you want to ask her that she will answer your call. Then go ahead and do what you would do in step #4 (see above).

4 Mistakes to Avoid When You Text Your Ex After a Break Up

When texting your ex after a break up, make sure that you avoid these common mistakes!

1. Constantly apologizing to her via text message.

It's only natural for a guy to want to apologize to his ex for whatever happened to cause the break up.

However, apologies are best done face-to-face.

The second best way to do it is on a phone call, but it's nowhere near as powerful as looking her in the eyes and giving her a confident, relaxed, mature apology.

Nothing about a text message can convince your ex that you mean what you're saying if she can't see your face, read your body language and hear the sincerity in your voice.

It doesn't matter how many texts you send to her, nothing is as powerful as saying sorry in person.

If a guy (who was insecure in the relationship) apologizes to his ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) via text, it's possible that she may think, "What a wimp. He doesn't even have the balls to face me and say that in person. He has to hide behind a text message rather than face me like a man."

If you need to apologize, make sure you do it face-to-face when you meet up with her.

However, when you do apologize, say it in a confident, mature, sincere and relaxed manner. Don't apologize like you are groveling or sucking up to her or seeking pity.

Just relax, admit your mistakes like a man and say sorry for it.

Saying sorry to her isn't the way to get her back, but at least by saying it right, you will make her feel SOME respect and attraction for you again.

Regardless of how much you hurt your ex, she doesn't want you to turn into an emotional wuss who apologizes over and over again and tries to suck up to her.

She wants you to be a good, loving, respectful man, but she doesn't want you to get down on your knees and beg for forgiveness.

2. Lying about being with other women.

Sometimes a guy feels that if he lets his ex know how well he is doing without her (e.g. he's going out a lot, is dating other women), she will get jealous and want to get back together with him.

However, if a woman is not feeling a lot of respect and attraction for her ex, this plan will more than likely backfire.

Sure, she might be curious to find out what he's up to, but she won't just come back to him because she's feeling jealous. In fact, if she's still feeling hurt and angry about the break up, she will likely be thinking, â€œGood riddance!â€

3. Constantly contacting her.

Sending your ex loads of pointless texts just to stay in touch with her will usually do nothing but annoy her further.

If you want to get your ex back, you must meet up with her in person and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you face-to-face.

4. Asking her to explain what you did wrong and how to fix it.

A big mistake that guys make, is send their ex a text asking her what went wrong and what he can do to make her forgive him.

He might text her something like, â€œJust tell me what I did. I promise you, whatever it is you want me to change, I'll do it, just tell me what you want me to do,â€ thinking that it's what she wants hear.

However, a woman doesn't want to have to be a guy's teacher, or worse, his mother and have to teach him how to be more of a man. If she has to do that, it will only destroy her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him even more.

So, if you're serious about getting your ex back, you have to figure this stuff out for yourself. Then, when you meet her in person, you can show her that you've understood her and made the necessary adjustments that will make her respond to you more positively.

Did You Know That Approximately 50% of Couples Get Back Together Again After a Break Up?

Getting back with your ex is no longer a mysterious process that you will never know anything about.

I've cracked the code to getting women back and 100s of guys from all over the world have already used my system to get their ex girlfriend, fianc  or wife back.

You can do it too.

Not only is it possible, but it's actually pretty easy when you know how to do it.

As one of my happy customers said to me, "It's scary how quickly it worked. She hated me and now we're back together."

It's true.

The way that love can come flooding back into a woman's heart can seem a little scary and confusing for guys, but that's just how nature works.

When you flick the right switch in a woman's mind, she can't stop herself from wanting to give the relationship another chance.

So, rather than worrying too much about what to text to your ex after a break up, just pick up the phone and call her to arrange a meet up.

At the meet up, you can then make her feel respect for you again (e.g. by showing her that you've changed, making her feel understood) and begin triggering her feelings of attraction.

As you do that, she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love and (if you're using my techniques) she will have stronger feelings for you than she's ever had before.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Did Me and My Girlfriend Break Up? I Still Love Her and I Want Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're wondering, Why did me and my girlfriend break up? here are 5 possible reasons why.

1. Did you take her for granted?

[image: My girlfriend broke up with me. How do I get her back?]

In the beginning stages of a relationship, everything seems perfect and it's difficult to imagine not thinking your girlfriend is the most amazing woman in the world, and wanting to spend as much of your time with her as possible.

Yet, over time, life happens and other things (e.g. work, studies, bills, friends) begin to take up more of your attention than the relationship. It's not intentional, but it's also probably one of the main reasons why a woman will break up with a man.

No guy sets out to take his woman for granted. In fact, most guys would probably say, I would do anything for my girlfriend (fiancée or wife), or I would rather die than hurt my girlfriend.

However, when a guy lacks relationship experience and doesn't fully understand that it's his responsibility as the man to maintain and grow the respect, attraction and love between him and his girlfriend, he might make the mistake of thinking that the love will take care of itself, and he gets comfortable with the idea that his girlfriend belongs to him and nothing will ever change that.

For example: A guy might fall into the trap of thinking that, because he says I love you to his girlfriend, it is enough to keep her feeling loved and appreciated.

Yet, if his actions don't support his words, for instance, if he says, I love you and then spends a lot of time hanging out with friends playing TV games and ignoring her, she's not going to feel like he really means it.

Alternatively, if he tells her that he loves her, but fails to notice her when she makes an effort to look good for him (e.g. wears something sexy, gets a new hairstyle), she will feel unappreciated.

The truth is, the majority of guys don't even know that they're doing it.

If right now you're asking, Why did me and my girlfriend break up? I just don't know what went wrong, it could be because you allowed yourself to slip into a comfort zone, where you assumed that she would continue to feel loved and appreciated simply because you were together.

However, if a guy doesn't actively work on growing the respect, attraction and love between himself and his woman over time, she will not stick around.

In the past, a woman had to stay married for life, even if she was miserably unhappy.

In today's world women can do whatever they want, and if her guy takes her for granted and stops actively making her feel the respect, attraction and love she needs to feel fulfilled in the relationship, she will break up with him.

2. Did you become clingy or needy?

If you don't have a clear understanding of what being clingy or needy is, it's very easy to write it off as something that would not apply to you and your relationship with your girlfriend. So, the dictionary definition is:

Clingy (adjective): Too emotionally dependent.

Needy (adjective): Constantly needing emotional support; insecure.

In other words, when a guy gets to the point in his relationship where he feels that he cannot live without constant contact with his girlfriend, he is being clingy, and when he needs her to constantly confirm that she loves him, he is being needy.

No, being an attentive boyfriend who likes to spend time with his girlfriend, takes care of her needs and shows her genuine affection, attention and love is not being clingy or needy.

However, the mistake that some guys make, is they use their relationship with a woman as an excuse to hide away from life.

For example: A guy might stop hanging out with his friends, give up his interests and even stop following through on his dreams because according to him, "My girlfriend is the most important thing in my life. Apart from her nothing else matters. My friends feel boring to me and nothing I do without her is much fun anymore."

Then, when he is with her, he will say things like, "Do you really love me? You know that I wouldn't be able to live without you, right? You are my whole world. You're not going to dump me, are you?"

What a guy like this doesn't realize is that even though a woman likes to feel that she's special and important to her man, she doesn't want to feel like she's his only purpose in life, or like she's doing him a favor by being with him.

A woman wants to feel that even though her man has so many other things going for him (e.g. his pick of beautiful women), he has picked her.

That makes her feel lucky to be with him, and her respect, attraction and love for him will grow.

Naturally, there are women who enjoy having a man who has nothing else going on in his life other than being at her beck and call, but these are usually domineering or insecure women who are afraid of losing him if he realizes there's something better out there for him.

However, the majority of women respect and appreciate a man who has more going on in his life than her, has goals and dreams and is reaching for his true potential as a man, is socially active, and yet at the same time is loving, supportive and someone she can look up to and respect.

If you and your girlfriend broke up, could it be that you slipped into the habit of putting her above yourself in the relationship?

3. Did you let her become the leader or boss of the relationship?

Have you ever heard guys saying, “I have to check with the boss first,” or “I don’t know if my girlfriend will let me do that,” or “She wouldn’t allow me to do that. I’d get into trouble with her” over something very simple or innocent?

This happens when a guy makes the mistake of believing that, by allowing his girlfriend (fiancée or wife) to wear the pants in the relationship, it will keep the peace between them and she will be happy.

However, the strange thing is that, even if a woman enjoys bossing her man around for a while, when the relationship dynamic goes out of balance (i.e. she takes on the masculine role and he takes on the feminine role), she will start to become angry, resentful and even bitchy towards him.

Rather than keep the peace, by allowing her to wear the pants in the relationship, she eventually loses so much respect and attraction for him that she breaks up with him.

Right now you might not fully understand why a woman would break up with you if you are giving her what she wants (e.g. to make all the decisions, be in control).

Yet, when you realize that women are instinctively drawn to the strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity, purpose, determination) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecurity, self-doubt, letting her be the boss and push you around), you will see that by handing your power over to her, you only managed to get her to lose respect for you as a man.

When a woman doesn’t respect her man, her attraction for him will fade, and the sex will likely slow down or dry up altogether.

Eventually she will break up with him because she simply cannot relax and be a feminine woman in contrast to his masculine strength while she still has to lead in the relationship.

4. Did she stop feeling sexy around you?

At the beginning of a relationship, when you can barely keep your hands off each other, telling a woman how beautiful she is and making her feel sexy is easy.

However, eventually the initial lust and romance settles down, and it’s easy for a guy to begin taking his woman’s sexiness for granted.

What most guys don’t realize is that women are a lot more insecure than they let on.

For example: A woman might walk around behaving like she’s the sexiest woman on Earth, dress in sexy clothes and have hundreds of guys trying to hook up with her, yet deep down she is thinking, “I just hate my thighs; they look so big,” or “If only my ears didn’t stick out so much, I’d look so much better than I do right now.”

In a relationship, this insecurity can become even worse if her man unknowingly points out her flaws (e.g. “Those jeans look too tight. Have you put on even more weight?” or “You should wear more makeup to hide those spots on your face. I don’t like how you look anymore.”).

In his opinion, he might feel that he’s encouraging her to improve herself, however, from her point of view he is saying, “You’re ugly. I don’t think you look sexy anymore.”

When a woman feels that she has lost her attractiveness to her man, she will lose confidence in herself and the relationship will quickly begin to go downhill from there.

5. Did you stop reaching for your true potential as a man?

During the early part of a relationship, when the main focus is on the sex and romance, a man and a woman won't usually discuss their goals and ambitions in life in too much detail.

To a woman, as long as the guy looks like he's got goals and has purpose and direction in his life, she will feel more attracted to him and she will be happy to be his girlfriend.

However, even if a guy manages to hook up with a woman by attracting her in other ways, if when they are in a relationship together she realizes that he's actually a slacker, is stuck in a comfort zone (e.g. stuck in a boring job, living at home with his parents), and he's not interested in making anything of himself, her respect and attraction for him will fade.

Women like the idea of being with a man who is rising through the levels of life and reaching for his true potential.

That doesn't mean a guy has to be famous or rich for a woman to feel attracted to him and love him, but it does mean he should have purpose and be moving forward in his life.

If a woman realizes that her man is stuck in his life and isn't even interested in getting himself unstuck, she will begin to fall out of love with him and eventually break up with him.

You Can Get Your Girlfriend Back

The great news is that if you're asking, Why did me and my girlfriend break up? you're the kind of man who is willing to learn from his mistakes and change.

So, if you want to get back together with your girlfriend, the main thing you need to focus on is renewing her feelings of respect and attraction for you as a man, and her love for you will begin to flow again.

Even if, right now, she is saying things like, I never want to see you again, or I don't love you anymore, you have to understand that her love for you is not dead. It simply means that she doesn't feel like she wants to be in love with you right now.

However, when you make her feel differently (e.g. by showing her that you understand the reasons she broke up with you, make her feel understood), she will not be able to stop herself from feeling respect and attraction for you again.

When that happens, her guard will come down and, whether she wants it to or not, the love she felt for you will begin to flow back into her heart.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Wife Back Even if it Seems Hopeless

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The first thing that I want to tell you about how to get your wife back is that it is possible.

Even if your situation seems hopeless, there is always hope because it is possible to re-spark your wife's feelings for you.

Personally speaking, I know that men from all over the world are able to get a wife back with my help (I hear back from happy customers all the time).

However, if you look at the statistics that are available for how many husbands get their wife back, it's pretty depressing, but that is as a result of men going to psychologists and family therapists, counseling and things like that and hoping to find the solution there.

However, what they find is either a female or male psychologist or therapist who is not an attraction expert.

When getting a marriage back together, a big part of it is about being able to make your wife feel attracted to you again.

Of course, her feeling attracted is not the be all and end all – there's more to getting a marriage back together and keeping it back together than that.

I know because I am married, I'm happily married now, and I've also helped hundreds of men to get their wife back.

I've personally helped more than a hundred men via my phone coaching service to get their wife back, and I've helped hundreds of men via my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System:

So, if you are serious about getting your wife back, here's what you need to do:

1. Understand what really went wrong with the relationship.
2. Start fixing some of your issues and improving on your weaknesses.
3. Understand and use the power of love to get her back.

The first part is understanding what really went wrong.

No doubt you're already aware of some of the problems that you and your wife had, but there're also going to be other things that she most likely didn't talk about or doesn't want to talk about or discuss with you.

So you're no doubt aware of some of the reasons why she left you, but here are some questions to help you think about some other possible reasons as well:

- Did you let her wear the pants in the marriage for too long? In other words, did you let her take control and lead the way and boss you around essentially?
- Did you make her responsible for a lot of the decision making and the direction that your life was taking together?
- Did you stop making her feel feminine and girly in your presence? (e.g. Did you make you feel like more of a friend, or worse, did you make her feel like she was more dominant and masculine than you?)
- Were you too controlling and bossy?

- Did you stop trying to make her feel attracted to you?
- Did you become emotionally weak, for example jealous, secure, emotionally sensitive?
- Did you say and do one too many things to cause her to lose respect for you as a man?

When I've helped phone coaching clients to get their wife back, I often find that the man has been able to maintain a good marriage and relationship with his wife and have been able to stay together for many years, but it's gotten to the point where she just isn't happy with the attraction and love experience that she's having in the marriage.

For example, sometimes a wife will be happy for many years to go through the standard levels of getting a house, paying it off together, having children, raising the children up, getting them off to school, etc.

There's a lot of things to focus on, and there are also a lot of times to be happy and have fun together. Yet when those things lose their novelty and are no longer as challenging and exciting anymore, what I've found is that the wife then starts to focus her attention on her husband and wants to feel some excitement and love and attraction for him. She wants to feel something with him.

What often happens is that the husband has become very comfortable in the marriage, and it's not his fault.

You get into a marriage and you've got your wife there and you love each other, you're committed to each other, you do anything for each other, and you feel like you're going to be together for life. But unfortunately, life isn't always as easy and smooth sailing as that.

As you would know, life always seems to throw you a curveball when you least expect it. In this case, it's your wife falling out of love with you and you now wondering how you can get her back.

You can get her back, but you have to be willing to make some improvements and changes. You need to do is start fixing some of your issues and improving on your weaknesses.

Some of the issues can include insecurity, jealousy, controlling behavior, etc. Some of the improvements that men can make are in their ability to make their wife feel attracted.

A lot of guys, they make the mistake of turning their wife into more of a friend over the years, where they're partners and they're neutral friends together in life.

Women do put up with that for quite a while if they're happy in a relationship or a marriage, but if a woman gets to the point where she isn't really feeling excited and happy about her marriage anymore, and then she notices that she's really not feeling much attraction for her man, it starts to make her feel unhappy.

Another improvement that a husband can make is in his goals and ambitions in life.

Some of the men that I've helped to get a wife back, they fall into that category where they've gotten to a point in their life where they're comfortable and they're not really aiming for much more at all.

They might have got a mortgage and they're happily paying that off and they don't feel like they need to be really striving for anything anymore.

However, as a result of not really striving for much, what happens for the guy is that he often just spends a lot of time watching T.V. or surfing the internet or really not doing much at all.

The wife then starts to nag him and say, "Get off the couch, do something. Life is boring. Life is going nowhere," etc, because she's reacting to the lack of masculine direction that he's just not providing.

Compare that to a man who has bigger goals.

When he gets to a certain level in life, he then thinks, “Okay, how can I expand this? How can I do better now? How can I take this to another level?”

He’s always got something that he’s aiming for, and therefore she can be proud of him. She can look up to him. She can speak well of him to her family and friends and coworkers.

The other thing that you need to do is understand and use the power of love to get her back.

One of the great things about love is that it doesn’t die.

Your wife may have said to you that she doesn’t love you anymore, she doesn’t feel the same way, and she doesn’t want to be with you, but that doesn’t mean that the love is dead. It just means that she doesn’t feel the same way anymore.

She doesn’t feel respect, she doesn’t feel attraction, and therefore she cannot connect with the love in the way that she used to.

Yet, love doesn’t die.

It simply gets pushed into the background and covered over with more negative emotions where she feels resentment, a lack of respect. She feels annoyed, she feels agitated, she doesn’t feel proud and she is unhappy with how the marriage makes her feel.

Yet that’s got nothing to do with love.

Love is always there in the background, and you can bring the love back to the foreground again and make her love you again, by first focusing on making her feel respect for you as a man (e.g. fixing your emotional issues), allowing her to look up to you and respect you as a man, and also, then making her feel attracted to you again.

When a woman doesn’t feel respect for a man, she will find it difficult to feel attracted to him.

If she doesn’t respect him, and she doesn’t feel much attraction for him, then she will naturally start to fall out of love with him.

She will find it difficult to connect with the love. The love will be pushed into the background. She won’t be connecting with it.

However, when you are able to make your wife feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you again, she naturally and automatically starts to reconnect with the love.

One of the most important things that I tell my clients when I’m helping them get their wife back is to be confident in your ability to make her have feelings for you again.

What you need to understand is that human emotions are not set in stone. Human emotions can change.

Just because she’s feeling negative emotions now, it doesn’t mean that she’s stuck on those emotions for all of eternity, and you can never get her to feel positive emotions for you again.

What I’ve seen is that a wife can literally go from hating her ex-husband and despising him, resenting him, to liking him, respecting him, feeling attracted to him, and loving him again.

However, if you continue to make the same old communication mistakes that you’ve been making with her, and you continue to turn her off, then she’s not going to feel that renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Likewise, if you become an emasculated, self-doubting ex-husband who doesn't feel worthy of his ex-wife, then she's not going to feel respect and attraction for you.

You need to be confident. You need to believe in yourself and your ability to make her feel something for you again. You can make her feel something for you again. You can get that spark back, and you can build on it.

Alright, so I hope you find this video helpful.

If you want specific instructions of what to say and do to get your wife back, I have an amazing program called Get Your Ex Back: Super System that you can begin watching right now (you will get instant access to download it or watch it online in your Modern Man customer account).

Get Your Ex Back: Super System is 10 hours of video training, and it will guide you through the process of getting your wife back into your arms again.

Hundreds of guys from all over the world have already used it to get their wife back, and you can do it too.

By the way...

Now that I'm married, I know how important marriage is.

I know how important it is to you to have your wife back.

I couldn't imagine what life will be like without my wife. I have a very happy life with her, and that is as a result of the type of relationship dynamic that I teach in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

The style of relationship that I maintain with my wife is one where she looks up to me and respects me, but she also feels respected as well.

Making her look up to you and respect you isn't about putting her down, making her lower than you or anything like that.

It's simply about being the man that she can look up to and respect, the man that she can feel attracted to, and the man that she's happy to be in love with, proud to be in love with, and excited to be in love with.

You CAN make your wife feel that way again, even if your situation currently seems hopeless, or if she currently hates you.

You simply need to begin making her feel SOME respect, attraction and love for you again...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Fiancée Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, how can you get your fiancée back?

Well, the first thing you need to realize is that if you got that far into a relationship with her, she obviously loved you a lot at one point, or at least saw a lot of potential in you as her future husband. If you're watching this video now, you're most-likely at a point where she has said that she doesn't want to be engaged to you anymore, she doesn't want to get married, and she's turned her back on you.

So, how can you get her back?

Start By Understanding Where You Went Wrong

The best way to start understanding how to get her back is to look at where you went wrong, so you can fix the things that really matter to her.

Some of the common reasons why a woman will walk away from her fiancée:

1. He lacked purpose and direction.
2. He gave her too much power in the relationship.
3. He was too insecure.
4. He wasn't enough of a man for her.
5. He wasn't able to give her the attraction experience that she really wanted.
6. She wasn't proud of him.
7. He kept making the same old mistakes over and over again.

With the first example of lacking purpose and direction, what happens there is that some guys get into a relationship with a woman and they place way too much importance on her.

The guy's life becomes about her, and everything that he is and that he's doing is about her and for her.

Here's the thing though...

A woman does want to feel loved, respected, appreciated and wanted, but she doesn't want to feel like her man's reason for living is her.

She doesn't want to feel like if she pulls back some of her interest and affection, he's going to become insecure, his world is going to come crashing down.

She wants to see that he is a man with or without her and that he has purpose and direction in life that includes her, but is not all about her.

So, if a woman feels like her fiancée is hiding from his true potential as a man behind the safety and comfort of a relationship with her, then it doesn't make her feel safe about the future.

It makes her feel as though she is the leader in the relationship, and without her reassurance that she loves him and without her commitment to him, he would crumble and his life would fall to pieces.

That's not to say that a woman can't have purpose and ambition in life, and it's just got to all be the man (i.e. he's got to be doing all the work and the woman just has to relax).

It's not about that at all.

What a woman wants to see is that her man is willing to take on that role; that he is capable of taking on that role.

If, for example, she falls pregnant and she wants to be a mother, and stay at home and raise children, she knows that her man is going to keep pushing forward and be a success in life with or without her reassurance.

He doesn't need her to keep propping him up and patting him on the back, and emotionally reassuring him during challenging times. She wants to be able to look up to him as her man.

The next example is about giving her too much power in the relationship.

This is a fairly common relationship problem these days, because a lot of men are confused about the role that they should be taking on in a relationship.

If you watch a lot of TV and movies, you'll be told that it's a woman's world these days and men have got to bow down to women, and give all their power over to women.

Or you might be told that it's all about being 50/50 and sharing responsibilities and dominance in the relationship.

Both of those ideas are wrong, and they lead to divorce or very unhappy relationships. What works is when a man is in the power position.

However, that's not about putting a woman down. It's not about making her feel unimportant. It's not about disrespecting her. It's not about overlooking her opinion. It's not about pushing her to the side.

It's not about doing any of that at all.

It's simply about being the one who takes on the responsibility of being the leader in the relationship.

Of course, some guys don't want to do that and they prefer to be in a relationship where the woman just does everything and leads the way and he just cruises and goes about his life, and doesn't really care.

Some women are okay with it being that way and will put up with it if the rest of the relationship is really happy, and everything else is good.

However, if there are a lot of problems in the relationship (e.g. the guy is also insecure, he doesn't have much purpose, he doesn't know how to really make her feel attracted anymore), then his lack of leadership is going to become a glaring problem to her.

It's going to be something that annoys her.

The next example is about being too insecure.

Some women will put up with a bit of insecurity in a relationship if the rest of the relationship is good, and she's happy for other reasons with him.

However, if a guy is very insecure, for example he is emotionally sensitive, he's jealous, he's controlling, he's possessive, he has low self-esteem, etc, then a woman is going to feel very turned off by him.

It doesn't matter that the guy has bought her a ring and spent a lot of money on the engagement ring. That stuff really doesn't mean anything to a woman if she doesn't respect her guy.

Without respect, it's hard for her to feel attracted. Without respect and attraction, it's very difficult for a woman to remain in love with a guy.

The next example is about not being enough of a man for her.

Some guys don't realize that regardless of how happy a relationship is and how much a woman loves her guy, she will always continue to test his confidence.

If a woman is in a relationship with a guy and she teases him, or tests his confidence, she pulls back some affection, she takes on a lot of power, she tests the waters in those ways and he just crumbles time after time, then she realizes that he's not enough of a man for her at this point in his life.

That doesn't mean he can't get her back though.

When getting a fianc   back, or any woman back, it's always about showing her that you really have changed and improved.

It's not about going and telling a woman that you've changed and improved. It's about letting her experience that when she interacts with you.

When you interact with her and her usual tests and bitchy, or cold, or challenging behavior no longer makes you crumble under pressure, she realizes that, okay, you have become enough of a man for her now.

The next example is about not being able to give her the attraction experience that she really wants.

So if you're able to get your woman to the point where she was your fianc  , then no doubt you were able to make her feel some attraction at the start of the relationship.

You might have even kept that attraction building over time, and things might have been great between you and her.

However, if she's no longer willing to be your fianc  , then one of the common reasons why a woman will walk away at that point is that she's just not getting the type of attraction experience that she wants.

So what do I mean by that?

Well, sometimes it feels nice to a woman to be in a relationship with a guy who dotes on her and treats her like a princess, buys her lots of things, and essentially just kisses her butt.

He's just that perfect boyfriend who does everything for her and treats her like she's the best thing in the world.

That's great, but where it becomes a problem is when the woman tests the guy, and sees if he will continue to treat her that way even if she doesn't respect him and treat him well.

So, sometimes a woman will get all that and she'll be loving it, and she'll think that the guy is the best guy for her.

Then, her instincts will kick in and she'll start testing him by being a bit of a bitch, being cold, being distant, taking him for granted, and not treating him how he wants to be treated.

If he puts up with that and starts treating her even nicer and better in the hopes that she takes pity on him, then she realizes that, "Okay, this guy doesn't have much of a backbone. He allows me to push him around and do whatever I want, even though I'm being a bitch to him."

At that point, she loses respect for him, and then she finds it difficult to feel attraction.

What she would've been hoping to see is that when she started to treat him badly he let her know about it, and if she continued he stopped treating her so well.

He instead started to push her away and said to her, “Unless you start to change, you’re not going to be in my life.”

If the guy had the backbone, the balls, the confidence to do that, then she would’ve respected him. She would’ve felt like she has a complete man.

She doesn’t just have a guy that’s kissing her butt and treating her like a princess, but he’s only doing that because he’s afraid of losing her.

He’s thinking that he’s just got to make her so happy by being so good to her, and that’s what’s going to keep her.

Yet, he’s mistaken.

He doesn’t know that a woman needs to be able to look up to him and respect him, and without that she’s not getting the attraction experience that she really wants.

The next example is about not being proud of him.

In cases like this, where a woman walks away from her fianc  because she’s not proud of him, some of the examples are that when interacting with other people she notices that they put him down and he doesn’t really stand up for himself.

She might also notice that he is confident around her at home, but if he starts interacting with other guys like alpha males, confident guys, he lowers himself and starts being a bit submissive, a bit passive, and letting these other guys just push him around or lead him around. Another example is around family and friends, where he’s not able to get her family and friends to look up to him and respect him as a man.

The final example is about keeping on making the same old mistakes over and over again.

So, some of those mistakes might include arguing, being insecure or being irritable, whining about life, being negative, controlling, jealous, etc.

Sometimes a woman will have enough relationship experience to know that most guys just don’t change.

Most guys don’t ever seek the help that they need, and then start to learn and change. They just keep making the same mistakes over and over, and over again.

So, if she’s experienced that in her previous relationships and finds herself in the same situation again, a woman will often just walk away and try to cut her losses, and hope that she finds a guy next time who doesn’t make those mistakes.

However, you can be the exception.

It is possible to learn from your mistakes and become a better man as a result.

No doubt you are already a good man.

You know that you’re a good man.

You know that you can do better this time with her, but what you need to be able to do is show her when you interact with her that you have made some changes.

It’s not about telling her that you’ve made those changes. It’s about letting her experience it when she interacts with you.

Love Doesn't Die

One final point I want to make for you is that when getting a fianc  back you've got to understand something about love, and that is love doesn't die.

Your fianc  might be saying to you at this point, "I don't love you anymore. I don't feel the same way anymore."

However, that doesn't mean that the love between you and her is dead.

Love doesn't die.

It simply gets pushed into the background and covered over with negative emotions.

You can bring that love back to the foreground again by making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When she starts to feel respect and attraction for you again, she will naturally and automatically start to reconnect with the love.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex Girlfriend Back (8 Examples)

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I will be teaching you how to get your ex-girlfriend back.

One thing I want to point out right up-front is that each situation is different, so you shouldn't just use extreme techniques like the no contact rule (i.e. ignore your ex for 30-60 days) on every ex-girlfriend situation that you encounter.

Sometimes, you need to use more subtle techniques, and sometimes you need to take action very quickly to get the woman back.

So, in this post, I am going to cover 8 different break-up scenarios and explain what approach the guy should use to get his ex-girlfriend back:

1. He was dumped after one date.
2. He was dumped after less than a month of dating.
3. He was dumped after being together for one to five years.
4. He was dumped after being together for more than five years.
5. He was dumped for cheating on her.
6. He was dumped for being insecure, clingy or jealous.
7. He was dumped for taking her for granted.
8. He was dumped for not knowing how to give her the kind of attraction experience that she really wants.

1. He was dumped after one date

When a woman dumps a guy after one date and says "I just want to be friends," or "I don't think it's going to work out," what he actually needs to do is call her up, and not worry that he stuffed up the first date.

He needs to be confident enough and get on a call and re-attract her on the phone.

In most cases, the woman would then agree to meet up with him in person and when she meets up with him in person, he can then make her feel more respect and attraction for him, and hook up with her again.

2. He was dumped after less than a month of dating

If a guy was dumped after less than a month of dating, the relationship could have fizzled out due to a lack of attraction.

The woman would have been interested in him initially, she would have saw potential, but as she got to know him she realized that he was possibly too nervous and insecure and self-doubting and that he just wasn't enough a man for her at this point in his life.

Of course, that doesn't mean that it's over and he can never get her back and he can never get another chance with her now that he's stuffed things up.

To get another chance with her, what he needs to do is call her, get her to meet up with him, and then hook-up with her at the meet-up.

If she doesn't want to hook up with him right away, that's not a problem either. He just needs to continue to build up on her respect and attraction to him when he texts her, when he talks to her on the phone, and when he meets up with her in person again.

3. He was dumped after being together for one to five years

In cases like this, the woman has a fair idea of who the guy is and what his usual tricks are to get her back together with him.

For example: He might have been out to get her back in the past by begging and pleading, convincing her to give him another chance, etc, but it's gotten to the point where she just doesn't see that he is changing and then she's broken up with him and moved on.

Alternatively, the attraction may have fizzled out and she end up liking another guy and maybe cheating on him and leaving him because of that.

So, if a guy is in that situation, what does he need to do to get his ex-girlfriend back?

What he needs to do is call her, meet up with her, get her to forgive his mistakes, make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him, then hook-up at the meet-up or arrange another time to meet up.

Of course, a lot of guys in this situation are at the point where their ex-girlfriend won't even talk to them. She won't even answer their texts.

So, how is he going to call her and get her to meet up with him?

Well, that's another story altogether.

Guys who are in that situation where they are blocked out of a woman's life, the need to use other techniques to bring down her guard so she then open herself up to texting with him and getting on a phone call with him.

All the really tough situations that guys are going through, and what to do, what to say, how to get a girlfriend back are covered in my program Get Your Ex Back Super System.

4. He was dumped after being together for more than five years

This is pretty similar to the previous one, except in these cases what I have found is that the attraction, the respect, and love, has really faded away.

The relationship may have been great in the beginning but over time, the man made some mistakes that caused her to lose respect, attraction, and love for him.

So, getting your girlfriend back in a case like this is not as simple as clicking your fingers and saying, "Yes, I've sent her a text and now we're back together. Everything is magically fixed."

In a case like this, what a guy need to do is call her, meet up with her in person, get her to forgive his mistakes, explain to her that he doesn't expect her to forgive him right away, make her feel a renewed sense of attraction and respect for him, hookup with her or arrange another time to meet up.

With relationships like this, what I have found is that the woman isn't always willing to catch up again very soon.

She's often at the point where she is sick and tired of her guy, and she doesn't want to be around him, she wants to try and move on, etc.

If she is unwilling to agree to catch up again, what a guy needs to do is, at least, get her to agree to keep the lines of communication open.

Keeping the lines of communication open means he is able to text her and get her on a phone call, he is able to have her on Facebook or social media, and the point of that is so he can have interactions with her that cause her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

The more that he makes her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him, the more her guard comes down and she becomes open to interacting with him in person and giving the relationship another chance.

I will point out also that in cases like this, a guy often has to use more advanced techniques that I only teach in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System.

Those techniques are about attraction, persuasion, and getting her to feel a mix of painful and positive emotions so she feel compelled to meet up with him and give the relationship another chance.

5. He was dumped for cheating on her

What he needs to do is call her, get her to forgive him over the phone for her benefit, tell her that he knows she won't be able to trust him right away and he respects that.

Get her to meet-up with him, make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction at the meet-up, and then hook-up or arrange another time to catch up.

By the way, when I'm giving this examples, I'm starting off with "call her" and I know that a lot of guys are in a situation where if they call their ex, she won't answer the phone.

I'm very much aware of that because I help phone coaching clients every day to get women back.

So, if you are in a situation where your woman isn't answering your phone calls, there is a text message that you can send to her to get her to answer your phone call.

Simply try to call her and if she doesn't answer, send the message of, "Hey Jenny – it's Dan here. I was just calling because I have something quick I wanted to ask you over the phone. I guess you are busy at the moment. I might try to call you another time."

That message lets her see that you're not being crazy and needy and desperate, and it's not a serious thing that you are trying to talk to her about. It's something quick.

You wanted to get her on the phone to ask her something, and what is that thing that you wanted to ask her?

To get her to meet-up with you.

If you don't think that she is going to agree to catch up with you, or she doesn't want to see you, doesn't want to be around you, don't worry.

If you're interested in learning from me, in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System, I provide all the examples of what to say and do.

The examples of what to say have been tested with my phone coaching clients, and they use the psychology of persuasion to get her to agree to catch up with you.

The way that you will explain the meet up to her, and why she should spend more time around you, is something that she won't be able to say no to.

I've never had a client who could not get his woman to meet-up with him.

You can do that.

You can get her to interact with you in person, and when you are interacting with her in person you can make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

You can bring her guard down.

You can make her open up emotionally to the relationship again.

You can do that.

6. He was dumped for being insecure, clingy or jealous

What he needs to do is call her, get her to forgive him over the phone for her benefit, tell her that he knows she probably doesn't care if he's changed, and also let her know that he is not asking her to care about that.

Get her to meet-up with him, make her feel a new sense of respect and attraction at the meetup, then hook up with her at the meet-up or arrange another time to catch up.

7. He was dumped for taking her for granted

Call her, tell her that you know she won't be able to trust you immediately and that you respect that.

Get her to meet up with you, make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction at the meet-up, get her to forgive you for her own benefit. Hook up with her or arrange another time to catch up.

8. He was dumped for not knowing how to give her the kind of attraction experience that she really wants

A lot of the guys who fall into this category aren't even aware that this is one of the main reasons why their girlfriend broke up with them.

When a woman says, "I don't feel the same way anymore," or, "I don't want to be in a relationship anymore. I need time for myself. I don't know what I want anymore," and so on, it often because she's not getting the type of attraction experience that she wants.

A woman will also say things like, "You're really nice and I really care about you, but I don't think that we should be in a relationship," or, "You deserve someone better than me," or, "It's not you, it's me."

Essentially what it all comes down to is that she's just not getting the attraction experience that she wants.

An example of a woman not getting the attraction experience that she wants is when she's in a relationship with a guy who is too clingy and is suffocating her with how much attention he gives her and he is just all over her.

But really what she wants to experience at times, not always, is a guy who isn't so available and attentive to her. She wants to have a boyfriend where she feels like she needs to impress him a bit. On the other end of the scale, sometimes a woman is not getting the type of attraction experience that she wants because the guy is taking her for granted and is pushing her too far.

For example: A guy might get into a relationship with a girl who really likes him, she adores him, she looks up to him, she thinks the world of him.

He then starts to take her for granted and he pushes her away and she enjoys the chase at the start but after a while, it becomes a little bit insulting and lonely and unfulfilling.

That's not to say that she doesn't like it when her boyfriend pushes her away a little bit and is a bit hard to get, but she doesn't like it when he is only like that.

She wants him to have more of a balance where she does feel loved and appreciated.

How about your relationship?

Where you giving your ex-girlfriend the attraction experience that she really wanted?

Do you even know what type of attraction experience she really wants?

If you don't know what to offer a woman in a relationship to make her happy with the attraction experience, all of that is explained in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System.

Get Your Ex Back Super System is a simple, 7 step system that gets your ex-girlfriend back faster than any other method available online.

It's 10 hours of video training, and by the end of watching it, you will be ready to contact your ex-girlfriend and make this happen.

You do not have to ignore her and waste time hoping that she runs back to you.

The Get Your Ex Back Super System approach is about taking action and making it happen.

When you go through the seven steps of the system, your girlfriend will want to be back together in a relationship just as much as you do.

The relationship will feel better than it did before because you won't be making the same old mistakes that were turning her off, and you will be able to bring out a side of her that has been missing when she's been around you.

She will start to respect you again and let you lead the way in the relationship because she will look up to you and trust you as the only man that she needs.

Your Relationship is Unique, So Be Careful When UsingÂ Extreme Ex Back Techniques

[image: Extreme ex back techniques like the no contact rule]

I hope this post has been helpful for you and you've learned more about what you need to do to get your ex-girlfriend back.

Before I finish up, I just want to remind you to be careful.

Don't go and use extreme techniques like the no contact rule on just any woman you break up.

[image: Avoiding her with the No Contact Rule]

Sometimes the no contact rule (ignoring a woman for 30-60 days) can work to get a woman to run back to her guy and say that she's sorry and she misses him and she wants to be with him.

However, the majority of guys who are trying to get an ex-girlfriend back are at the point where their girlfriend doesn't want anything to do with them.

She's had enough and when he tries to convince her to give him another chance, she says things like, "Get away from me, I don't have any feelings for you, you don't have a chance with me. It's too late, no thank you."

So, when a guy ignores a woman like that, she will often just use that time to move on.

Of course, sometimes she will contact him, though, just to check, "Is he still missing me?" and if she contacts him and sees that he's still missing her, he still wants to be with her, but he hasn't contacted her for 30-60 days or whatever it is, she then realizes that he's probably been using that no contact rule that everyone talks about on the internet.

She thinks, "He's wanted to get back with me all this time, my life has been great without him, and he's just been sitting around licking his wounds, feeling sad about himself, missing me, feeling pitiful" and she then she loses more respect and attraction for him as a result of using a manipulative tactic like the no contact rule.

Balls, Balls, Balls

[image: Have the balls to make something happen]

What I've found is that most women respond positively to an ex boyfriend who has the balls to make something happen, rather than ignoring her and hoping that she magically runs back to him.

So, don't be afraid of getting in contact with your ex-girlfriend, getting her to meet-up with you, and getting her back into your arms again.

If you want to get an ex-girlfriend back, what I've found is that the best method is to be a man about it and make it happen.

Get her back into your arms again by doing something about it.

Don't waste time ignoring her if she doesn't want anything to do with you.

If you want her back into your arms again, what you need to do is to start actively making her feel some respect, attraction, and love for you again.

You can do that in every interaction that you have with her, whether that is via text, on a phone call, or in person.

Make sure that in every interaction that you have with your ex-girlfriend, you use it as an opportunity to make her feel something for you.

Make her feel SOMETHING for you and then her guard begins to come down.

She then becomes open to interacting with you again in person and giving the relationship another chance.

This is something that you can do today. You don't have to sit around wasting time and hoping that she comes running back to you.

You can get your ex girlfriend back by doing something about it right now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex Back When She Doesn't Have Feelings For You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, how can you get your ex back if she doesn't have any feelings for you at the moment and doesn't want anything to do with you?

What you need to do is actively CREATE some feelings again.

Sometimes, a guy will become inactive and waste a lot of time ignoring his ex in the hope that if he just stays out of her life, she might start to miss him and then contact him and want him back.

Yet, in most of the ex-back cases that I see, the woman doesn't have feelings for the guy anymore or she's really turned off by him and when he starts ignoring her, she just uses that time to move on.

Sometimes, a woman will contact her ex if he's been ignoring her just to check, "Is he still missing me?" and if he is, she then realizes that he's been using that no contact rule that everyone talks about on the internet, and she loses even more respect and attraction for him as a result.

So, if your ex doesn't have feelings for you right now, what I recommend is that you get active.

Actively start interacting with her (via text, phone call and in person interactions) and make her feel SOMETHING for you.

You're not going to immediately be able to make her fall madly in love with you by just sending her one text message, or saying one thing on the phone and talking to her for 10 seconds. It's not going to be like that.

What you need to do is start to create SOME feelings and then build on that in every interaction.

If you are texting back and forth with her, rather than just texting in a boring way, get her laughing and smiling so she feels something.

For example: If a woman sends her ex-boyfriend, fianc   or husband a text and says, "Hey, what are you up to today?" and he then replies, "Nothing, how about you?" that isn't going to make her laugh and smile and have some feelings for him.

Some examples of what might make her smile and laugh are, "I just finished a 20km marathon (or 20 mile marathon) and now I'm trying to eat four pizzas in one sitting. How about you, what are you up to?" or, "Nothing much. I got run over by a car today, but besides that I'm fine. How about you?"

In the second example there, she's most likely going to be thinking, "What? He got run over by a car?" and she's probably going to ask, "What happened?" and he's going to be able to reply with, "Just kidding," or "lol...just kidding        I had a great day with no car accidents at all. Haha...how about you? Have a great day today?"

She's then going to at least be able to have some sort of smile and maybe even a laugh. She then starts to have some feelings when she interacts with you.

Of course, sending her that one text message isn't the magic solution to get your ex back.

To properly get a woman back, what you've got to get clear on is this, you've got to use every interaction that you have with her, whether that's via text, on a phone call or in person, to make her feel SOMETHING for you.

You've got to get her to feel SOME level of respect and attraction for you.

When you make her have some feelings for you again, she starts to relax her guard. She doesn't have to be so guarded when she's interacting with you because there's nothing really to worry about.

When she interacts with you, she smiles, she laughs, she feels good, so she doesn't need to be so bitchy towards you. If she is initially cold and bitchy and distant, she's only going to be able to keep that act up for so long.

After a while, when she continues to smile and laugh when she talks to you on the phone, interacts with you in person or texts back and forth with you, she's going to get to the point she thinks, "Well, why am I being such a bitch to him? Why am I being cold? Every time I interact with him I feel good, so why don't I just meet up with him?" or, "Why don't I give this another chance?"

If this woman is really important to you and you want to get the relationship back together, then just make sure that you understand that you've got to be active about creating some feelings again.

If she really loves you, misses you and can't deal with living her life without you, then she's going to come running back if you just ignore her and you don't do anything.

However, if your ex doesn't have feelings for you right now, you've got to get active.

You've got to make this happen by actively making her feel SOMETHING for you.

You've got to get her on a phone call and you've got to meet up with her, and when she meets up with you, you've got to allow her to experience the new and improved version of you.

You don't have to be perfect.

You don't have to be super amazing and have achieved so many things since the breakup to make her have some feelings for you again.

You've just got to be better.

For example: If a guy was emotionally insecure in his relationship with his girl and would get emotionally sensitive and jealous and he was controlling and all those sorts of things, then his girlfriend (fiance or wife) would have been turned off.

Insecurity, emotional sensitivity, jealousy and controlling behavior is a huge turnoff for women and you most likely already know that.

So, what is going to get her to have some feelings for a guy like that again is when she interacts with him and she can see that no matter what she says or does, he is now emotionally strong.

He is no longer the same old insecure, needy guy.

He's gone up a level, or even a couple of levels in terms of his emotional strength and emotional maturity.

He doesn't have to be perfect though.

He just has to be able to show her that he's improved since the breakup.

[image: Getting your ex to have feelings for you again]

Showing her that he has improved since the breakup is not about telling her and trying to sell himself to her and saying, "Hey, I'm not needy now. I'm no longer insecure. I'm strong now."

Instead, it's about letting her experience the new and improved version of him and letting her notice it on her own as she listens to him talk, notices his body language and picks up on his vibe.

For example: A guy meets up with his ex-girlfriend, fianc  or wife, and he's interacting with her and she's being cold and distant as a test to see how he's going to react.

If the guy then looks nervous and is doubting himself and seems uncomfortable, she knows that, "Okay...he is not emotionally strong. He still hasn't become the sort of man that I need. He's still weak. He still needs to improve and he's still stuck at the same level that he was at when I broke up with him. Therefore, there's no point in getting back with him."

She knows that if she gets back with him, it's just going to be the same thing over and over and over again. She also doesn't want to have to take on the role of teaching him how to be the sort of man that she needs.

Some guys will ask their ex-woman, "Please just tell me what I need to do. I'll do anything. I'll change anything. Just tell me what you need. Tell me what I need to change," but a woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man.

If she teaches him one lesson, then she's most likely going to have to teach him another lesson, and another lesson, and another lesson, and the next thing she knows, she's in a relationship where it's sort of like a teacher-student relationship or a mom teaching her son, or a big sister helping out her little brother.

That is not the type of relationship that a woman wants to be in.

She wants to be in a relationship where she can look up to her man and respect him.

She doesn't want to have to teach him, keep lifting him up and encouraging him to be confident or have to keep patting him on the back and saying, "It'll be okay. Don't worry."

She wants him to be a strong man on his own, with or without her reassurance.

So, if your ex doesn't have feelings for you at the moment, what you need to do is work out where you've been going wrong and start to make some improvements on that.

You don't have to be perfect. You don't have to fix everything and become a super amazing man.

You just need to start making some improvements so she can experience that when she interacts with you. When she experiences that, she can then start to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

She doesn't have to keep looking down on you as a guy who isn't ready to be the sort of man that she needs. She can see that you're one of the rare men who make a mistake in life, learn from it and become a better man as a result.

You're not like other guys who keep making the same mistake over and over and over again.

You are different.

You are a man who learns from his mistakes and becomes a better man as a result.

Need More Help?

If you've enjoyed this post and you need some more help to get your woman back, I have an amazing step by step system that you can use called, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

I tested this system out with many phone coaching clients before I recorded it into a program. It's the only a proven step by step system to get a woman back.

You will learn exactly what to say and do to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, forgive you, open back up to you and give the relationship another chance.

So, if you ex doesn't currently have feelings for you, don't worry about that, it's not the end of the world.

You can CREATE feelings of respect, attraction and love inside of her again.

You can do that.

You can actively make her feel something for you and then you can build on that and make her have stronger feelings for you the more she interacts with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Ignore Your Ex to Get Her Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Should you ignore your ex-girlfriend, fianc  , or wife if you want her back?

This has to be one of the most common questions that I get, and it's also one of the most common approaches that guys use to try to get a woman back, but the problem is that it doesn't always work.

Ignoring a woman after a breakup will usually only make her come running back to you:

- If she really loves you and still has feelings for you and cannot move on after the breakup.
- If she's inexperienced with relationships and can't deal with the pain of a breakup.
- If she sees that you are moving on with your life and having a great time without her and she still hasn't been able to find a replacement guy.

However, in pretty much all other cases, ignoring her by using the No Contact Rule (i.e.   not contacting her for 30-60 days) just doesn't work.

For example: If a woman breaks up with a guy and she's had enough of him (e.g. he has been too needy, insecure, clingy and controlling) and then she walks away and he ignores her, in most cases she's just going   use that space to move on without him.

In some cases, the woman will contact the guy just to check if he's still missing her.

If she calls him up and he's still missing her and he's trying to get her back, then she realizes, "Oh, okay, he's been using that no-contact rule that everyone talks about on the internet," and then she loses even more respect for him because he's trying to use manipulative tricks to get her back.

This is why I always tell guys that your best chance to get your ex back is to actively spark her feelings of respect, attraction, and love for you when you interact with her.

[image: Ignoring an ex for too long is usually a bad move]

Rather than ignoring a woman and hoping that it causes her to have feelings for you, I recommend being active and making her have feelings for you.

So, say for example you're talking to your ex on the phone.

How can you actively spark some feelings?

Here's an example...

You're talking to her, and she asks you, "Do you miss me?" You say to her, "I'm dying here, I can't sleep, I can't eat, I've lost 20 pounds/kilos. No, I'm only kidding, I'm fine. How are you? You missing me yet?"

She says, "No," and you say, "Yeah, right, you miss me big time."

She then says, "No. I don't miss you," and you can then jokingly say, "Well, regardless of how much you hate me, I love you and I'll be sitting by the phone waiting for the next 40 years in the hope that the one that got away calls me and says 'Hey, I'm an old hag now, but I want you back.'"

By approaching the conversation in that way she's most likely going to   smile and laugh.

What does smiling and laughing do?

It creates some feelings.

She respects that you have the confidence and the social skills to make her laugh and smile in a moment like that.

Compare that to a guy who's on a phone call with his ex and she says, "Do you miss me?" and he replies, "Yes, I miss you. Do you miss me?" She says, "No," and then he says, "Well, do you there's ever going to be a chance for us getting back together?"

She says, "No," and then he says, "Well, I still miss you...I haven't moved on. Are you happy? Do you think there will ever be a chance for you and me?"

By talking to her in that way, he's not actually doing anything to spark her feelings for him again.

She has broken up with him and doesn't have much feelings for him at that point, but he's not doing anything to reignite her feelings. He's just showing her that he needs her back and is lost without her, which isn't attractive to women.

Rather than making her feel respect and attraction by having the confidence to joke around, he is showing her that he's not emotionally strong without her and that he doesn't have the confidence and social skills to turn a question like that into something that both of them can smile and laugh about.

Instead, he's just going down the "pity me" route, where he's trying to make her feel guilty in the hopes that she will give him another chance as a result.

Yet, that's not how it works.

Of course, some women will respond to that and enjoy the fact that her ex is still in a lot of pain without her. She'll want to meet up with him and get him feeling like he has a chance, and then break his heart even more.

There are some mean women out there who want to put their ex through a lot of pain and heartache in that way, but the majority of women are just going to be thinking, "Well, he hasn't even changed; he's still stuck at the same level. He was that when we broke up. My life has been great since and he's just been sitting around licking his wounds. He's just been feeling sad and missing me all the time."

That's not attractive to a woman.

A woman does want to see that a guy has missed her and he still loves her, but she doesn't want to see that his life is a complete mess without her, that he's an emotional wreck without her. She wants to see that he's happy, he's confident and he's forward-moving.

So, if your ex really loves you, has feelings for you, won't be able to handle the pain of the breakup, or if you're already dating lots of women and having a great time, and you think that's going to make her feel jealous and come running back to you, then it's okay to ignore her if you want to use that approach.

However, if you're not feeling good right now, you're hurting as a result of the breakup and you don't really feel confident about re-attracting your ex when you interact with her, then ignoring her isn't the solution.

[image: Most women don't come back if you ignore them]

Most women don't come back if you ignore them, so you need to quickly start to improve on the areas where you are lacking.

Don't waste time ignoring her if you're not doing anything to improve your ability to make her feel respect and attraction for you.

[image: Actively re-attract her rather than ignoring her]

If she contacts you and you still give her the same old experience that turns her off, she isn't going to feel excited to get back with you.

If you want to get some level of respect and attraction back, you've at least got to go beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: If you were insecure in the relationship and that was one of the major reasons why she broke up with you, you're going to need to start becoming emotionally strong.

You don't have to become perfect, but you do need to move beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you, so that when you interact with her on the phone and in person, she will be able to sense it and notice it.

She's going to be able to say, "Hmm...he's not insecure any more. Anything that I say to him, any way I challenge him and test him, he's emotionally strong. He's strong now and, matter of fact, I'm smiling and laughing; I'm enjoying talking to him."

When you approach it in that way, a woman then drops her guard and becomes open to meeting up with you, and when you meet up with her you can get the relationship back together.

At the meet up, you get her to forgive you, you get her to feel the renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, and then you get her to open up to giving the relationship another chance.

Guys do it all the time, all over the world; they get their women back, and you can do it too.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Tell Your Ex That You Still Love Her?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Should you tell your ex-girlfriend, fianc  or wife that you still love her?

Yes.

Don't be afraid to say things like that to her. There is absolutely nothing wrong with loving a woman. Women don't respect guys who have to use tricks to hide their insecurities.

Some guys that I have coached over the years, when they have asked me this question, I have said, "Yes, go ahead and tell her that you love her. There is nothing wrong with that."

Sometimes, a guy will then ask me, "Well, isn't that going to make me lose power? Isn't that going to make me seem needy? Isn't that going to make me seem desperate?"

Not at all.

If you are not desperate and you are not needy, then saying that is not desperate or needy.

However, if a guy is desperate and he's going crazy without his woman, then when he tells her that he loves her and he misses her and things like that, he is mostly likely going to say it in a way that isn't going to sound good to her.

On the other hand, if a guy is emotionally strong and is happy with or without his ex, then he's going to be able to answer in a confident masculine way if she ever asks him, "Do you still love me or do you miss me?"

So, if she asks him, "Do you still love me?" He can then say in a relaxed, confident, easy-going, but assertive tone of voice, "Yeah, of course, I do. You are the woman that I love the most in the world. You know, you and I have broken up. I accept that, but of course, I love you."

When you answer in this way, she can't help but respect you because you are confident. You believe in yourself, and you are fearless when it comes to love. You don't feel like you going to lose any power by saying that.

However, when an insecure guy tries to hide his love for his ex-girlfriend, fianc  or wife and she asks him, "Do you still love me?" and he says, "I'm not sure. I don't know. Don't ask me those questions," or even says, "No," when she knows that he does love her, it's going to make her lose respect for him.

She's going to lose respect for the fact that he cannot stand up and be who he really is. He's trying to protect his fragile heart, and he doesn't want to get hurt by saying that he loves her and then her saying, "Well, I don't love you." Then that destroys him.

A woman doesn't want to be the one who's in control of how you feel. She wants you to be happy, confident, and forward moving in life with or without her.

Of course, that doesn't mean that you say something like that to her and say, "Oh, I'm happy with or without you. I don't need you."

You don't need to say that to a woman. She needs to feel that when she's interacting with you. She can feel that and notice it when you talk to her in that honest, masculine, fearlessly loving way. You've got nothing to fear and know that you're not going to lose any power because you are the man.

In life, you don't lose any power by saying something unless you just decide that you lose power. If you think about some social interactions that people have, they're afraid to say some things to other people because they feel like they're going to lose power.

Those people are insecure and often pushed into the background, and ignored, and made fun of whereas someone who's not afraid to say what they really feel is usually respected.

Of course, I'm not talking about obnoxious people that say crazy things. I'm talking about the person who believes in themselves and isn't afraid to say what they really feel in a respectful manner.

When it comes to relationships, if a guy is insecure and he's afraid to express his love or show his love, then he's going to ruin pretty much every relationship that he gets into with a woman.

She's going to feel turned off by his insecurity regarding love, and she's never going to get to experience what it feels like to be in a relationship with a man who's fearless when it comes to love.

Now, of course, when I talk about being fearless with love, I'm not talking about a guy saying to a woman, "You know, you mean everything to me. I love you so much. You're everything. My life is crap without you. I'm going to kill myself if you don't get back with me."

That's not fearless with love. That is desperate, clingy, and needy type of love. That's not the type of love that women are attracted to.

Women are attracted to a man who is not afraid to say that he loves a woman, but at the same time, he's not saying, "Hey, I need you for my emotional support here. I need you for my emotional stability. If you don't say that you love me back, then I'm going to crumble into a thousand pieces."

She doesn't want to experience that.

She wants to experience a man who's not afraid to tell her he loves her, and after he says that he loves her, he's not expecting anything back.

If she doesn't say anything or if she says something bad, he's still going to be just as confident and happy with himself.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Impress Your Ex and Make Her Want You Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So how can you impress your ex-girlfriend, fianc ©, or wife and show her that you really have changed and improved?

Essentially, you need to show her that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

If you try to get her back at the level you were at when she broke up with you, you're most likely going to fail because it's not going to satisfy her. She's had enough of the guy who is stuck at your level.

Her guard will start to come down when she sees that you have begun to change in the ways that are important to her.

For example: If a man was dumped by a woman because he was too emotionally sensitive and insecure (e.g. he became very jealous, he was clingy, he needed her constant reassurance that she felt attracted to him and loved him, etc), she isn't going to want him back if he still hasn't worked out how to be emotionally strong and emotionally mature.

Most women will put up with that a guy's insecurity for a while, but if it keeps going on and on and on, a woman will lose respect for the guy.

She will then start to lose attraction for him, because a woman really can't maintain her feelings of attraction for a guy that she doesn't respect.

So, if a guy like that wants his ex-girlfriend, fianc © or wife to drop her guard and become open to interacting with him in person, talking about the relationship and giving him another chance, he needs to show her that he really has moved beyond that level as a man.

She's not going to feel happy taking a guy back who's still stuck at the same level that he was at when she broke up with him. She wants to see that he has become a better man as a result of the break up.

[image: Show her that you have improved and changed]

A lot of women go through life saying, "A leopard can't change its spots" or "If a man makes a mistake once, he'll never be able to change. They're all the same, they can never change. If he stuffs up, just dump him and move on."

Women will have those sort of mindsets because they come across guys who don't change.

Yet, you can be the exception.

You can be one of the rare men who actually do change as a result of a breakup, by going beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

Another example of is where a guy has been broken up with because he took his woman for granted. How can he move beyond the level of taking her for granted (e.g. treating her like crap or not being willing to commit)?

The obvious answer sounds like, "Okay well, he must start showing her lots of appreciation and attention. He must tell her that he wants to commit to her. He must really go above and beyond to show her how committed he is to her."

No, that's not it at all.

When I've helped phone-coaching clients to get their women back, the guys who have taken their women for granted are intelligent enough to have already tried that.

The woman says, "You treated me like crap" or "You weren't willing to commit to me," and the guy then starts treating her really, really well, proposing to her or being willing to basically do anything for her. So he's already tried that, and it's not working. Why? Because that is not the next level.

The next level in a case like that is to simply show her that he now understands and to get her to understand that it's okay for a guy to make mistakes in a relationship and then become a better man as a result.

The next level is a mutual understanding that mistakes do happen and it doesn't mean the end of a relationship.

For example: A guy has taken his woman for granted because he didn't see her very often. She wanted to see him and he was always too busy doing other things, and he just thought, "Well she'll stick around, she's my girlfriend or fiancée or wife. She'll put up with it because we're in love."

She then eventually gets to the point where she says, "Look, I'm sick of this. I don't want to be in a relationship anymore. You take me for granted," etc.

If he then starts showing her loads of affection and pleading with her and saying, "I'm sorry! I'll do anything to make you happy! Please! Please! Please!" that actually makes her lose some respect for him because she sees him in desperation mode.

Women don't want to see a man in desperation mode.

Women want to see a man who is in control of his emotions and he's able to use these bumps in the road in a relationship to actually deepen the respect, attraction, and love that they both feel for each other.

So rather than going into desperation mode, what a guy needs to do is show her that he knows that he's made a mistake, but then guide the conversation towards a mutual understanding that it's okay to make mistakes in a relationship and it's not the end of a relationship.

He needs to get her to understand that for a couple to stay together for life, they both need to love each other patiently. They need to constantly forgive each other for these minor mistakes that really can be fixed.

A guy taking his woman for granted is not the end of the world.

If they both loved each other and they had a great relationship, but there was the problem of him taking her for granted, that's not the end of the world, that's not the end of the story, that's not unfixable.

It's simply an example of him learning a lesson of how to have a happy, successful relationship. Everyone makes mistakes in relationships, even her.

So, at that point, he can say to her, "Hey, I get it. I've been taking you for granted. You're always wanting to catch up and things, and I've been too busy with work. I've been too focused on that. Clearly, you've gotten to the point now where you're just sick of that. I get it. One thing I want you to understand, though, is that we both have made some mistakes in this relationship. You remember the time you did that and you did this? Well, it turns out that I've done this. I've taken you for granted, and that isn't the right way to go about having a happy, successful relationship. I get that now, but I also get that you are probably at the point where you've had enough. You don't even want to consider giving me another chance right now. That, I understand, because you're hurt right now and you've gotten to the point where you've had enough of it."

After saying that to her, it then calms things down.

He's not asking her to take him back; he's simply stating that he understands where he went wrong, and also helping her understand how relationships actually work.

When faced with problems in a relationship, the immature thing to do is to run from those problems. Yet, the mature thing to do is to work on those problems and use them as an opportunity to deepen the respect, attraction and love that you feel for each other.

Of course, when a woman is at the point where she's breaking up with a guy, she usually doesn't want to talk about deepening any feelings.

She wants to get away from him because she's had enough, but by having that type of conversation with her, it calms things down and he can then go through the rest of the process of getting a woman back, which is to rebuild her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him.

In every interaction that he has with her from then on, he has to use it as an opportunity to rebuild her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him again.

He can get some of that back via text, but the biggest impacts happen when you talk to your ex on the phone and when you interact with her in person.

It's in those moments that she can really hear and see that you have changed; you have gone beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

Next Level Respect and Attraction

To recap, here are the two examples of next level of respect and attraction.

The first example was if a guy was insecure and emotionally sensitive. What he needs to do is show her that he's become confident and emotionally strong when he interacts with her. He can then start to rebuild her feelings.

In the other example where a guy has taken his woman for granted, he needs to give her a relationship reality check to let her know that everyone makes mistakes in a relationship and a mistake like that isn't something that's unfixable.

People can learn from mistakes and a guy can become a better man as a result of learning from his mistakes in a relationship. It is then possible for the relationship to get better from then on and be better than it ever was before.

After the relationship reality check, he needs to then start rebuilding her feelings.

He also needs to make her feel appreciated, loved, and wanted, but not in a desperate way.

When a guy gets dumped for taking a woman for granted, he often makes the mistake of just going straight for making her feel really appreciated, loved, and wanted, and he comes across as desperate.

For example: He starts buying her gifts, offering to take her on holidays, proposing marriage to her, and basically treating her like a princess. There's nothing wrong with treating a woman really well, but if you don't go through the other steps first, it just doesn't have the same impact.

In some cases, it will also be good to give the woman anywhere from 3-7 days of space where you're not contacting her or hassling her. However, it's not always necessary to do that and in many cases that I see, a guy is able to get his woman on the phone right away, sort things out, meet up with her, and start rebuilding her feelings for him.

So, in most cases, rather than ignoring the woman, what a guy really needs to do is let her experience respect and attraction for the new and improved version of him, and then guide her back into a relationship with him.

If you don't know exactly what to say or do to get your woman back, and you need help with that, I do have an amazing program called Get Your Ex Back Super System.

It's a step-by-step system; it's 10 hours of video training and by the end of the 10 hours, you'll be ready to contact your ex, get her to meet up with you, bring her guard down, start rebuilding her feelings for you, and guide her back into a relationship with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex to Forgive You in 3 Simple Steps

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How can you get your ex-girlfriend, fianc  or wife to forgive your mistakes and give you another chance?

Essentially you need to go through these three steps.

1. Show her that you've learnt from your mistakes and have already changed.
2. Educate her on the reality of relationships.
3. Get her to forgive you for her own benefit.

1. Show her that you've learnt from your mistakes and have already changed

[image: Show her that you have already changed]

The first part of getting her to forgive you is giving her some evidence that you really have changed, because if you can't show her that, everything else that you're saying to her really isn't going to sound that authentic and believable.

She's going to be thinking, "Well yeah, you're saying all these nice things but how can I believe you? You haven't even changed. You're still the same guy that I broke up with. You're still stuck at the same level that you were at when I broke up with you."

Some quick examples of how to show your ex that you've learnt from your mistakes are, if a guy was insecure and that was one of the main reasons why she broke up with him, he needs to now start showing her that he's emotionally secure. He's emotionally strong.

Another example is where a guy lacked purpose in life and because he lacked goals and ambitions in life, he focused way too much on her. He made his whole life about her and was clingy and needy and controlling, jealous etc.

To show her that he's learned from his mistakes and he's started to change, he needs to let her see that he now has some big goals and ambitions in life and he's starting to make some progress towards that.

He doesn't have to have achieved his goals and ambitions already, but he needs to have started to make progress towards that.

Another example is where a woman broke up with a guy because there was always constant arguing and fighting and misunderstandings and she was just sick of it. Their relationship was just too stressful, too annoying, too frustrating, too irritating, and she just turned her back on her guy, and then she left him.

So, to let her see that he's learned from his mistakes and he's started to change, what needs to happen is when he interacts with her from now on, he needs to be able to create some smiling and laughter and good vibes when they're talking to each other.

When she says things that would normally piss him off or irritate him and make him want to argue and get angry, he instead laughs and turns it into something to laugh about together, to joke about together and they end up smiling and laughing and feeling good.

He doesn't have to do that with everything that she says, but he needs to show her that he's started to make some changes and that it's no longer so stressful to be talking to him. When she talks to him now she's smiling and laughing. It feels good to be interacting with him.

2. Educate her on the reality of relationships

[image: Give her an education on the reality of relationships]

The second part of getting your woman to forgive your mistakes is to educate her on the reality of relationships.

What I mean by the "reality of relationships" is that a lot of people go through life with a mistaken idea of how relationships should work, rather than how they actually work in reality.

For example: some people think that if they're in a relationship and there are mistakes that have been made, there's a loss of respect and attraction and love, it means that the other person isn't the one and have to turn their back, walk away and never look back again.

Yet that isn't how real relationships work.

Successful couples who stay together for life, they love each other patiently, they forgive each other constantly, as long as the other person in the relationship is always trying to become better and is learning from their mistakes and becoming a better person as a result.

Of course, if you've been broken up with by a woman, then you most likely made mistakes and kept making those mistakes over and over and over again, and she's at the point now where she's sick of that.

Yet, that was you before, not now.

You can learn from your mistakes and become a better man as a result.

You don't have to keep making the same mistakes over and over and over and over again.

You are capable of learning from your mistakes and starting to do things right from now on.

Now when you're explaining that to your woman, it's important that you're not using that as the main reason why she should get back with you.

For example: You shouldn't be saying to her, "Hey, everyone makes mistakes and I can learn from my mistakes, so we should be back together. We don't need to turn our backs on each other and walk away."

That isn't enough for most women to want to give the relationship another chance. You've also got to show her that you've changed, you've started to learn from your mistakes and that you really can make her feel differently now.

When she interacts with you she laughs, she smiles, she feels good. She feels respect for you, she feels attracted to you and she's starting to feel love for you again.

When that happens, she starts to pay more attention and place more value on what you've said. She starts to understand the hang on.

The way that some people think about relationships where they say that if there are mistakes and there's a breakup, you have to turn away and walk away and never look back, that's actually wrong.

It's actually possible to fall out of love with someone or to feel turned off by them, and for them then to change and become a better person, and for the feelings to then come flooding back.

It's also possible for the relationship to be even better than it was before, because the guy's not making the rookie mistakes that he used to make in the past.

You need to be able to explain to her that we all start out at a rookie level, at a beginner level when it comes to relationships.

Some guys learn a bit faster than others and some women learn a bit faster than others, but what makes a relationship last for life is when both people become better for each other over time.

Obviously if you been broken up with, you didn't become better for her over time, but that was you before, not now.

3. Get her to forgive you for her own benefit

[image: Get her to forgive you for your own benefit]

The final part of getting her to forgive you is to get her to forgive you for her own benefit.

What you need to explain to her is that if she doesn't forgive you, and she goes into another relationship, she's going to be carrying unnecessary baggage into her next relationship and it's going to cause problems for her.

Let her know that the mature way to handle a breakup is to actually forgive each other, rather than holding onto grudges and having unnecessary baggage as a result. Let her know that she's going to feel lighter, she's going to feel better if she can just accept the fact that you did make mistakes.

You weren't perfect at everything that you said and did in the relationship. You did make some mistakes, but you know what? It's nothing that she needs to hold against you for life.

You and her had some great times.

You did feel good with each other.

You then stuffed things up, but that doesn't mean she needs to hold that against you for life and feel negative and angry and resentful towards you for life, because that's just not going to be good for her.

Now of course, some guys watching this might be thinking, "Huh? Moving on to her next relationship, no baggage? Does that mean that I'm telling her to move on?"

No.

This is one of the really cool things about getting your woman to forgive you.

When you give her that freedom to not have baggage in her future relationship and she forgives you as a result of that, she stops looking at you in a negative way. She stops thinking about the mistakes that you made in a bad way.

She stops looking at you with that resentment.

She starts to look at you in a more positive light.

Her guard starts to come down, and when her guard comes down and she's more open to you, you can then start making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, and when you do that, she'll start to reconnect with the love.

[image: Change how she feels about you during interactions]

When you get to that point of the reconciliation process, you've got to be confident and guide her back into a relationship with you. Don't give up, don't feel like it's impossible. You can do it. Guys all over the world get their women back every day, and you can do it too.

In some cases the woman remains cold and distant and doesn't make it easy for her guy to get back with her, but it can be done as long as you focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you again.

Every interaction that you have with her from now on, use it as an opportunity to make her feel something for you. Make her feel some respect and attraction. When you do that, she'll start to reconnect with the love again and you can then guide her back into a relationship with you.

By the way, if you need more help getting your woman back and you'd like to follow a proven step-by-step system, I recommend that you watch my amazing program, Get Your Ex Back Super System. Guys all over the world have been using it to get women back, and you can do it to.

You Can Get Her to Forgive You Now, Not Months or Years From Now

I don't recommend that you waste time ignoring your ex and feeling like it's gonna take a lot of time for her to forgive you.

You can get a woman to forgive you very quickly.

If she's being sensitive about it and she's being a pain in the butt and saying, "I don't know if I can forgive you," you need to turn that into a bit of a joke. You need to turn it into something to laugh about.

So for example, if she's saying, "I don't know if I'm ready to forgive you," you should laugh and say, "Ha! When are you going to be ready, in 100 years? Is it going to take you another 50 years? You're maybe going to have to have gray hairs first before you can forgive me? Come on, you're stronger than that. You're capable of forgiving. You can continue holding on to resentment and not having that emotional strength to forgive me, but it's not going to help you now or in the long run. You're a strong girl, you can forgive me, people forgive each other after breakups, you can do it. It's going to make you feel better, so there's no point delaying it and feeling miserable as a result. There's no point harboring a grudge against me because I made some mistakes in a relationship...we all make mistakes."

You need to let her see that holding onto the resentment is an immature thing to do, and it's also an ineffective thing to do.

It's not going to help her to continue holding any resentment or negative feelings towards you, it's actually going to make her feel better to forgive you. When she forgives you, her guard naturally comes down.

That's the beautiful thing about the psychology of forgiveness.

When she forgives you, her guard comes down and she becomes open to looking at you in a positive light and having some feelings for you.

As long as you're using every interaction that you have with her to make her feel something for you, then you're going to be rebuilding her feelings and you're going be able to guide her back into a relationship with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Can you Convince Your Ex to Give You Another Chance?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Can you convince your ex to give you another chance?

Yes, but not in the way that most guys do it.

Most guys try to convince their woman to give them another chance by begging and pleading, and explaining all the reasons why she should give him another chance.

That works sometimes when the woman still has some feelings for the guy and she wants to give him another chance, but when a woman has got to the point where she's had enough of her guy, the begging, pleading and reasoning just stops working.

He can say whatever he wants to her and it's just not going to work because at the end of the day, she just doesn't feel enough respect, attraction, and love for him anymore.

So, what should you do if you are in that situation (i.e. your ex doesn't have feelings for you, and she's not responding to your attempts to convince her to give you another chance)?

In these situations, what I found works the best is when you interact with her, just focus on making smile, laugh, and feel happy. When you make a woman smile, laugh, and feel happy, she can't hold on to negative, angry feelings about you.

Her negative feelings just start to fade away. She starts to relax her guard, and she opens herself up to interact with you even more and more.

For example: If a guy is talking with his ex-woman on the phone and she asks, "Are you seeing anyone yet?" and he responds, "No, I am not seeing anyone yet. How about you?" then, there is nothing that is going to make her smile or laugh or feel happy.

Yet, he does have an opportunity to make her smile, laugh, and feel happy.

Every interaction that you have with her there is opportunities there to make it happen.

So, if she asks you, "Are you seeing anyone yet?" You can reply in a joking manner. You don't have to take it seriously. You can say, "Yeah, of course. I've got five new girlfriends already. I'm seeing loads of women. Is that okay? I wasn't sure if it was okay to bring it up."

[image: Attract her over the phone, rather than trying to convince her]

Turn it into something to laugh about. You don't need to take it so seriously.

Another example reply to her question, "Are you seeing anyone yet?" is to say something like, "Yeah, I am seeing a new woman. She's four foot tall and she is a midget. Is that okay?"

Note: I know some people are going to find that rude to talk about a midget or whatever, but the point is you making light of her question.

You are turning it into something to laugh about. You are making fun of her asking you that question. You are not thrown off by it and you are not panicking. You are not worrying. You're not thinking "What if I say this and then she thinks that?"

You're just saying whatever you feel like and you are not taking it so seriously.

As a result, she is most likely going to smile, maybe have a little bit of a laugh, and she is going to feel happy when she is interacting with you.

By the way, if the woman responded and said, “That is rude,” a guy still can make it into something to laugh about. He can make fun of her for being so emotionally sensitive. It doesn’t have to be pushed around by that sort of politically correct response from her.

So if she says, “That’s rude to say that,” he can say to her, “You are so emotionally sensitive. Everything’s got to be super polite and politically correct. Geez, I’d hate to see the comedy shows that you go to. Imagine the jokes they’ll be telling there. ‘The chicken crossed the road and he got to the other side.’”

Basically you are turning it into something to laugh about. You’re making fun of her and you are making fun of the response, but you are not being an asshole about it. You are still being fun, easy-going, loving guy.

The whole point of making her smile, laugh, and feel happy is that then you don’t have to do much convincing to get her back, because she starts to have feelings for you again.

She starts to feel good when she is interacting with you and her guard comes down.

When an ex’s guard comes down and she is open to interacting with you and having feelings for you, you can then really turn it on and make her feel a lot of respect, attraction, and love to you again.

How can you do that?

Making Her Feel Respect, Attraction and Love For You Again

[image: Attract her in person, rather than trying to convince her with logic]

One of the ways to do regain her respect is to show her you have moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: A guy got broken up with by a woman because he lacked purpose and direction in life. He was just clinging on to her and he really didn’t have much purpose in life other than just being in a relationship with her.

To show her that he has moved beyond the level that he was at when she broke up with him, he is going to need to show her that he now has some big goals, dreams, and ambitions, and he’s starting to make progress towards them.

He doesn’t have to have achieved all these big goals, dreams, and ambitions and he doesn’t have to become this super amazing man. Instead, he just needs to start making progress. She can then see that he’s not stuck, and he’s not the same guy that she broke up with.

He really has improved, which is going to make it a lot easier for her to say to her friends and family, “No, no. He’s not the same guy anymore. Things are really different now. I feel good. I feel like we are in love again. I feel like this can work.”

A Sad, But Important to Know Truth About Relationships

Something else that is really important to understand in terms of trying to convince a woman to give you another chance is to understand that you don’t own her.

It is one of those sad truths about relationships where a woman was an individual before the relationship, she was individual while she was in the relationship, and she’s individual now that is out of the relationship.

Relationship is a decision to be together and either the man or the woman, or both of them can decide not to be together.

A relationship stays together when both people are happy to decide that they want stay together.

So, when a guy is trying to convince a woman to give him another chance, he often feels like he owns her and he's got the right to stay in a relationship with her because he is her boyfriend or fiancé, or husband, but really – he doesn't have any ownership over her.

Of course, in the distant past, a man would own his woman and he could treat her badly, and she would have to stick with him for life because it was shameful to get divorced. In the past, there wasn't any dating scene and there wasn't any premarital sex.

It was a case of a woman remaining virgin until marriage. When she was ready to get married, she chose a man, got married to him, lost her virginity, and had to stick with him for life even if he made her feel unhappy and treated her badly.

However, in today's world, a woman can leave a man if she decides to do so.

Society around her supports her, pop singers support her with their lyrics, movies, TV shows, talk show hosts, they all say, "Hey, girl, if he is not treating you well, leave him. Hey girl, if you are unhappy, go find another man who is right for you."

So, a mistake that some guys make when they are trying to convince their woman to give them another chance is that he will expect her to give him another chance just because he has been her boyfriend, fiancé or husband.

Unfortunately, that's just not the way that the world works anymore.

If you want a woman to stay with you, you've actually got to be the sort of man that a woman wants to stay with and that really involves deepening the respect, attraction, and love over time.

At the start of a relationship, it's very easy to make a woman feel some respect, attraction, and love for you because it's all very exciting, and she is feeling a lot of lust, and it is all new and novel.

However, when the relationship continues on, if a guy is treating his woman badly or he is turning her off by being insecure, taking her for granted, being controlling, jealous, etc., that initial respect, attraction, and love starts to fade away.

These days a woman doesn't stick around just because a relationship felt good at the start. You've got to be able to build on her feelings for you over time.

What You Need to Do to Get Her Back

[image: Re-attracting her rather than trying to convince her]

If you are serious about getting her back, what you need to do is use every interaction that you have with her via text, on a phone call, or in person to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, her guard comes down and you can then build on her feelings for you and guide her back into a relationship.

Two ways that you can start doing that are to:

1. Make her smile, laugh, and feeling happy when she interacts with you.
2. Show her that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

She will then begin to convince herself that she wants to give you another chance.

That is the way to do it.

You've got to make her have enough feelings for you where she starts to convince herself that she wants to be with you and that life just doesn't feel right without you.

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this post. If you need more help, I just want to let you know that I have an amazing, proven to work, step by step system for getting a woman back, called Get Your Ex Back Super System.

It's 10 hours of video, and by the end of it, you will know exactly what to say and do to get her to give you another chance.

I don't recommend that you waste time on endless phone calls trying to convince her to give you another chance by saying, "Hey, I've changed. I promise. I will do anything. I am a great guy now. I will do whatever you want. I will treat you so well. I am not the same as I used to be."

That approach only works sometimes when a woman is going through some initial breakups, she still loves the guy, she still wants to be with him and she gives him another chance.

However, if your girl has gotten to the point where she's had enough and doesn't want to be with you, she is not going to listen to your attempts to convince her to give you another chance.

You've got to make her have some feelings for you, so she starts open herself up to getting back with you and you can then guide her back into a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Some Guys Fail to Get Their Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The main reason why some guys fail to get their woman back is that they don't know how to make her feel attracted in the ways that she really wants.

Some guys feel as though it would be wrong to attempt to attract her in the ways that I'm going to explain in this post.

For example: If a guy is talking to his ex girlfriend, fianc  , or wife on the phone and she's going on and on about things, ranting on and on telling him how bad of a guy he is and how annoyed she is, how pissed off she is, etc, a lot of guys will just sit there and take it.

There are times when the guy needs to just sit there and listen and say, "Okay, yeah you're right. I was wrong there. That was my mistake. I'm sorry."

Yet, if a guy's all ready done that, he doesn't need to keep taking that verbal punishment over and over and over again. What's going to make her feel attracted in a moment like that is a man who stands up for himself, but still continues to be a loving man.

When you stand up for yourself, it's not about putting her down. It's about standing up for yourself, showing her that you are the man, but also bringing the interaction back to love.

For example: A guy is talking to his ex girlfriend and she's going on and on complaining about how he treated her in the relationship and saying the thing that she said over and over and over again before (e.g. that he never did the dishes).

What he can say at that point is, "Okay, so you want to talk to me about how I didn't do the dishes. Tell me all about it, but let me just say this – you've already said it about five times, so let's just say this one last time and then I'll say yes, I understand and say that I'm sorry and then we don't need to bring it up again."

She then continues on, says the thing about the dishes and then a few minutes later in the conversation she brings it up again.

At that point he can say, "Oh right, here we go again. So, now we're at number six...let's see if we can make it to number 10 before the end of this phone call. If you mention it 10 times by the end of this phone call you win a prize."

Talking to her in that way brings the conversation back to laughter and smiling, while still being a loving man.

It shows her that, "Hey, I'm in charge here. I'm in control. I'm the man. You don't push me around," but at the same time, "When I take power and control I don't do it in a mean way. I don't do it in an unloving way. I'm still being that loving man."

When you come from a place of love, you are always in the higher position. You cannot lose when you're coming from a place of love.

When you are also being a masculine man who stands up for himself, that is the sort of thing that deepens a woman's respect, attraction, and love for you when in a relationship.

Another example is where a woman will text her ex boyfriend, fianc  , or husband and ask, "Do you miss me?" Some guys will reply with, "Yes, I miss you. Do you miss me?"

There's nothing wrong with replying like that, but there's also nothing there that's going to get her smiling and laughing and thinking that it's fun to interact with him, especially if during the breakup he was clingy and needy and insecure and didn't take the breakup very well.

Another example reply to the question of, "Do you miss me?" is when a guy will try to go in the opposite direction and say, "No, I'm fine. I've moved on. Life is good."

Now if that is true, then there's nothing wrong with a guy saying it. However, if he's only putting on an act and he really does want to get her back and he really does miss her, then there's no point in lying to her like that.

Of course, sometimes lying to a woman like that will cause an insecure woman to think, "Huh? He doesn't like me?! He doesn't care about me anymore. He doesn't miss me. I'm going to start flirting with him now and see if I can get him to like me again and miss me and then I'm going to break up with him again and really make him hurt this time."

However, there's no need for all those games.

What I recommend that you do is text her in a way where she can't help but smile when she gets a text from you.

For example: You can reply and say, "Yes, I've been missing you so much that I've lost 20 pounds (20 kilos). I can't sleep, I can't eat. I'm dying here! Lol...just kidding. Of course I do miss you at times, but I'm fine. How about you? Are you missing me yet?"

The point of sending her a text like that is to show her that you're not an emotional mess without her, but you're also being honest and telling her that you do miss her at times.

This helps to bring her guard down when she's texting back and forth with you because she can see that it's really not a big drama to be texting with you.

You're not being needy, you're not being insecure. You're not lying or trying to use tricks on her.

You're just being cool and being confident and joking around and you're not really trying to get anything from her.

You also have the confidence to say, "How about you? Are you missing me yet?" Which is actually a confident flirtatious thing to say.

If she comes back and says, "No I'm not missing you," you can reply with, "Yeah right ;)" and add in, "I know you're missing me like crazy."

After that, the best thing to do is to get her on a phone call.

Get her smiling and laughing while she's having a chat with you on the phone call. When you do that, she will then become more open to talking with you and meeting up with you in person. Her guard will come down and she will begin to open herself up to having feelings for you again.

The most important thing about getting her smiling and laughing is that it brings down her guard.

She realizes that she doesn't need to be so cold and distant and tough when interacting with you. She doesn't have to act like she doesn't like interacting with you because when she interacts with you, she smiles and laughs and she feels good.

Don't Waste Time Trying to Convince Her

Some guys fail to get their ex back because they don't focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for them.

Instead, a guy will sometimes waste a lot of time and energy trying to convince his woman why she should give him another chance. For example: He will tell her that he has changed, that they had a great relationship before, he is sorry, she means everything to him, etc.

Some guys will also try to get a woman back by buying gifts for her, paying for her rent, or helping her out financially. Yet, that isn't what makes a woman feel respect and attraction for a man and want to be back with him in a relationship.

She might take the money and support that he's offering her, but it's not going to make her fall back in love with him.

A woman only appreciates gifts and support when it comes from a man that she respects, feels attracted to and loves. So, when a guy is trying to buy his woman back or impress her back in those ways it just doesn't work.

When a guy feels like he's done his best to show the woman that he's changed, that he really loves her and that he's willing to do anything and it's not working, he will then often think that he needs to start ignoring her and hope that she comes running back to him.

Yet, walking away usually only gets a woman back if she is still in love with the guy. If a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, there is nothing for her to come running back to if he walks away.

She will almost always just use the time that he is ignoring her to move on with another guy, or to get over him and open herself up to dating.

What actually works to get a woman back is when you actively rebuild her feelings of respect, attraction, and love for you during interactions (i.e. via text, on the phone and in person).

To get your ex girlfriend, fiancé or wife back, you need to be able to get her to respect you during conversations and then begin to trigger her feelings of attraction by making her smile, laugh, and enjoy interacting with you.

When you do that to a woman, she will automatically begin to drop her guard and become open to forgiving you, accepting your apology, and meeting up with you in person.

When you meet up with her in person, you can then make her feel respect, attraction and love for you in new and exciting ways. You have to be willing though to change the way that you've been talking to her and interacting with her.

I'll give you a quote here from Albert Einstein to really illustrate my point, "We cannot solve our problems with the same thinking we used when we created them."

In other words, if what you've tried so far hasn't been working you shouldn't keep trying the same thing over and over again.

For example: If you've been ignoring her and she's not running back to you, then you've got to stop ignoring her. If you've been trying to convince her to give you another chance by pointing out the reasons why she should give you another chance and that's not working, you should stop doing that too.

What I want you to know is that you can actively flick her attraction switch back on, but you have to be willing to start talking to her and interacting with her in new ways that are going to make her smile and laugh when she's interacting with you.

If you want to greatly improve the chances of getting your ex back, you must be willing to stop saying and doing the things that have been turning her off.

You also have to be willing to interact with her in ways that are going to make her look up to you and respect you as the man. It's not about putting her down and making her feel like she's lower than you and she's nothing compared to you, or that you are the boss and she has to listen to everything that you say.

Instead, it's about being the man in a loving way.

When I coach guys via my phone coaching service I often come across guys and men who are very good guys. They are usually intelligent, successful in their career or if they are still at university, they are doing well and heading towards a great career.

Despite their intelligence, these men still make some classic mistakes when trying to get a woman back that pretty much every other guy makes. He isn't failing at getting his ex back because he is silly or lacks IQ, but simply because he is using the wrong approach.

For example: Many guys try to reason with an ex girlfriend, fiancée, or wife by saying, "Why are you being like this? I'm a good guy. I've changed. I've apologized. Why can't you see that we had a great loving relationship before? Why can't you see that? Just give me another chance."

Yet, the problem with that is when a woman doesn't fully respect a guy as a man, all those things that he's saying are just annoying and irritating to her. It doesn't mean anything to her. It's like, "Who is this guy trying to tell me what to do when I don't even respect him?"

If you think about someone in your life who you don't respect and look up to and they're trying to tell you what to do and reason with you and get you to think the way that they want you to think, it just doesn't wash with you.

You're look at them and think, "Yeah, well who are you? I don't even respect you."

Yet, if you respect someone and look up to them and trust them, you are then more willing to listen to them and what they have to say.

This is why getting your ex to respect you again is the most important thing that you have to do when you begin trying to get her back. Once she respects you again and starts to feel attracted to you, then she starts to reconnect with the love that she used to have for you.

As long as you're making her feel respect and attraction for you in new and exciting ways while you're interacting with her, she's going to be happy to reconnect with that love.

It's going to feel good to interact with you in person. It's going to be good to hear your voice over the phone. It's going to feel good to be embraced by you.

You Can Re-Spark Her Feelings For You Again

The main point that I want you to understand here is that you can re-spark her feelings for you. Re-sparking her feelings is something that you can actively do while you interact with her via text, on the phone, in person and in the bedroom with her.

If you are saying and doing the types of things that are making her reconnect with her feelings for you and experience new and exciting feelings for you, then she is naturally going to drop her guard and become more open to you.

She might act as though it's not really having an effect on her, but that act can only last so long.

Once she smiles and laughs a few times, there's just no point in acting anymore.

She's enjoying interacting with you and that's what counts. Then, when you meet up with her, there are specific things that you need to say and do to get her to give you another chance and start the relationship again.

If you want to learn exactly what to say and do at each step of the process to get your ex back, I recommend that you watch my 10 hour video program called, Get Your Ex Back Super System

It also comes with two bonus programs. One of them is about getting her on the phone, texting her, contacting her via Facebook or social media, and the other program is about having ultimate makeup sex where you make her feel attracted in new ways in the bedroom.

You Are Allowed to Make Her Have Feelings For You Again

One final point I want to make for you is that she is currently your ex, but that doesn't mean you're not allowed to make her feel attracted to you again.

Some of the guys that I coach have said to me, "Well I don't really feel like it's my place to joke around with her anymore or flirt with her because we've broken up" or, "She has a new guy" or, "She said that she hates me."

Doubting yourself and being insecure like that is not the way to get a woman back.

You need to be stronger than that.

You need to believe in yourself. You need to know there's nothing wrong with being a loving man. There's nothing wrong with guiding an interaction towards love, smiling and laughter. There's nothing wrong with that.

You are allowed to make her smile and laugh and feel love.

She might not make that obvious to you, she might not tell you, "Hey make me smile, make me laugh, make me fall in love with you again," but what she's going to respond to is when you are strong enough and skilled enough to make that happen.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

17 Signs That Your Ex Might Want You Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I'm going to explain 17 signs that your ex might want you back.

It's important to understand that any one of these signs could also just be a trick by the woman, where she's trying to keep the guy around for a while to move on, or she's trying to get him to show more interest in her so she then feels good about herself, etc.

So, none of these signs here are absolute 100% guarantees that your ex wants you back.

However, here is the really important part...

When getting a woman back you must look at these signs in a positive light. The more confident you are when getting a woman back, the easier it is to get her back.

If a guy isn't confident, what's he going to be doing? He's going to be hesitating to text his ex. He's going to be hesitating to call her up on the phone.

He's going to worry about her saying no if he asks her to meet up with him, and he's also not going to be very confident when he talks to her on the phone, and when he interacts with her in person.

You must be confident when getting a woman back, because women are not attracted to the emotional weakness of men.

If you're being insecure and self-doubting when you're trying to get a woman back, she will feel turned off and it will be much more difficult to get her back.

Yet, when you are confident, you then have that confidence to text her, get her on a phone call, make her laugh and smile when you're talking to her on the phone, make her feel attracted to you and respect you when you interact with her in person and confidently make a move when the time is right to get her to hug you, kiss you, or have sex with you again.

Okay, so now I'm going to explain these 17 signs that your ex might want you back...

1. She contacts you without you contacting her

This is a classic example of where a guy could be insecure if he wanted to, or he could be confident if he wanted to.

If a guy is trying to get his woman back, and she contacts him and he's insecure, he might be thinking things like, "Oh, well this doesn't mean that she likes me. She's just trying to contact me to see if I'm still missing her, or maybe she just wants to find something out, or maybe she's just contacting me because she wants to be friendly, or because she feels sorry for me."

Having those sort of insecure, self-doubting mindsets isn't going to help a guy get his ex back. What a guy needs to do when getting a woman back is be confident. Very confident. You've got to believe in yourself no matter what.

So, when you see that she contacts you without you contacting her, you've got to smile and say, "Ha. She wants to get in touch with me because she misses me." That then allows you to talk, think, feel, behave, and act in a more confident way, which is much more productive when getting a woman back than being insecure.

2. She likes your posts on social media

Once again, she could just be clicking “Like” for the heck of it, or she might want to just mess with you.

You can think in that insecure way if you want to, but I don’t recommend it. If you want to get a woman back, you’ve got to be confident.

When you see her clicking “Like” on your posts, look at it in a positive light and say, “Ah, right. She wants me to contact her. She wants me to meet up with her. She’s missing me. She’s trying to show me that she’s still thinking about me, or that she’s still open to us interacting. If she didn’t want to interact with me, she wouldn’t click “Like.” She would just ignore me altogether.”

Look at it in a positive light and feel confident as a result.

3. She wants to meet up or is open to meeting up

[image: She wants to meet up]

When a woman wants to meet up with her ex-boyfriend, fiancé, or husband to talk about the relationship, that’s a pretty obvious sign that she might want him back.

However, not all women are that easy when a guy is trying to get them back. Some women are just a little bit open to meeting up, so the woman might be saying things like, “Yeah...we can catch up, but I’ll have to think about it” or, “Yeah, maybe I can catch up with you next week” or, “Maybe I can catch up with you for a coffee in two days’ time, but I can only stay for like 10, 15 minutes.”

Regardless of the amount of interest that your woman is showing you, you’ve got to look at any type of sign that she’s either willing to meet up or she wants to meet up as her being open to getting back together with you.

When you meet up with her in person, what you’ve got to do is make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

She’s will then see that you’ve started to change and are no longer making the same old mistakes that you used to make when in a relationship with her.

For example: If a guy got dumped because he was emotionally insecure, emotionally sensitive and just wasn’t enough of a man for her, when he interacts with her he’s going to need to show her by the way that he thinks, talks, behaves and acts, that he’s now an emotionally strong man.

By doing that, she starts to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him and her guard comes down, and then the guy can guide her back into a relationship.

4. She wants to be friends with you

[image: She wants to be friends with you]

Of course, sometimes when a woman wants to be friends with her ex, she just wants to do that to keep him around so she feels good about herself.

She can then say, “Oh, I’ve got a new boyfriend. I’m so happy” and put her ex-boyfriend, fiancé, or husband through a bad time and get emotional revenge on him for how he made her feel in the relationship.

Yet, if you're trying to get a woman back, there's no benefit in thinking about the negatives like that and thinking about it in an insecure way.

You have to be confident and look at it in a positive light.

So her saying that she wants to remain friends, you've got to see that as, "Okay, she wants to have me around because it hurts her to have me out of her life."

What you need to do then is use the so-called friendship as a way to continue to interact with her.

When you interact with her via text, on the phone, or in person, you continue to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and her guard comes down. You can then guide her back into a relationship with you.

5. She is talking about you and your relationship in a positive way

This might seem like a pretty obvious one, where the woman is continuing to talk about her ex-boyfriend, fiancé, or husband in a good way. Yet, not all guys see it like that.

I help guys via my phone coaching service every day now, and I often hear examples where the woman is saying positive things about my client and she's talking about the good times.

Then, my client asks me things like, "Well, does that mean that she still has some feelings for me? Does that mean that I still have a chance to get her back?"

Here's the thing though...

There is no guarantee that her talking about him or the relationship in a positive way means that she wants him back, but there's also no point in thinking about it in an insecure way.

A guy can think in an insecure way if he wants to, but it just doesn't help in life and with women. So, when a guy hears that his ex-woman is talking about their relationship in a positive light, he must be confident about it.

He must think, "Ha! She's missing me. Cool. I've still got a chance here. I've got to get her to meet up with me in person and I'm then going to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for me. I'm then going to guide her back into a relationship."

6. She talks about good times that you and her shared

If you happen to be talking to your ex on the phone or in person and she brings up good times that you and her shared before, that is a sign that she's still emotionally open to you.

When a woman is trying to block a guy out of her life and she doesn't have any feelings for him at a particular point, she won't want to bring up those good memories because she won't want to give him any hope, unless she wants to be mean and get emotional revenge on him by giving him hope and then continuing to reject him.

Yet, in most cases, when a woman brings up the good times and she's open to talking about that and open to feeling good about the memories, it means that a guy has a chance to make her feel more respect and attraction for him, and get her reconnecting with the love that she once felt for him, and then guide her back into a relationship.

7. She replies to your texts, e-mails, or social media comments

Of course, some women do that just to mess with a guy, but there's no point thinking like that.

If you want to get a woman back, you've got to be confident and look at her actions as a sign that she wants you back. Having confidence allows you to take action and make a move when you know that it's the right time to do it, rather than sitting around worrying that you might fail or she might reject you.

So, if you see that your ex is replying to your texts, e-mails and social media comments or messages, you've got to think about it in a positive light.

You've got to be confident about it.

You've got to believe in yourself that you really do have a chance of getting her to meet up with you, getting her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, getting her to reconnect with the love, and then guiding her back into a relationship.

If you don't have that confidence, getting a woman back is very difficult.

8. She keeps asking if you are dating or in a relationship

Of course, a woman could just be asking this because she's just fairly interested or she doesn't really care and just wants to ask. Yet, once again, there's no point thinking like that.

If your ex-girlfriend, fiancé or wife is asking you if you're dating and in a relationship, just look at that as her wanting to find out whether you're moving on. If you are moving on, it means that she's losing a guy that she still cares about.

You can decide to think that she doesn't care about you or that she doesn't have feelings for you if you want to, but that isn't going to help you get a woman back.

9. She is sad and lonely without you

[image: She is sad and lonely without you]

When guys are trying to get women back, they're often in a situation where the woman is happy without them. She starts moving on, or she acts as though she's happy without him.

This sign that an ex wants her guy back isn't a very common one, but I have come across this example at times where a woman is sad and lonely without her guy around.

She'll post things up on social media about how much life sucks, and how bad it hurts to go through a breakup, etc.

So, if you do notice that your ex isn't very happy without you, look at that in a positive light. Look at it as a sign that she might actually want to get back with you, because she's just not that happy without you.

10. She drunk texts you or calls you by accident

Some guys get that accidental phone call from their ex and she says, “Oh, I meant to call someone else. Or I meant to text someone else.”

A guy can look at that in an insecure way if we wants to and can say, “Oh, well maybe she did make a mistake by calling me. Maybe she did intend to text someone else. Damn it. I thought she might have liked me.”

Yet, that type of insecure thinking is not going to help a guy get his woman back.

The best way to look at it is, “Ha! She likes me. She’s trying to get in contact with me. She misses me. She wants to get some sort of interaction going on between me and her, because she misses me. She wants to get back with me.”

Just think in a confident way, and then as a result of that confidence get her on a phone call, get her to meet up with you, get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you at the meet up, and guide her back into a relationship.

11. She tries to look her best when she meets you

Women know that the most attractive thing about them to men is their physical appearance.

So, if a woman meets up with a guy and she’s dressed herself up really well and is looking sexy and beautiful, a guy can look at that as, “Oh, she’s trying to make me feel bad and rub it in my face that I’m not with her anymore.”

He can think like that if he wants to, but it’s not going to help. The best way to think about it is, “She still cares enough to want to look good for me. If she didn’t care what I thought, she wouldn’t even go to any effort to look good.”

12. She doesn’t start dating anyone else for a month or more

Sometimes when a guy breaks up with a girl or she breaks up with him, she won’t go out there and start dating for a while.

This may be because they had a long-term relationship and she’s just not ready for dating, or it could also be that she just doesn’t want to move on yet without him. She is not that sure.

So when a guy is in a situation where his ex doesn’t move on quickly, I always recommend that the guy looks at that in a positive light.

The reason for looking at it in a positive light is that it then allows a guy to be confident and get her on a phone call, get her to meet up with him, and get her back into a relationship.

In a situation like this, some guys waste a lot of time. They see that their ex isn’t moving on, and what does the guy do? He ignores her!

He thinks, “All right. Well, I just won’t contact her then, and she’s going to come running back to me” and it then doesn’t work out like he hoped.

She eventually starts dating a guy because she realizes that her relationship isn’t getting back together, or she gets to the point where she’s ready to start dating again.

So, if you're going through a breakup with your woman and she's not moving on very quickly, or she didn't move on very quickly, look at it as a positive sign that she might want you back, and then get her back.

By the way, I understand that some guys reading this are already way past that point of the break up process, where they've broken up with a woman, she waited for a while, and then she started dating or she moved on very quickly.

If you're at either of those points, what really matters is you getting her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when you interact with her via text, on the phone, and in person.

Don't worry about what has happened since the breakup.

No doubt, you will have made some mistakes. Pretty much every guy makes a handful of mistakes when he's trying to get a woman back.

Don't worry about the mistakes.

What matters is you getting her to feel something for you again, getting her to meet up with you, and getting the relationship back together.

Another sign that your ex might want you back is...

13. She doesn't want to tell you about any dates that she has been on

This is a classic example of where a woman doesn't want to push her guy too far away by shoving it in his face that she's dating other guys.

She wants to keep it secret or quiet for a while so she can figure out what she's going to do.

Sometimes she wants to keep it quiet for a while because she doesn't want her guy to move on before she does.

In other times, she doesn't want to tell him because there are just a few guys who are interested in her and she's opening herself up to dating, but she's not really sure whether she wants to hook up with those guys or be in a committed relationship with them, so she decides not to tell her guy about that, just in case it makes things worse.

Of course, sometimes a woman doesn't want to tell her ex-man about dates she's been on, because she's really annoyed by him.

He may have been a real pain in the butt through the breakup process and been very clingy, and begging her for another chance, pleading, hassling her, and things like that. She just doesn't want to have any substantial communication with him at that point.

If a guy is in that situation, it doesn't mean that he's completely lost his chance to get his woman back. There are ways for him to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him and I explain that in my program Get Your Ex Back Super System.

14. She hugs or kisses you in a warm way

[image: She gives you a warm hug]

If a woman doesn't have any feelings for a guy, she's going to try to avoid physical contact with him, or if she hugs him, she's going to hug him in a cold way.

Of course, there are some women who like to mess with guys' minds, and sometimes a woman will give her ex a warm hug, so he then thinks he's got a chance, and she then leads him on and uses all of his attention, and pleading and begging to make herself feel better about herself.

Yet, being insecure and thinking that she is just playing a trick on him by giving him a warm hug is not going to help a guy get his ex back.

If your woman gives you a warm hug, or she is at least open to hugging you and holding you when you meet up with her, you've got to look at that as a sign that she wants you back.

[image: She gives you a warm hug]

Be confident about it and then guide her back into a relationship with you.

15. She asks about women in your social media posts or women at work

When a woman is asking her ex-man about women that she's seen in his social media posts or women that he knows at work, it can mean that she is feeling a bit jealous and a bit worried that he's going to move on with one of those women.

Of course, it can also mean that she's simply asking because she's hoping that he's then going to say, "Oh, no, no. Those women don't mean anything to me. I want you" and then she feels better about herself.

However, thinking in that negative, insecure way isn't going to help a guy get his woman back. So, if your ex asks you about any women in your life, just look at it as a positive.

Look at it as her feeling threatened, as her feeling less than compared to these women, and her feeling worried that you're going to move on and be with a better woman than her, and then she's going to regret it.

Use her questioning and her interest in you to feel confident about yourself.

When you are confident, you will then start thinking, talking, behaving, feeling, and acting in the right way. You're going to have the confidence to guide her back into a relationship with you.

16. She says, "Maybe" to getting back together

Sometimes when I'm helping guys get their ex back, there are examples where a woman says, "We'll see" about getting back together, or "Maybe" or, "The door is not fully closed, but I can't say yes right now."

She'll give out those sort of "maybe," 50/50, "I'm not sure" statements because she simply doesn't want to lead him back into a relationship. If he is going to get her back, he is going to need to make it happen.

What you've got to do is look for her "maybe signs" as her still having some feelings for you. If she isn't giving you strong signals, you're probably just not making her feel enough yet to cause her to really want to be back with you.

If you want her to have a lot of feelings for you and want to get back with you, you've got to use every interaction that you have with her as an opportunity to make her feel some respect, attraction, and love for you again.

Every interaction (i.e. when you're texting her, when you're on the phone, and when you're in person and even when she's looking at what you're up to on social media) has to be used as an opportunity to make her feel something for you.

You've got to start rebuilding her feeling for you, rather than sitting around hoping that she leads the way.

17. She says that she misses you

Of course, she might just be tricking the guy by saying that she misses him.

She might just be saying that to give him hope and then make him show lots of interest so she feels good about herself.

Yet, as you would know by now, that isn't going to help a guy get his ex back.

If a woman says to you that she misses you, you've got to be confident about it. You've got to see it as a positive. You've got to look at it as a sign that she wants you back.

What to Do if Your Ex Isn't Giving You Strong Signals That She Wants You Back

[image: What to do if she's not giving you any signs]

If your ex is not giving you any of the signs mentioned above, or she's not really giving you strong signals, what you need to do is start to be active about the way that you make her feel respect, attraction, and love for you again.

A lot of the guys that I help to get their ex back have wasted a lot of time ignoring their ex. They've also wasted a lot of time trying to convince the woman to give them another chance.

Yet, that doesn't work in most cases.

Ignoring a woman usually only works when she still has feelings for the guy, she can't move on without him because it's hard for her to find a replacement guy or she doesn't have much experience with relationships and can't handle the pain of the breakup.

She will then contact her guy and want to get back with him.

Yet, in most of the cases that I see, the woman has had enough. She doesn't have feelings for the guy at the point of the breakup, and when he starts to ignore her she just uses that time to move on without him.

Other than ignoring an ex, the other classic example is where a guy wastes a lot of time trying to convince a woman to give him another chance.

That approach usually only works a few times (sometimes several times in certain relationships) where the woman has lost a bit of respect and attraction for her guy, and he's trying to convince her that he's going to change, and then she gives him another chance.

However, when a woman is at the point where she's had enough, all of the reasoning and explanations, begging and pleading just doesn't work anymore.

What needs to happen is a change.

You need to change the way that you're interacting with her, and that means change the way that you're talking to her, responding to what she's saying, behaving around her, feeling and taking action.

If you need help with that, I have an amazing step by step program called Get Your Ex Back: Super System that will guide you through the process of getting a woman back.

Going through this step-by-step process transforms you into a better man than you are right now.

You might be a great guy, but you can be better.

You might be able to make her feel some level of respect and attraction for you, but you can do better.

If you want to get a woman back who doesn't want you back right now, you're going to need to do better.

My program will explain for you exactly what you need to say and do to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, reconnect with the love and give the relationship another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Much Space Should You Give Your Ex Before Contacting Her?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, how much space should you give an ex before you contact her and attempt to get her back?

The answer is that it really depends on you, her, the break up reasons and how much she still loves you and wants to be with you.

In most cases, when a guy is going through a breakup with a woman, he should get her on a phone call right away and meet up with her and get the relationship back together.

However, if they've had many breakups and she's really annoyed with him at this point, there's nothing wrong with giving her a couple of days of space.

In really extreme cases, the most amount of space that I've ever recommended a guy give is a week, because anything more than that and really you're just wasting time.

Why? The most important thing that you need to do to get a woman back is start interacting with her and making her feel some level of respect, attraction and love for you again.

For example: If a guy was dumped by a woman because he was too emotionally sensitive (e.g. he would get jealous, and clingy and insecure at various stages in the relationship and she could really push him around, and control him and make him feel insecure and emotionally sensitive), he can make her feel some respect and attraction for him again if he talks to her on the phone and allows her to experience the new and improved version of him where he is emotionally stronger.

Of course, there are some situations where ignoring an ex for a long period of time will make her miss him. She'll start to feel a bit nostalgic, she'll start to think about the good old times and she'll then want to contact him and get back with him.

[image: Ignoring an ex and hoping that she comes back on her own]

However, what I've found is that a woman getting nostalgic and missing a man that she had no feelings for is a very small percentage of ex-back situations that guys go through.

In most cases, the girl has had enough.

[image: A woman who has had enough of her boyfriend, fiance or husband]

The guy has destroyed her respect and attraction for him. He's just pushed it way too far.

So, when she looks back on some of the good memories, she thinks, "Well, okay, it was good at the start, but near the end there, he just lost it. He did this and he did that and he did that. You know what? I don't really think he's changed."

Yet, if he just gets her on a phone call and has a chat with her, he can then show her that he's changed.

It will come through in how he's talking to her.

[image: Get a woman back via phone]

He's not going to be the same guy that she broke up with. He's going to be a new and improved version and she's going to start to smile.

She's going to start to think, "Hang on. He's different now. This is different" and then after that phone call, if she doesn't agree to meet up with him right away, she's going to look back at the good memories and she's going to start thinking, "Well, hang on, we had a good time in the past. I'm feeling good when I talk to him now. Why don't I just say yes to meeting up with him?"

So that's why I don't recommend giving a woman too much space because you can actually make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when you talk to her on the phone.

Even when you text her, you can get a bit of respect and attraction back, but the bigger impacts happen when you talk to her on the phone and when you meet up with her in person.

If you need help to get your ex back because you don't know what to say or do at each step of the process, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

Okay, so to close up here, I just want you to understand that you have a lot of control over how much respect and attraction she feels for you.

You can actively make her feel some level of respect and attraction for you again.

When you do that, she'll naturally start to reconnect with her feelings for you and it will be much easier to get her to meet up with you and get her to give you another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Allow Your Ex to Contact You?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What should you do if you're breaking up with your girlfriend, fianc  or wife and she asks you the question, "Do you want to stay in touch? Is it still cool to contact you from time to time?"

How should you answer that?

If you want her back, you should definitely let her contact you.

The reason why I recommend that you let her contact you is that every time she contacts you and you have an interaction with her, it's going to be an opportunity for you to make her feel some level of respect, attraction and love for you again.

You are going to be able to rebuild her feelings by being in contact with her.

Of course, sometimes it's fine to say, "No, don't contact me," and that's when you really want to break up with a woman and you just don't want anything to do with her, or if she's breaking up with you and being silly about not wanting to commit and creating all sorts of drama and you just don't want to have to deal with that anymore, so you say, "Don't contact me."

You might also want to tell her not to contact you if you feel as though not being able to contact you is going to give you power in the situation and make her come running back to you, because you know that she's going to feel lonely and miss you and want to be with you.

However, in the majority of ex-back situations, the guy has ruined the woman's feelings of respect, attraction and love for him, so if he tells her not to contact him, she still isn't going to care or miss him.

For example: When she first began to break up with him, he might have been begging and pleading with her for another chance and trying to convince her that he would change.

Yet, she was saying, "Leave me alone. I don't want to be with you" and didn't want to give him another chance because she could see that nothing has really changed about him.

She knows that if she gets back with him, it's most likely just going to be the same thing again.

In cases like that, a guy shouldn't try to cut off all communication with her and say, "No, don't contact me. I never want to hear from you again," or, "I can't stay in contact with someone who I love," or, "If you don't want to be with me, don't contact me. It'll hurt me," etc. That's not the right move to make.

When a guy is in a situation where he's being broken up with and he really wants her back, he should allow the channels of communication to remain open, because after the breakup, he needs to quickly work out where he was going wrong and what he was doing to cause her to lose respect and attraction for him.

He then needs to start making some improvements in those areas, or at least know exactly where he was going wrong so when he talks to her, he can bring that up and say, "Hey, I get it now. I wasn't being enough of a man for you," or, "I get it now. I was doing this, I was doing that."

She can then relax and think, "Okay, he is making some progress. He does understand now. Things are changing."

She can feel respect for the fact that he's not stuck at the same level that he was at when she broke up with him. He's already gone up a level in his understanding of how to be a man and how to have a successful relationship.

So if your woman says, "Is it still cool that we stay in touch? Can I contact you from time to time?" just say to her, "Yeah, contact me whenever you want. No problem," and just show her that you're fine with the situation.

Let her see that you're not an emotional mess because of the breakup. You still believe in yourself, you still love yourself and you still love and respect her. There is no big problem. Just relax and say, "Yeah, contact me whenever you want."

Alternatively, you might want to use her question there as an opportunity to create some laughter and get rid of some of the awkward tension between you.

For example: When she asks, "Is it still cool to contact you from time to time?" you can smile and say, "No way. Don't ever contact me again. If you call me, I'm hanging up right away," and have a little laugh with her to let her see that, once again, you're not thrown off by the situation.

You are emotionally strong. You still love yourself. You still believe in yourself. You still love her. You still respect her. Everything is fine.

The point of showing her your emotional strength is that it makes her feel respect and attraction for you. The most important part of getting an ex back is making her feel some respect and attraction for you and then building on that.

[image: Ex reconnecting with her feelings]

When a woman feels respect and attraction for you, she then starts to reconnect with her feelings.

It's easier to love you. It's easier to think about giving you another chance. It's easier to reply to a text. It's easier to pick up the phone. It's easier to say, "Yes" to meeting up with you in person.

So to finish up here, I just want to point that you can do whatever you want. If you want to tell your ex that you don't ever want to hear from her again, then go ahead.

If you want to tell your ex, "Don't contact me," because your gut instinct is telling you that she's going to get lonely, she's going to miss you and come running back to you, then by all means, tell her not to contact you anymore.

However, if you're in a situation where your ex doesn't have feelings for you at this point and you're not going to have an opportunity to re-attract her and get her respect back, then I recommend that you don't cut off the channels of communication.

I recommend that you allow her to contact you whenever she wants, because when she contacts you, you're then going to have an opportunity to make her feel something for you, to put a smile on her face and to bring her guard down.

When the texts are going back and forth, you're going to be able to pick up the phone, give her a call, have a chat, have a laugh and get her to meet up with you in person.

If you want specific instructions on what to say and do at each step of the process of getting a woman back, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

It's 10 hours of video, and it details the 7 steps that you need to go through to get a woman back.

By the 7th step, you will be back in a relationship with her and the relationship will be better than the one that you had with her before.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Do When Your Ex Contacts You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex contacts you after a break up, the best thing to do is to assume that it means that she wants to get back with you.

One of the reasons for that is you need to be confident when getting a woman back.

The more confident you are in yourself and the more confidence you have in your attractiveness to her, the easier it will be to get her back.

Why is that? Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength of men and turned off by the emotional weakness.

If a man is doubting himself and feeling insecure when his ex contacts him, he might think, “Well, I don’t know if it means that she likes me. Maybe she’s just contacting me. Maybe I need to ignore her a little bit more or not even reply to her text.”

[image: What if she is only calling me to make me feel bad?]

In his weak emotional state, he’s naturally going to be a turn-off to her if he talks to her on the phone and interacts with her in person because she’s going to sense his emotional weakness and insecurity.

However, if a guy assumes that every time his ex contacts him it means that she wants to see him or get back together with him, he’s going to be able to confidently smile and feel good about his chances of getting her back.

He’s going to be able to think to himself, “Yeah, she wants me. She likes me.”

When she calls him, he’s going to be able to confidently ask, “Hey, what’s going on with you? How are you doing?” rather than, “Oh, hey. Oh, hey, how are you doing? Having a good day?” and trying to suck up to her by being really nice, innocent and polite.

So, if your ex is clicking like on your social media posts, messaging you on the phone or WhatsApp, e-mailing you or calling you, you’ve got to assume that she does want to get back with you.

It doesn’t actually mean that she wants to get back with you, but it’s better to assume that it means she wants to get back with you, because if you’re confident, you’re going to be much more attractive to her.

Don’t Worry if She Plays Hard to Get About Meeting Up With You

[image: Phone call with ex]

When it comes to getting a woman back after a serious break up, she will often play a little bit hard to get when you’re trying to arrange a meetup.

So say for example a guy has noticed that his ex-girlfriend, or fiancée or wife has been clicking likes on his social media posts and she seems to be interested and he’s thinking, “Okay, cool. I’ll give her a call.”

He then calls her and he tries to arrange a meetup and she says no.

What should he do then?

What he should do is make sure that he uses it as an opportunity to get her to feel some respect for him as a man, for her to look up to him and for her to feel some level of attraction for him as well.

For example, if he says, “Hey, we should catch up and say hello in person,” and she says no, what he can say is, “Oh, really? Okay. Well, I’ll tell you what. Stop contacting me then! ☐☐☐ What’s with all these text messages and emails lately? If you contact me again, you’re going to have to pay for the bill when we catch up for a drink or lunch or whatever.”

Saying that type of thing to her shows her that he is not getting thrown off by this. He’s not worried that she has said “No” to his first request to get her to meet up with him.

He still believes in himself. He’s confident and he is not going to get pushed around by her. He is the man. He is in control, but at the same time, he’s not being an asshole. He’s still joking around with her and being easy-going about it.

He’s not saying something like, “Oh, well, don’t contact me again! You’re clicking like on my Facebook posts and you sent me texts. That means you want to get back together with me. Don’t contact me again!!!” He’s not being crazy like that.

He’s smiling, remaining relaxed and just saying (in an easy-going manner), “Alright, well, if you don’t want to catch up, no worries...but I’ll tell you what, stop contacting me then. If you send me another one of those text messages or emails, the next time that you and I catch up for a drink or lunch or whatever, you’re going to be paying for the bill to make it up to me.”

He’s just joking around and as a result of him joking around, she’s going to be able to smile and laugh, but she’s also going to be able to respect him as a man, which is very important when getting a woman back.

Sometimes when I coach guys to get their woman back, I hear examples where the woman is playing a lot of mind games and saying yes or no and giving mixed messages about whether she likes him or not.

So if a woman is playing mind games with a guy and she’s interested one minute and not interested the next, he needs to just laugh and show her that he isn’t being thrown off by it.

He’s not feeling insecure. He’s not panicking. He continues to believe in himself and continues to love her and respect her. He’s not going to become angry or defensive and he’s not going to become insecure either.

He might laugh and say, “Okay, all right. Well, yesterday it was no and today it’s yes. Let’s see if it’s maybe tomorrow. How about Friday we’ll see if we get a yes on Friday and then a no on Saturday” and turn it into something to laugh about together.

When a guy approaches the interactions with his woman in that way, she’ll realize that there’s no point being silly and playing mind games with him because she’s dealing with a man. Nothing that she says is going to throw him off and she’s just going to end up looking silly as a result.

Of course, one thing you need to realize though is that women love it when a guy talks to them like that and makes them feel girly and laugh in situations like that.

So, don’t be surprised if she continues to do it just so she can experience your confidence and masculinity in response. For example: She might also ask you if you miss her and if you say “Yes” and then ask her if she misses you, she might say “No.”

If she asks, “Do you miss me?” and you say, “Yeah, I miss you. How about you? Do you miss me?” and she says “No,” then you can smile and say, “Yeah, right, as if you don’t miss me. I know you’re missing me like crazy. I know you cry yourself to sleep at night.”

Something along those sort of lines. You don’t have to say the “cry yourself to sleep at night” thing but you can at least say, “Yeah, right, I know that you miss me.” If she says, “I don’t,” you can then smile and say (in a tone that indicates you don’t believe her), “Yeah, okay, all right. No worries.”

Where that confidence is coming from is the assumption that when she contacts you, it means that she wants to get back with you.

If you maintain that kind of confidence in yourself, you will naturally be more confident and masculine and she will then respect that and feel attracted to it.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Guiding Your Ex Back Into a Relationship

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To get your ex back, it's really important that you understand what she wants you to do to get her back.

For example: She might want you to be confident and guide her back into a relationship regardless of how cold she is being towards you.

She might want you to give her space for a few days and then contact her, meet up with her, show her that you've changed and then guide her back into a relationship.

In some ex-back situations, the woman absolutely hates her ex-boyfriend, fianc  or husband and she doesn't want anything to do with him.

Regardless of what he tries to say or do, she doesn't want anything to do with him.

In other cases, the woman still does have feelings for her ex, but she's not going to make that really obvious and make the process of getting her back very easy.

To be successful at getting a woman back after a break up, you have to get clear on what is really applicable in your situation.

For example: If your ex hates you and doesn't want anything to do with you, then what you're going to need to do is different than a guy who his ex still loves him, and has feelings for him and wants him to get her back.

If your ex hates you, you're going to have to start using every interaction that you have with her from now on, whether that's via text, phone call, in-person, whether she sees you on social media or you email her.

[image: Guide ex back into a relationship]

Every single interaction that you have with her (e.g. via text, on a phone call, in person) has to be an opportunity for you to make her feel some level of respect, attraction and love for you again.

On the other hand, if your ex still has feelings for you and she hopes that the relationship does get back together, what she needs from you is your masculine direction.

She doesn't want you to ignore her, and just play that trick on her and expect her to call you, arrange a meetup and get the relationship back together.

You have to be masculine by taking the lead and making the reconciliation process happen rather than waiting around and hoping that she does it or that ignoring her will make her come running back.

What a woman really wants is a man who knows what he wants, and has the skill and confidence to make it happen.

[image: Ignoring an ex and hoping that she comes back on her own]

In most of the cases that I've helped a guy or a man get his woman back, the guy has been waiting way too long to attempt to get his ex back.

There's an opportunity for him to text her to get on a phone call, or just call her up directly, arrange a meetup, meet up with her in person, get her respect and attraction back, get her to forgive him, and get her guard to start coming down and her to open up to him.

Some of the reasons that guys have given me for ignoring their ex:

- “I’m afraid to call her, because she might not want to hear from me.”
- “She’s already seeing a new guy, so she probably doesn’t want to meet up with me, and she probably won’t want to get back with me.”
- “She said that she no longer feels the same way about me.”
- “I’m going to ignore her and see if she comes running back to me.”

Here’s the thing though...

To get a woman back, you need to be a man about this.

You have to be the masculine one.

You have to guide her back into having feelings for you.

You can’t just sit around waiting, hoping that it changes on its own, and you also shouldn’t expect her to be the one who fixes the relationship and gets it back together.

When getting a woman back, you need to be the stronger one.

You need to have more courage.

You need to take more emotional risks.

[image: Attracting and guiding an ex back into a relationship]

That’s why when guys ask me, “Should I tell my ex that I miss her?” I say yes. “Should I be friends with my ex?” I say yes.

What are the reasons for that?

Saying yes when she asks whether you miss her is an example of emotional strength.

You are courageous.

You are fearless when it comes to love.

Nothing that you say is going to make you lose any power, because you are the man.

You are the stronger one.

You’re always in the power position, because you are the man.

However, telling her that you miss her has to be done in a strong way.

It’s not, “Oh, yeah. I miss you. I just sit around thinking about you all the time. My life is crap without you and I can’t focus on work. I’m lost and I need you,” and things like that.

That’s not how to tell a woman that you miss her.

Telling a woman that you miss her in a masculine way with strength is, “Yeah, of course I miss you. Life goes on. I’m working hard on _____ (e.g. your work or study) and continuing to focus on _____ (e.g. your big goals in life). I’m focused on those areas, but of course I miss you. You’re the girl that I love the most, and there’s no doubt at all that I miss you.”

It’s just that raw, honest masculinity where you are fearless with love.

Women respect that kind of confident, non-needy honesty from a man who is continuing to move forward in life no matter what happens around him.

Women don't respect guys who are wimpy and needy, and insecure and lost without them.

A woman wants you to love her, and want her, and miss her and appreciate her, but she doesn't want your whole world to crumble because she's not in it.

In terms of staying friends with your ex, a lot of guys ask me, "Should I stay friends with her?" And the answer is yes.

The reason why I say yes is that when you interact with a woman, you can actively make her feel attracted to you.

[image: Guide your woman back into a relationship]

Being in contact with your ex as a friend is not about acting like a friend who doubts his attractiveness to her.

It's also not about being a nice, sweet, polite friend to her and hoping that she takes pity on you.

It's about using the opportunity that you have to interact with her to make her feel some respect, attraction and love for you again.

When you make her feel respect, attraction and love for you again, she starts to have feelings for you again. Her guard comes down and she becomes open to meeting up with you.

Of course, if a woman hates her ex and currently doesn't want to be with him, she will act as though anything that he's saying or doing isn't having a positive effect on her.

However, if you are making her feel respect for you (e.g. you're being emotionally strong, you're being a man, you're fearless with love and you're making her feel attracted to you in different ways that I explain in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System), then she is going to have feelings for you whether she shows it or openly admits it.

When you spark her feelings for you, she literally goes from thinking of you in a negative way to having positive thoughts about you and laughing when she's talking to you on the phone, laughing and smiling when she's interacting with you in person.

When that happens, she can't stop herself from being more open.

If she continues to be cold, bitchy, mean and closed off to you, it just won't make sense to her to behave in that way for long.

She'll be thinking, "Why am I being so mean to him? I feel good around him now. I'm smiling," and she then relaxes.

She Needs Your Masculine Direction

[image: Guide her back into a relationship]

If you want to get your woman back, you have to be the one who provides the direction towards the reconciliation.

You've got to provide her with your masculine direction by remaining emotionally strong no matter what tests she throws at you.

Guide her back into having feelings for you again by believing that you can make her feel SOME level of respect, attraction and love every time you interact with her, rather than doubting your ability to make her have feelings for you again.

When getting a girlfriend, fiancé or wife back, you have to be the more courageous one.

You have to be the stronger one.

If you can do that, she will start to respect you.

When a woman respects you, she can then feel attracted to you much more easily.

If a woman doesn't respect a guy (e.g. she looks down on him, doesn't really think much of him) and he then tries to do things to make her feel attracted (e.g. getting her laughing and smiling while he's talking to her), she's not going to really buy it.

She's going to be thinking, "Well, I don't really respect you. Nice try getting me to laugh, but it's not working" because she doesn't actually look up to him.

She doesn't see him as the man.

She looks down on him.

You can make her look up to you and respect you again, you can make her feel attracted to you again, and you can make her reconnect with the love that she once had for you.

If you don't know how to do that, I explain the whole thing in Get Your Ex Back Super System.

It's a 7-step system that you follow and if you go through the 7 steps, you'll be back in a relationship with her and it will be better than the relationship that you had before.

Be the Man and Make This Happen

When it comes to guiding your ex back into a relationship, you need to be a man and make it happen.

If your ex is still madly in love with you and she's going to miss you, then she'll come running back to you without you having to be a confident man and guide her back into a relationship.

However, if your ex doesn't have feelings for you at this point and doesn't want to be with you, the next step for you is to start guiding her back into a relationship with you.

The way to do that is to begin making her feel some level of respect, attraction and love for you whenever she interacts with you.

For example: If a woman dumped a guy because he was too insecure, he's going to need to show her that he's become emotionally stronger since the breakup.

The best way to show her that is how he talks to her on the phone and how he interacts with her in person. He can also show her a little bit of that via social media, but the biggest impact will happen when he talks to her on the phone, and in person, and she sees that he really has changed and become a stronger man.

Another example is where a woman has dumped a guy because he lacked purpose and direction in life. As a result, he was too clingy and just wanted to spend all of his time with her.

In that case, to get her respect back, the guy needs to show her that he has decided on his goals and ambitions for life, and he's started to make progress towards them.

He's no longer hiding from his true potential as a man, and he's starting to make progress towards achieving his biggest goals and dreams in life.

Of course, doing either of those things doesn't automatically get an ex back.

It's simply a way to make her feel some level of respect for you again.

When a woman feels respect for you, she can then feel attracted to you.

When she feels respect and attraction, she'll start to reconnect with the love that she had for you before.

So if you're at a point now where you've been trying to get your ex back and nothing has been working, what I recommend that you do is start the process by getting her to respect you again.

This can be achieved on a phone call and by meeting up with her in person.

You can also start to get a bit of respect back via text messages and via social media.

Just make sure that you use every interaction to make her feel something for you and then use your confidence and masculinity to guide her back into a relationship with you, regardless of how cold or distant she is being.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Accept a Friendship With Your Ex?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, should you accept a friendship with your ex?

The answer is a big, fat YES.

However, I'm not talking being her nice, innocent non-flirtatious friend who's just in the friend zone. What I'm talking about is being her friend because it gives you an opportunity to interact with her because when you interact with her, you can make her feel respect and attraction for you again and she will then start reconnecting with the love.

If you have an opportunity to remain friends with your ex (e.g. you can talk to her via text, you can talk to her on the phone, you still see her in person, maybe you see her at work or you see her at university or you have children together etc), then YES, accept the friendship.

[image: Re-attracting ex while friends]

Just know that it's not going to be a friendship, because you're going to make her feel respect and attraction for you.

You're not going to just act like a friend and wait in the friend zone and hope that she gives you another chance.

You're going to actively make her feel attracted to you again.

An Example of Making Her Feel Attracted When She Suggests Being Friends

What is an example of making her feel attracted to you again regarding the suggestion of being friend?

If a woman says to a guy, "I don't want to be with you in a relationship, but we can still be friends...are you cool with that?" what the guy can say is, "Sure! We'll be best friends. We'll go shopping on Sundays, we'll gossip on Mondays and we'll text like crazy on the phone during the week about random stuff. We'll best friends forever. We can even have a knitting night where we knit some socks and scarves or whatever or I need a new jumper. You should knit me a jumper."

Turn her suggestion of being non-sexual friends into something to laugh about.

Show her that you're not going to be disrespected and put in the friend zone and treated like you don't even make her feel any attraction. Show her that you find it funny that she's suggesting that you're not even worthy of being her boyfriend (fiance or husband) or lover.

Show her that you know you are worthy and you're going to make her realize that you're worthy by making her respect you as a man and making her feel attracted to you rather than accepting a friendship in a way where you're in the friend zone.

You simply make fun of the idea of you being friend zoned by talking about being her shopping buddy, gossiping on the phone, etc.

You then say to her, "Sure, we can be friends."

From that moment onwards, you need to make sure that every chance that you have to interact with her is used as an opportunity to re-spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again. With every interaction that you have with her, she will experience some level of respect, attraction and love for you.

As a result, she will stop looking at you as just a friend or as her ex who she doesn't have any feelings for.

She will feel good when she interacts with you and will become more open to giving the relationship another chance or just sleeping with you again to see how she feels afterwards.

[image: Getting your ex back while being friends]

That is how to approach a friendship with your ex.

Don't make the mistake of being her friend and then acting like a friend who isn't allowed to flirt with her or make her feel attracted.

You are allowed to flirt with her and make her feel attracted, because there's nothing wrong with that. You're a good man. You're a confident, masculine, loving man and you're simply doing what is required to rebuild a woman's respect, attraction and love for you.

Where a lot of guys go wrong when they're offered a friendship with their ex-girlfriend, fianc  or wife is that they don't understand that they still have an opportunity to make her feel attracted rather than using the opportunity to be her friend as a way to re-attract her.

Some men will say to a woman, "Look, I don't wanna be friends. I want to be your boyfriend (fiance or husband) or nothing at all." He will then turn his back and walk away and he'll think to himself, "If she really wants me, she'll come back." You know that old saying, "If it's meant to be, the woman will come running back"

The only time that walking away and not looking back will get the woman coming and running back to you is when she really does love you and wants to be with you.

In that case, the woman will regret breaking up with the guy and she'll begin to miss him. She may then change her mind about only wanting to be friends and ask him for another chance.

Since she loves him so much and wants to be with him, she might even be willing to beg him for another chance.

Yet, if a woman doesn't respect you, she doesn't feel attracted to you and she's fallen out of love with you, she's not going to come running back if you walk away because there's just nothing for her to run back to.

So, if you are in a situation with your ex where she doesn't have feelings for you at this point, turning your back on her and saying, "No, I don't wanna be friends," is not a good strategy.

If a guy is in a situation where his woman doesn't have feelings for him, he needs to make sure that he keeps the channels of communication open so he can re-build her feelings for him.

Texting Her as a Friend

If your ex does want to be friends with you and you've got the opportunity to text her, what should you be texting her about?

Well, you should not be texting her about random crap. You should not be saying, “Hey, how are you doing? How was your day?” because that is not going to make her feel respect and attraction for you.

What you need to do is text her to get her on a phone call with you. When she’s on a phone call with you, you then need to arrange to meet up with her in person. If you can’t meet up with her at this point, the text that you replied to her need to make her laugh and smile at times.

For example: If she texts you and says, “Hey, how was your day today?” you can jokingly reply with something like this, “Really bad. I got run over by a car.”

She’s going to say, “What? What happened?” and you can reply with, “No, only kidding. I’m fine. I had a great day. How about you?”

Then she’s going to smile and laugh, and she’s going to realize that interacting with you feels good. She might begin to think, “Why am I being such a bitch to him? Why am I being so cold? Why am I closing him off? Every time I interact with him, I’m smiling and laughing.”

Next thing you know, she wants to get on the phone. Next thing you know, she wants to meet up with you in person. Next thing you know, you’re in bed with her. Next thing you know, you’re back together.

Transitioning From Friends to Being in a Relationship Once Again

If you want to go from being friends with your ex to being back in a sexual, romantic relationship, you’ve got to start making her feel respect, attraction and love for you again.

If you need specific instructions on how to do that throughout each step of the process, I do have an amazing, proven-to-work program that’s called Get Your Ex Back: Super System. It’s 10 hours of video training and by the end of it, you’ll be ready to contact your ex and get her back.

Don’t Waste Any More Time Ignoring Your Ex

Being friends with your ex is better than ignoring her, because if you’re interacting with her, you will then have an opportunity to make her feel respect, attraction and love for you again.

What you need to understand is that you have a lot of control over how much respect, attraction and love that she feels for you.

If you’re saying and doing things that are turning her off and making her lose even more respect for you as a man, then there’s no point being her friend.

However, if you are saying and doing things that are making her feel some level of respect, attraction and love for you again, then being her friend is going to work out very well for you. She’s going to start having feelings for you again, her guard is going to come down and she’s going to open herself back up to being in a relationship with you.

Just make sure that you don’t make the classic mistake of acting like a friend when you’re being her friend, for example, not flirting with her, not making her feel attracted, being afraid to joke around, get her smiling and laughing, etc.

You’ve got to use every interaction that you have with her as an opportunity to make her feel some level of respect, attraction and love for you again.

If your girlfriend, fianc  or wife says that she just wants to be friends for now or that she's willing to stay in touch as friends, take that opportunity and then use every interaction that you have with her as an opportunity to rebuild her feelings for you.

All it really takes in most cases is a phone call to get her laughing and smiling, and then the woman becomes open to meeting up in person. The guy can then rebuild her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him in person.

This is why I recommend that guys say YES when a woman wants to be friends, because keeping the channels of communication open allows you to interact with her.

When you interact with her, you need to make her feel something.

For example: Get her laughing and smiling when talking to you. Show her that she can't push you around. Show her that you're a man that she can look up to and respect. Let her see that you are emotionally strong with or without her. Make her feel good when she interacts with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Secret to Getting Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret to getting your ex back is to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

In most cases, a woman is not going to give a guy another chance just because he's explaining the reasons why she should give him another chance and saying, "Hey, I've changed. Please forgive me. Give me another chance. Remember the love that we had before. How can you turn your back on me and how can you turn your back on us? We had such a great relationship before."

[image: A woman who has had enough of her boyfriend, fiancé or husband]

None of that really matters to a woman at the point where she's had enough.

When a woman hasn't had enough yet and she's just losing respect and attraction for her guy, she will usually give him a number of chances, but when she gets to the point where she's had enough, all the usual reasoning and excuses (e.g. "Please give me a chance, I will change" or "We can work this out") just doesn't work on her anymore.

What a guy needs to do is he needs to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

For example: Some of the reasons why a woman will lose respect for guy is due to him becoming insecure, emotionally sensitive, letting her push him around or pushing her around, etc.

So say for example a man has become emotionally sensitive and insecure. To get some respect back, to make her feel something for him, to make her feel some level of respect for him again, he needs to interact with her on the phone or in person and let her experience the new and improved, emotionally stronger version of himself.

[image: Get a woman back via phone]

You can also get a little bit of your ex's respect back via text, but the biggest impacts happen on the phone and in person. He needs to interact with her and let her experience the emotionally stronger version of himself now.

When he's talking to her, his emotional strength is going to come through in how he talks, how he responds to her, the tone of his voice, his attitude, how he feels about things, how he reacts to the conversation and where he lets the conversation go.

Once you get some level of respect back when you interact with your ex, she'll then start to drop her guard and she will allow herself to feel some attraction for you.

So say for example you're talking to her on the phone or in person and you've gotten some respect back and then you start making her laugh and smile on the phone.

Now that she is feeling some respect for you, she will naturally drop her guard a little and allow herself to feel good about what is happening (i.e. She's smiling and laughing when she's interacting with you).

However if a woman is talking to her ex-boyfriend, fiancé or husband and he's trying to make her laugh and smile but she doesn't respect him, it's just not going to work on her.

She's going to be thinking, "Yeah, yeah. Nice try but it's not going to work on me because, look, frankly I don't respect you."

That sort of attitude where it's just like, "Don't even bother trying to get me smiling and laughing because it's not going to work on me. Sorry, I don't respect you."

You've got to get a woman's respect back first, otherwise she just won't allow herself to feel much or anything for you when you try to rebuild her feelings.

Have You Been Ignoring Her and Hoping She Will Come Running Back to You?

[image: Ignoring an ex and hoping that she comes back on her own]

When I help guys via my phone coaching service to get their women back, I'm often being told by guys that they've ignored their ex for two weeks to two months or even more sometimes and they ask me, "Why isn't she running back? Why isn't it working?"

Here's the thing...

If a woman breaks up with a guy and she still loves him, she still wants to be him, she doesn't want to move on and then he stops contacting her, she will most likely contact him and want to get back with him.

Yet, if a woman is at a point where she's had enough and she breaks up with the guy and then he doesn't contact her, she might contact him to check on him to see why he isn't contacting her.

When she contacts him and says, "Okay, he's still the same guy. Nothing has changed," she then thinks, "Okay, I'll just keep moving on."

So that's one of the reasons why ignoring a woman doesn't really work.

What you need to do is be active.

You need to actively make her feel something for you and the best way to do that is on the phone and in person.

You can also get her to feel something for you via text and via social media, but the most important moments of getting a woman back happen when you talk to her on the phone and when you interact with her in person.

Are You Confident in Your Ability to Re-Attract Your Ex?

[image: Are you confident about re-attracting your ex via text, phone and in person?]

Another very important part of getting a woman back is to be confident in your ability to make her feel attracted to you.

When a guy is trying to get a woman back and he's doubting himself thinking, "Oh, I don't really know if she likes me and she said she doesn't have feelings for me. I don't know if she's going to respond well," and he hesitantly talks to her, he doubts himself when he talks to her, he comes across as soft and insecure and things; the woman isn't going to feel attracted to him.

She's not going to respect that weakness and insecurity.

Women feel naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men.

For example: Confidence, assertiveness, self-esteem and determination and they feel turned off by emotional weakness. For example: Insecurity, nervousness, hesitation, self-doubt.

So when you're getting a woman back, you must be confident in your ability to make her feel attracted to you.

[image: Attract your ex in person]

The more confident you are in your ability to make her feel attracted to you, the easier it will be to get her back because you will begin saying and doing the right things. You'll be behaving, feeling, thinking and talking in a confident way, and women are naturally attracted to confidence.

I hope this video has helped you. If you need more help to get your ex back and you want a step by step solution, I have an amazing program called Get Your Ex Back: Super System

It's a 7-step system, and by the seventh step, you'll be back in a relationship with your ex. It will be better than before because she will respect you more, she will feel more attracted to you and the love will feel more exciting than it did before.

If you're serious about getting your woman back, don't waste anymore time ignoring her and don't try to convince her to give you another chance with reasoning and logic, and trying to explain to her that you're a great guy and that you've changed.

What makes a difference is when you can make her feel something. When you make her feel respect and attraction for you, her guard then comes down and she opens back up to you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Is it Wrong For a Guy to Want to Get His Ex-Girlfriend, Fiance or Wife Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Due to the fact that I help guys to pick up women or get their ex back, I sometimes get guys contacting me saying things like, “Hey Dan, why do you waste time trying to help guys get their ex back? An ex is an ex for a reason. The guy should just be moving on. It’s weak to want to get a woman back.”

Yet, here’s the thing...

It’s not weak.

There is nothing wrong with a man loving a woman.

There’s also nothing wrong with a man making some mistakes in a relationship, learning from those mistakes, becoming a better man as a result and then getting the woman back and having a better relationship with her than he had before.

If a relationship breaks up, it doesn’t mean that a guy should just walk away and never want to be with the woman again.

A guy can walk away if he wants to (e.g. if he knows he doesn’t love her or knows that she isn’t the right girl for him), but if the love that he shared with his woman is something that he cherishes, thinks is special and wants to build on, there’s nothing wrong with getting her back to make that happen.

A guy is allow to do whatever he wants with his love life with women.

He doesn’t have to walk away and never look back if he doesn’t want to. He can decide to give the relationship another chance and do a better job at deepening the woman’s respect, attraction and love for him this time around, so the relationship gets better and better over time rather than ending up in a painful break up.

There’s Nothing Wrong With Becoming a Better Man and Giving a Relationship Another Chance

I hope that this short post has been a little bit enlightening and helped some guys understand that there’s nothing wrong with becoming a better man and getting a woman back.

It’s not weak, wimpy or needy.

Instead, getting a woman back is actually a process that transforms a guy into a better man than he was before.

Throughout life, each of us has to live and learn from our mistakes.

We all make mistakes and there’s nothing wrong with a guy learning from his mistakes in a relationship, becoming a better man and then getting his woman back to have an even better relationship with her than he had before.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get a Woman Back After a Break Up (3 Examples)

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The most important thing that you need to do to get a woman back is to use any interaction that you have with her as an opportunity to make her feel respect, attraction and love for you again.

That is what counts.

When you're triggering her feelings of respect for you, of attraction and of love once again, that is when she starts to have feelings for you and the idea of getting back together becomes her idea.

[image: Get your ex back after she dumped you]

So, how do you do that?

How do you spark her feelings of respect and attraction and get her to reconnect with her old feelings of love for you?

The three examples I'm going to give you are via text, on a phone call, and in person.

1. Via Text

[image: Texting to get your ex girlfriend, fiancé or wife back after a break up]

Via a text message, you can make her laugh and smile rather than feeling annoyed by you, or feeling suspicious of you because you're pretending that you just want to be friends.

How do you make her laugh?

If your ex sends you a text message, for example, and she says, "Do you miss me?" How can you make her laugh in that moment? What can you say? What most guys would say in that moment is, "Yes. I miss you. Do you miss me too?" or he might try to lie and pretend and say that he doesn't miss her.

Yet, you don't need to lie to her or be boring and straightforward all the time.

You've got to remember that you have to use every interaction that you have with her as an opportunity to re-spark her feelings for you.

The way that I recommend you reply is something like this: She asks, "Do you miss me?" and you reply with, "Oh, I'm dying here. I can't sleep. I can't eat. I've lost 20 pounds. No. Only kidding. I'm fine. How are you? Missing me yet?"

Alternatively, if she asks, "Hey. How are you doing?" You can reply with, "Really bad. Lost 20 pounds. Can't eat. Can't sleep. LOL. Just kidding. I'm doing well. How are you? Missing me yet?"

Can you see how that works?

Essentially what's happening is that you're making her feel attracted to you and happy to be interacting with you.

How are you making her feel attracted? You're displaying confidence, you're displaying emotional strength because you're not being an emotional wuss and trying to seek pity from her and things like that and you have the social skills to be able to make her laugh in a moment like that.

In other words, you're a man who has masculinity and you remain a masculine, confident man, even when you're being challenged. You're not the sort of guy who, when he's challenged becomes afraid to say anything.

When trying to get a woman back, some guys are afraid to say anything that their ex-girlfriend might not like.

"Oh, what if she doesn't like that? What if she gets angry?" Well, if a guy's thinking like that, she is going to get angry. She is going to get annoyed. She is going to feel turned off by him because women aren't attracted to wimpy, wussy behavior from men. It's just not attractive.

One of the main things that women are attracted to about men is emotional strength. For example: High self-esteem, confidence and especially confidence when challenged or when in a difficult situation. You remain confident no matter what.

On the other hand, women are turned off by the emotional weakness in men. When a guy is emotionally weak and insecure, he will hesitate, doubt himself and won't feel like a strong man to a woman.

When he's being challenged by woman, he might feel afraid and thinks, "Okay. I've got to let her take control here. She's got to be the one who's in the dominant position."

Yet, women don't want that. Women don't want a guy's weakness and they don't want to be in charge.

It may seem like if you try to take on any position of power, she's going to shut you down and say, "Hey, never talk to me again," but that's just what she's saying at the front.

What's really going on behind the scenes, in a woman's mind, is that she wants to be a man's woman.

She doesn't want to be a man's boss, a man's dominant woman, a man's leader. She doesn't want to be kicking you in the butt and pushing you around. She wants you to be able to stand up and be a man no matter what.

Being a man is not about being a man in an asshole type of way where you're being rude to her or you're being mean to her or anything like that. You simply have the balls to be confident, be funny, be loving and be flirtatious in moments where other guys would be afraid to say anything.

You have the confidence, the balls to actually make something happen between you and her.

You're not hesitating and thinking, "I can't say anything because she might get turned off. She might get angry. She might tell me to never contact her again. I've got to suck up to her and then she will give me another chance."

If a guy has that type of thought process, his behavior, conversation and actions will turn his ex off because women aren't attracted to insecurity and self-doubt in men. A woman wants you to believe in yourself and your attractiveness to her no matter what.

It's not about believing in yourself in an arrogant way, but instead being a loving, confident man who guides you and her back into a relationship.

2. On the Phone

[image: Get a woman back via phone]

The next example is when you talk to her on the phone.

I understand that many guys who are trying to get their ex back can't talk to their ex-girlfriend, fiancé or wife on the phone because she's blocked them, or she's no longer answering their calls.

So, before I go on and give you the example of what to say on the phone, I'll just point out that if you are in that position where your ex is no longer answering your phone calls or text messages and has blocked you, I provide all the techniques on how to get an ex back no matter what the situation is in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System.

It includes how to get her to unblock you from social media, to respond to a text message, to get on a phone call with you, and to meet up with you in person.

Okay, so now on to the example of when you do talk to her on the phone, what you can actually say.

I was talking to a phone coaching client recently and while we were talking, he said to me that he used to call up his girlfriend and say, "Hey, girlfriend" and she used to smile and laugh about that.

However, now that they'd broken up, she was being cold towards him on the phone, wasn't really laughing or smiling or anything like that and was just being a bit distant and cold and uninterested.

So, I said, "Hey, hang on. You used to say, 'Hey, girlfriend' to her," so now you've got the perfect opportunity to make her smile and laugh and to ease the tension between you and her and make things a little bit more lighthearted.

In his case, I recommended that he call her up and say, "Hey, ex-girlfriend. What's going on?" And that is going to get her to smile, maybe laugh, but at least she's going to have a bit of a smile on her face.

What a smile and a laugh does is that it gets rid of negative tension and makes things a little bit more lighthearted, where don't actually have to be so serious and deep and meaningful and careful when you talk to your ex-girlfriend or your fiancé or wife.

Instead you can simply be confident and let your natural charisma come through. Be the man. Be the man who guides you and her back into feelings of love.

Don't be the scared guy who is afraid to say something because he thinks it might piss her off. He thinks that she might say, "Hey, you can't say that to me," or whatever. You've got to be the stronger one when you're getting a woman back.

3. In Person

[image: Meet up to get your ex back after a break up]

The next example is when you meet up with your woman in person.

A common situation that happens when a guy meets up with his girl in person and he's trying to get her back is that if he touches her, or if he goes to hug her, or if he gives her a compliment about her looks or whatever, she will say something like, "Oh, you know you can't say that because we're not together anymore," or "You shouldn't be sitting this close to me because we're not together anymore."

Something along those sorts of lines where she'll put out some sort of rule where because they have broken up, they can't laugh and smile together anymore, they can't flirt with each other, he can't touch her, they can't hug, etc.

In a situation like that, what I recommend guys do is turn into something that both of you can laugh about so her random rules don't get in the way of you getting back with her.

For example: If your ex is arriving to meet up and you say to her, "Look at you. You're looking good today. Looking very sexy. I like the dress" and she says, "You can't say that sort of thing. We're broken up. Don't say that sort of stuff to me."

You can then turn that into something to laugh about together, but you can also use it as an opportunity to make her feel respect for you because you are the man, and you're not going to crumble under her initial bit of pressure there. You're stronger than that.

So say, for example, you've given her that compliment and she says, "You can't be saying those sort of things. We're broken up."

What you can say in that moment is, "Oh, really? Okay. Well, hang on. I didn't see the ex's rule book. Okay, when an ex-girlfriend and ex-boyfriend interact with each other, there are no compliments...it's just a coldhearted approach to each other. I've got to be a complete asshole to you. You've got to be a complete bitch to me. All right. Okay. I didn't see that rule book. Give me a look at it. Have you got the book here? I want to read it. Let me see these rules about no niceness to be shown to each other. You can't be giving compliments, especially about looks. It's going to be just cold and distant. Yeah, alright...okay, give me a look at this book."

Turn into a bit of a joke, something to laugh about, but also show her that, hey, you're not going to be pushed around with that sort of crap. You're a loving, confident man...and there's nothing wrong with being a loving, confident, masculine man.

[image: Attract your ex in person]

If you do want to get your ex back and there is a chance for you to get her back, regardless of what she's saying at the front (e.g. "I just want to be friends" or "It's too late"), what she's going to respond to is you being the man and guiding both you and her back into feelings of love.

She isn't going to get back into a relationship with you if you're too afraid to say anything or do anything because it might come across the wrong way, or she might say something negative towards you, or it might be uncomfortable. You've got to be stronger than that.

When it comes to getting a woman back, a man needs to be stronger than the woman.

It's not about being stronger in an asshole type of way where you're saying, "Hey, I can do whatever I want" sort of thing. It's about being strong in a loving way. You're being a confident, loving, masculine man...and that is something that all women respond positively to.

Your ex might put on an act that she's not responding positively to anything that you're doing, but if you just show her a little bit of that loving masculinity where you're just fearless with it, she is going to drop her guard.

She's naturally going to start to feel respect and attraction for you and when you make your ex feel a lot of respect and attraction for you, she naturally starts to reconnect with the love that she used to have for you. Loving feelings come back. It feels good to be around you.

That's what really counts when getting a woman back.

The Most Important Part of Getting a Woman Back

[image: Getting a woman back]

So to finish up here, I want to point out something very important for you.

What you really need to understand when you're trying to get your ex back is that every time you interact with her, it has to be a positive.

You've got to be making her feel some level of respect and attraction for you. When that happens, she starts to reconnect with the love that she has for you.

She may say that she doesn't love you anymore, but that's not how love works. Love doesn't actually die.

What happens with love is it just gets pushed into the background, but love can be reconnected with. But you can't just go straight for love. It's got to be respect and attraction and then she will start to reconnect with the love.

So what you need to do is make sure that every time you interact with her from now on, you use it as an opportunity to make her feel some level of respect and attraction for you. She will then naturally start to reconnect with the love.

However, if you continue on from this day forward, and you're saying and doing things that make her lose respect for you, not feel attracted to you and feel turned off by you, then she's not going to be wanting to get back with you.

She's going to be feeling turned off and the love you shared is just going to be pushed into the background even further, and she won't want anything to do with it, because she's not attracted and drawn to you as a person at that point.

If you want to get your ex back, I recommend that you don't waste anymore time ignoring her or waste anymore energy trying to convince her to take you back.

The way to get an ex back is to use any interaction that you have with her as an opportunity to make her feel some level of respect, attraction and love for you again. When you start to approach her in that way, you will see that she drops her guard, becomes open to interacting with you, and starts to have feelings for you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Do When Your Girlfriend Stops Talking to You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a girlfriend stops talking to her boyfriend, it is usually because:

1. She wants to break up with him, but doesn't have the courage to tell him.

[image: She doesn't have the courage to break up with him]

Most women don't like to directly tell a man that they want to break up and will either hint at it or simply stop talking to him for a while in the hope that he gets the hint that she wants to get out of the relationship.

This is why a lot of women will say things like, "I need some space," or "It's not you, it's me. I just need to figure out what I really want in my life," or "I just need a break from being in a relationship, but maybe we can get back together sometime in the future," rather than have to face him and tell him it's over.

A big reason why women do this is because instinctively they feel they need to physically protect themselves.

Even if a guy is really nice and sweet, a woman still fears that he might become angry or violent if she breaks up with him.

Another reason why women try to avoid directly break up with a guy is that she doesn't want to be talked out of her decision, or worse, have to get into a whole explanation where she has to spell things out for him and tell him what he did wrong.

[image: She doesn't want to be talked out of her decision to break up with him]

Having to explain where he is going wrong is unappealing to a woman because it makes her feel as though she has to mother him and teach him how to be a man in the relationship.

So, what should you do now that your girlfriend has stopped talking to you?

Regardless of whether your girlfriend is just temporarily angry at you or really does want to break up with you, the action you need to take is the same.

You have to make your girlfriend feel so much respect, attraction and love for you as a man that she cannot help herself from wanting to be with you.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works!

At the start of your relationship, you were clearly able to make her feel enough attraction to want to be with you, but if she has lost interest and isn't talking to you, it usually means that she's lost respect and attraction for you somewhere along the way.

You can change how she feels, but you have to be willing to make some changes to the way you interact with her.

For example: If you have become insecure, you need to start becoming emotionally stronger, otherwise she will lose even more interest in you.

Why? Women are attracted the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence, self-esteem, determination to succeed) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, self-doubt, fear of failure).

You have to make sure that from now on, you focus on rebuilding her feelings of respect and attraction for you whenever you interact with her.

If you don't do that, she will most likely break up with you and then it will be a whole different ball game where you will need to go through a process to get her back.

In case she does break up with you, make sure that you watch this video to understand some of the classic mistakes that guys make when a girlfriend breaks up with them and what you should do instead.

It used to be very difficult for a guy to get a girlfriend back, but thanks to the internet, men like me can help you through the process of fixing your problems with her, getting her respect and attraction back and keep the relationship together.

If you think that your situation is really bad, it's probably nowhere near as bad as some of the marriages and long term relationships that I have helped get back together.

If those men can get their woman back (after decades of an unhappy relationship), believe me – you can easily get your girlfriend to talk to you again and want to stay with you in a relationship!

Another reason why a girlfriend will stop talking to her boyfriend is that

2. They had a really bad fight and she's still mad at him about it

[image: She's still angry about the argument]

Fights happen in every relationship, but sometimes things can really get out of hand and become nasty.

When a fight like that happens, a guy might get kicked out of the bedroom or be asked to sleep on the couch for a few days until everything gets ironed out.

Sometimes though, especially if the couple isn't living together, a girlfriend might stop talking to him for a while because she doesn't want to have to interact with him again and be made to feel angry, irritated or annoyed.

Naturally, if this type of fight happens regularly in a relationship, it may be a sign that there are deeper problems in the relationship (e.g. one person is a lot more mature than the other, she has too much power over him) and that she is beginning to lose respect and attraction for him as a man.

So, if you're wondering what to do when your girlfriend stops talking to you in a situation like this, the answer is pretty clear: Start making an effort to fix the root causes of the problems in your relationship.

[image: What to do if your girlfriend stops talking to you all of a sudden]

For example: If she is annoyed with you because you lack purpose in direction in life and only want to spend time with her, then you need to start focusing on your biggest goals and ambitions in life and making progress on them.

If she has stopped talking to you because you and her always fight, you need to force yourself to be more light-hearted about things and try to add more smiling and laughter into conversations with her. If she isn't talking to you because you have broken her trust, you need to apologize for that, tell her that it is possible for a guy to learn from a mistake and become a better man and then start showing her that you really have changed.

Another reason why a girlfriend might stop talking to her boyfriend isâ€¦

3. She's testing to see how he will react if she's not always available

Sometimes a woman might stop talking to her boyfriend to see how much power she can gain over him (e.g. will he start saying and doing whatever she wants in the hopes of getting to see her more?), or to see if he really cares about her (e.g. is he just with her for sex and a casual relationship, or is he truly committed to her?).

In most cases though, a woman will stop talking to her guy as a way to test his confidence in himself. If she tests him and notices that instead of just remaining confident and relaxed about it, he becomes insecure, clingy and needy, she will then begin to question whether he is really the man she thought he was.

She will begin to feel worried that she is getting further involved with a man who lacks emotional maturity and needs her for his sense of identity and happiness in this world.

Guys like that usually lack purpose and direction in life and women instinctively know that a guy lacks that quality, he will almost always become clingy, insecure, protective and controlling later on in a relationship.

Women don't always know that they want a guy who has purpose in life because most women don't even know what their purpose is.

However, all women know that they don't like it when a man becomes insecure in response to her pulling back some affection and interest.

For example: If a woman stops talking to her boyfriend and he panics and starts calling, texting and instant messaging her non stop, she might briefly feel pleased that she got him to fall all over himself for her, but when her smugness wears off, she will realize that she's not as excited about having so power over him as she thought she would be.

In her mind, she will begin to see him as being a weak, confused guy and she will start to lose respect and attraction for him.

When that happens, she might decide to stop talking to him and spend more time with her friends or focusing on her work or studies because she doesn't feel like being his girlfriend anymore.

Some Do's and Don'ts to Get Your Girlfriend to Feel Respect and Attraction For You Again

In most cases, if a girlfriend stops talking to her boyfriend, it's a simple case of her not feeling enough respect and attraction for him to want to stay in contact.

You can change how she feels about you by following these essential DOs and DON'Ts!

1. Don't ask her why she's not talking to you

A woman doesn't want to be in a relationship where she has to teach a guy how to be a man that she can look up to, respect and feel excited to be in love with.

If you don't already know what caused your girlfriend to stop talking to you, you have to figure it out before you contact her, otherwise she will feel as though you just aren't ready to be in a relationship with a girl like her.

Rather than asking her to help you become the kind of man she needs, you need to work out where you've been going wrong and then start making changes to your behavior, conversation style and the way you treat her.

If you're not sure where you've been going wrong, watch this video that I made for guys who've already been dumped by a woman!

Fixing your emotional issues (e.g. insecurity) and become a better man doesn't mean that you have to become 100% perfect, but you at least need to show her that you really are changing.

If your girlfriend senses that you are either unwilling to change or are clueless about what she needs to you change, she's not going to feel excited about talking to you again.

She just won't want to continue investing time into a guy who hasn't yet worked out how to be the man she (or any other woman) needs in a relationship.

2. Don't bombard her with calls and text messages

[image: Bombarding girlfriend with texts]

When a girlfriend stops talking to her guy, it's only natural that he might try to get in touch with her via text or a phone call and ask why.

However, bombarding her with phone calls, text messages and other forms of communication (e.g. Facebook messages, Whatsapp, e-mails, letters, etc) to ask her why she's ignoring him usually only accomplishes two things:

1. It tells her he still doesn't have a clue what he has done wrong to make her stop talking to him.
2. It makes her feel even less attracted to him because he is behaving in a needy way by sending so many messages.

No matter how desperate you are feeling right now, bombarding your girlfriend with unwanted attention will usually only result in her wanting to distance herself from you even more.

3. Don't ignore her completely either

Although you shouldn't bombard your girlfriend with calls and texts that are asking her to talk to you or to tell you what you did wrong, you shouldn't completely ignore her either.

If you do ignore her (e.g. using the No Contact Rule), you will most-likely just give her the space to decide that sheâs better off without you.

She might even go out with her girlfriends to party and meet and have sex with another guy and then start a new relationship with him instead of trying to fix her relationship with you.

So, rather than bombard her with needy, insecure communication, you need to simply call her up and shock her (in a good way) out of her current state of mind.

How?

First you need to apologize for your recent mistakes and explain that you have learnt from the experience and are making positive changes every day.

Next you need to get her laughing, smiling and enjoying the conversation with you, rather than sticking with a deep and meaningful conversation.

When she hears your apology and then begins to feel good talking to you over the phone (or in person), she will then start to believe that maybe you are changing and maybe it is possible for you and her to go back to the good old days when your relationship was amazing.

4. Do get on with your life in the meantime

If your girlfriend currently feels like she doesnât respect you as a man, she will be actively looking for signs that support how she is thinking and feeling about you.

For example: If a woman breaks up with a guy because he lacks purpose in life and is afraid of reaching his true potential, she isnât going to be impressed if she sees that heâs still stuck in the same old routine.

She will want to see that he is starting to set goals and make progress in life, so she can feel hopeful that he isnât a loser in life and is instead a man that she can rely on now and in the long run to lead both himself and her to a better life over time.

Likewise, if a woman stops talking to a guy because sheâs sick of how insecure and jealous he is, sheâs not going to be impressed if that insecurity and jealousy keeps coming through in how he talks to her, treats her and behaves around her.

She will want to see that he has become more emotionally mature and secure and isnât the same old needy, insecure guy that she was feeling turned off by.

So, rather than sitting at home feeling sad and desperate, make sure that you get on with doing the things that you really enjoy doing in life.

Use her silent treatment as an opportunity to do some of the things that you couldnât do when your girlfriend was around.

For example: Go on a road trip with your buddies, join that martial arts club youâve been thinking about attending, hang out with your friends and go partying and enjoy yourself or get started on that important project that youâve been putting off for a long time.

When she realizes that youâre lost and lonely without her (e.g. when she stops by your social media profile and checks you out), she will be the one contacting you.

5. Do fix your emotional issues and improve yourself

Remaining confident in your girlfriendâs attraction and commitment to you is an essential part of keeping a relationship together because without it, you will naturally become insecure over time and turn her off as a result.

When a guy lacks confidence in his girlfriend's attraction for him, it will often lead to him developing a fear of her finding other guy's attractive, which will cause him to become insecure, jealous or clingy.

He might realize that his insecurity is uncalled for and is ruining the relationship, but unless he starts believing in his attractiveness to her, he will find it difficult to hide his insecurity, especially when his girlfriend tests him by not calling or talking to him for a few days.

So, if your girlfriend has stopped talking to you, this is the perfect time for you to work on becoming truly confident in yourself, so that when you interact with your girlfriend again, she will notice that you've changed in a positive way and her respect and attraction for you will come flooding back.

You don't have to fix everything or be perfect to get your girlfriend to want to talk to you again, but she does need to see that you've taken her silence seriously and have been making a sincere effort to improve yourself.

6. Do make her feel more attracted to by being more confident, charismatic and masculine

When you first hooked up with your girlfriend, there must have been certain qualities that made her feel attracted to you enough to want to be in a relationship with you.

To get her talking to you again, you have to bring out and intensify those qualities even more, (e.g. be the confident, charismatic, masculine guy that she needs you to be).

When you make her feel respect and attraction for you in ways that she hasn't experienced in a long time or has never experienced with you before, that is when she will be keen to talk to you and be around you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make Your Girlfriend Love You Again: 5 Steps

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your girlfriend has fallen out of love with you and no longer feels the same way, it is possible and usually very easy to get her to fall back in love with you again.

Here are the 5 steps that you need to follow to make it happenâ€¦!

1. Understand what really caused her to fall out of love with you

[image: Understand what really caused her to fall out of love with you]

A big part of how to make your girlfriend love you again, is to understand what has really caused her to fall out of love with you.

For example: Some of the reasons why a woman will fall out of love with a guy include:

- He started off nice when the relationship began, but he eventually became controlling, mean and began to treat her badly.
- He started off confident, but eventually became insecure, clingy and jealous.
- He started off telling her about his big dreams and ambitions in life, but he eventually stopped pursuing his dreams and only wanted to spend time with her.
- He made her feel attracted at the start, but gradually began to take her for granted by not putting the effort to continue being attractive to her. Essentially, he became more of a turn off than a turn on over time.

There are many different reasons why a woman will fall out of love with a man in a relationship, but it all really comes down to the guy's inability to deepen her feelings of respect, attraction and love over time.

When a relationship begins, it's very easy to experience feelings of love because the lust and excitement of being with someone new makes both of you feel like you're in love.

However, to keep a relationship together for a lifetime, a man needs to be able to deepen his woman's feelings of respect, attraction and love over time.

So, if you are serious about getting your girlfriend to fall in love with you again, the most important thing for you to is truly understand what has really caused her to fall out of love with you.

Some guys make the mistake of assuming that it's because he isn't buying her enough gifts, doesn't have big enough muscles or other superficial things like that.

However, the real reasons why a woman will fall out of love with a guy have more to do with who he is as a man and how that makes her feel.

2. Make the right changes to your behavior, communication style and attitude

[image: Make the right changes to your behavior, attitude and communication style]

When a guy is trying to make his girlfriend fall in love with him again, he will sometimes make the mistake of offering things that have no real value to her.

For example: He might become even nicer to his girlfriend (even though he is already a good guy), give her all the power in the relationship, do favors for her, buy lots of things for her, wear more expensive clothes, working out at the gym more and taking her on expensive holidays and vacations.

While all those things can be attractive to a woman, if the fundamental respect and attraction isn't there on her part, then she's not going to really value any of those superficial things.

After all, she's not in a relationship with his clothes, his muscles or a vacation. She's in a relationship with him and she needs to be in love with him, not other things that come along with the relationship.

So, if you want your girlfriend to fall in love with you again, you must be making the type of changes that will make her feel like you finally understand her and know what she really wants from you.

For example: If you're a guy who lacks purpose and direction in life, you need to get clear on your biggest goals, dreams and ambitions in life and start making progress towards that, rather than spending all of your time with her so you can hide from the world and your potential behind the relationship.

If you have become insecure, you need to focus on becoming emotionally strong as a man.

If you have become controlling and too protective, you need to relax and start to trust in her attraction for you and commitment to you.

If you've become annoying or are constantly arguing with her, you need to start focusing on being more light-hearted and creating a relationship dynamic that includes a lot of laughter and smiling.

3. Start building on her respect and attraction for you

[image: Happy couples]

Once you have begun to make changes that appeal to her, you then need to build on her renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

This will happen when she can see that all of the most of the little things that have been annoyed her about you are gradually beginning to change.

When she spends time with you, she will be smiling, laughing and feeling good rather than feeling turned off, annoyed or agitated around you.

If you don't know how a woman's attraction for a man really works, watch this video!

You have a lot of direct control over how much or little respect, attraction and love that you make your girlfriend feel.

If you are talking to her, behaving and taking action in ways that make her feel respect and attraction for you, her love for you will naturally build and become stronger over time.

4. Add more variety to the emotional experience of being with you

[image: Add some more variety to the emotional experience of being with you]

One of the reasons why a woman will fall out of love with a man is when the emotional experience of being with him becomes too predictable and boring.

Many guys make the mistake of thinking that a woman will be happy to stick with him for life because the relationship felt great at the start and they had a lot of great sex.

However, just because the relationship was fun and exciting at the start, it doesn't mean that a woman will hold onto that old memory and be happy with it for the rest of her life.

[image: Happy couple in love]

What makes a woman feel truly happy and excited to be in love with a guy is when the emotional experience is interesting and varied.

For example: If a guy has fallen into a routine of just hanging out with his girlfriend all weekend to watch TV, browse the internet, look at social media and eat, then it will be fun initially, but it will also become boring if it is on repeat for a long time.

To mix things up, he needs to think of fun and interesting activities to do with his girlfriend (e.g. go for a relaxing hike, a drive down to the beach for sunset, go to a winery, catch up with friends, have a house party, hold a dinner party, go on a holiday, learn something new together, go to weekend markets and maybe even get a pet).

Personally speaking, when my girlfriend and I (who is now my wife) got two kittens, it added to the enjoyable emotional experience of our relationship by bringing so much more happiness, joy and relaxation to our lives.

She is the one who cleans up after the cats and feeds them and we have a lot of fun playing with them, watching them and talking about them from time to time.

It has added an extra element to the enjoyable emotional experience of being together as a couple.

If we didn't have those two cats, things would be a little bit quieter around the house at times.

Likewise, if we didn't have friends, we wouldn't have to do on weekends.

If I wasn't dominant enough as a man, I would have listened to her initial "No" and wouldn't have lead the way for us to get into the habit of going for a relaxing walk at a nearby mountain.

Yet, I was persistent and during the first walk she said, "This is so relaxing" which was completely different to the, "No way! I hate walking" when I first suggested it.

So, to make things right with your girlfriend, you need to work out where you and her are lacking in the emotional experience of being together and start adding it into your relationship.

5. Continue to become an even better man over time

[image: Continue to become a bigger and better man over time]

One of the main things that makes a woman fall more deeply in love with a man over time is when she can see that he is a consistently great man.

He consistently becomes a bigger and better man over time by continuing to reach for his goals in life, while also being a good, loving man towards her and giving her the time and attention she needs.

He doesn't give up on achieving his goals when it gets too challenging and he doesn't seek her pity when he is down. He remains strong and keeps pushing forward on his way to achieving his true potential as a man.

This allows her to relax into his masculine direction in life, rather than feeling as though she needs to be the more mature and responsible one and work hard to create a better future for the both of them.

He is someone that she can look up to and respect, which makes her feel proud and excited to be in love with.

You don't have to become Mr. Perfect, save the world or achieve humungous success in life, but you just need to become a bigger and better man than who you are right now.

You've got to keep pushing forward to reach your true potential as a man, rather than hiding from it behind the relationship with her.

She doesn't want to feel as though she has to protect you from the big bad world out there.

She wants to be able to trust in you to be the man and lead the way to a better life for the both of you over time, while also being loving and respect towards her.

If you can do that for her, she will naturally remain in love with you and will be happy to stick with you for life.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Do I Get Her Back? 4 Case Studies

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you've been dumped by your woman and nothing that you've tried so far has worked to get her back, you might be at the point where you're wondering, "How do I get her back?"

So, in this post, I will share 4 case studies where a guy has ruined the relationship and been dumped for a specific reason and then what he needs to do to get her back.

Case study 1: Insecurity

[image: Dumped for being insecure]

Why his insecurity ruined the relationship

In this example, a man and a woman were in a relationship that started off well and the man was completely confident about her attraction for him and his commitment to him.

Yet, over time, he started to become insecure, jealous and too protective of her because she stopped showing him as much affection, love and attention as she did when the relationship began.

He then stopped feeling confident about her attraction and commitment to him and started to worry that she was losing interest.

This is a very common scenario for guys because many guys don't realize that all women will test a man's confidence in a relationship by pulling back some of their affection, interest and attention to see how he reacts.

When a relationship first begins, a woman will usually make a guy feel like he's the only man in the world for her and she will give him plenty of attention, affection and love.

However, to make sure that she is with a confident, emotionally secure guy who has the emotional strength to keep her protected and safe in the long run, she will instinctively begin to test his confidence by showing less interest and affection.

It's at that point in the relationship that a man will either deepen her feelings of respect, love and attraction for him by remaining confident, or he will begin to ruin her feelings by becoming insecure.

What a woman wants to see during this testing phase is that her man continues to push forward in life by reaching for his biggest goals, dreams and ambitions while also remaining completely confident that she is attracted to him and committed to him.

She doesn't want to make it easy for him though because, instinctively, women test men like this to make sure that they aren't settling down with a guy who lacks the emotional strength and toughness of a real man.

For a woman to feel deeper respect, love and attraction over time, her guy has to continue thinking, feeling, behaving and taking action like a man with or without her reassurance.

If her man remains strong no matter what, she will lessen the testing and begin to show him more affection, love and attention, but she will never stop testing his emotional strength.

Here's the thingâ□|

100-200 years ago, men didn't have to worry about deepening a woman's feelings because the woman had to stay with him for life even if she was unhappy.

Back then, a woman had to remain a virgin until marriage and then stick with her man for life, otherwise she would be shunned by society and even family for attempting to divorce him (back then the divorce rate was less than 10% in the developed world).

Yet, in today's day and age, a man actually needs to be able to deepen his woman's feelings for him over time and being emotionally strong (rather than insecure) is an essential part of that.

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence, self-esteem, determination to succeed) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecurity, low self-esteem, fear of success).

What he needs to do to get her back

If a guy has been dumped for being too insecure in the relationship (e.g. clingy, needy, too protective, controlling, being emotionally sensitive, etc), he needs to first begin fixing his insecurity and become an emotionally strong man.

He doesn't need to become Mr. Perfect and have everything 100% fixed, but he does need to get to the core reasons of his insecurity with women (or just her) in relationships and start to fix that.

When he interacts with her again (over the phone or in person. Not via text), she will notice and feel his emotional strength and emotional maturity in the way he talks, thinks, feels, moves and behaves.

However, that's not going to be enough to get most women back.

There are other steps to the process of properly getting a woman back, including getting her to understand that everyone learns and grows throughout life and it is possible for a guy to make some mistakes, learn from it and then become a better man as a result.

It's important to get her to realize that because if she believes crappy sayings like, "A leopard never changes its spots" or "Men never change" then she won't allow herself to believe that you really have changed.

To get a woman back after being dumped due to insecurity, you must ensure that you approach the process correctly.

For example: If you try to get her to give you another chance after telling her that you've changed, almost all women are going to say no.

To get her back properly, you have to include a few more steps prior to asking for another chance, otherwise her guard will still be up.

Watch this video to understand some of the classic mistakes that guys make when trying to get a woman backâ◻'

As you will discover from the video above, she's not going to take you seriously unless you are able to make her feel respect and attraction for you based on the way you now interact with her.

If you talk to her and still make her feel the same old emotions (e.g. annoyed, misunderstood, agitated, unhappy, etc), then she's not going to come rushing back to you.

To get her back for real, you've got to start making her feel respect and attraction for you based on the changes you've made since the break up.

She will feel respect and attraction when she notices the difference in how you think, talk, feel, behave, take action and respond and react to her.

That is what really counts.

If you aren't doing that, then almost anything else you try simply won't work and you will be left wondering, "How do I get her back?" once again.

Case study 2: Lack of attraction

[image: Dumped due to a lack of attraction]

Why his inability to make her feel attracted ruined the relationship

In this example, the woman decided to leave him because she no longer felt attracted to who he had become and how that made her feel.

He was able to attract her in the beginning of the relationship, but he either stopped putting in the effort or lost his way somewhere and began to think, behave and act in unattractive ways around her. Here's the thing...

If a woman gets into a relationship with a guy, she will usually have a sufficient amount of respect and attraction for him to want to be in the relationship in the first place.

Yet, if the attraction dwindles away and she feels as though she would be happier without him rather than with him, a woman will often start the break up process and try to get away from a man.

Some guys feel betrayed by a woman at this point because they remember all the nice things she used to say (e.g. "I love you and want to be with you forever" or "I want us to grow old together") but those promises mean nothing to a woman who no longer feels attracted to a guy.

When a woman promises to stay with a guy for life, she is making that promise based on how she feels in that moment.

She will only stick with that promise if her man is able to deepen her feelings of respect, love and attraction over time.

If he can't do that and instead ruins her attraction for him, then she is not obliged to have to stay with him for life.

It's not like life back in the late 1800s to early 1900s where a woman had to stay with one man for life or else she would be shunned by society.

Today's women are essentially told by society, "If you're not happy, leave him and find a better man. You deserve to be happy!" whereas women in the past were told, "Choose one man and stick with him for life no matter what."

What he needs to do to get her back

If a guy has been dumped by a woman because she no longer felt attracted to him, he needs to be reminded about what really makes a woman feel attracted to a man.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction worksâ◻|

Some examples of how a man can deepen his woman's feelings of attraction, respect and love over time in a relationship are to:

- Be a man of his word.
- Be emotionally stronger than her.
- Reach for his true potential as a man by striving to achieve his biggest goals, dreams and ambitions in life.
- Make her feel feminine and girly in comparison to how masculine he is (i.e. how he thinks, feels, talks, behaves, takes action), rather than making her feel like a neutral friend, or worse â€” making her feel more masculine or dominant than him.
- Create a relationship dynamic that has a lot of laughter, smiling and positivity, rather than arguments, tension and negativity.

There are many different ways that a man can deepen his woman's feelings over time and to be successful in a relationship in today's world, a man needs to be able to do some or most of them to keep his woman happy for life.

A mistake that a lot of modern men make is to assume that a woman will stick around for life just because the relationship felt good at the start.

If you want a woman to stick with you for life, you must know what actually makes a woman fall more deeply in love over time and feel increasingly respectful of you and attracted to you.

If you don't have that skill, then you're setting yourself up to fail with her and with any other woman if you decide not to get her back.

Do you have the skill of being able to deepen a woman's feelings of respect, attraction and love for you over time?

To help you answer that important question, I will explain the situation in this wayâ€”

Sometimes when a guy is seeking help on how to get his ex back, he falls into either one of these two categories:

1. He got lucky when he met her and doesn't really know how to make her feel a lot of respect and attraction for him.
2. He did a great job of attracting her initially, but overtime he made a bunch of relationship mistakes and lost confidence in his ability to make her feel attracted. He now doesn't know how to get himself back to the confident, cool, attractive guy that he used to be.

Which of the two guys above describes you best in terms of your relationship with her?

Either way, you must ensure that you are capable of resparking her attraction and respect for you when you next interact with her on a phone call or in person.

For example: If you call her up on the phone and you're able to get her smiling and laughing even though she was initially be cold towards you on the phone call, she is going to feel respect and attraction for you because of that.

Likewise, if you meet up with her in person and are able to make her feel attracted to you in new ways during the conversation, she will naturally begin to open back up to being with you.

However, if you're still making her feel the same old emotions because you don't even know how to attract her during an in-person interaction, then you can't expect her to change how she feels about the break up.

Case study 3: Not enough of a man for her

[image: Dumped for not being enough of a man for her]

Why not being enough of a man for her ruined the relationship

In this example, the woman decided to leave her guy because he just wasn't enough of a man for her. Out of the 100s of ex back cases that I have personally dealt with via my phone coaching service, I've found that this is one of the most common reasons why a woman will dump a boyfriend, fianc   or husband.

Although a woman may put up with a guy (who lacks the ability to be a real man for her) during the initial part of a relationship, most women will get sick and tired of being with a guy who isn't becoming more mature and more masculine over time (in how he thinks, feels, behaves, takes action). A woman wants to be able to look up to and respect her man, feel proud to be his woman, feel excited to be in love with him and feel safe that he will guide both himself and her to a better future over time.

So, if a guy is wondering, "How do I get her back?" and he has been dumped for not being enough of a man for her, it will usually be due to one or more of the following things:

- He lacks purpose in life and is making her the center of his self-identity and reason for happiness. A real man will love and cherish his woman, but he will spend most of his time and energy following through on his purpose in life (i.e. his biggest goals, dreams and ambitions).
- He lacks the ability to make her feel girly and feminine in comparison to his masculinity. He might only make her feel neutral around him like a friend or make her feel as though she is more dominant and masculine than he is.
- He is too emotionally sensitive and lacks the emotional strength and maturity for her to be able to look up to him and respect him as her strong man.

If a guy lacks the ability to be a man, a woman will feel stuck because no woman wants to have to take on the role of being a guy's teacher in life on how to be a man.

A woman wants a man who is ready now to be her man, rather than a lost, confused guy who needs her to mother him, be a big sister figure in his life or be his teacher.

If a woman has to take on that role, it destroys her feelings of sexual attraction and respect for him and unless he changes, she will simply try to get out of the relationship.

What he needs to do to get her back:

If a guy has been dumped for not being enough of a man for a woman, he needs to stop for a moment and learn what it really means to be a man in a relationship.

For example, being a relationship means:

- Being emotionally stronger than her.
- Guiding both you and her to a better life over time.
- Being a man of purpose.
- Being a man of your word.

- Taking on the majority of the important decision-making, so she can relax into being your girl/woman.
- Being the more mature and responsible one.

Case study 4: Lack of trust

[image: Dumped due to a lack of trust]

Why her lack of trust in him ruined the relationship

In this example, the woman decided to dump her guy because she just couldn't trust in him to be honest, faithful or consistent as a man.

She may have given him plenty of chances in the past and eventually got to the point where she was sick and tired of being lied to or taken for granted by him, so she ended the relationship.

If a woman is very attracted to her man, she will often put up with lies, cheating and deceit for a long time because she doesn't want to give up on the guy that she feels so much attraction for.

However, if a woman doesn't feel much attraction for her man and she also doesn't trust him, then she's not going to have much of a reason to want to stick with the relationship.

What he needs to do to get her back:

If a woman doesn't trust her ex boyfriend (fiancé or husband), he needs to tell her that he completely understand why she wouldn't trust him right now.

However, if he sincerely has changed and is now a completely trustworthy man, he needs to also tell her that it is possible for a guy to grow up, learn from an experience and become a better man as a result.

He then needs to give her an apology and tell her that he doesn't expect her to believe anything, but he only asks her to witness the real changes that he has made and then answer his question, "Do you think it is possible for a guy to learn from his mistakes, grow up like I have and become a better man as a result?"

Once she admits that it is possible, it then automatically opens her mind up to notice the changes you have made and she then begins to see that you are different and that she is right to think that a man can change.

So, if you've been dumped for breaking a woman's trust in you, it's important that not only you realize that it's possible for you to become a better man, but to make her realize that.

A lot of people mistakenly go through life thinking that if they make a mistake, then that is who they are and they will always be like that.

No way.

That is not how life works.

If you are open to change, then you will change and you will become a bigger and better man every day in your life from now on.

Your identity and way of thinking, behaving and feeling is not set in stone. You can become an even more amazing version of you who are right now.

In fact, simply by reading my post, you have already made improvements to how you think as a man, which will make you more attractive and appealing to her from now on.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

6 Mistakes to Avoid if You Want to Get Your Ex Back Fast

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Some relationships take a bit longer to get back than others, but most of the cases that I've dealt with, a guy has been able to get his woman back within a few days to a couple of weeks.

Of course, some cases do take a little bit longer (e.g. the woman has already moved on, if he was abusive, if they'd broken up multiple times before then), so depending on the severity of your break up, you can expect to get your ex back within the next 24 hours, the next week, a couple of weeks or in extreme cases, a couple of months.

How quickly you get her back really depends on how willing you are to stop making all the classic mistakes that other guys make and start doing what actually works.

So, if you want to get your ex back fast, here are 6 mistakes to avoid!

1. Don't use the No Contact rule

[image: Don't use the No Contact Rule if you want to get her back fast]

If you around the internet, most people will suggest that you don't contact your ex for anywhere from 20-60 days after a break up.

They will also suggest that if your ex doesn't come running back, then it wasn't meant to be and you should just move on.

Some people will also tell you to wait another 30 days before contacting her again and if she's not interested, just move on.

Crazy, right?

Well, that's what happens when anyone can have a voice on the internet.

The No Contact rule is one of the most misunderstood pieces of advice that you will find online when it comes to getting an ex back, so I'm now going to clear it up for you.

The No Contact can sometimes work on a woman who really loves her man and just needs a little bit of time apart from him to realize that.

If he doesn't contact her, she will feel lonely without him and worry that he will move on with another woman, so she will contact him and be interested in getting back.

Not contacting a woman for along time after a break up can also work on young women who can't deal with the pain of a break up, or unattractive women who worry that they won't be able to find replacement man before their ex moves on.

However, the majority of women (I'd say about 90% based on all my experience helping guys to get women back) simply use the no contact period to move on from their ex.

Why?

It's very easy for most women to get laid and find a new guy. All a woman has to do is go out to a bar and say, "Yes" to the many guys who will be interested in having sex with her.

[image: Most women can get laid much easier than men]

She can also just get on Tinder or use online dating and have 100s of guys ready to date her immediately.

So, if her ex doesn't contact her, she will usually just use that time to start seeing other guys or having girl's nights out with her girlfriend, which will often end up with a one night stand or her giving out her number to several guys in one night.

Yet, the same doesn't apply for most guys after a break up.

Most guys are not skilled at attracting and picking up women, so it's not as easy for them to find a replacement woman.

So, if a guy breaks up with a woman and she then doesn't contact him for 30 days, he is going to be feeling pretty crappy about himself if he hasn't been able to find a replacement woman.

He will then want to contact his ex-girlfriend (fiancée or wife) to check that she still misses him and wants to be with him and she will then have a chance to get him back.

In other words, the No Contact Rule usually works for women who want to get a man back, but if you are a man who wants to get a woman back, it will almost certainly be a very bad move on your part.

Watch this video to understand why most guys should not use the No Contact Rule to get a woman back.

If you want to get your ex back fast, don't allow your ex to move on without you during a long no contact period.

To get a woman back, you need to be a man about this and fix your issues (e.g. insecurity), improve your ability to make her feel attracted to you and get her to meet up with you in person so she can experience the new and improved you.

2. Don't beg or plead for another chance

[image: Begging for another chance]

When a guy is being dumped by the woman he loves, it can feel as though his entire world is coming crashing down around him and he is being left with nothing to live for anymore.

The woman that he loves, cherishes, cares about and wants to spend the rest of his life with is saying that she doesn't want anything to do with him anymore and is asking him to leave her alone.

[image: Feeling like you can't live without her]

It's a horrible experience for a guy to go through and because of how painful the experience is, many guys make the mistake of begging and pleading for another chance.

Yet, begging and pleading only turns a woman off even more because women are attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence, high-self esteem, emotional independence) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecurity, low self-esteem, emotional neediness).

Don't worry if you've already made the mistake of pleading, because it is something that a woman can forgive.

I know that it can be forgiven because I've personally helped 100s of phone coaching clients to get a woman back and most women are able to look at it as a silly mistake that he made in response to her decision to end the relationship.

While getting broken up with, begging and pleading might feel like the fastest way to get a woman to give you another chance, but it's actually the fastest way to turn her off further in that moment.

What a guy should really do during a break up is to accept her reasons for breaking up with him and then leave (or get her to leave) and just go away for a few days to fix and improve himself before he contacts her.

Not being in contact with her for 2-3 days so you can fix your issues and improve yourself, shows a woman that you respect her and appreciate her, but more importantly $\hat{\square}\square$ that you have the capacity as a man to learn from mistakes and then improve and grow.

You're not the sort of guy who makes the same mistakes over and over again, doesn't ever listen to what a woman says and just expects her to want to be with you because you're a nice guy.

You know that a woman's respect and attraction for a man is something that needs to be maintained and built on over time.

You are one of the rare, intelligent men in this world who have the capacity to learn and grow from your mistakes so that you can become a bigger and better man over time.

When your ex realizes that you really have listened and you really have changed, she will then begin to lower her guard and take you seriously.

However, if you aren't willing to make any changes to how you think, feel, behave and act around her and in life, you can't expect her to want you back fast or ever at all.

3. Don't say that you can't live without her

One of the mistakes that guys make when trying to get a woman back, is to tell her that without her, his life means nothing and is not worth living.

Women hate to hear that because a woman doesn't want to be a man's purpose and reason for living life.

Women are naturally attracted to men who have purpose and ambitions in life that are in addition to a relationship with a woman.

If a man's main purpose and ambition in life is just to have his girlfriend (fianc  or wife) in his life, he will almost always become insecure, jealous, clingy, needy or controlling after the initial stage of a relationship.

During the initial stage of a relationship, a woman will be showing her man a lot of attention, affection and love and he will feel wanted, respected, needed and happy as a result.

Yet, almost all women will test their man's confidence after a few weeks or a few months of a relationship by pulling back their interest, affection and interest to see how he reacts.

A woman instinctively does this to ensure that she is in a relationship with a man who is going to continue to rise up through the levels of life and reach for his true potential as a man, regardless of whether or not she is giving him a lot of affection or attention.

If he fails the test by becoming insecure, needy and clingy, she will lose respect and attraction for him.

However, if he passes the test by maintaining 100% belief in his attractiveness to her and then simply continuing to make progress towards his biggest goals, dreams and ambitions in life, her respect and attraction for him will deepen.

[image: Getting your ex back fast]

She will feel as though she is with a man who loves her and wants to be with her, but doesn't need her to constantly prop him up emotionally.

She has herself a man who is strong with or without her, which then allows her to relax into the exciting role of being his woman.

Yet, if he crumbles and becomes insecure when she pulls back her interest, then she starts to resent him for not allowing her to relax into being his woman.

If she wants to stay with him, she's going to have to keep boosting his confidence by reassuring him that she loves him and wants to be with him.

The more she has to do that, the more she feels like a mother who needs to take care of a little boy or a big sister who is trying to make her little brother grow up to be a confident guy.

That's not what a woman wants when in a relationship with a man.

Your ex wants you to be a ready-made man who does not need her to constantly boost your confidence or reassure you that everything is going to be okay.

She wants you to know that she will feel a deep, lifetime attraction for you if you can just be a real man and let her relax into the exciting role of being your woman.

So, when a guy makes the mistake of telling a woman that he can't live without her or that his life is meaningless without her in it, she doesn't feel amazed and excited to be in love with him.

Instead, she feels like he is more of a burden than a benefit to her and as a result, she tries to get herself out of or away from the relationship.

If you want to get your ex back fast, you have to understand that a woman doesn't want to be your purpose in life or your reason for living.

She wants to be a part of your life and a part of your purpose, but she doesn't want to be responsible for your happiness and sense of identity in this world.

She wants you to be a confident, happy, forward moving man with or without her.

4. Don't lie about being with other women

[image: Lying about being with other women to hopefully make her jealous]

When a woman isn't responding to the basic tricks (e.g. pleading, promising to change, saying that he can't live without her, using the No Contact Rule), a guy will sometimes think that he can trick his ex into wanting him back by saying that he is dating or having sex with other women.

This is a trick that almost always backfires. Why?

If the guy is lying and is only doing it to make his ex jealous, all she has to say to ruin his plan is to say something like, "Okay fine. Enjoy your life with those women. Don't ever contact me again."

If he then comes groveling back to her, apologizing and asking for another chance, she will assume that he was only saying that to make her jealous and trick her into giving him another chance.

As a result, she will lose even more respect and attraction for him.

She will then likely want to get emotional revenge on him by going out and having sex with new guys, dating new guys or allowing herself to fall in love with a new guy.

If you want to get your ex back fast, it's okay to hook up with other women to make your ex jealous, but it's not actually necessary to get a woman back.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I explain how to get a woman back without having to hook up with another woman at all.

You can hook up with other women if you want to, but it's not actually necessary to get a woman back.

5. Don't keep saying and doing the things that are turning her off

A woman's attraction to a man is mostly based on how his personality, behavior and inner qualities make her feel.

For example: If a guy is interacting with a woman and he is being insecure, self-doubting, needy and emotionally sensitive, a woman is naturally going to feel turned off by him.

However, if a guy is interacting with a woman and he is being confident, displaying high self-esteem and he is emotionally strong, a woman is naturally going to feel attracted to him.

When getting your ex back, it's important that you understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works.

If you don't understand how attraction really works, it's highly likely that you will continue to make subtle and maybe even obvious mistakes that further ruin her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

If you want to get your ex back fast, it's critically important that from now on (in every interaction you have with her) you only make her feel respect and attraction for you, rather than continuing to make the same old mistakes that originally caused her to lose respect and attraction for you.

6. Don't try to be her friend via text

A common mistake that guys make when trying to get an ex back is to stay in contact with her via text, in the hopes that it will keep him on her mind and she will then want to get back with him.

However, based on all the ex back cases that I've dealt with, I've found that staying in regular contact with a woman via text after a break up almost never results in her feeling a renewed sense of respect and attraction for her ex.

Instead, she loses more respect and attraction for him because she still thinks about him as being the exact guy that she broke up with and can't really SEE any changes in him by looking at a text message.

He might be trying to act cool, confident or funny via text, but she still looks at him as being the same old guy that she broke up with (e.g. insecure, controlling, needy, lacking purpose, etc).

So, here is what I advise you to do if you want to get your ex back fastâ€¦!

Do not give your ex the privilege of being able to text you like a friend, while she moves on with her life without you.

The only time you should send her a text message or reply to one of her texts is to get her on an actual phone call, so you can then get her to agree to meet up with you in person.

When you meet up with her in person, you can then get her to forgive you and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, which will then bring down her guard and open her back up to being with you again.

None of those things can be achieved by texting her. You have to get her on a phone call and then meet up with her in person, so you can show her that you really have changed.

However, be warned: The most important thing to your ex is not that you have changed and improved as a man.

What is important to her?

That SHE feels differently around you (e.g. she feels respect, attraction and love again) based on the changes you have made.

When getting an ex back, you must remember that it needs to be about her getting what SHE wants, not what you getting what you want.

You will only get what you want (i.e. get her back) if you can give her the respect and attraction experience that will bring down her guard and allow her to naturally open herself back up to you again.

Getting Your Ex Back Fast

From now on, you need to start making your ex feel a renewed sense of attraction and respect for you when you interact with her.

For example: When you call her up on the phone, you need to be able to get her smiling, laughing and enjoying talking to you, especially if she starts off being cold and distant.

When you get her smiling and laughing and are not fazed by her coldness, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling respect and attraction for you for having the balls and skills to be able to make her feel that way.

You can also make her feel respect and attraction by allowing her to experience your renewed confidence and emotional strength while you talk to her.

However, just don't make the mistake of trying to make her feel bad by acting like you are so happy and confident without her.

You have to be emotionally strong, but also be loving, kind and considerate. If not, she will put her guard up and want to get emotional revenge on you for attempting to make her feel bad.

The Best Way to Get Your Ex Back Fast is to Follow a Step-by-

Step Plan

Getting an ex back is a very easy, exciting and life-changing process if you follow the right steps. Yet, most guys don't ever get the training they need and simply make mistake after mistake, which pushes the woman even further away.

If you want to get your ex back fast, I recommend that you don't waste anymore time and just start watching the 10 hours of video training in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

After watching the training, you will be ready to get in contact with her your ex and get her to meet up with you again.

When you meet up with her, you will be able to make her forgive you, trigger her feelings of romantic and sexual attraction for you and get her feel happy about giving the relationship another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Will My Ex Girlfriend Ever Want Me Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're wondering, Will my ex girlfriend ever want me back? the answer is yes, you can actually make her want you back.

You have to do it properly though.

Some women are much easier to get back than others, so if your girlfriend hated you when she dumped you, it's important that you follow the right steps to get her to forgive you and become open to having feelings for you again.

Right now, she might not have any feelings for you, but that will be due to you not regaining her respect and attraction, so she can have feelings for you once again.

When you begin saying and doing things that will re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she will naturally begin to feel differently about you and she will open herself up to the idea of being with you again.

Watch this video to see what I mean!

As you will discover from the video above, feelings can and do change.

However, you can't expect your ex girlfriend to want to give you another chance if you haven't even been doing anything to make her feel attraction and respect for you again.

If you want her back, you have to start the process by sparking her feelings of respect and attraction first, otherwise she will stick to her old perception of you, which she had when she broke up with you.

So, if you want to make your ex girlfriend want you back, here's what you need to do:

1. Don't Sit Around Waiting For Her to Contact You

[image: Will my ex ever want me back?]

Regardless of what happened to cause your ex girlfriend to break up with you, you can't sit around wondering, Will my ex girlfriend ever want me back? and hoping that by some miracle she'll change her mind about how she feels about you, and then pick up the phone and call you.

If you want her back then it's you who has to call her; and the sooner the better.

If you wait too long to contact her, you run the risk of her meeting someone else and having sex and falling in love with him.

Besides, when you understand that you can get your ex girlfriend to instantly feel respect for you again simply by the way you talk to her, why would you want to wait?

If you call her up and apologize to her (without being weak or groveling) for what happened, and make her feel that you really understand why she had to break up with you, she won't be able to stay closed off towards you.

On the phone call stay confident and work towards making her laugh and feel attracted to your charm, masculinity, etc. You have to make her feel curious about what has changed about you since your break up, and then get her to agree to one last (don't worry it won't be) meet up.

At the meet up is where you will be able to fully show her that you've changed and make her feel respect and attraction for you again.

By displaying the personality traits and behaviors that are attractive to women (e.g. confidence, charisma, making her laugh, making her feel girly in contrast to your masculine vibe, etc.) she will naturally see you in a new light, and her feelings of respect and attraction for you will begin to grow inside her again.

2. Try to Understand Her Real Reasons For Breaking Up With You

Watch this video to understand some of the reasons why a woman will break up with a guy!

When a woman breaks up with a guy, her natural instinct is usually to let him down as softly as possible to protect herself from getting hurt if they get into a big argument about it.

Rather than tell him all the hurtful reasons why she is breaking up with him (e.g. he isn't enough of a man for her at this point), she'll say something like, "I don't feel the same way about you anymore. It's not you, it's me," or "I need some space to figure out what I really want in my life."

Yet, in her mind she has a list of real reasons why she's breaking up with him.

For example: She might be thinking, "You're so needy and insecure. I feel so smothered. I just can't wait to get out of here and be with a guy who is emotionally secure" or, "You have no personal goals and ambitions for your life. I just can't imagine myself being stuck with a guy like you for the rest of my life. I want a guy who is moving up through the levels of life by reaching for his true potential as a man, and that's definitely not you! You are scared of your own potential and use your relationship with me to hide from following through on your biggest goals and ambitions in life."

She's not going to say that to him because it will then put her into the position of being his teacher in life on how to be a man.

She doesn't want that role. She wants to be his girl, his woman. She wants to look up to him and respect him as her man, not look down on him as being a lost guy who hasn't yet worked out what it really means to be a man.

Rather than teach him, she will simply break up with him and then look for another guy that she can respect and look up to.

So, to get your ex girlfriend back, you need to understand the real reasons why she broke up with you (not the fake ones she gave you like, "I need time to find myself" or "I don't think I want to be in a relationship right now") and then make the correct changes to the way you think, act, behave and how you treat her.

By fully understanding the reasons why she ended the relationship, you will then be able to prove to her (via your conversation style, behavior and attitude) that you are not the same guy that she broke up with.

You will be offering her what she really wants and this will make her feel understood and happy to be interacting with you again.

It won't make every woman want her ex-boyfriend back immediately, but it does open her up to feeling respect and attraction for him, which then allows her to have feelings for him again.

As long as he can build on her feelings of attraction and respect, she will be open to kissing him again, sleeping with him or just catching up again to hang out and see how she feels.

On the other hand, if you meet up with your ex-girlfriend and nothing has really changed about, or you keep promising her to change things that aren't very important to her, then she's going to lose even more respect for you and she's going to want to get as far away from you as possible.

For example: A woman might want her ex to do something more important with his life (e.g. because he hates his job, spends too much time playing video games, doesn't have a job, etc).

When he meets up with her, he promises to be more romantic and take her out to more dinners, but that's not what she wants from him.

She wants him to start following through on his real purpose in life, rather than wasting time because he is either too lazy or afraid to attempt to achieve his real ambitions and goals in life.

You have to be offering your ex-girlfriend what she really wants, not what you think she wants to hear.

This is why it's so important that you fully understand what caused her to break up with you in the first place and then actively change those things about yourself.

3. Fix Your Emotional Issues and Show Her That You've Improved and Changed

One of the worst things to do when attempting to get your ex girlfriend back is to promise her that you will change if she gives you another chance.

Women hate that, because it's so easy to say, "I will change. I promise!" but it takes a lot more effort to actually make those changes.

After all, most humans take anywhere from 21 to 60 days to develop a new habit, so if a guy is in the habit of being insecure, she will have to put up with him for another 1-2 months and hope that he really is getting over his insecurities.

Yet, she has no guarantee of that because he is simply saying to her, "I promise that I will change if you give me another chance. Please believe me! You mean everything to me."

It sounds very convincing, but it's one thing to promise to change and another to actually follow through on it for real.

This is why most women hate it when guys promise to change and only women who lack experience with relationships or are worried that they won't be able to find another guy, will give their boyfriend repeated chances if he promises to change.

However, after a while, even those women will grow tired of giving him chances and will want to move on and find a man who is more capable of making her feel how she really wants to feel when in a relationship.

So, when you meet up with your ex-girlfriend, you should already have made some changes so that she can see that you are serious about improving and becoming a better version of the guy she broke up with.

You don't have to be perfect to get her back, but you do need to start working on any emotional issues you might have and actually make some real progress.

For example: If being too needy and insecure was an issue in your relationship, you need to work on building your confidence and self-worth.

If you were lacking a clear direction in life, you need to set yourself some goals and work towards achieving them.

Not only will this make you seem more attractive in your ex girlfriend's eyes, you will also like who you are becoming as well.

You will realize that when you are confident and emotionally strong, all the other relationships in your life (e.g. at work, your friendships, family) improve too and that everyone around you is now looking up to you and respecting you for the man that you are becoming.

On the other hand, if you try to get your ex girlfriend back without changing anything, not only will she not feel motivated to trust you on that (because you've probably promised to change before), but you will also be losing out on the opportunity to become an even better man than you are right now.

Getting dumped by a woman is a great wake up call for a man.

You can either use it to become a better man, or let it weaken you and destroy you for years while you miss her and wish you could get her back, but you never really put in the effort to become the type of guy that she would want back.

When You Renew Her Feelings of Respect and Attraction For You, She Will Become Open to Getting Back Together

[image: Renew her feelings and get back together]

The main thing that a woman wants before she considers getting back with an ex is to be able to respect him.

If you talk to her on the phone or meet up with her in person and are still making her feel the same kinds of emotions that turned her off you in the first place, it's not going to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

If you want your ex to want you back, you've got to be willing to do what it takes to become and be the sort of guy that she would want back.

How long will that take?

It depends on how many things you need to improve.

However, after hearing back from 100s of guys who've used my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System to get a woman back, most guys were able to call their ex after watching the 10 hours of video training.

They then moved to a meet up, got her forgiveness in person, made her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction and either got back together right away or began to rekindle the relationship slowly.

So, don't waste another day feeling hopeless and wondering, Will my ex girlfriend ever want me back? because it will only happen if you take action to improve who you are.

Are you willing to do what it takes to make your ex-girlfriend want you back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Did My Girlfriend Leave Me?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're asking the question, Why did my girlfriend leave me? the answer is simple: Somewhere along the line, you stopped making her feel the kind of respect and attraction that she felt for you at the beginning of your relationship.

That may have been because you became insecure, ruined her trust in you, turned her off with your communication style, stopped making her feel appreciated, started treating her badly, lacked purpose in life or became too jealous and controlling.

When a woman loses respect for you, her attraction for you will also then start to fade.

When her respect and attraction for you fades, she will then begin to fall out of love of you, until she reaches the point where she will decide to leave the relationship.

Getting Her Back

[image: Getting her back after she has left you]

Right now, you might be feeling hurt and possibly even betrayed by your girlfriend because you still love her, but she doesn't want anything to do with you anymore.

The good news is if you really want to get back together with her, you can.

Watch this video to understand how and why!

Even if your girlfriend is currently saying that she is over you and won't give you another chance, it doesn't mean that her emotional state is set in stone.

Emotions always changed and when you begin saying and doing things that make her feel respect and attraction for you, she will naturally open herself up to the idea of loving you again.

She might not show that right away though, which is why you need to get her to meet up with you in person to experience the new and improved version of you.

Get her to feel respect and attraction for you in person, ask her to forgive you (not to take you back, just forgive you) and then get her laughing, smiling and enjoying spending time with you.

If you do that, she will naturally begin to think of you in a more positive way and will begin to allow herself to have feelings for you again.

However, before you contact your girlfriend and get her to meet up, you first have to understand what caused her to lose her respect, attraction and love for you in the first place.

You then need to forgive yourself for making those mistakes. How?

Understand that everyone makes mistakes, but what makes a man a great man is when he has the capacity to learn and grow from those mistakes, rather than making the same old mistakes over and over again for life.

If you really have improved and become a better man as a result of the break up, that is something you should be proud of, rather than feeling ashamed about mistakes that you made in the past.

Don't Make Things Worse By Asking Her to Tell You Why

A woman will usually take a long time to decide to break up with her man.

Before she makes the big decision to end a relationship, she will usually try to give him as many hints about what is bothering her so that he will change and improve himself.

If he doesn't get the message, she will eventually break up with him.

Unfortunately, the worst part is that even after she's left, a lot of guys still don't understand the reasons why and they are stuck wondering, Why did my girlfriend leave me? I thought we were so happy together.

Yet, until a guy can fully understand the real reasons why his girlfriend broke up with him (e.g. he doesn't make her feel feminine enough in comparison to his masculinity, he lacks purpose in life, she feels more valuable than him), he won't be able to make the changes she needs, which means she won't be interested in getting back together with him until he does.

3 Reasons Why a Woman Will Leave Her Man

If you don't know why your girlfriend left you, here are some of the most common reasons why a woman will break up with her boyfriend.

1. He took her for granted.

[image: Taking his girlfriend for granted]

When a relationship begins, it's very easy for most guys to treat a woman well and make her feel special, because he is getting laid and experiencing new love.

Yet, once the dust has settled and the excitement of getting to know each other has worn off, a guy begin to get caught up in everyday things (e.g. work, studies) and begin to take his girlfriend's love, respect and commitment for granted.

For example: A guy might be very committed to his career and is working hard towards getting a promotion. Although this is something his girlfriend will respect and admire him for, if he fails to maintain a proper balance between his career and her, she will begin to feel neglected.

When this happens, a woman might put in the extra effort to make him notice her by making herself look even prettier, cooking him nice dinners, or planning some quiet time for them to relax together.

If he then regularly cancel plans on her at the last minute with excuses like, I have a project that I need to devote all my time to, or I'm really behind on at work. I promise to make it up to you some other time, she's going to start feeling like he's taking her for granted.

Naturally plans change from time to time, and working towards his goals is not something a good woman would hold against her boyfriend, but if a guy constantly keeps putting her second in his life, she will eventually begin to feel like he's taking her for granted.

There's nothing wrong with working hard and working towards achieving goals in life, but when a guy is in a relationship with a woman, it's his responsibility to maintain and grow the love, respect and attraction she feels for him.

If he becomes too focused on other things and she begins to feel unloved, unappreciated and taken for granted, she will begin to lose respect for him and eventually she will leave.

2. He was clingy, needy and insecure.

[image: Being needy, clingy or insecure]

When a man is afraid of reaching his true potential in life, it's not uncommon for him to use his love for his woman, as an excuse to hide from following through on his dreams and ambitions.

In his mind he is saying, "I love my girlfriend. She means everything to me. Nothing else in this world matters but her. I don't care if I am unsuccessful in life, I have her and that is all that matters."

A guy like that will often assume that this is what his girlfriend wants (because she loves spending time with him) and that it will make her happier than if he were to give less of his time to her and start focusing on trying to achieve his ambitions and goals in life.

Although, most women love it when their man is loving and devoted and gives them a lot of attention, it doesn't mean they want to be the centre of his world.

Women instinctively know that life is going to get hard in future if a guy spends most of his time just hanging around with her, rather than rising up through the levels of his true potential to get promoted or do better in his career.

Initially, a woman will enjoy all the attention she is getting, but eventually her instincts will kick in and she will begin saying things like, "Why don't you do something with your life?" or "Why you do stay in that job if you hate it?" or "I need time to find myself" or "I need time to work out what I want to do with my life" because she is reacting to the lack of purpose and direction that he should be providing as the man.

There are some women (e.g. insecure, domineering, unattractive) who prefer it when a guy has nothing else going on in his life besides her, but most women don't. Why?

When a man uses his relationship as an excuse to avoid facing life head on, he comes across as being emotionally weak because he is afraid to stand up and be the man he knows he should be.

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men and repelled by the weakness, so if a woman begins to feel that her man is actually emotionally weaker than her, she will begin to lose respect for him and eventually her attraction and love will also fade.

When that happens, she will either leave him, cheat on him or string him along (e.g. "I just need some time apart") until she finds a replacement guy.

There's nothing wrong with a boyfriend and girlfriend spending a lot of time together, but to make a relationship successful, a guy must maintain a balance being devoted to her with being his own man by striving to achieve his biggest goals and ambitions in life.

3. He put her in charge.

[image: Putting his girlfriend in charge]

Where many guys go wrong is in believing that a woman will be happiest if she gets to wear the pants make all the decisions in the relationship.

Many guys make the mistake of thinking, "I don't want to argue with her over things, so why not just let her make the decisions? At least then she will be happy and I will be happy as well because there won't be any fighting. I don't care if she leads. It's easier for me anyway."

Although a woman might argue and act like she wants to be making all the decisions, in reality she wants her boyfriend to man up and take the lead in the relationship so that she can relax fully into being the woman.

Being the woman means that she gets to feel feminine, be girly, be emotional, focus on love and not have to worry about leading the relationship, making decisions and maintaining order.

A woman still wants to have her say and to be heard, but ultimately she wants her man to lead the way and take on the responsibility leading them both to a better life.

To maintain the sexual attraction in a relationship between a man and a woman, a boyfriend has to be the man and allow his girlfriend to be a feminine woman.

It's Not Too Late to Get Your Girlfriend Back

[image: Getting her back after she has left you]

Whether you're asking, Why did my girlfriend leave me? because you want to get her back, or because you simply want to understand where you went wrong so that you don't make the same mistakes in your next relationship, you are in a position where you can do great things right now.

By fully understanding what you did wrong in the relationship with your girlfriend, you can make changes to any emotional issues that you might (e.g. insecurity, jealous, commitment issues) and become a better guy than you already are.

If then you decide you want your girlfriend back, she will be able to sense the changes in you by the way you talk, act and behave when interacting with her.

She will begin to wonder what is different about you and, without even realizing that she's doing it, she will begin to feel respect and attraction for you once again.

You can make her feel even more attracted to you by being more confident, masculine and charismatic and by showing her that you now fully understood where you went wrong in your relationship with her.

When she feels heard and also notices that the things about you, which had been putting her off are no longer an issue, she will naturally open herself up to the idea of being with you again.

On the other hand, if you don't want to get back together with her, you won't have wasted your time by improving yourself, because the next time you find yourself in a relationship, you will be the kind of man that almost every woman wishes they could find.

You will be a man in demand.

Either way...you win.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Get Your Ex Back Quickly

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Thanks to the internet, getting your ex back quickly is something that guys from all over the world are now able to do.

I've already helped 100s of guys to get women back immediately, within days or in difficult cases within weeks and I can help you too.

Here is what you have to do to get your ex back quicklyâ€¦!

1. Don't Waste Time With the No Contact Rule

[image: Don't use no contact if you want her back quickly]

If you really want to get your ex back quickly, then you should avoid using the No Contact Rule (e.g. waiting anywhere from 20-60 days to call your ex).

The No Contact Rule is a common piece of advice that you will find online when you look for free tips on how to get your ex back quickly. Yet, it isn't going to help you with what you want.

Watch this video to understand what you need to do instead of ignoring your exâ€¦!

Have you heard the expression â€œOut of sight out of mind,â€ which means that when something that isn't necessary to us is out of sight, we usually forget about it?

In many cases, this is what happens when a guy uses the No Contact Rule as a way to try and get an ex back who no longer wants to be with him.

While he is sitting at home alone and putting himself through hell by forcing himself not to contact his ex even though he really wants to, rather than make her miss him, he is actually giving her the opportunity to get over him and move on with her life, meet new guys, have sex and even fall in love.

Yet, if he got her on a phone call, apologized for his mistakes and got her to meet up with him in person, he could then make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him and get her back.

Watch this video for more infoâ€¦!

Another reason why the No Contact Rule can fail is because itâ€™s not really getting to the core of what caused the break up between you and your ex in the first place.

For example: A guy might have been needy, clingy and insecure throughout the relationship, which isn't going to change if he simply stops contacting her.

[image: Wasting time by using no contact]

He may have also been using the relationship as an excuse to hide from his true potential as a man, by spending loads of time with his girlfriend and not following through on his passions, dreams or ambitions in life.

He may have taken her for granted and expected her to stick around no matter how badly he treated her, or maybe he allowed her to â€œwear the pantsâ€ in the relationship.

Whatever the case, if he doesn't take steps to change those things in himself, his ex won't be interested in getting back with him, even if she has missed him a bit since the break up.

Of course, not contacting her does get some women to call, but her calling you doesn't actually mean that she wants to get back with you.

Quite often, when a woman doesn't hear from her ex for a while, she becomes curious about what he's up to so she calls him to find out if he's moved on and found another girlfriend, or if he's missing her and if he's still desperately hoping to get back together with her.

However, when she calls, what often happens is the guy gets so excited to be hearing from her that he pours his heart out to her, telling her how happy he is to hear from her and how he wants her back.

As she talks to him, she notices that he still doesn't even understand the real reasons why she broke up with him.

Watch this video for more info!

When she notices that he still doesn't understand the real reasons why she broke up with him, it just convinces her that nothing has changed and it then allows her to move on from him more easily.

So, if you want to get your ex back quickly, don't waste time with the No Contact Rule in the hope that everything will magically fix itself.

Instead, you've got to get your ex on the phone so you can apologize to her for what happened, while also letting her hear the confidence in your voice and the changes in how you communicate with her, which will surprise her and make her want to find out what has really changed in you.

2. Get Her On a Call and Make Her Feel a Renewed Sense of Respect and Attraction For You

[image: Get her on a call]

When getting an ex back, you need to get her talking to you on the phone as quickly as possible, rather than hiding behind text.

Guys will often make the mistake of sending a woman a text like, How are you? I just wanted to say hi, or I hope you're okay to test whether or not his ex is interested.

[image: Girl annoyed by text]

He is hoping that by keeping in touch with her via text, she will eventually soften up and start texting him back, which will then eventually lead to her agreeing to getting back together again.

Yet, it doesn't work that way.

Text is a modern invention and it does not make a woman feel respect and attraction in the same way that she will on a phone call or in person, because it's simply text on her phone.

If some of the last things your ex said to you when she broke up with you were, Leave me alone, I never want to see you again, or even I hate you, how do you think she will judge your text?

Will she be thinking, How sweet! My ex really cares about how I'm doing. He must really be sorry for what happened. I think I want to get back together with him! or will she be thinking, Why is he still bugging me? Can't he get the message that it's over? He is being so needy and desperate. I'm so glad I broke up with him.

If a woman can't hear your confident, emotionally secure tone of voice (which will trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you), and if she doesn't get a sense that you're not falling to pieces without her, she will naturally be imagining you in a very negative light when she gets a text from you.

This is why; to get your ex back quickly, you have to get her on a call right away so that you can start regaining her respect and attraction for you.

You have to let her experience the new and improved you.

When you get her on the phone, apologize to her for what happened and let her know that you now understand her point of view and why she needed to break up with you.

Don't ask her to give you another chance over the phone.

Instead, spend some time just letting her experience your relaxed confidence and your improved ability to make her feel attracted to you and respectful of you over the phone.

Rather than getting emotional and serious while talking to her, focus on getting her smiling and laughing, which will naturally make her feel attracted and happy to be talking to you again.

3. Get Her to Agree to Meet Up With You Just One Last Time to Say Goodbye

Although talking to your ex on the phone is the first step to getting her back, it is not what the main thing that will convince her to give your relationship another chance.

This is why you have to get her to agree to a meet up as quickly as possible.

By showing her a confident, charming, masculine side to yourself (on the phone) that she probably stopped noticing when things got bad in your relationship, you will have shocked her (in a good way) out of her current negative beliefs about you and made her feel curious about what has happened to you to make you change in such a positive way.

At this point, ask her to meet up with you one last time just to say goodbye. Don't worry; it won't be the last time, it's just a way to get her to agree to a meet up with you.

By changing your communication style with her in a way that makes her feel attracted to you, she will naturally begin to think and behave differently towards you, and she will become more open to agreeing to meet up with you one last time.

For example: If a guy was using the relationship as an excuse to hide from his true potential in life and wasn't becoming a bigger and better man, he can tell her about all the things he has done since the break up to show her he's changed.

It's not about him lying, putting on an act or pretending to be someone he's not, but rather about having a mature, easy-going conversation with her where he then happens to mention that he has, for example, taken up night classes so that he can get a better job, or is working his way towards a promotion.

By making her see that he's moved on from being the insecure, unmotivated guy she used to know, she will naturally feel curious to meet up with him in person to see for herself whether he has really changed, or if he is just lying to her to get her back.

In the same way, you can use whatever was the cause of your break up with your ex as an opportunity to show her that youâve grown and changed as a man, and make her feel interested to find out more.

4. Get Her to Forgive You at the Meet Up and Then Her Guard Will Come Down

When you meet up with your ex, you have to continue renewing her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

To do that, you first have to apologize to her and get her to forgive you.

For example: You can say something like, “I’m not asking for us to get back together, but I am just asking for you to sincerely forgive me so we can both feel better about what happened between us. Yes, I made some mistakes, but so does almost every couple. I am sorry for my mistakes and all I ask is for you to forgive me for that, not to take me back.”

If she does forgive you, she will then begin to drop her guard around you, which will then make it 10x easier for you to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction when you interact with her.

Apologizing and asking for forgiveness is not about groveling or begging. Some guys make the mistake of begging for her forgiveness and doing whatever she wants them to do in order for her to forgive them.

Yet, that kind of behavior is unattractive to women, so rather than making her drop her guard and feel respect for him, she feels turned off by him at a deep level because he is begging, groveling and lowering himself way too much.

To get your ex to forgive you, you have to do it from a position of strength so that she can respect you.

You can make her want to forgive you by letting her know that you now fully understand what really caused her to break up with you, and showing her (via your confidence, behavior, body language, conversation style) that youâve made the correct changes to yourself.

In this way, she will feel understood and she will feel respect for you because, in her eyes, you will have become the man she always wanted you to be when in a relationship, so she will then be willing to forgive you.

Once you do get her to forgive you, she will naturally drop her guard and become more open to you, and the more open to you she becomes, the more she will allow herself to feel attracted and respectful towards you.

Forgiveness is what allows her to open herself back up to you, and if then you can build on her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she will naturally open herself up to the idea of being in a relationship with you again.

5. Make Her Feel an Increasing Amount of Respect and Attraction For You

Respect and attraction comes first if you want to get your ex back quickly.

If your ex cannot feel respect for you as a man (e.g. because you are still insecure, give her too much power), she will not feel attracted to you and she will then not open herself up to loving you again.

Where a lot of guys go wrong is they try to convince their ex that they will change if she gives them another chance.

Telling her that you will change isn't going to make her feel attraction and respect for you.

You actually have to make the changes first and then let her see and experience those changes when she interacts with you in person.

For example: A guy who was needy, clingy and insecure in his relationship can show his ex that he's changed by being confident and relaxed when interacting with her.

When she tries to test him (possibly by ignoring him or going cold towards him, or by flirting with another guy) to see if he has really changed or if he's only putting on an act to impress her, if he becomes upset about it and loses his cool, she will know that nothing has really changed about him and she will lose even more respect for him for trying to trick her.

On the other hand, if he just laughs off her attempts to unsettle him and stays relaxed, not only will she be convinced that he has changed deep down inside, she also won't be able to help herself from feeling a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him as a man.

6. Get Her Back at That Meet Up or the Next, Depending on How She Reacts

Sometimes a woman needs more than one meet up to fully forgive a guy for his past mistakes and open herself up to the idea of getting back together again.

A mistake that guys make is to push a woman into making a decision about the relationship before she is ready to do it.

If a woman hasn't fully experienced the changes in her ex, forgiven him for past mistakes and begun to feel a lot of renewed respect and attraction for him, she will not be ready to get back into a relationship with him again.

When you meet up with your ex in person, instead of trying to get her back, focus on making her feel a lot of attraction for you.

Focus on making her laugh and letting her fully absorb and experience the new and improved version of you.

By showing her that you have not only improved and changed, but that you're also okay with or without her, she will begin to feel good about having you in her life again because you are attractive, but you don't need her.

She will feel like she's losing out on a great thing if she remains stuck to her idea of not wanting you as her man, so getting back together will actually make her feel good about herself.

If you want to get your ex back quickly, you need to focus on making her feel the way that she really wants to feel during this time.

If you push the right buttons, you will get her back.

I've already helped 100s of guys to get women back quickly and I can help you too.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex to Forgive You and Take You Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting your ex to forgive you is an essential part of getting her back, because forgiveness brings down her guard and makes her become open to feeling respect and attraction for you once again.

Just because your ex has broken up with you, it doesn't mean that you can't get her back—even if she's saying, â€œI don't want to see you again,â€ or even, â€œI will never forgive you. We are finished!â€

Essentially, you need to ask her to forgive you by saying something like, â€œI'm not asking for you to take me back. I just want you to be able to forgive me, so that both of us can feel better about what happened between us and about the break up from now on.â€

If she says no, just tell her that forgiving you will make her feel better about the break up and will ensure that both of you don't carry any unnecessary baggage into your next relationship.

Also tell her that forgiving each other is what mature people do when they break up, because it's the easiest way to get over someone and move on.

Wait a Minute!

Does that mean your ex will get over you and move on?

No.

It's a technique that I learnt from studying psychology, which will actually make her become open to taking you back again.

How?

When she sincerely forgives you (don't let her just say that she forgives you, but not actually forgive you), she will begin to let go of the hate, anger, resentment and disappointment she felt for you.

When she does that (don't worry â€œ it happens naturally when a person forgives another person), she will then become open to feeling a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

After she forgives you, all you need to do is begin showing her the new and improved you when you talk to her on the phone and interact with her in person.

Don't try to show her the new you via text â€œ it doesn't work.

If you want to get your ex to forgive you and become open to taking you back, you must go through that process by talking to her on the phone and meeting her in person.

You cannot accomplish it via text, so don't even waste your time sending her long-winded messages or sending her texts about the good old times that you and her once shared together.

Your ex is only going to take you seriously when you are able to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when she interacts with you on the phone and in person.

Getting Her Back

[image: Getting your ex to forgive you and take you back]

When your ex begins to feel a renewed sense of respect for you as a man, she will also naturally start to feel attraction for you and this will then lead to her opening up to loving you again.

If you want to know how to get your ex to forgive you and take you back, here is what you have to do:

1. Understand Her Real Reasons for Breaking Up With You

When a woman breaks up with a guy, she will rarely tell him the real reasons she is doing it. Why?

Itâs a womanâs natural instinct to protect herself, so when she breaks up with a guy, she is going to take the safest way out possible to protect herself from the possibility of him physically hurting her if things get out of hand.

For example: A woman would rather say, âI just need some space,â or âRight now things arenât working out between us but maybe sometime in the future we can give it another go,â rather than just come out and say that sheâs lost respect and attraction for him because he isn't enough of a man for her.

So, if you want to get your ex to forgive you and take you back, your first step is to understand her real reasons for breaking up with you (not the sweet excuses she used when she broke up with you).

Watch this video for some examplesâ!

When you fully understand the real reasons why your ex broke up with you, you will then be able to make the correct changes to your behavior, conversation style and how you treat her, which will then make her see you in a new, more favorable light.

She will feel more at ease and open when she interacts with you again, because she will notice that you have been making the changes that she really wanted you to make all along.

When she likes what she sees and begins to feel understood, her respect and attraction for you as a man will naturally begin to return.

On the other hand, if you donât fully understand what caused her to ask for a break up, you will most likely end up trying to change the wrong things about yourself.

For example: A woman might have felt that her man was being too clingy and insecure in the relationship, but he is saying, âI love you and Iâll do anything for you. I promise that no one will ever come between us. I will always put you first.â

Although he might believe that he is making her feel loved and secure, if she already perceives him as being clingy and needy, saying those things will only make her feel even more smothered and she will be even less interested in taking him back.

If you want to get your ex back, youâve got to be offering her what she really wants, not what you think she might want.

If you are trying to get her back by offering her the wrong things, she will feel misunderstood and the lack of respect and attraction she feels towards you will only increase.

2. Begin to Truly Improve and Fix Those Things About Yourself

Understanding what caused your ex to break up with you is one thing, but if you don't actually make the effort to improve and fix those things about yourself, it's unlikely that she will want to take you back.

To get your ex to forgive you and take you back, you have to make her feel respect and attraction for you again as a man.

If she interacts with you and doesn't feel a spark, she will not be open to the idea of getting back together with you again because it will feel as though she's doing you a favor.

To want to take you back, she will need to see that you have made an effort to fix the emotional issues (e.g. insecurity, clinginess, commitment issues, jealousy) that were turning her off.

For example: A common reason for a break up is when a woman feels as though her guy doesn't have much direction in life and is lacking drive and ambition.

By setting some long-term goals for himself, working towards getting a promotion at work, or enrolling in a university to improve his level of education, he can show her that he has truly changed and improved.

When she sees that he has genuinely made an effort to improve himself in the ways that really matter to her, her guard will naturally come down.

As long as you start working on and improving any emotional issues you might have, not only will that make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man, but you will also be making yourself an even better man than you are right now.

Going through the process of getting an ex back is a life-changing experience for a man, so you should see this as a double opportunity to improve your life and get her to take you back.

You have a choice right now to either continue feeling sad, rejected and lonely or stand up and become an even better man than you are right now so that your ex feels respect and attraction for you and so that the rest of your life improves as well.

3. Apologize for Your Mistakes

Apologizing to your ex for making mistakes in the relationship is not only a nice gesture, it is also a way of letting her feel heard and understood.

However, some common mistakes guys make include:

- Rushing into an apology before he has fully understood what he did wrong.

If you apologize to your ex before you have fully understood what went wrong in the relationship, it will only make your ex feel like you're not listening to her once again.

Apologies are important to start the forgiveness process in the relationship, but again, only if you're offering her what she really wants, not just saying what you think she wants to hear so that she will forget about what happened and give you a second chance.

- Taking the blame for everything in the relationship and therefore putting himself at her mercy.

Putting her in a position of power over you simply makes her look down on you and feel even less respect for you as a man.

You should show her respect, but you also have to make sure that she can feel respect for you too. Women don't respect guys who beg, plead and hand over their power in the hope of gaining pity from a woman.

Relationships are never one sided and your apology should never put you in a position of weakness. She would have made some mistakes in the relationship too, so remind her that she isn't perfect either.

Tell her that all people learn and grow throughout life and it's completely normal for a couple to experience some problems and then forgive each other after a break up.

- Making promises that he will do anything she wants him to do if she will forgive him.

Making promises that are difficult or impossible for you to keep may get you your ex back in the short-term, but sooner or later she will realize that nothing about you has really changed and she will break up with you once again.

- Apologizing via text message and not in person (or at least over the phone).

If your ex currently hates you, or at least has negative feelings towards you, getting a text message from you â€œ even if itâ€œs an apology â€œ will not be perceived in a positive light.

A text message cannot convey to her your sincerity, love, confidence, charm, sense of humor or any of the positive changes you have made to yourself since the break up.

So naturally she will fill in the blanks by guessing that youâ€œre just sending her a text to attempt to get on her good side in the hopes that she will forgive you.

If you plan on texting your ex, do so only to arrange a suitable time to get her on the phone, where you can then make her feel respect and attraction for you by apologizing for your past mistakes and then allowing her to hear and to experience your confidence through your emotionally secure tone of voice (which will attract her).

4. Ask Her if She is Willing to Forgive You

Without forgiveness, your ex will remain emotionally closed off from you.

Once you have apologized to her for your mistakes, it is important to ask her to forgive you.

When asking her if she is willing to forgive you, do not position it as though you expect her to then take you back after forgiving you.

For example, say: *â€œIâ€œm not asking for you to take me back. I just want you to be able to forgive me, so that both of us can feel better about what happened between us and about the break up from now on.*â€œ

Once a woman forgives you, she then begins to lower her guard and open back up to you, especially if you are now able to make her feel much more respect and attraction for you when you interact with her.

Reminder: Do not ask for forgiveness via text. It does not work. You have to get your ex back by talking to her on the phone and in person, not via text.

If your ex currently doesn't feel much or any attraction, love or respect for you, a text will never, ever fix that. Only when she hears the sincerity in your voice and can sense that you really have changed, will she then begin to bring down her guard and be more open with you.

5. Get Her to Agree to One Final Meet Up

Once you have apologized and gotten her to forgive you, ask her for one final (don't worry it won't be) meet up.

At this point, your new attitude and conversation style will have shocked her (in a good way) out of her current state of mind and beliefs about you, and she will be feeling curious to meet up with you to see what else has changed about you.

When you see her in person, you have to keep building on her feelings by showing her that you're the kind of man she can genuinely respect and look up to.

6. Make Her Feel a Renewed Sense of Respect and Attraction for You in Person

[image: Get her to forgive you and take you back]

The key to getting your ex to forgive you and take you back is regaining her attraction and respect for you in person.

When you meet up with her in person, regaining her respect and attraction is the main thing you have to focus on. If you do that, her feelings for you will begin to come back and she will relax and open up.

When you see her in person, display the confidence, charm and humor that first attracted her to you. Be positive, talk confidently and allow her to experience the new and improved version of you.

By presenting yourself in a way that makes her feel differently, she will naturally begin thinking differently about you, and the more her respect and attraction for you grows, the more her guard will drop, and the more open to getting back together with you again she will become.

Love Doesn't Die

As you may have realized by now, it is possible to get your ex to forgive you and take you back.

If you and your ex experienced love together in the past, it is still there in the background.

If you really have changed, you will be able to renew her feelings of respect and attraction for you and she begin to reconnect with the love she used to feel for you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Do if Your Wife Leaves You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your wife leaves you, you basically have 2 choices:

1. Fix your issues (e.g. insecurity, inability to make her feel attracted to you), improve yourself and then get your wife back.
2. Move on by meeting new women so you can make a fresh start without her.

Ultimately, the choice is up to you and how you feel about your wife and your marriage together.

Are you ready to let her go, or do you want to get her back into a relationship that is more loving, understanding and respectful than it ever was before?

If you want to get her back, watch this video to understand how and why it is possible to get a wife back!|

Your wife may currently feel as though she doesn't want anything to do with you, but you can change how she feels.

It's Not Too Late to Make Your Wife Reconsider Her Decision

[image: It's not too late to make her reconsider her decision to leave you]

As a result of your wife leaving you, it's only natural that you'd been going through a lot of different emotions and not knowing when you will be able to feel happy and secure about your life like you used to.

You might be asking yourself, How did this happen to us? I thought we were so in love. Where did we go wrong?

When a couple decides to get married, most of them will feel as though they can last a lifetime. Yet, statistically speaking, about 50% of them will end up parting ways.

Although we always tend to hear about the terrible divorce statistics these days, very rarely do we hear the fact that approximately 50% of couples who break up do get back together again.

So, if you're wondering what to do if your wife leaves you because the situation looks hopeless to you, the truth is that your marriage doesn't have to be over if you don't want it to be.

I've already helped more than 100 men to get a wife back via my phone coaching service and 100s more have used my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System to achieve the same thing.

In other words, you're not alone here. Unless she absolutely hates you and will never ever talk to you again, you can get her back and give the marriage another chance.

What you need to realize is that when you make your wife feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man, she will naturally feel more willing to reconnect with her old feelings of love for you.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works!|

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of control over how much or little attraction your wife feels for you.

Even if your wife is currently saying, “Leave me alone. There is nothing you can say or do that will make me change my mind. It’s just too late,” you have to realize that she’s only saying those things because in her current state of mind, she’s not allowing herself to feel attracted to you.

As a result of losing respect for you and then losing touch with her feelings of attraction, she is currently unwilling to open herself up to your attempts to get her back.

She most likely feels as though you don’t have the ability to change or improve in the ways she needs you to.

However, when you do change the way you approach your interactions with her and begin to make her feel differently about you as a result, her negative feelings towards you will automatically begin to change.

No matter how bad things might look right now, your wife’s feelings are not set in stone.

Feelings can, and do, change all the time and when you get her respect back and make her feel attracted to you again, she should be very willing and happy to re-connect with her feelings of love for you.

3 Important Steps You Need to Take to Get Your Wife Back

As a husband, it is your responsibility to take care of the love in your relationship and to guide your wife into deeper feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

If you don’t do that, things will naturally fall apart over time.

If you want to stop your wife from leaving you, your primary goal has to be to regain her feelings of respect and attraction for you, and to do that you have to say and do the right things.

You have to

1. Understand what she really wants you to change about yourself

[image: Understand the real reasons why your wife left you]

For a lot of men, a break up usually comes as a big surprise to them.

They will often say things like, “I know we had our problems, but I never thought my wife would leave me,” or, “Sure we had some ups and downs, but my wife never told me what I was doing wrong.”

The truth is, most women don’t come out and tell a guy directly what he has been doing wrong.

Some women might spell it out for their man, but most women won’t do that because they don’t want to take on the role of being a guy’s teacher in life on how to be a man.

Most women will hint at the problems in their relationship, but won’t come out and say what they mean directly.

For example: A woman might say, “You have so much potential, why are you wasting your life in that job where no one appreciates you?” rather than come out directly and say, “You lack purpose and you are not rising through the levels of life like a man should. I don’t like that and if you don't change I will leave you.

Another example might be: You spend so much time at the office. Why don't you take the weekend off and we can do something nice together for a change? rather than saying, I feel that your job is more important to you than I am. I feel unloved, taken for granted and neglected. If you don't change your ways I will leave you.

Of course it would be great if women just came out and said what they really mean, but a woman won't do that because she doesn't want to be the one to teach her husband how to be a man. She doesn't want to mother him and guide him through manhood, because firstly, it's not her job, and secondly, if she has to do that she will naturally lose respect for him and end up looking down on him.

So, to get your wife back, you need to fully understand the real reasons why she left you and then make the correct changes to your behavior, conversation style and how you treat her.

Watch this video to understand some of the reasons why a woman will leave a man:

By fully understanding your wife's real reasons for leaving you, you can then make the correct changes rather than offering her the wrong things and making her feel even more misunderstood.

By offering her what she really wants you will begin to regain her respect for you and once she respects you again, her attraction for you will also begin to build.

2. Don't promise her that you will change

[image: Don't promise to change. You need to actually change if you want her to take you seriously]

When a relationship breaks down, it doesn't happen overnight, which means along the way many fights and disagreements will have happened, and it's likely that the guy will have said, I promise to change, many times before.

If you've promised your wife to change sometime in the past, and haven't, how do you think she will perceive your promises to her now?

Will she be thinking, I'm sure this time will be different, or will she be thinking, He's promised me he will change hundreds of times before now, why should I believe him? I've had enough of his empty promises.

To get your wife back, you can't promise her that you will change if she gives your marriage another chance.

You actually have to make the changes and then let her see and experience those changes for herself when you interact with her on the phone and in person (not via text, e-mail or letter).

You don't have to fully fix everything and become a perfect husband to get her back, but she needs to see that you're not just saying you're going to change.

She will need to see that you are working on your emotional issues and making an effort to become more of the man she needs you to be.

Don't ask her to take pity on you or to give you a chance.

Just focus your energy on making significant improvements to yourself (e.g. become emotionally stronger, improve your ability to spark her feelings of attraction for you) and she will then begin to take you seriously.

3. Don't wait around hoping she will change her mind and come back to you on her own

[image: Don't wait around hoping that she changes her mind]

Right now you might be thinking that if you give your wife enough space, she might realize how much she loves and misses you and she will then come back.

However, in most cases, the opposite tends to happen.

A woman realizes that she feels free from the relationship and she quickly begins to work towards getting over her ex husband.

Of course, that means she will be going out and getting drunk, partying, meeting new guys and possibly even having sex and falling in love again.

If you want to get back together with your wife, not contacting her is a waste of time.

Random people online will tell you to “go no contact” and avoid contacting her for 30 days or more, but that is crappy advice from immature young guys who don’t even know how to keep a relationship together.

If you want your wife back, now is not the time to be playing games with her.

You need to be mature about this by fixing your issues and improving yourself and then meeting up with her to allow her to experience the new and improved you.

If you waste time ignoring her, she will almost certainly use that time to begin moving on without you.

These days, it’s very easy for women to get online and sign up for online dating or use an app like Tinder and they will have 100s of guys interested overnight.

While you are sitting at home waiting for her to call you and feeling lonely, you are not busy fixing your issues, improving yourself and making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

So, don’t wait for your marriage to fix itself. Be the man that your wife needs you to be by taking action to fix your issues (e.g. insecurity, inability to make her feel attracted) and improve yourself.

Pick up the phone and call her.

On the phone call, you need to shake her out of her current negative state of mind by letting her experience the positive changes you have made to yourself while she is talking to you.

For example: If a wife complained about her husband’s lack of ambition and direction in life, now is his opportunity to work towards a promotion at work, or for him to enroll at a university to get better qualifications.

Make yourself a list of things you would like to do and achieve and go about accomplishing each one of those things, or at least starting on the path to achieving them.

Then, when you are talking to her on the phone, if she asks you, “So what have you been up to?” you can casually say, “Oh, I’ve enrolled in some classes now because there’s a great new opening in my company that I’m working at getting, or I’ve been taking some skiing lessons because I’ve always wanted to ski in the Swiss Alps and I’ve booked myself a vacation for next year to do just that.”

Not only does this show her that you haven’t been sitting at home pining for her, she can also see that you have really changed and are improving yourself by being the kind of man who takes action and makes things happen in his life.

She will then begin to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and as a result, she will become open to meeting up with you and seeing what happens.

Are You Going to Get Her Back or Are You Going to Move On and Find a New Woman?

[image: Are you going to get your wife back or find a new woman?]

Another benefit to fixing your issues and improving yourself to get your wife back is that you are also improving yourself for you.

If you decide that you don't want to get back together with your wife, you will already be a whole different, more confident, charismatic, interesting, emotionally strong man, which will make the process of getting beautiful, quality women to fall in love with you much easier.

No matter what you decide; whether it is to get your wife back, or get yourself another woman, the main thing that you have to remember is that when you interact with your wife, you have to say and do the things that will trigger her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

You can't expect her to take you seriously if you are unable to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when she interacts with you.

You have to be able to make her feel that as a bare minimum, while also letting her know that you have learnt from the experience and are sorry for making her feel the way she did.

This morning you might have been thinking about what to do when your wife leaves you and feeling helpless about the situation, but as you can see, that is definitely not the case.

You can change the way that your wife is feeling right now, by changing how you approach your interactions and communication with her from now on.

When she feels enough respect and attraction for you again, she will naturally allow herself to become open to forgiving your past mistakes and she will then begin reconnecting with the love that she felt for you the day you got married.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Fast Can You Get Your Ex Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

I've personally dealt with more than 100 ex back cases via my phone coaching service.

Some clients get their ex back immediately (i.e. within 24-48 hours by meeting up with her and using my attraction and persuasion techniques to get another chance), while others need to put in a week to two months of effort to fully get their ex back into a relationship.

The speed at which you get your ex back will depend on which of the following categories she falls into...

1. If she really does love you and will give you another chance if you change

[image: Happy couples]

If your relationship was great in the beginning, but fell apart in the end because of a few mistakes on your part (e.g. you became too insecure, you took her for granted or became clingy), then it's usually fairly easy to an ex back right away.

You simply need to call her up, apologize for your mistakes, get her to meet up with you, show her the new and improved version of you at the meet up and tell her that you've learned from the experience and want to give the relationship another shot.

As long as a guy makes his ex girlfriend (fiance or wife) a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him at the meet up and she can see that he has already changed or is in the process of changing, a woman will almost always give her ex another chance.

In cases like that, you can get your ex back immediately and then begin a relationship.

She will feel a deeper respect, attraction and love for you because you will have shown her that you are a rare type of man who has the capacity to change by learning from experiences, rather than making the same mistakes over and over again throughout life.

If she doesn't recognize the fact that you are one of the rare men who actually has the capacity to change and has already changed, simply remind her that everyone makes mistakes in relationships, but not all men or women are able to learn from their mistakes and become a better person as a result.

Some people make the same mistakes their entire life, while others learn, change and grow and become better people.

You have been able to do that, so you should be proud of yourself for it.

She should also respect it and feel safe and secure in her decision to give your love another chance to grow and become even more meaningful and powerful than ever before.

2. If she hates you, doesn't want anything to do with you and says that she won't give you another chance no matter what

[image: If she currently hates you or has no feelings for you]

These type of break ups take a little bit more work before you can get your back, so the time it takes for you to get her back really depends on how committed you are to doing what it takes to get her to forgive you and feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

If you want to quickly get your ex back in a situation like this (i.e. she currently hates you, doesn't want anything to do with you anymore), but you're not willing to put in any effort to improve yourself, then she's almost always not going to be willing to give you another chance.

Watch this video to understand why...

A lot of the cases that I deal with via my phone coaching service fall into the category where the woman is absolutely saying, "No!" to her ex's request to get back together.

Additionally, most of the guys who use my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System and then come back to post up success stories also fall into the category of trying to get an ex back who hates them or no longer has feelings for them.

The reason why guys are able to get a woman back in cases like that is because it actually is possible to change how a woman feels.

When a guy is trying to get back an ex who hates him or no longer has any feelings for him, he needs to take a few days to a week to really understand why his girlfriend (fiancée or wife) broke up with him.

For example: A woman might say, "I don't want to be with you anymore because I no longer have feelings for you," but she won't always add in, "The reason why I don't have feelings for you is because you are too insecure, you don't make me feel feminine around you" "I feel like more of a friend to you, a sister or a mother figure" "you're just not enough of a man for me."

Some women do go into that kind of detail, but most women try to avoid it because she doesn't want to teach him how to be the man she needs.

If she teaches him now, she will have to teach him more later, which will make her feel like more of a big sister, mother figure or teacher in his life.

Women want a ready-made man, not a guy who needs a woman to teach him how to be the man she really needs.

So, if you are in the situation where you have been dumped and your ex currently doesn't want you back, you really need to spend a few days to a week learning about why women REALLY break up with men.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I explain more than 70 subtle and obvious reasons why women will break up with men.

When I hear back from guys who've watch my program, they often tell me that they were making 20 or more of those mistakes during the relationship and they were only aware of 5 or 6 of them.

Here's the thing

If you are trying to get your ex back and you don't even know what she REALLY wants you to change about yourself, she's just going to keep saying no to your requests to take you back.

Until she can see that you really have changed and now understand what she really wants from you, she's not going to take you seriously and will simply continue to move on without you.

For example: If a guy was insecure in the relationship, he needs to become emotionally strong and let her feel that when she talks to her and interacts with her in person.

If he was taking her for granted, he needs to show her that he now has the capacity to feel loved, wanted and appreciated.

If he cheated on her, he needs to be able to show her that she will feel safe and secure when in a relationship with him from now on, because he's no longer the immature guy who made that mistake. He needs to tell her that everyone makes mistakes, but what separates the men from the boys is the capacity to learn from mistakes and become a better man as a result.

Here's the thing thoughâ€¦!

If your ex currently hates you and doesn't want to get back together, she is almost certainly going to say, "I don't careâ€¦ that's too little, too late" or "You should have done that before. You missed your chance. We're finished now."

If you are serious about getting your ex back, you need to understand that a woman isn't going to instantly forgive a guy and want him back simply because he has made some changes.

When a woman is reluctant to give her ex another chance, he will need to use additional techniques to make her feel a mix of painful and positive emotions that will cause her to have feelings for him.

In cases like this, a guy will need to put in a week to two months of effort to properly get her back. Sometimes it happens sooner than that, but my estimate is based on personally dealing with more than 100 cases via my phone coaching service.

3. If she has already moved on

[image: If she has moved on]

If your ex has already moved on and is happy in a new relationship, it's not always going to be possible to get her back right now.

In most of the cases that I've dealt with, a guy will need to invest 1 week to 2 months to get an ex back who has moved on.

He will go through a process of improving himself (e.g. getting rid of insecurities, becoming a more emotionally attractive man, improving his ability to make her feel respect and attraction for him when he talks to her on the phone) and he will also need to use persuasive conversation techniques to get her to agree to meet up with him.

In some cases where a woman has moved on, a man will be able to get her back by getting her to agree to sleep with him once last time, after making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him at the meet up.

Getting an ex back is not always about sex because in most cases, women place more importance on the love and relationship experience that they share with a guy.

In younger relationships (18-35) sex is usually a important part of the relationship, but in more mature relationships (35+), a woman is usually more concerned about how the man will make her feel in the long run and what type of life they will be able to share together.

Regardless of a woman's age, she will always want to see that her ex has fixed his issues (e.g. insecurity) and is now capable of giving her the love experience that she wants and needs in a relationship.

So, the approach that you use to get your ex back now really depends on you, your woman, how old both of you are, how bad the break up was and whether or not she has moved on.

If you want to follow a structured plan that is proven to work to get a woman back, I recommend that you begin watching my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System right now.

After watching the 10 hours of video, you will be ready to contact your ex, apologize for your mistakes, get her to forgive and get her to meet up with you.

At the meet up, you will be able to make your ex feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and when that happens, her guard will come down and she will naturally begin to open herself back up to you and the relationship.

How fast can you get an ex back in cases like that?

In most of the cases that I've dealt with, the couple will get back together right away, but in some cases, a woman will say that she wants to take it slow and she will then be open to seeing him once a week for a few weeks to see how she feels.

If he continues to build on her respect and attraction by using the techniques in my program, they will then get into a relationship that feels even better than it did when they were initially together.

So, if you want to get your ex back now, I recommend that you begin watching my program and I'll guide you through the exciting process of getting her back in your arms once again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Do I Get My Girlfriend Back? 6 Essential Tips

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you've been dumped by your girlfriend and are now wondering, "How do I get my girlfriend back?" here is what you need to do...

1. Fix your deeper issues, rather than focusing on superficial things

[image: How do I get my girlfriend back after she dumped me?]

Your girlfriend didn't break up with you simply based on one argument or one little thing you did. She might be pointing out one or two things that you did throughout the relationship turn her off or ruin the respect, love and attraction that she felt for you, but there will other, more fundamental things that really caused her to want to break up with you.

For example: A woman will often break up with a boyfriend if she feels as though he is not enough of a man for her at this point (e.g. he might be too insecure, she might feel like she is more mature than he is, he might lack purpose in life and be focusing way too much time and energy on her as a result, she may feel as though he isn't masculine enough in the way he thinks, feels and behaves around her to make her feel like the feminine woman that she wants to be, etc).

Watch this video to understand some of the fundamental reasons why a woman will break up with a guy

To show her that you have improved, you need to begin closing the gap between the man you are today and the man you want to become.

Right now, you might be a great guy, but you know that you can do better. No doubt, your girlfriend also knows that you can be a better man.

However, you can expect your girlfriend to sit you down and teach you where you've been going wrong and what she wants you to change.

That's not a role that a girlfriend wants to take on for her boyfriend, because it puts her in a position where she feels like more of a big sister, mother figure or teacher.

The position she really wants to be in is to feel as though she is your woman, your girl.

She wants to be able to look up to you and respect you as her man, who is capable of taking the lead and being the man she needs.

She doesn't want to feel as though she needs to lift you up and carry you throughout life, constantly teaching you how to be the man that she needs.

She wants you to fix the deeper issues that really caused her to break up with you in the first place.

If you don't start to fix those things, nothing that you say to her will change how she feels about the break up, because she will see that you are still the same old guy who doesn't yet know how to be the man she needs.

You don't have to become perfect and fix everything, but you do need to start making progress in those areas to show her that you really have changed.

As a result of making progress in those areas (e.g. becoming emotionally stronger, more emotionally mature, having more purpose in life, making her feel more feminine around you) she will naturally feel differently about you and her guard will begin to drop.

When her guard drops, she will then become open to feeling more respect and attraction for you and when that happens, she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love that she once felt for you.

2. Don't try to text her back

These days, most guys make the mistake of texting their girlfriend as a way to explain themselves, convince her or simply stay in her life like a friend.

However, my recommendation to you is that you should only ever text your girlfriend to get her on a phone call and you should only ever be on a phone call with her to get her to meet up with you.

It will be on the phone call that she will be able to hear the changes in how you speaking, thinking and feeling and it's in person that she can observe and experience the new and improved you.

She's not going to be able to see or experience that via text.

In fact, if your girlfriend currently has a negative perception of you, she's most-likely going to read your texts in a negative light and assume that you're the same old guy who hasn't changed at all.

3. Make her feel differently about you, rather than trying to convince her with logical reasoning

[image: Make her feel differently about you]

You are most-likely a good guy and you have good intentions with your girlfriend.

For example: You want to get her back because you love her, you've learnt from your mistakes and you know that you are capable of having a better relationship with her this time.

Yet, trying to explain all that to girlfriend is not going to make her want to get back with you.

A woman will rarely get back with a guy simply based on his logical reason and explanations of why she should give him another chance.

If she does and then realizes that he hasn't actually changed, she will simply break up with him once again.

So, what you actually need to do is start to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you as a man to make her feel differently, rather than explaining why she should give you another chance in the hope that you can get her to think differently.

When you focus on making her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, she will then naturally begin to open herself up back to you.

4. Refresh your understanding of how to actually make a woman feel attracted to you

When in a relationship, many guys lose their ability to attract and charm their girlfriend and other women.

Some people refer to this as losing their mojo, getting rusty around women or losing their game.

A more traditional way of looking at it is that a guy simply loses touch with his ability to make his girlfriend and other women feel attracted to him.

He feels safe in the relationship and believes that his girlfriend would never leave him, so he doesn't feel as though it's necessary to worry about being attractive to his girlfriend or other women.

Yet, it is.

To keep a woman in a relationship, you must continue to be the sort of guy that is attractive to her as well as other women.

Your girlfriend needs to feel lucky to have a guy like you, because you could easily have other women, but you are choosing her because you love her and she is special.

If you need a refresher on how a woman's attraction for a man actually works, watch this video and I will explain it for youâ|

As you will discover from the video above, much of a woman's attraction for a man comes down to how he makes her feel when she interacts with him.

For example: If you continually display personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charisma, emotional masculinity, the ability to make her laugh and smile, etc), then your girlfriend's attraction for you will deepen over time, rather than fading away.

5. Stop chasing her and start attracting her instead

If you're wondering, "How do I get my girlfriend back?" because you've tried everything and nothing is working, here is what you need to ask yourselfâ|

Have you actually been making her feel attracted to you lately, or have you simply been chasing her and trying to get her back because you are attracted to her and need her in your life?

Are you trying to get her to want you back by explaining how you feel about her and why she should give you another chance? Do you keep trying to convince her no matter how many times she rejects you?

If so, what you need to understand is that most women really don't care about their ex-boyfriend's feelings after they have broken up with him.

It is about her and how she feels, not about you and how you feel or what you need.

A woman will rarely get back with a guy because he feels lost without her, loves her so much or because he is promising to change.

So, what does get her back?

It's pretty simple.

A woman will begin to open herself back up to you when you are able to make her experience renewed feelings for you.

It's about her and how she feels; that is what really matters.

For example: If a woman dumped a guy because he was too clingy and didn't have much purpose in life, she's going to feel respect and attraction for him if he starts making real progress towards achieving his biggest dreams and ambitions in life (i.e. he starts living with purpose).

She is going to see that he is moving forward in life with or without her, rather than sitting around and waiting for her to hopefully take him back and give his life some meaning again.

6. Meet up with her and let her experience the new and improved you

[image: Meet up with your girlfriend]

The most important part of getting your girlfriend back is when you actually meet up with her in person.

You will need to have truly made progress and grown as a man emotionally, to be capable of making her feel enough respect and attraction for you at the meet up.

Don't meet up with her if you haven't improved on the fundamental reasons why she really broke up with you.

A woman isn't going to care if you're wearing nicer clothes, have a better haircut or have been going to the gym since the break up.

That's not what really matters to her.

The most important thing to your girlfriend is the emotional state that you are in now and how that makes her feel as a result.

For example: If you meet up with her and you are confident, self-assured and are able to get her smiling and laughing, then she is going to feel happy, attracted and respectful of you.

On the other hand, if you meet up with her and you are being insecure, doubting yourself, letting her control the dynamic of the interaction to be more cold and emotionally distant, then she's not going to be feeling a lot of respect, attraction and love for you.

Instead, she will be happy that she did break up with you and will want to move on even faster because she will be reminded that you don't make her feel the way that she really wants to feel.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Wants to Take a Break

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your girlfriend wants to take a break and you're feeling confused about what that really means, this post will clear it up for you.

The first thing that you need to understand is this...

1. A temporary break is usually a woman's way of softening the blow of an actual break up

[image: Softening the blow before breaking up]

If a woman feels as though she can easily break up with her boyfriend and he won't really care, she will usually just come out and ask for a break up directly.

For example: She might say, "Okay, I want this relationship to be over. You and I aren't a good match. Let's break up and just be friends" and the guy will then accept it and they will part as friends.

However, if a woman feels as though her boyfriend isn't going to take the news well and is going to cling to her, bug her and stay in her life regardless of her request for a break up, she will try to work out other ways that she can gradually get out of the relationship.

Additionally, some women also have a fear that their boyfriend might become angry or violent when he hears the news that she doesn't want to be with him anymore.

So, a lot of women tend to soften the blow on an actual by saying that they want a break for a while (or they need some space) to help keep the guy calm and ensure that she remains safe and unharmed during the process.

If you have found yourself in the unfortunate situation where you're saying, "My girlfriend wants to take a break" there's about a 95% chance (based on all my experience helping guys to get women back) that she is simply trying to break up with you.

There are some cases (approximately 5%) where it's not about breaking up (e.g. she is very busy with work or studies, is having health issues, her boyfriend is being too clingy and she needs some time for herself, etc), but in most cases a "break" is simply a gentle way to build up to an actual break up.

So, what should you do about it?

What you need to do is ensure that you're not saying or doing things around her that will turn her off even further (e.g. being insecure, getting emotional, begging, crying, pleading, etc).

You need to ensure that you start to build on her feelings of love, respect and attraction for you at this point, rather than further destroying her feelings.

For example: If a boyfriend suddenly begins to beg, plead or cry to his girlfriend when she tries to break up with him, she will lose even more respect and attraction for him.

Why? Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, high self-esteem, emotional toughness) and turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, low self-esteem, emotional sensitivity, etc).

If she says that she wants to be friends, I recommend that you take her up on that offer, but don't actually act like a friend.

Watch this video for more info...

Just use the so called "friendship" to ensure that you and her remain in communication, so you can make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and her back.

However, don't tell her that!

Just accept the friendship and agree that you and her can still stay in touch as friends during the break.

2. This is actually an opportunity for you to make her realize that you are the man for her

[image: Make your girlfriend realize that you are the one for her]

If your girlfriend says that she wants to take a break, the best approach is to let her explain herself and then accept the break.

Tell her that you love her and that you care about her, but if that's what she wants, then you are happy to give her that time.

By taking that approach with her, she will see that you are an emotionally mature guy who isn't going to get crazy, angry, violent or turn into a stalker if she breaks up with you.

You are mature and you can handle a situation like that, which will actually make her feel more respect and attraction for you as a man.

3. You should give her space for a few days, but don't wait too long

After you've accepted her request to take a break, give her that space for a few days, but don't wait around too long hoping that if you just ignore her (e.g. using the No Contact Rule), she will come running back to you.

The only time when the No Contact Rule really works is when a woman really loves the guy and wants to be with him, but just needs a little bit of time apart because they are experiencing relationship problems (e.g. constant arguing, too much jealousy, etc).

In cases like that, the woman will remember all the good times, miss her boyfriend, text or call him and meet up so they can get back together.

However, if your girlfriend is sick and tired of how you've been making her feel and sincerely wants to break up with you, she will simply try to move on during the No Contact phase.

So, don't leave it for too long.

I've personally dealt with many cases (via my phone coaching service) where a guy has stopped contacting his girlfriend for 30 days and she moved on because she thought he didn't care about her, or assumed he was doing it because he was moving on.

Don't play games with her like that.

Simply give her some space for a few days, reach out to her with a text like, "Hey ☐☐ how you are doing? Just thought I'd tell you that I miss you and I love you."

Regardless of how she replies to your text, you then need to get her on a phone call by either calling her (if you think she will answer) or texting her first with something like, "Hey ☐☐ I know that we're taking time apart, but I will give you a quick call to say hello for a minute."

When you call her, you need to make sure that you are making her feel respect and attraction for you over the phone, by being emotionally strong, emotionally mature and not the same old communication mistakes that you would make when talking to her in the past.

You then need to meet up with her and let her experience the new and improved you, so she can feel differently around you and change her mind about the break up.

[image: Change her mind about the break up]

If you want to know exactly what to say to get your girlfriend to meet up with you and then what to say and do to get the relationship back together, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

4. She could have another guy lined up

[image: She could have another guy lined up]

If your girlfriend wants to take a break, it can also mean that she has another guy lined up (e.g. a co-worker, a fellow student at university, an ex-boyfriend, a friend, etc) to replace you during the break period.

Her asking to take a break from you or the relationship could actually mean that she wants to feel less guilty as she explores a possible relationship with him.

Based on all my experience helping guys to get women back, I've found that a lot of the times when a woman says that she wants to take a break from her boyfriend, she will also add in that she isn't going to be seeing anyone during that time and she doesn't want him to date new women either.

Essentially, she is asking him to remain faithful to her as though they are together, but they are technically broken up.

Yet, a woman will often say that to ensure that her boyfriend doesn't move on before she does, because she doesn't want to feel the pain of being left behind by him.

She wants to be put herself in the position where she can say, "Ummm, there's something I need to tell you. Don't get angry, but during our time apart, I met someone else."

That way, she gets out of the relationship cleanly (e.g. she doesn't feel the pain of her boyfriend moving on with a woman before she finds a guy, she has a new boyfriend so she can use that as a way to refuse to meet up with her now ex-boyfriend).

If you ask her something like, "Are you asking to take a break because you want to see another guy?" she will almost certainly say, "No" because women have a fear of their boyfriend becoming angry or violent and she most-likely won't want to create a drama between you and the other guy.

So, if your gut instinct is telling you that your girlfriend is the type of woman who will start seeing another guy during the break period, then you need to proceed to the meet up as soon as possible so you can get her back before she hooks up with him.

On the other hand, if you feel as though you don't want to get a woman like her back, then you need to cut off all communication with her and start hooking up with other women as soon as possible.

If you don't do that (in either case), she will most-likely lead you on (i.e. give you hope that you and her will get back together) until she eventually says, "There's something that I need to tell you."

She will then proceed to tell you that she is happy with the new guy, they are boyfriend and girlfriend and she doesn't want anything to do with you.

It's a harsh, horrible experience to go through as a guy, so I would recommend that you fix things with her before it gets to that point.

Fixing things between you and her essentially comes down to you stopping saying and doing the kinds of things that have been turning her off and starting to make her feel respect, attraction and love for you in new and exciting ways.

For example: If a girlfriend is attempting to dump her boyfriend because she is turned off at how insecure he is, she will feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him if he suddenly becomes a very confident guy.

If he previously gave her too much power in the relationship and let her push him around, she will feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him if he suddenly takes on the role of being an assertive, but loving boyfriend who leads the way and doesn't let himself get pushed around.

If she lost interest in him because he didn't really make her feel much attraction anymore, she will be excited to see that she now feels differently around him and she will become open to giving the relationship another chance.

5. Texting her will not fix the problem

These days, pretty much everyone has a smartphone or tablet device and is connected to the internet all the time, so it's very easy for a boyfriend to send messages to his girlfriend via social media, text or e-mail her.

Yet, it's usually the worst approach to use when trying to get a girlfriend back after a break up or during a break period.

Why? If your girlfriend has asked for a break because she is sick and tired of the mistakes you've been making (e.g. being insecure, clingy, controlling, taking her for granted, etc), then she's not going to believe that you've changed based on how you text her.

She's going to have to hear the changes in how you talk to her (i.e. your tonality, how you express yourself, how you react to her during conversation, etc) and observe you in person to truly believe that you've learnt your lesson and really have changed.

Even if you have changed, a girlfriend isn't automatically going to be willing to take you back. What matters most is not that you've changed, but that she feels differently when she is around you.

This comes down to your ability to trigger her feelings of respect, attraction and love while you interact with her in person or on the phone. It's not something that can ever be achieved by text though because the text isn't you.

So don't ever think that texting her is going to fix the real problems between you and her.

In most cases, texting makes things worse because the guy comes across as being desperate when he tries to explain himself via long text messages, which turn his girlfriend off and give her too much power in the situation.

Pouring your heart out to your girlfriend via text, social media messages, e-mails or letters is not the way to get her back.

None of those forms of communication have the same type of instant impact like a phone call or in-person meet up, where your girlfriend can actually experience the new and improved you.

If you are planning on getting your girlfriend back after the short break, you will need to get her on a phone call and meet up with her in person.

Whatever you do, just don't hide behind text and don't waste time trying to explain yourself via text, e-mail or other messages.

Based on all my experience helping guys to get women back, texting is usually just a waste of time and ends up pushing the woman away further.

If you don't know exactly what to say on the phone or what to do to get her back when you meet up with her in person, all of that is explained in Get Your Ex Back: Super System

6. Sometimes a break is needed because the guy is being too clingy or needy

If your girlfriend does want to be with you, but simply wants to take a break because she feels smothered in the relationship, it will be pretty easy to get her back.

As long as you have been a great boyfriend and she respects you, feels attracted to you and is still in love with you, the space will simply make her miss you and want to be around you.

When you do get back together, you need to establish a new, mutual understanding of how you are both going to approach the relationship so neither of you feels smothered or neglected.

If you have been clingy, you need to show her that you now have a much more balanced approach to life and your relationship with her.

For example: You are now striving to achieve your biggest goals and ambitions in life, rather than being so focused on her all the time.

You still spend time with her, love her, respect her and want her, but you are now rising through the levels of life to reach for your true potential as a man at the same time.

When your girlfriend sees that you now realize how to be a more balanced man in a relationship, she will relax and won't have to worry about you becoming clingy or needy.

She will know that you want her in your life, but you don't need her for a sense of identity like you did in the past, because you are now forming a stronger sense of identity by living a life with more purpose (i.e. following through to achieve your biggest goals and ambitions in life).

It may take you 10, 20 or even 40 years to achieve your biggest goals in life, but the point is that you are now doing that. You're not a confused, lost guy who still doesn't understand that he needs to stand up and be a man that she can be proud to be with in the long run.

7. You can get her back

[image: You can get her back after a temporary break up]

Right now, you might be feeling a bit sad, angry or even betrayed by your girlfriend for asking to take a break from you and the relationship.

You might also feel confused about how you are going to fix the problem and get her back.

The good news is that it's actually very easy to get a woman back, as long as you follow the right process.

Essentially, what you need to do is make your girlfriend feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, apologize for your mistakes and show her that you really have changed as a man.

She might not accept you back immediately, but if you want her back, you are going to need to believe in yourself and in the love that you and her once shared.

When you maintain belief in yourself and follow the right process, the relationship will naturally get back together on the first or second meet up.

If want to follow a step-by-step plan to get her back, I recommend that you watch my revolutionary program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex-Wife Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It's well documented that around half of all marriages end in divorce, but something that isn't well documented is the number of divorced couples who get back together and remarry each other. According to some studies in the USA, it is estimated that approximately 6% of divorced couples remarry each other and an additional 3% get back together and remain together for life, but don't go to the trouble of remarrying.

That brings us to a total of approximately 9%, but that is not taking into account the more than 100 men I've already helped to successfully get a wife back (after a separation or divorce) via my recently released program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Traditionally, men have not had the help of an attraction expert via the internet who is dedicated to helping men to successfully get an ex wife back.

That's where I come in...

I'm hoping to push the re-marriage and reconciliation statistics upwards by reaching as many men as possible via this site.

I really can help you get your ex-wife back, so if you are unsure what you need to do to begin the exciting process of getting her back, start by watching this video

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of control over how much or little respect and attraction your ex wife feels for you from now on.

When you get her to meet up with you in person and are a new and improved man who is able to make her feel respect and attraction for you in new ways, she will naturally begin to lower her guard and open herself back up to the possibility of being with you.

Getting your ex wife back comes down to how committed you are to learning from the mistakes you've made and using what you learn right now to become the type of man that your ex-wife wants to have back in her life.

What Have You Learned From the Divorce?

[image: What have you learned from the divorce?]

There's no one-size-fits-all reason for a marriage breakdown, but to be able to resolve a problem and prevent it from becoming a problem again, you need to know exactly what the problem was in the first place.

For example: Watch this video to understand some of the reasons why a woman will decide to break up with, separate from or divorce her man

To get your ex wife back, you will need to show her that you really have learned from the mistakes you made and have taken action to become a better man as a result.

How you will show her that?

She will hear it in the way you talk to her (e.g. your tone of voice, the way you express yourself), see it in your body language and feel it in your vibe.

If you can only talk to her over the phone to begin with, you need to make sure that you come across as an emotionally strong, emotionally mature man who has already learnt from his mistakes.

You need to apologize to her for those mistakes and ask her, “Do you think it is possible for a man to learn from his mistakes?” and “Do you agree that people live and learn throughout life?” to help her begin to think in a more open-minded way.

If you really have changed, then she will feel silly and immature if she simply shuts you down and says that she doesn't want anything to do with you anymore.

If you find yourself up against a brick wall like that, then you will need to use the advanced techniques from my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System to make her bring down her wall and become open to having feelings for you again.

Watch this video to understand why it is possible for you to get your ex wife back!

As you will discover from the video above, the love that your ex-wife once felt for you is not dead.

It has simply been pushed into the background and covered over with negative, painful feelings.

You can bring the happy, smiling feelings of love back to the forefront when you begin to interact with her in ways that respark her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

Do You Know How to Re-Attract Her?

[image: Do you know how to re-attract her?]

When you got married, your wife obviously saw qualities in you that made her decision that you were the man she wanted to spend the rest of her life with, so what happened?

What changed in your relationship to cause her feelings for you to fade away? More importantly, do you know what you need to say and do to re-attract her?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to re-attract your ex-wife!

As you will discover from the video above, you can actively make your wife experience feelings of respect and attraction for you when you interact with her.

For example: If a husband had been insecure and was lacking purpose in life, his ex-wife is naturally going to feel respect and attraction for him if she sense that he is now an emotionally strong man and is making progress towards the achievement of his biggest goals and ambitions in life (i.e. his life purpose).

However, if a woman interacts with her ex-husband and senses that he's still pretty much the same man that she divorced, there isn't going to be much or anything to make her feel attracted to him or to the idea of being with him again.

[image: What changed in the marriage?]

You really have to be willing to learn, improve and grow as a man if you want her to take you seriously.

If you do make changes and she then feels differently around you, she will naturally begin to consider getting back with you, even if you both agree to take things slow and see how it goes.

Do You Make Her Feel Feminine Around You?

[image: Do you know how to make her feel feminine around you anymore?]

Some husbands make the mistake of treating their wife like more of a friend or worse, expecting her to think, feel and behave like more of a man (i.e. stop being so emotional, be more logical, get to the point, follow through on goals, etc).

When a husband takes that approach with his wife, he gradually eats away at her femininity and forces her to take on a more masculine approach to life, which is deeply unsatisfying for a woman.

A woman is perfectly capable of doing pretty much anything that a man can do (e.g. leading a workforce, fighting in the UFC, leading a country, etc), but in her private relationship or marriage, she wants to feel feminine and girly around her man.

Of course, almost all women in Western societies are embarrassed to admit this because they are so confused about how they should be acting these days.

Many women act like men and are afraid to be girly and feminine, because they want to be taken seriously in the workforce. Not knowing how to separate work life from their personal life, many women carry that attitude into relationships and marriages and end up acting like men.

Yet, regardless of how much a woman behaves like a man, what she really wants to be is a woman. A girly, feminine woman.

She wants to be taken seriously and respected, but deep down, she wants to feel free to be girly and feminine around her man (e.g. be emotionally, change her mind about things all the time, giggle, be silly, dance around the house, put on make up and make herself look more sexually appealing, joke around, etc).

If you don't allow a woman to feel feminine around you (e.g. you say things like, "Stop being so emotional" or "Be sensible" or "Follow through on your goals") she will actually resent you for it.

A woman is perfectly capable of following through on goals, being sensible and being emotionally strong, but in her private relationship or marriage, she wants to be free to be feminine and emotional.

Another common mistake that husbands make in this area is to let their wife wear the pants or rule the roost.

Unfortunately, these men think that the best way to keep a woman happy is to let her feel like she's in charge of everything, so they give up their power and let her make all the decisions.

That is not what women want.

A modern woman does want to have a say, be respect and be taken seriously, but what she ultimately wants from her man is for him to take the lead.

A man doesn't have to make all the decisions, but he needs to be the one who takes charges and leads the way.

The more that a husband makes his wife lead the way, the less feminine she feels and the less feminine a woman feels, the less she wants to be around a man.

How to Get Your Ex Wife Back as Soon as Possible

[image: How to get your ex wife back in love with you]

The fact that you're referring to her as your ex-wife, suggests to me that she's probably already moved on with another man or is at least dating.

If that is the case, you're probably not going to be able to get her back tomorrow.

Based on the more than 100 cases that I have personally dealt with (via my phone coaching service), getting an ex-wife back will usually take between 1 week to 2 months, depending on how quickly the man can change.

If you are serious about getting her back, you need to get clear on what really caused her to become your ex-wife in the first place and then commit to becoming the type of man that she will happily give another chance to.

Initially, she will most-likely try to brush you off or reject you, but all you need to do is get her to meet up with you and experience the new and improved you.

When that happens, her perception of you will change and she will naturally become open to having feelings for you again.

If you want to follow a proven to work, step-by-step system for getting a woman back in today's world, I recommend that you watch my revolutionary program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

10 Tips to Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting your ex back requires you to plan that will actually work for your particular situation.

All relationships are different, so you shouldn't blindly follow random tips to get your ex back that you find online.

From this moment onwards, you need to make sure that you only use techniques that will work for you and your woman, rather than expecting her to fall for random tricks that you find online, which are only designed for a very small percentage of women.

From my years of experiencing helping guys to get women back, here is what works for almost all situations...

1. Stop saying and doing things that will further destroy her remaining feelings of respect, love and attraction for you.

[image: Stop turning her off even further]

When I help guys to get a woman back, one of the most common ways that a guy will be turning off his ex girlfriend, fiancée or wife is by showing signs of emotional weakness.

His ex will be able to pick up on his emotional weakness by looking at the way he texts her, listening to how he talks to her and observing how he interacts with her in person. She will also stop by his social media profiles (if she has blocked him, she will temporarily unblock him to have a look) and see if he appears to be emotionally strong or weak without her.

Emotional strength is an extremely important part of getting an ex back, because women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, high-self esteem, happiness regardless of life's challenges) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecurity, low self-esteem, depressed or demotivated when life gets challenging).

If you are serious about getting your ex back, you must ensure that you are no longer showing any signs of emotional weakness or insecurity (e.g. neediness, clinginess, feeling lost without her, accusing her of ruining your life, complaining that life is too hard, etc).

If you can show her an emotionally stronger version of yourself from now on, she will naturally feel more respect and attraction for you with each interaction. However, if you show emotional weakness, you will simply be pushing her further away.

Questions for you:

- Are you aware of the subtle or obvious ways that you've been turning your ex off over the past couple of weeks or months?
- Have you been needy or clingy when you interact with her in person, text her or talk to her on the phone?
- Have you come across as being insecure?
- Have you been bugging her via text in the hopes that you might be able to convince her to take you back?

- Have you been complaining about life and relationships when you make posts on social media?
- Have you displayed signs of low self-esteem when you interact with her in person?

From now onwards, it's extremely important that you stop doing the things that will turn her off further and only display traits, behaviors and inner qualities that are going to make her feel respect and attraction for you (e.g. confidence, high self-esteem, charisma, fearless love, happiness, emotional strength, etc).

If you are not actively making your ex feel respect and attraction for you, she's not going to be missing you and imagining that she would feel good to be back with you. Instead, she will be continually reminded why she broke it off with you in the first place and that will simply help her to move on with more certainty.

Watch this video to understand 5 classic mistakes that guys make when trying to get an ex back, which further destroy her feelings of love, respect and attractionâ!

As you will discover from the video above, your ex is only going to start to take you seriously if you actually improve your ability to make her feel the type of respect and attraction that she wants to feel when around a man.

If a guy is unwilling to do that, a woman will rarely be willing to give him another chance.

2. Start fixing the subtle issues that she probably won't ever tell you about

[image: Fix the subtle issues]

When a woman breaks up with a guy, she will often say things like, "I need time to myself for a while" or "I don't feel the same way anymore" or "I don't want to be in a relationship right now." Some women will also add in some details about why they are breaking up with a guy (e.g. he was too needy, too controlling, took her for granted, etc), but outside of that, a woman will tend to keep things pretty vague.

Why? One of the main, subtle reasons why a woman will break up with a guy is that he simply hasn't been enough of a man for her and she doesn't believe he has the ability to do that right now.

What does it mean when a woman thinks that a guy isn't enough of a man for her?

Essentially, it's about him

- Not being emotionally strong enough.
- Lacking emotional maturity.
- Not having much purpose in life outside of the relationship and therefore putting way too much focus on her and then becoming needy, clingy or insecure as a result.
- Lacking masculinity in how he thinks and behaves around her, which then doesn't allow her to feel like a feminine girl around him.
- Making her feel like more of a friend to him or as though she is more powerful and dominant than he is.

Women usually don't explain these things because she doesn't want to take on the role of teaching her guy how to be a man.

[image: What have I done wrong? Tell me! Teach me how to be the man you need.]

She doesn't want to find herself in a relationship that requires her to continually teach a guy how to be a man throughout life, because that makes her feel like more of a big sister, mother or teacher figure.

She wants to feel like she is your girl, your woman and be able to look up to you and respect you as her man.

She doesn't want to feel as though she needs to take on a teaching role or a more dominant, leadership role to guide you on your path to be a man.

It doesn't matter what age you are right now, there is always a next level of maturity to step up to and if you are a few steps or more behind her in terms of emotional maturity, she's going to feel like you're not enough of a man for her.

As you will discover from the video above, your ex is going to need to see that you are capable of being the man she needs before she will allow herself to feel respect for you again.

You can get her respect back with a simple conversation, which I explain in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

3. Don't try to get her back with pity or by pouring your heart out to her

You can't really blame a guy for pouring his heart out (e.g. "I love you so much. I will do anything. Please don't do this to me. My life wouldn't be worth living without you in it") if the woman he loves is breaking up with him and doesn't want to get back with him.

Yet, pouring your heart out and seeking the pity of a woman isn't what will get her back.

Why? Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confident, happy and forward moving with or without her) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. emotionally destroyed now that she isn't there to make him feel safe).

When a guy shows emotional weakness during a break up, it makes a woman lose more respect for him and as a result, she loses even more attraction for him.

If you have made the classic mistake of trying to get her back with pity, don't worry â◻◻ there is something very simple that you can say to your ex to get her to forgive your behavior, which I explain in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

4. Become emotionally stronger than you have ever been before

As a man, one of the most important, long lasting gifts that you can ever offer a woman is your emotional strength.

A woman wants to be able to feel safe with her man by knowing that he will remain strong no matter how challenging life gets, or how many tests she puts him through (e.g. by throwing tantrums, showing less affection at times, etc).

She doesn't want to feel as though she has to carry him throughout life and always be the one who needs to lift up his spirits, pat him on the back and tell him to keep his chin high and stay strong.

That's the role of a mother or big sister, not a girlfriend, fianc  or wife.

When in a relationship, a woman wants a ready-made man who becomes emotionally stronger as the years go on. When her man is consistently emotionally strong, it allows her to feel more feminine in comparison to him (i.e. because she won't be as emotionally strong and resilient as he is during challenging times in life), which then makes her feel a deeper sexual attraction for him.

When a woman is able to feel deep sexual attraction based on the vast difference of masculinity and femininity between herself and her man, she knows that she has found a real man. When she realizes that, she will never want to break up with him because she will know how difficult it would be to find another man like him again.

If you have never been taught how to be an emotionally strong man, that is not your fault. These days, many guys grow up under a father who is incapable of teaching him how to be a strong man, or they don't have a father figure around at all.

The ideal type of father will instill emotional strength and emotional masculinity into his sons and they will then go out into the world with a strength that not only attracts women, but makes other men respect and admire them.

It's not your fault if you didn't get that type of upbringing, but from this day onwards, it will be your fault if you don't step up and start becoming a stronger man than you already are today.

When your ex can see that you are becoming more emotionally strong every time she interacts with you or observes you on social media, it will make her feel a renewed sense of a respect and attraction for you in a way that she won't be able to control.

She won't be able to switch it off and ignore the fact that she is noticing how much stronger you are now and how much better it makes her feel. She will begin to wonder why she was so harsh on you and why everyone says that a man can never change, because clearly you have changed.

5. Improve your ability to make her feel respect, attraction and love for you when you interact with her

Just because your ex doesn't have a lot of feelings for you right now and may have even told you to "Get away from me" or "I never want to see you again," it doesn't mean that she can't feel respect, attraction and love for you once again.

So, how can you get her to have feelings for you again?

You must start by getting her respect back, which includes you becoming emotionally stronger and being able to apologize to her in a mature, confident manner on the phone and in person.

Getting her to have feelings for you again then involves you being able to actively trigger her feelings of attraction when you interact with her on a phone call and in person, but not via text.

You cannot get her to feel a renewed sense of respect, love and attraction for you via text because she's not going to believe that you have changed until she can hear it in your voice and see it in your body language and behavior when she interacts with you in person.

Texts can be easily misinterpreted and if your ex doesn't yet trust the fact that you have changed, she will most-likely read your messages in a negative light (e.g. assume you are still insecure, assume you are using tricks to try to get her back, etc).

If you are serious about getting your ex back, you have to get her on the phone and you have to get her to meet up with you in person to be able to make her feel real respect and attraction for you again. When she feels those emotions, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her old feelings of love with you.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to get her your ex back!|

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of direct control over how much or little attraction your ex will feel for you.

If you only interact with her in ways that make her feel respect and attraction for you, she will naturally begin to lower guard and reconnect with her old feelings for you.

If you are attracting her in ways that you never have before, she will also feel intrigued and compelled to explore her new feelings of attraction for you, which will result in her texting you, calling you and/or being willing to meet up with you again.

6. Don't waste time with the No Contact Rule

The only time that a guy should use the No Contact Rule is when his ex really does love him and wants to get back together, but she simply needs a few days to a week apart to calm down after an argument or to realize that she doesn't want to lose her opportunity to be with him.

In a case like that, the No Contact period will cause her to miss him. She will then contact him, want to meet up with him and want get him back before another woman takes him.

However, if your ex has dumped you and doesn't want to get back with you because her feelings for you are currently destroyed, then the No Contact Rule will rarely change anything and will simply allow her to move on without you.

As you will discover from the video above, the No Contact Rule is usually a bad idea and simply allows an ex to move on.

7. Don't act like you don't care about her

A female friend of mine once said, "If a guy is still playing games with women, he is not ready for an adult, grown up relationship."

I agree with her 100%. Women don't always give the best dating and relationship advice, but in this case, she is spot on.

If you are serious about getting your ex back, now is not the time to be playing games with her.

Here is a recent example to show you what I mean!|

I was coaching a guy via my phone coaching service and he had unfortunately come across some bad advice online, which told him to be very short and emotionally distant with his ex if she ever reached out to him.

After a week, she reached out to him via text with, “Hey â□□ how are you doing?” and he replied with a short, emotionally distant text message of, “Taking time off for the holidays” and then left it at that.

He then sat around hoping that she would reply or call, but she didn’t. Nothing for an entire week.

He was advised not to call her or ask any questions and to just be short with her, because according to the person who was advising him, sending a text like that to his ex would make him look really cool, tough or attractive.

Horrible advice.

I really felt sorry for my client because he was a good guy who was simply trying to get the love of his life back, but he had come across some bad advice that was based on emotional weakness rather than strength.

If you use advice that is based on emotional weakness, you will turn your ex off even further. It’s as simple as that. You need to be strong. Acting like you don’t care about your ex is not the way to get her back.

A real man who is emotionally strong would simply reply to a text of, “Hey – how are you doing?” with something like, “Hey â□□ I’m doing well. Nice to hear from you. I’ll give you call in a minute to say a quick hello.”

An emotionally strong man would perceive her message as meaning that she wanted to interact with him because she missed him, or she wanted to check how she would feel if she interacted with him on a phone call because she wasn’t 100% if she’d made the right decision to break up with him.

He would then call her, make her feel respect and attraction for him and then arrange a time to meet up.

On the other hand, an insecure man would think that she was only sending a message like, “Hey â□□ how are you doing?” because she wanted to make him feel bad or check that he’s still the insecure guy that she broke up with. Based on his insecurity, he would try to act emotionally distant to make her think that he was fine without her.

A real man doesn’t waste time with games like that because he knows that he is naturally attractive to women based on his emotional strength and maturity. So, rather than sending her a short text like, “Taking time off for the holidays” he could have replied in a positive way and then simply called her.

If the woman’s ex had really changed the way that he talked to her (e.g. he now comes across as being more emotionally masculine and mature), she will enjoy hearing the difference in him and it will bring her guard down.

I know this because I’ve personally helped many guys through situations like this and I also heard back from my phone coaching client after I instructed him to call his ex and (as I said it to him) “cut the bullshit and just be real with her. Remember that you are a good guy and you have good intentions. There’s nothing weak about a man who loves a woman and is simply trying to fix the problems between them.”

He called her, got the meet up and (to quote part of his e-mail to me), she said, “You’ve changed. Why weren’t you like this before?” which essentially means that she feels more respect and attraction for him now.

She can’t stop herself from feeling the difference now that he has changed. It’s an automatic reaction that a woman has, even if she previously hated her ex.

It took him another meet up with her to get her back into a relationship, but he did it and that is what counts. Sometimes a relationship gets back together at the first meet up, whereas other times it takes 2-3 meet ups to properly get the relationship back together.

If you want to know exactly what to say to get your ex to meet up with you and feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, all of that is explained in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

8. Only text her to get her on a phone call with you

One of the worst tips to get your ex back is to send her loads of text messages in the hope that she will remember the good old times (e.g. lame texts called Green Eyed Monster texts), or waste time hoping that one of your texts will magically fix everything.

Text is the worst way to try to get an ex back, because if she currently has a negative perception of you, she's not going to be amazed by your texts. Instead, she will most-likely look at them as being yet another annoying, unattractive thing coming from you.

So, don't hassle her with texts and don't try to be her friend via text in the hope that she will eventually want to be with you. Text is a horrible way to stay in touch with your ex and almost always makes things worse.

The only time you should be texting your ex is to get her on a phone call.

On a phone call, you can then properly attract her by being confident, using her and making her feel girly in comparison to your masculine conversation style and approach.

Then...

< h2>9. Get her to meet up with you

[image: Meet up with her and get the old spark back]

The purpose of getting her to meet up with you is to get her to experience the new and improved you. Of course, you should not tell her that though! If you tell her that the purpose of the meet up is to get her to experience the new and improved you, she will most-likely reject you and say that she doesn't want to get back together with you.

When you get her to meet up with you in person, you need to display personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities that are naturally attractive to women and that make women feel respect and admiration for a man (e.g. Confidence, the ability to charm her and make her laugh despite her potentially being cold or closed off initially, emotional strength, emotional maturity, etc).

There are many different ways that you can make your ex feel respect and attraction for you on a phone call and at an in-person meet up, which I explain in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

When you do make her feel respect and attraction for you, her guard will automatically begin to come down and she will look at you in a more positive light.

10. Get her to forgive you

One of the best tips to get your ex back is to get her to forgive you.

How can you do that?

Essentially, you need to tell her the truth that she will feel better and it will help her with future relationships if she sincerely forgives you for your mistakes. If she doesn't forgive you, she will carry that baggage into her future relationships and it may cause unnecessary problems for her.

Yet, what she almost certainly won't know about the psychology of forgiveness is this (don't tell her this by the way!)...

When she sincerely forgives you, it will actually make her look at your past mistakes as being no big deal.

The negative emotions that she has been carrying around associated to you and the break up will fade away and she will automatically feel more willing to allow herself to feel a stronger, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

From that day onwards, she will think about you and look at you in a more positive light and she will be grateful for the weight that you have lifted off her shoulders by getting her to forgive you.

She will then be more willing to meet up with you in person and she will be emotionally open (rather than having her guard up), which will allow her to feel more respect and attraction for the new and improved you.

Forgiveness is an important part of getting an ex back, so make sure that you don't skip that part. It really helps to get a woman's guard down, so you can then make her feel a much stronger sense of respect and attraction for you when she talks to you on the phone and interacts with you in person.

Are You Willing to Do What it Takes to Get Her Back?

If you've enjoyed my introductory tips to get your ex back and you want to learn more, I recommend that you watch my proven to work system called, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

It's a 7-step system, it is very easy to use and by the 7th step, you will be back with your ex in a new and improved relationship. The 7 steps may take you a couple of days, a couple of weeks and in extreme cases a couple of months, but the most important thing is that you actually get her back.

So, are you willing to give this a try? Are you prepared to do what it really takes to get your ex back?

If you are ready to do what it takes to get her back, don't waste another moment thinking about it. Start now. After watching the 10 hours of video from my program, you will be ready to call her and get her to meet up with you.

If she isn't answering your calls, I provide tested text message examples that are proven to work to get an ex on a phone call.

At the meet up, you will be able to get her to forgive you and feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

In difficult cases, it might take a couple of meet ups to get her back, but I constantly hear back from happy customers who tell me that they were able to get their ex back at the first meet up.

You can do this.

If you are serious about getting your ex back, get started now and I'll show you the way.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Has Moved On

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're at a point now where you are saying, "My ex has moved on" you will no doubt be feeling sad and confused about what you should do from here.

So, I'm going to clear things up for you by explaining the 3 choices that you have right now to either get her back or move on with out her.

[image: 3 choices]

Which of the following options sounds like it would be best for you at this point?

1. Get her back.
2. Start having sex with lots of high quality women.
3. Get a new, high quality woman and have a committed relationship with her instead.

Whichever choice suits you the best, here is what you need to do to succeed...

1. Get her back.

[image: Go through the exciting, life changing process of getting her back]

If your ex has moved on with another guy, then it does make the process of getting her back a bit more difficult, but it still is possible.

Most new relationships do not last a lifetime because most guys have no idea how to keep a modern woman happy and committed in a relationship, so her new guy will probably fall into that category.

Just think about the approximate 50% divorce rate and the 50% couple break up rate for non-marriage relationships and you will realize that there is no guarantee that her new guy will know how to keep her happy.

If you want to get your ex back now that she has moved on, the first thing that you need to do is truly understand the subtle and obvious reasons why she broke up with youâ€¦!

After understanding what she really broke up with you for (e.g. not being enough of a man for her, being insecure, making her purpose in life, etc), you then need to get her to meet up with you in person.

Don't worry, I know what you're probably thinking, "She won't want to meet up with me" or "How can I get her to meet up with me if she has a boyfriend?" or "How can I get her to meet up with me if she doesn't even respond to my texts, calls or social media messages?"

I get it.

I understand the situation you are in and have already helped 100s of guys in your situation to successfully get an ex back who has moved on with another guy.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I provide proven to work techniques for getting her to unblock you and re-add you to Facebook and social media and then answer your texts and phone calls and agree to meet up with you in person.

Meeting up in person is the most important part of the process of getting another chance with her, but if you are in a situation where you are saying “My ex has moved on” I know that it’s not always going to be easy to get her to agree to a meet up right away.

That is why when you talk to her on the phone, you must start out by getting her respect back (i.e. by apologizing for your mistakes on the basis that you’re not trying to get her back, but simply want to apologize and let her know that you understand why she broke up with you and accept it) to get her to bring her guard down when talking to you.

When she drops her guard on the phone, you can then begin to respark her feelings of attraction and other positive feelings towards you to get her smiling, laughing and actually enjoying the phone call with you.

When that happens, you can then ask her to catch up with you in person. Exactly what to say and do at that point is explained in my program.

So, if you feel like you’d rather get your ex back than move on without her, I recommend that you begin watching Get Your Ex Back: Super System now and I will guide you through the exciting, life changing process of getting an ex back.

2. Start having sex with lots of high quality women.

[image: Start having sex with lots of new, high quality women]

When a guy has been dumped by a woman and then finds out that she has moved on, it can sometimes make him spiral into a state of depression about life and relationships.

He might also get to the point where he feels unworthy of high quality women and believes that if his ex wasn’t willing to stay with him, then other high quality women won’t be either.

In his depressed state of mind, it just seems too difficult to have to go out there and talk to other women, get them attracted and then move towards sex and dating.

However, if you are at a point where you are thinking that you might not want to get your ex back, the fastest way to get your mojo back, build up your confidence and feel happy again is to start having sex with other high quality women.

So, how can you do that?

The main thing that you need to do is reignite your ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman when you meet her.

Watch this video to understand how it worksâ€¦!

These days, most women are open to having sex on the first night or first date, so it’s actually quite easy to get women to have sex with you.

For example:

- Singles in America Survey found that 55% of singles have sex on the first date.
- A European study found that 70% of women had experienced a one-night stand.
- Student Beans survey in the UK found that 51% of men and women admitted to having experienced a one-night stand.
- The National Survey on Sexual Attitudes and Lifestyles found that the average amount of men that a woman had sex with before marriage has almost doubled in the last 10 years from an average of 3.7 to now 7.7.

- Personally speaking, Iâ€¦ve had sex with more than 250 women and about 100 of those women have come from one night stands where I met the woman at a bar, club or during the day.

As you can see by the statistics above, there is actually a lot of sex going on immediately or shortly after a man and woman meet.

All you need to do to get some sex with new, high quality women is know how to attract them (it's actually a lot easier than most guys realize), keep a conversation going and then move to a kiss and sex that night or on the first date.

[image: Start having sex with lots of new, high quality women]

These days, if you go out to a party, nightclub or bar and have the ability to attract women, you will be able to pull a woman back for sex each time you go out to do so.

Other guys are doing it right now, I did it for 10 years (having sex with more than 250 women) before settling down with my sexy wife and you can do it too.

One of the reasons why it's so easy to get laid these days is that women no longer have to save themselves for marriage and are no longer looked down on for having multiple "relationships" before settling down.

The truth is that millions of women have regular, secret sex that they don't tell anyone about and they keep doing that until they find their perfect guy.

3. Get a new, high quality woman and have a committed relationship with her instead.

[image: Find a new, high quality woman to have a relationship with]

If you are feeling emotionally bruised and beaten up after getting dumped by your ex and seeing her move on, you may not be feeling very hopeful about finding another high quality woman and making the relationship last this time.

So, here's how you need to look at itâ€¦!

Realize that there is a positive and negative side to the approximately 50% divorce and break up rate for marriages and relationships.

If you look at it on the negative side, you will see that 50% of marriages and relationships break up, but if you look at it on the positive side, you will see that 50% of marriages and relationships stay together for life.

Back when I got dumped by my ex-girlfriend, it was during the time where the internet didnâ€¦t have people online helping other people with their relationship problems, so I was lost, on my own and had no idea how to get her back.

I made many of the classic mistakes of begging and pleading and I even got very angry at her, which of course didn't help and simply pushed her away even further.

I then spent many lonely years on my own, single and unable to attract a new, high quality woman to replace her.

Eventually, I decided that I was no longer going to put up with being alone and that I would somehow work out how to have sex with lots of new high quality women at will.

Once I worked that out, I then began having casual relationships with many high quality women and went onto sleep with more than 250 women.

After 10 years of enjoying my choice of women, I chose my perfect girl who is now my wife. She was 20 when I met her and I was 35. I'm now 38 and she's 23 and we're planning on starting a family.

Our relationship gets better and better over time, so I definitely see her and I being on the positive side of the 50% marriage statistic.

You can have that type of success with women too.

It is possible for you fall in love with many other women and have women truly love you from the deepest part of their being, to the point where your heart and mind is full of joy, excitement and pleasure at the love you are experiencing together.

[image: Find a new, high quality woman to have a relationship with]

What you will find if you do decide to open yourself to experiencing love with other women is that each experience of love will be different with each woman.

There is always a unique style of love that you share with each woman.

The love that you shared with your ex is not going to be the same as the love you share with new women, but depending on the woman, the new love you find might be even more powerful and suited to who you really are as a man.

When I look back on the love that I had with my ex all those years ago, I know that her and I could have lasted the distance if I knew what I know now.

Yet, I was younger and less mature back then and I simply wasn't ready for a girl like her.

If the internet was like it was today and there was a site like The Modern Man to help me, I truly believe I would have gotten her back and been able to keep that relationship together.

However, that's not how my life played out. My break up happened before I could be helped, which eventually lead me to work my ass off to create The Modern Man so I could help you and guys like you.

So, that brings us to the following questions:

1. Are you going to go through the exciting, life-changing process of getting her back?
2. Are you going to start having sex with lots of new high quality women?
3. Are you going to find yourself a new, high quality woman to have a committed relationship with?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Dumped Me: How to Get Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you've been dumped by the woman you love, it's only natural that you might be feeling hurt by her decision and confused about how you can get her back.

So, in this post I am going to explain what you need to do to get her respect back, respark her attraction for you and get her to reconnect with her old feelings of love with you.

When you approach it in that way, you will almost certainly be able to win her back and get another chance with her.

Here's what you need to do...

1. Give Her Space For 1-3 Days

[image: Give her space for 1-3 days]

The first thing that you need to do after being dumped by your girlfriend, is to avoid many of the classic mistakes that other guys make, which turn the woman off even more.

For example: Rather than begging and pleading for another chance with her, the best thing to do is to temporarily accept the break up, so she feels as though she doesn't have to put her guard up around you or block you out of her life.

This may mean giving her space for 1-3 days before you contact her again.

When you do contact her, you need to apologize for your mistakes, explain to her that you now understand why she wanted to break up with you and that you have already begun to change and improved those things about yourself.

Tell her that you're not saying that to get back with her, but merely just to let her know out of respect for her and the relationship you once shared.

Talking about the relationship in past tense helps to keep her guard down because she doesn't have to worry about you pressuring her to take you back.

Once you give her that feeling, you need to get her to meet up with you in person to have a friendly chat to say goodbye. At the meet up, you can then get her to feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and get another chance with her.

If you don't know what to say or do to get her to agree to a meet up and then what to say and do at the meet up, I provide all of my best, tested examples in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Meeting up with her after giving her a little bit of space (anywhere from 1-3 days) is the best way to quickly get her to change her mind and give you another chance.

Of course, sometimes a guy's girlfriend will absolutely hate him and will refuse to meet up with him that quickly. In that case, he will need to use additional techniques to get her to lower her guard and feel comfortable to meet up with him within 1-2 weeks of the break up.

If you look around online for advice on how to get your girlfriend back, random people and websites will tell you to ignore her for anywhere from 21-60 days.

How do they come up with that number? Think about it. They have not tested it, are simply coming up with a number and don't actually care about your relationship with her.

If you want to get your girlfriend back, you should not waste time following a random piece of advice that tells you to wait for long periods of time before contacting her.

Why? Every relationship is different.

If you wait too long to contact your girlfriend to apologize and arrange a meet up, she will either use that time to move on or she will feel as though you don't care about her and will try to hook up with new guys to feel good about herself.

As you will discover from the video above, it is sometimes a good idea to completely ignore your girlfriend if she has dumped you, but in most cases – you should get in contact with her quickly and arrange a meet up.

A lot of people suggest the No Contact Rule because it usually makes a woman want to call her ex boyfriend to see how he is doing (i.e. is he still missing her?). Yet, just because your girlfriend might call you to check how you are doing, it doesn't mean that you're going to get her back.

To get her back for real, you will need to understand her real reasons for breaking up with you (usually different to what she is saying), get her respect back and then begin reattracting her.

Sometimes, a younger woman or a woman who doesn't have much experience with relationships will accept a boyfriend back even if he doesn't make any changes, but she will simply dump him again when she realizes that nothing has changed.

Use the 1-3 Days to Learn, Fix and Improve

[image: Learn, fix and improve]

The purpose of temporarily accepting the break up is so that you can learn where you've been going wrong with her, fix those things about yourself (e.g. insecurities) and begin to improve the man that you are today.

This shows her that you are taking the break up seriously and putting in the effort to truly understand what she really needs from you.

For example: When a girlfriend breaks up with her boyfriend, she will often give him vague reasons such as, "I need time for myself" or "I don't think that it's working out anymore" or "I don't think I want to be in a relationship with anyone right now."

Yet, that doesn't explain what the real problem is or what her boyfriend needs to fix in order to get her back.

In many cases, one of the secret reasons why a girlfriend will dump her boyfriend is that he hasn't been enough of a man for her (e.g. he is too insecure, she feels emotionally stronger than him, etc).

Watch this video to understand some of the real reasons why a woman will dump her boyfriend...

Do any of the relationship mistakes in the video apply to you?

As you will discover from the video above, your girlfriend would have first lost respect for you in the relationship and after that, she would have found it difficult to feel enough attraction for you.

If the lack of respect and attraction continued on for long enough, she would have then begun to fall out of love with you.

Now that you are at a point where you are saying, “My girlfriend dumped me” it’s important to realize that to get her back, you will need to start by getting her respect back (i.e. apologize, show her that you’ve learnt from your mistakes and are changing) and she will then become open to feeling some attraction for you.

Getting her respect and attraction back has to be done on a phone call and in person, not via text.

Pretty much every guy that I help to get a woman back has been making the mistake of trying to get his ex back via text, but it doesn’t work.

The only way for her to really sense that you have changed is to hear how you speak to her over the phone and how you think, feel, talk and behave when you interact with her in person.

As you will discover from the video above, your girlfriend is only going to take you seriously if you can fix your issues and improve your ability to make her feel respect and attraction for you.

3. Get Her to Meet Up With You as Soon as Possible

The purpose of meeting up with your girlfriend is to get her to see that you really do understand her reasons for dumping you and have already begun to fix and improve those things about yourself.

It’s also about sincerely apologizing for your mistakes and asking her to forgive you, so both of you can let go of the bad memories and be free to feel more positive and hopeful about the future together or apart.

Of course, you probably don’t want to be apart from her, but you simply have to say that to ensure that she isn’t feeling suffocated or pressured into getting back with you.

As long as you are making her feel enough respect and attraction for you at the meet up, she will gradually lower her guard and begin to reconnect with her old, positive and loving feelings for you.

She may not be able to forgive you and give you another chance immediately, but from all the cases I’ve dealt with over the years, most guys have been able to get another chance with their woman on the first or second meet up.

If you don’t know what to say or do to get her respect back and properly reattract her at the meet up, all of that is explained in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

For now, let’s have a deeper look into why the relationship ended up with you getting dumped and what you can do about to fix that!

Was the Break Up Your Fault?

A relationship will rarely end in a dumping for no reason at all.

Chances are high that your girlfriend gave you plenty of warnings about the way she was feeling before finally making the decision to end it.

Can you remember some of the things she was complaining about? Are you already aware of the mistakes you were making?

For example: Here are some of the reasons why a girlfriend will dump her boyfriend!

1. Taking Her For Granted

[image: Taking her for granted in the relationship]

To keep a relationship together in today's world, you have to deepen your girlfriend's feelings of love, respect and attraction for you over time.

You can't just expect her to stick around with you for life because you're such a good guy, because the sex is great or because she was so in love with you at the start of the relationship.

A relationship that lasts a lifetime is about actually giving a crap about each for a lifetime. You actually have to care about her and want her in your life, otherwise she will eventually feel as though you're just taking her commitment to you for granted.

Unlike women in the past who would stay with a man for life even if they were unhappy because it was seen as shameful to get divorced, today's women can date, have sex with and enjoy relationships with as many guys as they want—and they don't even have to marry any of them.

If a modern woman wants to break up with a guy, the society around her won't look down on her. Instead, they will praise her for following her heart and not putting up with an unsatisfactory man.

The guy who has been dumped might feel betrayed by her (after all, she used to tell him how much she loved him and wanted to stay with him forever), but he will soon realize that a woman's love for a man is not unconditional.

To keep a woman in a relationship for life in today's world, you actually have to be able to deepen her feelings for you over time, rather than expecting her to stick around because things used to be good between you.

So, what can a guy do to fix a break up that was based on him taking his girlfriend for granted?

He needs to get her to reconnect with her old feelings of love for him. One of the best things about love is that it doesn't die.

The love that a woman feels for you is conditional (i.e. she will only allow herself to feel it if the conditions are right), but that doesn't mean that the love dies when the conditions aren't right.

What happens with love that has been taken for granted is that it gets pushed into the background and a woman doesn't allow herself to connect with it anymore. It's not dead, but simply in the background.

To make the love come back to the foreground and make her want to reconnect with it again, you have to start by making her feel respect for you as a man and then beginning to reattract her.

You can't ask her to remember the love, care about what you and her once had or give you a chance because you really need it.

None of that works.

You have to start by getting her respect back and then beginning to reattract her. Only then will she naturally and willingly begin to reconnect with her old feelings of love for you.

2. Being Clingy or Overly-Possessive

[image: Being clingy or overly-possessive]

Guys who become clingy and overly-possessive of their girlfriend, often make the mistake of ignoring all outside interests and being completely focused on her.

This is a mistake that young and old men make, especially when they don't really have a strong sense of purpose in life (i.e. big dreams and ambitions that they are working hard to achieve) outside of the relationship.

From the guy's perspective, he has gotten himself a girlfriend and loves the feeling of being with her, so he feels entitled to spend all of his time with her and essentially base his life and personal happiness on his relationship with her.

He will often feel as though the rest of life is too difficult or is unimportant compared to how good he feels around his girlfriend.

So, rather than having a balanced life where he continues to rise up to reach for his true potential as a man and maintain friendships, a clingy guy will want to spend most of his time and energy on his girlfriend.

He will call and text her every day and worry that she might meet a new guy if he isn't around. He will make sure that she knows that she is the most important thing to him in his life and that without her, his life wouldn't be worth living.

In his mind, he feels as though he is giving a woman what she wants (i.e. a man who truly loves her), but to her, he is simply being too clingy and possessive of her and needs to relax.

Here's the thing...

Women feel the most amount of attraction for confident men who have a strong sense of purpose in life, so the less you have going on in your life outside of your relationship, the less attractive you become as a man.

So, what should a guy do if he has been dumped for being too clingy and possessive?

He needs to start making progress towards his biggest dreams and ambitions in life, while also continuing to show some interest in his girlfriend.

He has to show her that he does love her and want her in his life, but he doesn't need her.

If you don't know exactly what to say or do to show your girlfriend that you want her in your life, but don't need her, all of my best, tested examples are provided in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

3. Being Emotional Weak

[image: Being emotionally weak]

This is one of the most common reasons why a woman will lose respect for her boyfriend, stop feeling attracted to him and then begin to fall out of love with him.

For example: A guy will become too insecure to the point where he is emotionally sensitive, whines and complains or even cries to her.

Some guys will expect their girlfriend to want to comfort them and guide them to a more emotionally strong place, but that's not the role that a woman wants to take on for her boyfriend.

Women want to feel as though they are with a ready-made man, rather than feeling as though they are stuck with a guy who still doesn't yet know how to be the emotionally strong man they need.

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence, high self-esteem, determination to succeed) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecurity, low self-esteem, fear of failure, etc).

So, if you have made the classic mistake of becoming emotionally weak in the relationship with your girlfriend, you have to put in the effort to fix your insecurities and become a stronger man.

Your girlfriend isn't going to want to teach you that, so don't bother asking her for help or advice.

A woman doesn't want to have to take on the role of her boyfriend's teacher on how to be a man because it ruins the sexual dynamic and makes her feel like more of a mother figure, big sister or teacher.

When the relationship dynamic is out of balance, the sexual dynamic is also out of balance and that lack of sexual attraction will inevitably lead to the end of the relationship.

Was the Break Up Her Fault?

When a guy contacts me for help saying, “My girlfriend dumped me,” he will sometimes feel as though he's done nothing wrong, especially when his girlfriend says things like:

- You're a really great guy, but I just don't want to be in a relationship right now.
- You mean the world to me, but I think we should spend time apart.
- You've been so good to me and haven't done anything wrong. I think you deserve better than me.
- I really care about you, but I just don't love you the same way anymore.

And so on.

Yet, here's the thing...

Regardless of whether you were a good or bad boyfriend or whether or not your girlfriend has been crystal clear about her reasons for dumping you, the same process of getting her back applies.

You have to make the changes in yourself that will cause her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

You then need to meet up with her, bring down her guard, get her to forgive you and then begin to respark her feelings of attraction and love for you.

Are you ready to do that now, or do you need some help? If you're ready to do it, then go ahead and call her and arrange the meet up.

On the other hand, if you need help and guidance to fix your issues (e.g. insecurity) and know exactly what you're going to say and do to get her back, then I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Get Your Ex Wife Back After a Divorce: 3 Things You Need to Do

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It's a sad fact that around half of all marriages end in divorce these days, but thanks to the internet and sites like mine it is now possible to get your ex wife back.

Here's what you need to do:

1. Understand where you really went wrong with her

[image: Where did you go wrong in the marriage?]

No doubt you are aware of some of the mistakes that you made throughout the marriage, which eventually lead to her asking for a separation or divorce.

For example: Some men make the mistake of becoming insecure, clingy, controlling or taking their wife's love, respect and attraction for granted, while other men slowly destroy a relationship by letting it go stale and not putting in enough effort to keep the spark alive.

Watch this video to understand the 3 step process that your ex wife probably went through before she wanted out of the marriage...

As you will discover from the video above, your wife can only feel proper attraction for you if she first respects you as a man.

This is only going to happen if you truly understand where you went wrong with her and have already made significant changes in those areas.

If that feels like too much work or effort for you, then you should move on without her by finding yourself a new woman.

However, if you are prepared to do what it takes to get your ex wife back after the divorce, then you are a man who is wise enough to adapt the modern relationship environment.

What do I mean by that?

In the past, a woman would stay with her husband for life even if she was unhappy, because it was shameful to get divorced. Back then, a man could treat his wife like crap and she'd still stick around.

However, in today's world, most women will up and leave if they are unhappy in a marriage or relationship because she can usually get support from the government, will be making enough money to support herself or will find a new man who is willing to take on a single mother or a childless woman who has just gone through a divorce.

To successfully keep a marriage together for life in today's world, a man needs to be willing and able to adapt to the relationship by improving himself and fixing any issues or problems that arise over time.

To keep a wife happy, a man also needs to know what his wife really needs from him as her man, which is usually different to what she will actually admit.

For example: A woman will often go around saying that she just wants a nice man who loves her and can take care of her, but that isn't the complete story.

She will also want a man that she can look up to and respect, a man who doesn't crumble under the pressure of her tantrums or tests of his confidence, a man that makes her feel girly and feminine in comparison to his masculinity and a man that remains emotionally strong no matter what challenges come his way in life.

A man might be a good husband to his wife, but that isn't going to count for much if he destroys her respect and attraction for him overtime by becoming insecure or emotionally weak and expecting her to continually comfort him.

For example: Some husbands take their wife's respect and attraction for granted and end up becoming insecure, emotionally weak and even crying to her during challenging times in life and expecting her to comfort him like a mother would for a child.

In the past, a woman would put up a man's weakness and even if she lost respect for him as a result of him being insecure or emotionally weak, she would have to stick by him for life because it was shameful to get divorced.

However, today's women grow up in a society that says that a woman can do whatever she wants and if she isn't happy in a marriage or relationship, she is free to move on and find herself a better man.

You can be that better man and get your ex wife back after a divorce, but you have to be willing to fix your emotional issues and become the sort of man that she can look up to and respect.

2. Improve your ability to make her feel respect and attraction for you as a man

No doubt you were able to make your ex wife feel attracted to you in the past, because you got her to marry you after all.

However, a lot of men lose touch with their ability to attract their wife or women in general when they get too comfortable in a marriage.

Essentially, they stop caring about triggering her feelings of attraction or they start doing things that turn her off (e.g. being insecure, controlling, selfish, angry, etc).

What a lot of modern men don't understand is that, in order to keep a relationship or marriage together for life in today's world, you have to be able to deepen a woman's feelings of respect and attraction for you over time.

If you don't know how to do that or you don't care to make her feel that way, she will become restless and either start cheating, ask for a separation or go for a full divorce.

It sucks, but that's the way that modern relationships work. If a woman isn't feeling the way she wants to feel, there's nothing really stopping her from moving on.

These days, many husbands are shocked when they hear the words, "I want a separation" or "I want a divorce" because in their mind, the vows that they made on the wedding day were supposed to glue them together for life.

Yet, it just doesn't work that way anymore.

For example: If a man gets into a relationship with a woman and he is initially very confident in himself, very loving and supportive of her, things will go well during those times.

However, if then becomes insecure, emotionally weak and begins to make her feel as though she needs to support him, she will lose respect and attraction for him and the relationship will begin to experience problems.

Some men feel as though this isn't fair and wonder why a woman can't just put up with that and be loving and supportive of a man. Yet, that isn't how the world works.

It's not a woman's role to teach a guy how to be the emotionally strong man she needs.

If a man is unable to be a confident, emotionally strong and forward-moving man that she can look up to, respect and rely on, then she will begin to nag, throw tantrums, create arguments and complain in the hope that he gets the message and begins to put in the effort to improve and grow as a man.

If he doesn't pay attention to the signals she is giving him, she won't give up on being a woman and become the man or the teacher in the relationship.

Instead, she will become increasingly frustrated that she is stuck in a relationship with a guy who doesn't yet know how to be the real man that she needs.

If that continues on for long enough, the marriage will eventually begin to fall apart and if she isn't embarrassed about getting divorced, she will begin the process, leave her husband and try to find herself a new man.

How about you?

Do you need a bit of a refresher on how you can make your ex-wife feel attracted to you? If so, watch this video...

As you will discover from the video above, it is possible for a wife to love her husband, feel attracted to him and respect him for life.

You've got to get it right though, because a woman is not going to remain in love with a man who doesn't maintain and build on her respect and attraction for him.

Without respect, a woman cannot feel fully attracted to a man and if that goes on for long enough in a marriage, a wife will begin to fall out of love with her husband.

The great about love though is that it doesn't ever die. The love that your ex-wife once had for you still exists, but it is simply being pushed into the background because she no longer feels enough respect and attraction for you as a man.

When you are able to make your ex-wife feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love that has always been there in the background.

Watch this video for more info on how that works...

As you will discover from the video above, human feelings really can change.

It is possible for your ex-wife to go from hating you and having no respect for you, to her feeling a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you. .

3. Get her to meet up with you to have a friendly chat and let her experience the new and improved you

A big part of how to get your ex back is to meet up with her in person to have a friendly chat, so you can then let her experience the new and improved you.

When a man asks me for help to get his ex wife back after a divorce, it usually means that she has already moved on and has a new man, so I will assume that it might be the case for you too.

If she does have a new man or is actively trying to find a new man so she can move on, you need to pitch the meet up as just being a friendly chat between you and her to catch up and say hi, rather than it being about getting back together.

When she does meet up with you, it's important that you apologize for your mistakes and show her the new and better man that you have become since.

Rebuilding Your Confidence

[image: Rebuilding your confidence]

A marriage breakdown can understandably knock a man's confidence to the ground.

If his ex-wife then moves on to another relationship and he is unable to find solace in a new woman, his confidence can hit rock bottom and he may begin to question whether he is destined to live alone and whether he'll ever get over the pain of his wife leaving him.

Feeling at an all-time low can keep him trapped in a vicious cycle of negative, depressing thoughts, which then makes it difficult to change the way his ex-wife sees him and feels about him.

Why?

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, high self-esteem) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecure, anxiety, low self-esteem, self-doubt, etc).

So, if a man interacts with his ex-wife and she can sense that he is in an emotionally weak and vulnerable place, it's not going to draw her to him at all. She will feel turned off at her core and will want to move on even more.

Whatever the cause of your marriage breakdown, turning things around and getting your ex-wife back comes down to showing her that you really have changed and you now have the qualities she wants in a man and a husband.

I've heard back from men who have rekindle a broken marriage during separations, after a divorce and after years of being apart from their ex-wife.

It is possible because love doesn't die; it simply gets pushed into the background when there isn't enough respect and attraction to support it.

If you want to begin the exciting process of getting your ex-wife back, I recommend that you watch my revolutionary program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Are You Ready to Get Your Ex Wife Back?

Getting your ex-wife back means recognizing the mistakes that you made in your marriage and then learning from those mistakes to become an even better man than you are right now.

It's only by sincerely improving who you are as a man that you can then change the way your ex-wife feels about you. If you are prepared to do what it takes, then you have a very high chance of getting her back.

I know this because I've personally helped a lot of men via my phone coaching service and I've also heard back from many men who've used my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System to get an ex-wife back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Do When Your Girlfriend Breaks Up With You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're looking for options on what to do when your girlfriend breaks up with you, here they are:

1. Get her back and then make the relationship better than it was before.
2. Make her so jealous that she tries to get you back.
3. Move on without her by having sex with new women or finding yourself a new girlfriend.

So, what do you want to do?

Do you want to get her back or move on?

Do You Want to Get Her Back?

[image: Do you want her back?]

If you want to get your girlfriend back after a break up, make sure that you avoid the following common mistakesâ

If your girlfriend has decided to break up with you and you want her to change her mind and take you back, the first thing you need to do is figure out why she chose to break up with you.

Watch this video for some examples of why a woman will break up with her boyfriendâ

Until you know what really made her feelings for you change, you won't be able to fix what she really wants you to fix, improve or change about yourself.

Whatever you do, make sure that you don't promise to her that you can change or that things will be different if you have not figured out what it is that needs to change.

Younger women, women who don't have much experience with relationships or unattractive women will often accept a guy back if he promises to change, but they won't keep accepting him back and over and over again for life.

Every woman reaches a point in her life or relationship experience where she realizes that she needs a ready-made man, rather than guy who is still working out how to be the man in a relationship.

A classic mistake a lot of guys make is begging and pleading to be given a second chance along with promises such as, âI can change,â or requests like, âPlease! Just tell me what it is you want me to do and Iâll do it. I'll do whatever you want to make you happy. Please give me a chance!â

This is a mistake on two different levels.

1. Most women don't believe a guy when he says that he can change

Firstly, promising that you can change (when you don't even know what she really wants you to change) is seen as an empty promise because she has no way of knowing if you are capable of improving, adapting, fixing or changing things about yourself to be the man she really wants.

You're just saying that you can change, but if she's been in relationships before, she will know that most guys say that and then don't even know how to change or what she really wants them to change.

For example: A lot of women will break up with a guy when she realizes that he's not enough of a man for her. Yet, what does that mean? How do you be “enough of a man” for a woman?

Essentially, you need to:

- Make her feel feminine in comparison to your masculinity (i.e. how you think, feel, behave, take action in life), rather than making her feel neutral like a friend or making her feel more dominant and masculine than you are.
- Rise up and reach for your true potential as a man, rather than hiding from life behind her and the relationship.
- Love and appreciate her for who she really is deep down, rather than always trying to change her or get her to be more like you.
- Make her feel proud to be your girlfriend when you are around other people together, rather than making her feel embarrassed by the way you behave or by the way you let other people treat you.

The list goes on and on and it’s something that a guy either knows or he doesn’t. If you don’t know what it takes to be seen as a real man when in a relationship with a woman, all of that is explained in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

2. Begging and pleading are not attractive traits in a man.

Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence, high-self esteem) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecurity, neediness, clinginess, desperation, etc).

Sometimes, a guy hopes that by begging and pleading, it will show his girlfriend how much he cares and how much she means to him.

Yet, when a woman is breaking up with a guy, she’s usually at a point where she doesn’t care how much she means to him. It’s not about his feelings anymore; it’s about how she feels and she’s no longer feeling enough respect, attraction and love for him to be in a relationship.

If a guy wants his girlfriend to care about how he feels, he needs to stop focussing on what he wants (i.e. to get her back, get another chance) and focus on what she wants (i.e. to see him change and become the sort of guy that she would be willing to forgive and then feel respect, attraction and love for again).

It’s actually pretty easy and quick to get done.

Break ups are very common and according to certain studies, it has been found that approximately 50% of couples break up and get back together again.

That percentage is growing higher and higher every day thanks to the internet and people like me who are dedicated to helping guys to get a woman back.

Over the past 4 years, I’ve helped more than 1,000 guys to successfully get a girlfriend, fiancÃ© or wife back (via my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System or my phone coaching service), even when the woman starts out saying that she hates him and never wants anything to do with him again.

How is it possible to turn situations like that around? Watch this video to find out...

From this moment onward, start being the type of guy that she would want to forgive and take back.

Promising to change or pleading for another chance is not being the sort of guy that she will be excited to take back.

In most cases, a woman will need to hear her boyfriend apologize for his mistakes, explain how he understands why she really broke up with him and ask for her to forgive him.

When she does forgive him, she will then naturally open herself back up to feeling respect and attraction for him again and when she does that, she will automatically begin to reconnect with her loving feelings for him.

If you're not sure what to say or do to get your girlfriend to forgive you and give you another chance, all of my proven to work examples are provided in, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Do You Want to Move On Without Her?

Sometimes a relationship will end and both the man and woman will feel like it's best to just move on and find someone new.

If that's how you're feeling about your girlfriend right now, what you need to do is get yourself ready to attract other women.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to attract other women and even attract your girlfriend when you interact with her again!|

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of direct control over how much or little attraction women feel for you.

For example: If you interact with a woman and come across as nervous, insecure and unsure of yourself, she will naturally feel turned off by you.

However, if you interact with a woman and come across as relaxed, confident and sure of yourself, she will naturally feel attracted to you.

So, now that you know more about how a woman's attraction for a man works, what do you want to do about your girlfriend?

If you want to move on without your girlfriend now that she has broken up with you, it's important that you start trying to learn from the experience so you can become a better man for your next relationship.

These days, a lot of guys get dumped by many women throughout their life because they never really learn how to be the kind of man that women really want.

This is something that is happening to modern men, but it wasn't so hard for men in the past.

For example: In the past, women were completely dependant on men for money, shelter, food and protection. Women couldn't work and earn their own money and it was also highly shameful to get divorced.

So, even if a woman was unhappy when she got married (most people didn't date and lost their virginity when they got married), she had to stick with her man for life.

Of course, that's not the way today's world works.

Women are now free to get in and out of relationships as often as they like, until they find a man who makes them feel the way that they really want to feel when in a relationship.

Right now, the most important thing for you to do is to ensure that you are capable of being the kind of man that women feel intensely attracted to and want to stick with for life.

If you're not that guy, you will experience break up after break up. I know this because I've been helping guys to get women back for years and even if a woman marries a guy, it doesn't mean that she will stick with him for life.

The couples that you see who are still happy, madly in love and excited to be together are those who have been able to deepen the love, respect and attraction over time in the relationship.

That's what you need to do these days to be able to keep a relationship together. You can't just take a woman for granted anymore, like men in the past could.

Men in the past could treat a woman badly for life and she'd still have to stick around and put up with it.

Not anymore.

In today's world, you've actually got to be the sort of man that a woman wants to stay with and if you're not, she simply won't stick around.

Should You Avoid All Contact With Your Girlfriend From Now On?

One of the most common pieces of advice that you will hear if you're attempting to get your girlfriend back or to move on is to avoid all contact with her.

Yet, you have to be careful with that piece of advice because it only applies to some situations.

If you want to move on, then it makes sense not to contact her at all. Just meet some new women and get to a place where you are happy without her and then it's fine to contact her if you want to at that point.

However, if you want to get her back, you should get in contact with her and arrange a time to meet up in person so you can apologize to her, explain how you now understand why she broke up with you and ask her to forgive you.

It's fine to wait a couple of days before reaching out to her to ask for the meet up, but if you leave it too long, most women will simply use that time to move on without you.

Additionally, if she feels as though you're not contacting her because you're playing games with her and trying to make her contact you, she will usually go out and party with some girlfriends, get drunk and hook up with a guy.

Either that, or she will flirt with other guys at work or university and start dating and having sex.

I know this because I deal with new ex back cases every day and in most cases, the guy has gone way too far with the No Contact Rule.

Watch this video to understand why the No Contact Rule is usually a bad idea!

As you will discover from the video above, not contacting your girlfriend may work in some cases, but a lot of women will simply use that space and time to begin moving on without you.

Should You Rekindle the Love With Her or Find Love With a New Woman?

One of the great things about love is that it is everywhere.

There is no shortage of love to be experienced with women. There are literally millions of women who would be perfect for you.

However, only you can decide if you want to experience love with a new women or rekindle the love with your girlfriend.

If you feel as though the love that you've been experiencing with your girlfriend is what you want for life, then you should go through the process of getting her back, which I explain in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

On the other hand, if you feel as though the love and relationship wasn't good enough and you know you deserve better, then you should start guiding women through the simple pick up process that I call, The Flow

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex-Girlfriend Hates Me: How Do I Get Her Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best thing about hate is that it can't last forever.

If a person gets stuck in the emotion of hate, they will turn into a psycho and do pretty bad things. Yet, when it comes to break ups between boyfriends and girlfriends, a woman doesn't hold on to hate for very long at all.

In fact, you can make her stop hating you by getting her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Watch this video to understand how...

Of course, if your ex girlfriend hates you, she's probably blocked you from social media, isn't answering your calls and no longer responds to your messages, right?

Well, that doesn't mean you can't change how she feels.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I provide examples of what to text an ex to get her on a phone call (even if she hates you), what to say on the phone to get her to agree to meet up with you (or at least re-friend you on social media for now) and then what to say and do at the meet up to get her to forgive you and open herself back up to at least liking you again.

When she does that at the meet up, she will naturally open herself up to feel attracted to you and it is at that point where you use my powerful attraction techniques to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

5 Reasons Why She Might Hate You Today

[image: My ex girlfriend hates me but I still love her]

There are many reasons why a guy might find himself saying, "My ex girlfriend hates me" and wondering how he can turn the situation around and get her back.

The fact that there are MANY reasons why a woman might hate her ex boyfriend means that you are not alone.

It's not only YOU who has made a mistake (or a few mistakes) that have now caused your ex-girlfriend to hate.

I tell you that because I want you to understand that it is okay that you've made some mistakes with her. In fact, it's actually very normal for a couple to have some arguments and for one or both of them to temporarily hate each other.

When the issue is fixed and arguments are resolved, they can then go back to having positive feelings for each other.

Of course, in your case, your girlfriend hates you and is now your ex girlfriend, so she probably isn't interested in resolving any arguments or problems between you right now.

So, how can you get her to become interested in fixing the issues in your relationship and opening herself up to having positive feelings for you again?

Here are some of the reasons why a girlfriend will hate her ex-boyfriend and what you can do to begin turning things aroundâ|

1. You promised her that you would change, but never did or couldn't work out how

If you made some mistakes in the relationship, it's important for you to realize that it is NORMAL. However, if you made mistakes and never truly fixed them or improved, then it's also normal that a woman would want to break up with you or get some space for a while.

In a relationship, a couple will always grow and learn together over time. You're not expected to know everything all at once in a relationship and never have to learn or improve anything else as the relationship continues.

Everyone makes mistakes in their communication style and behavior when in a relationship.

What makes a man worth sticking by for a woman is when she can see that he is capable of learning and growing from his mistakes.

So, if you are in a situation now where you're saying, "My ex-girlfriend hates me. How do I get her back?" it's possible that you were making mistakes in the relationship (e.g. being insecure, clingy, controlling, emotionally sensitive, taking her for granted, etc) and when she threatened to break up with her in the past, you promised her that you would change.

Yet, you either didn't change because you thought she'd just keep putting up with it, or you didn't change because you couldn't work out how to.

Part of getting your ex girlfriend to stop hating you, is to make some real progress with fixing the problems and issues that you were bringing into the relationship.

When she can see that you've made some significant improvements already, she will naturally begin to lower her guard around you and open herself up to having some feelings for you again.

Of course, if your ex girlfriend, you're probably wondering, "How am I going to show her that I've changed if she won't answer my calls or see me in person?" and the answer to that is: You need to show her via your posts on social media, by getting her on a phone call (to apologize for your mistakes and let her experience the new and improved you) and then getting her to meet up with you in person.

If you don't know what to text your ex-girlfriend to get her on a phone call, what to say on the phone to get her to agree to meet up with you, all of the tested, proven to work examples are provided in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

2. You have been bombarding her with messages, calls or emails

[image: Bombarding ex with texts]

When a guy gets broken up with by a woman that he truly loves, he will often find it difficult to stop himself from constantly texting, calling or messaging her.

In the past, we didn't have a smartphone with us everywhere we went, so when a guy was apart from a woman, all he could really do was send her a written letter via post or ride his horse to go and visit her at her parent's place, or something old fashioned like that.

However, in today's world, we have immediate access to contact people and when it comes to break ups, it just feels so easy and natural for guys to constantly contact a woman who has broken up with them.

Yet, here's the thing...

Repeatedly contacting an ex usually just makes things even worse, because the guy is in an emotionally insecure place, which turns the woman off even further.

Why? Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence, high-self esteem) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecurity, low self-esteem).

When a man is constantly contacting his ex-girlfriend, she is constantly being turned off by any insecurity and emotional weakness that is coming through via his texts, e-mails or the way he is talking to her over the phone.

So, what should you do instead?

You need to get yourself to an emotionally strong place (this is attractive to women, even when they hate you).

Being emotionally strong during a break up means that you are confident, you feel happy and emotionally secure with or without her, before you get on a phone call to arrange a meet up.

How long will that take?

Usually 24-48 hours.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I provide 10 hours of video training that rebuilds your emotional strength and gets you ready to reattract your ex on the phone and in person.

Most guys are ready to call their ex girlfriend by the time they've finished the training, while some guys need to wait 2-3 days.

So, if you are still feeling insecure after the break up with your girlfriend, now is not the time to be calling her, texting her, messaging her or e-mailing her to ask for another chance.

You need to put in a little bit of time to quickly fix your emotional insecurities and become emotionally strong (i.e. attractive) before you contact her again.

Then, when you do contact her, you will naturally come across in a more confident, emotionally secure way, which will make her feel respect and attraction for you.

Once she feels that way about you, she will be much more open to communicating with you, re-friending you on social media and meeting up with you in person.

3. You became very insecure at the end of the relationship

When some guys get broken up with by a woman, they accept it and go away to work on themselves for a couple of days or a week.

The guy then gets in contact with his ex, apologizes over the phone and arranges to meet up with her. He then gets her back at the meet up, or at least secures another opportunity to meet up with her again soon.

That's how an emotionally secure man does it. He's the sort of guy who will probably never stumble across this article online.

However, the majority of guys don't handle a break up that way because they're just not emotionally strong enough or lack the relationship experience to know how to deal with a situation like that.

So, if you became insecure at the end of your relationship with her (e.g. crying, begging, pleading, being emotionally sensitive, etc), then not only will your ex-girlfriend hate you at the moment, but she will probably be feeling a bit repulsed by you at this point as well, because emotional weakness is very unattractive to women.

What you need to do is thisâ€¦!

Tell her that you've realized that you were being silly and immature near the end of the break up (labeling it as "silly" and "immature" makes it easier to forgive you compared to saying that you were being crazy, needy, etc) and apologize to her for that.

From there, you need to transition the conversation to getting her to agree to meet up with you in person. If you don't know what to say to her to get her to agree to a meet up, all of my best tested examples are included in, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

4. You broke her trust

Without trust, a relationship simply cannot stay together for life.

For example: If a guy breaks a woman's trust by cheating on her, hiding an addiction (e.g. alcohol, pain killers, smoking, marijuana, etc) or not following through on many promises, it makes her lose hope in the future of the relationship.

For a relationship to stay together for life, it needs to be able to get better and better over time, rather than becoming more and more problematic as the months and years go on.

So, if a woman feels like she can't trust or rely on her man anymore, she will naturally begin to question how the relationship could get better and better over time.

If you have broken your ex-girlfriend's trust, you don't need to worry so much about it and think that you've done the worst thing in the world.

You haven't.

Yes, you made a mistake, but you know that now and can learn from it.

[image: My ex girlfriend hates me - how do I get her back?]

Remember: Everyone makes mistakes in relationships, but what marks a man out as a real man is when he can learn and grow from mistakes, rather than continuing to do the same thing over and over again.

Everyone grows and learns throughout life, including your ex-girlfriend. Yes, you broke her trust, but she wasn't 100% perfect at all times either, right?

Yes, you may have made a lot more mistakes in the relationship than her, but that doesn't mean you can learn and grow from that.

You need to tell her that it's normal for people to grow and learn as they go through life.

She needs to understand that you're not the worst guy in the world because you made a mistake or broke her trust.

People make mistakes in their communication, behavior and actions throughout life and they learn and grow from it.

If you have grown from the experience and are no longer the guy that was breaking her trust, then you need to let her know that you are sorry for doing it, but that you are also proud that you are one of the exceptional men who have the capacity to learn and grow from past mistakes.

She's not going to want you back as a result of simply saying that to her, but she will become more open to meeting up with you in person and when you meet up with her in person, that is when the real magic happens.

Meeting up with an ex-girlfriend in person (even if she hates you) is the ideal way of making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new and improved you.

You cannot do that via text, e-mail or any other message. You have to get her to forgive your past mistakes and experience the new and improved you in person.

At the meet up, you can get her laughing, smiling and feeling good around you, get her to forgive your past mistakes and open herself back up to having positive feelings for you again.

5. She's sick of giving you chances and no longer believes that you can change

Sometimes, when a guy finds himself in a situation where he is saying, "My ex girlfriend hates me, but I still love her. How do I get her back?" it's because she has gotten to the point where she is sick and tired of giving him chances.

She may have been sticking up for him for months or years by telling her friends, coworkers and family that she believed he would change, but it's now at the point where she simply can't keep making excuses for him anymore.

At that point, a woman will begin to hate her ex-boyfriend for making her look like an idiot, appear naïve or seem weak because she put up with him for so long.

So, if a guy finds himself in a situation like that with his ex-girlfriend, he needs to tell her that he's sorry for putting her in a position where she looked silly in front of other people for believing in him for so long.

He then needs to explain to her that he understands why she might not feel like she could ever believe him again, but he still wants to let her know anyway that he has changed because he's learnt from the experience and is no longer the immature guy she broke up with.

At that point, there are many things that he can say and do (via text, on social media, on a phone call and in person) to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him, which I explain in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

How to Get Her to Forgive You and Respark Her Feelings For You

Forgiveness is an essential part of the process of getting an ex back.

Why? Forgiveness is an emotional state that immediately begins to get rid of feelings of hate, bitterness, anger and resentment.

Right now, the emotional state between your ex-girlfriend hating you and beginning to like you again is forgiveness.

How can you get her to forgive you?

Make it of benefit to her.

Let her know that her forgiving you is about her feeling better about herself and being able to let go of negative feelings or "baggage" that might ruin her next relationship.

Tell her that it's the mature way to approach a break up, so both of you can move on and not hold grudges.

Of course, your aim is not to get her to move on!

You simply want her to forgive you, so she can then begin to feel more positive feelings when she thinks about you or interacts with you.

When a woman sincerely forgives a guy, what happens is that she naturally begins to let go of the hate, anger and resentment towards her ex.

Based on letting go of those negative emotions, she is then free to feel more positive emotions about her ex-boyfriend, rather than only thinking about him in a negative way.

When she goes through that emotional transformation, she becomes open to feeling respectful of the new and improved version of you and when she does that, she then becomes open to feeling attracted to you again.

That's how it has to work if your ex-girlfriend currently hates you.

You need to get her to forgive you, feel respect for the new and improved version of you and she will then begin to feel somewhat attracted to who you are now.

At that point, she will become open to meeting up with you to discuss the relationship and have a friendly chat on good terms.

If you want to learn how to go through that process with her from start to finish, I recommend that you want my revolutionary program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Say to Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you are a guy who wants to get a woman back, you will no doubt be hoping that there is something you can say to her to get her back.

Well, you're in luck!

In my recent post called, What to Say to Your Ex to Get Her Back, I provide 4 examples of what you can say to get your ex back.

However, as I explain in the post, while it is important to say the right things to her, the most important thing that you need to do is fix or improve the things about you that caused her to break up with you in the first place.

Since you're looking for examples of what to say to get your ex back, here is a video that I've recorded on the topic...

Saying the right things to your ex does begin the process of getting her back, but it's not all you need to do.

The most important part of getting an ex back is meeting up with her and getting her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction to the new and improved version of you.

If you are unsure what to say to get her to meet up with you or how to make her feel a lot of respect and attraction for you at the meet up, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

When Getting an Ex Back, Actions Speak Louder Than Words

[image: What to say and do to get your ex back]

Instead of only thinking in terms of what to say to get your ex back, you also need to begin thinking in terms of what to do to get your ex back.

There's a lot of truth in the old saying, actions speak louder than words and it when it comes to getting an ex back, your words will be much more meaningful to her if she can actually see that you've already improved and changed significantly since she broke up with you.

Many guys make the mistake of hounding an ex with phone or text messages in a desperate attempt to get back with her, but there's nothing a guy can say that will completely change how she's feeling about him 100%.

Whatever it was that caused her to fall out of love with him or to feel less attracted to him is still there and words alone can't change all of that, but actions can.

For example: A guy might resort to begging and pleading on the phone by saying, I can change just give me another chance and I'll prove to you that I can change.

Yet, what a woman wants to see is that her ex has already realized where he was going wrong and has already significantly changed and improved. She doesn't want to just hear that he will change; she wants to sense that he already has changed.

The prior actions that he took to already change prior to calling her will speak much louder than any of the words he is saying. She will feel as though she can trust him a bit more and begin to let down her guard.

However, when a guy refuses to fix or improve anything about himself (e.g. his insecurities) and resorts to pleading with her to be given another chance, it's not going to make her change her mind. In fact, it's likely to turn her off completely and any lingering attraction she felt for him will be further diminished.

If a guy begs and pleads by saying things like, "My life is not worth living without you," or, "No other woman could ever take your place," he's going to make the situation even worse. Why? Women feel the most respect, attraction and love for men who are emotionally strong and happy with or without her in his life.

A woman wants to see that you love her and want her in your life, but she doesn't want to get the sense that your life would fall apart if she weren't in it.

She doesn't want to live with that type of responsibility for your emotional state. She wants you to be your own man, with or without her.

Back Up What You're Saying With Actual Changes

Okay, so let's assume you're prepared to take action to improve yourself and fix the issues that caused the break up.

The first and most important action that you need to take now is to start being the sort of man that she can look up to and respect. When she sees those changes in you, it will seem possible to her that she could once again feel proud to be in a relationship with you.

You've got to show her that you have the capacity to change and improve, by actually changing and improving. You don't have to become Mr. Perfect, but you have to become an even better man than you are right now.

When the things that you're saying to your ex are backed up by what you've actually been doing in your life since the break up, it demonstrates to her that you are the kind of man who can change.

You're not all talk.

When she realizes that, she will be much more willing to give you another chance or at least meet up with you to see how she feels.

Getting Her to Open Back Up to Being With You

Not all relationships will get back together simply because a guy has changed.

Sometimes, a woman will feel as though the relationship has run its course and there's no point in trying anymore.

However, that's how she will think if her ex isn't saying or doing enough to respark her attraction and feelings for respect for him.

Here's the way that it works...

When you want to get a woman back, what you actually need to do is get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you on a phone call (not via text).

You can get her respect back by truly understanding where you messed up in the relationship, making some real changes and then apologizing for the mistakes that you've made.

After giving the apology, you can then ask her to forgive you for the mistakes that you've made, simply so both of you can feel better about the break up and what happened between you from then on.

You have to make sure that you tell her that her forgiving you is not about getting back together. It's just so she can get closure on what happened between you and for both of you to handle the break up in a more mature way.

Yet, that's not what is REALLY going on when you get her to forgive you.

By getting her to forgive you, it's actually a secret technique of persuasion that plays a trick on a woman's mind and makes her become more open to having positive, loving feelings for you again.

Essentially, when you get her to forgive you, what happens is that her perspective of you and the break up changes and as a result, her feelings towards you instantly begin to change.

Rather than thinking about you and feeling emotions like hate, disgust and disappointment, the act of forgiving you will naturally begin to dissolve the negative emotions and allow her to feel more positive emotions towards you.

She then realizes that things did go wrong between you and her, but you have already fixed and improved yourself so much since the break up, so there's no need to waste any more energy holding a grudge against you.

She will then begin to open herself back up to having some sort of feelings for you again, even if it begins with her feeling sorry for you because you were the guy who changed and improved too late to stop a break up from happening.

At that point, which can take anywhere from a couple of hours to a couple of days, she will then become more open to meeting up with you in person to have a chat and say a final goodbye to each other in person.

Again, this is a secret technique that you will be using on her.

Saying that the meet up is the "last time" you and her will meet up doesn't actually mean that it will really be the last time. You are just saying what you need to say to get her to feel willing to meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, you can then make her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you based on how much you have already changed and improved.

Since her guard will already be down after forgiving you over the phone, she will allow herself to feel respect and attraction for you in person.

When she does that, her old feelings for you will begin to come back and she will naturally become more open to the idea of giving the relationship another chance.

So, if you want to know exactly what to say and do each step of the way, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

In the 10 hours of video training, I explain exactly what you need to say and do to get her back and then keep her in a relationship once you're back together.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Wife Left Me For Another Man

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Itâ€™s more than likely that when you proposed to your wife, you hoped that you’d never find yourself in the unfortunate position of saying, “My wife left me for another man.”

Right now you probably feel like your world has come crashing down around you. Naturally, all the plans and dreams for your future with your wife are going to change (even if she comes back to you).

While it is normal to feel down and depressed, remaining stuck with those emotions isn’t going to change what has already happened. Ultimately, you are at a crossroads in your life and in your relationship with your wife, and you have some decisions to make.

The question you have to ask yourself is: “Now that my wife left me for another man, what do I want to do about it? Do I want to get her back, or do I want to move on and find another, even better, more trustworthy and attractive woman than her?”

If you want to get her back, we recommend that you begin by watching this important video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) about where many men slip up when trying to get a woman back...

As you will discover from the video above, it is possible to get your wife back if you want to. If she is happy with the new man, it might take 2-3 meet ups to fully get her back, but it is possible.

So, what do you want to do at this point?

Deciding What You Really Want

Even though it may not feel like it right now, you are the one with all the power.

Basically, itâ€™s up to you whether you want to forgive your wife, get her back and make a success of your marriage with her, or you can decide to cut your loses with her and make a fresh start with a woman who deserves to be with a great guy like you.

If you don’t feel confident about the idea of attracting a new woman, or even attracting your wife back, watch this video to understand how a woman’s attraction for a man really works...

As you will discover from the video above, you can actively make new women or your wife feel attracted to you based on what you say and do when you interact with them.

For example: If a man interacts with a woman and he comes across as nervous, self-doubting and is putting on an act of being an even nicer guy than he really is, women will feel turned off by him.

However, if a man interacts with a woman and comes across as confident, self-assured and authentic, most women will instantly feel a natural attraction to his personality, behavior and inner qualities as a man.

So, before you can do anything, you have to really know what you want and then do what is required to make that happen.

Why Did Your Wife Leave You For Another Man?

As much as it hurts to admit it right now, your wife left you for another man for a reason.

Ask yourself...

Was it her fault?

If your wife started having an affair while still married to you, it could mean that she is a woman of bad character, and someone who isn't too serious about her wedding vows.

For example, some women will get married to a guy and enjoy the benefits of being taken care of by him, or enjoy his money or status, but at the back of her mind she is not averse to the idea of getting divorced if she happens to meet another guy who can give her more than her husband can.

If you suspect that this is the case with your wife, yet you still want to get her back, you need to ask yourself why you're prepared to settle for a woman of bad character. Ask yourself:

- Do I believe that my wife is the best I can do when it comes to women?
- Do I fear going out and meeting new women?
- Do I lack confidence and belief in myself?
- Do I feel that I got lucky in scoring with my wife and do I doubt that I can do it again?
- Do I believe that beautiful women would never be interested in a guy like me?

If you've answered yes to any of the above questions, it is quite clear that your confidence and self-esteem have taken a dent. Maybe it's a result of being dumped by your wife for another man; however, maybe this is something that has been a problem for you throughout your life.

Whatever the case for you, settling for a woman of bad character isn't going to make you feel better about yourself. In fact, if you somehow convince your wife to come back to you without changing how you feel about yourself deep inside, you're only setting yourself up to be cheated on again.

Rather than get back with a woman who isn't loyal or trustworthy, you first need to build your confidence and self-esteem, while also building on your understanding of women and relationships, along with your understanding of who you are as a man.

Women are instinctively attracted to confident, masculine men, so the key to attracting quality women into your life is to develop the qualities that will make the type of women you really want to be with, see you as a real man.

If you don't build yourself up first and instead try to get back out there in a low emotional state, you will find it difficult to attract quality women. When this happens you may decide to settle for getting your wife back even though you know she is not trustworthy and clearly doesn't deserve a good guy like you, or you will end up dating and maybe even marrying another woman of bad character, and you will find yourself saying, "My wife left me for another man," for a second time.

Was it your fault?

On the other hand, if your wife is the type of woman who really believes in marriage and has been loyal to you all the way, then her decision to leave you for another man may come down to your lack of ability to deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction for you over time.

Contrary to what many guys believe, a wife doesn't wake up one morning and decide she wants to leave her husband for another man. In fact, she probably went through a long and difficult process, while also trying to get through to him to let him know how unhappy she was feeling, before she came to that decision.

So, if you're going to make your wife change her mind and make her want to re-commit to you and your marriage, you need to make her reconnect with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you; not just in the short-term, but for the rest of your lives together.

3 Vital Steps to Getting Your Wife Back

Even if right now your wife is saying, "It's over between us. I don't love you anymore, I love someone else now," you don't have to sit around on the sidelines and hope she'll miraculously change her mind and come back to you.

When you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her feelings of love and open back up to the possibility of being married to you.

However, to make your wife change how she feels right now, you have to do 3 things:

1. Fully understand what she really wants you to change about yourself.

Every relationship is different; however, there are certain behaviors that most often result in a guy being broken up with or being divorced. To get your wife to see you as a better option to the other man, you have to fully understand what caused her to break up with you.

For example:

- Did you take her for granted?
- Did you let her wear the pants in the relationship?
- Did you fail to move up the levels of life like a real man?
- Were you needy, clingy or jealous?

When you know the real reasons why your wife left you for another man, you can make the correct changes to your thinking and behavior that will make her feel understood and happy to be interacting with you again.

On the other hand, if you don't fully understand what caused her to see the other man as a better option to you, you will most likely be offering to change things about yourself that don't really matter to her.

For example, you might be telling her, "I promise I'll do whatever it takes to get us that new house you really want," but in reality, what she really wants is for you to stop working such long hours and spend more quality time with her. Alternatively, maybe she wants a baby and you've been putting it off because the timing hasn't been right.

Whatever the case, you need to be sure you're giving her what she really wants, not what you think she wants.

If you don't fully understand what she wants, she will perceive the other guy as being a better choice to you even if he's not really her ideal man because for the time being, he fills in the gaps she feels are not being filled by you.

2. Avoid making common mistakes.

It's natural for a guy who wants to get his wife back to do whatever he thinks she wants to get her back. Unfortunately, most of the relationship advice that guys get is from what they've picked up from watching TV or what they've heard from random people they know.

To get your wife to leave the other guy and come back to you, you need to avoid making these mistakes that guys make.

- Don't try to put the other guy down: Trying to convince a woman that the other guy isn't rich/smart/nice/good looking or will love her like he does, only makes a guy look desperate, childish and immature; qualities that are unattractive to women and she will be even more turned off by him.
- Don't make up lies about what you've been doing to hopefully make her jealous: Unless an ex-husband has really going out, dating and having sex with other women, lying about it to make his wife jealous will backfire. When she finds he has been lying to her and is only trying to make her jealous, she will think he's pathetic and she'll be even more convinced that the new guy is a better option to him.
- Don't beg, plead and promise her that you will change: Women are attracted to the strength in men and repelled by weakness. Begging and pleading only makes a guy look weak in her eyes and she will be turned off by him at a deep level. Also, promising to change simply highlights to her that he is still the same guy she left and she won't be interested in coming back in the hopes that he will change if she does.

3. Fix your issues and improve yourself.

By fixing any emotional issues you have that were turning her off (like being clingy, jealous, insecure, mentally and emotionally weak, etc.) and improving and changing yourself, when you interact with her she will be able to pick it up.

She will sense it by looking at the changes in your behavior and she will naturally feel renewed respect and attraction for you as a man. From there you can build on those feelings and make her fall in love with you all over again.

You don't have to fully fix everything and become perfect to get your wife back, but you do need to start working on any emotional issues properly.

It's Not Too Late

Even though, right now, this is probably one of the lowest points in your life, you can look at it as an opportunity to improve both your life and yourself as a man.

You can sit around feeling hurt and betrayed and saying, "My wife left me for another man," or, you can make changes to yourself that will not only make your wife want to come back to you, but will also improve your life as a whole.

When you feel good about yourself, not only will your wife see this and be attracted to you, you will be attractive to other women as well. Then, the choice will be yours; you can take your wife back or you can move on.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Texting Your Ex Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

There are several reasons why you would be texting your ex girlfriend, but the most likely reason is usually because you still have feelings for her and you want to get back together with her.

Other reasons may include:

- You want to find out if she's missing you and if she's miserable without you.
- You want to find out if she's met someone else and if she's dating and having sex with other guys since you broke up.
- You want to ask for something of yours that she still has, or you want to remind her to fetch something of hers from your place.
- You're feeling lonely and unhappy and you're missing being in a relationship (not necessarily with her).

However, the main reason will usually be because you want her back, and you're not sure how to go about contacting her to see if she'll be willing to give you another chance.

Getting Your Ex Girlfriend Back is Easier Than You Think

Although right now it might seem impossible to get your ex girlfriend back, especially if your break up was really ugly and she's saying things like, "Leave me alone," "I don't want to see you again," or even, "I hate you and I never want to see you again," it's actually not as difficult as you might think.

Think about it this way!

Has there ever been a time in the past where you hated a person and felt that you would never want to be friends with them? Yet, when they changed their behavior and communication style towards you, you discovered that your feelings towards them also changed and you ended up becoming friends.

This is actually quite natural and it happens to a lot of people at some point in their life.

In the same way, when you change the way you've been communicating with your ex, and you begin saying and doing things that make her feel respect and attraction for you again, she will naturally start feeling differently too.

At the moment, your ex girlfriend may not feel like she wants to be with you, but her emotions definitely can change.

However, how quickly that is going to happen depends on how quickly you can make her feel renewed respect and attraction for you as a man, and that all depends on how you go about approaching her and making her feel open to the idea of being with you again.

What Texting Your Ex Girlfriend Can and Cannot Do

[image: Can you get your ex girlfriend back via text?]

If you're considering texting your ex girlfriend, don't do anything until you're clear on what texting can and cannot do for you.

Here are some questions you might be asking:

Can I text my ex girlfriend to get her back?

The simple answer is â€œNo.â€œ

Why?

One of the main reasons is because she can't see you or hear your voice, so, she has to guess at the reason why you're really texting her and the emotional state you're really in.

For example: Supposing one of the reasons that caused a man and a woman to break up was because he was being clingy and needy in the relationship, if then he sends her a text message, how do you think she will react?

She's naturally going to assume that he's just being clingy and needy all over again.

Even if all he's saying in his message is, â€œHi. I just wanted to see how you're doing.â€œ because she can't see his behavior and body language, and because she can't hear the tonality of his voice, in most cases, she's likely going to be thinking, â€œOh! Here we go again. My ex is just being his clingy, needy self. Why can't he just leave me alone?â€œ

The fact is, a text message cannot bring across to her that he has changed, and that she will actually be doing herself a favor by getting back together with him.

When reading a text message, your ex girlfriend cannot see what emotional state you're in. So, depending on how badly things ended between you and her, she will be thinking a range of things ranging from a neutral, â€œOh, it's my ex. I wonder what he wants?â€œ to a more negative, â€œOh, it's him! I wish he'd leave me alone,â€œ or â€œWhy does he keep texting me, can't he just get the message that it's over between us and just move on with his life?â€œ

In the same way, texting your ex girlfriend will do nothing to change the way she perceived you and felt about you when the two of you broke up, because she'll just assume that you're simply saying what you think she wants you to say.

She'll conclude that, because she can't see you, you can say anything, because she will not be able to determine whether you're actually being sincere or if you're just putting on an act to get her back.

So, if you want to text your ex girlfriend, do it only as a way of getting her to talk to you on the phone.

When talking to her on the phone, not only can you make her feel understood by apologizing for your part in the break up, she'll also have the opportunity to hear your confidence and experience the changes you've made to yourself since the break up, in the way that you're talking to her.

By making her feel good when you're talking to her on the phone, for example, by making her laugh, or by making her feel understood, she will then open herself up to the idea of meeting with you in person.

Should I use the â€œNo Contact Rule?â€œ

Just because you can't text an ex girlfriend back, it doesn't mean ignoring her is a better option.

Although you might have read somewhere that using the No Contact Rule is a good way to make an ex girlfriend realize that she simply can't live without you in her life, in most cases, this plan backfires.

Why?

When a woman has broken up with a guy and then doesn't hear from him for a long period of time, rather than sit around pining for him, she has the opportunity to get on with her life.

In many cases, a woman who has been "ignored" by her ex is usually dating and having sex with other guys by the time he gets around to contacting her again to see if she wants to get back together with him.

Of course, the "No Contact Rule" does work sometimes. However, if a woman does contact her ex and discovers that he still has the same issues and problems that lead to their break up in the first place, then she isn't going to be interested in getting back together with him.

In most cases, when a woman calls an ex after he's been ignoring her for a long time, it's because she wants to check if he's moved on, or if he's still missing her and lonely without her.

If, when she calls he then says something like, "Oh, I'm so glad you called. I've been missing you so much! Can we please work things out? Can you give me another chance?" she'll know that his silence was all an act, and she will feel good about having moved on with her life.

What you need to know, is that you don't have to use "tricks" to get your ex girlfriend back. You can actively make her feel differently about being with you again right away.

Should I apologize to her via text?

No.

The truth is, an apology is always best when you are face-to-face with the other person.

Typing, "I'm sorry. I'll change, I promise. Just give me another chance," is easy, but it doesn't mean you mean it, and for the same reasons mentioned above, because she cannot see your body language or hear your tonality, chances are she simply won't believe you're being sincere.

Additionally, most relationships don't break up because of something only one person did. So, unless a guy cheated, apologizing over and over again without fully understanding what caused his ex girlfriend to break up with him, only puts him in a weakened position with her; which most women find unattractive.

If your ex girlfriend cannot respect you and look up to you, she won't be able to feel sexually attracted to you, and without respect and attraction she won't be interested in getting back together again.

Only Text Her to Arrange a Meet Up

As tempting as the idea might sound to you, texting your ex girlfriend to resolve the issues in your relationship is not the best way to go about making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Rather than waste time texting back and forth and still end up getting nowhere, just get her on the phone where you can re-spark her feelings of attraction for you and get her to agree to a meet up. Until your ex girlfriend can feel respect and attraction for you as a man, she will be happy staying in the realm of "ex."

On the other hand, if when you talk to her she can sense that you have changed (because she can hear it in your voice), she will be willing to meet up with you to see for herself if her instincts about you are right.

Then when you meet in person, you can make her feel attracted to you in new and exciting ways, like by being more confident and charming, by making her laugh, by showing her that you've got focus and direction in your life, etc.

When she sees for herself that you have the qualities she is looking for in a man, she will naturally feel drawn to you and that's where things will change between you and her for the better.

So, if you're still thinking that the best way you can get your ex girlfriend back is via text; stop doing that. Just pick up the phone and call her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Winning Back Your Ex: What You Need to Say and Do

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Winning back your ex is no different to winning at anything else in life.

To be a winner, you need to beat the competition. Right now, she is looking at other guys as being a better option than you, but you can change how she feels about that.

How?

She will reconnect with her feelings for you and begin to see you as being other guys if you can...

1. Get her respect back

The most important part of winning back your ex begins with getting her to feel respect for you again.

For example: If a woman dumped a guy because he was too insecure, she's not going to take him seriously anymore unless he can show her (i.e. by talking to her on a phone call and meeting up with her in person) that he really has changed.

It's not enough for a guy to say, "I promise that I will change if you just give me a chance." Those are just mere words and when a relationship has broken up, most women aren't willing to just accept that and get back together.

Some women do initially accept it (e.g. if she is inexperienced with relationships or still really loves her guy and wants to make it work), but most women know that if a guy says that he will change, it's not the same as him actually changing, improving and truly fixing his issues.

So, how would a guy convey that he is no longer insecure when he talks to his ex over the phone or in person?

On the phone, it will come through via his tonality, attitude, conversation style and how he reacts to what she says or does on the call.

In person, it will come through via his tonality, attitude, conversation style, body language, vibe, behavior and how he reacts and responds to what she says and does.

[image: Winning back your ex after a break up]

If you're unsure how to handle yourself on a phone call or at an in-person meet up with your ex to get her respect back, all of the examples of what to say and do are provided in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

2. Get her to feel attracted to you again

Once your ex feels that she can respect you again, she will automatically become open to feeling attracted to you again.

For example: If you are being confident and getting her smiling and laughing, she will feel attracted to you because of that.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use the power of attraction to win back your ex...

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of direct control over how much attraction your ex feels for you.

For example: If a guy meets up with his ex girlfriend, fianc  or wife and he is feeling nervous, insecure and unsure of himself, he will naturally be turning her off.

Why? Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, high self-esteem) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecurity, low self-esteem).

If you don't feel like you will be confident enough to reattract your ex, I recommend that you go through the emotional transformation process provided in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

After going through the full 10 hours of video from the program, most guys are ready to contact their ex, get her respect back on the phone, begin reattracting her and secure a meet up.

Some guys need to give themselves a couple more days to get to a place of emotional strength, but most guys are ready to meet up with their ex and get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for them.

3. Get her to reconnect with her love for you

If a woman doesn't respect a guy, she won't be able to feel proper attraction for him and when in a relationship, she will then begin to fall out of love with him.

So, when you get your ex to feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, she will naturally and automatically begin to reconnect with her old feelings of love for you.

[image: Winning your ex back with mutual respect, attraction and love]

When that happens, she will be able to look back at the problems in the relationship with a more light-hearted, forgiving perspective where it's no longer such a big deal because you really have changed.

What to Say to Begin Winning Back Your Ex

[image: What to say when winning back your ex]

The fact that she's now your ex suggests that you've already won her love in the past, but have now lost it.

So, part of the process involved in winning her back is to understand what really went wrong and what caused her to fall out of love with you and choose to end the relationship.

If you are trying to win her back, but you don't really, truly know what she wants, then most of your efforts will be ignored and she might even see it as annoying that you're still trying to get her back even though you don't even understand what she really needs you to change.

For example: Sometimes a guy will get dumped by a woman because his approach to love is too insecure (e.g. he needs her to continually reassure him of her love and devotion, he is too protective, etc).

If he tries to win her back by declaring his undying love for her and saying that he will do anything to make her happy, she might appreciate it, but she's going to feel annoyed and turned off by the fact that he's not directly addressing her main problems with him.

She would be much more impressed and respectful of him if he could relax, smile and say in a light-hearted way, "I get it now. I was being too insecure with you. It was silly. I look back on it now and I laugh at how immature I was being, but I'm happy that the insecurity is now a thing of the past. I'm obviously not like that anymore, but I get it that you probably don't want to believe me right now. You probably think I still haven't changed, right?"

Then, let her explain herself and take it from there.

For example, if she said, "I don't know" then he can say, "Well, I know. I know that I was being silly before. That's what often happens when a guy loves a woman so much, but just didn't know how else to express it. I know now that I should have just relaxed and let us love each other, rather than being such an insecure idiot."

She will then be able to see that he does get it and that he really has begun to change, or already has changed.

Of course, the conversation that you have when winning your ex back will need to be tailored to you and your relationship problems with her.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I provide examples of what to say that get any woman to relax, begin to forgive her ex and open back up to him. So, if you need that kind of help, I recommend that you begin watching my program right away and follow the steps until win her back.

Being a Man That She Can Look Up to and Respect

A very important part of winning back your ex is allowing her to see that you are now the sort of guy that she can look up to and respect.

To help you understand more about getting a woman to look up to you and respect you when in a relationship, here are some examples...

1. Leading the Way

Many guys make the mistake of thinking that a woman will be happier if she gets to wear the pants or lead the way in a relationship.

Modern women may be independent and may even go around saying that they can do anything that a man can, but they are still instinctively attracted to and respect of a man who takes on the alpha role in a relationship.

Taking on the alpha role doesn't mean being overly domineering, controlling her, bossing her around, making all the decisions all the time or anything like that. It's simply about being the emotionally stronger one who takes on the role of leading the way to a better life for you and her.

It's fine if she makes decisions at times or even takes the lead, but for the most part, she wants to see that you are leading the way and there is an opportunity for her to relax into feeling like a real woman.

Regardless of what the unhappy, feminist women on TV shows like The View say, what makes a woman feel like a real woman around a man is when he is more masculine than her.

When a man is more masculine in the way he thinks, feels, behaves and takes action in life, it allows a woman to relax into thinking, feeling, behaving and taking action like a feminine woman.

In other words, she has the opportunity to be girly, get emotional, focus on the love she feels for you, put time and effort into looking pretty and so on.

This doesn't mean that she can't follow through on her career dreams or anything like that. It just means that she can feel girly and feminine while she is doing it, which is what women really want to feel like.

Some guys just don't understand that about women, so in a relationship, a guy will essentially let the woman take control, boss him around or make decisions about most things.

When she breaks up with him, he will continue to put her in control by saying things like, “Just tell me what you want me to do, I’ll do anything, just give me another chance,” not knowing that he is turning her off in the exact same way that caused her to want to break up with him in the first place.

She doesn't want to have to teach him how to be the man she needs. She wants a ready-made man who already understands what it takes to be the man in a relationship, rather than having to guide him and teach him.

If she has to teach him, she won't feel like a feminine, girly woman in comparison to him. Instead, she will like a mother figure, big sister, friend or teacher.

To win back your ex, you need to show her that you now have the ability to be masculine in a way that makes her feel feminine. She needs to be able to see that she can relax and trust that you really are the man now.

When she sees that, she will begin to respect you again and when that happens, she will become open to feeling attracted to you again. When that happens, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her old feelings of love for you.

2. Appreciating her

For a relationship to last a lifetime, mutual love and appreciation must be deepened over time, rather than falling into the trap of taking each other for granted.

Some guys are excellent at showing a woman how much they care during the dating phase of the relationship, but after the first year or so, many guys begin to take their woman's love and devotion for granted.

For example: He might begin to pick on her privately or in front of other people, he might become mean and selfish or he might come to expect that she has to serve him and do whatever he wants now that they are in a relationship.

Some women will put up with that type of treatment for a while, but when she has had enough of being treated like crap, she will eventually begin to open herself up to meeting other guys or developing feelings for nice, sweet guys (e.g. at work or university) who treat her well and give her lots of compliments.

To win an ex back in cases like this, a guy needs to be able to fully understand where he messed up with her, improve his relationship skills (or relationship intelligence) and then communicate to her with his new, more mature and loving perspective.

For example, he might say, “I now know that I didn't love you the way that you deserved. I was too selfish and cared too much about what I needed, rather than giving you the appreciation you deserved. Of course, we are broken up now, but I do want you to know that I am sorry for being such an asshole. Although you might not care because you hate me right now, I just want you to know that I'm no longer that immature guy who wasn't man enough to love you the way you wanted and needed. I'm sorry for that."

In most cases, that will begin to get a woman's respect back. It's not the only thing that needs to be done though.

As explained earlier, you need to get a woman's respect back and then she will begin to allow herself to feel attracted to you again. When that happens, she will begin to reconnect with her feelings of love and will be much more willing to give the relationship another chance, or at least meet up with you and see how she feels.

What is Your Plan to Win Back Your Ex?

The process of winning back an ex is confusing for most men.

I've literally spoken to successful businessman, pilots, lawyers, doctors and other very intelligent, successful men who had no idea what to say or do to get their ex girlfriend, fiancÃ© or wife back.

So, if you are unsure about how to go about winning back your ex, don't feel as though it's only you who is feeling lost about what you should do. Most guys have no idea what to do and it's so easy to make classic mistakes that push your ex away even further.

If you are serious about getting her back, I recommend that you use my proven to work system, Get Your Ex Back: Super System and I'll guide you through the exciting process of winning her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

7 Ways to Get Your Girlfriend Back After a Break Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I'm going to discuss 7 different ways that a guy can get his girlfriend back after a break up.

The exact approach that you need to use to get your girlfriend back will depend on what stage of the break up process you are in and how bad the break up was.

For example: If you've just broken up, it's usually very easy to get another chance with a girlfriend by giving her a sincere apology, understanding where she is coming from and then showing her that you've already begun making improvements to the things that she is breaking up with you about.

She will then feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and will be willing to forgive your past mistakes, give the relationship another chance and continue on for now.

[image: Ways to get a girlfriend back after a break up]

However, if you and her have already broken up many times before, have broken up months ago, you've cheated on her or she is moving on with another guy, you will need to add in a few more steps to the process of getting her back.

If you're currently dealing with a difficult break up and haven't been able to get your girlfriend back so far, you will need to follow a tested, proven to work plan that ensures you will get another chance with her.

All the examples of what to say and do at each step of the process are provided in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

For now though, let's have a look at some of the different ways to get your girlfriend back after a break up...

1. Meet up with her in person and get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, forgive you and become open to being with you again.

When getting a girlfriend back after a break up, the most important thing that you need to do is meet up with her in person.

It's only in person that she will be able to clearly see that you already have changed the way that you think, feel and behave around her. You cannot show that to her via a text message and you can only half get that across to her on a phone call.

Phone calls are good, but the most effective and efficient way to get a girlfriend back after a break up is to get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you in person.

[image: Best ways to get a girlfriend back]

It might take you a couple of days to fix your issues (e.g. insecure, not knowing how to make her feel attracted to you anymore, etc) or it might take you a couple of weeks, but no matter how long it takes you, the best way to show her that is in person, not via text, email, written letter or any other type of message.

Due to the popularity of smartphones and how much people tend to text these days, a lot of guys now make the mistake of hoping to get their girlfriend back via text.

However, using text as a way to get a girlfriend back after a break up is usually the worst approach to take.

The best way to get your girlfriend to notice real changes in you is to get her on a phone call and then meet up with her in person.

If she isn't currently answering your texts or phone calls, my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System provides tested examples of what to text her to get her on a phone call and then what to say on the call to get her to meet up with you.

2. Redefine the relationship and start again.

[image: Best ways to get a girlfriend back after breaking up]

Sometimes a relationship will break up because the man and woman simply don't know how to make each other feel how they really want to feel when in a relationship.

This may happen if a guy is inexperienced with relationships, if he takes his woman for granted or if he just wasn't ready to be the type of man that she really needs.

In cases like this, a guy needs to tell his girlfriend that he believes the relationship is worth investing a bit more time in because all relationships go through ups and downs.

He needs to tell her that what makes a relationship last is when they can grow and learn together in a relationship and become closer, happier and more fulfilled as a result.

Couples that are still happy and in love after decades give each other that time to grow and learn together and become better at loving each other, making each other happy and having the type of experiences that they want when in a relationship.

He then needs to say something like, "If you want to break up, I will accept that, but just answer this question for me: Hypothetically speaking, if we did decide to give our relationship one last chance, what are two or three things that you would need from me to make this relationship work? After you answer that, I will tell you what I would want from you."

When talking to a woman about these sorts of things, you need to make sure that you aren't coming from a place where you are begging or being desperate for her to give you another chance.

Why? Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. belief in yourself, confidence, high self-esteem, etc) and are turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecure, neediness, low self-esteem, etc).

You must have the emotional strength to come across as being confident in your attractive and value to her, rather than giving her the impression that you're unsure about yourself or worried that you won't be able to attract another woman like her if she leaves you.

When you can sincerely be confident and emotionally secure when you talk to her, she will be able to look up to you and respect you as well as feel attracted to you, which will make her want to reconsider her decision.

3. Make her feel jealous by enjoying your life without her.

Making a woman feel jealous isn't the only thing that you need to do to get her back, but it's something that helps bring down her guard and make her feel compelled to stay in contact with you.

If a guy is just sitting around his home feeling lonely and depressed, posting up sad photos on social media and ranting on about how love isn't fair, then his girlfriend isn't going to be feeling jealous of his emotional state.

On the other hand, if she sees him having a great time without her (whether he tells her in person, over the phone or she sees it on social media), it can help to remind her that she is losing a great guy who has the emotional strength to get on with life regardless of the pain of the break up.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I talk about how to make a woman feel all sorts of painful and positive emotions that combine together to make her want to get back with you or at least meet up with you as soon as possible.

Getting a girlfriend back is not all about making her feel the painful emotions of jealous and loss when she sees you enjoying yourself without her.

To get a girlfriend back after a break up, it's also very important that you make her feel a range of positive emotions when she talks to you on the phone, interacts with you in person or even just stops by to check you out on social media.

A lot of women will block their ex boyfriend on Facebook and other social media sites after a break up, but they always tend to stop by every now and then to have a quick look at how he is doing.

So, in cases where the girlfriend hates her ex boyfriend and is not willing to meet up with him, he at least needs to ensure that the way he is being represented on social media is making her feel a combination of painful and positive emotions, which will cause her to either unblock him, get in contact with him or finally answer her phone when he calls.

4. Get her to have sex with you one last time.

A great way to get your girlfriend back after a break up is to get her to agree to have sex one last time.

If you have also improved and fixed some of the issues that caused the break up (e.g. insecurity) and you are able to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when you meet up with her, the sex will be the enjoyable icing on top of the cake.

She will be feeling all sorts of new and exciting emotions now that you've changed and as a result, the sex will be much more enjoyable and will make her feel as though it's a good idea to give the relationship another chance.

Of course, not all women will readily agree to have sex one last time, so what a guy needs to do in cases like that is meet up with her in person and get her laughing and smiling and feeling a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him before he suggests it.

If you don't know what to say or do to get your girlfriend to agree to have sex with you one last time, I provide tested examples of what to say and do in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

5. Start dating other women who are as attractive as her or even more attractive.

When a guy wants to get a girlfriend back, he will rarely want to start dating other women because he will simply want to get his ex back.

I understand that.

However, one of the ways to get a girlfriend after a break up is to start dating other women who are as attractive as her or even more attractive than her.

This approach helps when a woman has broken up with a guy because she feels as though he's not good enough for her. Then, when she sees him with other women, she starts to realize that maybe she has made a mistake and is now losing a great guy.

6. Stop texting her and only be available via phone call or meet up.

A lot of guys delay the process of getting a woman back by allowing her to access to text him back and forth whenever she feels like it.

If you want to make her feel some loss and be willing to talk to you on the phone, you've got to cut off her access to text communication with you.

By continuing to text her whenever she feels like it, she will be able to calm any painful feelings by texting you something like, "Hey, how are you doing?" and seeing by your replies that you're still missing her and hoping to get her back.

The reason why you should only talk to her on a phone call and in person is so she can feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, based on the changes and improvements you've made to how you think, feel, talk to her and behave.

Trying to show a girlfriend how much you've changed by texting her is nearly impossible because without her being able to see your body language, hear the way you are expressing yourself and assessing how you are behaving, she has to guess what state of mind you are really in when sending her those texts.

If your girlfriend currently has a negative perception of you, she's most likely going to look at your texts in a negative light.

However, if you speak to her on the phone and get her smiling and laughing, she will be more open to listening to you, talking to you and respecting how much you've already changed and improved as a man.

If you don't know what to say or do to get your girlfriend on the phone, laughing and smiling and being willing to meet up with you in person, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

7. Only display traits that will attract her and make her feel respectful of you.

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that they might be able to get another chance with their ex girlfriend by making her feel guilty or making her feel pity for him.

For example: He will slip into begging, pleading, promising her the world if she gives him another chance, declaring his undying love for her, threatening to kill himself, saying that he is nothing without her and so on.

However, none of that makes a woman attracted or compelled to give a guy another chance. Why?

Women are naturally turned off by the emotional weakness of men (e.g. insecurity, nervousness, neediness, etc) and attracted to the emotional strength (e.g. confidence, high-self esteem, etc).

So, from now on, you need to make sure that you're only displaying the personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, charisma, emotional strength, the ability to make her laugh, etc).

She's not going to be interested in cute, romantic or sweet gestures until you get her to feel respect for you first and then begin to reattract her by displaying the personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women.

For example: When you call her up, you need to be able to let her feel your confidence and emotional strength by talking to her in a confident, masculine and mature way.

However, you should also be confident enough to make her smile and get her laughing by adding in some humor, rather than being afraid to do that because you're worried that she might not like it.

Women are attracted to confident men who aren't afraid to be attractive during interactions.

Even if you your girlfriend said, "I hate you!" or "I don't have feelings for you anymore!" during the break up, the best way to begin getting her back is to make her have feelings for you again by displaying the personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women.

Don't shut yourself down and become neutral, too friendly or too nice now that she has broken up with you. You must get her respect back, get her to feel attracted to you again and when that happens, she will naturally begin to have feelings for you again.

If you need help on what to say and do to get her respect and attraction back, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Texting Your Ex After Breaking Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Texting your ex after breaking up is usually the worst approach you can take to getting her back. Why?

If a woman breaks up with a guy because he was being insecure, needy and clingy during the relationship, she isn't going to believe him if he promises that he has changed via text.

If you've been dumped a woman, the only way that she will believe that you have changed is to interaction with you on a phone call and in person.

[image: Get your ex on a phone call]

On a phone, she will be able to tell by the tone of your voice, how you speak and how you react and respond to her whether or not you really have changed.

In person, she will be able to tell by your body language, style of conversation, attitude, vibe and behavior whether or not you have changed.

Yet, that is not going to happen via text.

Of the 100s of phone coaching clients I've helped over the past few years, about 95% of them have been stuck texting back and forth with their ex for weeks or months, before she eventually stops responding altogether.

So, if you want to get your ex back for real, please do not waste time texting her.

Texting usually results in the woman playing hard to get or getting annoyed with her ex because she misunderstands him and what he is trying to say.

The only time you should really be texting your ex is to get her on a phone call, so you can then arrange to meet up with her in person.

If you don't get your ex to meet up with you in person, you won't have a chance to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new, improved version of you.

That is what really counts when getting an ex back.

If you're not willing to do that, you can look forward to a lot of emotional pain, frustration and heartache as she drifts further away from you the more you text her.

These Days, Most Couples Do Get Back Together and That Number is Increasing

[image: Reattracting your ex when you meet up]

Unlike in the past where the most common break up advice was, "Forget about her" or "move on" or "there are plenty of fish in the sea", people are now starting to realize that with the right approach, relationships can actually be rekindled.

In fact, according to an American research journal, nearly 50% of couples do get back together after a break up.

Of course, a lot of those relationships break up again because (in cases where the guy is getting a woman back), the guy doesn't fix the problems that turned the woman off and she ends up breaking up with him again.

That's where I come in.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I explain exactly what to say and do to get a woman back and then exactly what to say and do to ensure that you keep the relationship back together once you rekindle.

As a result of this training, men are now getting women back in increasing numbers. I get sent new e-mails from guys every day now who contact me to say thanks and let me know that they've successfully gotten their woman back.

In the past, it was difficult for a guy to get a woman back because he usually didn't have any other guys in his life who could teach him how to get her respect and attraction back. People have pretty much always said things like, "If you let her go and she comes back, it was meant to be" or "Be patient...you'll find another woman one day."

Thankfully, modern men don't have to put up with that crappy advice any longer. It's now possible to get an ex back and in many cases, it's fairly easy to do and happens within a couple of days to a week.

3 Mistakes to Avoid When Texting Your Ex After Breaking Up

[image: Mistakes to avoid when texting your ex after breaking up]

If getting your ex back into a relationship is what you really want, here are 3 classic mistakes that you need to avoid...

1. Don't text her unless you want to arrange a meet up.

It's very tempting to use texting as a way of breaking the ice or staying in touch with an ex.

However, texting your ex after breaking up with her should only ever be used as a stepping stone to getting her to talk to you on the phone, or in person.

Why?

Although many guys assume texting an ex is a safer way to communicate with her because it makes him appear non-threatening to her so she will be much more open to talking to him again (especially if the break up was messy), this usually isn't the case.

In fact, texting can actually send the wrong message to an ex because she has to guess the guy's state of mind, where he's coming from and why he's texting her, etc.

For example: If a woman currently feels anger, resentment or any other negative emotions towards her ex, even a simple, "Hi, how are you? I hope you're having a good day" can make her feel annoyed.

Countless psychological studies have proven that up to 90% of all communication between two people is non-verbal and is comprised of body language and tonality.

So, when you text your ex after a break up, there is no body language or tonality for her to see and experience. Her perception of your texts will be based on how she felt about you during the break up and afterwards.

If she is missing you like crazy, then okay â€œ she will love the text. However, if she dumped you and is currently trying to move on because you are still unable to make her feel enough respect and attraction, then she's not going to enjoy getting texts from you.

Even if you are now much more confident, self-assured, ambitious, interesting, etc., than you were when she broke up with you, and even if youâ€™ve fixed all your issues and improved yourself, she will have no way of experiencing that via a text message.

So, when it comes to texting your ex after breaking up, the Golden Rule is this: Texting should only be used to get her on a phone call so that you can arrange to meet her in person.

On the phone, she will be able to hear the tone of your voice and she will sense whether you are confident and emotionally secure without her (which will attract her and get her to lower her guard slightly) and she will be a lot more open to the idea of meeting with you in person to see for herself what is different about you.

Then, when you meet up in person, you can make her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for you, so that she will want to get back together again.

Naturally, if youâ€™re not feeling emotionally strong without her right now, itâ€™s something you will have to work on before you contact her.

By going through the 10 hours of video training in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I can guarantee that you will be ready to call her and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you over the phone and in person.

Of course, I know that many guys are in a situation where their ex girlfriend, fianc  or wife is no longer answering their calls.

No problem.

In my program, I provide tested, text messages examples that you can send to her that make her answer the phone when you call.

2. Donâ€™t promise to change via text.

It might seem like a good idea and you may even believe that itâ€™s what sheâ€™ll want to hear before she will be interested in seeing you again, but texting your ex after breaking up to apologize for whatever happened between you and promising her youâ€™ll change, is not going to make her feel a strong enough sense of respect and attraction for you.

Think about itâ€¦!

Anyone can type, â€œIâ€™m really sorry about what happened between us,â€œ or, â€œIf you give us another chance I promise Iâ€™ll change,â€œ but that is just a bunch of words on a screen and to a pissed off woman who has dumped a guy, they are usually going to be very annoying words on a screen to her.

Without seeing you face-to-face, a woman has no way of knowing if youâ€™re being genuinely sincere, or if youâ€™re just using the apology as a ploy to get her to forgive you.

Additionally, saying â€œIâ€™m sorryâ€œ doesnâ€™t really get to the root of the problems that existed in your relationship anyway.

For example: A guy can be saying, â€œIâ€™m sorry that I didnâ€™t spend enough time with you like you wanted. I promise that if you come back I will make sure I donâ€™t work as hard / spend as much time with my friends,â€œ but, that's not the real reason she broke up with him.

She may have really broken up with him because he currently isn't enough of a man for her in the way that he thinks, feels, behaves and takes action in life.

She ended up feeling like more of a friend to him and felt as though she was emotionally stronger than him, so his promises to spend more time with her are missing the point.

If he sends that sort of apology to her via text, she's just going to roll her eyes and feel like she made the right decision to break up with him because he clearly doesn't understand her and what she really wants.

Essentially, apologies should be done in person and only after you know the real reasons why your relationship ended. You've got to be offering her what she really wants, not what you think she might want.

Watch this video for some examples of why women really break up with men. Do any of the break up reasons apply to you?

As you will discover from the video above, it's critically important for you to understand the real reasons why she broke up with you.

Most women don't explain all of the real subtle reasons why and unless you are aware of those and fix them, she will feel as though you just don't understand her.

This is why I explain more than 70 different break up reasons in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System as well as provide advice on how to quickly fix those issues and get her to forgive you.

3. Don't use texting as an excuse to remain in constant contact with her.

[image: Don't stay in constant contact via text]

Most people have heard the old phrase out of sight out of mind, so when a guy gets dumped by the woman he loves, he will often want to stay in touch with her to hopefully stay on her mind.

Yet, in most cases, staying in contact via text will simply annoy her and turn her off even further.

Why?

I've seen countless examples of the texts that guys send to their ex. My phone coaching clients often send me screenshots from their smartphone to show me examples of what they've been texting their ex.

In most cases, the texts are pointless conversations that don't need to be had or attempts from the guy to be friendly with her to stay in touch.

Yet, time and time again, those texts have done nothing other than annoy the woman and push her further away.

The guys who successfully get a girl back are those who meet up with their ex in person and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction.

When that happens, she naturally begins to lower her protective emotional guard and becomes open to having feelings for him again. Some guys get their ex back immediately, whereas others need 2-3 meet ups before the relationship reconciles completely.

Yet, I can tell you that from all of my experience helping guys to get their ex back, I have never heard of a case where texting got the woman back.

In every example I've seen, the woman has simply been a pain in the ass (e.g. not replying to some texts, getting annoyed, being rude or cold, etc) or she has lead the guy on (i.e. giving him hope) while she secretly moved on with another guy in the background.

So, if you want to get your ex back for real, don't waste time texting her. You've got to get her on a phone call and then meet up with in person so you can make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

You Can Get Her Back

Texting your ex after breaking up should only be to get her on the phone.

On the phone you can re-spark her feelings of respect for you by making her feel understood and by apologizing for your past mistakes.

You can make her feel attracted by being confident and getting her smiling and laughing as she talks to you on the phone.

You then need to get her to agree to meet up you in person (exact wording provided in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System) where you can then make her feel more respect and attraction for you by showing her that you really have changed and are now a better man.

When she sees you in person and notices that you really have changed, she will then begin to drop her guard, allow herself to feel attracted to you and she will then begin to reconnect with the love that once felt for you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make a Girl Want You Back: 10 Examples

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to make a girl want you back is to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

However, the exact approach that you use to make her want you back will depend on the reasons for the break up.

For example:

1. If she lost respect for you (e.g. because you were insecure, treated her badly, etc) and has now closed off her feelings for you so she doesn't feel any attraction or love for you anymore.

When a girl loses respect for a guy, she will then find it nearly impossible to feel attraction for him anymore. Without respect and attraction, she will then begin to fall out of love with him or stop having “feelings” for him.

So, how to make a girl want you back in a situation like that is to first get her respect back.

Talk to her on the phone (not text) or in person to apologize for mistakes that you've made and let her know that you don't expect her to want to get back with you because you're apologizing, but you still want to give her that apology because you know that it's the right thing to do.

From there, you then need to do the most important thing of all and that is to let her see that you really have changed.

For example: If a guy was too insecure when he was in a relationship with his girlfriend, then she will be used to being to pick up on his insecurities in the way that he talks, what he says and how he behaves.

So, when she notices a real difference in the way that he now talks, thinks, feels and behaves, she will start to accept that maybe he really has changed.

[image: Getting a girl to want you back when you meet up with her in person]

If he meets up with her in person, she will then be able to see that, even if she interacts with him for 30 minutes or an hour, his old insecurities just don't appear anymore. He really has changed.

When a girl realizes that, she will then drop her protective emotional guard, feel respect for the guy and then allow herself to begin feeling attracted to him again (e.g. feel attracted to his confidence, how he makes her laugh and smile, his charisma, masculine vibe, etc).

Letting her experience the new, improved version of yourself is the most important part of making a girl want you back. Without that, she will usually just remember the bad parts of your relationship or the things she didn't like about you (e.g. insecurity).

Now that people have their smartphone with them all of the time or most of the time, a lot of guys make the mistake of trying to make a girl want them back by text.

Simply texting a girl isn't going to show her that you really have changed.

Anyone can send a text and appear confident or happy, but it's how you come across on a phone call and in person that really counts.

As you may have noticed, texting can actually your ex to feel even more turned off and repelled when she misunderstands what you are trying to say.

By the way...

When I help guys to get girls back via my phone coaching service, I always hear (95% of the time) that he has been texting the girl for weeks or even months at a time without even meeting up with her.

Texting her is usually just a waste of time. If you want to make a girl want you back, you've got to get her to experience a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you on a phone call or in person.

If you're not sure how to get her to feel that way, I explain exactly what you need to say and do in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

2. If you've been in a relationship for more than 5 years that has lost its spark and become boring.

Relationships between men and women no longer work in the exact same way as they did 50 or 100 years ago.

In 1900 for example, a woman would usually be a virgin when she got married and she would have to stay with her man for life even if she was unhappy.

Back then, it was shameful to get divorced.

However, in today's world, girls are allowed to get in and out of relationships as often as they want until they feel like they've found the right guy who is capable of making her feel the type of respect, attraction and love that she wants to feel when in a relationship.

So, in ex back cases like this, what a guy needs to do is to first get the girl's respect back and then make her feel attracted in fun, exciting ways.

For example: Rather than having serious, deep and meaningful conversations with her, he needs to be get her smiling and laughing when she talks to him. When she opens up to that, he needs to begin flirting with her to get the spark back between them.

One of the great things about the attraction that a girl feels for a guy is that it can be CREATED and RECREATED.

If a girl currently doesn't feel much (or any) attraction for you, it's possible for you to begin actively making her feel attracted to you by displaying some of the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract girls to guys (e.g. confidence, charisma, masculine vibe, humor, etc).

Watch this video to understand how a girl's attraction for a guy works...

As you will discover from the video above, you actually have a lot of direct control over how much or little attraction this girl will feel for you.

For example: If a guy is trying to make a girl want him back and he is being insecure, needy or clingy, then she's not going to be feeling attracted to him.

However, if he gets her on a phone call or meets up her in person and is being confident, charismatic, funny and charming, she will naturally begin to feel attracted to him again.

3. If you cheated on her and she is now unsure whether she should steer clear of you, have sex with a new guy to get revenge or trust you and give you another chance.

If you cheated on a girl and she really loves you, respects you and feels attracted to you, then it's usually very easy to get her to accept your apology and take you back again. After all, she doesn't want to lose an awesome guy like you.

However, if you cheated on a girl who doesn't respect you for several other reasons in addition to the cheating betrayal (e.g. you were insecure, you treated her badly, you got very angry or aggressive at times, etc), then you're going to need to through the standard, 3-step process to get her to open back up to considering giving the relationship another chance.

The 3-step process is that you get her respect back first, start to make her feel attracted to you again and she will then begin to reconnect with her feelings of love for you.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, it's important that you first work on getting the girl's respect back before you attempt to make her feel attracted to you again.

If a girl doesn't respect a guy, she will close herself off and won't allow herself to feel attracted to things that she would normally feel attracted to (e.g. your confidence, humor, charisma, masculine vibe, etc).

4. If she broke up with you because you were too clingy and she now feels like she needs to have some space for a few days or a week to breathe and allow herself to miss you.

In cases like this, it's fine to give a girl some space for up to a week and half at the most.

However, I recommend that you don't leave it for too long because I've heard from 100s of guys who have all overused the No Contact Rule (i.e. ignore a girl for 30 days) and the girl has then used that time to hook up with a new guy and move on, or just sleep with a new guy to help herself get over her ex.

So, while it's fine to give her a little bit of space in an ex back case like this, you shouldn't get to the point where you are ignoring her and hoping that it will magically fix everything between you.

If she hasn't contacted you within a week and a half, you need to get her on a phone call, apologize for your mistakes and then get her to meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, you then need to let her see that you really have changed and have become so much more emotionally mature and independent during that time.

[image: Make a girl want you again]

From there, you need to establish a new relationship dynamic where you are in the position of power and she wants to be with you just as much or even more than you want to be with her.

If you don't know how to regain the position of power between you and your ex girl, simply follow the instructions (of what to say and do) that are provided in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

5. If you are both fairly young (18-30) and she broke up with you because you don't know how to be the man she really needs (i.e. you became insecure, jealous, clingy, etc)

Some guys are naturally good with women (20%), but most guys will screw up their first couple of relationships with a girl because they just don't know how to handle themselves in the more advanced stages of a relationship.

For example: At the start of a relationship, a girl will usually be very loving, affectionate, attentive, kind and considerate so she can get the guy to fall in love with her and commit to her.

Then, after a few months or a year, she will begin to withdraw some of her interest, affection and attention and will even begin to throw tantrums, tease him and put him down during conversations.

She does this instinctively because she wants to be able to see how emotionally strong and mature her guy is. Girls instinctively don't want to be paired up with a guy who can only be emotionally strong and secure if she gentle with him.

Why? For most of human history and even to this day, it hasn't been easy to survive, thrive and prosper in the world, especially when times get tough (e.g. an economic recession, a drought, flooding, natural disasters, etc).

Girls are hard-wired to ensure that their guy is capable of remaining strong and secure no matter how much he is challenged or how tough life gets, so they will naturally test his emotional strength at various points in time.

Another reason why girls change when in a relationship and occasionally stop being so affectionate or loving, is to test how safe she is with her guy.

Will he become angry or violent or begin to treat her in a mean way if she doesn't constantly reassure him of her love? Will he become so insecure that he starts to control her and not allow her to hang out with friends or do things without him?

What sort of guy is he really? Is he only loving, calm and caring if she constantly makes him feel loved, wanted and needed?

Essentially, a girl wants to be able to relax when in a relationship, with the knowledge that her guy is emotionally strong and secure and won't crumble under the pressures of life or become wildly insecure if she occasionally tests him by being less affectionate or loving, or if she wants to take up a hobby that doesn't include him.

So, to make a girl want you back in a case like this, a guy needs to show his ex girl that he has rapidly grown up and matured within a couple of days or a couple of weeks.

A girl will rarely believe a guy who tells her that he is now mature and that he understands he made certain mistakes in a relationship, which he won't ever make again.

In most cases, the girl will only believe that he is now capable of being the real man she needs, when she is able to interact with him on the phone and in person and see that, no matter how challenging she gets during the conversation, he remains emotionally strong is much more mature than he ever was before.

6. If she broke up with you because you are clueless on how to make her feel the type of respect, attraction and love that she really wants to feel when in a relationship.

I've personally helped 100s of guys via my phone coaching service to successfully get a girl back and in about 60% of the cases, a guy has pretty much no idea how to make his ex feel the type of respect, attraction and love that she really wants.

One of the main reasons why is that many guys don't even know how to properly attract women when they first meet them, so the guy simply tries to get lucky and is sometimes able to fumble his way into a relationship.

So, when the girl eventually gets bored of not feeling enough respect, attraction and love and decides that she wants to leave the relationship, the guy has no idea how to fix it.

If you are one of the many guys who are unsure how to actively make a woman feel attracted to you, watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, a girl can remain madly in love and devoted to a guy who isn't a male model, rich, tall or powerful in society.

As long as a guy is able to make her feel attracted to him in other ways (e.g. he is confident, he makes her laugh and smile, he is determined to succeed in life and never gives up, he has a masculine vibe, she can relax into being girly around him because he is an emotionally masculine man, etc), then she will be more than happy to stick with him for life.

If your ex girl currently doesn't feel that way about you, then you need to begin actively making her feel attracted to you again.

In most cases, you won't be able to get her back by promising to change or telling her that you need her. That might work once or twice, but it won't work forever.

The secret of how to make a girl want you back is to get her to feel what she really wants to feel around you (i.e. she respects you and looks up to you, she feels attracted to you, she feels girly in comparison to your masculinity, she loves you, etc) and she will then begin to open back up to being with you.

You don't have to be perfect in every way to pull that off. You just need to be better than you had been when you were in a relationship with her.

7. If she broke up with you because you lack purpose and direction in life, whereas she is aiming to achieve big things and is constantly growing as a person.

Regardless of how successful, independent and intelligent a girl is, she will always want to have a man that she can look up to and respect.

A girl doesn't want to find herself in a situation where she is a high achiever in life (i.e. she is constantly growing and developing as a person, getting promoted, learning new things, etc) and her boyfriend is stuck in a dead end job or he wastes most of his time playing video games and hanging out with his buddies and going nowhere in life.

Ultimately, most girls will get to a point in their life where they feel the urge to become a mother, so girls have an instinctive need to pair up with a guy who will be capable of taking over and supporting himself, her and the offspring.

Even if a girl says, "I never want to have kids!" she will still have the natural instinct to make sure that she has a guy who is capable of supporting her if it does happen (e.g. an accidental pregnancy or if she changes her mind and wants to become a mother).

When she reaches her 20s or 30s, a girl will usually get to a point where she feels unsatisfied with life because it's all about career and work and she will get the urge to become a mother.

When that happens, she's going to want to know that she has a guy who is capable of taking on the role of provider.

This doesn't mean that you have to be successful in life right now, but she has to be able to see that you are making progress towards success and you are trying to create a better life for you and her in future.

[image: Making a girl want you back]

It might take you 10, 20 or even 30 years to achieve your biggest goals and ambitions in life, but a girl wants to see that you're on the way and that you're not just sitting around wasting your life away and expecting that she's going to support you and keep you safe in the long run.

8. If she feels as though you are only with her or trying to be with her again because you're afraid that won't be able to attract other quality women like her.

Girls hate it when they have this realization about a guy that they're with.

When a girl suddenly realizes that a guy only really wants to be with her because he's afraid that other girls won't be interested, she will feel turned off by how much he clings to her and how he seems to base his emotional security and sense of identity in this world on her and his relationship with her.

So, how can a guy fix a situation like this?

He needs to make his girl see that he could easily attract other girls, but he is choosing her because he sincerely loves her and can see a great future together with her.

This is very important because a girl doesn't ever want to feel as though she is doing a guy a favor by being with him.

A girl wants to feel lucky that she has scored herself an awesome guy like you, who could easily attract other girls, but you are committed to her because you sincerely love her for who she is.

Girls do know when a guy has the ability to attract other girls. It's very obvious because he will be confident, charismatic, he will know how to flirt and he will be able to charm girls just by talking to them for 10-30 seconds.

If your girl sees that you don't even have that ability as a guy, then she knows that you're not going to be very good at attracting other girls now that she has left you.

9. If she feels as though you are rushing her into marriage too early, or the opposite â□□ you aren't ready for the type of serious, committed relationship that she wants.

This is often referred to as bad timing.

A girl will say something like, "I love you and I care about you, but we've met each other at the wrong time. You want something that I don't" or "I want something that you don't."

So, to make a girl want you back in a situation like this, you can't rush to her and say that you're willing to do what she wants to do, just so you can be with her.

Instead, you need to say something like, "We all learn and grow throughout life. Sometimes it takes certain events in life to trigger a change in a person's attitude. Just because I wasn't ready to commit to a relationship when you were, it doesn't mean that I'm not capable of having a sincere change in attitude and perspective that you can now trust in."

Everyone goes through stages in life at different times, so people don't always have to realize the same things or be ready for something at exactly the same time. Sometimes, there is a bit of a difference in when people are ready to open themselves up to certain things.

Right now, I can say that I am now ready to sincerely open myself up to a truly committed relationship. I want us to get engaged and if we are still really happy together after 6 months to a year, we can then think about setting a date and advancing onto the next levels of life together like starting a family, getting a house together and building a lifetime of fun, happy, loving memories."

When you are telling a girl that sort of thing, you have to make sure that you're not saying it in a begging, pleading or needy manner.

To ensure that she feels respect and attraction for you, it has to come across in a confident, relaxed, emotionally secure way.

Girls feel turned off when a guy gets desperate and begins to beg, plead and try too hard to convince them to feel a certain way. A girl wants to be able to see that you are confident, relaxed and emotionally mature enough to speak like a man that she can look up to, respect and trust.

10. If she feels as though she can't trust you to truly change and not fall back into your old ways again.

In some break up cases, a girl will have given a guy many chances over a period of months or years. He might have been able to change a few things or change temporarily, but he will have eventually slipped back into making her lose respect for him and turning her off once again.

So, a girl will end up feeling as though he doesn't even really know how to fix his problems (e.g. insecure, lack of purpose in life, etc) or is hoping that she will stop worrying about those things and just love him for who he is.

In these cases, a guy needs to make some real improvements in the areas that have been making her lose respect for him (e.g. insecurity, being too bossy and controlling, letting her boss him around, etc) and turning her off.

He needs to let her experience the new and improved version of him on a phone call and in person. Once again, you cannot get a girl to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you via text, e-mail or social media messaging.

You have to get her on a phone call and you have to meet up with her in person.

If you don't know what to say or do to get your girl to answer your calls again and agree to meet up with you in person, simply follow the instructions (of what to say and do) in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Is My Ex Thinking About Me?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you've found yourself wondering, "Is my ex thinking about me?" you might be starting to fall into the trap of waiting around and hoping that she makes it obvious that she misses you or wants to get back together with you.

Waiting around like that can waste weeks, months or even years of your life and there's no guarantee that she will actually miss you, contact you and ask to see you again.

So, what should you do instead?

If you want to get your ex back for real, what you need to do is actively get her to have feelings for you again.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was insecure and wasn't enough of a man for her, she will usually get right into a rebound relationship with a confident guy who is more capable of being the man she needs.

She might think about her ex from time to time, but her last impression of him will be fairly negative based on the fact that he was insecure and incapable of being the emotionally strong man she wants and needs, so while she might be 'thinking' about him at times, it doesn't mean that she will be missing him.

To get her back, what a guy like that actually needs to do is get her on a phone call, apologize for his mistakes, switch the conversation to a more light-hearted vibe (i.e. by joking around, getting her smiling and laughing, etc) and then get her to agree to meet up with him in person.

[image: Meeting up with ex to reattract her]

At the meet up, he can then get her to experience the new and improved version of himself (i.e. he is confident, emotionally secure, more masculine in how he thinks, feels and behaves, etc) and talk about getting the relationship back together.

Don't Waste Time Waiting For Things to Happen

[image: Wasting time waiting for ex to shown signs of interest]

Anything that you do prior to meeting up with your ex offers no guarantee that you will get her back. The only real way to change how she feels is to get her to experience the new and improved you in person.

So, don't waste time with 'what ifs,' maybes and speculations like, "Is my ex thinking about me?"

If you want your ex to think about you and begin having feelings for you again, then get her on a phone call and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When you get her to feel that way, she will then begin to think about you in a more positive light, compared to her current perception of you.

If you're not sure what to say to get her to agree to meet up with you in person, I explain all of that in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

I provide tested examples of what to text to get her on a phone call if she's currently not answering your calls, what to say on the phone to get her to agree to a meet up and what to say and do at the meet up to get her to experience a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Your Ex Isn't the Same as Every Other Woman

Not all women approach a break up in exactly the same way.

For example: Some women will break up with a guy and stay in contact with him (e.g. text, click like or comment on his social media posts) to keep the lines of communication open for a while for different reasons.

She might do stay in contact because she wants to make sure that her ex is still interested and hoping to get back together with her, while she quietly begins to move on with her life (e.g. dating other men, testing out new relationships).

Sometimes, a woman will do that to get emotional revenge on her ex for how badly he made her feel during the relationship.

Alternatively, sometimes a woman will stay in contact with her because she's still not sure if she wants to fully let him go.

Rather than moving on with another guy, she is hoping that a spark may relight between them and they will then get back together in a relationship that is much better than it ever was before.

Whatever the case is with you and your unique ex, one of the worst thing that you can ever do is text back and forth like a friend with your ex, just to "stay in contact."

When I help guys via my phone coaching service who are struggling to get their ex back, it's almost always the case that the guy has been making the mistake of texting back and forth repeatedly with her about the relationship or about day-to-day life, (e.g. "How was your day?" or "Are you watching ____ on TV? It's a great show" and that sort of thing).

In his mind, he hopes that if he just stays in touch with her like that, she will be thinking about him and therefore will more likely to want to get back together with him.

Yet, it doesn't work.

I know this because I help new guys every day and I always hear of examples where texts and social media messages have been going back and forth for weeks and months at a time.

So, what I advise my clients and what I will advise you now is this...

What you actually need to do is respark her feelings for you on a phone call and in person. There's no other way to get an ex back who currently doesn't want to be with you.

It's different if the woman really loves her ex, respects him and feels attracted to him, but has been hurt by something he did (e.g. cheated on her, didn't commit, treated her badly at times, etc) and simply needs some time apart to heal.

In cases like that, it's fine to text her or even give her space in cases like that, but those cases are very rare.

In 95% of the ex back cases that I deal with, a guy wants a woman back, but she currently doesn't have enough feelings for him to justify giving the relationship another chance, or she literally hates him and doesn't even want to talk to him or see him at all.

When a woman doesn't want a guy back, he can't get her back by texting with her like a friend or ignoring her with the No Contact Rule. He's got to actively get her to have feelings for him by talking to her on the phone and meeting up with her in person.

Getting her to have feelings for you again is a 3-step process.

The first step is about getting her respect back.

A guy can do that by apologizing for his mistakes and showing her that he really has improved and changed a lot since the break up.

He might be able to show her that he has changed within days or it might take a couple of weeks. It really depends on him and what the issues were between him and her (e.g. he was too insecure, jealous or protective).

The second step is to get her to feel attracted again.

When a woman feels respect for you, her protective guard will begin to come down and she will allow herself to experience attraction to you again.

At that point, you need to get your ex to laugh and smile when she's talking to you, by flirting with her, being light-hearted and cracking jokes, rather than having very serious, deep and meaningful conversations about the relationship.

The third step is to get her to reconnect with the love.

Once a woman feels respect and attraction for you, she will then naturally begin to reconnect with the love that she used to feel.

When a guy is able to guide a woman through that process over the phone and at a meet up, some women will get back together immediately, whereas other women will take one or two more meet ups before they feel enough respect, attraction and love to justify giving the relationship another chance.

It really depends on how bad the break up was and how much you are able to improve and change prior to talking to her on the phone and interacting with her in person.

If you watch my advanced training program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I will guide you through the process of rapidly fixing any emotional issues you have (e.g. insecurity) and becoming a better man than you already.

After watching the 10 hours of video from the program, most guys are ready to contact their ex immediately and arrange a meet up, but some guys need an extra few days or a week to do some of the activities that I recommend in my program, which are designed to rebuild a guy's confidence and make him emotionally stronger and more attractive to his ex.

Meeting Up With Your Ex

Regardless of how much your ex has rejected you up to this point, one of the most important things that she needs to see is that you are confident in yourself and know that you are more than good enough for her.

Don't need to rub that in her face by saying, "Hey, I'm confident and I know that I'm more than good enough for you." Simply let her see that you feel that way by being confident and feeling welcome to flirt with her, get her laughing and make her feel attracted to you again.

When you make your ex feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you on the phone and in person, she will naturally begin to think about you in a more positive light.

Of course, your ex might be a really hard case, so it may take 1-3 meet ups before you can get her to relax, open up, trust you and give the relationship another chance, but the important thing to know that it is possible for you to change how she feels.

Watch this video to understand why...

As you will discover from the video above, it is possible for you to begin to change the way that your ex feels about you and thinks about you.

I've personally helped 100s of guys via my phone coaching service to successfully get an ex back, so I know that it's possible (even when the woman is initially saying, "I hate you. Leave me alone" or "I don't have feelings for you" and that relationships get back together all the time.

If you want your ex to begin thinking about you in a positive way and wanting to meet up with you and possibly get back together with you, the questions that you really need to be asking yourself are:

- Have I fixed the issues that caused the break up?
- Have I become a more emotionally attractive man, or do I still have the same old insecurities?
- Am I willing to fix my insecurities and become more emotionally attractive, so I can change how she feels and get her back when I meet up with her?
- Do I know how to make her fully respect me again when I talk to her on the phone and in person?
- Do I know how to make her feel attracted to me and feel excited to be around me like she was when we first started dating?
- Do I know how to get the spark back?
- Do I know what to say to get her to forgive me and connect with her new, positive feelings towards me?

If you don't feel as though you are fully ready to call your ex or meet up with her in person yet, then I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, so I can guide you through the process of rapidly rebuilding your confidence around her and arming you with attraction techniques that will get the spark back between you and her when you meet up.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Getting My Ex Back: 9 Classic Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

For years now, I have been getting several requests per day from guys who need help getting an ex back.

Today, a man contacted me and asked, “Dan â€¦ I need help getting my ex back. It’s been two months since the break up. Is it too late to get her back?”

Three hours later, another guy contacted me to say, “I’m serious about getting my ex back, but I’m afraid that I’ve destroyed her feelings for me because I was begging and pleading for another chance when she broke up with me.”

Luckily, I do have the perfect solution to get a woman back, which has already worked for countless guys before you arrived at the site today.

So, to help you begin the exciting process of getting your ex back, I’m going to point out some of the classic mistakes that you need to avoid when getting an ex back.

9 Classic Mistakes to Avoid When Getting Your Ex Back

The following mistakes will slow down the process of getting her back and will make it more difficult for you, so make sure that you stop making these mistakes now or avoid making them from now on while you attempt to get her back...

1. Completely ignoring her by using the No Contact Rule.

[image: Getting my ex back - no contact rule]

Pretty much everywhere that you look online, people will tell you that if a woman breaks up with you, the first thing you need to do is stop contacting her for a minimum of 30 days.

Here’s the thing though...

Most of those random people online (a lot of them are just kids) simply don’t understand that the No Contact Rule doesn’t work on every woman, because not all break up reasons are the same.

The only time that the No Contact rule will work is if the woman still really loves the guy, feels attracted to him and respects him. If he then ignores her after the break up, she will miss him, contact him and they can then arrange a meet up and get back together.

The No Contact Rule can also work (sometimes) if the woman is unattractive and can’t find a replacement guy after the break up, or if she is young and inexperienced with relationships and doesn’t know how to deal with the emotional pain of a break up.

Yet, in all other relationships (I’ve personally helped 100s of guys to get a woman back via my phone coaching service, so my opinion is based on a lot of real world experience), the woman will simply use the no contact period to move on with another guy, or to go out and sleep with random guys to get over her ex.

If you want to get your ex back for real, what you need to do is get her on a phone call, apologize for your mistakes and then get her to meet up with you in person.

When you meet up with her in person, what you need to do then is make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you. It's only when a woman experiences that renewed sense of respect and attraction that her protective guard then begins to come down.

After a break up, there's nothing wrong with leaving a few days in between contacting an ex, but following the silly 30 day No Contact rule that you will find online is usually a recipe for disaster.

2. Trying to get her to give you another chance, even though you haven't really changed.

[image: Trying to get an ex back without changing anything]

For most women, it's not enough to hear that a guy will change if she gives him another chance. She wants to see that he already has changed, otherwise it just won't feel right to give him another chance.

When you think about it, you will realize that a relationship between a man and a woman is a mutual decision that both parties continually make.

If a woman is unhappy in her relationship, she can make a decision to want to get out of that relationship.

[image: Having trouble getting my ex back]

Unlike in the distant past when a woman had to remain a virgin until married and then stick with her husband for life even if she was unhappy, in today's world women are free to get in and out of relationships if they aren't satisfied with the man they've got.

Just because you and her experienced some great times before, maybe had amazing sex and shared a loving relationship together, it doesn't mean that she has stick with you for life.

The only way to get a modern woman to stick with you for life is to deepen her feelings of respect, attraction and love over time. You can't take her for granted and expect her to put up with you, even though you aren't prepared to put in the effort to make real changes and improvements to the flaws you currently have.

You don't have to be perfect to get her back, but you do have to be able to show her that you already have made some significant changes to the things that caused her to break up with you in the first place.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was insecure and wasn't enough of a man for her, she will need to see that he is now emotionally strong and confident and is also much more capable of being the man she really needs.

If he tries to convince her to give him another chance without making any real changes or improvements to himself, she knows that she doesn't have to give in to his request.

She knows that she can simply continue on with her decision to break up with him and find herself a guy who isn't insecure and is enough of a man for her.

3. Lying to her about being over her when you're not.

Most people are able to detect when someone is lying them to.

For example: Have you ever been talking to someone who was trying to appear as though he/she was being truthful and sincere, but you could tell that they were lying?

Of course you have. We all experience that at some points in our life and most of us are good at spotting liars from honest, sincere people.

The same applies to your ex.

If you lie to your ex by telling her you're over her and that you're absolutely fine without her, she will be able to pick on that via your body language, tone of voice, behavior and how you are expressing yourself.

If she can't detect the lie, she has a very simple way to find out.

She can suddenly start to show you interest and see how you react (e.g. She might say, "I don't know anymore" | I miss you | I'm confused | I love you | do you miss me?") and see how you react.

If you react by jumping all over her signs of interest and then declare that you've been missing her, are still in love with her and want her back, then she knows that you were lying to her.

When she discovers that, she will then lose more respect for you and may even want to get emotional revenge on you (e.g. have sex with a random guy she meets and then tell you that she met someone, send you random text messages to keep your hopes up, say that she wants to stay friends and see you every now and then, etc).

So, unlike the silly advice that you might find online that will tell you to lie to your ex about and pretend that you're over her, what you really need to do is be honest and fearless when it comes to love.

You need to tell her that you do love her and you do miss her, but at the same time, you need to show her that you are doing well without her and that you are okay emotionally.

If she can see that you are emotionally strong, secure and happy without her, but you do still love her and are not afraid to say that, it will be something that makes her feel respect for you as a man.

However, if she feels as though you are an emotional mess without her and you then tell her that you love her and miss her, it's not going to make her feel respect or attraction for you.

4. Bombarding her with texts, emails or social media messages.

[image: Bombarding ex with texts]

This is probably the most common mistake that I see guys make when they are trying to get their ex back.

When I speak to guys via my phone coaching service, the main excuse they use for all the text messages to their ex is that she prefers text or messages.

My response is always the same, "Bad luck for her if she likes that. What you need to do is get her on a phone call and then meet up with her in person, because that is going to be your best chance to get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you."

Hiding behind texts is the worst thing that you can ever do when you're trying to get an ex back.

Why?

If your ex currently has a negative perception of you, she is most-likely going to look at your text messages through that negative filter of perception.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was insecure and clingy, she isn't going to be fooled if he tries to act confident via text. She will roll her eyes and simply keep moving on without him.

The easiest, most effective way to get your ex to feel respect and attraction for you again is to get her on a phone call and meet up with her in person.

Only then can you use your body language, vibe, attitude, behavior and conversation style to show her that you really have changed and are now the sort of guy that she can look up to and respect, as well as feel attracted to.

5. Assuming that you are not allowed to flirt with her or make her feel attracted to you anymore.

A lot of the guys that I've coached have been making this mistake, where they feel as though it's not their place anymore to be able to flirt with her, make her feel attracted or even say that they find her sexy or beautiful.

There is nothing wrong with you still being attracted to your ex, finding her sexy, flirting with her and making her feel attracted to you.

You are allowed to take on that position if you want to.

She might tell you that it's not appropriate to be flirting or joking around anymore when you talk to her, but all you need to do is simply laugh at her for being so silly and serious about things.

Don't let her push you around like that.

If you let a woman push you around into being a neutral ex who feels unworthy of her, she will actually lose respect for you and when she loses respect for you, she won't be able to feel attracted to you.

Women respect balls, so don't let her cut your pair off like that. Just smile at laugh at how silly, immature or overly serious she is being and then continue on being the type of a confident, charismatic, masculine guy that she and other women will naturally find attractive.

If you haven't gotten her respect back first, she will probably deny feeling any attraction for you and will probably remind you that she's not interested, so make sure that you follow the process correctly.

You need to get her respect back and only then will she begin to allow herself to feel attracted to you again.

When she allows herself to feel attracted to you, she will then begin to have some feelings for you again and will become open to meeting up again, hooking up sexually or giving the relationship another chance.

6. Showing signs of emotional weakness.

This is also a very common when attempting to get an ex back.

Of course, when the woman you love dumps you, it's only natural that you will be feeling a bit hurt emotionally. You won't necessarily be feeling the strongest and most confident that you've ever felt in your life.

However, you need to make sure that you don't display signs of signs of emotional weakness to her. Why?

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence, high-self esteem, etc) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecurity, low self-esteem, clinginess, etc).

7. Not continuing to move forward in life in other ways.

When a guy gets dumped by a woman, he will sometimes fall into a downward spiral and not fully focus on his work or studies anymore.

Some of the guys that I've coached via my phone coaching service have told me that, as a result of the break up and the state of depression they are now in, they've recently gotten fired from work, are in trouble with their boss (e.g. coming in late, calling sick, etc), have stopped exercising or eating healthy food, stopped hanging out with friends and basically stopped making any more progress in life.

One of the things that a woman can feel attracted to about a man is his emotional strength to keep pushing forward in life, no matter how challenging life gets.

So, if your ex notices that you're not really making much progress in life anymore because the break up has destroyed you, it's going to cause her to lose even more respect and attraction for you.

8. Allowing her to treat you badly or disrespect you during conversations.

A couple of weeks ago, I was coaching a man and he said something like, "Getting my ex back hasn't been easy because every time I talk to her, she seems to shoot me down or disrespect me during the conversation. What should I do to get her to take me seriously?"

In cases like this, a guy needs to apologize for his mistakes and show her that he has changed the things about himself that caused the break up.

For example: If she broke up with him because he lacked balls and she was sick of being able to push him around in the relationship, he needs to be able to talk to her in a more confident, assertive way, while also still being the loving, good guy that he is.

So, if he is talking to her and she disrespects him on the phone, he can demonstrate confidence and emotional strength by not getting angry, flustered or nervous in response.

Instead, he needs to smile and laugh at her in a relaxed, easy-going manner and say something like, "Hey, there's no need to be rude to me like that. I deserve more respect than that and I know that you're capable of being more mature, so just go easy on the cold bitchy stuff."

If she does it again on the call or in person, or does it again when he meets her days or weeks later, he needs to smile and laugh again and say, "Hey, ease up on the cold bitchy stuff. I deserve more respect than that. I know that you're more than capable of being mature, so how about a little smile and a bit of respect?"

She will get the picture that her bitchy attitude is her fault and that he's only being a good, loving man. Since he is being confident, assertive, but also loving and easy-going, she will feel foolish to continue talking rudely to him.

Then, based on that, she will begin to respect him more and when that happens, she will begin to open herself up to feeling attracted to him again, forgiving him and meeting up with him in person more regularly.

9. Showering her with gifts.

[image: Showering ex with gifts]

Sometimes a guy will feel as though he can win his ex back by paying her rent, buying her the engagement ring he always promised, buying her gifts or offering to take her on expensive holidays. In some cases, it is a good move, but in 95% of the cases I've dealt with, it has been a bad idea to shower the ex with gifts or financial assistance.

Here's the thing...

If a woman doesn't respect her ex (e.g. he has been really insecure and still hasn't changed, he allows her to push him around, etc) then she's not going to feel attracted to him.

When a woman doesn't feel respect or attraction, then she's not going to really value the gifts that he gives her.

She might take them (most women do, based on what I've heard from clients) if she is selfish or if she wants to get some revenge for how he treated her during the relationship, but it's not going to get the relationship back together.

Of course, there's nothing wrong with buying something for a girlfriend, fianc  or wife if you're in a happy relationship, but in an ex back situation, it's not a strategy that works to make a woman think, "WOW! I made a mistake dumping this guy. I need to be with him because he's so generous with money and always buys me things."

What you really need to do is get her respect back (i.e. give her an apology, have already significantly improved the things about yourself that helped cause the break up) and then make her feel attracted to you again when you talk to her on the phone or meet her in person.

Note: I said, "When you talk to her on the phone or meet up with her in person." I didn't say, "When you text her."

When getting an ex back, text is the worst thing you can ever use because if she has a negative perception of you (e.g. she thinks you are insecure), she will read your texts through that perception filter and will feel suspicious if you try to act confident and emotionally secure without her.

So, in terms of buying her things as a way of getting her back, just hold off on that for now.  Only buy things for her or give her any financial assistance if you are actually back in a relationship.

Buying her things will not get her respect back or make her feel attracted to you. The things you buy her or what you help her pay for are not you. She needs to want you, not things.

She's going to be in a relationship with you (not the things you buy her), so you need to get her to respect you, feel attracted to you and want you.

What you need to do is focus on getting her on a phone call where you will get her respect back and begin to respark some of her feelings of attraction.

Then, you need to get her to meet up with you in person and further regain her respect and get her to feel attracted to you. When that happens, her protective emotional guard will begin to come down and she will open herself up to having feelings for you again.

It will happen naturally and automatically, as long as you start by getting her respect back, followed by making her feel attracted to you.

If you don't know how to do that, I explain what to say and do at each step of the way in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Say to Your Ex to Get Her Back: 4 Examples

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I'm going to provide 4 different examples of what to say to your ex to get her back.

Firstly, I want to point out that these examples are to be said on a phone call or in person, not via text. Anything you that will ever say to your ex via text will always be less effective than if you were to say it on the phone or in person.

If she currently isn't answering your calls, you need to text her to get her on a phone call with you only. The only goal of a text to an ex should be to get her on a phone call, so you can then arrange to meet her in person.

Why? On the phone call or in person, she will be able to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when she notices that you are confident and in an emotionally strong place.

On a phone call or in person, you will also be able to get her laughing, smiling and feeling good when talking to you, but via text there is no guarantee that you will get that reaction.

Text is usually the worst method of getting an ex back, because if your ex currently has a negative perception of you, she will read your text messages through a filter of that negative perception.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was insecure, she is going to look at his texts as coming from a place of insecurity.

On the other hand, if the guy was to get her on a phone call or talk to her in person and he is a new and improved version of himself, her perception of him will become more positive and her protective guard will go down.

What to Say to Your Ex Girlfriend, Fiance or Wife to Get Her Back

Here are 4 different examples of things that a guy can say to his ex girlfriend, fianc  or wife to begin the process of getting her back...

1. If she has broken up with you because you weren't enough of a man for her (e.g. insecure, needy, clingy, not much purpose in life, etc).

On a phone call or in person, what you need to say to her is something along the lines of, "Hey look I just wanted to point out that I now understand why you broke up with me and I accept that. I understand that I wasn't enough of a man for you and I look back on that now and I laugh at how silly I was being, but I also feel bad for what I put you through. So, I just want to take this opportunity to apologize for that. I'm not expecting us to get back together or anything like that, but I just wanted to be able to give you that apology and that I understand why you felt it was right to break up with me."

After giving her that kind of apology, the next step is always to try to get her to meet up with you in person, where you can then make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

[image: What to say when you meet up with an ex]

If you don't know how to ask for the meet up, or are unsure what to say or how to behave at the meet up to get her to agree to give the relationship another chance, I provide all that advice in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

2. If she has broken up with you because you cheated.

Cheating hurts, especially when the person who was cheated on was fully devoted and committed to the relationship.

Not all cheating break ups can be recovered, but based on the 100s of cases that I've dealt with over the years (20% of those being cheating break ups where the guy cheated on his woman), about 80% of these situations can be recovered and the woman will agree to give the relationship another chance.

So, what you need to say to her on a phone call or in person, is something along the lines of, "Look â□□ it's up to you whether you feel as though you could ever forgive me. I know that we're broken up now and that you probably don't ever want to forgive me or trust me or anything like thatâ□|I'm not asking for that from you, but what I do want to tell you is that what I did to you was a silly mistake based on my immaturity. I understand that it would have hurt youâ□|you probably don't care much now, but I just want you to know that the other woman (or women) didn't mean anything to me emotionally. It was just me being silly and immature and not yet being grown up enough to handle a committed, adult relationship. I donâ□□t expect you to want to get back together with me, but I just want to be able to let you know that I am sorry for what I did."

After that, you need to get her to meet up with you and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you at the meet up.

[image: Reattracting your ex when you meet up]

If you want to know exactly how to get her to meet up with you and then reattract her at the meet up, check out my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

3. If she has broken up with you because you wouldn't commit.

In most cases, this happens when a guy gets into a relationship with a woman that he's not fully attracted to (e.g. she initially pursued him, she grew on him over time, etc).

Although he might stay with the woman for a year or many years, he won't ever feel as though he wants to fully commit to her. Then, when she pulls the plug by breaking up with him, he realizes that she was more than good enough for him and he wants to get her back, rather than having to start from scratch with a new woman.

Yet, if he gets in contact with her, apologizes and ask for another chance, she won't always be willing to give it, especially if she has other guys interested in her.

Often, when I deal with ex back cases where a guy hasn't committed to a woman, she has given him several chances in the past to commit (e.g. move in together, get engaged, start a family, etc), but he never really changed.

So, in cases like this, what a guy needs to say to get her back is something along the lines of, "I don't expect us to get back together at all because I clearly did the wrong thing by you when we were in a relationship. You are almost certainly over me, hate my guts and never want to see the likes of me again, but I do want to be able to take this opportunity to tell you something that you deserve to hear. I want to tell you that I understand that I wasn't being mature in my approach to the relationship and back then, I wasn't fully ready for a grown up relationship and was behaving like a silly young man. Of course, I have now grown up and am no longer like that, but I know that from your perspective it's too lateâ□|and I accept that, but I just want to tell you that I do love you and that if you ever found a place in your heart to give our relationship another chance, you know that you've got a guaranteed option in me."

From there, the woman will feel as though he really has changed and gets it now.

In cases like this, the woman won't always be willing to immediately meet up with him and get back together, but there are specific tactics that a guy can use to speed up the process and make her feel as though she really is losing the love of her life.

If you want to learn how to make an ex feel that way, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

4. If she has broken up with you and is now with another guy.

This is probably the most common of the ex back situations I deal with, where the woman is able to move on quite quickly after a break up or she already had a replacement guy ready to go in the background.

In cases like this, the woman usually finds a new guy that gives her the kind of emotional experience that she wasn't getting in her previous relationship.

For example: If her previous boyfriend (or husband) was needy, insecure or clingy, then she will be attracted to guys who are more emotionally confident and secure than he was.

Another example is when a woman was in a relationship with a guy who wouldn't commit. In cases like that, she will usually find a guy who not only make her feel attracted and happy, but is more than willing to commit to her.

So, in situations where the woman has moved on, what a guy needs to do is improve his ability to make his ex feel attracted and respectful towards him on the phone and in person.

When he talks to her on the phone or in person, he needs to get her laughing, smiling and feeling attracted to his confidence and emotional strength and security as a man, rather than talking to her from a low emotional state or trying to suck up to her by being extra nice and courteous.

What a guy can say in a situation like this is something like, "I know that you've know moved on and I accept that. I know that we're not getting back together, but I do want to take this opportunity to tell you that I now do understand why you felt it was right to break up with me. It was a huge wake up call for me and I want to say sorry for the way I made you feel. I wish it could have worked things out, but obviously we couldn't and you've moved on now."

From there, the guy needs to be able to get her to meet up with him in person so he can get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new and improved version of himself.

Prior to the meet up, he also needs to ensure that he is using other techniques (that I only ever reveal in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System) to bring down her protective guard and make her feel more willing to meet up with him in person.

At the meet up, he needs to make her feel as though she can relax and respect him again. Once that happens, she will then drop her guard and allow herself to open up and feel attracted to him again, even if just slightly to begin with.

When she begins to feel attracted to him again, her feelings will naturally begin to change and she will look at him in a more positive light. She will also find it much easier to forgive him and begin to forget the mistakes he made in the past, because he is clearly a much better man now.

In cases like this, relationships can get back together right away, but they usually take anywhere from 2 weeks to 2 months to fully rekindle.

As long as he makes his ex girlfriend (fianc  or wife) feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for him, she will naturally begin to change her perspective of him and the gates to a rekindled relationship will begin to open.

For example: If she hated him during the break up and was turned off by how he handled himself afterwards, she will potentially have a negative perception of him.

However, if she meets up with him and he is now the sort of guy that she can look up to and respect (i.e. he is more emotionally mature and secure in himself as a man) and he is also able to make her feel attracted, laugh and smile during the interaction, she will begin to form a more positive perspective of him and her protective guard will start to come down.

[image: Changing how your ex feels]

There are also other techniques that you can use prior to the meet up to make your ex feel as though she really is losing the love of her life, which I outline in detail in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Okay, I hope these 4 examples of what to say to your ex to get her back have helped you understand the approach you need to take with the initial conversation.

If you need any further help, I recommend that you watch my step-by-step system for getting a woman back and begin the exciting process of getting her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Giving Space in a Relationship: 6 Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Regardless of how close a couple feels or how in love they are, a relationship between a man and a woman consists of two individuals who have decided to be together.

It's a decision to be together and that decision can change if it no longer feels right to be in a relationship (i.e. if the woman feels smothered by the guy or feels as though he is too controlling).

Although you and her have made a decision to be together in a relationship, it doesn't mean that you always have to be around each other 24/7, 365 days a year for the relationship to stay alive.

Some relationships can function perfectly if the man and woman live together, work together and spend pretty much all of their time together, but that type of relationship isn't for everyone.

In some relationships, it's often necessary for the couple to only see each other 1-2 times a week or twice a month, because they are too busy with work or study and aren't yet ready to be in a fully committed, lifetime relationship.

So, when giving space in a relationship with a woman, the main thing that you need to be sure of is that you're giving the type of space that is applicable to the unique dynamic between you and her.

6 Mistakes to Avoid

Here are 6 mistakes to avoid when giving space in a relationship...

1. Giving her too much space to the point where she feels as though you don't care enough anymore

[image: Giving a lot of space because you don't really care anymore]

Sometimes a woman will say that she doesn't really care how often she sees her boyfriend and will be perfectly happy working hard on her career or focusing on her studies.

If she sees him once a week, twice a month or even less than that, she might say that she is fine with it because she really doesn't care so much about the relationship and is more focused on making progress in her career.

Yet, just because a woman says that kind of thing initially, it doesn't mean that she is always going to be happy with that type of arrangement.

A mistake that some guys make is giving their woman too much space for too long, to the point where she begins to feel as though he doesn't really care and is taking her love and commitment to him for granted.

When a woman feels as though her boyfriend is taking her for granted, she will often become open to flirting with other guys so she can feel wanted, loved, appreciated and attractive once again.

Initially, she might not have any intentions of cheating on her man, but if she opens herself up like that, it is possible that she could meet another guy who makes her feel excited to be in love and wants to spend loads of time with her.

Even though she was originally happy with not spending much time with her boyfriend, It doesn't mean that she can't ever get to a point where feels bored of her studies or work and wants to focus more on love.

So, when giving space in a relationship with a woman, you must make sure that you don't follow her lead based on what she used to say. Why? A woman's word is not something that you can rely on as being an iron-clad agreement.

Generally speaking, men are expected to stick by their word no matter what because we are expected to make decisions based on logic, reasoning and emotional rationality. However, women are generally allowed to make decisions based on how they feel and as a result, they can change their mind later if they feel differently.

This is why women initiate most divorces and why if you ever get married, you must ensure that you get her to sign a prenuptial agreement.

She might be saying, "I promise to stick by you forever. We'll grow old together and never, ever break up" today, but that doesn't mean she will stick by that promise for life.

Likewise, your woman might be happy to be in a relationship with lots of space today, but that doesn't mean she won't feel differently about it tomorrow, next week or next month.

When it comes to relationships with women, you can't base your decisions on a woman's emotional promises or pledges in the moment. You have to be more rational and realistic and decide what you think will help both you and her to develop deeper feelings of respect, attraction and love for each over time.

Regardless of what a woman says, almost all women yearn to be a man's woman. She wants to relax into being a feminine woman, while her man takes on the majority of the responsibility for guiding both himself and her to a better life in the future.

2. Not giving enough space to the point where you begin taking away her individual freedom

[image: Taking away her individual freedom]

Some guys make the mistake of becoming too controlling of their woman's life.

He gradually forgets that prior to the relationship, she was an individual who was living her life perfectly fine without him and that she could leave him and be able to survive, thrive and prosper on her own or with a new man.

In other words, she doesn't necessarily need him, but as an individual, she is choosing to be with him. If she is unhappy, she can easily choose to not be with him in a relationship if he isn't able to make her feel the way that she wants to feel around a man.

Even when in a long-term relationship or marriage, a man and a woman are still just two individuals who have decided to be together.

They may do a lot together, have a great history together and be so close that they can finish each other's sentences, but at the end of the day, they are still two individuals in separate bodies.

The relationship will only stay together if both the man and the woman continually decide to remain together. These days, a relationship or even a marriage isn't a definite, iron-clad contract that cannot be broken.

If a woman is unhappy, she is free to leave.

It wasn't always that way though.

In the distant past, women were completely dependent on men. A woman had to remain as a virgin until marriage, lose her virginity on the wedding night, bear children for the man, cook and clean and stick by him until the end—|even if she was unhappy.

Back in the old days, it was seen as shameful or blasphemous to get divorced, so hardly anyone did it (e.g. in the USA, the divorce rate was less than 10% in 1900).

In today's world, women know that they have the freedom to break up with a guy if they feel like it. She can find herself a new man who makes her happier and she won't be branded as being slutty because is no longer a virgin.

So, to keep a relationship together, what a modern man needs to do is spend enough time with his woman to show her that he cares, but at the same time, still allow her the freedom to do what she wants to do.

For example: If she wants to take up dance classes, a modern man needs to allow his woman the freedom to explore that desire or dream, rather than being insecure about her potentially meeting another guy there.

If it's possible for him to join in (e.g. salsa, ballroom dancing) and he has the time available, then might want to go along and give it a try just for fun.

She might get bored of it after a couple of weeks, but because he did stop her and prevent her from experiencing individual freedom, she will feel a deeper sense of respect, attraction and love for him.

On the other hand, if she stopped her from going to dance classes based on his insecurity about her potentially meeting another guy, she will feel resentment towards him because he is preventing her from being who she wants to be.

Back in the old days, a man could get away with that type of selfish, insecure and controlling behavior, but not anymore.

A woman in today's world will simply lose respect and attraction for her man and begin to fall out of love with him. If that goes on for long enough, she will eventually begin to want to get out of the relationship and find herself another man.

Here's the thing though...

While it's important to allow your woman to have individual freedom, you shouldn't go too far with it to the point where you just let her do whatever she wants and never care about what might happen.

A woman still wants to see that you care, but she just doesn't want you to get insecure about it.

For example: If a woman said that she wanted to regularly go out dancing at nightclubs on the weekends with her single girlfriends and not invite you to come along, then it is perfectly fine to object to that.

Essentially, you would need to tell her that she should do things with her girlfriends who are in relationships or married, rather than going out with her single girlfriends and getting drunk in nightclubs where men actively hit on women.

If she refused and wanted to do it, I would break up with her on the spot because it would be clear that she's not even committed to the relationship. It's completely unacceptable behavior in a committed relationship or marriage.

If a woman is committed to her man and wants to be with him for life, she will have a completely different mindset compared to a single woman. She will want to do things that always involve her man and if he isn't there, she won't want to put herself in a position where drunk guys will be hitting on her.

3. Copying how another couple gives each other space, even though it doesn't match your relationship

Every relationship is different.

Some couples are very busy with their career and don't live together, so they only get to see each other once a week or twice a month. If they are truly in love, a truly compatible match and are emotionally secure in their commitment to each other, they can make it work.

However, that amount of space in a relationship doesn't work for every couple. Some couples function better when they are together all time. They want to live together, get engaged, get married, start a family and practically do everything in life together as a couple.

So, there is no exact answer on how space you should give a woman in terms of hours or days per week. It really depends on the unique dynamic between you and her and the lifestyle you and her live.

For example: When I was dating multiple women at once, I would only see a woman once a week or twice a month because I had plenty of other women coming around to see me. Yet, seeing a woman once a week isn't a golden rule that needs to be followed for all relationships.

When I met my wife (we've been together for 3 years at the time of writing this article), her and I immediately got into a fully committed, exclusive relationship. I got rid of all my other girls and went exclusive with her.

She actually left her apartment and moved in with me 5 days after we met. I would never allow another girl to that, but this was different.

To this day we live together, both of us work from home (she has a cosmetics company) and we always prefer to be together, even when visiting friends. How? Rather than having single friends, we now only hang out with people who are in committed relationships or marriages.

If we catch up with some of our single friends, it's usually at a party with other people, or some of the single friends join in on a dinner party full of couples.

Personally speaking, my wife and I hate being apart from each other. There's just something about our relationship that makes life much happier, brighter and more enjoyable. We're perfectly confident, happy, emotionally stable people on our own, but together, it's life on a completely different level.

So, if you ever hear people telling you that you should only see your girlfriend, fiancée or wife a couple of times per week because they are able to do it, you shouldn't blindly follow them. That kind of space works for their relationship, but it's not a golden rule for all relationships.

To be successful at keeping a relationship together, you need to adjust the amount of space to suit the unique dynamic between you and her. Don't do what you've always done with other women and expect that it will work with her.

Every relationship that you have with a woman will be slightly different, so you need to adapt and do what will work for you and her specifically.

For example: If you are sensing that your girlfriend is feeling smothered and would be much happier if you pushed her to spend one night a week hanging out with her girlfriends who are in happy relationships, then try to make that happen.

She might only want to do it a couple of times, but she will thank you by feeling more respect, attraction and love for you than if you were to selfishly ignore her unhappiness and keep her all to yourself.

Ironically, the more respect, attraction and love you make her feel, the less time she will want to spend away from you. She might even ask her girlfriends to come over to your place, so she doesn't have to be apart from you and can allow you to feel a part of that part of her life too.

Personally speaking, my wife even misses me when I go to the supermarket for 30 minutes to an hour. (Awww, how sweet).

I usually get a hug and a kiss when I get back and she will smiling and sometimes even say that she missed me.

Here's the thing though...

I wouldn't be getting that sort of reaction if I was emotionally selfish and didn't ever care about making her happy in the relationship.

I only get that reaction because I've adapted to the unique dynamic between her and I, while also continuing to deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction for me over time.

So, don't copy how another couple gives each other space or spends loads of time together. To be successful at keeping your relationship together, you need to adapt to the unique dynamic between you and your woman.

You also need to be prepared to grow with the relationship at a pace that is right for you.

For example: Some women are ready to get engaged, get married and settle down for life right away, whereas other women don't ever want to think about those kinds of things and just want to have fun for a while.

Yet, just make sure that you remain awake and aware to the changes in your woman.

She might start out just wanting to have sex with you for a while and even say that she hates the idea of family or moving in with a guy, but that doesn't mean she can't change her mind next month or next year when she realizes that you are the one for her.

4. Growing apart while you give each other space

[image: Growing apart while giving each other space]

A mistake that some guys make is to give their woman a lot of space and while they are apart, she makes a lot of progress in her career and life and he is stagnating and going nowhere fast.

Generally speaking, women want to be with a man who is courageous and masculine enough to stand up and go after his biggest dreams and ambitions in life.

A woman doesn't want to be the leader, the pillar of strength, the breadwinner or the type of woman who has to carry a man throughout life because he is too lazy, scared or incompetent to make something of his life.

She wants a man who can support himself or both of them on his own if he has to. This is important to a woman because most women secretly want to be able to stop working and relax into being a feminine woman (i.e. a man's woman, girly, free to be emotional, caretaker of the home, mother, housewife, etc).

So, if a couple is spending a lot of time apart and the woman notices that she keeps making huge advancements in her career, emotional intelligence and wisdom about life, while her man is falling behind, she will begin to feel as though they are no longer a match.

If you are giving space when in a relationship, make sure that you are continually moving forward in life, especially if you are her have recently broken up.

When your girlfriend, fiancé, wife or even ex can see that you are continually moving forward in life without needing her encouragement, it allows her to feel proud to be your woman, which helps to maintain her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

5. Not giving her emotional space due to neediness

One of the most important things that a man has to do to be successful in a relationship with a woman, is to consistently be an emotionally strong man.

You need to be emotionally strong, happy and secure in yourself with or without her by your side. As a man, your emotional strength and security cannot be reliant on a woman's reassurance of her love, affection and commitment to you.

You need to be self-sufficient in terms of your happiness, confidence and emotional security.

Women dream of being in a relationship with a man who doesn't need constant reassurance that she loves him and is committed to him. Instead, he trusts in her love and commitment to him and knows that he is naturally attractive to her because of his confidence and emotional masculinity.

When a woman is around a man with that type of masculine wisdom, it allows her to relax into being the feminine one in the relationship.

She knows that her man is emotionally masculine and will remain emotionally strong no matter what happens, which then allows her to relax into simply being his woman.

6. Giving her space in the hope that it will fix your relationship problems

Sometimes when a guy is looking for information on giving space in a relationship, it's because his woman has asked for space because she needs time to decide whether or not she wants to be in a relationship.

In most cases, when a woman asks a man for space from a relationship, it means that she wants to end the relationship, but doesn't have the courage to just come out and say, It's over.

Instead, she may say something along the lines of, I just need some space to find myself again, or, I just need a little space to think things over for a while, suggesting that she's not intending to break up with him, but she wants to create a little more distance between them for a while so that she can find herself or think about what she really wants out of life.

While giving space can sometimes help a couple to realize that they really do love each other and that a life together is what they really want, in most cases, it will lead to a definite break up.

The only way to stop the break up is to understand what you've been saying and doing to cause her to lose respect and attraction for you. Then, once you know that, you need to begin saying and doing the types of things that will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Watch this video to understand the 3-step process that a woman goes through before breaking up with a guy...

Note: The video above is for guys who've already been dumped by their woman.

I hope the advice contained in the video will help you prevent a break up from happening. If she does decide to break up with you, here's how to get her back...

As you will discover from the video above, the way to get a woman back is to make sure that you stop turning her off and start saying and doing the types of things that will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When a woman can see that her man really has changed and she now feels differently when she interacts with him, she will naturally begin to feel drawn to the idea of being with him in a relationship once again.

The Right Amount of Space to Give in a Relationship

Every relationship is different, so the amount of space and time that you and your woman will need to spend apart will differ from other people.

Space isn't always about spending time apart though. It can also be defined as:

Emotional space to have "me time" even when you're living together.

Space to spend time with friends and family, without always having to include the other person.

Space to work on projects and hobbies without being pestered by the other person all the time.

Some people spend their whole lives together and share as many moments as possible, because their lifestyle allows for it and because they prefer to live that way, while others spend a lot of time apart and still manage to make their relationship work.

To keep your relationship happy, harmonious and passionate, you need to get clear on the right space dynamic that will apply to you and your woman. What works for you and her today might not work in two years time, so you also need to be ready to adapt and change together as your perspective on life changes over time.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex-Girlfriend Back When She Has Moved On: 7 Tips

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex-girlfriend has moved on, it doesn't mean that she won't ever be able to feel respect, attraction and love for you once again.

Right now, she might feel as though her life is great with the new guy, but it doesn't mean that her feelings for him will remain the same for longâ€”especially when you start to use some of my attraction techniques and methods.

7 Important Tips For Getting an Ex-Girlfriend Back When She Has Moved On

To get an ex girlfriend back who has moved on, you need to stop making mistakes that will turn her off and start doing things that will attract her to you and cause her to want to leave the new guy.

Here are 7 tips to help you do that...

1. Don't let her treat you like "just a friend" via text.

[image: Don't chat to your ex via text]

If your ex-girlfriend has moved on with another guy, don't give her the privilege of chatting to you as a friend via text.

It's fine to text her as long as you use every text as an opportunity to make her feel some respect and attraction for you (e.g. showing emotional strength will make her respect you, making her laugh and smile will make her feel some attraction for you).

If you allow your ex to chat with you in a non-sexual, non-romantic, non-boyfriend/girlfriend way via text whenever she wants, you are simply helping her to feel good about herself as she moves on with the new guy.

She will realize that despite hooking up with a new guy, you are still keen to text back and forth whenever she wants to, even though there is nothing sexual, romantic or boyfriend/girlfriend about the texts.

This will then cause her to some lose respect for you (i.e. because you're eager to chat to her and give her what she wants, even though she isn't giving what you want), which will then make you seem less attractive in her eyes.

If you are texting back and forth with her, make sure that you actively make her feel attracted and respectful of you, rather than just acting like an innocent friend or an ex-boyfriend who doesn't deserve her.

If you act like you don't deserve her, she simply won't be able to respect you.

When a woman doesn't fully respect a guy, she will always find it very difficult to maintain any feelings of attraction for him. So, first and foremost, you must think, behave and take action in ways that make her feel respect for you.

In some ex back cases where a woman hates her ex boyfriend, the only time he should be texting her is to get her on a phone call, so he can then make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction and get her to agree to meet up with him in person.

If you don't meet up with your ex-girlfriend in person, she's not going to be able to properly experience the new and improved version of you, so she won't feel enough respect and attraction for you to want to seriously reconsider her decision.

2. Make her new guy seem less attractive and appealing compared to you.

Making the new guy seem less attractive and appealing compared to you can be done on the phone, in person or via social media.

When you talk to her on the phone, you need to get her laughing and smiling as she experiences the new, more confident and charismatic version of yourself.

In person, you should apologize for your mistakes, get her to forgive you and respect you again and then switch into making her feel attracted to you (e.g. getting her laughing, making her feel attracted to your newfound confidence and charisma, etc).

On social media, you can show her that you're now living a much more interesting lifestyle than you were before by posting up photos of you having a great time without her.

Some guys live a really interesting lifestyle already, but they never get around to taking photos and posting them on social media.

Other guys don't live a very interesting lifestyle, so they need to break out of their usual routine to do some new and interesting things that will capture the attention of their ex-girlfriend.

Of course, in many ex back cases, an ex-girlfriend will have blocked or unfriended her boyfriend on Facebook and other social media sites, but there are easy ways to fix that.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System I provide tested examples of what to text an ex, send via e-mail or say on the phone to get her to unblock you from social media and begin communicating with you again.

Whether you talk to her on the phone, see her in person or can only get her to look at you and your life via social media, the main thing that you need to is begin to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

If her new guy gets the sense that she is thinking positively about you, it may cause him to become a bit insecure (e.g. he might try to stop her from talking to you or seeing you), which will then make you seem more attractive. Why?

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength of men and turned off by the weakness. So, if your ex-girlfriend notices that now seem much emotionally stronger than her new guy, she will naturally begin to feel attracted to you again.

She won't be able to stop herself from feeling that way, even if she really hates you at the moment. When you trigger a woman's feelings of respect and attraction for you, she naturally begins to change how she feels, even if it's only slightly to begin with.

3. Don't try to change her mind with logic.

A mistake that some guys make when trying to get an ex-girlfriend back, is to attempt to convince her that things have really changed now and the relationship would be so much better if she would just change her mind and decide to give it another chance.

From a guy's perspective, what he is saying makes logical sense when he sincerely explains to his ex-girlfriend that he has changed and would be able to make her feel so much happier than before. It makes logical sense, but it isn't what actually works to get an ex-girlfriend back, especially if she has already moved on.

To get her back for real, you have to make her feel a combination of painful and positive emotions that will cause her to want to change her mind on her own.

When you trigger the right mix of emotions (e.g. respect, attraction, regret, envy, etc. — there are many other enticing emotions that you can trigger inside of her), she will naturally begin to feel drawn to you and will then begin to reconsider her decision.

You can make her feel the combination of painful and positive emotions on the phone or at a meet up, but you can't do it via text and you can't do it by having logical discussions with her about how convinced you are that you could make the relationship work this time.

4. Don't cause more damage to her feelings for you by being an insecure ex.

[image: Woman getting texts from an insecure ex]

Getting broken up with by the woman that you love really sucks.

However, despite how much pain you might be in, you've got to make sure that you're not making things worse by being insecure when you interact with her via text, on the phone, online and in person.

Sometimes, a guy will make the mistake of drowning himself in all the negative, painful emotions related to his ex-girlfriend dumping him and then moving on with another guy.

He's been left behind and is now feeling hurt, lost and vulnerable in the world without her. When he was with her, it was so much easier to feel confident and happy, but now he feels like a part of him is missing.

You can't blame a guy for feeling that way, but if you are serious about getting your ex-girlfriend back, you must get yourself out of that weak emotional state and into a strong emotional state.

As you know by reading through this article so far, women are attracted to the emotional strength of men and turned off by the weakness. So, any interaction that a woman has with her ex-boyfriend where he displays type of insecurity, is simply going to make her new guy seem more attractive and appealing in contrast to him.

5. Get to the point where you feel sorry for her because she's missing out on being with you.

One of the secrets of how to get an ex girlfriend back when she is moved on is to get to the point where you genuinely feel sorry for her because she's not with you.

Ironically, this is actually how a woman wants you to think and feel about yourself anyway. She wants you to have that type of confidence in your attractiveness and appeal to her.

She might not ever admit that to you, but a guy having unquestioned confidence in his attractiveness and appeal is a massive turn on for women.

As explained earlier, women are attracted to the emotional strength of men and turned off by the weakness.

So, if you are confident and self-assured about your value, attractiveness and appeal to her, she will naturally find you more attractive and appealing than if you were to doubt yourself and feel unworthy of her love, attention and affection.

Even if you don't fix or improve anything about yourself other than believing in your attractiveness and appealing, your ex-girlfriend will feel much more respect and attraction for you as a result.

She might test your confidence in yourself by saying harsh things like, "I feel nothing for you anymore" but you have to remain strong and believe in yourself.

Your ex-girlfriend is not going to want to feel as though she is doing you a favor by getting back with you, especially if she's moved on with a new guy.

She's going to need to see that the other guy doesn't make you feel insecure. In fact, you don't even waste a single moment thinking about him. He is nothing compared to you.

You are better than him and you don't even need to do anything to prove it, other than believe in yourself and know that no matter what, you are the man.

If you don't know how to have a high level of confidence in your value, attractiveness and appeal to your ex-girlfriend, it is one of the many things that I will give you when you go through my advanced training program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

This is such an important point that I am going to talk about it more in the next section, just to make sure you get it really clear in your head...

6. Don't look at the new guy as being better than you.

[image: Her new guy is not better than you]

Here's the thing...

Right now, your ex-girlfriend might be saying that she is happy now and that he is treating her well, but in most cases, the new guy will usually just be filling in the emotional gaps that you left open.

For example: If a woman breaks up with a guy who is insecure, she is usually going to feel much happier with a guy who is less insecure than her ex. Makes sense, right?

Yet, it doesn't mean that the new guy has bulletproof confidence and will be able to maintain her attraction for life, but in contrast to how her ex-boyfriend made her feel near the end of the relationship, the new guy currently seems like a better option.

Don't worry about him though.

He's nothing compared to you.

You know that you're a good guy and that you have grown, matured and become an even more amazing guy as a result of this break up.

True?

As for him, he has no guarantee that your girlfriend is going to stay with him.

For example: According to various studies and government statistics in Western countries, here are some approximate statistics.

- Approximately 50% of marriages will end in divorce.
- Approximately 85% of dating relationships will break up.
- Approximately 65% of rebound relationships (the relationship your ex-girlfriend is now in) will end within 6 months.

So, while it is possible that she may stay with her new guy for life (that would suck), it's also possible that she won't.

After successfully helping 100s of guys to get an ex-girlfriend, fianc  or wife back, I've found that it's usually possible to get an ex-girlfriend to leave her new guy within a couple of weeks to a couple of months.

Sometimes it happens earlier, but based on all of my vast experience, I've found that approximately 20% of guys are able to get their ex-girlfriend to leave the new guy within 2 weeks and 80% of guys are able to get it done within 2 weeks to 2 months.

In other words, you might get her back immediately or it might take a couple of months, but the chances are very if you are willing to do what is required.

What is required?

You've got to learn from your mistakes and bounce back with an improved ability to make her feel respect, attraction and love for you.

The better you are at making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when you interact with her, the faster she will reconnect with her feelings of love for you and reconsider getting back together again.

7. Realize that her feelings for you can change.

Luckily for you, human emotional states are not permanent.

Your ex-girlfriend might hate you right now, but that doesn't mean you can't change how she feels this week or next.

For example: Have you ever hated or disliked a person, but when they changed how they spoke to you and interacted with you, your feelings towards them changed fairly quickly?

You might have gone from hating that person to liking them, or from disliking them to being best friends with them.

You might have also had a similar situation with a woman that you initially didn't like or feel attracted to, but she then grew on you over time and you ended up really liking her or even loving her.

That's how human emotions work.

Human emotions are flexible and open to change.

When you present your ex-girlfriend with a more attractive and appealing version of yourself while talking to her on the phone and in person, she will naturally change the way that she feels about you.

I've already helped 100s of guys to successfully get an ex-girlfriend, fianc  or wife back and I would love to help you too.

If you want follow a step-by-step system that will make her leave the new guy and come back to you, I recommend that you watch my advanced training program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Proven Ways to Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're looking for proven ways to get your ex back, you're going to come across a lot of different opinions.

For example: Some people will say, "Forget about it. Just cut your losses and find another woman. Once a relationship breaks up, there's no going back."

Other people will say, "Sure you can get an ex back, but it's going to take a long, long time before it happens. You will have to give in to all of her demands like giving her space, apologize over and over again and be patient while you hope that she changes her mind one day."

[image: What is a proven way to get an ex back?]

Others will say, "Ignore her by using the No Contact Rule and wait for her to come running back. If she doesn't, it wasn't meant to be."

[image: Avoiding her with the No Contact Rule]

In other words, most people have no idea what to do and are simply giving their random opinion based on very little experience or knowledge on the topic.

99% of people who give advice on this topic have not personally helped 100s of guys to successfully get a woman back, so from their perspective, it's either impossible or too complicated to deal with.

Yet, here's the thing...

[image: Ways to get an ex back that are proven to work]

Statistically speak, almost 50% of couples who break up get back together again. So, not only is it possible to get an ex back, it's also very common.

Watch this video to understand why it's possible to get an ex back and how you should approach it from this point onwards...

As you will discover from the video above, you can get your ex back if you start to make her feel the kind of love, respect and attraction for you that will make her want to give the relationship another chance.

If the current way that you are interacting with your ex is turning her off, then you need to change that. You need to start interacting with her in a way that makes her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

That is what counts.

Based on the 100s of cases that I have personally helped guys with, I've found that even an angry woman who is saying, "Leave me alone! I never want to see you again" can calm down and become more open to at least talking to her ex within a few days, or after a couple of weeks.

Depending on how badly he has messed up, a guy can usually get an ex to agree to a meet up with him right away or within a week.

[image: Meet up with her and get the old spark back]

Then, at the meet up, he can get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

So, if you're looking for proven ways to get your ex back, you need to understand that to get her back for real, you have to be able to make her feel renewed respect and attraction for you as a man. When you get her to feel that way (on a phone call or in person), she will then be more willing to open herself up to loving you again.

So, how can you get her to feel that way? You have to approach it step by step...

Step 1. Understand What Really Caused Her to Break Up With You

Your ex is now your ex for a reason (or for a number of reasons).

Certain things happened in your relationship to cause her to stop feeling enough respect, attraction and love for you to justify staying together.

To re-spark her old feelings for you, the first thing you need to do is truly understand what caused her to disconnect with those feelings.

Watch this video to understand the 3-step process that a woman usually goes through before breaking up with a guy

As you will discover from the video above, there are many reasons why a woman can lose respect and attraction for her man.

Can you relate to any of the mistakes that are mentioned in the video? If so, then you need to make sure that you fix those things about yourself, before attempting to fully get her back.

If your ex notices (via your body language, conversation style, attitude, actions, vibe and behavior) that you actually haven't changed much at all, she's not going to be excited and eager to get back with you anytime soon.

Of course, not everything that goes wrong in a relationship is always the guy's fault, so unless he did very specific things that caused her to lose respect for him (e.g. cheated on her, belittled and criticized her, abused her, etc), he may not be sure what caused her to want to break up with him.

Although some women will tell a guy exactly why they want to break up, most women (not all) would rather give him a vague excuse like, "I think we need some time apart," or "I just don't feel the same way about you anymore," rather than say exactly what has caused them to stop wanting to be in a relationship with him.

Why do women do that?

Women don't want to be a man's teacher and be responsible for constantly teaching him how to understand her and be the kind of man she needs him to be.

In most cases, a woman will feel that she's already given him many signs along the way (e.g. being distant, throwing tantrums, telling him that she is tired of how he treats her or turned off by how he is acting lately, etc), to let him know that certain of his attitudes and behaviors have been making her lose respect and attraction for him.

Unfortunately, in most cases, guys either miss the signs completely, or they end up writing it off to her just being a moody woman.

To get your ex back, you need to go through a process with her of quickly rebuilding her respect, attraction and love for you...and the only way you can truly do that is to fully understand what caused her to break up with you in the first place.

For example: Here are some classic mistakes that guys make in relationships.

1. Taking her for granted

What often happens in relationships is that once the initial thrill of the being with someone new wears off, a couple ends up settling into a boring routine.

For example: Where previously a guy would compliment his woman often on her sexiness, he now begins to take it for granted. He will assume that he's told her enough times, so she doesn't need to hear it anymore.

If his woman once commented on how romantic it was to spend the night at home cuddling on the couch, he now takes it for granted that she wants to do that all the time (or that it's enough to keep her happy) and stops taking her out.

2. Giving her too much power in the relationship

Often, guys who feel they got lucky in scoring with their girlfriend (fiancée or wife), will secretly fear losing her if she realizes that she's settled for a guy who probably doesn't deserve her.

With that kind of insecure mindset, a guy will often let his woman have her way all the time. He will hope that by allowing her to have all the control in the relationship it will make her happy and if she's happy, she won't break up with him.

When she eventually does break up with him, a guy like this can't understand what has happened. He has been so good to her all along, but she now wants to leave him because she's unhappy.

What he doesn't understand is that women are attracted to men who are strong enough to take the lead in the relationship, no matter how much she tries to challenge his power and dominance.

If a woman has to become the man in a relationship, it means that she cannot truly relax and be the feminine, girly woman that she wants to be.

Step 2. Fix Your Emotional Issues Now, Not Later

[image: Fix your emotional issues now, not later]

To get an ex back, a guy usually can't just keep saying that he WILL change and improve if she gives him another chance.

Some women will accept that once or twice, but after a while, she will get sick of putting up with a guy who isn't yet capable of being the type of emotionally strong man that she needs, so she will dump him and try to move on.

He might plead with her and say that he is serious this time and will change, but unless she can see that he actually knows what to change and how to do it, she's usually going to be at the point where she is unwilling to give him another chance right away.

[image: I promise that I will change]

To get an ex back for real, you usually have to first make the changes to your behavior and attitude that have been turning her off and then let her experience these changes, either in person, over the phone, or via your online presence on social media sites like Facebook, Instagram, etc.

She needs to be able to see for herself that you have fixed the emotional issues you have that were turning her off (e.g. insecurity, emotional sensitivity, etc) and that you really have improved and changed.

You don't have to fully fix everything and become 100% perfect to get an ex back, but you do need to start working on your emotional issues, so that the next time she interacts with you she will sense that something really has changed.

She will hear it in your voice and she'll pick it up in your body language and she will begin thinking, "I don't know what it is, but something about him is really different...and I like it."

If you try to get an ex back without actually fixing or improving anything about yourself, and are just looking for those "easy" proven ways to get your ex back that don't involve any work on your part (e.g. buying her flowers and expensive presents, writing her long love letters and making promises that things will be different this time, using the No Contact Rule, etc), then you might get some attention from her, but it won't fix the real problems between you and her.

When the ex that nothing has really changed and that the same behaviors and attitudes that were turning her off are still there, she isn't going to want to stick around for long.

She might string her ex along for a while, but she will be actively trying to find herself a replacement guy, so she can make a cleaner break this time.

You Can Get Your Ex Back

[image: You can get your ex back]

If you're looking for proven ways to get your ex back, one of the most important things to understand is that human emotions can and do change.

If your ex felt love, respect and attraction for you in the past, then she can feel these emotions again today or tomorrow.

Just because, she may be saying, "I just don't love you anymore" right now, it doesn't mean she won't be able to reconnect with that love when you change the way that you make her feel when you interact with her.

When you present your ex with an improved version of yourself (i.e. emotionally stronger, more able to make her feel respect and attraction for you, etc), she will naturally begin to think and feel differently about you.

If you really want to get your ex back, you have to understand that you can make her feel differently about you.

How?

You need to start talking to her (on the phone or in person) in ways that get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

For example: If a guy is talking to his ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) and is being insecure, emotionally sensitive and clingy, then she isn't going to be feeling respect or attraction for him.

However, if he can get her on a phone call or meet up with her in person and get her laughing and feeling good around him, she is going to relax and open up to feeling attracted to other traits that he is also displaying (e.g. confidence, charisma, emotional masculinity, etc).

So, if you're looking for proven ways to get your ex back, make sure that you don't waste time trying to with lame tricks like the No Contact Rule or by hiding behind endless text messages.

The real, proven way to get your ex back is to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you on the phone and in person.

When she sees that you are capable of making her feel that way, she will naturally begin to open herself back up to being with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Said She Wants to Be Single

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy says, “My girlfriend said she wants to be single,” he’s usually reached a point where he feels like he’s just not going to be able to change her mind.

The relationship really seems like it’s over and it appears as though there is no way to change the way that she feels.

There is.

Watch this video to understand how to change her mind and stop her from breaking up with you...

Changing How She Feels

[image: Changing how your girlfriend feels]

If your girlfriend is currently saying things like, “I just don’t want to be in a relationship with anyone right now. It’s not you, it’s me, I just want to be single,” it simply means that (right now) she doesn’t feel good about the idea of being in a relationship with you.

However, that doesn’t make her feelings are set in stone.

No one is ever stuck on one feeling forever.

Feelings always change and sooner or later her current negative feelings towards you will change as well.

If you want to change her negative feelings to positive feelings, you need to make sure that you are making her feel the type of attraction, respect and love for you that will cause her to want to stick with the relationship.

For example: If a boyfriend is being clingy, jealous and insecure around his girlfriend, then she will naturally feel turned off by him and if that goes on for too long, she might break up with him or cheat on him.

On the other hand, if a boyfriend is emotionally strong and is able to make his girlfriend feel attracted by being a confident, masculine guy who makes her feel feminine and excited to be in love, then she’s not going to be saying that she wants to be single.

She’s going to want to stick with him, rather than risk getting out into the dating scene and having to put up with guys who can’t make her feel the way her boyfriend does.

So, if your girlfriend is saying she wants to be single, it’s pretty clear that, right now, she isn’t feeling enough attraction for you and isn’t excited about the idea of being in a relationship with you.

However, if you change your approach to the relationship, you can easily make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you again.

When you do that, her feelings of love will naturally come flowing back, because essentially, if there was real love between you and her in the past, then it is not dead.

Love doesn’t die. It can get buried under hurt feelings, resentments or misunderstandings, but ultimately the love will still be there in the background waiting to be re-awakened.

Love is something that can be brought back to life under the right conditions, so you just need to make sure you create and maintain those conditions, and your girlfriend will naturally change her mind about wanting to be single.

What are those conditions?

You need to make sure that the way that you think, behave, feel and take action around her and in life is deepening her feelings of respect, love and attraction for you over time, rather than destroying those feelings.

A lot of guys are great at getting relationships started, but once the initial buzz has worn off, the woman will start to feel restless if the guy is incapable of deepening her feelings and taking the relationship to the next stages.

If you have made your girlfriend feel that way, you need to start being attractive from now.

When you make your girlfriend see you as being more attractive, appealing and desirable than other guys, she will then change her mind about wanting to be single and will instead want to remain in a relationship with you.

Why Did Your Girlfriend Decide That She Wants to Be Single?

[image: Why did your girlfriend decide that she wants to be single?]

When a woman is in a relationship where she feels loved, valued and appreciated by her man, sheâ€™s not going to suddenly wake up one morning and decide, â€œI want to be single againâ€ | all of this exciting, heart warming love and attraction is boring and Iâ€™d rather alone.

Of course, some women are crazy psycho bitches and will do that, but the majority of women won't make a snap decision like that for no good reason.

So, if your girlfriend is a normal woman and is suddenly saying to you that she wants to be single, then something that you've done or been doing has made her think that being single would be better for her than sticking with you.

If you want to stop saying, â€œMy girlfriend said she wants to be single, and start saying, â€œMy girlfriend said she can't live without me, you have to show her that the problems she has been noticing in your relationship are now fixed and won't happen again.

If you've tried to ask her what the problem is, she might have told you that she just doesn't feel the same way anymore, isn't ready for a committed relationship or wants some time to find herself.

Any of those kind of reasons are vague and don't actually tell you what the REAL problem is.

For example: If the real reason why a girlfriend is breaking up with her boyfriend is that he doesn't have the kind of masculine confidence that will make her feel girly around him, she will rarely tell him that.

Instead, she will say, â€œI really care about you, but I just don't know if we are right for each other right now.”

Why won't she be honest and say what the real problems are?

Simple.

She doesn't want to be her boyfriend's teacher on how to be a man. She wants a ready-made man, rather than changing the relationship dynamic to a teacher > student or big sister > little brother dynamic.

She wants to be able to relax into being her boyfriend's woman (or girl), rather than having to be an authority figure or teacher to him. She wants to look up to him and respect him as her man, rather than have to pity him and guide him through life.

So, rather than telling him exactly what the problem is, she will come out with something like, "I think I want to be single for a while to find out what I want" or "I don't want to be in a serious relationship right now because I want to focus on my work/studies" or "I think we will be able to be with each other again in future, but right now I need to find myself."

Ignoring the Early Signs

Rather than coming out directly and telling a boyfriend exactly what he needs to change, a woman will usually begin by nagging, throwing a tantrum and getting emotional.

A lot of guys will write it off as her being silly or it being that time of the month again, but it's really a woman's way of letting you know that something is wrong and that she's not feeling the way she wants to feel.

She doesn't want to be a man about it and be clear, direct and to the point all the time. She wants to be emotional like a woman and hope that her guy senses that something is not quite right between them.

If her man picks up on her concerns and makes an effort to fix his behavior and improve himself, she will feel even more respect and attraction for him and will fall even deeper in love with him than ever before.

On the other hand, if he ignores her and avoids addressing the issue, she will gradually begin to lose respect for him and eventually her attraction and love for him will get pushed into the background.

Unable to connect with her feelings of love, respect and attraction for him, she will begin to interact with him from the basis of feelings like resentment, disappointment, frustration and repulsion.

If that goes on for long enough, she might eventually get to the point where she is tired of feeling that way and either breaks up with her boyfriend, cheats on him or gets the conversation started by saying that she wants to be single right now.

Questions to Ask Yourself at This Point

If you truly want to fix the problems between you and your girlfriend, you will need to first understand which of your attitudes and behaviors are causing her to want to exit the relationship.

Ask yourself these questions:

1. Have you been taking her for granted?

Throughout the relationship, have you made your girlfriend feel truly loved and valued? Not just as the start of the relationship (that's the easy part), but later on after the initial buzz of being with someone new had worn off.

2. Have you been making her feel like a real woman?

To make a woman feel like a real woman, you need to use your masculinity to make her feel feminine and girly in contrast to you.

So, does your girlfriend feel feminine and girly in contrast to your masculinity, or have you made her feel like more of a neutral friend or buddy?

Have you let go of your masculinity and possibly been a bit feminine in your behavior, attitude and thinking around her?

3. Have you been too clingy and needy at times?

Did you make the mistake of smothering her with your insecurity (e.g. regularly needing her reassurance that she loved you and found you attractive)?

Did you feel jealous when she talked to other guys and feared losing her?

4. Do you believe that you got lucky when she agreed to be your girlfriend?

Have you secretly felt like she is too good for you? If so, she would have picked up on that and it would have turned her off.

A woman wants to be with a guy who makes her feel lucky to be with him. He can easily attract other women if he wants to, but is deciding to be with her because she is beautiful, has great character (e.g. loyal, caring, etc) and treats him well.

Do you secretly believe that you will find it difficult to get another quality woman like her if she decides to leave you?

5. Do you have big goals and ambitions for your life, or have you been making her your main goal?

Have you been rising up through the levels of life like a man should, or have you been taking life â□□ day by dayâ□□ and not making any massive plans for your future together?

The above questions highlight a few of the reasons that can cause a girlfriend to lose interest in being in a relationship with her boyfriend.

When you identify the real reasons why your girlfriend wants to be single, you can then make the right changes to get her to feel the type of love, respect and attraction that cause her to want to stick with the relationship.

Fix Your Issues and Improve Yourself Now, Not Later

[image: I promise that I will change]

Right now, your girlfriend doesnâ□□t want to hear that you WILL change. She doesn't want you to promise that if she gives you another chance, you really will change this time.

She wants to know that you have already changed by assessing your body language, conversation style, vibe, attitude and actions.

You donâ□□t have to become perfect or change everything to get her to want to be with you again. However, when you fix any of your issues (e.g. a lack of confidence, insecurity, fear, lack of ambition, etc), you will see that it not only makes your girlfriend feel differently about you, but it also begins to have a positive effect on other areas of your life too.

Making Her Want to Stay in a Committed Relationship With You

[image: Making her want to stay]

When your girlfriend sees the changes in you and feels differently around you as a result, she will then feel as though her life wouldn't feel right without you in it.

She will find herself feeling unhappy if she remains stuck to her idea of wanting to be single. In fact, getting back together will actually make her feel good about herself again.

So, if you want to stop saying, “My girlfriend said she wants to be single,” and start saying, “My girlfriend loves me and never wants to leave me” you've got to make sure that you make some real changes to how you approach the relationship.

If the current way that you are thinking, feeling, behaving and taking action around her and in life is turning her off, you need to change that.

You can't expect a modern woman to stick with a guy for life just because the relationship felt good at the start.

Today's women are allowed to break up with guys and get in and out of relationships until they find the guy who makes them feel the way that they really want to feel when in a relationship.

You can make your girlfriend feel as though you are still the one, but you have to be willing to make some changes to the way you think, feel, behave and act around her.

Three Options: Which One is Best For You?

[image: Three options to choose from]

At this point, you really have three options to choose from.

1. Dump her and begin seeing other women immediately, to make her feel the pain of losing you and making such a silly decision about her relationship with you.
2. Change your approach to the relationship to make her feel a renewed sense of respect, love and attraction for you. Then, build on that from there to make the relationship better than it ever was before.
3. Don't do anything and just let the whole thing slowly fall apart.

If you want to go with Option 1 and get some new women, I recommend that you read my book The Flow

If you want to go for Option 2 and get the spark back in your relationship, I recommend that you watch my video program, Make Her Love You For Life

If you want to go for Option 3 and let the relationship fall apart, then be prepared for a lot of emotional pain and heartache as she potentially cheats on you or strings you along while she finds a replacement guy.

Which option do you want to go with?

Most guys are able to pull off Option 2 and get the relationship back on track, but if you think she is a lost cause, then get onto Option 1 before she does that to you.

By the way...

If you and her are already broken up, you can also get her back. Watch Get Your Ex Back Super System for instructions on how to get your girlfriend back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make Up With Your Ex Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To make up with your ex girlfriend, you need to apologize for your mistakes and let her see that you really have changed and become a better man now.

You can't simply promise an ex-girlfriend that you will change. In most cases, a woman will need to see that her ex-boyfriend has already learnt from his mistakes and made a serious effort to make some real changes.

For example: If a guy got dumped by his ex-girlfriend because he was too insecure, needy, clingy or controlling, she isn't going to be excited to take him back because he is saying that he won't do that anymore.

Instead, she is going to need to see that he really has changed and to find that out, she will need to first talk to him on the phone to hear the change in how he thinks, talks and communicates with her. She will then need to meet up with him in person to assess his body language, vibe, attitude, communication style and behavior to see if the changes are real.

If she suspects that he hasn't changed anything and is just putting on an act to hopefully make up with her and get the relationship back together, she will put her guard up and reject him.

Think about it this way...

Have you ever been talking to someone who was acting like they were being truthful or like they were being nice to you, but you could sense that something wasn't right?

Your ex-girlfriend has the same human sense, so don't try to trick her into getting back with you by acting like you have changed. She will pick up on that and it will turn her off the idea of giving you another chance.

Watch this video to understand where guys go wrong when trying to make up with an ex girlfriend and what you should do instead to be successfulâ|

As you will discover from the video above, your ex-girlfriend is probably not going to take you seriously until you can make her feel the type of respect and attraction that she needs to feel to justify giving you another chance.

Some women are easier to get back with than others, but if you feel as though your ex-girlfriend is a bit more difficult than other women, make sure that you do this right.

If you want to make up with her and get the relationship back together, start by respecting her needs and actually making some changes to how you think, feel, behave and act around her.

Let her see that you really do care about how badly you were making her feel and have put in the effort to learn about where you were going wrong and what you need to do to fix it.

5 Things to Avoid When Trying to Get an Ex Back

Some guys can't stop themselves from going into panic mode when an ex-girlfriend decides that she wants to end the relationship.

All of a sudden, his life goes from comfortable to sickening. He can't eat, sleep or think properly and it feels as though he is losing her and can't really do anything about it.

He can fix the problem and make up with his ex girlfriend, but making the following mistakes will slow down the process and potentially make her feel like she needs to quickly fall in love with another guy to get her current boyfriend out of her mind and life!

1. Begging, pleading and groveling for forgiveness

[image: Please give me another chance]

As much as this might initially seem like a good idea (i.e. because it shows how much you care), calling up an ex girlfriend and begging her for forgiveness is not going to change her mind.

She may listen and hear you out, but once she's had the satisfaction of knowing that you still want her and that you can't live without her, she will reject you. Why?

A guy who begs, pleads or grovels is a big turn off for a woman because women are instinctively attracted to men who are emotionally strong with or without a woman.

What a woman wants to see that her ex-boyfriend wants her in his life and he loves her, but he doesn't NEED her for his emotional security and strength.

2. Ignoring her by using the No Contact Rule

[image: Avoiding her with the No Contact Rule]

A common piece of advice that you'll read about on the internet is to use the No Contact Rule to lure your ex girlfriend back.

In most cases (not all), the No Contact Rule is a really bad idea and here is why!

Yes, by ignoring your ex-girlfriend, she may contact you or call you at some point, but that is not the same as her wanting to make up with you and give the relationship another chance.

In most cases, a woman will respond to the No Contact Rule by contacting her ex-boyfriend (fiancé or husband) to check that he is still hoping to get her back.

Once she realizes that he hasn't moved on and was just playing a trick on her, she will lose more respect for him and feel even more determined to move on without him.

3. Making promises to change, rather than actually changing

A woman will rarely just break up with a guy for reason at all, unless she is a crazy psycho.

Almost all women break up with a guy because he has been making mistake after mistake in the relationship, which has caused her to lose respect for him, then lose attraction for him and then fall out of love with him.

Watch this video to understand the process that your ex-girlfriend most-likely went through before breaking up with you...

As you will discover from the video above, it usually takes a lot of mistakes to add up to a woman eventually wanting to break up with her man.

When a woman voices her frustrations, demands that he change or even threatens to leave, a guy will sometimes promise to change. He will apologize for his mistakes and promise that he will change.

Yet, if the relationship ends in a break up, it means that he failed to change enough or at all.

In cases like that, the woman has heard all the promises before, so why should this time be any different? Should she believe him this time, or just cut her losses and move on before she wastes more of her life with a guy who isn't willing to improve and change himself for the betterment of the relationship?

If she suspects that he is trying to get her back with empty promises, she will feel as though he's not taking her and the problems in their relationship seriously and it will make her feel even more repelled and turned off than before.

4. Texting her repeatedly

[image: Repeatedly texting an ex]

It's natural for you to really miss your ex and to want to stay in touch with her as much as possible, but texting her too often is a really bad idea.

Based on my years of experience helping guys to get women back, I have found that the ONLY time you should text an ex is to arrange a phone call so you can then arrange an in-person meet up.

Then, at the meet up, you need to apologize for your mistakes and get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Once that has been established, her guard will come down, she will smile more and will become open to feel attracted to you while you interact with her (e.g. if you make her laugh, flirt with her, etc).

Pretty much every guy I've ever helped to get an ex back has made the mistake of texting the crap out of his ex.

In other words, he tries to get her back by texting and texting and texting.

Here's the thing though...

If you hide behind text, your ex can lead you on for weeks or months, making it look like you have a chance, while she moves on with another guy.

If you want to make up with your ex-girlfriend for real, you've got to stop wasting time with text and start making her feel attracted to you over the phone and in person.

Text is also a really bad idea because if your ex is currently mad at you and perceives you as desperate or insecure, how do you think she'll judge what you're saying to her via text?

Do you think that she'll think, "WOW! That was a cool text! He must be so confident, charismatic and attractive right now. I just HAVE to meet up with him ASAP!!"?

Of course not.

Text is crap when trying to get an ex back.

Without seeing you face to face, she has to judge what you're saying via text based on her current perception of you. Via text, she can't see that you've changed and she can't feel sexual attraction for you as a man.

This is why texting her for any other reason, other than to arrange a phone call or a meet up, will usually turn her off even more and make her want to distance herself from you even more.

5. Letting her take control of the situation

When I help phone coaching clients to get their ex back, I pretty much always find that the guy has been letting the woman push him around, play mind games and essentially hide behind text.

If you want to make up with your ex girlfriend, you need to take control of the situation, rather than hoping that she somehow starts being nice and helps you get the relationship back together.

The same principle applies to picking up women or dating women. You have to lead the way and take charge, otherwise the woman won't be able to respect you as a man. If she can't respect you, then she's not going to be able to feel attracted to you.

Doing It Right

To make up with an ex girlfriend quickly, you need to show her that you've learned from the experience of being dumped and that you've taken action to become a better man.

You can't do that via text and you can't do that by using the No Contact Rule.

You have to get yourself a meeting with her where you can show her that you've already improved yourself (e.g. you're no longer insecure, you now know how to make her feel the way she wants to feel, you understand the reasons why she broke up with you and have already fixed those things about yourself, etc) and she will then open back up to feeling love, attraction and respect for you again.

If you're interested in learning how to get her to agree to an in-person meet up, what to send via text to get her on a phone call and what to say on the phone, then I recommend that you watch my video training program Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Why wait another day when you could be on the phone with her in the next couple of hours arranging a time to meet up?

All you need to do is watch my training and then follow the steps (that I developed by helping more than 100 phone coaching clients to get a woman back) and you will be meeting up with her, re-attracting her and getting her to want another chance.

Ready to take the first step to get her back for real?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Do I Know if My Ex Wants Me Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Your ex is either going to make it really obvious that she wants you back, or she is going to act as though she doesn't even though she's secretly hoping that there still might be a chance for you and her.

An obvious sign that your ex wants you back is that she is contacting you because she wants to meet up with you in person and is regularly saying that she misses you and loves you.

However, if your ex is only contacting you via text and social media, it doesn't necessarily mean that she wants you back.

In most cases, an ex will do that simply to keep you around and give you the impression that there is still a chance to get back together, while she actively tries to find a replacement guy at the same time.

In the 100s of cases that I've personally helped guys through, I've found that about 95% of guys get stuck texting their ex back and forth for weeks while she secretly moves on without him.

When She Wants You Back, But is Waiting to See if You Can Make it Happen

[image: Waiting for her ex to reattract her]

One of the reasons why you shouldn't waste time wondering, "How do I know if my ex wants me back?" is that women don't always make it completely obvious.

In many cases that I've dealt with, the woman wasn't making any real attempt to get the relationship back together and was simply waiting to see if her ex boyfriend (fiancÃ© or husband) had the ability to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him to give her a reason to reconsider the relationship.

If you are serious about getting your ex back, you need to get clear on how to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction when you speak to her on the phone or see her in person.

You cannot achieve it via text, so do not hide behind text messages and social media comments.

You have to get her on the phone or meet her in person to make her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you. Once you do that, she will naturally and automatically reconnect with her old feelings of love for you.

Watch this video to understand where guys go wrong when trying to get an ex to want them back and what you should do instead if you want to be successful...

As you will discover from the video above, your ex is only going to begin feeling like she wants you back if you can make her feel enough respect and attraction for you to justify giving the relationship another chance.

Some women who lack experience with relationships or who can't find a replacement guy, will get in contact with their ex and give him another chance even though he isn't making her feel much respect and attraction, but the relationship won't last.

When she realizes that he still doesn't have the ability to make her feel the way she wants to feel in a relationship, she will simply dump him again.

Why Did She Break Up With You?

[image: Why did she break up with you?]

A woman falls in love with a guy who makes her feel the way that she wants to feel in a relationship.

So, you did something right in the beginning.

You got her into a relationship, things were going well and then something screwed it up.

Watch this video to understand the process that a woman goes through before breaking up with a guy to see if you made any of the mistakes mentioned...

As you will discover by watching the video above, if you've destroyed her feelings of respect and attraction for you and she has now fallen out of love with you, the first step is to get her respect back.

If you want to know what to say and do on the phone and when you meet her in person to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, I recommend that you watch my advanced training program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Did You Make Any of the Following Mistakes in Your Relationship With Her?

The start of a relationship is usually fairly easy for most couples, because there is a lot of lust and new, exciting feelings that make everything feel good.

When a guy is skilled at deepening a woman's love, respect and attraction for him over time, the relationship will just get better and better the longer they stay together.

However, if a guy lacks essential knowledge on how to keep a woman happy in a relationship, he might end up making one of the following mistakes, which then begins to ruin her respect and attraction for him...

1. Taking her for granted

[image: Did you make any of these mistakes in the relationship?]

To keep a relationship happy, both the man and the woman need to appreciate each other and really want to be with one another.

If a man slips into a pattern of behavior where he takes a woman's interest in him for granted, she might put up with it for a while (even for a couple of years if she really loves him), but she won't put up with it forever.

For example: He cancels plans with her often, he doesn't reply to her texts or calls, he isn't affectionate enough with her, he doesn't appreciate the efforts she puts in to look good for him, he expects her to essentially be like a slave for him (e.g. run his errands, cook, clean, etc), he is too bossy and controlling and expects her to just put up with it, etc.

There's only so much of that treatment that a woman can put up with. She is living in a time where it's no longer shameful to break up and find a new guy and she knows that she only has to get on Tinder or online dating, or go to her local bar and she'll be able to find a new guy quite easily.

If she doesn't actively try to find a new guy, she might innocently meet a guy one day (e.g. at work, at university, at a party, at a bar, etc) who gives her a lot of attention and makes her feel special. She will then begin wonder why she is continuing to put up with her current man who doesn't even care about her.

When she breaks up with her current man, he will usually accept it initially because he's used to her attempts to try to get him to care and assumes that she will coming running back to him.

Yet, when he sees that she is happily moving on without him and he is feeling lonely without her, he will be the one who comes running back to her. He will realize that he had a great woman who loved him and cared about him and he was simply taking her love, respect and attraction for him for granted.

He might then beg and plead for another chance, buy her gifts and try to get her to see that he is serious about her and wants her back.

Yet, the more desperate he becomes, the less attracted to him she feels and the whole situation spirals out of control.

Obviously, to avoid that happening in the first place, a man needs to love and respect his woman and make sure that she loves and respect him back. It has to be a two-way thing.

What can a guy do if he's already made that mistake?

Simple: He needs to meet up with her in person, apologize for his mistakes and then get right on with making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

He has to put all the previous drama behind them and focus on making her feel enough respect and attraction for him to justify giving the relationship another chance and leaving the new guy, if she has one already.

2. Giving her too much power in the relationship

[image: Did you give her too much power in the relationship?]

In a relationship between a man and a woman, the needs to make sure that the woman knows her place.

If a woman puts a woman into the position of having more power over him and being able to control him and push him around, she loses respect for him. After a while, she stops feeling attracted to him and then begins to fall out of love with him.

Putting a woman doesn't mean being disrespectful towards her, putting her down, making her feel stupid or ordering her around like some sort of slave housewife from the 1940s.

What putting a woman in her place means is that she understands who the man is and who the woman is in your relationship.

You are the man, the more dominant and you are responsible for taking the lead to guide both you and her into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction for each other over time.

You are also responsible for making sure that you and her are always heading towards a better life and future together, rather than hoping that she takes on the lead and guides you.

She is the woman and is not more dominant than you. However, she should also have equal say and can contribute as much as she wants to guiding both of you into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction and also guiding both of you to a better life in future.

A lot of guys who get dumped by a woman, have made the mistake of giving her way too much power in the relationship in the hope that it keeps her happy.

Initially, some women will enjoy having a lot of power over a guy and being able to order him around and control him. Yet, that is not what makes a woman feel deeper respect, love and attraction for a guy over time.

The more he allows her to push him around, the less respect she has for him. Instinctively, she knows that if he can't even stand up to her, he's not going to be very good at standing up for himself at work in or life at general and will likely get pushed around or taken advantage of by mean, selfish people.

Women are naturally attracted to men with alpha male characteristics and one of those characteristics is that you can stand up for yourself when interacting with her and in your day to day life.

This type of alpha male characteristic helps ensure that a guy is more successful in life. It doesn't guarantee it, but it's a signal to a woman that this man is strong and capable of facing the challenges of life and being able to achieve success no matter what.

3. Being insecure or emotionally sensitive

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men and turned off by the weakness.

When a guy initially gets into a relationship with a woman, he will usually find it easy to feel confident and emotionally secure because she's showing him a lot of interest and affection.

However, all women naturally test their man's emotional strength at random times in a relationship. One of the most common tests is where the woman will pull back her attention, interest and affection to see how the guy reacts.

If he reacts by becoming insecure, jealous, controlling or angry with her, she knows that he lacks emotional strength. However, if he remains confident in his attractiveness to her and continues on as per normal, her respect and attraction for him will deepen.

Women instinctively know that they are most-likely going to live a better, safer, happier life with a guy who is emotionally strong with or without a woman.

So, when a guy becomes insecure and emotionally sensitive when in a relationship with a woman, she feels turned off by him and pulls back her affection and interest even more.

When he notices that she is losing more interest, he will usually become even more insecure and emotionally sensitive, which will cause her to lose more respect and attraction for him. At that point, the relationship will begin spiralling out of control and heading for a break up.

Making Her Want You Back

Some ex's automatically want to give you another chance because they miss you, are attracted to you and are still in love with you.

However, if your ex isn't desperately trying to meet up with you to rekindle the relationship, then you need to make something happen.

You need to actively begin triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you. When you make her feel that way, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her feelings of love for you and will begin to want you back.

So, rather than wondering, "How do I know if my ex wants me back?" I recommend that you start asking yourself, "How can I make my ex want me back?"

If you want to follow an easy, step-by-step system to get your ex back, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Texting Your Ex: Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The worst thing that you can do when trying to get an ex girlfriend (fianc  or wife) back is to excessively text her for the following reasons:

- To explain where you went wrong.
- To ask her for another chance.
- To just stay in touch.
- To try to have a conversation with her.

Why?

[image: Texting your ex girlfriend]

- If she doesn't feel much respect or attraction for you right now, she's not going to really care about what you're saying via text.
- She can easily misinterpret what you're saying (i.e. since she can't hear your tonality and how you're expressing what you are texting, she has to GUESS at how you'd be saying it and if she's not happy with you, she will usually guess in a negative way).
- She can string you along for months just to make herself feel good that you still need her.
- Texting doesn't make a woman feel enough respect and attraction to feel like she should forgive you and meet up with you in person.

The fact is, you won't be able to have the same impact while texting your ex as you would if you just picked up the phone and called her.

I know, you're probably thinking that she doesn't want to talk and that she prefers texting, but I don't care what she prefers    I care about what is going to work to get her back for you.

Texting doesn't work.

It's a waste of time and energy.

You've got to get her on an actual phone call.

If she is not answering your phone calls, then do this:

1. Try to call her at a time when you know that she'll be available to answer.
2. If she doesn't answer, send her this text, "Hey Michelle    I was just trying to call because I have something quick that I wanted to ask you on the phone. I guess you're busy at the moment. I might try to call another time."
3. She will probably reply with something like, "Sorry I missed your call    I was busy" or "What did you want to ask me?"
4. Whatever her response is, just call her.
5. If she still doesn't answer, simply try to call her in a couple of days. She will be curious to answer and see what you wanted to ask her.

Then, when you get her on the phone, you've got to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

[image: Texting an ex vs. calling her]

Getting her laughing and feeling good, have a chat, apologize for your mistakes and get her to agree to meet up with you in person for a quick chat.

When you meet up with her in person, you need to build on the attraction and respect and get her to forgive your past mistakes.

If you want to know exactly what to do at each step of the process when getting your ex back, I recommend that you watch my awesome, proven to work program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

When going through the process of getting an ex back, guys have all sorts of questions and make all kinds of mistakes. So, if you're confused about how to get your ex back and you are interested in having someone help you through the process, I'm here for you.

Trying to Text an Ex Back is Only One of the Classic Mistakes Guys Make Texting your ex as a means to get her back is a big mistake to make, but there are other classic mistakes that guys make as well.

Watch this video to understand where guys go wrong when trying to get a woman back and what you need to do instead to succeed...

As you will discover from the video above, your ex is really only going to take you seriously when you are able to make her feel the type of respect and attraction that she feels is necessary to consider giving you another chance.

...and you cannot achieve that via text.

You've got to get her on the phone and then meet up with her in person. If you try to hide behind text, you will simply drive yourself crazy thinking about what her reply might mean.

It's a waste of time and energy.

There is absolutely nothing that you can send to your ex via text that will make her feel a truckload of respect and attraction for you.

She needs to see that you understand the real reasons why she broke up with you and have already made changes to become a better man as a result.

Watch this video to understand some of the possible reasons why your ex broke up with you and what you need to do to get her back...

Texting your ex will do nothing to change the way that she perceived you and felt about you when she chose to dump you.

Women aren't stupid.

They know that it's very easy to say things via text, but it's another thing to be able to do those things in person.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he wasn't enough of a man for her (e.g. he was insecure, needy, clingy, didn't have much purpose in life), then what is a text going to achieve?

That's rightâ€”nothing.

A guy like that needs to get his ex on the phone and explain that he understands why she broke up with him, apologize for putting her through that and then let her know that the break up has been a huge wake up call for him.

Throughout the call, his ex will be analyzing what he is saying and how he is responding and reacting to her to determine whether or not he really has become more of a man.

If he hasn't, she's not going to be interested in meeting up with him, but if he has and is also making her feel good on the phone as well (e.g. getting her laughing, etc), then she will be much more willing to meet up with him in person.

Asking Her to Tell You What She Wants You to Do Via Text

[image: Texting your ex woman]

Women hate it when guys ask for instructions on how to be the man they want.

Why?

If a woman has to take on that role, it destroys the sexually attractive dynamic that exists when a woman is with a man that she can look up to and respect.

Instead, she feels like she has to take care of him like a mother would a child, or guide him like a teacher would a student.

If she has to teach him how to be a man this time, what will happen next time? Will he keep stuffing up and then expecting her to guide him?

What women want is a ready made man who is able to make her feel the type of respect, attraction and love that she wants to feel when in a relationship.

A woman doesn't want to have to teach a confused guy how to be more of a man and then destroy her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him in the process.

She wants him to figure that stuff out on his own and then just be a ready made man that she can enjoy the rest of her life with.

A big mistake that I see guys making is when they text their ex with something like, "I promise I can change. Whatever it is you want me to change I'll do it, just tell me what you want."

The woman just shakes her head in disappointment and then feels regret about getting into a relationship with him in the first place.

She might not be able to explain why it turns her off so much, but she will instinctively feel repulsed by that sort of behavior from a guy.

A woman will often explain her disgust in way where she is annoyed at how emotionally uncommitted he is to the relationship to not even care about what she wants and needs.

This is because most women just expect men to "get it" and if he doesn't, she feels turned off and annoyed by him.

A woman also wants a guy who can lead the way in a relationship, which then allows her to relax into being a feminine woman (i.e. feeling girly, emotional, etc).

The Real Way to Get Your Ex Back

The real way to get your ex back is to stop playing games with her (e.g. like the silly No Contact Rule).

Just get her on the phone and respark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, apologize for your mistakes and then get her to agree to meet up with you in person.

Nothing happens until you get the meet up because until your ex feels respect and attraction for you in person, she usually won't be feeling enough to want to give the relationship another chance.

When you meet up with her in person and make her feel attracted to you in new and exciting ways (e.g. by being more confident and charismatic, by making her laugh, by passing her tests, etc) that is when things will really change between you and her.

I've lost count of the amount of phone coaching clients that I've helped who had been hiding behind texts for weeks or months with their ex and when I pushed them to make the phone call and use my attraction techniques at the meet up, they then got another chance with their ex.

You can't get her back via text, so don't waste anymore time doing that.

What really matters is whether or not you understand the real reasons why she broke up with you and have already made changes, as well as whether or not you can now make her feel a good enough level of respect and attraction to justify giving the relationship another chance.

When you use the techniques from my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, you will be able to make her feel a truckload of attraction and respect for you to the point where getting back together actually becomes her idea.

That may sound like a difficult thing to achieve at this point because your ex is probably being cold to you, but it is possible to change how someone feels.

Are you ready to do what it really takes to get an ex back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get a Woman Back: 6 Dangerous Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I'm going to explain how to get a woman back after a break up, as well as provide you with 6 dangerous mistakes to avoid.

While these mistakes are dangerous to make (because they turn a woman off and cause her to lose respect for you), it is possible to recover from those mistakes and get her to see you in a positive light again.

6 Dangerous Mistakes to Avoid When Attempting to Get a Woman Back

Getting a woman back requires that you take the approach that will make her feel the most amount of respect and attraction for you as possible.

Making any of these mistakes will ruin her feelings of respect and attraction, but as you will discover ☐ ☐ you can get her to forgive you and reconnect with her positive, loving feelings for you.

1. Losing control of his emotions when she breaks up with him (i.e. crying, sulking, getting angry)

[image: Losing control of emotions]

Not all guys make this mistake, but based on my years of experiencing helping guys to get women back, I've found that about 80% of guys do.

For example: If a guy is very masculine in how he thinks, feels, behaves and takes action in life, then he's not going to be emotionally dependant on a woman, so he will be less likely to lose control emotionally if she says that she wants to break up.

He's going to be his own man with or without her. He will love her and want her in his life, but if she chooses to get out of it, he will be fine without her.

On the other hand, if a guy isn't very masculine in how he thinks, feels, behaves and takes action in life (i.e. he's a bit of an emotional wimp, insecure, isn't rising through the levels of life to achieve his biggest goals and ambitions), then he's going to feel fairly dependant on a woman emotionally.

She will feel like his "everything" and without her, his life won't feel like it's worth living.

The second type of guy is usually the one who will become very emotional and will essentially try to guilt trip his woman into wanting to stay with him.

This is a dangerous mistake to make because women are sexually attracted to the emotional strength of men and turned off by the weakness.

Additionally, for a woman to want to stay in a relationship with a man, she has to be able to respect him and look up to him, not look down on him as being a lost, confused guy that she needs to take care of.

Watch this video to understand what happens when a woman loses respect for her man...

As you will discover from the video above, a woman will usually go through a 3-step process before breaking up with a man.

To get a woman back, you first need to get her respect back and she will then begin to allow herself to feel attracted to you again. When you make her feel a lot attraction for you, she will then begin to reconnect with the love.

So, while getting very emotional might be a dangerous mistake to make during a break up, it's not something that cannot be recovered from.

Pretty much every mistake can be forgiven, as long as you have truly changed and are not just putting on an act to trick her into giving you another chance.

2. Threatening to hurt himself or her

[image: Threatening to hurt himself or her]

Following on from the first mistake, when a guy notices that his emotional outburst isn't working, he might decide to "level up" by threatening to hurt himself or her.

Threatening to hurt himself, he might say something like, "I don't want to live anymore if you leave me. I will kill myself" or "If you leave me, I don't know what I'll do. I have a gun here and maybe I'll just kill myself and you'll have to live with that on your conscious for the rest of your life."

Threatening to hurt her, he might say something like, "You think you can leave me? Huh? I'll fken kill you bitch" or "If I find out that you've got another guy, I'll come and kill both of you in your sleep."

Pretty serious stuff, hey?

Well, some guys can't deal with the possibility of being left by a woman that they love. It feels like the ultimate betrayal, especially when he's put so much into the relationship and truly loves her.

Yet, here's the thing...

You never really own a woman. As much as it might suck for some guys to read what I'm about to say now, it's true.

That is, she's not your property.

A woman is an individual before she gets into a relationship, while she is in a relationship and when she is out of a relationship...and so are you.

A relationship between a man and a woman (two individuals) only stays together if both of them decide to stay together.

In other words, a relationship is two individuals choosing to be together. However, they both have the right to choose not to be as well.

There's no law saying that if a man and a woman get into a relationship, they must remain together for all of eternity no matter what.

That type of commitment between a man and a woman only happens if both of them are getting what they want from the relationship.

For example: If a woman is in a relationship with an emotionally abusive or unloving man, it's not going to matter if he buys her lots of gifts or is great at sex.

Eventually, she's going to lose so much respect for him that her attraction will begin to fade and when that happens, she will begin to fall out of love with him.

How can a guy recover from the mistake of threatening to hurt himself or his woman?

Simple.

He needs to tell her that he never did hurt himself or her after the break up and was just being stupid. Since he was feeling so emotional about losing the woman he loved, he said some stupid things.

Who hasn't said some stupid things at some point in their life?

Everyone has.

It's not the end of the world that a guy made a mistake by saying something stupid like, "I will kill myself" or "I will kill you and your new man in your sleep."

It's immature yes, but it's not the end of the world.

All he did was say it; he didn't actually do it. So, what he needs to do is tell her that he is sorry for saying stupid things and remind her that everyone has said something silly during an emotional time in their life.

He then needs to make sure that he is making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him in other ways.

Watch this video to understand why a guy needs to do that to get a woman back for real...

As you will discover from the video above, a woman will usually only begin to take an ex seriously if he has actually changed and is now capable of making her feel the way that she wants to feel when interacting with him.

If he is still talking to her and interacting with her in ways that cause her to lose respect for him or turn her off, then she's not going to be excited about the idea of getting back with him, unless she is lonely and just wants to use him for a while.

3. Begging for another chance

Men and women are different.

If a man is breaking up with a woman and she begs him for another chance, it can actually make him feel more attracted to her. After all, she's so devoted to him that she is willing to beg for another chance and look like a desperate woman.

Yet, the same doesn't apply when a woman is dumping up a man.

Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men and turned off by the weakness, so when a guy begs and pleads for another chance with a woman out of emotional desperation, she isn't turned on by that.

The more he begs, the less attraction and respect she feels for him.

This is a dangerous mistake to make, but it can be recovered from.

How?

He needs to laugh at himself for being such an emotional wimp when she broke up with him and tell her that he reacted in that way because he loves her so much, but he now knows he should have been mature about it and simply accepted her decision.

Will saying that fix everything between a man and a woman and get them back together?

No, but it's a start.

It allows the woman to see that the man has changed and now become a lot more emotional mature and aware of how a real man is supposed to think, feel, behave and act around a woman.

To get a woman back after a break up, you've got to be able to show her that you really have changed and that you really have taken action to develop the qualities that she wants in a man.

Some women will give a guy another chance for a day or two if he begs her back, but when she realizes that nothing has changed (i.e. he still doesn't understand why she really broke with him, so he doesn't even know what he needs to change), she will simply break up with him again.

4. Promising to do whatever she wants

When a guy is feeling desperate and is all out of ideas on how to get a woman back, he might slip into making the mistake of promising to do whatever she wants.

For example: If a woman dumps a guy because he spends too much time playing video games, he might promise her that he will never play video games again and will devote all of his time to her. Yet, what he doesn't realize is that when a woman is pissed off by a guy who plays video games too much, it usually means that she's sick and tired of being with a guy who is hiding behind hobbies and isn't reaching for his true potential in life as a man.

The type of man that a woman feels proud to be with is one who rises through the levels of life and reaches for his true potential. There's nothing wrong with a guy playing video games, but if he's not making much of himself in the real world, a woman feels instinctively turned off by him.

After all, the virtual world that he is trying to succeed in (e.g. by completing levels of a game) isn't going to make their life in the real world any better unless he becomes a professional gamer who makes money from it.

So, when he promises to give up playing games and spend all his time with her, he's missing the point.

A woman will put up with a guy playing video games, as long as he is striving to achieve big things in the world that will actually have an impact on their life together. If he's just killing characters on a screen, that isn't going to pay off a mortgage or allow her to feel proud of the man he is in this world. So, rather than promising a woman that you will do whatever she wants, decide to become a better all round man than you are today.

Be the man that she can rely on to lead the way to a better life for you and her. That's what matters to most women.

However, your woman is not going to care that you're offering her that until you first get her respect back and make her feel attracted to you again.

Don't attempt to get a woman back by promising her that you will take care of her and guide both you and her to a better life. You have to get her to want to be back with you first before she will open herself to the idea of being with you for life.

5. Pretending that he doesn't love her or want her in his life

When trying to get a woman back, some guys make the mistake of acting like they don't even care about the woman they're trying to get back.

He might even say something like, "I don't careâ€¦I don't love you anywayâ€¦you mean nothing to me" or if she asks him if he's missed her, he will lie and say something like, "Noâ€¦why would I miss you? We're finishedâ€¦I'm over it."

While that approach might work temporarily with young or insecure women, it's not a permanent way to get a woman back. When a woman gets back with a guy because she feels the emotional pain of him rejecting her by saying that he doesn't love her, she will soon find out that it was a lie.

All she has to do is get back with him, make him feel safe that she's going to stick with him and then say that she's changed her mind or wants space. When she sees that he then becomes emotional, needy or desperate to get her back, she knows that he was lying about not loving her.

So, don't play games and don't be afraid of love.

As a man, you need to be fearless when it comes to love.

A man who loves fearlessly is extremely attractive to women, as long as he does it from a place of emotional strength rather than weakness.

Loving fearlessly from a place of emotional strength means that you want a woman, but don't need her. You are fearless in giving your love to her and are not afraid if she doesn't love you back, because you don't need that from her to feel emotionally secure or like you're worthy.

Loving fearlessly from a place of emotional weakness, means that a guy gives all of his love to women (and people) in the hope that someone (anyone!) will love him back so he can then feel good about himself.

6. Lying about just wanting to be friends

[image: Lying about just wanting to be friends with her]

When a guy has used up all of his ideas on how to get a woman back, he will sometimes make the mistake of accepting a friendship with his ex.

Even though he wants to be back in a relationship with her, he will lie and act like he is fine with just being friends.

When she then talks about other guys who are interested in her, she will notice that he is feeling insecure, jealous or worried that she is going to fully leave him behind.

She will then feel turned off by his emotional weakness and lack of confidence in himself and she will also lose respect for him because he lied about just wanting to be friends.

So, what should a man do when a woman says that she just wants to be friends after a break up?

It depends.

If he is going to start dating new, beautiful women and doesn't care if he gets her back or not, then he will be emotionally strong enough to handle a "just friends" situation.

However, if he's not going to date other woman and just wants her back, then he should deny her request, but do so in a way that is attractive to her.

The right way to say it is to laugh at her suggestion and light-heartedly make fun of it by saying something like, "Yeah, okayâ€¦we can be friends. We'll go out shopping togetherâ€¦and maybe even knit scarves together, sip tea and gossip. We'll be the bestest of friends in the whole world. No frikken wayâ€¦I'm not going to be your friend unless it's a friends with benefits situation, where you cook me dinner and then pleasure me with dessert afterwards."

As long as the guy says that with a smile and in a confident, light-hearted manner, she will then laugh and feel attracted to his confidence and emotional strength. Why?

Talking to her like that demonstrates that he is happy with or without her. It also shows that even though she has said that she only wants to be friends, he is still willing to be loving and positive towards her. He is fearless when it comes to love.

He also knows that he still has the right to talk to her like that because he has confidence in his attractiveness to her and to other women, which is going to make her feel respect and attraction for him.

The wrong way to say is to become emotionally weak or sensitive by saying something like, “I can’t just be a friend because that would be too painful for me. If you’re not willing to be with me in a relationship, then I’m not willing to be your friend.”

A guy like that will be trying to make his ex feel guilty or feel sad for him, in the hope that it makes her change her mind.

Yet, what he doesn’t realize is that a man can’t attract a woman back with weakness. If you want to get a woman back, you’ve got to attract her back with your emotional strength.

Are You Currently the Kind of Man That She Will Want Back?

If you don’t feel as though you’re good enough to get her back today, then she’s going to feel turned off by that.

A big part of getting a woman back is not only knowing that you’re good enough for her, but making her feel that too.

How?

You’ve got to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you on a phone call and when you meet up with her in person.

If she’s currently not answering your calls, you need to send her a text to tell her that there’s something quick you wanted to talk to her about and then get her on a call.

When on the phone call, you’ve got to get her to feel that all-important renewed sense of respect and attraction for you. You then need to get her feeling good and get her to agree to meet up with you in person.

How?

What should you text her? What should you say on the phone? What should you say to her at the meet up? How can you get her to forgive your mistakes? How can you make her feel attracted to you again?

There are literally 100s of questions that guys have when they are going through the process of getting a woman back, which is why I created my revolutionary program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

If you want to be guided through the process of getting a woman back in the quickest, easiest manner possible, then I recommend that you watch my program.

Trying to work everything out on your own may lead to more dangerous and avoidable mistakes that push her away even further.

If you want to get this woman back now and don’t want to waste anymore time, then follow the steps in my simple, proven to work system and she will be back in your arms before you know it.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Can't Get Over My Ex-Girlfriend. You Can't or You Won't?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're struggling to get over your ex-girlfriend and move on with your life without her in it, you essentially have 4 choices:

1. Continue to feel sorry for yourself and feel like you will never be able to find another girl like her.
2. Get her back and give the relationship another try.
3. Have sex with lots of new, hot women and enjoy the single life for a while.
4. Get yourself a new, beautiful girlfriend who makes you feel even more love and attraction than your ex-girlfriend ever did.

So, what do you want to do at this point? If you want to get a new woman, watch this video...

If you want to get your ex-girlfriend back, watch this video...

Decide now what you want and take action to begin making it happen. Don't waste time sitting around feeling sorry for yourself. The longer you wait, the more of your life that you will waste.

When a guy says to me, "I can't get over my ex-girlfriend," I ask him whether he wants to get over her, and if he does, what he has actually done about it.

[image: I want to get over her, but I can't]

A lot of guys get stuck in and focus a lot of their energy into feeling sorry for themselves, complaining to friends that love hurts and reminding themselves of the pain rather than actively looking for ways to move on from the experience.

In some cases, when a guy says, "I can't get over my ex-girlfriend," he's actually saying, "I don't want to get over my ex-girlfriend because I don't want to move on and risk being hurt again. I want to hold onto the idea of her and I being together, rather than having to face another break up in future."

So, how about you?

Do you want to move on and get over her?

Is it That Can't Get Over Her or That You Won't Allow Yourself to?

There can be no denying that getting dumped by the girl you love really hurts.

If you have been left devastated by your ex's decision to end the relationship, it's only natural that you might want to crawl off into a corner and hide away feeling sorry for yourself.

However, the longer you stay there, the longer you will hold on to the hurt and the more it will ruin your confidence and begin to eat away at your natural sex appeal to other women.

A broken heart takes time to heal, but the harsh reality is that the more you focus on how bad youâre feeling and how difficult it is for you to get over her, the worse youâre going to feel and the longer youâre going to feel that way.

For most guys, the only way to get over an ex-girlfriend who dumped them is to get out there and start having sex with other women.

Of course, if your confidence has taken a beating from the break up, the idea of approaching women and picking them up to have sex may seem like an impossible dream, right?

If so, watch this video and you will learn how to begin building up the confidence to approach women that you find attractive and then make something happen between you and her...

As you will discover from the video above, the only thing thatâs holding you back from approaching and picking up new women is you. Likewise, you are the reason why you haven't yet been able to get over your ex.

What you need to do is become willing to learn from the experience of being dumped and become a better man as a result.

If you don't do that, then it's not a case of you being unable to get over your ex, but it's simply a case of you being unwilling to do what it takes to move on and get over her.

Do You Really Want to Get Over Her?

[image: I can't get over my girlfriend and move on]

Mattâs story (his name and some details have been changed for privacy) is a good example.

After being dumped by his girlfriend, Matt went off into a corner to lick his wounds by staying at home and playing video games, jerking off to porn and drinking beer while he watched sports and movies all weekend long.

Almost six months later, he was still hiding away from the world at his home on the weekends and had begun to feel really depressed. His friends kept telling him that he needed to âget back in the saddleâ and they really tried to encourage him to go out with them and to start socializing again.

Matt chose to stay where he was though. As he saw it, there was no point in going out to meet other women as no woman could ever match up to his ex. No girl that he met since getting dumped made him feel anything close to what his ex-girlfriend made him feel.

The longer he hid away from the world, the more he continued to idealize his ex in his mind by only focusing on the positives about her. Over time, he convinced himself that she was the only one for him and that heâd never find love like that again.

[image: Trying to get over my ex but I can't]

What he didn't realize back then was that every woman and every relationship is different. By hiding himself away, Matt was preventing himself from discovering that love is abundant, everywhere and comes in all different flavors and forms.

He didn't know that it was not only possible, but very easy, to have an intense, loving connection with another woman if he was just willing to open his heart to it. Of course, it was difficult for Matt to see that as a possibility because his confidence had taken a beating, which then turned women off.

So, the only women that seemed interested in him were unattractive women that didn't make him feel the same way as his ex did. The hot girls that he would have easily fell in love with simply weren't interested in him because he lacked the all-important confidence and fearlessness about love that women look for in a guy.

Luckily for Matt, after almost a year of wallowing in self-pity, he found The Modern Man after searching around online for ways to approach and pick up women.

By learning from our programs and a phone coaching session with me, Matt rebuilt his confidence and now enjoys the kind of success with women that most guys think is impossible.

When I talked to Matt, he said that a big part of his reluctance to get over his ex-girlfriend was his lack of confidence in himself as a man and the belief that a beautiful would be interested in him because of it.

He was right.

Insecurity in a man is a huge turn off for women, so his lack of confidence was always going to be a barrier to attracting new women into his life.

I hear back from Matt again 3 weeks after we talked and he'd already gotten laid with two different women and was dating a hot girl who was sure to be his next girlfriend. About 6 months later, Matt sent me another e-mail and informed me that he'd gotten promoted at work, had a bunch of new friends and he and the hot girl were in a relationship.

One of the most important things that I taught Matt and that he learnt by going through some of our programs here at The Modern Man, was the ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman when he met her.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video, it is possible to make a woman feel attracted to you in ways other than just looks, money or social status.

Most women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy than most men realize, which is a huge opportunity for you if you want to get over your ex-girlfriend or re-attract her back into a relationship with you.

So, what do you want to achieve today? Develop the skill of being able to attract hot women so you can find a great replacement for your ex, or go through my proven process for getting an ex back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Things to Say to Get a Girl Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to get a girl back, you will need more than just a few things to say.

However, to help you with what to say, I've made this video and provided a number of examples to deal with different types of break ups...

As you will discover from watching the video above, you can have a positive impact on the respect that your girl feels for you by saying the right things to her. However, if you want to get her back for real, you have to focus on genuinely making some improvements to your overall attractiveness to her.

For example: If she broke up with you because you were too insecure and weren't enough of a man for her, then you need to work on becoming confident and being more masculine in how you think, behave and take action in life.

If she broke up with you because you took her for granted or weren't ready to commit at the time, you need to work on learning how to make a woman feel loved, respected and wanted in a relationship.

However, as I explain in the video below, she's not going to really care how serious you are about making things better between you and her until you first make her feel respect and attraction for you again...

As you discover from the video above, it's critically important that every time you interact with her on the phone or in person, you make her feel attracted and drawn to you.

If your current way of thinking, behaving, feeling and taking action is turning her off, then nothing that you say to her is going to make much of a difference.

Why Should Your Girl Take You Back?

Thinking that getting her back is all about finding the right words to say is a huge mistake that you must avoid.

It really is a waste of time to focus on trying to say the right thing to her, rather than focusing on making her feel respect and attraction for you again.

For example: If your current communication style with your girl is essentially you being an ass-kissing ex-boyfriend, being really nice, seeking her pity and grovelling for another chance, she isn't going to feel attracted to that.

On the other hand, if your communication style focused on getting her laughing, flirting with her, making her feel excited to be talking to you and making her feel girly in response to your masculinity, then she is going to begin feeling attracted to you again.

She's not necessarily going to decide to get back with you based on that though. To get a girl back for real, you've got to meet up with her, have a certain discussion with her that gets her to respect you again and forgive you (I explain what to say in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System) and then make her feel attracted to you in new and exciting ways.

When she is at that point, she will then be much more likely to say, "Yes" to getting back together or at least giving things a try again and taking it slow for a while.

So, instead of thinking too much about things to say to get a girl back, you need to think about things how to get her to reconnect with her feelings for you and begin experiencing new and exciting feelings when she interacts with you.

You need to get yourself ready to show her through your actions, behavior, and attitude that youâve learned from the experience and have made changes for the better to become a better man â a man she will want to take back.

Getting her back is about showing her who you now are and letting her experience that, not who you say youâre going to be in the future. You have to be able to show her that you have already changed, rather than expecting her to take you back even though you probably have no clue how to transform into the type of man she really needs you to be.

Something about you attracted her when she first became your girlfriend, so something about you must have changed to cause her to become your ex-girlfriend. You need to figure out what changed and then make the changes and improvements needed to get her to see you in a more positive light once again.

Where Did You Go Wrong With Her?

There are many reasons why a woman will break up with a guy (some subtle and some very obvious) and I explain more than 70 of them in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

For now, I will ask you...

1. Did you become needy?

[image: Did you become needy?]

There is nothing wrong with wanting to be around your girlfriend, wanting to experience her love and wanting to get some sex and affection from her.

However, when a guy gets to a point where he needs his girlfriend's love, affection and attention to feel emotionally secure and stable, it becomes a huge turn off for her.

Women are attracted to confident men who have purpose and important, independent interests outside of the relationship that mean he doesn't need to cling to his girlfriend to feel like he is a worthwhile human being.

The type of guy that women remain attracted to, respectful of and in love with doesn't feel jealous of the time she spends doing things that don't involve him. He loves her, trusts her and wants her in his life, but she knows that he would be happy without her too.

He wouldn't crumble and curl up into a ball if she left him and would instead simply get another woman and keep moving forward in his life. Ironically, this makes a woman stick by his side because she doesn't want another woman to get to be with him. She wants him all for herself.

So, if your insecurities led to you behaving in a clingy, overly possessive way around your girl, then your neediness will have led to her feeling suffocated by you and turned off on a deep, instinctive level.

Why instinctive? Women are hard-wired to align themselves with a man who isn't hiding from his true potential behind her and a relationship. We live in a challenging world and it takes a lot of confidence, drive, determination and social and emotional intelligence to succeed in most fields of modern life.

If a woman gets the sense that her man is emotionally weak and immature, she instinctively feels turned off because it feels like he is going to be a burden that she has to carry throughout life.

She can't relax into being his girl and feeling safe that he has a plan and is moving forward in life with confidence and determination. Instead, she's got herself a scared, insecure, needy guy who is clinging to her for emotional security and a sense of identity.

If you were insecure around your girl, she's not going to believe that you've fixed that simply by saying a couple of quick lines to her. She's going to need to see it by analysing your vibe, body language, attitude and how you've been taking action in life since the split.

2. Did you take her for granted?

Some guys make the mistake of taking a girl for granted once they're in a steady relationship. They assume that once they've picked up a girl, had sex with her and heard her say, "I love you" then she's pretty much his and she ain't going anywhere.

Yet, that's not how it works in today's world.

In the past, a woman had to choose only one man, marry him, lose her virginity to him and then stick by him for life even if she wasn't happy. In today's world, a woman can break up or divorce any guy she wants.

If you want to be successful at keeping a relationship together with a girl in today's world, you've got to be able to deepen her love, respect and attraction for you over time. If you don't know how to do that, you need to learn from someone who does.

If you've taken your girl for granted, she's probably heard you say many things before that have resulted in her giving you another chance and at this point, she's probably sick and tired of empty promises.

Why should she believe you this time?

[image: Why should she believe you this time?]

Until you can show her that you are genuinely sorry for the way you behaved and that you are now a better man, words alone are going to be meaningless.

When you next interact with her, if she can tell that you really haven't changed that much at all, she's not going to believe you when you say that you understand where you've gone wrong and have now changed.

You need to be able to let her see significant changes to the way that you think, feel, behave and take action in life and around her.

3. Did you stop making her feel attracted to you?

These days, most guys grow up around a male role model who has the ability to teach them how to attract modern women.

As a result, a lot of guys seek to learn what it means to be a man by watching movies, listening to the latest lyrics of popular songs or watching TV shows.

If they can't find the answers there, they attempt to seek advice from friends who usually aren't very successful with women and simply get lucky with women, or worse - they try to get answers from women.

Yet, no matter where you turn, hardly anyone is ever going to explain how a woman's attraction for a man really works. If you want to know, watch this video and I will explain it for you...

As you will discover from the video above, you actually have a lot of direct control over how a girl feels about you.

If you are actively saying and doing things around her that make her feel attracted to you, then she is naturally and automatically going to feel attracted to you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Steps to Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

There are 7 basic steps that you need to go through to get your ex back:

1. Understand the real reasons why she broke up with you.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I explain the more than 70 possible reasons why a woman will break up with a guy.

If you are trying to get your ex back and you don't know the real, subtle reasons why she has broken up with you, then you're not going to be able to offer her what she really wants.

2. Fix your issues and improve yourself.

When a guy is trying to get an ex back, he usually needs to fix emotional issues (e.g. insecurity, commitment issues, neediness, clinginess, etc) and improve himself (e.g. be able to make his ex feel attracted to him in new and exciting ways that get her attention).

If you need help with that, I will guide you through the emotional transformation that will fix your issues and get you to a place where you are much more emotionally attractive to your ex. All of that advice, training and insight is provided in my program.

There is a total of 7 steps involved in properly getting your ex back and the remaining 5 steps are revealed in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

I can't reveal all the 7 steps here because that would be cheating me out of all the hard work that I've put in to developing my system over the past few years.

However, I can teach you the 3 step process that your ex would have gone through before breaking up with you and the 3 step process you need to guide her through on your way to getting her back...

I will also help you by explaining how to avoid some of the classic mistakes that guys make when trying to get an ex back...

Where Guys Go Wrong

I've helped more than 200 phone coaching clients to get an ex back, so I have heard all the stories and I know where guys mess up.

Here are some classic mistakes to avoid...

Texting the crap out of her

[image: Bombarding ex with texts]

You can't get an ex back via text. Why?

If your ex currently has a negative perception of you, she's usually going to look at your texts in a negative light or see them as annoying.

She's not going to look at your carefully crafted text messages and say, "WOW! I need to get back with him ASAP!"

In most cases that I've dealt with, the guy has texted the absolute crap out of his ex, asking for forgiveness, trying to get her to remember the good old times and saying how much he misses her. Some guys even try to be “friends” with their ex and text her like a friend would, in the hope that one day, if he just texts long enough, he will hit the mark and make her realize that he’s such a great guy. Yet, it rarely, if ever, works. I’ve never had a client tell me that texting did anything other than make things worse.

Why?

A woman will almost always play a little bit harder to get than usual after a break up, especially if she knows that she’s in the power position because her ex really wants her back.

So, when she is being cold and distant via text, her ex will often make the mistake of trying harder to impress her, being desperate or losing confidence, all of which turns her off even more.

To avoid all the mind games, you’ve got to get to a phone call and then meet up with her in person, so you can attract her for real.

Using the No Contact Rule

A real man isn’t afraid to tell a woman that he loves her and wants her back. He doesn’t need to play games and go silent in the hope that she stops moving on and comes running back to him.

Instead, he simply says to her that he wants to catch up with her in person and when he does, he apologizes for his mistakes, tells her that he loves her and then makes her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

[image: Steps to get ex girlfriend back]

He knows that no matter what he says or does, he is still the man. He knows that he is more than good enough for her and if she doesn’t see that, he almost feels sorry for her.

Yet, you won’t get taught that if you cruise around online reading articles or watching videos about how to get an ex back.

99% of people giving advice will tell you to use the No Contact Rule and if she doesn’t come back, it wasn’t meant to be.

So frikken lame.

Yes, the No Contact Rule can sometimes work to get a lonely woman back, or a girl who doesn’t have much experience with relationships or a woman who hasn’t been able to find herself a good replacement.

However, for the remainder of women, they simply move on when their ex goes silent with the No Contact Rule.

As you will discover from the video above, it takes more than going silent to get an ex back. If you are serious about getting your ex back, you have to be prepared to go through real steps to get her back.

Hiding away and hoping that your “absences makes the heart grow fonder” is simply wishful, immature thinking.

If you want to get your ex back like a real man does, then call her up and get her to meet up with you in person.

[image: Steps to get my ex back]

At the meet up, make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and get her to forgive your past mistakes. Get her to feel like she's never felt in your presence before. That is how it's done.

Trying to Get Her Back With Pity

Not knowing what else to do, some guys resort to begging, pleading, confessing their undying love and essentially saying to their ex that life is not worth living without her.

While that may work temporarily with very young women or unattractive women, most women just don't fall for it. Why?

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men and turned off by the weakness.

When your ex sees that you're emotional weak, lost and confused without her, it doesn't make her feel more respect and attraction for you.

Instead, it has the opposite effect and she ends up feeling as though if she gave you another chance, she would really be doing it for you, rather than for her.

To get an ex back, you have to make her feel as though it is a good thing for her, rather than a favor for you.

As you will discover from the video above, a big part of getting your ex back is making her feel the type of respect and attraction that will justify a decision to give you another chance.

If you don't know how to make her have feelings for you again, you can't expect to get her back.

Without a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, any steps you try to take to get her back will be greeted with a "No."

If you want her saying, "Yes" to meeting up with you and "Yes" to giving the relationship another chance, you've got to be able to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you on the phone (not via a text) and in person at a meet up. That is what counts.

Getting Her Back For Real

The best steps to get your ex back have a lot to do with you becoming an even better man than you are right now.

This means identifying your mistakes (e.g. insecurity, commitment issues, lack of purpose in life, lack of ability to keep the spark alive between you, etc) and taking appropriate action to ensure you that won't make those mistakes around her or in life again.

[image: Steps to get an ex girlfriend back]

You've got to be prepared to go through a rapid transformation process that will make you a stronger, more attractive, charismatic and appealing version of yourself than you are right now.

If you aren't prepared to do that, any steps that you take to get your ex back will usually result in rejection. I know this because I've personally helped more than 200 guys via my phone coaching service and I've found that women only respond positively when a guy has already been able to change.

[image: Steps that actually get an ex back]

When you change the way that she feels about you, she then changes the way that she thinks about the relationship and break up.

When you then make her feel respect and attraction for you in new and exciting ways, she is much more likely to say, “Yes” to giving the relationship another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex is Already Dating Someone Else

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) is already dating someone else after right breaking up with you, it doesn't mean that you can't get her back.

It may take some time for your ex to lose interest in the guy if you don't do anything about it because 65% of rebound relationships (a rebound relationship is the relationship a person has immediately after breaking up another long term relationship) end within 6 months.

He might just be using her and will break up with her in a couple of months, or he might end up turning her off and getting dumped.

If you don't want to wait that long, you need to get stuck into fixing your issues (i.e. insecurity) and improving the things about you that caused her to lose respect, attraction and love for you.

Watch this video to understand the process that your ex likely went through before breaking up with you and the process you need to guide her through to get her back!

If she is already dating someone else, she usually won't just drop everything with him and come running back to you on her own. So, what you need to do is get yourself ready to get on a phone call with her, get her to agree to meet up with you in person and then re-attract her at the meet up.

Watch this video to understand why a lot of guys fail when trying to get an ex back and what you need to do instead to ensure that you succeed in getting another chance with her!

As you will discover from the video above, your ex is only going to care that you want her back when you can make her feel the type of respect and attraction that she will need to feel to justify breaking it off with him and giving you another shot.

It is possible to do (I've heard back from 100s of guys with success stories in this type of situation), but you have to be prepared to put in some effort to improve your ability to make her feel the type of respect and attraction that she wants to experience with you.

The Shock of Finding Out That She is Moving On

What can be shocking for a guy after a break up is to realize that even before the dust has settled, his ex is already dating someone else. This can be upsetting to a guy for several reasons.

He is:

- Still in love with her and is hoping for a chance to get her back before she falls in love with the new guy and loses interest in the love that they once shared together.
- Wondering if she was already cheating on him or flirting with that guy before she broke up with him. If so, he feels betrayed by her and worried that he won't be able to keep her or another woman faithful in a relationship.
- He is finding it difficult to meet a new woman because other women just don't make him feel the same way as his ex does.

Whatever you are feeling about your ex right now, the fact is that you are at a crossroads in your life.

You can either:

1. Sit around moping and feeling unworthy of the love of women (including your ex).
2. Move on from her by hooking up with new, beautiful women.
3. Do what is required to get her back and then make the relationship even better than it was before.

Getting dumped by a woman can be one of the best opportunities for you to ride that wave of motivation to get her back and use it to fuel your desire to become an even better man than you are right now.

If you are serious about getting another chance with her, use that desire to focus on rapidly transforming yourself into the type of guy that not only she will feel attracted to, but most other women will too.

Attracting women is a skill that can be learned. If a guy lacks the ability to make a woman feel a lot of attraction for his personality, confidence and vibe when he interacts with her, he will always struggle to pick up new women or keep a woman feel attracted when in a relationship.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man worksâlink!

As you will discover from the video above, you can actually make yourself appear more attractive than the new guy that your ex is now dating.

When you talk to her on the phone or meet up with her in person, she is going to feel more attracted to you if you are more charismatic, masculine and confident than he is in terms of how you think, behave and act around her.

She will contrast you against him and if you suddenly seem more appealing, she will more open to hooking up with you again and giving the relationship another chance. At the very least, she will become more open to seeing you again and taking it slow.

Decide What You Really Want With Her

The first question that you really have to ask yourself is, âWhy do I care that my ex is already dating someone else?â

Is it because your confidence with women has taken a hit and youâre feeling a hurt that she has been able to get over you so quickly? Do you really think that she is the girl for you, or are you just trying to get some emotional revenge by getting her back and then dumping her when you are ready?

You can do whatever you want, but have a think about why you're ready doing it.

If you don't care about her and are secretly intending to move on once you get her back, you might find it easier to just begin hooking up with new, beautiful women (who you find more attractive than her) and that will automatically fix your confidence issues with women.

On the other hand, if you care that your ex is dating someone else because you are still in love with her and want to give the relationship another chance, then you should take action to get her back.

The new guy she is dating might make her feel excited and happy for a while, but if he lacks the fundamental attractive qualities that women look for in a long term companion, she's going to gradually lose interest in him.

Right now, she might seem to be really happy with the new guy and may have even said that. However, don't let that put you off.

As long as you are making her feel attracted when you interact with her on the phone or in person, she will feel more attraction for you if she sees that you are confident and unashamed in going after what you want.

She will be impressed that you have the balls to say, "I'm glad you're happy with the new guy, but I'm not going to hide the fact that I want you back. I love you and I hope that we can have another chance to be together one day."

Important: She will only be impressed by that if you've already gotten her respect back and have been making her feel attracted to you by the way that you come across over the phone and in person.

If your ex feels nothing for you at the moment and you say something like that to her, she's not going to say, "Wow! He loves me so much â€œ I should go back to him!"

However, if you've been making her feel attracted to you and you say that, she will then think, "Hmmmâ€œI guess I do feel differently about him nowâ€œI'm not sure what to do."

At that point, she will more likely to say, "Yes" when you ask her to catch up with you in person for a quick meet up to say hi. At the meet up, you can then get her respect back, make her feel more attraction and move towards a hug, kiss, sex and then begin seeing each other again.

If you want to learn what to say and do at each step of that process, I recommend that you watch my awesome, proven to work program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Getting Her Back

Although getting her back might seem impossible to you right now because she is already dating someone else, if you are prepared to do what it takes, it is entirely possible to get her to dump her new boyfriend and come back to you.

If that is what you want to achieve, here are 3 important things you should do as soon as possible:

1. Understand what caused her to break up with you.

In most cases, a woman will only break up with her man when he stops making her feel the way she wants to feel.

She might put up with feeling horrible for a while, but if it goes on for too long and he ignores her hints that she's feeling unhappy, she will eventually pull the pin and break up with him.

For example: If a man continues to neglect his woman or place her needs last or close to last, she will eventually get tired of being treated that way. Some women will put up with that if a guy is very attractive and appealing in other ways, but most women can't stand being treated like that forever.

Likewise, if a man becomes too clingy and jealous and tries to control or suppress her, she will naturally lose attraction and respect for him and she will look for ways to let him know.

However, despite the seemingly obvious problems with the relationship, a woman will rarely come out and say what's really bothering her.

Instead, she might begin to nag and complain by saying things like, â€œYou're so lazy, you never help around the house,â€œ or â€œYou're always hanging out with your friends playing those stupid video games! Why don't you grow up?â€œ etc.

This is her way of saying “I feel like you’re taking me for granted” or “You’re neglecting me and you’re making me feel like I have to be the one who has to take the lead and be the grown up in the relationship.”

Alternatively, she may start opening herself up to meeting and hooking up with a new guy who can make her feel the way she wants to feel. She might feel like it’s not worth the effort to nag and complain because her man clearly doesn’t have much of an idea on how to make her feel the way she really wants to feel.

So, before you can get your ex back you have to understand the real reasons that caused her to lose love and attraction for you. By understanding the true cause of her unhappiness, you can then change those exact things and become the type of man she really wishes you would be.

When you contact her and see her in person, she will be able to pick up on the fact that you really have changed in the ways that are the most important to her.

2. Fix your issues and improve yourself.

A common mistake that guys make is when they realize what they did wrong in a relationship, they then rush to get in touch with their ex and make promises to change if she comes back.

Saying, “I now know what I did wrong. If you come back to me I promise to change” is only going to push her closer to the guy she is now dating.

By telling her you WILL change you’re showing her that you still haven’t fully understood her needs and now that she’s already got a new man who is, at least for the moment, giving her what she needs, why should she give up the “sure thing” for a promise that might never be kept?

If, on the other hand, you put in some effort to fix your issues (e.g. insecurity, commitment issues, neediness, etc) before you contact her, you will be making it easier for her to connect with the old feelings of love and respect that she once had for you.

By seeing a new and improved version of you, it’s only natural that her negative emotions towards you will change and she will open up to the idea of being with you again.

3. Get her on the phone to arrange a meet up.

These days, a lot of guys waste too much time and energy hiding behind text messages to women. This applies to guys who are trying to get dates with new women and guys who are trying to get an ex back.

When a woman has broken up with you and has told you she hates you or not to bother her, it’s because she perceives you as being needy and desperate. So, if you text her for any other reason than to get her on the phone to arrange a meet up, she will simply assume you’re still being needy and annoying and she will ignore you. Why?

According to many studies conducted by social scientists and psychologists, most of the communication between two humans is comprised of body language and tonality.

So, when you send a text to your ex, because she can’t see your body language or hear your tonality, she has to guess at how you’re really feeling when you’re texting her.

If she has a low opinion of you at the moment, she will usually guess that you’re being an insecure, needy guy who can’t deal with the fact that she’s already dating someone else|and she will then feel even more repelled by you.

So, don't waste time texting your ex! The only time you should text her is to get her on the phone so that you can make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When you make her feel that (which is 100x times easier to do on a phone call than via text), she will then more likely to say, "Yes" to meeting up with you in person.

Dealing With the Pain of Losing Her

It can really hurt a guy's self-esteem and feelings of self-worth when he finds out that the woman he loves is already dating someone else.

Part of the reason it hurts so much is that it can make you feel insecure about yourself as a man and your ability to attract new, quality women.

For example, a guy may ask himself:

- How could she move on so quickly after we broke up?
- Did she ever truly love me?
- Was that real love or was she just with me because it was convenient for a while?
- What if other women don't feel attracted to me after the initial buzz of a new relationship wears off? Will they break up with me too?
- Will I get rejected when I approach new women and how will that make me feel? Will I feel even worse and end up avoid women for years while I try to get over my ex?
- What if my ex thinks that I'm a loser and laughs at me because I can't get another woman while she's already found another guy?

These types of questions (and more) can be going through a guy's mind if his confidence has taken a dent after being dumped by his girl.

How about you? How are you feeling about not having your ex in your life? Do you feel like you are good enough for her or other hot women?

Here's the thing!

A big part of getting your ex back and attracting new women is having confidence in your sex appeal. You've got to know that you're more than good enough for your ex and other hot women and if you don't have that type of confidence, you need to begin building it up.

Are You Ready to Take the Next Step in Your Journey?

Whether you decide to get your ex back or find yourself a better, hotter woman; building up your confidence and improving your ability to attract women is the key.

This is a great opportunity for you to become the type of man that you've always wanted to be around women and your ex.

Rather than saying, "My ex is already dating someone else" and feeling like all hope is lost, decide to get motivated and start taking the action required to begin your new and improved life as a man.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Woman Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're looking for tips on how to get your woman back, you may have already tried everything you could think of, but it hasn't worked.

No matter what you've tried to say to her or what you've done, she just doesn't seem interested in getting back together.

Now, you've decided to look online and see if anyone can teach you exactly what you need to do to get her back.

If that sounds like you, then start by watching this video...

As you will discover from the video above, your woman will only become interested in getting back with you when you begin to trigger feelings of respect and attraction for you as a man.

To get your woman back, you have to make her feel what she wants to feel, rather than trying to convince her to understand where you are coming from or that you are truly sorry and will now do better.

Making Her Your Woman Again

[image: Making her your woman again]

You can't ever own a woman and say that she is completely yours. You don't own her and she has the right to leave you if she wants to.

However, what you CAN do is make her feel the kind of love, respect and attraction that will make her want to be with you and want to stay with you.

Before you are able to do that, you can't expect her to want to get back with you unless she becomes lonely and is unable to find a replacement guy. A woman is only ever "your woman" in the sense that she's in a relationship with you...and that is her choice, not yours.

When you look at it this way, the answer to the question of how to get your woman back is quite simple: It has to be her choice to come back and be your woman.

The woman you want back has always been her own woman. She was an individual before she met you, an individual during her relationship with you, and she's still an individual now that the relationship has ended. To get her back, you need her to want to get back with you and that's her decision to make as her own woman.

Watch this video to understand the process that she likely went through before breaking up with you and what you need to do to get her back...

As you will discover from watching the video above, you can get her to become open to coming back when you guide her through the 3-step process once again, but this time in reverse.

First get her respect back (you can learn how to do that on a phone call, by watching my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System), get her attraction back (on the phone call and in person) and then get her to fall back in love with you again (when she lowers her guard after feeling a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you).

Mistakes Guys Make When Trying to Get a Woman Back

There are a lot of classic mistakes to avoid when trying to get a woman back, but a very common one is when a guy begs and pleads with his woman to be given a second chance.

1. Begging and pleading with her

Some guys mistakenly think that by showing her how devastated he is, she will sorry for him and get back together with him. He will essentially grovel, plead and beg for just one more chance to prove himself.

This sometimes works with young women, women who haven't had much relationship experience or unattractive women who know that it will be difficult for them to find another guy, but even still, the relationship will break up again shortly afterwards when she realizes that he still hasn't changed.

For most women, a man begging and pleading for another chance further eats away at her feelings of respect and attraction for him. She goes from feeling upset about having to break up with him to feeling disgusted, disappointed and repelled by his lack of emotional masculinity.

There's nothing wrong with asking a woman for another chance, but you have to do it in an emotionally balanced and strong way. She has to see that you love her and want her in your life, but you don't need her for your emotional stability.

2. Saying that you will change

When a woman finally makes a decision to break up with a guy, she usually isn't impressed if he says that he WILL change. To get her to give the relationship another chance, he has to actually show her that he HAS made some serious changes.

For example: If a woman is breaking up with a man because he has been insecure in the relationship and unable to control his jealousy, she will need to see that he understands where he went wrong and has already made serious changes.

How can she see that? It will come through in his body language, conversation style, reactions to her tests of him during conversations, his vibe, his attitude, etc.

Just like you can sense when another person is insecure or jealous, your woman can sense that sort of thing too.

If a guy says to a woman, â€œI promise that I can change. I can do whatever it is you want, just tell me what you want me to do,â€ he's actually making things worse by highlighting the fact that he doesn't know what the problem really is or what needs to be changed.

Not knowing what the problem is shows her that he's not mentally and emotionally tuned in enough to be able to pick up on her body language and to understand what she wants without her having to spell it out. This then leads to her feeling that he isn't enough of a man for her and therefore, isn't someone that she can maintain feelings of respect and attraction for.

Women don't want to have to put into a position where they become a guy's teacher on how to be a man. A woman wants you to know that already or seek help to get it figured out, rather than asking her to guide you.

When a woman is put in a position where she has to teach a guy or "mother" him through relationship issues, she loses respect and attraction for him. She's unable to look up to him and respect him as her man and instead looks at him like a little brother or friend that needs her help in life.

3. Lacking masculinity around her

Women are naturally attracted to and respectful of guys who have the type of mental masculinity that makes a woman feel girly in his presence.

When you're interacting with your woman, she wants to be able to relax into being a feminine woman around you. It doesn't matter if you and her are currently broken up â□□ you can still make her feel that way when you interact with her.

Don't hold back on being your confident, masculine self around her. Let her feel your strength (mental and emotional strength) coming through when she talks to you on the phone and interacts with you in person.

If you suppress your masculinity around her and instead come across as being neutral like a friend, you will be missing out on creating that all important sexual spark between you and her.

In order for a sexual spark to exist, either the man or the woman has to be on one end of the masculine/feminine spectrum. Being neutral cancels out the spark and you end up just feeling like friends.

How to Get Your Woman Back From Another Man

If another man has taken your woman, it doesn't mean that she is his for life now.

He is possibly a "rebound guy," which means that the relationship has a 65% chance of ending within the next 6 months. When a woman gets into a rebound relationship (the relationship she has immediately after breaking up with her ex), she is usually attracted to the new guy because he is offering her what her ex couldn't.

For example: If her ex took her for granted, refused to commit to her and treated her like crap, she will usually go for a sweet, nice guy who treats her like a princess. Yet, after a while, she will begin to feel turned off by the fact that the nice guy lacks balls and she has too much control over him and the relationship.

If you want to get your woman back from another man, what you still need to do is get her to meet up with you in person. At the meet up, she will see that you are now a much better man than you ever were when you and her were together.

She will almost certainly test you by saying that she's enjoying herself with the new guy. Your response (by way of your body language, vibe, conversation style, attitude) needs to show her that you are not threatened by the comment and do not see him as being better than you.

Smile and tell her that you're happy for her, but you'd be much happier if she were with you. Don't be afraid to say that – it will not give her any power over you, unless you decide it does.

Simply be fearless in telling her that you love her and miss her, but make sure that it is couple with you triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Most women will not get back with a guy simply because he wants it. You have to focus on making her feel the type of respect and attraction that would make her feel like seeing you again in person would be a good thing.

If you need help on how to do that, I will teach you and provide you with examples of what to say and do via my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Getting Her to Want You Back

The bottom line is that knowing how to get your woman back comes down to knowing how to make her feel sexually attracted to you again.

Words alone won't completely change her feelings, but showing her that you have taken action to resolve the issues that led to the break up and have made improvements to yourself as a man in the process will change the way that she sees you and the way she feels about you as a result.

You can only expect to truly get her back if you are willing to make some improvements, changes or adjustments to how you've been coming across to her. When you interact with her and she feels differently about you, she will then begin to think differently about you and the relationship.

She will begin to wonder why she has been so cold and uninterested in being with you and why she suddenly feels like getting back with you seems like a good idea. You then simply need to lead things forward to a hug, kiss and sex and the relationship will naturally rekindle.

Some guys are able to get their woman back in 30 days or less, but some other guys need to be a bit more patient. If you use my proven to work methods in Get Your Ex Back: Super System, what I can guarantee for you is that she will agree to meet up with you and you will have an opportunity to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you in person.

You will also know what to say and do to get past all of the typical resistance that women put up when a guy is trying to get her back, so you can convince her to give the relationship another shot.

In most cases, guys are able to convince the woman to give the relationship another shot and they then go onto rekindle their relationship and are happier than ever. However, in other cases, guys need to take it a bit slower and begin seeing their woman once a week because she wants to see how it feels first.

With my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, you will know exactly what to say and do during the reconciliation process to ensure that you are making her feel the type of love, respect and attraction that she needs to feel to want to be back with you for real.

Are you ready to give this a shot and get your woman back for real?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Message to Send to Your Ex to Get Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best message to send to your ex is one that gets her on a phone call with you.

You can't get an ex back entirely via text (most women won't agree to meet up with an ex just via text), so you need to go through the following steps to get her on an actual phone call.

1. First try to call her.
2. If she answers, reattract her on the phone call, arrange a time to meet up in person and get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you in person.
3. If she doesn't answer, send her this text message (e.g. if her name is Belinda), "Hey Belinda â□□ was just trying to get in touch because I have something quick that I wanted to ask you on the phone. I guess you're busy at the moment. I might try to call another time."

She will then either reply with something like, "Sorry I missed your call â□□ I was busy. You can call me back now" or "What did you want to ask me?"

Whatever her response is (it will differ depending on how much your ex is trying to avoid you), just call her.

If she didn't reply to your attempt to call and the follow up text, just try to call her in a couple of days.

Why You Must Get Her on a Phone Call

[image: Text messaging an ex]

If you want to get your ex back, you will rarely make any progress by texting back and forth with her. At the time of writing this article, I've now helped more than 200 phone coaching clients to get their ex girlfriend (fiancÃ© or wife) to meet up with them in person and then talk about giving the relationship another shot.

Prior to talking to me, almost all of my phone coaching clients had been making the mistake of texting the crap out of their ex to the point where she just stopped replying.

Hiding behind texts just doesn't work in most cases.

The woman has to be able to talk to you on a phone call or in person to feel proper attraction for you. So, be clear about that.

Getting your ex back for real is not about having the perfect message to send to her.

Getting a woman back involves you being able to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when she speaks to you on the phone and sees you in person.

That is what really counts.

A message can easily be ignored or misinterpreted, so make sure that you don't hide behind texts. Get her on the phone and get her back before she loses interest and moves on.

The Text Back Fantasy

Some guys make the mistake of believing that all they have to do is send their ex the right message and she'll automatically think, â€œOMG! I can't believe I broke up with him! I want him back!â€

I'd love to tell you that there's a perfect message to send to your ex, which will make her come running back to you, but I would be lying to you. So, rather than feeding you a bunch of bullshit, I'm telling you the truth.

That is, sending your ex a message is not the answer to getting her back. You've got to make her feel respect and attraction for you on a phone call and in person.

[image: Non-verbal communication examples]

According to many studies conducted in prestigious universities around the world, body language and the tone of a person's voice makes up almost 90% of communication when talking in person.

Why is this important? When you send a message to your ex, she cannot see your body language and she cannot hear the tone of your voice, so everything boils down to how she interprets your message.

If a woman is annoyed with her ex-boyfriend and perceives him to be a needy guy who doesn't understand how to be the man she needs him to be, how do you think she'll react to his message?

She is most-likely going to look at anything that he sends to her in a negative light, which is why he needs to focus on getting her on a phone call so she can experience his confidence, charisma and charm by listening to the tone of his voice and how he is saying what he is saying.

As the old saying goes, "It's now what you say, but how you say it that counts."

Sending her cute or romantic messages or messages that are intended to make her jealous or remember the good old days, is not going to work. If she currently doesn't feel much respect or attraction for you, she is most likely going to read the messages through the filter of her current negative perception of you.

Where Guys Go Wrong

Okay, so let's assume that a guy wants to send a message to his ex girlfriend (fianc  or wife) to tell her how sorry he is and that he wants her back.

Sometimes, a guy will make the mistake of texting something like, â€œI've been missing you so much. I'm sorry for how I treated you. Can you please consider giving me another chance? I can't live without you.â€

Apart from saying, "I can't live without you" there is nothing really bad about the message he sent, but it's still not going to work.

Why? A message like that isn't going to make her feel a lot of respect and attraction. She might get the message when she is feeling happy without her boyfriend and when she reads it, she will feel as though she doesn't need him to feel happy.

However, if he had said that to her on the phone while also getting her laughing and enjoying the call with him (this makes her feel attracted and at ease), she would associate some of her feelings of happiness in that moment with him.

She would then be much more likely to say, “Yes” if he asked to meet up with her in person.

Yet, if he hides behinds messages and tries to get her back with text on a screen, she might have one of the following reactions to the message:

1. She looks at the message, rolls her eyes and thinks, â€œHhhhâ€not my ex again! I wish heâ€d get the message that itâ€s over and leave me alone. He thinks he can get me back with a message? Yeah rightâ€Iâ€™m ignoring this and getting on with my day.â€

2. She reads the message and she thinks, â€œHow pathetic. Iâ€m glad you miss me you jerk, because you didnâ€t appreciate me when you had me. Now you think Iâ€m going to come back and experience the same old crap with you just because you said youâ€re sorry? No way.â€

She then phones her best friend and tells her all about how insecure, needy and desperate he is being because heâ€™s resorted to sending her pathetic messages begging her to take him back. They laugh and make fun of him.

She loses even more respect for him as a man and she feels comfortable moving on with her life without him being in it.

Why has this happened?

Firstly, the above message might seem like he is showing her how much she means to him, how sorry he is and how desperately he wants to make it up to her, but without seeing his body language and hearing the tone of his voice, all she is seeing is a guy who is trying to make her feel guilty about how bad heâ€s feeling without her and hoping that she takes pity on him.

This doesnâ€t work because not only donâ€t women like being manipulated, a deeper reason is that a sexual, romantic relationship between a man and a woman cannot be based on pity.

Yes, some women may feel pity and get with a guy for a while because they are kindhearted, but it never lasts and when she realizes that heâ€s still the â€œsame old guyâ€ she dumped before, she will simply dump him again.

Secondly, telling her that he canâ€t live without her is usually a great reason for her to want to move on. Women donâ€™t want to feel like they are a manâ€™s reason for living.Â Women want to be with a guy who is rising through the levels of life and reaching for his true potential, not hiding from his potential behind her and the safety of their relationship.

Thirdly, sending his ex a message before he has dealt with the reasons for the break up and before heâ€™s fixed his issues is as good as saying to her, â€œNothingâ€s really changed, but I still want you back.â€

Can you see why that isnâ€t going to be appealing to her? Before you message your ex, you have to show her that youâ€re serious about getting her back by changing, improving or fixing the things that caused her to break up with you in the first place.

Then, when you contact her, she will be able to see that youâ€ve made the effort, and she will feel understood and will be happy to interact with you again.

Thereâ€s Only One Message You Should Ever Send to Your

Ex

Even if you do manage to send your ex the best message ever written in the history of smartphones, chances are high that she will misinterpret it or not respond to it in the way you were hoping.

Without her being able to see your body language and hear the tone of your voice, she will simply assume that you're only sending her a message because you're needy and desperate without her, which will turn her off even more.

The ONLY message that you should send to your ex is one where you get her on a PHONE CALL, so you can get her to feel respect and attraction for you on the call and then arrange a meet up.

Sending your ex any other type of message will usually cause her to pull even further away from you. She will play games with you via text, ignore important messages that you send her and misinterpret what you're trying to get her to understand and feel.

So, make sure that you only send a message to your ex to get her on the phone. When your ex talks to you and she hears in your voice how confident and emotionally secure you now are without her, she will usually be intrigued enough to want to see you in person.

If she's not, you need to amp up her feelings of attraction by getting her laughing and enjoying talking to you on the phone. She will then become more open to meeting with you in person because she won't be worried about feeling awkward around you.

Meeting up with her in person has to be your number one goal right now. At the meet up, she will be able to see that you are now a much better man than you were when you and her were together.

She will also feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and begin to open herself up to the possibility of being in a relationship with you again.

So, don't waste anymore time trying to find messages to send to your ex. Send the message I provided at the start of this article and then reattract her on the phone, before getting her to agree to meet up with you in person.

If you're not sure what to say on the phone when you talk to her, don't worry, I will give examples of all that in my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Imagine this!

You call her up tomorrow, get her laughing and enjoying talking to you, get her respect back and get her to agree to meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, you make her feel respect and attraction for you in new and exciting ways. She enjoys how she is feeling and opens up to getting back with you.

Hours, days or weeks later, she is in your arms and saying that she loves again.

Do you want to make that happen with her?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Said She Misses Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If the relationship has broken up and your girlfriend says that she misses you, it either means:

1. She really does miss you and is hoping that you have the confidence to get her to meet up with you in person.

[image: Meeting up with a girlfriend who has been missing you]

At the meet up, she is then hoping that you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and the relationship naturally rekindles and begins again.

[image: Getting a girlfriend back who misses you]

If you want to get an ex girlfriend back, watch this video to understand what you need to do to make that happen.

2. She misses you because she hasn't yet been able to properly move on, but she still wants to move on.

If that's the case, then she's just saying that she misses you to put it out there, but she doesn't really want to get back together. For example: She might have just said it because you were texting her or messaging her and she had nothing much else to say.

3. She doesn't miss you and is just saying that to get your hopes up.

When she sees that you're still desperately missing her and hoping to get back with her, she will use that to make herself feel better and continue moving on without you.

[image: Girlfriend messing with ex boyfriend or new boyfriend that she intends on dumping]

She might even add in things like, "I'm confused... I miss you, but I'm not sure if we should be together" to hopefully get you to reply and try to convince her to give the relationship another shot.

[image: Getting too keen about signs of interest]

When she finds out that you're not trying to meet other girls and are just waiting around for her, it may help her relax in knowing that she will be able to find a replacement before you do.

4. She doesn't miss you much at all, but was just saying that to be nice.

She might still care about you and your feelings, so to make you feel better and lift your spirits, she said that she missed you. She still intends to move on without you, but she wanted to do something nice for you by saying that she missed you. She knew that it would make you feel better.

If you are still together and your girlfriend says that she misses you, it either means:

5. She is trying to tell you that she likes you and wants to see you more.

For example: You've just started dating and she wants you to know that she hopes you continue to pursue her. She doesn't want you to feel as though she's not interested.

She hopes that when you read her message saying that she misses you or when you hear her say that on the phone, it then causes you to contact her, arrange a date, have sex with her and deepen the connection that you and her share.

6. She is just testing to see how you will react.

Will you act like you don't care, tell her that you miss her too (in a relaxed, easy-going way) or admit that you've been missing her like crazy and haven't been able to eat or sleep properly when she doesn't call you?

Sometimes, a boyfriend will become too obsessed with his girlfriend too quickly. If a woman has had relationship experience with guys who become obsessed too easily and quickly, she might want to steer clear of another relationship like that because those guys are usually become needy, clingy, too jealous, etc.

7. She is checking to see if you miss her too.

She is hoping to find out if you've been seeing other women or completely forgetting about her when she's not around because you're busy with your career or studies.

If you've been really busy, but you tell her, "Hey – great to hear from you. I've been really busy this week. I miss you too and I hope to see you soon. I will give you a call in a couple of days" she then knows that she's still important to you and she can then feel excited about potentially meeting up with you soon.

Women Don't Always Say What They Really Mean

If women tend to confuse you, don't worry – you're not alone.

Most guys go through much or all of their life never really understanding what women want and what they really mean when they say things.

To get you up to speed, I've made this free video that explains 7 things about women that seem strange, weird and even annoying to guys who don't understand where women are coming from when they do it...

As a man, you have to understand that women aren't men. Women think, behave and act differently to men for very good reasons.

For example: Has your girlfriend ever starting acting weird by being quiet or or becoming irritable all of a sudden? Then, when you asked her, "What's wrong? Are you okay?" she said, "Nothing. I'm fine!" even though she really wanted to say, "No, I'm definitely NOT fine."

Why doesn't she just tell you that she's not fine when you ask her?

Another example is if you ask her if it's okay to go out partying with your friends without her. She might say, "Of course it's okay with me if you go out with your friends tonight without me there. Have fun! Bye!"

Yet, what she REALLY wants to say is, "If you loved me, you would realize that I'm NOT okay with you going out without me tonight. If you actually cared about me and were proud to have me as your girlfriend, you wouldn't even consider asking me if this was okay. You would invite me and we'd party with your friends as a couple."

Why doesn't she just say that?

Most Women Talk to Men in a Code

Some women are straight up and tell guys exactly what they mean, but most women don't.

Rather than telling a guy what they really mean, they speak in a "code" that you need to understand if you want to be successful at picking up women and keeping a relationship together. If you don't ever fully understand women speak in code, you will probably end up feeling resentful and irritable towards your girlfriend and getting into regular, unnecessary arguments.

At this point, some guys reading along might be thinking, Why do women have to play these stupid games? Why can't she just be straight with me?

The answer is simple: Women are not men.

Although most men will usually say exactly what's on their mind, many women won't. Here are three of the main reasons why:

1. To avoid emotional or physical abuse

In the past (and in many countries around the world today), women were emotionally abused and even beaten if they voiced their opinions to their man. So, a woman will often say, It's fine, even when it isn't, rather than put herself in a position where she can be potentially hurt by her man for disagreeing with him.

That doesn't mean that you're the type of guy who will want to beat her up for stepping out of line in a conversation, but it does mean that she has an in-built instinct to avoid confrontations with a man that she is in a relationship with.

2. To avoid giving him a way to excuse his behavior

Sometimes, a girlfriend doesn't want her boyfriend to brush over or ignore her feelings by trying to reason with her or come up with excuses for his unattractive, disrespectful or unloving behavior.

For example: If a girlfriend says No, I don't want you to go out with your friends tonight. Stay home with me please? I'll make you some of that cake you like it's easy for her man to then say, Look, I promise to spend time with you tomorrow night. I love you, okay? Don't worry and then brush off her feelings like that.

If she then says "No" again and asks that he stays home with her, she'll end up sounding like the controlling, nagging girlfriend and she doesn't want to come across as that.

However, to her, saying "No" about him going out isn't her way of trying to reschedule another evening together, but rather about a deeper problem, which he is clearly failing to notice when he brushes over her concerns like that.

The deeper problem is that if he were proud to have her as his girlfriend, then he wouldn't mind her coming out to party with him. Likewise, if he were seeing her as his potential wife in future, he wouldn't want to go out flirting with other women and potentially end up cheating on her if he got drunk and met a cute girl.

Instead, he would want to build up months of fun, partying memories with her before they made the transition to be a more committed couple (i.e. they got engaged) and then started doing things that committed couples tend to do (e.g. hanging out with other couples, moving into together, getting a pet together, going on holidays together or with family, spending time with each other's family, etc).

If she sees that he isn't on the same wavelength as her and is treating her like a casual dating relationship, but she wants something more serious, she might start out saying things like, "I miss you...we hardly spend time together" to see if he picks up on what she really means.

Sometimes, a woman will come right out and say, "Hey, I want you and I to spend time together and when we're bored of partying, we then settle down, get married and start a family" but most times she won't.

Instead, she will just say things like, "I miss you. Do you miss me?" and ask things like, "Where do you see our relationship going? Do you think we'll be together two years from now?" or "What do you think of marriage?"

If her guy doesn't pick up on her cues, she will stick around and wait if he's the type of guy who is worth waiting for, but if she's already been losing a lot of respect and attraction for him throughout the relationship, she will start to question whether or not she should be with him.

The more respect and attraction she loses for him, the more open she will become to flirting with other guys and potentially dumping him and moving on.

3. To avoid teaching him how to be a man

By having to â□□spell things outâ□□ for her boyfriend, a woman can end up feeling like sheâ□□s his teacher, or worse, his mother and this then kills any respect and attraction she may have for him.

Why does it kill the respect and attraction? Women want to be with a guy that they can look up to and respect, not a guy that they have to lift up, teach and carry around.

When a woman loses respect for a guy (e.g. she feels stronger than him, can't rely on him to be a man, has to mother him, etc) she then loses touch with her feelings of attraction for him. If that goes on for long enough, she will eventually fall out of love with him.

Missing You When You're Still in a Relationship With Her

In a relationship, it is the manâ□□s responsibility to maintain and build on the respect, attraction and love between himself and his woman.

If a guy becomes neglectful of this responsibility, his girlfriend will gradually begin to feel unhappy in the relationship and start feeling that something is just â□□not right.â□□

Eventually, this will lead to her lose respect and attraction for him as her man and may even cause her to break up with him.

So, rather than sitting around saying, â□□My girlfriend said she misses meâ□□ and hoping that doesn't decide to find herself a new guy, ask yourself, â□□Which part of my attitude, behavior or actions that Iâ□□ve been displaying lately are making her feel this way?â□□

Her missing you may be a good thing (e.g. you're a cool, confident guy who is rising through the levels of life and reaching for your true potential as a man. She is trying to spend more time with you and is enjoying the challenge. She will stick by you and hope that you reward her with more of your time if she's good to you) or it could be a bad thing.

If it's a bad thing, she is missing you because you're not spending enough time with her and you've also been saying and doing things that have been causing her to lose respect and attraction for you.

In that case, she might miss you for a while, but if she doesn't start feeling the type of love, respect and attraction for you that she needs to justify being faithful to you, then she might decide to break up with you or begin seeing other guys behind your back and then break it off with you.

If her saying that she misses you is setting off alarm bells in your mind and you're now worried that you're not paying her enough attention, consider the followingâ| Consider thisâ|

1. Have you been taking her for granted?

One of the biggest relationship mistakes that guys make in a relationship is to slip into taking their girlfriend (fianc  or wife) for granted.

Often, this is not something a guy will do intentionally, but the pressures of everyday life can make him become neglectful of her needs by behaving in certain ways that, although to him is nothing big, to her itâ is a sign that heâ is no longer willing to make her feel loved, appreciated and valued in the relationship.

In her mind, she will be thinking, "Does he even care about me?" which is fine if you're the type of guy that makes her feel intense attraction, respect and love. However, if you don't really know how to make her feel a lot of attraction for you and your relationship is going through a bit of a rough patch, she might instead think, "Is he the guy for me?"

A classic example of taking a woman for granted is when a guy changes plans that heâ made with her, often and at the last minute, or worse still, lies about how busy he is to get out of doing something with her that she wants but heâ is not particularly crazy about (like visiting her parents, or going shopping, going to the movies, going to her friend's party, etc).

Although plans can and do change at the last minute, if this is a common scenario in your relationship, it can become a problem. To your girlfriend, she will begin to see your cancellation of plans as meaning that you're really saying, "Youâ are not that important to me. I'm going to treat you this way and you're going to stick around because you're my girlfriend. Deal with it."

If she sees your behavior and having that type of meaning, sheâ is naturally going to feel unimportant in your life and begin feeling like you're taking for granted.

If that goes on for long enough, she might try to fill up the emotional gap that you've left wide open and decide to flirt and even have sex with other guys behind your back.

However, if sheâ is a good woman who clearly loves you, rather than fight about it, cheat on you or dump you, sheâ will instead say something, "I miss you" in the hopes that she is starting to feel neglected. She the hopes that you will start to honor your commitments to her more often (e.g. keeping your dates with her, doing things with her that youâ d prefer to get out of, etc).

When you can show her that you're putting in that extra effort, she will feel that, not only do her feelings matter to you, but she is also able to sometimes get your undivided attention, which will then make her feel loved, valued and will put an end to her desperate cry for attention.

Also, you have to be aware that just being with her in person is not enough to make her feel like you care about her, love her, find her sexy and appreciate her.

Just because a boyfriend might see his girlfriend daily, sitting in silence in front of the TV together is not the same as spending quality time with her. They might be sitting next to each other watching TV, but that isn't going to make her feel that sheâ is actually getting his undivided attention.

Spending quality time together is about connecting mentally (e.g. talking about life), sharing experiences that make you connect (i.e. doing fun, interesting or challenging things together) and connecting physically (e.g. hugging, kissing, having sex, etc).

When your girlfriend says she misses you, she needs you to give her the type of quality time that will bring you closer together and deepen your love and attraction for each other.

2. Are there external circumstances that are keeping you apart?

Sometimes there are external circumstances that keep a boyfriend and girlfriend apart, which is why she ends up saying that she misses him.

If this is the case for you, there is always something that you can do to make her feel loved, even when you can't physically spend as much time with her as you both would like.

For example: Do any of the following situations apply to you and your relationship with your girlfriend? If so, there are some simple solutions below that you can implement immediately to make her feel that you are "there" for her!

1. Do you live far apart from each other? Is your relationship with your girlfriend a long distance relationship?

The Solution:

Long distance relationships can work as long as you are willing to change up your approach a little to adapt to the situation of being apart.

It might feel like a pain in the butt to have to do this, but you should try to schedule some quality time on the phone, on Skype or using another video chat service (e.g. Facetime, Facebook video chat, etc) with her.

Spend time "connecting" with her as often as possible (e.g. talk about things in a positive way, get her feeling good about talking to you and connecting about life, the challenges she is facing, what you're up to, etc).

Then, make a point of planning times to meet up in person. Set up definite times and dates that suit you both and make sure you stick to those dates no matter what.

2. Are you both very busy with important things in your lives like exams, a big work assignment or running a booming business?

The Solution:

Temporary projects at work, exams or busy business schedules don't have to cost you your relationship. Being busy is no excuse for not taking out some time to have a more balanced approach to life.

You might not be able to meet up all the time like a normal couple, but try to make time to talk to her and spend even a few minutes of quality time together (every few days if necessary).

When you do talk to her or meet up with her, if your mind always seems to be on other things, she will feel as though you're not really with her. You might be there in person, but you're not being present enough with her to show her that you actually care about her and love her.

When you can be present enough to give her your undivided attention (even briefly), she will feel connected, appreciate the quality time and she then won't bug you about missing you as often.

3. Are there reasons why you and your girlfriend can't see each other often enough? For example: You work different shifts, your relationship is secret, etc.

The Solution:

Working night shifts or being unable to see each other often because other people can't find out about your relationship can be challenging, but it doesn't have to be a problem.

Find a way to fit in short, but quality dates together. Rather than plan one long dinner date every once in a while and then not see each other for the rest of the time, try to fit in short dates regularly.

For example: Meet for a sandwich in the park during a lunch break as often as possible, or have one coffee or one drink together twice a week. Grab a motel for an hour and have some fun or cuddle and kiss on the beach after work or somewhere else that people you know won't be able to see.

You Can Make Your Girlfriend Feel the Way That She Really Wants to Feel in a Relationship

Sometimes, saying, "My girlfriend said she misses me," and feeling helpless can simply be because you are overlooking the obvious in your relationship with her.

Ultimately, all your girlfriend really wants to know is that she's loved and appreciated by you. When you make a woman feel what she really wants to feel when around you, the times apart will be easier to bear because she will feel loved.

Rather than thinking, "What more does she want from me? Why isn't the time we spend together enough? Must I give up all my other interests just to please her?" try instead to find an answer that will benefit you, her and the relationship.

At the end of the day, it's not the overall amount of time you spend together that matters to most women; it's how "together" and connected you both are in the time that you share.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Doesn't Want Me Back: What Do I Do Now?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In most cases, when a guy contacts me to say, My ex doesn't want me back, he has already made many of the classic mistakes that cause a woman to lose interest in getting back with a guy.

For example: Watch the video below to understand 5 classic mistakes that guys make and what you need to do instead to begin changing the way your ex feels about getting back with you...

You can get your ex to want you back by beginning to create the types of magnetic feelings that have been missing from her interactions with you.

For example: If one of the reasons why she broke up with you was due to your emotional insecurity, you need to get on the phone with her (not send her a text) or have an interaction in person and let her experience the new, improved version of you who is now more emotionally strong than ever.

Another example is if she broke up with you because her feelings of respect and attraction died. In that case, you need to actively start saying and doing things that are going to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, your ex will only truly become open to taking you back if you can guide her through that 3 step, emotional process.

Where Guys Go Wrong

For many guys, the realization that their ex is no longer even open to the idea of reconciliation or that she has moved on and is with another guy can be emotionally devastating.

This can then lead to desperate patterns of behavior, which then turn the ex off even more. Why? Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men and turned off by the weaknesses.

If you want your ex to feel a natural attraction for you, it is critical that she gets to see that you are so much more emotionally strong, appealing and attractive. Emotional attraction is much more important than physical attraction when getting a woman back and luckily, this is something that you can fix and improve very quickly.

So, if you're a guy who is saying, My ex doesn't want me back, and you're desperate to get her to change her mind, make sure that you avoid the following mistakes...

1. Don't Beg or Plead With Her

Many guys feel so much love, desire and need for their woman that when she finally decides to break up the relationship, he goes into a state of emotional panic and desperation.

In his mind, he hopes that if he can just show her how much he cares, she will feel pity for him or feel guilty for wanting to break it off and will give him another chance.

Sometimes it does work for a short while and a woman says that she will agree to see him every now and then and assess how she feels. Yet, if the guy doesn't fix the core reasons why she was breaking up with him in the first place, the woman simply moves to the next stage and breaks off the relationship completely.

The thing is, your ex actually chose to become your ex for a reason. So, if you launch in to hounding her with calls and text messages effectively begging to be given another chance, you're wasting your time and you're making it even less likely that she'll ever change her mind.

To get your ex to reconsider her decision, you need to figure out what happened to cause her to dump you in the first place.

The exact reasons for a relationship break up are going to be different in each case, but the bottom line every time is that a woman breaks up with a guy when she has fallen out of love with him, and a woman falls out of love when she has lost respect and sexual attraction for a guy.

So, if your ex has lost respect and sexual attraction for you, which part of begging and pleading do you think is going to change things? Exactly - it won't. Desperation is not an attractive trait in a man and begging and pleading are a complete turn off.

If you're feeling devastated by the realization that your ex doesn't want you back, do not make the mistake of begging and pleading with her to be given a second chance.

Instead, figure out what happened to cause her feelings for you to change and then take action to turn things around by making the improvements to yourself you need to make to show her that you've learned from your mistakes and you've become a better man - a man she can respect and feel sexually attracted to again.

2. Don't Promise Her the World

When a guy finds that his woman isn't willing to give him another chance, he often slips into the trap of promising her the world in a desperate attempt to get her to rethink her decision.

For example: He buys her an engagement ring and promises to marry her, he promises to take her away on an expensive vacation, he promises to move to her town or city, etc.

Whether it's promising to buy her something she's always wanted or promising her that you can change, none of it actually changes anything because none of it addresses the real reasons why she chose to end the relationship.

What about your thinking, behavior, attitude, vibe, actions and your approach to life and the relationship have caused her to lose so much respect and attraction for you? What are those things and what have you already done to fix them?

Most women aren't willing to give a guy another chance if he promises that he will fix his problems. Instead, she wants to see that he has already fixed them or is making really serious efforts to fix them and has already made good progress.

Until you take action to make improvements and become a better man, the promises that you make to your ex are often going to be seen as meaningless because she has lost respect and sexual attraction for you and likely doesn't believe you at this point that you will actually change.

Words alone can't change the way your ex feels about you. You have to begin developing the qualities that make you a more sexually attractive man who has the ability to make her feel the way that she really wants to feel in a relationship.

In a relationship, a woman wants to be able to relax into being a feminine, emotional sensitive woman who is being protected by her masculine, emotionally strong man. If your attitude or behaviour during the relationship led to her seeing you as a weak, wimpy guy, any promises of change that you make are worthless until you can show her that youâ€”ve made those changes.

If youâ€”re anxious to get your ex to want you back, you must avoid saying things to her like, â€”I promise I can change; tell me what you want and Iâ€”ll do itâ€” because by doing so youâ€”re simply highlighting the fact that you don't actually know how to be the type of man that she needs.

A woman doesn't want to be stuck with the responsibility of teaching her how to be the type of guy that she needs in a relationship. Instead, she expects that a guy either knows it naturally or seeks help to learn how to be the man she needs.

However, she doesn't want to be the one who has to teach a guy how to be a man, because it makes her feel like she's a mother figure, a big sister or a teacher to the guy, which then ruins her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for him.

A woman wants to be with a man that she can look up to and respect. A man that she can rely on to always "be the man" and know how to make her feel the way that she needs to feel when in a relationship.

3. Donâ€”t Brag About Other Women Liking You

Some guys make the mistake of bragging to his ex about having other women interested or about dating other women.

The thought is that by letting his ex know that he has been with other women, it will make her feel jealous and keen to have him back. Yes, that does work sometimes, but not for all situations.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he wasn't able to make her feel the type of attraction that she was looking for in a relationship, she usually won't become interested in him again until she can see that he now has the ability to attract other women.

However, if a woman broke up with a guy who cheated on her or who took her for granted and wasn't willing to commit (until she broke up with him), then she's not going to be impressed by him hooking up with other women. In many cases, she will just use that as motivation for her to hook up with guys and find a new guy who loves her and appreciates her.

What does work for all situations is when a guy learns from the experience of being dumped and takes action to become a better man in the way that will appeal to his ex. Rather than bragging about being with other women, he focuses on developing and displaying the types of qualities that make him irresistibly attractive to women.

When his ex sees photos of him on social media looking confident, masculine and more charismatic around other people, she is going to be intrigued by the changes in how he is coming across.

When he talks to her on the phone and makes her feel attracted in new and exciting ways by what he is saying and how he is saying it, she is going to be even more intrigued by the way that he is now making her feel.

Then, when he gets her to meet up with him in person and uses techniques to get her respect back and re-attract her, she is going to be blown away by the way that he is now able to make her feel. She will realize that he understands what he was depriving her of and is able to effortlessly give that to her now.

That is when an ex begins to want you back. She feels differently and when she feels differently, she begins to think differently.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, when you change the way that you talk to and interact with your ex, she will change the way that she thinks and feels about you.

The more you can trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you as a man, the more she will begin to reconnect with her feelings of love for you.

So, rather than trying to tell your ex that other women are interested in you in the hopes that it will make her jealous, simply focus on quickly becoming the type of guy who is naturally attractive to women. She will pick up on that when she observes you or interacts with you and it will immediately begin to make her question her decision.

Getting Your Ex to Want You Back

You can get your ex to want you back (even if she has moved on) by taking action to become an irresistibly attractive man who has the qualities she's looking for and wants in a man.

She is not going to come running back to you when that happens. Instead, you need to get her on a phone call, get her to agree to meet up with you in person and then re-attract her at the meet up.

If she has blocked you on social media or is no longer answering your texts or calls, it doesn't mean that you can't turn that around.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I provide text messages that ensure your ex will reply back and agree to talk on the phone. Then, on the phone, you will know exactly what to say and do to get her to agree to meet up with you.

At the meet up, you will be armed to the teeth with my persuasive attraction techniques that she will literally be helpless to resist. Women cannot stop themselves from feeling attracted to certain traits in men and I'm going to explain exactly how you can trigger those feelings in her.

Ready to begin?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Best Way to Get Your Ex-Girlfriend Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best way to get your ex girlfriend back is to:

1. First understand the real reasons for the break up. (See video below).
2. Begin fixing your emotional issues (e.g. insecurity, neediness, commitment issues, etc) to get to a better, stronger place emotionally.
3. Get your ex-girlfriend on the phone and arrange to meet up with her in person.
4. Make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you at the meet up.

[image: Meet up with ex girlfriend]

Your ex girlfriend is only going to begin to care about your desire to get back with her if you begin to make her feel the type of respect, attraction and love that she wants to feel for you.

Getting her back can't all be about you getting what you want. You have to trigger the types of thoughts and emotions in her that make her feel drawn to you and open to giving the relationship another chance.

Watch this video to understand where guys go wrong when trying to get an ex-girlfriend back and what you need to do instead if you want to succeed...

Until a guy knows what really caused his girlfriend to break up with him (this is often different to what she is saying the reason is), he can't take any kind of meaningful action to fix the problems or make the improvements needed to get her to change her mind.

Without knowing the real causes of her decision to dump him, any effort to get her back will usually be wasted time and energy and won't get him the end result he wants.

For example: A guy might be trying to get his ex-girlfriend back by showing her how much he really cares about her, but that isn't the reason why she broke up with him. She knows how much he cares, but because he doesn't have the ability to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for him, she doesn't see why she should give him a chance.

If he just started to focus on triggering those feelings, she would start to laugh, smile and be open when talking to him, but if he's trying to get her back by showing her how much she cares, she will feel even more turned off by the fact that he still doesn't understand how to give her what she really needs.

Mistakes to Avoid

The best way to get your ex girlfriend back is to make her feel the type of respect and attraction that a woman needs to feel to justify being in a committed relationship with a guy.

She's not going to be feeling that way if you are...

1. Begging or pleading with her to give you another chance

Some guys make the mistake of begging and pleading with their girlfriend to change her mind about the break up. A guy will think that by letting her know how devastated he is by her decision and how desperate he is to get her back, she'll somehow be flattered into wanting to give the relationship another try.

Yet, it almost never works because women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men and turned off by the weakness. When a man begs and pleads with a woman, she instantly realizes that he needs her more than she needs him.

...and that is not what a woman wants to feel like in a relationship with a man.

What a woman wants to feel is that you love her and want her in your life, but you do not need her for your emotional security. You are confident, have high self-esteem and are happy with or without her.

That's what she wants to see, so desperation and neediness to be with her is never going to be attractive. You can show her that you love her, appreciate her and want her, but don't come across as though you need her.

When a guy is begging and pleading to be given a second chance by saying things like, â□□Iâ□□ll do anything...! Just tell me what it is you want and Iâ□□ll do itâ□□ it only reinforces her view of him as being unattractive to her.

She realizes that he doesnâ□□t have what it takes to lead the way in the relationship and figure out for himself what needs to be fixed. In other words, he needs her to teach him how to be an attractive man in a relationship.

If she goes along with that and teaches him how to be the man that a woman wants to be with, it will most-likely become a repeating pattern in their relationship. For example: He will stuff up and turn her off and then ask her to teach him what to do instead.

Yet, that isn't what a woman wants because it puts her into the position of teacher, or like a mother or big sister figure to him. When a woman is put into that type of position with her man, it immediately begins to eat away at her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

When a man is asking his girlfriend to tell him what the problem is, he is putting her in the position of leading the way and that is not what she wants.

The same applies if a guy says something like, â□□I can change. Whatever it is you want me to do differently, I promise I can change.â□□ By asking her for â□□cluesâ□□ about what needs to change, heâ□□s showing her that he doesnâ□□t actually have a clue himself therefore his promises are most-likely going to be hard to fulfil.

For example: If she does tell him, "I need you to be more of a man" he probably won't know what that means. He may look up a couple of articles online and come across politically correct, wimpy advice that will tell him to clean up the house, buy her gifts and basically kiss her ass.

Yet, that isn't what a woman means by "be more of a man." What she really means is that she needs him to begin thinking, behaving, feeling and acting in a more masculine way, therefore making her feel more girly and feminine in his presence. She doesn't need him to be an even nicer, more generous and kind guy than he probably already is.

Women only appreciate niceness and kindness from a man when they actually respect him and feel sexually attracted to him. If a girlfriend has lost touch with her feelings of respect and attraction for her boyfriend, she's not going to care that he bought her a new gift or is promising to take her away on an expensive vacation.

She might take the gift and go on the vacation, but it isn't going to change the fundamental problems in the relationship that are causing her to want to break up with him. Gifts and nice behavior are not what women need most from a man. What she really needs is to be able to respect you as a man (i.e. look up to you), feel sexually attracted to you and love you.

Anything else that is added on top of that (e.g. a gift, wining and dining her, taking her away for the weekend, etc) is simply a bonus thing that she gets to experience every now and then, but it's not the fundamental requirement for keeping her happy for life.

So, begging and pleading with a woman isn't going to change what she is really feeling. Your ex-girlfriend will only change how she feels about you when you change how you think, behave, talk and action when interacting with her.

The next time you interact with your ex-girlfriend on the phone or in person, you are either going to be making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you...or you're not.

If you want to get her back for real, you must focus on making her feel the type of respect and attraction for you that will get her to become open to meeting up with you in person again and talking about giving the relationship one more chance.

That is the best way to get your ex-girlfriend back.

A woman doesn't want a needy guy promising her the world or saying that he is unable to imagine life without her. Quite simply, she just wants to be with a guy she feels sexually attracted to and respects. If you can make her feel that, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her feelings of love for you.

2. Trying to reattract her by changing your look

A really bad piece of advice that guys are commonly given is to get themselves a makeover, so that their ex will see his "new look" and instantly change her mind. This is not only ineffective advice, but it is really bad advice.

Yes, changing a look to become more physically appealing and sexy will work for women who are trying to get an ex-boyfriend back, but it rarely has much of an effect for guys who are looking to get a woman back.

Why? Most women place much less importance on a guy's looks than they admit, which is why you will see beautiful women with all different types of guys (e.g. overweight guys, bald guys, shorter guys, etc).

A woman will gladly stay in a relationship for life and be completely happy with her man if he is able to deepen her love, respect and attraction for reasons other than how he looks. Looks might be a way for some guys to initially get some attention from women, but how you look really isn't the most important thing to a woman.

The truth is, changing how you look physically is not going to have much of an effect on your ex-girlfriend unless you are also making her feel attracted in other ways.

For example: If you meet up with your ex-girlfriend and you are being much more charismatic, charming, confident, masculine and fun to be around than usual, then she is going to appreciate the fact that you also look a bit more presentable physically.

She's going to be feeling attracted to your confident, charismatic approach and she will then look at your physical appearance in a more positive light.

However, if you meet up with your ex-girlfriend and you appear tense, insecure and emotionally needy, she is going to feel turned off by the fact that you've put so much effort into trying to look physically appealing.

She will likely perceive your attempts to be physically appealing as your way of hopefully covering up the fact that you still don't know how to be emotionally appealing and attractive to her.

Rather than appreciating the effort you've put in to look more physically appealing, she will feel turned off by the fact that you still don't know what women really want in a guy emotionally.

For most women, it's not how a guy looks on the outside that makes him a truly, sexually attractive man, but who he is on the inside. If you waste a lot of time and money on kitting yourself out with some new designer outfits, a new hairstyle, and maybe a gym membership to begin building up your biceps, you're totally missing the point.

Your ex-girlfriend's reasons for breaking up with you are almost certainly going to be about your thinking, behaviour and attitude in the relationship and how that made her feel. She's not really going to care about your new hairstyle or what brand of shirt or jeans you now wear.

For example: Let's say that a guy's ex-girlfriend broke up with him because he behaved in a way that led to her feeling taken for granted (e.g. didn't care about her feelings, wasn't interested in listening to what she had to say, treated her badly, rejected her desire to take the relationship to the next level and get engaged, etc).

Is styling his hair differently going to now make her feel as though she truly loves and appreciates her? Of course not.

In almost every ex back case for guys, it's not how he looks on the outside that really matters to his girlfriend, but who he is on the inside.

The Best Way to Get Her Back

If you want to know the truly best way to get your ex-girlfriend back, you must begin by improving your ability to reignite her feelings of respect and attraction for you as a man.

Without that, she simply won't care about what you want because she won't be feeling what she needs to justify giving the relationship another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Wife and I Are Separated

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you and your wife are separated, it will only be a matter of time before she follows through with a divorce request.

However, you can stop that from happening.

Essentially what you need to do is understand where she is coming from (watch the video below for ideas) and then focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man.

Without respect, a woman can't feel truly attracted to a guy and without attraction, she cannot stay connected to her feelings of romantic love.

Watch this video to understand the process that a woman goes through before breaking up with a man and what you need to do to get your wife to reconsider the separation.

As you will see from the video above, it is possible to get her to feel differently about you. You have to guide her through the process of feeling respect for you again (she will feel this when you truly understand where she is coming from and make changes to the way you think, behave and act around her) and she will then allow herself to feel attracted to you again.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and you can use that to get your wife back!

As you will discover from the video above, you are pretty much in complete control over how you make your wife feel.

Today, you may have started out the day feeling like all hope is lost with your marriage, but it's not. Here are 7 reasons why a man and wife can get back together after a separation!

According to Science Daily, almost 50% of couples break up and get back together again. This means that 50% of all couples resolve their issues and end up being in happy, lasting relationships with their ex.

Right now, you're in the lucky position of not having lost your wife completely.

Yes, you and your wife are separated and yes, she may even be saying things like, "Leave me alone. I need some space to figure out if I want to be married to you," or "I don't love you anymore. My feelings for you are gone."

Yet, what you need to understand is that your wife can change how she feels about you. Even though she currently doesn't want to be with you, it does not mean that she has to feel that way forever; her emotions can definitely change.

However, how quickly your wife is going to go from not wanting to be with you, to being open to being with you, depends on the approach that you use.

If you attempt to get her back by trying to convince her that you will change, you will almost certainly fail. To get her back for real, you have to actually make changes to the way that you interact with her.

Essentially, the way that you talk to and interact with your wife is either going to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, or it's not.

If you do this properly and focus your attention on making her feel respect and attraction for you, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her feelings of love for you becauseâ€¦!

Love Doesn't Die

Love is a much more powerful thing than most people realize. Think about where love actually comes from and you will know what I mean.

Even if your wife is saying, *â€œI don't love you anymore,*â€¦ it doesn't mean that the love she felt for you is dead forever. It also doesn't mean you can't reconnect with that love or even make that love stronger than it was before. It simply means that, for now, she doesn't feel like she can be in love with you.

If you and your wife experienced love together, that love will absolutely still be there in the background and she will become open to reconnecting with that love when you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When you get her respect back, you then must focus heavily on making her feel attracted to you (e.g. bring back your old charisma and charm, be masculine in a way that makes her feel feminine in your presence, be confident, be forward moving in life as a man, be funny and positive, etc).

When your wife begins to feel respect and attraction, she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love and when that happens, she will more willing to forgive your past mistakes.

Women love the idea of being in love and, right now, your wife would love to be in love with you again if you were the man she imagined you to be when she said *â€œI do.*â€¦

You can make her feel that way again.

You just have to make sure you're giving her what she needs, and at the same time avoid making the same old mistakes that have been turning her off.

3 Common Mistakes to Avoid

While attempting to get a wife back after a separation, common mistakes that husbands tend to make include the followingâ€¦!

1. â€œWhy are you doing this?!â€¦

Relationships, marriages included, rarely fall apart â€œout of the blue.â€¦

Yet, when a woman finally breaks up with a relationship after putting up with it for long enough, most guys are shocked by the news and will desperately ask her, â€œWhy are you doing this?!â€¦ or â€œHow can you just walk out of our marriage so suddenly without even telling me what's wrong?!â€¦

The fact is, a woman doesn't just wake up one morning and think to herself, *â€œI'm bored with my marriage; I think I'd prefer to be separated.*â€¦ The truth is, she went through a lot of emotional turmoil and tried many times to let her husband know that she was unhappy with certain things in the relationship.

She probably wasn't always completely clear and direct about what was bothering her, but that's just the way most women are. Most women don't want to have to take on the role of teacher in a man's life and teach him what he needs to know about being a great husband.

If a wife does that once, she will have to do it twice and before long, teaching her husband to be more of a man will gradually begin to eat away at her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him.

Some men are lucky and have a wife who is more direct and brutally honest about what she wants, but a lot of husbands make the mistake of choosing to ignore the problem or write it off as her simply being a moody woman.

Then, when she eventually asks for a separation, her husband feels shocked by how sudden it all is and he demands to know “WHY!?” she is so unhappy that she actually wants to leave the marriage and go back on the promise of “Till death do us part” that she made on the wedding day.

When a husband panics and wants his wife to explain why she is leaving him, it simply confirms to her that he hasn't been paying attention to her all along.

To get your wife back, you need to discover the real reasons why she has separated from you (without her having to tell you), and then take action to make changes to your behavior, conversation style and how you treat her.

Rather than expecting her to explain everything and teach you what you will need to do to get her back, you have to man up and figure that stuff out yourself.

You are already taking that step by reading this article and watching the videos on the page, so if you are serious about getting your wife back, read on!

2. Please forgive me. I promise you I will change if you come back.

Most husbands are good men who sincerely love their wife and only want the best for her. For this reason, a husband will quite naturally want to apologize to his wife for how he's made her feel.

He might also want to say whatever he thinks she wants to hear, for her to change her mind and come back. However, even though his apology may be 100% sincere and from the heart, it won't change how she feels.

Why? A woman doesn't want an apology or promises that he will change because she's most likely heard it all before. Every time they had an argument or fight, he probably said, “I am sorry! I will change. Just give me another chance.”

And she did!

Yet, because he never fully understood what the real reasons were for her unhappiness, he kept offering to fix the wrong things.

For example: A woman might want her husband to be more ambitious and be able to climb through the levels of life like a real man, but he is promising her, “I will start doing the dishes more and helping you around the house to show you how much I care” which isn't actually what she wants from him.

If you want your wife to come back, you've got to be offering her what she really wants, not what you think she might want. If you are trying to get her back by apologizing or offering your promise to change, she will feel as though you haven't heard a word she's been saying and she won't be interested in a repeat performance.

What she wants to see is that you truly understand the things that have caused her to lose respect and attraction for you and more importantly, you've already begun to fix those things about yourself.

You do not have to become perfect and fix everything 100% before she will appreciate it, but you do have to begin to make real progress in those areas. Your wife likely knows you well enough to see when you are serious about something or not.

3. â□□How are you? Whatâ□□s been happening? Iâ□□ve been thinking about you? Are you okay?â□□

Itâ□□s normal for a husband to want to check up on his wife when theyâ□□re separated, but if he overuses text and e-mail, it almost always creates problems and drives her away further.

Even though he might feel as though he's just being friendly by staying in touch and checking up with her about her well-being, to her it may be seen as annoying or needy (possibly something that was already an issue in their marriage).

Via text or e-mail, your wife cannot see what state of mind you are really in, she can't hear your tonality, see your body language or assess your real mood via text as she could on the phone or in person.

So, what does she do?

She does what you are forcing her to do because you are texting and e-mailing her: She guesses.

Not being able to hear you over the phone or see you in person means that she has to guess at what state of mind you are really in and how you'd be coming across if you said that to her in person. In most cases, sheâ□□ll be guessing in a negative light.

For example: She could be thinking, â□□Why is he being such a pest? He knows I need some time to think things throughâ□□| does he think by being such a nuisance he is making things better?â□□

If you and your wife are separated, the only time you should be texting is to get her on the phone, so you can then arrange a meet up in person. Then, when you see her in person, you have to show her that you now fully understand what caused the two of you to become separated and have already been making a serious effort to effort to fix your issues and improve yourself.

This is how you will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for you so that sheâ□□ll become open to the idea of coming back to you.

So, don't waste time or potentially annoy her with pointless text messages or e-mails that explain your feelings. Get yourself ready to meet up with her (i.e. learn the real reasons why the marriage fell apart, make improvements and changes to yourself, get yourself into a confident emotional state and get ready to make an apology and ask her to forgive you) and then meet up with her.

However, just remember that an apology will not get her back unless you first focus on making her feel respect for you and then begin to make her feel attracted to you when you are talking to her on the phone or in person.

Your wife will only really care about what you have to say when her feelings of respect and attraction for you have been triggered. Anything you say prior to that will pretty go in one ear and out the other.

You Donâ□□t Have to Be Perfect to Get Your Wife Back

Getting your wife back is not about you having to become and be the â□□perfectâ□□ husband overnight, or changing who you are deep down as a man. Itâ□□s simply about adding to who you are and becoming a stronger, more well-rounded and more attractive version of yourself as a result.

You might have started out today thinking, â□□My wife and I are separated, and I feel like Iâ□□m about to lose her forever,â€ but it doesnâ€™t have to be that way.

When you present yourself in a way that makes her feel differently, she will naturally start thinking and behaving differently and she will become more open to the idea of fixing your marriage.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex Girl Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Thereâs a very simple answer to the question of how to get your ex girl back and that is...

Display the types of traits and behaviors that make you an irresistibly attractive guy that she will want to get back with.

How do you do that? You first learn from the mistakes that led to your ex becoming your ex and you then make changes, rather than promising her that you will change if she just gives you another chance.

Watch this video to understand the emotional process that your ex girl went through before ending the relationship and the process you need to guide her through get her back...

Of course, if your confidence has taken a real beating after being dumped, the idea of becoming an irresistibly attractive man in your ex-girl's eyes might seem like an impossible dream, right? No doubt.

It's difficult to feel confident and know that you're more than good enough for her, if she had said things like, "I don't feel anything for you anymore" or "I never want to see you again" when breaking up with you.

However, regardless of what went down during the break up process, it is up to you to pick yourself back up and become more emotionally attractive to your ex girl.

She will find you more emotionally attractive when she can see that you've not only learnt from the mistakes you made, but you also now know to trigger her feelings of love, respect and attraction for you.

One of the most important things to realize is that the more you sit around feeling down and out, the more unattractive you become to her as a man and that's not going to help you get her back, is it?

If you are serious about figuring out how to get your ex girl back, you have to take action to improve yourself. You may already be a great man, but if she doesn't want you back right now, she most likely doesn't think you're good enough.

You may know that you're good enough, but you've got to be able to get her to realize that by triggering her feelings of love, respect and attraction for you again.

Where Guys Go Wrong

When a guy is feeling heartbroken over a relationship break up, it's all too easy for him to slip into patterns of behavior that effectively ruin his chances of ever getting his ex-girlfriend back.

For example: Some guys try to get their ex to change her mind by hiding themselves away from the world and making sure that the message gets to her that he's devastated by the break up and unable to function without her.

He hopes that when she learns about how bad he's feeling, she'll feel so sorry for him that she'll be compelled to give him another chance. Yet, in most cases, she won't.

Stuff like that might happen in the movies, on TV drama shows and in music videos, but itâ€™s rarely going to happen in real life. Why? Women don't feel respect and attraction for a guy who is lost without them.

Women are naturally attracted to guys who are happy, confident and emotionally secure with or without them. So, wallowing in self-pity is not attractive and neither is begging or pleading to be given a second chance.

Sometimes, guys resort to hounding an ex with calls, SMS messages and messages on social media in a desperate attempt to get her to take him back.

Yet, the more that a guy contacts his ex girl and tries to convince her to take him back without even focusing on making her feel the type of respect and attraction for him that she needs to feel, the more she will feel like she's made the right decision to break up with him.

Will it Be Possible For You to Get Your Ex Girl Back?

Not all relationships can be rekindle, but by using the right approach to getting an ex girl back, most guys can at least get another chance with a woman.

Here's why...

Being dumped or going through a bad relationship break up can really knock a guy's confidence and leave him feeling like he's not good enough for his ex or for other women.

While feeling down and out, he may begin to believe that he won't be able to get his ex girl back, he won't be able to get over her and he'll never get himself another girlfriend. Everything just seems so hopeless when he's feeling down and lacking confidence in his attractiveness and value to his ex and to other beautiful women.

The more he tries and fails to get his ex-girl back, the more her lack of interest convinces him that he's destined to be lonely for the rest of his life. Of course, his lack of confidence might even lead to him resigning himself to loneliness and not making any attempt to get her back at all.

He might choose to attempt to dull his sexual desire a couple of times per week by masturbating to porn, but the desire for love, companionship and acceptance from his ex girl or from other women he likes, never seems to go away for long. It's always there in the background.

He wants to get his ex girl back, but he simply isn't prepared to do what it takes. Instead of building himself back up, fixing any emotional issues he has (e.g. neediness, insecurity, commitment issues, etc), he chooses to hide away feel down and out about everything.

Don't do that.

If you are serious about getting your ex girl back, you need to focus on getting yourself into the right frame of mind.

The frame of mind that you need to be in is as follows:

- You know that it's possible to get an ex girl to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.
- You are willing to begin fixing any emotional issues or weaknesses you have to become a stronger man that you are right now.
- You are prepared to get her on the phone, meet up with her in person, apologize for your mistakes and let her experience the new, improved version of you.

- You know that you might get her back immediately or it might take a couple of meet ups, but you are prepared to do what it takes to have her back in your arms saying, "I love you."

Becoming the Type of Guy That She Would Want to Take Back

When a guy takes steps to learn develop and then display the qualities that women are looking for in a man, he becomes a better man as a result.

A better man is a more confident and more masculine version of the man you are now. You may be a good guy and have great intentions with your ex girl, but unless you can make her feel like you are a changed man, she isn't going to be very interested in giving the relationship another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Said She Wants to Be Alone

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

At the beginning of a relationship, a couple usually wants to spend as much time together as possible. However, if the relationship doesn't progress to the next stages and the woman begins to lose touch with her feelings of respect and attraction for her man, she may end up wanting to be alone so can figure out whether or not the relationship is something worth sticking with.

Watch this video for more info...

So, if you're saying, "My girlfriend said she wants to be alone," it has been something that she has been thinking about for a while.

When in a relationship, a woman will give her guy ample warnings, by way of arguing with him over those "little" things, that she's not happy about in the relationship.

However, most guys assume that these fights are "normal" and that she's just being a woman.

In reality, fighting over "little" things is a woman's way of saying, "These are the things in our relationship that I don't like and I need you to pay attention and make some changes." She may even be more specific and say things like, "I don't like it when you do that," or even, "If you don't change those things / that behavior, I'm going to break up with you."

So, if your girlfriend has broken up with you and now just wants to be alone, you need to start going through the ex back process to get her back.

Watch this...

To get her to not want to be alone anymore, you need to focus on re-attracting her as you guide her through the ex back process.

If you don't re-attract her and try to convince her to give you another chance, she will most likely reject you because she just won't feel motivated to want to be in a relationship without attraction.

For a man and a woman to want to stay together, there has to be mutual attraction.

If it's only you who feels attracted to her, then she's going to start feeling attracted to other guys and may then give an excuse like, "I just want to be alone," or "I need time by myself to think" or, "I need space to figure out what I want in life."

All of that is code for, "I'm breaking up with you, but doing it slowly."

So, if your girlfriend has said that she wants to be alone, don't panic and beg her to stay with you.

Instead, focus on re-attracting her and then guide her back into a relationship with you.

Even though it might feel like you and her are still in a relationship, she feels like it's over and is slowly trying to distance herself from you so she can fully break up with you.

In her mind, she is out and is going to move on now unless you re-attract her.

We Need to Talk

Many guys are taken completely by surprise when she gives him the, “We need to talk,” speech. They will often say, “I never saw it coming,” and “This was so out of the blue; I just don’t understand where this is coming from.”

Telling them that she already gave them many hints before she reached the point where she is at right now doesn’t make sense to them.

When we men are unhappy about something, it’s natural for us to come out and tell it like it is.

Mistakenly, some guys assume that their woman will do the same thing and speak up like a man, if she feels that something in the relationship is bothering her.

Why Didn’t She Tell Me How She Was Feeling?

As nice as it would be for most guys if their girlfriend (or fiancée or wife) simply gave them a nice, neat list of complaints and asked them to fix those things, the reality is, a woman won’t do that.

Why? Basically, a woman wants her man to lead in the relationship and to figure out what the problem is by himself.

She wants him to realize that she’s not “just being a woman” but that she’s actually unhappy about certain things in their relationship, and then she wants him to take some sort of action to fix those things.

She doesn’t want to have to break down the problem for him and spell it out like she’s his teacher or his mother.

There is a specific dynamic that occurs between a man and a woman that allows the sexual attraction between them to exist.

If she has to “mother” him and teach him how to be the man in the relationship, the dynamic between them goes out of balance and the attraction she feels for him dies, eventually leading to the end of the relationship.

Is it Too Late to Change How She Feels About Me?

[image: Let her experience the changes in you for herself]

No, it’s never too late to make your girlfriend feel respect, attraction and love for you again.

Right now, her message to you is not encouraging, but even if a woman is saying, “I want to be alone,” it doesn’t mean she’ll be stuck feeling like that forever. Feelings change all the time.

As you may already know, most women can be pretty emotional and dramatic, especially when they’re feeling angry or hurt.

This is why, although a woman might say something in the heat of the moment and even make it sound like she’ll never change her mind about it, a little while later she will be over it and even act surprised if you happen to bring up her earlier behavior.

What you need to understand is this...

Even though right now youâre saying, âMy girlfriend said she wants to be alone,â this isnât something that cannot easily be changed.

There are many things you can do immediatelyÂ to get her to feel differently about you and get her to feel respect for you again, BUT first you have to be willing to change some things about yourself.

Itâs not about becoming perfect or changing who you are inside; you simply have to become a better, more complete and well-rounded version of who you are right now.Â

When you make her feel differently about you and get her to see you in a new light, she will automatically begin to reconsider her decision to be alone.

How can you do that?

Here are 3 important steps to get you startedâ|

1. Donât try to talk her out of it.

Itâs natural for a guy to want to convince his girlfriend to give him another chance.

However, the more you say to her, âI know I messed up but we can work this out. Just tell me what you want me to do and Iâll do itâ or, âYou canât let what we have just disappear. I still love you and if you let me make it up to you, I know you can love me again too,â the more youâre highlighting to her that you have absolutely no idea why sheâs telling you she wants to be alone.

The more you try to convince her to change her mind, the more misunderstood youâre making her feel and the more determined she becomes to walk away from you.

If your girlfriend is currently confused about her feelings for you, or perceives you to be needy, weak or desperate, how do you think sheâll view your behavior?

Will she assume that you are being a strong, confident guy who simply wants to get his relationship with her back on track, or will she see you as weak, needy, loser who would do anything to hold on to her?

The truth is, you canât talk her out of her decision.

However, when you change the way you communicate with her so that she can begin to feel respect and attraction for you again, she will naturally begin to think and behave differently.

She will become more open to being with you or at least to meeting up with you to have a chat.

2. Donât waste too much time with the âNo Contactâ rule.

Another common reaction that guys have when faced with a girlfriend who said she wants to be alone is to ignore her and hope sheâll change her mind.

However, the No Contact rule (ignoring your ex for 30 to 60 days) rarely works because while youâre sitting at home moping and counting the minutes off the clock, sheâs out there meeting new guys, having sex and even falling in love again.

Here's a video I made for guys who've already been dumped and are now trying to get their girlfriend back:

In most case, not contacting her just doesn't work if she doesn't have feelings for you anymore.

Of course, some women might call when they donât hear from their ex boyfriend for a while, but this is mostly to see if heâs missing her.

If, when she calls him he admits how lonely he's been without her and that he's so glad she called, she'll feel relieved that she broke up with him.

Why? Women are attracted to the strength in men and repelled by weakness.

When she discovers that his not contacting her was all an act to get her to call HIM, she will feel even more turned off by him and will be more able to move on with her life without regrets.

3. Don't promise her that you will change if she will just give you a chance.

If you try to get your girlfriend back without really fixing or improving anything about yourself and are just saying that you will change, it's not going to be enough for her.

Yes, it's true that some women (e.g. women who are inexperienced with relationships, or women who haven't been able to find another guy) will agree to give their ex boyfriend a second chance if he says that he will change, but, she will break up with him again as soon as she realizes that he has no intention of actually changing once she's back.

However, if when you contact her you have already begun to fix your issues and improve yourself, she will be able to see that when she interacts with you.

By showing her that you've taken her concerns seriously she will feel understood and she will begin to trust you again.

Changing Her Mind is Easier Than You Think

Yes, you can sit around feeling hopeless and saying, "My girlfriend said she wants to be alone," or you can take action right now to become an even better guy than she first fell in love with, giving her a reason to feel a renewed sense of respect, attraction and love for you.

When you learn from your mistakes, overcome any insecurities that are holding you back and become a better man, you will not only have what it takes to win back her love, but you will also have the skills to make her fall even more passionately in love with you than she did before.

A big part of what you need to do is focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you as a man. When you re-spark her feelings for you, she will naturally start to miss you and want to get back with you...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Wants to Be Friends

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your girlfriend wants to be friends, it means that she is about to break up with you.

If your girlfriend has already broken up with you, it could mean that she is giving you “breadcrumbs” and either still wants to be with you or is just stringing you along.

How you react to her request to just be friends is what will determine whether you can keep her as your girlfriend.

To avoid getting placed in the friend zone and losing her forever, you need to focus on re-attracting her back into a sexual, committed relationship with you.

The same rules apply if you are still in a relationship or have been broken up with.

What matters is how you are making her feel now.

When you interact with her, do you make her feel attracted, turned off or just neutral?

If you want her to stop wanting to just be friends with you, it’s essential that you focus on making her feel sexually and romantically attracted to you from this moment onwards.

As you do that day after day, her feelings will deepen and she will just want to be with you.

Deepen Her Feelings For You

In many cases, when a girlfriend says that she just wants to be friends with her boyfriend now, she really means it.

It’s her way of creating some distance between you and her, so she can privately move on with her life without you and then one day, she will say something like, “I have something to tell you” and will then tell you that she’s met another guy and is now in love with him.

So, if you want to avoid losing her, you’ve got to start making her have strong feelings for you again.

It’s a man’s responsibility to maintain and deepen the attraction, love and respect that his woman feels for him.

It’s his job to build, and keep building, the sexual chemistry between them and to make her feel the way she really wants to feel in the relationship.

If he’s unable to do that, the woman will gradually stop feeling attraction for him as a man, and she’ll look for an “easy” way to break up with him.

If you’re saying, “My girlfriend wants to be friends,” you’re clearly on the receiving end of one of those classic break up lines that women use when they want to break up with a guy without causing a scene.

Women will naturally avoid telling a guy the REAL reasons they are breaking up with him. This is partly because they’re instinctively programmed to avoid situations that could potentially put them in danger, i.e. if the guy gets aggressive or violent.

Women also keep things vague by saying things like, “Maybe we can just be friends” because when a woman has made up her mind about breaking up, she doesn’t want to give the guy reasons to talk her out of it.

Most importantly though, a woman doesn't want to have to teach her boyfriend how to be the man that she wants him to be. She will have already given her boyfriend enough "hints" about the problems in their relationship and if he wasn't able to figure it out by himself, she doesn't want to teach him.

So, even though right now you're probably feeling hurt and even confused, you can get her back if you use the right approach.

The right approach is to focus on re-attracting her.

If your girlfriend is only wanting to be friends at this point, the main reason why will be that you simply haven't been making her feel the type of attraction and respect for you that she feels is necessary.

You might be a great guy and have the best intentions with her, but if you're triggering her feelings of sexual attraction and if she doesn't really respect you as a man, then she's going to find it difficult to look past that.

You have to really focus on improving your ability to make her feel what she really wants to feel.

3 Common Mistakes to Avoid Making Now That's She Has Given You the "Let's Be Friends" Speech

Most guys who lack experience with women, or who got lucky when they hooked up with their girlfriend, fall prey to making mistakes that make their girlfriend feel turned off throughout the relationship.

Here are 3 classic examples...

1. Thinking that if he bombards her with text messages he'll stay on her mind and this will change her feelings towards him.

[image: Over texting girlfriend to hopefully stay on her mind]

Guys who say, "My girlfriend wants to be friends," often believe that she's just going through a "phase" and that if they make an effort to stay on her mind by texting her multiple times a day she will eventually change her mind about how she really feels about them.

The reality is that a woman who gets bombarded by text after text from her ex is more likely to think, "I wish he'd just go away! He's driving me crazy!" rather than, "Oh, he's so sweet and romantic! I'm such a fool for wanting to only be friends with him. What was I thinking?"

Also, because a woman in this situation is trying to break off her connection with him in an amicable way, she's more likely to text back in a nice, friendly way. To him this often feels like a sign that she hasn't really stopped loving him and that if he keeps it up she'll eventually come back to him.

Yet, just because a woman texts back, it doesn't mean that she is feeling anything more than a polite, friendly interest in someone she used to date.

Nothing that you can say to your ex girlfriend via text will convince her that you've actually figured out the real reasons why she's broken up with you and have made an effort to fix those things and improve yourself.

In your text you can say whatever you think she wants to hear, but actions speak louder than words. If you genuinely want to get her to feel respect and attraction for you again as a man, you have to let her experience your confidence over the phone, and then she has to see those changes in person when you meet up. That's the only way you will be able to convince her that you have changed and make her feelings towards you change too.

2. Thinking that if he uses the "No Contact Rule" she'll come running back to him.

The opposite of bombarding a woman with too many text messages, is when guys try to use the No Contact Rule (stop contacting her for 30 to 60 days) to make her miss him and come running back.

Yet, this can easily backfire because it simply allows her more time to get over him.

Watch this video for more info...

While he's busy sitting at home missing her, she can be out there meeting other guys, going on dates and having sex.

By the time he gets in touch with her again, she may even have another boyfriend or even be engaged or getting married.

Yes, not contacting her does get some women to call, but a call from her doesn't mean that she's interested in being back in a relationship with him.

When she doesn't hear from her ex, especially if she's told him she wants to be friends, a woman will usually call to investigate whether he is missing her and harboring thoughts of them getting back together again.

If she sees that he is, she'll actually find it easier to move on with her life.

Why? Women are attracted to the strength in men and repelled by weakness.

If, when she calls him, he breaks down and tells her how lonely he's been without her, how much he misses her and even asks her for another chance, she will use his desperation and pain to feel even more turned off by him and more able to move on.

Rather than wasting time with the amateur "No Contact Rule," you've got to get her on the phone right away and make her feel happy and curious about the idea of seeing you again. From there you can make her feel renewed respect and attraction for you and then her feelings for you will change naturally because you'll be giving her what she REALLY wants from a man.

3. Trying to get her back without changing anything about himself.

Probably the worst mistake guys make is assuming that all it's going to take to change how their girlfriend feels is to say, "I know we can work things out. Just give me another chance and you'll see things will be different between us."

Fact: If you're saying, "My girlfriend wants to be friends," the attraction and love between you has fizzled out.

This is due to the fact that certain behaviors and attitudes in the relationship slowly eroded the feelings she had for you and nothing you SAY is going to rekindle those feelings.

If you want your girlfriend to take you seriously and come back to you again, you will need to take the things that caused her to break up with you seriously.

For example: Taking her for granted, being needy and insecure, not being able to control your jealousy, allowing her to wear the pants in the relationship, being mentally and emotionally weaker than her, etc.

If you want her to take you seriously, you need to show her that she matters enough for you to actually put in the effort to change.

You don't have to become perfect to get her back, but if you aren't willing to fix any emotional issues that you have and improve yourself, then she will feel as though you're disrespecting her and the relationship and she won't be interested in a repeat performance.

You Can Change How She Feels About You Right Now

Just because right now you're saying, "My girlfriend wants to be friends," it doesn't mean you have to roll over and accept that.

If you want to get her back, you CAN. And if you want to move on and find yourself another, better even more attractive woman than her, then you can do that too!

A big part of knowing how to get your girlfriend back and keeping her interested and attracted all boils down to being able to relax into being your best self; all the time.

When you improve yourself by removing any insecurities that may be holding you back in relationships and in life, you become a better man.

Not only will this make you more attractive to your girlfriend and make her feel more attraction, respect and love for you than ever before, you will also become more successful in other areas of your life too.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Winning Your Wife Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When it comes to winning your wife back, you need to use an approach that is not only going to help you win back her love, but also develop a stronger, happier and more loving relationship than ever before.

A wife will rarely leave a husband for small, petty reasons, so if your wife has left you, it's probably over some pretty serious issues (i.e. taking her for granted, cheating, lack of attraction, lack of respect, financial issues, etc).

If you want to win your wife back for real, you've got to take the process seriously. First, you need to understand why she really left you and what you're going to need to make her feel to win her back.

Watch this video by to understand the process she went through before leaving you and what you'll need to do to begin winning your wife back...

As you will discover from the video above, it is possible to get her to feel differently about you. You've got to focus on getting her respect back, then her attraction and when that happens, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her feelings of love for you.

Being the Husband That She Wishes You Could Be

[image: Winning your wife back]

The bottom line is that winning your wife back is all about becoming a man she wants to be won back by, meaning that you need to show her that you've become a better man than the one you were when she made the decision to leave you.

You don't have to spend a lot of time doing building yourself up, but you at least need to let her see that you really have made some changes to the way you think, behave and take action in life.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

Until you at least begin to genuinely fix the things about yourself that led to your wife falling out of love with you in the first place, nothing that you say or do is going to get her to fall back in love with you.

Winning a wife back comes down to truly understand what she really needs and then letting her see that you have that. When she can see that, she will much more open to meeting up with you, saying "Yes" when you ask her to forgive you for your past mistakes.

When she forgives you, she will then naturally begin to drop her guard and become more open to the idea of being with you again. As long as she can see that you truly are the man that you are now claiming to be, her respect and attraction for you will become stronger and more compelling.

Common Mistakes to Avoid

If you are serious about getting your wife back, you need to have a plan and follow it through properly. Otherwise, you may make one of the following classic mistakes...

1. Promising to do whatever she wants, if she will just give you another chance

Itâ€™s not unusual for a man to say that his wifeâ€™s decision to leave came as a complete shock and seemed like a “bolt out of the blue.”

Yet, the reality is that she will have been sending out plenty of signals about the way she was feeling for quite some time and it will have been her husbandâ€™s inability or unwillingness to pick up on those signals and take action on them that led to her finally making the decision to leave him.

With this in mind, attempting to win her back by promising her the world and saying things such as, “I promise I can change; whatever it is you need, I can do it” or “I will do anything you want...I will take us on a holiday...I will buy you a new car!” or “I will do the dishes...I will clean the house...I will do anything” will only add to her belief that heâ€™s not in tune with her or with the marriage.

A wife (and any woman for that matter) doesn’t want to have to be a man’s teacher in life. She doesn’t want to have to teach you what you should know about how to be an attractive man in a relationship. She wants you to figure that out on your own, rather than her having to feel like a mother, friend or teacher to you.

Promising to change is meaningless if you have to ask her what changes you need to make. Winning your wife back is all about winning back her love and respect, and that means showing her that youâ€™ve learned from the mistakes you made and youâ€™ve made improvements as a result.

If you don’t know what those mistakes are, you can’t learn from them and you can’t make changes for the better.

For example: A mistake that some husbands make is to stop making their wife feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, focused on love). Instead, the husband expects her to think, behave and feel like more a man. He wants her to be sensible, logical and rational like he is, but when he forces her to be that way, she stops feeling like a real woman.

2. Getting a new look

Another trap guys fall into is in believing that hitting the gym or getting themselves a new haircut is the key to winning their wife back. The theory is that making improvements to your outer appearance will lead to your wife seeing you differently and falling in love again with what she sees.

Why will you hear that advice a lot? Simple. Most men do not understand how a woman’s attraction for a man really works and almost all women will never, ever say what they really find attractive about men. Instead, they will just say superficial things about liking tall, handsome men.

Watch this video to understand how a woman’s attraction for a man really works and how you can use that to win your wife back...

A woman falls in love with a man because of who he is on the inside, not just how he appears on the outside. As you would know, your wife left you for a reason that runs deeper than an out-of-date hairstyle. A woman’s attraction for a man is much deeper than looks.

Winning your wife back is all about winning back her love and respect, and that means showing her that youâ€™ve made improvements to who you are as a man in terms of how you think and act, not just how you look.

Your thinking, behavior, attitude and how you now take action in life is either going to be making her feel respect and attraction for you, or it’s not. It’s as simple as that.

3. Putting her on a pedestal

Some husbands make the mistake of thinking that letting her know just how important she is and how desperate he is to have her back in his life, will cause her to take pity on him and give things another try.

Saying things like, “There’s no one else who could take your place” or, “I can’t live without you” or, “You’re my whole reason for living and without you I’m nothing” will rarely lead to her changing her mind for good.

Yes, it may work once, but if the same problems still exist (i.e. the husbands thinking, behavior, attitude, actions and vibe still causes the wife to feel a lack of respect and attraction), she isn’t going to stick around for long.

Winning Your Wife Back From Another Man

If your wife now has a new man, you need to make him pale in comparison to you.

According to various studies, approximately 65% of rebound relationships (i.e. the relationship someone immediately has after getting out of a long term relationship) fail within 6 months.

So, your wife may not necessarily break up with him right now, but if you can focus on improving yourself and making her feel the type of painful and positive emotions that will cause her to become open to seeing you again, you will be well on your way to winning your wife back.

Watch this video to understand why it’s important to make her feel a combination of painful and positive emotions...

Winning Your Wife Back After a Separation

If you’ve separated from your wife, you need to focus on fixing your issues (i.e. insecurity) and improving yourself (i.e. becoming more attractive to her).

You then need to arrange to meet up with her as soon as possible to talk. At the meet up, you need to apologize for your mistakes and let her experience the new version of you.

You need to get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and ask her what it would take to give the marriage another chance, or at least begin to see each other once a week.

Winning Your Wife Back After an Affair

It’s always a bit more difficult when an affair is the reason for a split.

If you had an affair, you need to let her know that it was a mistake, you don’t feel any emotional connection with that woman and you’ve only ever loved your wife.

You need to ask her what it would take for her to forgive you and explain that many marriages have bumps along the way, but as long as the couple is committed and willing to stick together, they can reach a point where the love and connection is more powerful than ever before.

You also need to make sure that you’re overall behavior, conversation style, vibe and attitude is attractive to her. If the way that you’re interacting with her is turning her off, she’s not going to be very interesting in forgiving you and giving the marriage another chance.

If she was the one who had an affair, you need to make a decision about whether you want to have sex with another woman before getting back with her, so you are both even. If you don't do that, you probably won't be able to let go of the feeling of betrayal and it may cause you to become insecure about her desire for you and commitment to you.

Winning Her Back Before it's Too Late

Couples get back together after days apart, weeks, months and even years, so it pretty much never too late to get your wife back.

Here is why you can get her back, even if you currently feel like it might be too late...

As you will discover from the video above, love doesn't die and simply gets pushed into the background. Love is a much more powerful force than many people realize.

If you can begin to trigger your wife's feelings of respect and attraction for you, she will naturally begin to drop her guard and reconnect with her feelings of love for you.

Are You Now a Better Man Than You Were When She Left You?

Your answer to that is most-likely "Yes" and if so, you have the right mindset for success. You've got to believe in yourself and know that the possibility of your wife getting back with you is a good thing for her and for you.

However, don't waste time with things that aren't going to really get her to feel what she wants to feel. In other words, making empty promises, building bigger muscles, changing your hairstyle, or begging her to come back will not show her what she really wants to see from you, in order to feel the way she really wants to feel.

Until you can demonstrate that you have learned from the mistakes and have taken real action to fix the issues that led to her leaving you in the first place, you are not in a position to get her to truly change her mind.

When you take action to rapidly develop and then display the qualities that transform you into the type of man that she will want to come back to, it will show her that you've now got what it takes to be the husband she needs.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make My Ex-Girlfriend Miss Me Like Crazy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

All it usually takes to get an ex-girlfriend to begin missing her ex boyfriend is to feel a strong spark of respect, attraction and love for him again.

If a guy can actively interact with his ex girlfriend, create a spark and then give her space for a few days, she will naturally begin to miss how good it feels to interact with him.

She will want to contact him or see him in person to get more of the good feeling and less of the pain that she is now feeling that he's not her boyfriend anymore.

Using Jealousy to Make Her Miss You

Sometimes, a quick and easy way to make an ex-girlfriend miss you and temporarily get her back is to focus on making her feel jealous.

For example: When she discovers that other women are showing a lot of interest in her ex-boyfriend, she might feel like she is losing a great guy and she will need to act fast before he falls in love with another woman.

[image: Girlfriend missing her boyfriend like crazy]

If her boyfriend doesn't want to get back with her right away and she notices that he's moving on without her, she might also begin to miss him like crazy and reach out to him in the hope that he will want to meet up with her and talk.

Of course, she may only want him back for selfish reasons (i.e. so she can keep him close by while she secretly tries to find a replacement guy behind his back), but in some cases, making your ex-girlfriend feel jealous is enough to show her that you're a valuable guy and that she should take you more seriously.

However, a word of warning...

If you're looking to make your ex-girlfriend miss you like crazy and want you back, make sure that you don't slip into pretending to have the interest of other women, or only focus on making her feel the emotion of jealousy. If you want her to miss you and want you back for real, you need to make her feel a range of positive and painful emotions.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man and creator of Get Your Ex Back: Super System) to learn the right way to make your ex girlfriend begin missing you like crazy...

4 Tips For Getting Her to Miss You and Want You Back

There are many ways to make your ex-girlfriend miss you, which are explained in Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

For now, here are 4 of the many ways that you successfully get her to miss you and want you back...

1. Focus on improving yourself and fixing any emotional issues that you may have.

If you want to get your ex-girlfriend back for real, then you will need to put in a bit of real effort to improve yourself and fix any issues that you were bringing into the relationship (e.g. jealousy, neediness, clingy behavior, etc).

When you begin to truly improve yourself and fix your issues, your ex-girlfriend will be able to hear that if you can get her on a phone call, see it in your body language and vibe if you can meet her in person and notice it in how you appear in photos on social media.

For example: If a girlfriend dumped a guy because he wasn't enough of a man for her (e.g. he was a bit of a wimp, emotionally needy, lacked confidence around people, etc) then she will be looking to see if he is coming across as a more confident, masculine guy.

If he is still the same old guy that she lost respect and attraction for, she isn't going to start missing him like crazy. Instead, she's going to realize that he still hasn't changed and she probably made the right decision to end the relationship.

2. Avoid lying to her about anything.

Some guys who are feeling desperate to make their ex-girlfriend miss them will resort to lying about being with other women. In reality, they've just been moping around at home missing their ex and the only action they've been getting is masturbating to porn.

You don't have to pick up or have sex with any new women to get an ex-girlfriend to want you back, but if you are going to tell her that you've been seeing other women, make sure that it's the truth.

Why? She can easily catch you out in a lie by either saying something like, "I was thinking of getting back with you, but now that you've been with other women, I've changed my mind" and then push that point until she gets you to admit that you were lying. When she finds that out, she will lose even more respect and attraction for you.

She could also ask you a lot of personal questions about the woman (e.g. "Where does she live? How old is she? What's her last name? Where did you meet?" etc.) to see if you fumble on your words or come across as though you're lying.

3. Don't pretend to be over her if you're not.

There is absolutely nothing wrong with you continuing to love your ex-girlfriend and want her back in your life after a break up. You do not have to hide the fact that you love her and want her in your life. Never, ever be apologetic about that or worried about showing her that. You do not lose any power if you love a woman unapologetically.

The problems occur when you need her back because you're an emotional wreck without her.

That's when it's not cool.

A woman doesn't want to get the impression that you're weak, broken and lost without her, but she will respect and appreciate if you are continuing to love and want her as a part of your life.

So, whatever you do, don't pretend to be over her if you're not. She can easily catch you out in that lie by mentioning that she's missing you, just to see how you react. If you fall for it and tell her how you're really feeling, she's going to feel good about herself in her position of power over you and then she'll get straight back to moving on and leaving you behind.

4. Let her experience the new and improved version of you.

Nothing will make your ex-girlfriend miss you like crazy more than her getting to experience the new and improved version of you, who still loves her and wants her, but isn't desperately trying to get her back.

If she can see that other guys simply don't compare to the new you, then she will always be thinking about you. Then, if you are making sure that you're focussing on making her feel painful emotions like jealousy and a number of other emotions (instructions provided in Get Your Ex Back: Super System), she will naturally begin to really miss you and want you back.

If you're asking yourself, How can I make my girlfriend miss me like crazy and want me back? try asking this instead, Have I actually got what women are looking for in a guy? and then take action to make sure you get it.

Making your ex miss you is about quickly becoming and being the type of guy that almost all women want to be with. If you're sitting around at home licking your wounds and feeling sorry for yourself, then you're doing nothing to change yourself or make the improvements to yourself that will make your ex feel differently about you.

[image: Missing ex-girlfriend like crazy]

Unless you're prepared to fix the things about yourself that led to your ex-girlfriend breaking up with you in the first place, you are not on the right path.

You need to quickly improve yourself and then get in contact with her to let her experience the new and improved version of you, even if that is only via a phone call to begin with. Let her experience your confidence, charisma and coolness coming through the phone in a loving, non-needy way.

On the call, you can ask her for an in-person catch up, or you can end the phone call and let her sit there with the newfound feeling of respect and attraction that she will now be feeling for you.

When she begins to think about you in a more positive light, she will naturally start to remember all the good times that you had in the relationship, which will cause her to miss you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Left Me. How Can I Get Her to Come Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Relationships can last a lifetime, but if the love, respect and attraction is taken care of, they usually don't.

In the past, a woman had to stay with one man for life, so if you're saying, "My girlfriend left me," you might have suddenly realized that her commitment to you isn't guaranteed.

These days, a woman can break up with a guy if she isn't happy and then move on. The people around her and society in general will encourage her to do what is best for her, whereas in the past, women were practically forced by society and the people around them to stick by their man for life. The good news is that you can actually get your girlfriend to come back. She may have left you, but that doesn't mean you can't change the way she feels.

Watch this video to understand how to get her to come back to you and give the relationship another chance...

Where Did Things Go Wrong Between You?

[image: Where did things go wrong between you?]

There are many reasons why a girlfriend will leave her boyfriend, but here are some of the most common ones.

See if you answer, "Yes" to any of these questions....

1. Did You Become Too Clingy, Possessive or Jealous?

One of the most common relationship mistakes guys make is becoming too clingy, possessive or jealous in their relationship.

When a guy gets to the point where he is wanting to spend every available moment with his girlfriend and then gets jealous of her friends if she wants to do something with them that doesn't include him, his actions can be a real turn-off.

He mistakenly think that being "joined at the hip" makes them more together as a couple, but that sort of clingy, overly-possessive behaviour is much more likely to drive a wedge between them than bring them closer together. Clinginess is a sign of insecurity, and an insecure man is not an attractive man in a woman's eyes.

2. Did You Take Her For Granted?

Taking your girlfriend for granted is essentially the opposite of the above.

A guy who slips into changing plans at the last minute or letting his girlfriend down on a regular basis because "something important" came up, is a guy she can no longer rely on. She's going to question his commitment to her and their relationship and begin to wonder if he is the one or just another guy she will forget when she meets the one.

A guy might think that going out for an impromptu after-work drink with some office colleagues is no big deal because he was only going to have a quiet night in watching a movie together with his girlfriend anyway, but it is a big deal to her because his ability to "drop" her when something else comes up gives her reason to question his emotional involvement.

Does he actually see her as his lifetime woman? Does he respect her? Is he at all concerned with her level of happiness, her experience of love in the relationship and her sense of belonging?

If your girlfriend feels that she's expected to hang around for you and to be available whenever it suits you - irrespective of how often you change plans - she may begin to look around for someone who appreciates her more than you do.

3. Did She Lose Respect For You?

Being too clingy and taking her for granted are opposites in terms of behavior, but they will both have the same negative effect on a relationship.

Behaving in a jealous and insecure way will cause her to lose respect for you, and taking her for granted will do the same. When respect is lost, sexual attraction is also lost as a consequence and when this happens, the relationship will begin to drift and inevitably fall apart.

Watch this video to understand how that process works...

Women are attracted to confident men who know who they are, know what they stand for in life and know what they've got to offer in a relationship as a result. Genuine confidence and true masculinity make a guy someone who naturally earns the respect of other men, and this in turn, makes him irresistibly attractive to women.

Any pattern of behaviour that demonstrates a lack of confidence or a lack of strength in character (i.e. crying in front of her, being nervous around confident guys, not following through on your biggest ambitions in life, etc) will lead to a woman losing respect for her man.

Essentially, a woman wants to be able to look up to you and respect you, while also feeling as though you respect her as well. It's not about being 50/50 equals where neither of you are the man or the woman, but where you are clearly the man and you also respect your woman.

These days, a lot of guys get caught up in the false beliefs banded about by the media, especially the commonly given advice that women want men share every aspect of a relationship equally...right down to sharing every household chore. Yet, this is not what modern women want at all.

In terms of housework for example, women may say that they want a guy to do all or most of the housework, but real life studies have found that divorce is 50% higher among couples who share household duties, compared to couples where the traditional masculine and feminine roles are maintained.

So, don't fall into the trap of thinking that you need to kiss up to your girlfriend by promising to do more around the house or something lame like that. What really matters is how you make her feel when you interact with her.

You are either making her feel girly in response to your masculinity, or you're not. When you talk to her, you are either triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you, or you're not. It's as simple as that.

Can You Get Her Back?

Yes, you can get her back if you're prepared to learn from the mistakes you made and become a better man as a result. If you're saying, "My girlfriend left me," and you're also asking, How can I get her back? you need to focus on being the type of man that she would naturally want to get back with.

Getting her back is making real improvements to the way that your conversation style, body language, vibe and behavior makes her feel. Hounding her with text messages or pleading with her via phone, email or any other method of communication to be given a second chance is not going to change how she's feeling about you.

Actions really do speak louder than words and when you show her that you've learned from the experience and become a more attractive, well-rounded man as a result, she's going to rethink her decision to leave.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Get Back With Your Ex-Girlfriend: The Right Way to Do it

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to know how to get back with your ex-girlfriend, you may be struggling to move on after the breakup of a relationship or you might want her back because you know that she's the right girl for you.

Whatever the case, make sure that you go through the process of getting your ex back in the right way.

The right way to do it is to focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man. When she feels that, she will then become more open to forgiving you, hearing what you have to say and giving the relationship another chance.

Did She Break Up With With You, or Was it Your Decision to End it?

Relationships break up for different reasons (i.e. cheating, lack of attraction, emotional abuse, the love died out, etc), but whether you broke up with her, or she broke up with you, the fact is that you are now serious about wanting to get her back.

Soon after the break up, you may have begun to realize that it wasn't going to be easy for you to find a new, beautiful woman to take her place. You may have met other girls, but they just haven't made you feel the same way as your ex-girlfriend does.

[image: I want my ex back, not a new woman]

With this being the case, you're not alone. At The Modern Man, we get contacted every month by hundreds of guys who ask things like, "What's the best way to get back with your ex-girlfriend?" or "How can I get my ex back before she moves on with another guy?" or "How can I get my ex back, even though she now has a new boyfriend?"

It's a horrible place to be in for a guy because you are likely feeling lost, lonely and even a bit depressed without her in your life. Without her, you don't feel right. It's almost as though you need her to feel emotionally stable and secure.

However, the way you and all those other guys are feeling provides a big clue as to the mistake you made to cause your ex to become your ex in the first place — you put her on a pedestal and made your whole life revolve around her.

So why should this be a mistake? Well, women are attracted to confident, masculine, secure guys who know who they are and have a sense of purpose in life. A woman will often get into a relationship with a guy who bases his entire life, happiness and sense of identity on her, but she will eventually get bored of it.

Why? A woman doesn't want to be a man's purpose in life. She doesn't want him to hide from his true potential as a man behind her and a relationship. She wants to be loved, not hidden behind.

Your need to get back with your ex-girlfriend may be a good indicator that your lack of purpose as a man led to you becoming clingy and overly possessive and behaving in a jealous way when your girlfriend did her own thing outside of the relationship.

If this is resonating with you, getting back together with your ex will come down to showing her through your attitude and behavior that youâve learned from the mistakes you made and youâve become a better man as a result.

Mistakes to Avoid

If you want to get back with your ex-girlfriend, you first of all need to figure out what happened to cause your relationship to end in the first place. After all, if you donât know what caused your ex-girlfriend to feel differently about you, you canât take any kind of action to make the improvements needed to turn things around.

Second of all, you need to question whether your reasons for wanting her back are that genuinely believe that if you give it another chance it will last, or that you are afraid to get back out there and meet new women.

Either way, getting her back is going to mean making changes for the better and taking action to become a better man than the one she chose to dump. With the above in mind, the following commonly made mistakes are mistakes that must be avoided.

1. Hounding her with phone, text, and every other kind of messages

[image: Hounding ex with texts and calls]

If you slip into taking this approach, you probably believe that âhoundingâ her in this way is a good way to keep thoughts of you in her mind so that sheâll realize what sheâs missing.

Well, letâs just say that this approach will remind her of you, but not in the way you want. The things sheâll be reminded of are the things that caused her to want to break up with you, and the more you hound her, the more sheâs going to be convinced she made the right decision.

2. Begging and pleading to be given a second chance

Along with hounding her with messages often comes begging and pleading. Believe me, this does nothing to help change a womanâs mind. Behaving this way makes you look weak, wimpy, and desperate â and these are not attractive traits!

The bottom line is that thereâs nothing you can say that will make her feel any differently about you, if you are not able to trigger the feelings of sexual attraction and respect that she wants to experience around a man.

No amount of begging or pleading will change her feelings, but showing her that youâve learned from the experience and taken action to become a better man will give her reason to rethink her decision.

3. Getting her friends involved

When begging and pleading arenât working, thereâs a real temptation to recruit the help of her friends to try to get her to change her mind.

If this is something youâve considered, youâll be intent on accidentally-on-purpose bumping into some of her friends and making sure they get the message about how heartbroken and devastated you are and how desperate you are to be given a second chance.

This is a big mistake on many levels but not least because making yourself a guy who uses other people and seeks the pity of other people in this way makes you a weak, wimpy guy that no woman is going to be interested in. Taking this approach will only embarrass your ex-girlfriend, it will do nothing to change the way she feels about you.

Get Back With Your Ex-Girlfriend the Right Way

To get back with your ex-girlfriend in the right way, you need to begin showing her (through your actions and attitude) that you have learned from the mistakes you made and have taken action to develop the qualities that make you a better man than you were when she chose to end the relationship.

Thereâs nothing you can say that will make her feel differently before you actually make the effort to trigger a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as man.

DisplayingÂ the alpha qualities that all women are instinctively attracted to in a man, will show her that youâve now got what it takes to make her feel exactly the way she wants to feel in a relationship (i.e. she feels girly in response to your masculinity, she feels like you can lead the way to a better life for you and her, she feels like you now understand her and what she really wants from you as a man, etc).

Are you prepared to do what it takes to get back with your ex-girlfriend?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Broke Up With My Girlfriend and I Want Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're saying, "I broke up with my girlfriend and I want her back," you may fall into one of the following categories:

1. You broke up with her to teach her a lesson, but it end up backfiring.

For example: You thought that she was beginning to lose interest in you and was maybe thinking of cheating on you, so you broke up with her in the hope that it would make her come crawling back. She may have asked to get back with you initially, but you kept pushing her away and she eventually stopped chasing.

Now she has a new boyfriend or at least has other guys interested in her and you want her back.

2. You accepted an incompatible woman as your girlfriend, broke up with her after a while and now want her back because you can't find a replacement.

Sometimes, a guy will meet a girl (e.g. a coworker, a fellow student at university, a friend of a friend, etc) that he isn't very attracted to initially. After spending a lot of time with her, she eventually begins to grow on him.

He starts to really like her as a person and they either hook up after having a few drinks one night, or she tricks him into feeling the urgency to hook up with her by telling him that she's met another guy who is interested in her.

He then begins a sexual relationship with her and it feels good for a while, but when the initial attraction buzz wears off, he realizes that she's not good enough for him. So, he breaks up with her and then happily begins to move on with his life.

To his shock and disappointment, she is easily able to find a replacement guy and actually seems happier with the new guy than she ever was with him. Meanwhile, he is unable to attract a beautiful woman to replace her and feel good about the situation, so he then begins to want her back to make himself feel better.

3. She was perfect for you and you have now realized that you made a mistake by breaking up with her.

Maybe you are the type of guy who can easily attract and pick up beautiful women, so the reason why you want your ex back is not because you feel desperate and lost without her. You know that you could easily pick up another beautiful woman, but your ex girlfriend is special.

You now know that she's the one for you and you're willing to do whatever it takes to get her back.

4. You were never willing to commit to her, so broke it off and now you're regretting it.

Many guys who are looking to get an ex girlfriend back fit into this category, where they simply weren't ready or willing to commit. Maybe you still felt like you wanted to play the field, perhaps you didn't see the point in taking the relationship to the next level because it was fine the way it was or maybe you didn't think she deserved the commitment.

Whatever the case, you now feel like you would commit to her and possibly even marry her if she would just say "Yes" and give you another chance.

5. You wanted some time to work on yourself, but she eventually got tired of waiting

Sometimes, a guy will assume that his woman is his woman, no matter what.

Yet, the reality is that both the man and the woman entered into the relationship as individuals and always remain that.

What keeps the relationship together is respect, attraction, love and a decision to commit to each other.

If one person leaves and expects the other to wait around, they can begin to reconnect with their individual self and focus on what they want.

Additionally, in a case where a woman has been left behind, she can begin to worry that her man will start seeing other women.

As a result, she will open herself up to new men.

Before she knows it, she likes another guy and starts a relationship with him.

Of course, you can still get a girl back in a situation like that.

Watch this...

Mistakes to Avoid When Trying to Get Her Back

[image: Mistakes to avoid when trying to get her back]

As Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man and creator of Get Your Ex Back: Super System) explains in this video, it doesn't how much you want her back. What matters is how much of a renewed sense of respect and attraction you can make her feel when you next interact with her.

When your girlfriend feels differently about you, she will begin to think differently as well. However, that cannot be achieved through begging, pleading or trying to convince her via text. She has to be able to experience you on the phone and in person to feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Why Do You Want Her Back?

Before any action can be taken to get an ex-girlfriend back, you need to consider your reasons for wanting her back. After all, it was you who made the decision to end your relationship with her, so what has now changed to cause your change of heart?

1. Have you realized that you're very good at attracting women when you meet them or keeping them interested in a relationship?

Some of the guys who say, "I broke up with my girlfriend and I want her back" are saying so because they've realized that the process of finding themselves a new girlfriend is not as easy as they thought.

At the time of breaking up, they believed that they could do better than their current girlfriend and that replacing her would be a simple process of making themselves available to other women again.

The fact that they'd attracted their current girlfriend led to them believing that they'd easily attract another girlfriend, but the reality turned out to be not quite so straightforward.

Being back on the dating scene and not attracting women in the way they anticipated highlighted the need to make improvements and to learn how to be the kind of guy that all women find irresistibly attractive.

If this resonates with you, you need to question whether your motivation for getting your ex back is one of realizing that you made a mistake when you ended your relationship and wanting to put things right, or whether you're now seeing it as an easier option than having to make the effort to improve yourself in order to attract a new girlfriend.

2. Have you realized that you're anxious about approaching new women?

Realizing you're not actually that good with women and that you're not getting the results you want on the dating scene is one thing, but realizing that you're actually anxious about approaching other women and fearful of rejection is another.

For some guys, having a girlfriend and being in a relationship can provide a sense of confidence and security but being single again and facing rejection can really give that confidence a knock and make a guy feel insecure and unsure of himself.

If this resonates with you, you need to take action to develop genuine self-confidence and to become secure in who you are and what you've got to offer.

All women are attracted to confidence in a man and insecurity of any sort is a complete turn off. Wanting to get your ex-girlfriend back may be motivated by wanting to return to the feeling of confidence and security your old relationship provided but if you're demonstrating insecurity in your actions, your ex-girlfriend may not see you as a guy she wants to get back with.

3. Have you realized that the break up was mostly based on your mistakes, not hers?

Of course, your reason for wanting to get back with your ex-girlfriend may be that you've realized the relationship breakdown was mostly your fault and the result of treating her badly.

Sometimes it takes a step away from a situation to get a clearer picture of how things really are and this is often the case when a guy says, "I broke up with my girlfriend and I want her back."

It could be that your treatment of her led to her behaving in a way that made you want to end the relationship but you've now realized that all it would have taken to get your relationship back on track at the time was a change for the better in your attitude.

With this being the case, showing your ex-girlfriend that you've realized your mistake and you've made changes for the better will be key in getting her back. Even though it was your decision to end the relationship and not hers, the decision over whether to get back together again or not is ultimately hers.

You know you want her back, but do you know if she wants you back? Are you willing to change the way you approach your conversations and interactions with her, so you can make her feel differently about you and become open to giving the relationship another chance?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex to Talk to You Again

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting your ex to talk to you again is about beginning to say and do the types of things that will make her feel respectful towards you and attracted to you.

However, before you're going to be able to do that properly, you first need to understand why she really broke up with you in the first place.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man and creator of Get Your Ex Back: Super System) to understand the process that your ex went through before breaking up with you and what you need to begin doing to get her to want to talk to you again...

Now that you know the process she went through before breaking up with you, are you aware of why she might have decided to stop answering your calls, replying to your texts or speaking to you in person?

For example...

1. Did You Hound Her to the Point Where She Has Stopped Answering Your Calls or Texts?

[image: Hounding ex with texts and calls]

One of the biggest mistakes guys make when they're hoping to get an ex-girlfriend to change her mind and reconsider her decision to end the relationship is to hound her with calls, messages, e-mails and love letters.

When they do this, they think that maintaining contact in this way will keep thoughts of them and all the good times they shared at the forefront of her mind and she'll come to realize that she's missing them.

Sure, this it might be how things work out in the movies, but it's not how things are going to work out in real life. Your ex became your ex for a reason and the more you hound her with calls and messages, the more likely it is that the only things you'll be reminding her of are the bad times and the times she'd rather forget.

Think about it; if your ex no longer wants to talk to you, she's sending out a fairly clear message that she no longer wants to talk about the things you want to talk about - she's moving on because you currently aren't making her feel the type of respect and attraction that she wants to feel.

If you go down the route of continually hounding her with calls and messages, you are potentially sending out the message that you're still the same guy she broke up with. Remember, she became your ex for a reason and if you're continuing to hound her in this way, you're continuing to convince her that she made the right decision when she dumped you.

You can get her back, but you have to do it in a mature way and in a way that is focused on making her feel respect and attraction for you. In her mind, it's clear that you want her back, but that isn't enough for most women to want to give her ex another chance.

It's only when she can see that you've fixed the things (e.g. insecurity, lack of commitment, over-commitment to her, etc) and are now able to make her feel the type of respect and attraction that she needs to feel for a man if she is going to be happy in a relationship with him.

If you want your ex to talk to you again, you need to give her reason to want to talk to you again, meaning you need to show her that you've changed and you're no longer the guy you were when the relationship ended. You are now a better guy than you ever have been before.

Some younger women or women with little experience when it comes to relationships may give their ex another chance without him changing anything at all, but it won't last. If you want to get back with her for real, you've really got to be prepared to grow and mature as a man.

You may already be a great, mature guy in some areas of life, but you can always improve. When it comes to getting an ex back, you have to improve.

2. Did You Make Empty Promises to Her?

It's not unusual for guys to resort to promising an ex the world in an attempt to get her to change her mind, but words alone cannot fully change her lack of respect and attraction.

Saying things like, "I can change; tell me what you want me to do and I'll do it" means nothing to a woman if you don't know what changes you need to make.

Unless you can show your ex through your actions and behavior that you've learned from the experience of being dumped and you've taken action to make the improvements needed to become a better man, she has no reason to consider the words you're saying to be anything more than empty promises.

With this being the case, choosing not to talk to you is simply her way of letting you know that she has no interest in listening to what you have to say any more. She's heard it all before.

Most women don't ever want to feel as though they are their man's mother, big sister or teacher in life. A woman wants you to work out how to be a real man yourself, rather than looking to her to guide you. If you don't care enough about her to work that stuff out, why should she want to give you another chance or talk to you again?

Right now, you have an opportunity to become an even greater man that you already are. No doubt, you've learnt some harsh lessons by getting dumped by your ex and you are now serious about becoming a better man, but make sure that you're not all talk and no action.

You've got to put in a little bit of work to actively make some changes to the way that you make her feel when you interact with her.

Getting Her to Talk to You Again

[image: Getting your ex to talk to you again]

Whether or not your ex is going to be interested in talking to you again is going to depend on what happened to cause her to stop talking to you in the first place.

For example: Some guys have gone to the extreme of cheating on their girlfriend (fiancée or wife) several times, as well as being physically violent or emotionally abusive towards her.

In those cases (about 15% of cases), a guy has to do a bit more work to get his woman to forgive him.

It's possible to get her forgiveness, but he has to be willing to be patient and go through a reconciliation process with her.

In other cases, most guys are usually able to get their ex to get on a phone call and agree to meet up with them pretty much straight away. As long as a guy is prepared and knows what to say, his ex will have little reason not to want to meet up with him for a catch up over coffee.

Is She Still Sexually Attracted to You?

Relationships break up for a variety of reasons, but when a woman falls out of love with a guy, it's usually because she no longer feels sexually attracted to him.

This can happen when a guy ruins a woman's respect for him as a man by being too jealous, clingy, insecure or controlling, or on the other end of the scale, he is too careless, won't commit and basically doesn't care about her.

It's possible to get those feelings back though and make her want to give the relationship another chance, as Dan explains in this video...

A woman will fall in love with a guy because of who he is as a man and how he makes her feel. Likewise, a woman will fall out of love with a guy when he no longer makes her feel the same way because he drastically changes the way he approaches her and the relationship.

When you can change your line of thinking from, "How to get your ex to talk to you again" to, "How can I develop the type of qualities that make me the guy that almost all women want to talk to?" you're making it much more likely that your ex is going to want to talk to you again.

What you really need to do is focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, while also making her feel understood (i.e. that you actually understand why she broke it off with you).

Making Her Feel the Way That She Used to Feel With You

[image: Getting an ex to be open to talking again]

When your ex-girlfriend originally became your girlfriend, she must have felt the way she wanted to feel in a relationship when she was with you, but something about you or your attitude must have changed to cause her feelings for you to change.

Instead of hounding her with calls and hanging around in the hope that she might change her mind, decide to take action like a man and develop the qualities that will get the spark back between you the next time you interact with her.

The bottom line is that knowing how to get your ex to talk to you again comes down to knowing how to make yourself a man she wants to talk to again. Once you feel like you're ready to get in touch with her, you need to get her on a call and get her to agree to meet up with you in person.

How can you get your ex on a phone call when she's not talking to you anymore? It's simple and it's all explained in Dan Bacon's proven to work ex back program called, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Said She Just Wants to Be Friends

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your girlfriend said that she just wants to be friends, don't worry – you can change her mind.

You've got to start reactivating her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you.

When you do that, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her old feelings of love for you.

Don't try to get her back by begging, pleading or trying to convince her that you will change. You just need to start making her feel attracted to the new and improved version of you that is not making the same old communication mistakes as before.

A relationship between a man and a woman will vary slightly from couple to couple, but the successful relationships all have one thing in common: You can clearly see the sexual attraction between him and her.

There is a spark between them that never seems to die.

When a guy finds himself in the position where he's saying, "My girlfriend said she just wants to be friends," he automatically assumes that she's just lost interest in being in a relationship.

Yet, what is almost always going on is that she has simply lost touch with her feelings of respect and attraction for her boyfriend.

Your girlfriend may have discussed or hinted at some of those things during the relationship, but if she is breaking up with you by saying that she just wants to be friends, it means that she's trying to avoid having to explain what she really needs and wants from you.

A woman will rarely come out and say the REAL reason why she's breaking up with a guy because she doesn't want to be his teacher about what it means to be a man.

Rather than tell him the truth and risk, either getting into a big fight with him, or having him try to talk her out of it by saying that he will follow her advice, she will simply say something like, "I need some space to figure things out in my life, but I still want to be friends with you."

This type of statement leads guys into a false sense of security. They believe that if they back off and just hang around being her nice, sweet "friend", she'll eventually "snap out of it" and she'll want to date him again.

In most cases, she won't. Why? If a woman doesn't feel sexually attracted to you, she won't want to be your girlfriend. It's as simple as that.

Yes, she'll want to be your friend, but without the sexual spark between you, she will never "snap out of it" and suddenly change her mind. What is more likely to happen is that while you're sitting around being her "good friend" she's going to be out there kissing, having sex, and dating other men – men who make her feel a strong sexual desire and attraction for them.

Right now your girlfriend might like you as a person, but she doesn't want to be in a sexual relationship with you.

If you want that to change, and if you want her to desperately want to be your girlfriend, you are going to have to make her see you as a sexually attractive man, rather than a sweet old friend.

How do you do that?

1. Stop Being Mr. Nice Guy to Her

There is nothing wrong with being a good guy, treating a woman well and always having her best interests at heart.

That is a good thing, but it's not enough for most women to remain happy in a long term relationship. Why? Niceness isn't what maintains a woman's sexual attraction for you in a relationship.

It's nice, but it's not enough.

Guys who use the nice guy approach are usually hoping that being nice to a woman and doing whatever she wants will make her want to go out with him if he's single, or stay in a relationship with him if he's gotten lucky enough to be in a relationship with her.

The truth is, when a guy finds himself saying, "My girlfriend said she just wants to be friends," he is usually in that position because deep down he knows he DID get lucky when she agreed to go out with him.

His girlfriend either had no, or little, experience with men and relationships so she got into a relationship with him because it was nice to have a guy interested in her, or he was able to hide his insecurities behind a front of confidence and convince her to go out with him.

However, no matter how inexperienced a woman is, she will eventually wake up to the fact that she's not feeling the way that she wants to feel when she's with him.

She realizes that her feelings for him are more like those of a sister for her brother, rather than the burning sexual desire that she really wants to feel in a relationship with a man.

When she has this realization, she will say something like, "I just want to be friends" because she doesn't want to hurt his feelings and she doesn't want to have to teach him how to be the man she really needs.

Behind the scenes, she will secretly begin make herself available to meet a guy who can trigger more powerful feelings of sexual attraction inside her (e.g. she will use Tinder, online dating, go out partying with her girlfriends, etc).

When she finds a replacement guy, she will then have the courage to tell him that it's over and that she doesn't think it's a good idea that they remain friends.

It's tough for a nice, sweet, good intentioned guy to deal with, but that's life.

If you think about how we're raised as children, most of us are taught by our parents or teachers that we have to be nice if we're going to make friends and be liked.

Many guys are told by their mothers, "If you want to get a nice girl to like you, you first have to be a nice boy."

What then happens is that a lot of guys end up confusing the advice they got as a child by applying it to their adult life.

In today's world, being Mr. Nice Guy is not enough. Of course, you don't have to become an asshole to make a woman feel attracted to you, but in a relationship you have to display the personality traits and behaviors that are going to make her see you as MORE than her friend.

If you want your girlfriend to desire you more than just a friend, you are going to have to re-awaken the passion inside of her and then focus on deepening the respect, love and attraction that she feels for you over time.

If you are unable to do that, then she doesn't have to stay with you. It's unfortunate that the world now works that way, but that's how it goes.

In the past, men didn't have to worry about being attractive to their woman after they got her into a relationship because people saved their virginity for marriage, got married and then stayed together for life, even if they were unhappy.

Not anymore. In today's world, a guy has to be able to attract a woman when he meets her so he can have his choice with women, rather than accepting an incompatible woman and then trying to make it work with her.

He also needs to be able to deepen his woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction as the relationship goes through each stage on the way to blissful love.

When you get your relationship to the stage of blissful love, both you and her will never just feel like "friends."

You will be sexually attracted to her and she will be sexually attracted to you and that will never change.

2. Stop Trying to Make Her Like You and Start Making Her Feel Lucky to Be With You

This is a classic mistake that many guys who lack experience with women make.

When a guy doesn't know how to make his girlfriend feel sexually attracted to him, he instead focuses all his energy on being the likeable, reliable shoulder she can lean on.

What he doesn't realize is that this how a good friend would behave, but that's not what a woman wants from her boyfriend.

Not that she doesn't want him to be reliable or "there" for her when she needs him, but those are not the qualities that draw her to him and make her feel sexually attracted and turned on.

A woman will like most of the guys she meets as a person or as a friend, but she's not going to feel sexually turned on by them.

However, the guy who can make her feel a deep sexual desire, and can then maintain and grow that desire over time, is the one who's going to be in a long and lasting relationship with her.

If she's telling you that she "just wants to be friends" it's because you're not making her feel lucky to have been "chosen" by you.

You have to make her feel so much desire for you as a man, that SHE is the one who is constantly afraid of being dumped by YOU.

3. Get Rid of Your Insecurities

Right now, your girlfriend has demoted you from "boyfriend" to "just friend/."

However, you don't have to get stuck there.

There are many things you can say and do right NOW that will change the way she sees you and make her want to be in a relationship with you again.

If the current way that youâ€™ve been communicating with her has been turning her off, then chances are sheâ€™s going to avoid you or cut you off when you try to talk her into giving you another chance.

Sheâ€™s going to behave coldly towards you and sheâ€™s going to say things like, â€œStop. I told you I just want to be friends right now.â€

However, when you change your communication style with her in a way that makes her feel attracted to you, she will naturally begin to think and behave differently.

She will become more open to being with you and the idea of being back in a relationship with you wonâ€™t seem like such a bad thing to her.

When you begin to fix your issues and improve yourself mentally and emotionally as a man, she will naturally become more open to the idea of being more than â€œjust friendsâ€ with you.

By getting rid of any insecurities, like a lack of self confidence, jealousy, clinginess, etc., you will become a better man than you are right now and she will see that.

She will begin to doubt her decision to break up with you and she will want to experience the new you for herself.

Itâ€™s Not Too Late to Change How She Feels

As Dan Bacon explains in the video below, the love between a man and a woman doesn't die; it simply gets pushed into the background.

You can almost always get a woman to reconnect with the love she felt for you, as long as you approach it by focussing on triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you as a man.

People change how they feel about things and people all the time.

Just like she once fell in love with you and then lost touch with her feelings, she can also fall back in love with you again when you trigger her feelings of sexual attraction and respect for you as a man.

Don't waste time by allowing her to get a lot of space from you with the whole "friends" idea.

She doesn't want to be your friend and is simply saying that to get distance from you because she doesn't feel enough respect and attraction for you to want you as her boyfriend. You need to change that, not be her friend.

IfÂ you wait too long to change how she feels about you, you run the risk of her meeting someone else who is going to make her feel the way she wants to feel.

Rather than wasting time saying, â€œMy girlfriend said she just wants to be friends,â€ youâ€™ve got to contact her right away and shock her (in a good way) out of her current state of mind by triggering her feelings of sexual attraction and respect for you in a way that she probably hasn't felt in quite a while.

Your girlfriend wants to feel sexual attraction (not friendly affection) for you.

She wants to be with a guy who knows how to build up the sexual tension, so that when sheâ€™s with him everything feels exciting and exhilarating.

Are you able to be that guy around her these days? If not, are you willing to do what it takes to become and be that guy for her?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Say to Your Ex-Girlfriend to Get Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex-girlfriend currently doesn't feel much or any respect, attraction and love for, then she's not really going to care about what you say.

To get an ex-girlfriend back, you have to start by making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you. This will happen when you can show her that you have already fixed at least made improvements to your issues and personal problems that contributed to the break up.

For example: If a guy was too needy, clingy, jealous or protective, he needs to be able to show her that he has realized why he was thinking and feeling that way, as well as let her see that he really has changed.

[image: What to say to get an ex girlfriend back]

What he can say at that point is, "Rebecca, I get it. I mistakenly thought that I had to be that protective to ensure that I didn't lose you. I've realized now that it was the opposite of what I needed to do. All I needed to do was love you and trust you, but I wasn't able to do that back then. Now that has changed because I realize that in a relationship, you have to each other your full trust, rather than loving, but not trusting. I'm sorry for that. Can you forgive me?"

If she isn't interested in forgiving you, it means that your behavior, body language, vibe and overall approach to her has been unattractive. Unless you are making your ex-girlfriend feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, then much of what you say will go in one ear and out the other. In other words, she won't listen and she won't care.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man and creator of Get Your Ex Back: Super System) to understand what you need to do get your ex-girlfriend to listen to you, feel respect and attraction for you and want to give the relationship another chance...

Your ex became your ex for a reason and at the time of breaking up with you, her feelings for you had changed and she no longer wanted to be in a relationship with you. Getting her back means getting her to change her mind, and that means getting her to feel differently about you again, but words alone will not change the way she's feeling.

You have to focus on triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you as a guy. If you're not doing that, then she's not going to care what you have to say.

What Not to Say

If you're looking for advice on what to say to your ex-girlfriend to get her back, you may already have fallen into the trap of saying what you think she wants to hear, but if your efforts have so far failed to get you the results you want, maybe it's time to accept that what you thought she wanted to hear was wrong, right?

1. Don't beg or plead

Something many guys do when they desperately want an ex to change her mind is to beg and plead with her to be given a second chance. They'll hound her with telephone calls, text messages, emails, and they may even show up at her work, and all because they're desperate to talk to her and to get her to listen to them as they beg her to change her mind.

This is a mistake on many levels, but not least because resorting to begging and pleading is not an attractive trait in a man.

Your ex became your ex for a reason and if that reason is connected to a change in your attitude or behavior in the relationship which led to you becoming clingy, overly possessive, or needy, hounding her in this way will do nothing to change her feelings for you.

Women are not flattered by a guy begging in this way; they are completely turned off by weak, wimpy behavior and insecurity of any sort in a man.

2. Don't promise her the world

A big part of begging and pleading is often to make every kind of imaginable promise in an effort to get a second chance.

Guys will often say things like, "I promise I can change. I can be whatever it is you want me to be. Just tell me what you want and I'll do it," but the problem with this is that it only highlights the fact they obviously don't know what it is they need to change to fix things.

You can't take any kind of effective action to fix things if you don't actually know what needs to be fixed.

A woman does not want to have to spell out what needs to be fixed, she wants a guy to be tuned-in enough to her body language to be able to figure it out for himself.

She not only wants him to be able to recognize the problem, she wants him to take the lead in doing something about it, and showing her through the improvements he makes that he has learned from the mistakes he made and become a better man as a result.

If your words are not backed up by actions, you're simply making empty promises and she has no reason to feel any differently about you.

3. Don't blame it all on her

Another trap many guys fall into when trying to get an ex to change her mind is to blame her for their mistakes. For example: She might say that his clinginess and jealous behavior led to her choosing to dump him, but he'll attempt to make it her fault by saying that some aspect of her behavior led to him behaving the way he did.

Unless a guy is able to recognize and admit to the mistakes he made, he's not in a position to learn from them and take effective action to become a better man as a result.

An ex-girlfriend becomes an ex for a reason and getting her back comes down to demonstrating that real improvements and changes have been made. Attempting to pass the blame achieves none of this, giving her absolutely no reason to change her mind.

Are You Making Her Feel Enough Respect and Attraction For You as a Man?

Focusing your attention on what to say to your ex-girlfriend to get her back is missing the point. Instead of thinking about things to say to get your ex-girlfriend back, you need to think about things to do that make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man.

You need to demonstrate through the way you behave and your attitude that you've learned from the experience and you've made changes for the better to become a better man, and, more importantly, a man with attractive qualities that will make her want to take you back (e.g. you're more confident, charismatic, masculine, charming, etc).

Empty promises are not enough to change the way she is feeling, and getting her back is all about showing her that you mean what you say and you're making changes for the better.

To get her to want you back, you need to show her that you have what it takes to make her feel the way she wants to feel in a relationship, and that means developing the qualities that make you a sexually attractive man she'll find hard to resist.

When your ex became your girlfriend, you must have had qualities that turned her on. When she then became your ex, something about you must have changed to cause her to feel turned off, so what changed?

The process of getting her back begins with figuring out what changes happened and, from there, you then need to take action to make the changes and improvements needed to fix things.

Change your focus away from what to say to your ex-girlfriend to get her back and place it on what to do to get your ex-girlfriend to see you differently and feel differently about you again.

When you are able to admit that you made mistakes and you are able to accept the break-up, you are in a strong position to begin the process of getting her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Said it's Over

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're in the position where you're saying, "My girlfriend said it's over," then you're probably feeling hurt and confused right now.

You might even be saying to yourself, "How could this happen?" or "I didn't see it coming."

You might be thinking that this came out of the blue and that she's made a snap decision to end it.

Yet, generally speaking, a woman doesn't just wake up one morning and decide, "Oh, I think I'm going to break up with my boyfriend today."

In most cases, she will have given her guy many hints about her feelings.

[image: My girlfriend has told me that it's over]

So, if your girlfriend is now saying that it's over, you need to make sure that you start making her have positive feelings (e.g. attraction, respect, love) for you from now on.

Even though you might think of her as your GIRLFRIEND, the reality is that she is now your EX GIRLFRIEND if she has broken up with you.

In her mind, "It's over" means that you are no longer her boyfriend and she is going to try to move on without you.

So, if you want her back as your girlfriend, you need to start re-attracting her...

When you start to reactivate her feelings of attraction for you, she will naturally begin to change her mind about wanting to break up with you.

Understand What Caused Her to Break Up With You

[image: Should I break up with him?]

Why did she break up with you?

Do you know exactly where you went wrong?

If you are going to get her back and keep her, it's important that you understand what caused your girlfriend to say, "It's over."

A woman will rarely say why she's breaking up with a man, so it's often difficult for a guy to figure out what he really did wrong.

She will say things like, "I just don't feel the same way anymore" or, "I need to be alone for a while" or, "I don't want to be in a relationship with anyone right now" as a way of softening the blow of the break up.

This is why so many guys repeat the same mistakes over and over again in their relationships; they never really, truly understand what it is about them and their behavior that is turning women off.

Women don't want to explain how to re-attract them because they don't want to feel like you're faking it.

A woman wants to feel naturally attracted and drawn to who you are, without her having to give you instructions on how to be that way.

Some women will help, but they will resent a guy for it.

Women just want a guy who understands how to be the sort of man that a woman wants to stay with, rather than needing women to teach him and guide him along.

So, ask yourself, What attitudes and behaviors caused my girlfriend's feelings for me to change?

Here are some classic examples of why a woman will break up with a guy...

1. Taking her for granted.

[image: Taking her for granted]

Most guys are nice guys, so they would never intentionally take their girlfriend for granted.

However, everyday life can sometimes get in the way and a good guy can end up being a bit of an asshole to his woman and not really know how to change back to being a good boyfriend to her.

He might be aware that he is going about the relationship incorrectly and ruining things, but he is just so annoyed with life, frustrated with work or unhappy about certain things about himself that he takes it out on her.

Since she loves him, she will put up with it for a while, but eventually she will grow tired of being made to feel that way.

A guy might even get to the point where he just takes his girlfriend's efforts to look for him for granted.

For example: When was the last time you really noticed your girlfriend and said, "Wow, babe...you look sexy" or something like that?

In many cases, a guy will mistakenly slip into giving her automatic compliments without actually paying attention to her. "Yeah, yeah – you look great."

When a woman makes an effort to look good for her man, she wants him to notice it and to make her feel loved, appreciated and valued.

If, when she buys a new dress or changes her hair all she gets from her guys is, That's nice, she naturally ends up feeling that he's not really valuing her.

Why?

Women know that the most attractive part to them is their physical appearance.

It is what attracts men to women like glue.

So, if her own man doesn't really feel attracted to how she looks, she starts to feel devalued and may then start flirting with other guys to make herself feel better.

Another example is when a guy constantly makes plans with her and then cancels these plans at the last minute.

Of course plans change, but if this is a regular habit, she will feel that he is taking her for granted and that she's not important enough for him to keep his word with her.

[image: old-style-of-courtship]

Unlike in the past where women would just grin and bear it and stick with a man for life because it was shameful to break up or get divorced, today's woman will quickly break up with a guy for not making her feel how she wants to feel in the relationship.

[image: Taking girlfriend for granted]

She won't feel ashamed to break up with him because all she has to do is turn on the TV and her favorite pop idols are either singing about breaking up with unsatisfactory guys, talking about on talk shows, living it out in reality shows or acting it out in movies.

[image: Modern women]

Today's women is free to do whatever she wants. If her boyfriend is deepening the love, respect and attraction between them in the relationship, she doesn't have to stick around. She is free to try and find happiness with someone else.

2. Being clingy or a needy.

[image: How to stop being clingy]

The opposite of being taken for granted is having a guy who uses his relationship to hide from his true potential in life.

Although a woman likes to have her man's undivided attention, she doesn't want to have it ALL the time. She wants to be the one who pines over, and misses him; not the other way around.

As romantic as it may seem to want to do everything together, a relationship needs balance.

This is why it's important that a man has hobbies, friends and interests outside of the relationship.

If he doesn't he will inevitably become clingy and needy, especially if she does something that doesn't include him.

Essentially, women are attracted to strong men who know what they want in life and aren't afraid to go out and get it.

A man who uses his relationship to hide from life because he's afraid is a big turn off and he's usually the one who finds himself saying, "My girlfriend said it's over" and wondering what he did wrong.

3. Letting her wear the pants in the relationship.

Many guys who have little experience with women and feel that they got lucky in getting their girlfriend, will end up doing whatever she wants so that she won't stop loving them.

These guys hand over all the decision making to her hoping this will make her happy.

However, regardless of how independent and strong she is, a woman still wants to know that the man she's with really is a man.

She doesn't want to feel as though she has to be the "man" in the relationship and make all the decisions for him.

If he isn't mentally and emotionally strong enough to handle taking the lead, she can't actually relax and be a feminine woman because she always has to be "on duty" doing his job for him.

When this happens, she will eventually end up resenting him and she won't enjoy being around him.

Some women may seem to like being in charge and even put up with a relationship like that for a few years, but they will eventually get tired of not being able to feel like a feminine woman around their boyfriend.

The only way to truly make a woman happy in a relationship is for you to be the man and let her be your feminine, girly woman. She might be strong and successful with her career, but around you, she wants to feel feminine and girly.

She might not ever tell you that, but it's what she wants and if you don't give her that experience, she will eventually feel like she needs to end the relationship with you and find it with another man.

Actions Speak Louder Than Words

When a guy has a little experience with fixing a dying relationship, he will often resort to quick fix gimmicks in the hopes of getting his girlfriend to change her mind, rather than actually fixing his personal issues and improve himself to show her that he is serious about getting her love, respect and attraction back.

Some of the quick fix gimmicks that guys try to use include:

- Begging and pleading for her to give him a second chance.
- Promising to change if she changes her mind.
- Buying her flowers, chocolates and other expensive gifts to hopefully show her that he loves and appreciates her.
- Telling her that his life is over without her.
- Ignoring her for weeks or months and hoping that it will magically fix everything.
- Etc.

If you want to get your girlfriend back, you can't hope to trick her back.

This might work on a woman who has little experience in relationships, but if she comes back to you and realizes that nothing has really changed, she will simply break up with you again.

If you want her to change her mind and give you another chance, you have to show her that you really are the man that she should be with and that you are doing what it takes to fill in any gaps that she feels existed in your relationship.

From there, you need to get her to forgive you, forget the mistakes that you made in the past and fall in love with you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Said She Feels Nothing For Me Anymore

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a woman says, “I don’t feel anything for you anymore” a guy will usually believe that it’s the end of the road for the relationship and there’s nothing he can do about it.

Yet, people’s feelings change all the time and couples all over the world get back together every day after breaking up temporarily.

So, if you are now in the position where you’re saying, “My girlfriend said she feels nothing for me anymore,” what you need to realize is that your situation is very common and much more easily fixable than you might think.

If she has already broken up with you, this is what you need to do...

Let her see that you really have changed and when she interacts with you now, she feels different.

She feels respectful of you, attracted to you and is beginning to love you again.

If you use that approach, you can and will turn the situation around and get her back.

However, if you try to convince her to have feelings for you and give you another chance, you will almost certainly fail.

Watch this video for more info...

What she wants to experience is a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for you.

If you can make her feel that way, her feelings will naturally begin flooding back and she will feel sparks of love for you again.

The Pain of Losing Your Girlfriend

Getting dumped hurts.

So, if your girlfriend has already broken up with you, or is in the process of breaking up with you, I recommend that you fix the situation before it gets any worse.

Some guys take years to fully recover from being dumped by a woman they love, so if you really love her, don’t sit around doing nothing to improve your ability to attract her.

Get her back into a committed relationship with you and then decide what to do from there (e.g. if you want to break up with her when you get her back, at least you will be in the position of power and won’t hurt after the break up).

Love Doesn’t Die

Women don’t push away true love when it really is there.

So, if your girlfriend (or ex girlfriend depending on the situation) really used to love you, then it is still there in the background.

She has simply disconnected from that love and is trying to remain disconnected so she doesn’t get drawn back into a relationship with you.

If she is doing that, then you haven't been re-attracting her and have been continuing to turn her off, so she knows that she has to move on.

Yet, don't worry – you can get the relationship back on track and make her truly love you again.

Love is something that can be brought back to life under the right conditions.

If your girlfriend went from not loving you (when you met), to loving you (when you started dating), to not loving you again (when she told you she feels nothing for you anymore), then she can easily change how she feels again and go back to loving you if you just approach things correctly.

[image: My girlfriend said she feels nothing for me now]

To get her feelings for you to change again, you have to regain her respect and attraction for you.

Once this happens, she will naturally open herself up to loving you again.

She will then feel sparks of love and you can get on with enjoying a better relationship than before, where she falls more and more in love with you over time.

Failing to Notice the Signs Before it's Too Late

[image: Failing to notice the signs before it was too late]

Most guys who say, "My girlfriend said she feels nothing for me anymore," feel completely shocked by what happened.

More often than not they'll say, "I can't believe this has happened all of a sudden" or "I never saw this coming; it was so out of the blue." However, this is where they're usually wrong.

When a woman begins to consider breaking up with her man, she will wrestle with the idea for a long time before she gets to the point of breaking up with him.

Along the way she will try everything she can to get him to change before it's too late.

She will give him numerous hints about why she's not happy in the relationship and she may even say things like, "If you don't change that, I'm going to break up with you."

Of course, we don't get taught this stuff in school or by the people around us, so we are often left to fend for ourselves once we get a woman into a relationship.

Most men simply don't know how to behave in another way other than how they've already been behaving in the relationship, so they usually fail to change before it's too late.

When a guy notices that his girlfriend (fiancée or wife) is losing interest in the relationship, he will often then make things worse by making some of these mistakes:

1. Asking her to explain what's wrong.

[image: Asking her to explain what is wrong]

It's only natural that when a guy notices his girlfriend acting differently, being cold and aloof and generally pulling away from him, for him to want to ask her what's wrong.

However, rather than solve the problem, this only makes her feel even more turned off and determined to get away from him.

Why?

A woman doesn't want to teach her man how to be a man.

She doesn't want to be his teacher, or even worse, his mother, who has to teach him how to be the sort of man that will be attractive to her.

By having to tell you what she needs from you in the relationship, the relationship dynamic goes out of balance and she ends up feeling like she's the man in the relationship.

When this happens she naturally begins to lose respect and attraction for you.

A woman wants to feel like you're in the lead in the relationship allowing her to relax and feel feminine in your presence, not have to mother you and guide you through the problems of life and relationships.

2. Promising to change.

Chances are that you and your girlfriend have had several fights leading up to this point and chances are high that, during those fights, you probably said something like, I'm sorry. I just give me another chance and I'll change.

The truth is, you can't say to her that you WILL change.

You have to identify the real reasons that her feelings for you have changed and then make changes, improvements and adjustments.

Anything prior to that is just mere words to her and your girlfriend is probably at a point where she's lost in your ability to fix your issues and improve yourself.

You don't have to fix everything and be a perfect man for her to be open to the idea of being with you again, but you do have to show her that you're at least fixing some of the things that have been causing her to feel turned off by you.

For example: Here are some common reasons why a woman's feelings can change and cause her to break up with a man...

- Taking her for granted.
- Being unable to control his feelings of jealousy.
- Putting her in the position of power.
- Failing to rise through the levels of life like a man.
- Lacking self confidence.
- Using the relationship as an excuse to hide from his true potential in life.
- Being too emotionally sensitive.
- Not being enough of a man for her.

Have you been making any of those mistakes in your relationship?

Don't worry – you can fix it.

When your girlfriend sees that you are making an effort to truly understand what went wrong between you and then change, she will naturally drop her guard and she will feel more open and even happy to be interacting with you again.

Just make sure that you don't panic and say, "I promise to change all these things about myself if you give me another chance."

Women don't want to be promised that a guy will change and they don't want a guy to become desperate and willing to do whatever she wants to keep her.

What she wants is for you to change and just get on with being the sort of man that she can look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love.

Another mistake to avoid is...

3. Becoming needy and clingy.

What often happens when a guy who has little or no experience with women notices his girlfriend pulling away from him emotionally, is that he becomes even more needy for her affection.

The more she pulls away from him, the more desperate he becomes to make her happy and get her approval.

When she doesn't show him the love he wants, he becomes even more needy and clingy.

However, his neediness, insecurity and desperation turns her off even more.

Her respect, attraction and love for him begins to diminish even more rapidly than before, eventually leading up to the dreaded talk where she says, "I don't feel anything for you anymore" and "I think we should give each other some space for a while."

Getting Her Love Back

Now, there's no getting away from the fact that your girlfriend's feelings for you have changed.

She may even be saying things like, "I'm over you" and "I don't love you anymore." Don't worry.

Pretty much every guy who has successfully gotten an ex girlfriend back was dealing with a woman who no longer felt the same way about him.

Yet, he managed to change the way she felt by changing the way he approached conversations, interactions and arguments with her.

Instead of further destroying her remaining feelings of love, respect and attraction, guys who successfully get their ex back switch to only saying and doing the types of things that will make their girlfriend feel attracted.

You can do that too.

You can make your girlfriend go from feeling nothing to feeling something and to then falling madly in love with you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make My Ex-Girlfriend Want Me Back: Big Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you've been dumped by your girlfriend and you can't see yourself moving on without her, it's only natural that you may begin to wonder, "How to make my ex-girlfriend want me back."

So what is the solution? Is it possible to make an ex-girlfriend want to take you back and if so, what is the quickest and best way to go about it?

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man and creator of Get Your Ex Back: Super System) to understand exactly what you need to do make your ex-girlfriend want you back as soon as possible...

Preparing Yourself to Get Her Back

Some guys are able to get their ex girlfriend back very quickly, whilst others need to work at it for a couple of weeks or even a couple of months to get the woman back. It all depends on how quickly you can get yourself into an emotionally attractive state and how good you are at making your ex girlfriend feel respect and attraction for you.

So, the first thing that you need to accept is that making an ex want you back may not necessarily going to be a "quick fix" process.

However, the good news is that when you approach the process of getting your ex girlfriend back correctly, it's not only possible to get her back, but you can also make her feel even more passionately and deeply in love with you than ever before.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon to understand the process that your ex-girlfriend went through before breaking up with you and what you need to do to get her back...

Why Should She Want You Back?

Your girlfriend became your ex for a reason, so unless you can give her a reason to see things differently, why should she want you back?

A woman doesn't just dump a guy and end a relationship for no reason; something about you or your attitude and behavior in the relationship must have changed to cause her feelings for you to change. So what happened?

Every relationship is different and relationships end for different reasons, but the bottom line is that a woman breaks up with a guy because she is no longer in love with him. A woman falls out of love with a guy when she loses respect for him and then loses all feelings of sexual attraction as a result. So what happened to cause your ex to feel differently about you?

Women are instinctively attracted on a deep level to guys who have alpha male characteristics. When your ex initially became your girlfriend, she must have seen some of those qualities in you.

Some of the alpha qualities that women love in a man include confidence, masculinity and social intelligence, so anything about your attitude or behavior that suggested you were lacking in those areas would have caused her to lose respect and attraction for you as a man.

Your girlfriend became your ex because you behaved in a way that led to her feeling less sexually attracted to you, so if you want her to want you back, you need to show her that you've made changes for the better and you are now a man with the attractive qualities that she's looking for.

Are You Able to Make Your Ex-Girlfriend Feel a Lot of Sexual Attraction For You?

Most guys go through life never really knowing how to make women feel intense attraction for them. Instead, they try their best to impress women when they meet them and then hope to get lucky.

Sometimes, guys do get lucky and score themselves a girlfriend, but that doesn't mean they will be able to keep her happy in a relationship. Once the initial buzz wears off and a woman begins to lose respect and attraction for a guy, it's pretty much game over unless he is able to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to make your ex want you back...

To re-attract your ex, you can display attractive traits such as...

1. Self-confidence

Some guys initially put on an act of being truly confident around women, but they can't keep that up for long when in a relationship because women always test guys.

For example: One of the classic tests that a woman will put a guy through to test his confidence is to first get him to fall in love with her and then pull back her interest. She wants to see if he will become insecure, desperate, clingy or controlling. If he does, she will lose respect and attraction for him and the relationship will begin to fall apart.

However, if he reacts by laughing off her attempt to get him chasing her, she will realize that she has met her match. Unlike an insecure guy, a confident guy will remain confident in his sex appeal to his girlfriend no matter what she says.

When a girlfriend notices that no matter what she says or does, her boyfriend remains confident in his value and attractiveness to her, it makes her feel a deep respect and attraction for him that she will rarely, if ever, get to experience with other guys.

2. Masculinity

Masculinity isn't all about having bulging muscles or being tall.

The type of masculinity that is attractive to a woman over the long run is based on your mental and emotional strength as a man (e.g. you are confident, you don't get insecure when she tests you, you remain strong when life gets tough, you don't feel intimidated by people, you take the lead in your relationship with her, etc).

If a woman feels like she is mentally and emotionally stronger than you and that you need her assurance to feel secure, she will naturally find it difficult to maintain her feelings of respect and attraction for you. On the other hand, if you are the sort of guy that she can look up to and respect, she will naturally feel respect and attraction for you.

Another important way of attracting a woman with your masculinity is by making her feel girly and feminine in response to your masculine vibe, thinking, behavior and actions. If you lack the ability to make her feel girly, then you lack the type of masculinity that will keep a woman attracted for life.

3. Social intelligence

A guy with social intelligence has what it takes to get along with all types of people (including alpha males, beautiful women, the cool crowd, etc) in a social setting. His communication skills and effortless charismatic charm give him a likeability factor that makes him someone who is socially cool and fun to be around.

4. Life purpose

Having purpose in life shows a woman that you are a man who knows who he is and what really matters to him. This is a very attractive quality to women because it makes you stand out as a man who is not afraid to go after what he wants and is prepared to go the extra mile to keep on pursuing his true potential in life.

Compare that to a guy who hides from his true potential in life behind a relationship with a woman. Women don't want to have to shield a scared, confused guy from the world. Instead, they want to be with a man that they can look up to and respect; a guy that they brag about to their friends because he is confident, fearless and determined to succeed at achieving his biggest dreams in life.

Big Mistakes to Avoid When Trying to Get Your Ex-Girlfriend Back

With all of the above in mind, showing your ex-girlfriend that you have made improvements and that you have the sexually attractive qualities she's looking for, also means avoiding the following commonly made mistakes...

1. Calling, texting, emailing and generally hounding her

[image: Huh? Why is he texting me this insecure crap?]

If your ex-girlfriend is like most women on this planet, she wants a confident, masculine, socially cool guy who has important things going on in his life other than just a relationship her.

Which part of hounding her with calls shows you to be that guy? It doesn't, right? Behaving in that way suggests that you are desperate to be with her and desperation is not an attractive trait in a man.

2. Begging for a second chance

Begging and pleading with her to be given a second chance is also not attractive. In the same way that hounding her with calls suggests that you might be an emotionally desperate guy, begging suggests that you are now a weak, wimpy guy who feels like he is nothing without her.

3. Writing a letter and proclaiming undying love

Nothing you can say in words, whether you're leaving phone and text messages or writing a letter, can change the way that your ex really feels about you.

To regain the respect and attraction of your ex, you have to show her that you really have changed, rather than telling her how much you need her, miss her, etc. Writing a love letter to an ex-girlfriend might work in teen sitcoms, romantic comedy movies or TV drama shows,Â but itâs not going to work in real life.

Making Her Want You Back

If you want your ex to want you back, you have to let her experience the new and improved version of you. When you speak to her on the phone or get her to agree to meet you in person, the most important thing that you need to do is trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

If you are able to do that, she will naturally begin to feel like she wants you back or is at least now open to giving the relationship another chance and seeing what happens.

If you are serious about getting your ex-girlfriend back, you need to change your thought process from, âHow to make my ex-girlfriend to want me backâ to, âHow can I make myself irresistibly attractive to my ex-girlfriend so she can't stop herself from giving me another chance.â

Ready to begin?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Win Your Girlfriend Back: Where Guys Go Wrong

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to know how to win your girlfriend back, you first of all need to understand what led to losing her in the first place.

Something about you in terms of your attitude and behavior must have changed to cause your girlfriend's feelings for you to change and until you can figure out what those changes were, you can't make changes for the better to turn things around and win her back.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man and creator of Get Your Ex Back: Super System) to understand where things likely went wrong for you and her and what you need to do to win her back...

If you approach the process of winning your girlfriend back properly, you will get her back and you will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you. However, none of that will happen if you make all the classic mistakes that other guys do when trying to win a girlfriend back.

Where Guys Go Wrong

The biggest mistake most guys make when trying to get an ex-girlfriend to change her mind is to look for a quick fix solution.

The problem with this approach is that these solutions fail to help a guy figure out the real reasons why his girlfriend broke up with him, so any action he takes is unlikely to be effective or bring him the lasting results he wants.

1. Trying to win her back by improving his appearance

[image: Maybe if I look better she will take me back]

One of the most popular quick fixes is to make improvements to your appearance in some way, whether it's heading down to the gym to begin building a more muscular physique, kitting yourself out in some new designer clothing, or getting yourself a new haircut.

The problem with this approach is that none of the changes it brings about actually matter. A woman falls in love with a guy because of who he is on the inside, not because of how he looks on the outside, so she doesn't fall out of love with a guy because of how he looks either.

If you want to win your girlfriend back, you need to show her that you have developed the inner qualities she's looking for and that the changes you have made have led to you becoming a better man.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to your advantage to win your girlfriend back...

2. Trying to convince her with only words

Another commonly suggested quick fix solution is to say all the things that you think your ex wants to hear in an attempt to sweet-talk her into changing her mind.

This is a mistake on many levels but the main problem with this approach is that words alone won't change the way a woman is feeling. At the time of breaking up with you, your ex-girlfriend had fallen out of love with you and thereâs nothing you can say alone that will change that.

To change her feelings and to get her to fall in love with you again, you need to show her through your attitude and actions that you have made changes for the better in terms of who you are as a man.

For example: If you plead with her to be given a second chance by saying something along the lines of, âI promise I can change; whatever it is you want me to do differently, I can do it, just tell me what you want,â your words will do nothing to change her mind because they will only highlight the fact that you don't know how to be the man she needs.

If you want to win your girlfriend back, you need to show her that you know what mistakes you made and that youâve learned from them to become a better man as a result. Women don't want to be a man's teacher in life and have to take on the role of mother or big sister.

Your girlfriend wants to be your woman and look up to you with respect, rather than look down on you with pity.

3.Â Trying to win her back by giving her all the power

[image: Giving her all the power]

In the same way that a woman does not want to hear empty promises, she does not want a guy to throw himself at her feet and put her in the position of leading the way in the relationship.

Sure, the relationships in TV sitcoms and romantic comedy movies appear to revolve around a woman being happy to âwear the pantsâ and the man being happy to go along with whatever his woman says with an âanything for a quiet lifeâ sort of attitude, but this is not what real women living in the real world want.

Real women want to feel like a feminine woman in their relationship with a man. In other words, they want to be with a man who knows how to confidently take the lead, make them feel girly and feminine and be the sort of guy/man that they can look up to and respect.

Why Should She Want You Back?

Winning your girlfriend back comes down to showing her through your actions and behavior that you are now a better man than the one she dumped. You also need to make her realize that you are a much better man than any of the other guys around that she may be interested in.

To win your girlfriend back, you need to quickly develop the qualities that not only make you a sexually attractive man, but also a man who makes other guys pale in comparison. Unless she sees the qualities in you that sheâs looking for in a man and unless she feels the way she wants to feel in your company, she will have no obvious reason to want you back.

To win your girlfriend back, you need to give her good reason to want you back and that means making the improvements needed to demonstrate to her that youâve learned from the mistakes you made and you have become a better man as a result.

Are you ready to begin the exciting, rapid journey of winning her back? Are you ready to become an even better man than you are right now? Are you serious about following through and doing whatever it takes to win her back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Get Your Wife Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

At one time, you and your wife really were in love.

Your relationship seemed like it would last a lifetime, so you made the decision to get married. After the wedding, you likely headed off for a fun, loving and enjoyable honeymoon. Things were great for a while, but they eventually fell apart. Now, you're looking for advice on how to get your wife back.

So, what happened? Where did you go wrong? When attempting to get your wife back, you must understand where it all went wrong before you can make things right.

After helping men get their wife back for years, it became very clear to Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man and creator of Get Your Ex Back: Super System) that women go through a 3-stage process before deciding to leave their husband...

The 3-stage process doesn't happen overnight and it is usually not a selfish, mindless decision by a woman. In most cases, the woman puts up with a bad relationship for a long time before finally deciding to call it quits.

Can you relate to any of the problems outlined in the video above? If so, the good news is that those problems can be fixed. As long as your wife can see that you really have changed, fixed your issues and improved yourself, she will become open to the idea of being with you again.

Here's why...

You don't have to become a perfect man to get your wife back, but you simply need to let her see that you really have changed. It's not enough to promise that you will change because you've probably promised her that many times before and haven't been able to follow through.

A wife will usually give her husband many chances before eventually pulling the trigger to ask for a separation or divorce. So, if you are serious about getting your wife back, you will need to be serious about making some real changes to the way you think, behave and act around her and in life.

Why Did Your Marriage Fall Apart?

The reasons for a marriage falling apart are varied and complex. However, did any of the following apply to you and your wife?

1. Did you let her wear the pants?

One of the most common traps guys fall into in a marriage is thinking that TV marriages offer an insight into what it takes to make a real world marriage work. This is a mistake on many levels, not least because real life is not like life as we see it on TV.

In the majority of popular TV sitcoms, the wife wears the pants and the husband usually adopts an "anything for a quiet life" attitude to keeping the peace in the marriage. On TV this seems to make for a happy marriage but in reality it won't work out that way because contrary to the popular portrayal, women don't want to be in charge.

The bottom line is that modern women are still instinctively looking for a provider and a protector in the same way that their hunter-gatherer ancestors did.

The world may have changed beyond recognition, but on a deep and primal level, a woman still wants to be with a man who has what it takes to make her feel like a real woman. In other words, a man who makes her feel girly at times, makes her feel pretty and sexy, while also respecting her and allowing her be her true self.

If you fell into the trap of believing that a woman wants to wear the pants in a relationship, chances are you slipped into putting your wife in charge of making all of the decisions in your marriage.

You probably thought this was the easiest way to keep things running smoothly and to avoid any arguments over domestic matters, but in reality it will have resulted in your wife feeling less and less like a woman with each passing day.

Remember: A woman wants to feel like a woman in a relationship but to be able to relax into a truly feminine role she needs to be with a man who can confidently take the masculine role.

With this in mind, any attempt to get your wife back by asking her to tell you what it is she wants will not bring you the results you want. By asking her to tell you, youâ€¢re demonstrating that you donâ€¢t know what the problem is and that you donâ€¢t have the masculine qualities needed to be able to naturally take the lead in a relationship.

This means that saying something along the lines of, â€¢I can change, just tell me what it is you want me to do differently and Iâ€¢ll do it,â€¢ will change nothing because words are just empty promises without actions to back them up.

If you donâ€¢t know what it is that needs to change and youâ€¢re asking her to spell it out for you, youâ€¢re asking her to take the lead and this does not allow her to relax into the feminine role she wants to be in.

2. Did you take her for granted?

Another common mistake made by married men is slipping into patterns of behavior that lead a wife into feeling she is being taken for granted. A good example would be making a habit of changing your plans at the last moment.

This might be calling her from work to say youâ€¢re going to be late because youâ€¢re going for a celebratory drink with a work colleague who has just been promoted, even when you know sheâ€¢s at home cooking you a special meal, or choosing not to have a quiet night in to watch a movie as planned because â€¢something came upâ€¢ and youâ€¢re going out instead.

If you adopt an attitude of, â€¢We can do it some other time,â€¢ and you change plans frequently without giving her a second thought, sheâ€¢s very quickly going to feel taken for granted in the relationship.

With this being the case, any attempt to get your wife back by saying youâ€¢ll pay her more attention or youâ€¢ll put her needs first will fail unless you can show her that you mean what you say.

Guys often say that their wife left without any warning and it came as a complete shock that she was unhappy, but this will not be the reality.

She will have been sending out plenty of warning signals and she will have been communicating her feelings through her body language, and his inability to pick up on those signals or respond in any way only adds to her feelings of being way down on the list of priorities in his life.

Whatever her reason for leaving, to get your wife back you need to show her through your actions and behaviors that you have learned from the experience and you have taken steps to become a better man.

At the time of leaving you, she felt she had fallen out of love with you, so getting her to consider coming back is all about getting her to feel differently about you and to fall in love with you again.

Here at The Modern Man, we teach men how to develop the qualities that women love and need from a man and we show guys how to use those qualities to create the ideal relationship dynamic.

When you take steps to become an even better man than you are right now, you not only become a man your wife wants to come back to, but also a man she falls so deeply in love with that your relationship grows stronger, happier, and more loving than ever before.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Need My Ex-Girlfriend Back: How Can I Get Her to Want Me Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Relationship break ups are never easy and someone is always going to get hurt in the process.

When guys get hurt after being dumped by a girlfriend they love, it can be a real blow to their confidence. Feeling down and out, a guy may end up thinking that he will never manage to attract another quality woman into his life or that no other woman will ever be able to take the place of his ex-girlfriend.

Feeling that their confidence is at rock bottom is what leads many guys to contact The Modern Man for advice by saying, "I need my ex-girlfriend back," and asking, "How can I make her want me back?"

As Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man and creator of Get Your Ex Back: Super System) explains in the video below, it won't matter to her that you want her back or need her back. She will only begin to care when you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you...

Why Do You Need Her Back?

If you were in the type of relationship where your entire world revolved around your girlfriend and you had no important interests outside of the relationship, it's understandable that not having her in your life anymore will make you feel that you need her back.

However, your neediness may well be the reason why your girlfriend chose to end the relationship in the first place. Women are naturally attracted to confident men who have purpose in life, meaning they have lots going on other than their relationship and they pursue their own interests as well as doing things together as a couple.

If a guy makes his girlfriend his main purpose in life, she will almost always eventually say things like, "I need time to find myself" or "I need space and time to think about what I want," because he has put her into the position of leader.

She senses that she is responsible for his emotional security and sense of identity, rather than him being a real man who has big goals in life and is going after them with passion, confidence and determination, rather than hiding behind her and the relationship.

[image: Being insecure]

When a girlfriend begins to pull back her interest in a boyfriend who has no real purpose in life, he will usually react by feeling needy, insecure or getting to the point where he is unable to control his jealousy.

Acting in a needy, jealous or overly-protective manner is a complete turn off for women. Some guys make the mistake of thinking that if they show their girlfriend how concerned they are about losing her, it will get her to realize how strong his love is for her.

Yet, that's not how it works.

Women don't want to get caught up in a relationship that is based on needy, insecure love. They want a guy who loves them and wants them, but who doesn't need them for his emotional security.

If you're saying, I need my ex-girlfriend back, you may be one of the guys who have made the mistake of making your girlfriend your purpose in life. A woman wants to be an important part of a man's life, but she doesn't want to be his "everything."

What Have You Tried So Far?

Saying, I need my ex-girlfriend back is one thing, but doing something about it to get her back is another. So what have you tried?

Neediness very often results in desperate acts, but desperation is another trait that is not attractive in a man. For example, a guy who is feeling insecure and desperate to get his ex-girlfriend back might try the following:

1. Begging and Pleading

[image: Pleading for another chance]

It's not unusual for a guy who is desperate to get an ex to change her mind to resort to begging and pleading with her to be given a second chance. Begging and pleading is not attractive and will only convince her that her decision to dump him was the right one.

Women don't think, He's really desperate; he must really love me so maybe I should give him another chance. Instead, they usually think, He's really desperate; what a loser, I need to move on and not look back.

2. Leaning On Her Friends

Another mistake guys make is thinking that they can recruit the help of her friends to get her to change her mind.

They try to accidentally-on-purpose bump into their ex's friends and then they make sure the message gets across about how devastated he is by the break up and how desperate he is to be given a second chance if she would only just talk to him if she would just reconsider, etc.

Yet, that is an approach that will usually backfire. Not only is it embarrassing for her and for her friends, it shows you to be a guy who doesn't have what it takes to stand on his own two feet and work things out for himself.

If you really need your ex-girlfriend back, you need to show her through your thinking and actions that you've taken steps to become a better man than the man she dumped. Looking for the sympathy of her friends does not show you to be that man.

3. Threatening Self-Harm

When some guys feel that their life is not worth living without their ex-girlfriend in it, they very often choose to hide away from the world and wallow in self-pity for a while. They stop going out or meeting up with friends and they sit alone at home licking their wounds, and probably not taking very good care of themselves in general.

This can lead to losing weight or becoming ill in some way and any attempt made by friends to improve things will be shunned with comments such as, There's no point to anything without her in my life, or, I'll never be happy again or, "If I can't get my ex back, I will commit suicide."

If any of this resonates with you, you need to ask yourself, “Which part of wallowing in self-pity and threatening self-harm is showing my ex-girlfriend that I’m a guy she should want to have back in her life?” The answer is none of it – exactly!

If you’re making or have already made any of the above mistakes, you’re making it extremely unlikely that your ex-girlfriend will even consider the idea of taking you back. If you need your ex-girlfriend back, you need to make her feel that she needs you back.

You need to show her that you’ve figured out the mistakes you made that led to her losing attraction for you and falling out of love with you and you’ve learned from them.

You need to show her through your attitude and behavior that you’ve taken action to make improvements and you’ve become a better, much more sexually attractive man as a result – a man she feels she needs to have back in her life.

Making Her Feel Like She Needs You Back

Only when you make your ex-girlfriend feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, will she then become interested in you again. If you also approach things correctly and cause her to feel jealous that you’re so happy and confident without her, she will then begin to feel like she is losing you.

From there, you need to make sure that you make her feel like her life would be so much better off with you in it. How do you do that? It’s all explained in Dan Bacon’s Get Your Ex Back: Super System program, which has already helped 100s of guys to successfully get a girlfriend, fiancée or wife back.

Are you ready to begin making her feel like she needs to have you back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Does My Ex-Girlfriend Miss Me?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you are wondering, “Does my ex-girlfriend miss me?” you’re really wondering if she’s missing you enough to want to give you another chance, right?

Whether she dumped you or if it was a mutual decision to take a break for a while, the fact that you’re now wondering whether or not she’s missing you suggests that you are missing her.

To find the answer you’re looking for, you need to put, “Does my ex-girlfriend miss me?” to one side for a moment and begin by asking, “Why did my ex become my ex?”

You need to figure out what caused her feelings for you to change and what caused your relationship to break up in the first place before you can answer the question of whether or not she might be missing you.

Not all women miss their ex. Whether or not your ex is missing you will depend on how she felt about you when your relationship ended. Chances are, the way she felt back then is the way she still feels now.

Regardless of how negatively she feels about you right now, you can make her feel positively and begin to want to see you in person again.

How?

Interact with her via text, on a phone call or in person and actively make her feel a spark of attraction for you again. Then, give her space for a few days, so she can think about you and begin to miss you.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

What Ex-Girlfriends Don’t Miss About Their Ex-Boyfriends...

To figure out what your ex-girlfriend might be missing about you, it’s important to look at what she might not be missing.

For example: Throughout the relationship or near the end of the relationship...

1. Did you become a clingy, insecure or needy?

[image: Needy boyfriend]

Women are attracted to men with alpha male characteristics. When she became your girlfriend, she must have seen some alpha male qualities in you. So what changed?

Alpha males are confident, masculine men who are secure in themselves and secure in what they’ve got to offer in a relationship as a result. They aren’t insecure about their attractiveness to women and remain strong (emotionally) no matter what happens.

If you became overly-possessive in your relationship and needy or clingy in your behavior as a result, your lack of confidence and your insecurity will have led to her seeing you as a weak, needy man and your desperation to cling on to her will have become a total turn off.

[image: Insecure boyfriend]

When a woman realizes that you don’t have the emotional strength of an alpha male, she naturally loses touch with her feelings of respect and attraction for you. If you keep making her feel that way, she will eventually fall out of love with you.

However, you can respark those feelings by showing her a new and improved version of yourself that naturally triggers her attraction for alpha males. When she sees, feels and experiences the changes in you, it's only natural that she will begin to look at you in a more positive light.

2. Did you take her for granted?

Women do not want to be put on a pedestal and they do not want men to throw themselves at their feet, but they don't want to be taken for granted either. If your behavior in the relationship led to her feeling that you no longer appreciated her, she will not miss your attitude, especially if she has moved on to a guy who does make her feel appreciated.

[image: Taking girlfriend for granted]

For example: Guys often make the mistake of thinking that a girlfriend's plans to have a quiet night in together and watch a movie are effectively plans to do nothing, so it will be okay to change them at the last minute.

Quiet time together is important to her so if you get into a habit of changing plans and letting her down because "something came up" and you adopt an attitude of, "We'll do it some other time babe," she's going to feel that you're taking her for granted and expecting her to just be there for whenever it happens to suit you. This is not the way she wants to feel in a relationship.

3. Did you let her become the leader of the relationship?

One of the biggest mistakes guys make in a relationship is slipping into the false belief that the way to keep a woman happy is to let her feel she's in charge and effectively in the driving seat: this is not the way women want to feel.

Taking a back seat and relying on your girlfriend to make decisions and to tell you what she wants from you in the relationship will not make her feel happy, it will make her feel that you're a weak, wimpy man who does not have what it takes to make her feel like a woman.

She wants to feel like a woman and this is ultimately what it takes to keep her happy. A man with alpha male qualities has what it takes to naturally lead the way in a relationship and he knows how to make her feel the way she wants to feel because he knows what a woman wants.

Does She Miss You?

By answering the above questions, you'll find the answer to the question of whether your ex might be missing you or not. Instead of asking, "Does my ex-girlfriend miss me?" ask yourself whether the man you were when your relationship broke up had any qualities she might be missing.

If you changed in your relationship and became less of a man in her eyes, the only way to make her miss you is to redevelop the qualities that first attracted her to you and to show her through your behavior and attitude that you have learned from your mistakes and made changes for the better to become a better man as a result.

The qualities that women find irresistibly attractive in a man include confidence, masculinity, and social intelligence. These are qualities that make you stand out as a man who knows who he is and knows where he's going in life, and a man who has a genuine likeability factor that makes him fun to be around.

When you learn how to bring the qualities that make you a sexually attractive man to the forefront, you redevelop the qualities that first attracted your ex to you and you rekindle the feelings she first had for you in the process.

She sees you as the man she first fell in love with, she's going to feel the way she did when you first got together, and it's those feelings that will make her miss you.

If she then sees that you've taken action to become a better man and you're attracting the attention of other women as a result, she's going to question whether she made the right decision and her rekindled feelings for you will not only make her miss you, they will make her open to the idea of getting back together again.

If you want to know more about becoming an irresistibly attractive man with qualities that will make your ex-girlfriend think again about what she's missing, check out Get Your Ex Back: Super System and begin applying the techniques right away.Â

The techniques in the program have been tested by 100s of guys before you and are proven to make an ex-girlfriend miss her boyfriend.

You can make your ex miss you and want you back, but you have to be willing to actively make her feel a spark (of respect, attraction and love) for you again.

If you're willing to do that, she will begin to think about you differently and will start to miss how good it feels to interact with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Win a Girl Back After Being Dumped

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to win a girl back after being dumped, you have to switch your focus from what you want to what she wants.

It can't be about you wanting her back because you need her, love her, are sorry, etc. Instead, it has to be about you making her feel what she wants to feel.

How can you do that? You've got to stop displaying the personality traits and behaviors that have been turning her off or making her feel a lack of respect for you and start displaying the traits that will trigger her feelings of attraction and respect.

When she feels a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, her guard will come down and she will open back up to the idea of being with you. Let's have a look at some of the classic personality traits that will make a girl feel respect and attraction for a guy...

Displaying the Right Traits When You Interact With Her

The most important part of winning a girl back happens when you talk to her on the phone and in person.

If you're trying to win a girl back via text, you will almost always run into problems. Why? She can't really experience the new and improved version of you via text. She needs to experience you on a phone call and in person to truly want you back.

If you want to get this girl back for real, you must make sure that you do it on the phone and in person. Here are some of the traits that will automatically make a girl feel respect and attraction for a guyâ€¦

1. Confidence

Women are attracted to men who have the type of confidence that allows them to handle whatever life throws at them.

It's not enough for a man to just be confident at work, with his studies or around his friends. What women are looking for when they seek confidence in a guy, is confidence in all situations.

Why? We live in a challenging world and it's not always easy to survive, thrive and prosper. Women instinctively know that they will be better off with a guy who has the ability to be confident and keep moving forward towards success no matter what life throws at him.

2. Strength of character

Men who have strength of character know who they are, what they want and go after it with confidence and clarity of mind. This type of mental and emotional strength is deeply attractive to women.

These days, many guys waste a lot of time and energy building muscles in the gym, in the hope that their physical strength will be enough to maintain a woman's attraction. Yet, although muscles and physical strength can make a woman feel attracted, it means nothing if the guy lacks mental and emotional strength.

If you want to win her back quickly, don't waste time on trying to be physically stronger, unless you already a very strong man emotionally. The most important strength that women look for in a man comes from the inside.

When she feels your emotional strength coming through by the way that you talk to her, behave around her, approach your everyday life and interact with others, it will have 100x more impact on her than you adding a few centimetres to your biceps would.

3. Masculinity

Again, this isn't about muscles.

Muscles can briefly attract a woman initially and if a guy is very confident, it is something that can make her feel attraction in the long run.

However, the type of masculinity that is instantly accessible to all guys is in the way that we think, behave and take action in life.

If a guy lacks masculinity is how he thinks (e.g. thinks like a bit of a woman at times), how he behaves (e.g. sometimes behaves like a bit of a woman or has subtly feminine body language at times) and how he takes action (e.g. scared to take a step forward because he is worried about rejection), then it won't matter that he has muscles.

If you're looking to win this girl back, you have to make sure that she experiences your masculinity when she talks to you on the phone and interacts with you in person. The more you are able to trigger her natural attraction to masculinity, the more she will want to give you another chance.

4. The ability to make her laugh

You've probably heard many times that girls love a guy who can make them. However, being funny to a woman doesn't mean that a guy needs to be constantly cracking jokes. Instead, it means having a sense of humor and being able to see the funny side of life. Women are quite simply attracted to men who are fun to be around.

For example: If you're eating at a restaurant (caf   or cafeteria) with this girl you like, you can make her laugh by pointing out that she has food on many different parts of her face.

You: Hey, you have some food on the side of your mouth there.

Her: [Attempts to wipe it off with her fingers or a napkin].

You: Yep, you got it. Actually, there's some on your chin as well. [Point to her chin].

Her: [Most-likely starting to smile, feel embarrassed or concerned. Attempts to wipe it off].

You: There's some on your ear as well. [Point to her ear and then begin to smile and laugh].

She will then smile and laugh and realize that you were joking. This will make her feel attracted to you because you have the confidence and masculinity (i.e. balls) to playfully dominate her like that. You're not worried about being rejected and are confident enough in yourself to mess with the situation like that for a laugh.

You don't have to do things like that all the time, but once in a while, if you do those types of things, girls will love how you're able to mess with them like that. It makes girls feel like the more submissive one around you, which makes them feel attracted to your masculinity.

It's much easier, quicker and requires much less effort than spending years in the gym to build up muscle. Your mind is much more powerful and attractive to women, so make sure that you use it.

Do You Know Why She Really Broke Up With You?

In many cases, a girl will only give vague reasons like, “I need space” or “I’m not ready for a relationship right now” or “I need some time to find myself.” Yet, those aren’t the real reasons why she has broken up with the guy.

Watch this video to understand the process that a girl usually goes through before breaking up with a guy and what you need to do to win her back...

Why did this girl break up with you or begin ignoring you? What caused her to feel that way? It could be that certain events (e.g. lying to her, cheating on her, being insecure or nervous around her, etc) led this girl to see you differently, so let’s look at some examples of what might have happened to make her feel less attracted to you...

1. A lack of confidence in her love, commitment and attraction for you

As your relationship developed, did you begin to feel threatened by her relationships with other people outside of your relationship? As your love for her grew, did you begin to need more and more reassurance from her that she felt the same way about you?

Behaving in that way not only demonstrates a lack of confidence, but it also often manifests into needy, possessive behaviour which then turns the girl off even more. When a girl sees that you no longer feel like she wants you, she rapidly begins to lose touch with her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

As a guy, it is critical for you to maintain your confidence throughout the entire relationship. Even if she tests you by pulling back her interest, you have to maintain your belief in your sex appeal to her. If you don’t, she will sense it and her sexual desire for you will begin to fade away.

2. Not knowing how to make her feel the way she really wants to feel

Girls don’t want to have to teach guys how to make them feel the way that they really want to feel.

If a girl has to do that, it forces her into the role of “mother” or “big sister” and when that happens, it immediately begins to erode away at her feelings of sexual attraction and respect for the guy.

When a guy is able to make a girl feel the way that she really wants to feel in a relationship, it allows her to fall deeper in love with him. However, if he doesn’t allow her to go there and the love doesn’t come close to reaching it’s highest potential, she will begin to question whether or not he is “the one” for her.

3. A lack of trust in your ability to be an emotionally strong man

To feel good about the idea of committing to a guy for the long term or for life, a woman needs to know that she can rely on him to be the man she needs. Some guys ruin that trust by putting on an act of being a really nice, easy-going guy during the dating process, but then becoming a controlling, jealous and insecure guy in the relationship.

A girl then has to question whether or not she can trust him to fix his issues and become an emotionally strong guy. She will wonder if he will get worse over time and whether she will end up regretting it one day.

Without trust, a relationship will always fall apart eventually. Getting a girl’s trust back is 10% about telling her that you’ve changed and 90% about showing her that you’ve changed.

4. Boredom

A lot of the guys who I've helped to get an ex back have admitted that they got too comfortable with their girl and things eventually became boring and stale.

For example: Doing the same thing every week and weekend, spending hours in front of the TV and rarely talking to each other in a fun, interesting or deep way.

Being fun to be around in a relationship comes down to how you talk to her, behave around her, treat her and what you do with her. Did you talk to her like a friend, like "one of the guys" or did you make her feel girly in your presence? Did she feel feminine and sexy around you, or did she feel more like a neutral friend?

Were you masculine enough during the relationship, or did you tend to behave a little too cute or lovey-dovey to the point where she may have begun to perceive you as being a bit feminine? Did you treat her too well, to the point where you made her feel like she was your "everything" in life, or did you take a more balanced approach?

Can You Win Her Back?

Yes, as long as you are willing to change your approach.

If the approach that you've been using with this girl isn't working, you have to be willing to consider that you might be missing a few, key pieces to the puzzle.

The right approach to use with her is to focus on triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you, rather than trying to convince her to take you back based on what you're saying (e.g. you will change, you love her, you miss her, you're sorry, etc).

Are you willing to do what it takes to win this girl back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend Said She Loves Me, But Broke Up With Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy is saying, “My girlfriend said she loves me, but broke up with me,” it doesn’t actually mean that the relationship is over.

If you are in a situation like that, what you need to do is work out why she has really broken up with you and then switch gears to begin making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you. Here’s a video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) that explains what you need to do and why...

Women Rarely Say What They Mean

It would be nice to think that when a woman says “I love you” and then breaks up with her boyfriend; it’s simply because she’s feeling confused, or worse, because she’s a cruel liar. In reality, she knows exactly what’s going on with her and has spent a long time sending off warning shots to let her guy know that she’s not happy in the relationship.

In most cases, during an argument where she is clearly trying to let her guy know that she’s unhappy about his attitude or behavior, a guy will latch on to a positive statement like, “I love you” rather than pay attention to the real issue at hand.

For example, a woman might say, “I love you, but if you don’t stop watching TV all the time and go out and do something with your life I’m going to leave you” or “I love you, but your insecurity and clinginess is driving me crazy!”

While she is trying to let him know that he needs to fix certain things in their relationship, he’s avoiding the issue with a false sense of security. Then, when she breaks up with him, he feels surprised and even betrayed. He’ll say, “My girlfriend said she loves me, but broke up with me. I didn’t even see it coming. Why didn’t she TELL me she was unhappy?”

The truth is: She did tell him.

But a woman isn’t going to spell it out for you. She’s going to give you hints and then she expects you to be man enough to figure the rest out for yourself. If you don’t get the message she will eventually break up with you.

Again, she’s not going to say, “I’m breaking up with you because” and give you a long list of reasons. She’s going to let you down as easily as possible, by saying things like, “I just need some space to sort my life out” or “It’s not you, it’s me” or, “I really love you but I just can’t be with you right now.”

Why does she do that? For 3 reasons:

1. She doesn’t want to put herself in a position where he might become aggressive or violent.
2. She doesn’t want to give him the opportunity to talk her out of her decision, by promising to change if she gives him another chance.
3. She doesn’t want to mother him and have to teach him how to be the man that she needs him to be in the relationship.

If you want to get your girlfriend back and make her feel respect, love and attraction for you as a man, you're going to have to dig deep and find the REAL reasons why she broke up with you.

Did You Know There Are 70+ Reasons Why a Woman Will Break Up With a Man?

In The Modern Man's program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, Dan Bacon explains what these 70+ reasons are. It's too much to explain here, but here are some classic example reasons why a woman will break up with a guy:

- Being clingy, needy and insecure.
- Being jealous and possessive.
- Taking her for granted.
- Not having a clear direction and purpose in life.
- Letting her wear the pants in the relationship and allowing her to make all the decisions.
- Not making her feel the way she wants to feel in a relationship.
- Failing to maintain and grow the respect, love and attraction between him and her over time.

Luckily though, it doesn't matter how bad you think you messed up, most things you can fix pretty quickly or even immediately, but it's not going to happen by itself. You have to be willing to put in a bit of work.

If you aren't willing to do anything or change anything about the way you interact with her, don't bother trying to get her back because she'll keep saying, "I love you but I can't be with you right now," until she meets another guy who'll give her what she really wants in a relationship.

If you want to get her respect, love and attraction back, you need to figure out the real reasons she broke up with you, so that when you speak to her again you can let her know that you truly understand where you went wrong.

When she realizes that she doesn't have to mother you anymore and that you're actually manning up, she will naturally drop her guard and feel more open to interacting with you, because you've made the effort to figure out what went wrong in the relationship by yourself.

Actions Speak Louder Than Words

Of course, figuring out where you went wrong is not going to be enough. She has to see that you've fixed your issues and improved yourself. I'm not saying you have to fix everything and become perfect but no one is perfect but you do have to become a stronger, more well-rounded version of who you are right now.

The best part is that fixing issues like insecurity, a lack of self-confidence, a lack of purpose, etc., is going to benefit you in all areas of your life. Not only will your girlfriend feel more respect, attraction and love for you as a man, but friends, family and colleagues will react differently (in a positive way) to you too.

However, you can't approach your girlfriend and say, "I know where I went wrong in our relationship. If you come back I promise to change those things." She doesn't want to know that you WILL change; she wants to know that you're already working on those things.

Her love for you is still there in the background; when you change the way she feels about you, she will become open to reconnecting with that love.

You Can Get Her Back if You Really Want To

You can sit around feeling hurt and saying, "My girlfriend said she loves me, but broke up with me," or you can do the many things Dan Bacon teaches in our revolutionary program Get Your Ex Back: Super System, which will make her feel differently.

When you make her feel differently about you and get her to see you in a new (more positive) light, she will automatically begin to feel more open to the idea of being your girlfriend again.

It really is possible to get another chance with your ex girlfriend. Yes, you still have to do the work, and yes, some of the things you need to do to get her back will be easy, while others will require a bit of effort.

Either way, when she's back in your arms looking at you with renewed respect and attraction and is telling you, "I love you," this time you'll know she means it and that she'll be with you as long as you want her.

Isn't that a worthy goal? Are you willing to do what it takes to get her back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make My Ex-Girlfriend Miss Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you've been wondering, "How to make my ex-girlfriend miss me" the first thing that you need to know is that it possible.

She may not be missing you now, but if you can actively create a spark (of respect, attraction and love again) and then give her space for a few days, she will naturally begin to miss how good she feels whenever she interacts with you these days.

A classic mistake that guys make these days is to ignore their ex (e.g. using the No Contact Rule) and hope that she will miss him.

Yet, if a woman doesn't have much or any feelings for a guy and he then ignores her, she's not going to miss having him in her life because he didn't give her good feelings.

If your ex girlfriend currently doesn't have much or any feelings for you, it's essential that you actively create a spark between you and her again.

A Mix of Painful and Positive Emotions

To make an ex girlfriend miss you and want you back, you can also focus on making her feel a combination of positive and painful emotions whenever you interact with her or even when she checks you out on social media.

Here's a great video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man), which explains how to make her feel one of the painful emotions; jealousy.

As long as you are prepared to do what it takes to make your ex girlfriend miss you, it's very possible that she will be back in your arms very soon.

Mistakes to Avoid When Trying to Make Her Miss You

Thinking that improving your appearance will do the trick

How many times have you seen the heartbroken guy in a Hollywood movie decide to get himself a "makeover" to rekindle the interest of his ex-girlfriend, and how many times has the new, improved look made his ex fall madly in love with him again and instantly want him back? Yes, plenty of times, but here's the thing; real life is not like the movies.

The harsh reality is that your ex became your ex for a reason and unless you've taken action to fix the things about yourself that led to her breaking up with you, she's not going to miss having you in her life.

For example, let's say she broke up with you because your attitude in the relationship led to her feeling that she was being taken for granted.

Getting yourself down to the gym to build up your muscles or down to the shopping mall to kit yourself out with some new designer outfits will do nothing to change the way she was feeling about you at the time of ending the relationship and the way she still feels now.

Itâ€™s not an improvement in your outer appearance she needs to see, but an improvement in the person you are on the inside.

Thinking that you just have to text her the right thing and she'll come running back

A change in your outer appearance is not going to change the way your ex feels about you and until she sees something in you that makes her feel differently about you, sheâ€™s not going to miss you.

In the same way that real life is not like the movies, itâ€™s not like sappy love-song lyrics either. Time and again, we get asked for advice on what to text an ex-girlfriend to get her change her mind or what to write in a letter to an ex girlfriend to get her to give the guy a second chance, but the bottom line is that thereâ€™s nothing a guy can say that will change the way a woman feels.

To get a woman to miss you, you need to generate all of the emotions in her that will lead to her missing you, and words alone canâ€™t stir those emotions.

Sure, the guys in the romantic â€œmissing youâ€ love songs seem to find just the right words to melt a womanâ€™s heart and have her take them back with open arms but words alone wonâ€™t get you the results you want in the real world, and they might even make things worse.

Letâ€™s say your ex became your ex because she felt suffocated by your needy, insecure, and overly possessive behavior in the relationship.

If you then say things along the lines of, â€œThereâ€™s no other woman that could compare to you; my life is meaningless without you; I canâ€™t go on without you; my world is empty without youâ€ sheâ€™s not going to think, â€œWow! This guy really loves me and I really miss him,â€

Instead, she may think, â€œGross...He is weak, wimpy, and desperate...I donâ€™t miss his needy, insecure behavior at all...I'm so glad to be distancing myself from it.â€

Your words will only remind her of her reasons for breaking up with you in the first place.

Are You Giving Her Any Decent Reasons to Miss You or Want You Back?

Showing her through your attitude and behavior that you have not changed at all since she broke up with you will not make her miss you. Getting her to miss you means showing her that youâ€™ve learned from the experience and have made changes for the better, which have led to you becoming the guy she fell in love with â€œ and more.

To get an ex girlfriend back for real, you've got to stop saying and doing the types of things that will turn her off and start saying and doing the types of things that will attract her to you.

For example: Were you needy, clingy or insecure in the relationship? If so, you need to focus on becoming more confident and emotionally secure.

If you took her for granted and stopped making her feel loved and appreciated, you need to apologize for that, explain that you know what you did wrong and then switch gears to focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Always Look at Any Sign You Get From Her in a Positive Way

When getting an ex woman back, it's extremely important that you remain confident in your ability to re-attract her.

If you doubt your ability to re-attract her and cause her to have feelings for you again, you will most-likely turn her off when she interacts with you because you will come across as self-doubting and insecure.

Women are naturally attracted to confidence in men and turned off by emotional weakness, so if you want your ex to miss you and want you back, you must get yourself to feel as confident as possible and then actively start interacting with her again via text, on phone calls and in person.

Watch this video for examples of signs that your ex might miss you and want you back...

As you will discover from the video above, it's just as possible to think in an insecure way about her signs as it is to think in a confident way.

When getting a woman back, it's always better to focus on the positives and use that to feel confident, rather than focussing on the negatives and using that to feel insecure.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Girlfriend Won't Talk to Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex girlfriend won't talk to you, what you need to do is take a step back and think about the ways you might be turning her off.

In most cases, when a guy says, "My ex girlfriend won't talk to me," I can usually guess what he's been doing wrong.

For example: Here are three classic mistakes that lead to an ex girlfriend not wanting to talk to her former boyfriend!

Mistake 1: Sending way too many emotional texts or messages

[image: Sending emotional text messages to ex girlfriend]

When a break up happens, it's normal for a woman to want to put some distance between herself and her ex boyfriend.

She wants to try to get him off her mind and calm her feelings so she can think straight and work out whether or not she wants to be with him at all. She will try her best to avoid calling him, texting him or seeing him in person as much as possible.

For her, having that space helps her begin to move on with her life, go out to party with friends and maybe even flirt with some new guys to make herself feel better.

Yet, for the guy who has been dumped, not being able to be in contact with his ex girlfriend feels horrible. He worries about her kissing, having sex with and falling in love with another guy. He wants to stay on her mind, not out of her mind, so he texts and messages her as often as he can. Yet, the more he texts and messages her, the more she begins to ignore him.

When that happens, his messages often become more desperate...

- "Why won't you talk to me?"
- "Why are you doing this? Don't you remember the good times? I said that I would change. Just give me a chance to talk to you."
- "Please forgive me, I didn't mean to hurt you."
- "Are you getting my messages?"
- "I said I'm sorry. Please don't ignore me!"
- "I can't live without you."
- "I don't know what I'm going to do if you are not in my life. I don't want to live anymore. Please answer the phone and talk to me!"

Unfortunately, those types of messages simply push an ex girlfriend away even further. Why? Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men and turned off by the weakness.

Emotional text messages never make an ex girlfriend feel more attraction and respect for a guy. Instead, they just make her feel like her ex-boyfriend needs her for his emotional security and stability, which is something that women are instinctively turned off by.

Another reason why sending emotional text messages to an ex-girlfriend is a problem is that she has to GUESS at what emotional state he is when he sends the message.

She can't see his body language, listen to his tone of voice and assess his overall attitude and vibe via text, so she has to guess how he would be thinking, behaving and acting if he said something like that to her in person.

During a break up, a woman will almost always assume that her ex-boyfriend is being insecure, desperate and needy, rather than guessing that he is feeling confident and emotionally secure at the time of sending the message.

If you want to get your ex girlfriend to talk to you again, the only text message that you should be sending her is one that arranges to get her talking to you on the phone.

When she's talking to you on the phone, she can hear your confident, emotionally secure tone of voice and ask questions if she doesn't understand what you mean.

If you want to go from saying, "My ex girlfriend won't talk to me" to "I'm meeting up with my girlfriend tomorrow," then don't waste time sending messages that are only going to make her even more irritated with you. Get her on the PHONE and arrange a meet up where you can regain her respect and attraction for you by showing her that you've changed.

Mistake 2: Not understanding the real reason why she broke up with him

Your girlfriend would have given you some reasons why she broke up with you, but a woman will rarely tell you the real reasons.

After providing a guy with some subtle reasons, a woman is more likely to say something like, "I need some space," "I just don't feel the same way about you anymore," or "I just don't want to be in a relationship anymore."

She approaches it that way because she doesn't want to have to deal with how a guy would react if she said something like, "You're just not enough of a man for me" or "You behave like a woman at times" or "You don't make me feel girly, sexy and turned on. I feel like more of a friend to you because you're so neutral around me."

She also doesn't want to teach her boyfriend how to be the man she needs. Instead, she wants him to know what to do, because unless he figures out what went wrong by himself, he will just carry on making the same mistakes over and over again and she'll have to be his teacher (or "mother figure") for life.

A guy can make all kinds of promises to his ex, but unless he can work out how to make her feel the way that she really wants to feel when in a relationship, she won't be interested in anything he has to say.

In her mind, he just won't understand what she really needs and she won't want to have to teach him. If he can't work it out on his own, most women would rather cut their losses and try to find another man who understands.

Feeling confused and not knowing what else to do, some guys contact their ex girlfriend and say things like, "Please tell me what I did wrong and I promise that I change" or "I will do anything you want me to. Just tell me what to do and I'll do it."

In the guy's mind, he is just trying to do the right thing. He loves his ex-girlfriend and is willing to do whatever it takes, but she simply isn't willing to teach him. He will wonder why his ex girlfriend suddenly stops wanting to talk to him and just won't make any sense.

So, before you do anything else, it's important to understand why she broke up with you so that you can fix those things before you contact her.

Think back to all of the fights that you and her had and think about the specific things she said to you. For example: If she said, "You never pay attention to me," she was telling you that she was feeling neglected. If she said, "I'm always the one doing the dishes while you play your video games," she was telling you that you were taking her for granted.

Ultimately, when you know the real reasons why your ex broke up with you, you can make the right changes. Then, when you get her on the phone, you will be able to explain to that you fully understand why she felt the way she did and she will feel happy that you're taking her concerns seriously.

Mistake 3: Expecting her to take him seriously before he has fixed his issues

Many guys assume that by saying, "I promise to change if you give me another chance," they are giving their girlfriend what she wants (i.e. an attentive, caring man who is willing to do whatever she wants or needs).

Yet, in most cases, promising to change isn't enough to make a woman give her boyfriend another chance. Why? When a relationship gets to the point where it has broken up, a woman has usually already given a guy plenty of chances to improve before that point. Each time it has happened, he has promised to change, but he just keeps falling back into his old ways.

After a while, a woman gets to a point where she feels like nothing will ever change and she just wants to feel the pain of a break up and move on, rather than having to continually go through the same cycle with him for life.

If that applies to your situation, what you need to do is begin to fix your issues (e.g. insecurity, neediness, clinginess, fear of commitment, etc.) and improve yourself both mentally and emotionally.

Remember: Your ex girlfriend broke up with you because you stopped making her feel the way she wants to feel in the relationship. By fixing your issues, you will automatically begin to feel more appealing to your ex girlfriend when she next interacts with you.

Even though you are saying, "My ex girlfriend won't talk to me," what you need to realize is that the negative emotions she feels for you right now are not set in stone.

[image: Changing how she feels]

The emotional state of a human being changes all the time. A woman can be angry at a guy one day and crying about missing him the next. It all comes down to what you say and do to influence how she feels. If you're currently making her feel turned off and causing her to not want to talk to you, then you're going about things in the wrong way.

Are You Willing to Do What it Takes to Get Her Back?

If you are serious about getting your ex-girlfriend back, what you need to do is figure out exactly where you are going wrong and what you need to do instead.

You need to focus on triggering her feelings of love, respect and attraction for you, rather than triggering feelings of anger, disgust, disappointment and apathy.

Are you willing to do what it takes to get your ex-girlfriend back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get My Wife Back After a Separation

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to get your wife back, the first step is to truly understand the deeper reasons why she feels turned off by you and then drastically change or improve those areas.

You are most likely aware of some of the mistakes you made during the marriage, but have you been able to change or improve those things? For example:

1. Were you clingy, needy or insecure?
2. Were you too controlling or bossy?
3. Did you take her for granted?
4. Did you stop trying to make her feel attracted to you?
5. Did you say and do one too many things that caused her to lose respect for you?

Whatever you did that has turned your wife off, the good news is that you can turn it around.

As long as you are prepared to invest a little bit of time and energy into improving yourself, you will have a high chance of making her feel differently the next time you interact with her.

You can make her feel differently, but you have to be prepared to try a new approach with her.

You can't just keep saying and doing the same old things that you have been doing in the past.

You've got to approach her and the relationship in a new way, otherwise she will feel as though it's just the same old marriage that she lost interest in.

Marriage Has Changed

[image: Marriage has changed]

In the past, a woman had to choose one man, marry him and then stay with him for life.

Even if he eventually began to treat her badly, caused her to feel unhappy or cheated on her, she would have to stick by the vows of "Until death do us part."

Divorce was something that people once saw as shameful and even sacrilegious, so they avoided it at all costs.

Yet, that isn't the case anymore.

[image: Husband and wife separating]

Today's women are surrounded by a culture that encourages them to dump or divorce men who are unable to make them feel the way that they want to feel.

If a woman is unhappy, she only has to turn on MTV or listen to the latest pop songs and female singers will be singing about how they dumped guys who weren't good enough.

If she watches TV talk shows, she will hear about how great women feel after divorcing a man and if she watches the latest TV drama shows filled with steamy affairs and storylines of women divorcing men and then starting anew with a better man, she will begin to wonder why she is sticking with her unhappy marriage.

So, what's a man to do?

In today's world, a man has to know how to deepen a woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for him over time. Unlike men of the past who could take their woman for granted, a modern man needs to be able to make his woman feel the way she really wants to feel in a relationship or marriage.

If he is unable to do that and instead makes her feel unhappy, depressed, unwanted, unappreciated or smothered, she has every right to get up and leave.

Today's women can earn their own money in high paying careers and if they are unable to do that, the government usually has a decent assistance program to help them.

Most women now only stay with men who make them feel the way they really want to feel.

You've got to be able to deepen her love, respect and attraction for you. You can't just expect that because things felt great early on or because you are married, she will stick around for life.

Unfortunately, that's just not the way it works anymore.

Did Both of You Want to Separate, or Did She End it?

[image: Did you both want to separate?]

When a separation is a mutual decision, it usually seems like a good idea at the time.

Additionally, the wife usually makes it sound like there is a good chance that they will get back together soon.

She will say things like, "I just need some time alone to figure this out" or "I want some time to find myself" or "I want to see how I feel without you" or "I'm not sure that I love you anymore, so this separation will allow me the time to think about it."

The wife will also often assure her husband that she has no intention of meeting other men.

Yet, that rarely lasts very long because many women now use online dating and apps like Tinder to quickly get a lot of men interested in them, go out on dates and see how they feel.

According to a study carried out at Ohio State University in the USA, approximately 80% of trial separations eventually end in divorce.

Another study found that 90% of marriage separations ended in divorce.

In other words, separating from your wife is not a good idea.

So, what should you do instead?

You've got to focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

You have to make her feel respect and attraction in ways that she probably hasn't ever felt for you, or hasn't felt in a long time.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

Did You Grow Apart?

[image: Growing apart in a marriage]

One of the key elements to keeping a relationship together for life is developing and growing together as a couple.

Of course, this didn't apply to marriages 100 years ago because people just stayed together anyway. However, in today's world, if a couple grow apart for long enough, they may eventually feel like there isn't much reason to stay together.

Here are two examples that I often see when I help guys to get their wife back...

1. The wife becomes more emotionally intelligent and mature, but the husband stays the same or becomes immature

Most women want to be with a man who they feel is more emotionally mature and stable than they are.

They don't want to feel as though they are in a relationship or marriage with a guy who they have to "mother" and protect emotionally.

Sometimes, a couple will get married when they are both at the same level of emotional maturity.

However, the wife will then grow as a person and take on a bigger role at work that forces her to develop, evolve and become even more emotionally intelligent and mature than she ever was.

She may then begin to become friends with different types of people than she used to enjoy hanging around with.

If her husband is unable to be respected by those people because his lack of emotional intelligence or maturity, she will begin to lose some respect and attraction for him.

She might lash out at him and complain that she has grown up, but he hasn't or that he embarrasses her in front of her friends or co-workers.

At this point, a husband may become angry that his wife is choosing a career over their marriage and tell her to get her priorities straight. However, if her career is important enough to her, it might eventually get to a point where she feels like he is holding her back or destroying her chances of being promoted further.

2. The husband hides from his true potential as a man behind the safety of the marriage

This is a fairly common problem and it is when the husband stops going after his true potential in life and begins to spend more time lazing in front of the TV or engaging in fairly useless hobbies that don't amount to any real benefit to his wife or children.

Meanwhile, bills are piling up, the couple is hardly able to afford to take a holiday and their sex life is drying up.

The wife begins to feel increasingly disappointed that her husband isn't becoming a bigger and better man.

It's like he has just settled for a mediocre life and doesn't feel as though he needs to achieve anything else for the rest of his life. He's got a wife and he's set for life.

The wife will then begin to nag and complain to her husband by telling him that he needs to do something with his life, rather than wasting it watching TV, engaging in hobbies or whatever else he does that doesn't amount to any real benefit to her or the children.

She will ask him to be the man that he promised to be back when they got married; the man she fell in love with.

Not knowing what else to do, many husbands think that the solution must be to help her around the house by doing the housework, making dinner and making life easier for her.

Yet, that isn't what she wants.

[image: Sucking up to her by doing housework won't last]

A woman doesn't forget the fact that she can't respect and feel attracted to her husband and suddenly love him again because he cleans up the house.

Sucking up to her by doing housework, taking her out to nice dinners or buying her things is not the answer.

A wife wants her husband to become a bigger and better man by rising through the levels of his true potential as a man.

She wants him to act on his biggest dreams in life, rather than just letting his life waste away.

She wants to feel proud of him and feel safe because he is doing his very best to make their life better.

Not just for her though.

Don't get me wrong.

Women hate it when a man looks to her for leadership on how he should live his life and who he should become.

She doesn't want to be his life guide, coach or mentor and help him grow into the man he knows he can be.

She also doesn't want him coming to her and essentially saying, "Okay, I am working harder now. I am becoming a better man. Now do you want me back?"

She doesn't want him looking to her for a decision.

She wants him to actively make her feel respect and sexual and romantic attraction for him again.

When he does that, she will automatically begin to want him back and won't want to go through with the divorce.

Okay, so those are just two examples of out 100s that I have come across when helping men to get their wife back.

There are many different things that you can improve or change to get your wife to want to get back with you and end the separation.

However, despite all the differences between the problems that couples experience, one thing remains the same every time...

The man has to stop saying and doing the types of things that turn his wife off and start saying and doing the types of things that will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

It is that simple.

It is not a complicated process.

The husband needs to make his wife have feelings for him again by being the sort of man that she can now look up to and feel attracted to.

A man can want it to be more complicated than that if he wants to, but it isn't.

Focusing on making her have feeling is what works.

In addition to that, a husband also has to be able to apologize for his mistakes and explain himself in a way that shows he truly understands the real reasons why she wanted to end the marriage.

When she can see that he truly understands where he went wrong and has already begun to change, she then drops her guard.

She also feels understood and relieved that her ex-husband (the man she fell in love with and married) is back and better than ever.

She then becomes more open to communicating with him in person and considering giving the marriage another shot.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Win Back Your Ex-Girlfriend: Don't Make These Mistakes

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to win back your ex-girlfriend is to focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

If she is feeling turned off by you right now and you're trying to get her back, but aren't saying or doing anything to make her feel respect and attraction for you, then you're not going to win her back.

More Classic Mistakes to Avoid

Getting a girlfriend back can become unnecessarily difficult when a guy makes one or more of the following mistakes...

1. Bombarding her with text messages so he is never out of her mind

[image: Huh? Why is he texting me this insecure crap?]

I get a lot of emails from guys who tell me that they've tried everything they can think of to try to win back an ex-girlfriend. When I ask them to tell me what they've tried, it very often comes down to one thing - texting.

Not just a few texts...a LOT of texts. Most guys text the crap out of ex girlfriends because it feels like it is working.

Yet, in most cases, texting an ex-girlfriend simply turns her off even further because she looks at the texts and assumes that you are still the same guy she broke up with and haven't really changed.

Some guys feel as though staying on her mind with regular texts means that she will be less likely to move on because she will be thinking about him. If she texts back, it can feel like she is maintaining a line of communication because she is interested.

Yet, just because woman texts back in a nice, friendly way, it doesn't mean that she is actually rolling her eyes and thinking, "Hhh...why is he sending me this crap?"

Nothing that you can say to your ex girlfriend via text will convince her that you are going to think, act and behave differently from now on. It's easy to write something in a text, but actions speak louder than words.

If she can hear your sincerity on a phone call and then see the changes in you when you meet up with her in person, that is what will convince her that you have changed.

2. Pleading with her for another chance, even though he hasn't changed

[image: Breaking up]

A woman will often give her boyfriend one or two chances when she is ready to break up with him, especially if she still has hope for the relationship. However, if he never seems to change and ends up making her feeling the same way after she has given him a chance, she will become colder and more able to completely break up with him.

When a woman gets to that point, she will often say cold things like, "I feel nothing for you now" or

"I don't love you anymore" to really get the message across that she has lost all hope for the relationship and has disconnected herself from the love that she used to feel for him.

It doesn't mean that the love is dead, but that she has simply closed herself off to it.

At this point, most guys don't know how to react. The correct way to react is to accept her decision and then leave. After that, you need to quickly begin fixing any issues (e.g. insecurity) and improving yourself (e.g. becoming more masculine in your thinking, behavior and actions).

After doing that, you then need to contact her and arrange to see her in person. When you see her in person, you need to let her experience the new, improved version of you so that she can feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Unfortunately, most guys don't focus on fixing their issues and improving themselves and often make the mistake of pleading with their girlfriend and trying to convince her to give him another chance.

[image: Pleading for another chance]

When a guy pleads with a woman or even begs her to give him another chance (even though he doesn't know how to change, fix his issues and improve himself to be more attractive to her), she realizes that he is clinging onto a relationship that he doesn't know how to handle.

She feels as though he just isn't emotionally mature enough or experienced enough as a man to be the boyfriend that she needs. Instead of giving him yet another chance and having to go through another break up in a few days, weeks or months time, she just ends it.

The more he pleads with her, the more respect and attraction she loses for him because she realizes that he is lost, confused and doesn't know what he needs to do to fix the situation.

3. Writing her a love letter to let her know how he feels

Some guys find it difficult to express how they feel in person, so they pour their heart out in a letter, e-mail, Facebook message or a series of texts instead.

In cases like that, a guy feels like it's important to make sure that his girlfriend understands just how much she means to him and how much he wants her back. He assumes that if the break up was a result of him not being open enough with his emotions, she'll get a chance to see what he's really feeling but was unable to express...and that might make her rethink her decision.

Yet, it almost always turns a woman off. Words on a screen are nothing compared to watching you say that in person. According to most studies, non verbal communication (e.g. body language, tone of your voice, vibe, etc) makes up 93% of communication when two people are talking in person.

This means that only 7% of what is really being communicated between people is based on the words. Everything else is about who they are, how they are behaving and what their vibe and attitude is like.

When your girlfriend cannot see you in person and assess your non-verbal communication, she has to GUESS what you would be acting like if you said that type of thing to her in person.

If your girlfriend currently sees you in a negative light and she then gets a long letter where you are pouring your heart out in a soppy, romantic or sensitive way, she is going to imagine negative things about you (e.g. you were feeling insecure when you wrote it, you rewrote certain sections over and over again, you are a wimp for not saying that to her in person before, etc).

However, when you say those things in person and she can see that you're confident, relaxed, masculine and emotionally secure, she will actually feel a lot of respect and attraction for you.

Without a real emotional connection in a relationship, a woman will feel uneasy about connecting physically (i.e. sex, kissing, hugging, etc). It just won't feel right to her. If you can't connect with your girlfriend in person, she will always remain partially or fully closed off to you no matter what you try to do to win her back.

4. Calling her friends and/or relatives and asking them to help him change her mind

Sometimes, when a guy realizes that his own efforts aren't going to win his girlfriend back, he will try calling on her friends or family to help him convince her that he is serious and is willing to do whatever it takes to make the relationship work.

For example: If she is ignoring his text messages and not answering his calls, he may then try to get friends or family to pass on a message for him. He may ask her friends or family to add in that he is a "mess" without her and are really desperate to talk to her and sort out the problems between them.

Calling her friends is a bad idea because women aren't attracted to guys who behave like a boy would by getting other people (e.g. parents, adults, etc) to stand up for him.

The moment that a guy runs to her friends for help, all respect for him as a man is lost. Without respect, there can be no sexual spark and the very fact that he put her in an embarrassing situation with her friends will make her want him to get out of her life completely.

5. Avoiding other women to show her that he only has eyes for her

[image: Avoiding women to show how devoted he is to his ex girlfriend]

Many of the guys who ask me for advice on how to win back an ex girlfriend tell me that they've deliberately avoided social situations or avoided being seen with any other women because they don't want their ex-girlfriend to think that they are "over her" when all they really want is to win her back.

The thinking behind this approach is that by showing her that he is totally unhappy without her and not interested in anyone but her, she will be willing to give him a second chance because he has proved how much she means to him.

However, avoiding other women is a bad idea because all women (even if they don't admit it to your face) want to be with the type of man that other women want. Women yearn to be with what they refer to as a "real man" and they know that when they finally find him, they're going to have to fight other women for him.

Women love the thrill of the chase and competing with other women to win a man's affection is all part of the chase. If your ex-girlfriend gets the sense that other women don't even like you and aren't interested in you, she is going to be quite happy to let you be the one that got away.

You don't have to go out and pick up other women to make her feel that way. You simply have to start being the type of guy that she KNOWS other women would want to be with...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex Back: 5 Common Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I'm going to teach you how to get your ex back.

Essentially, what you need to do is to stop saying and doing the things that are going to turn her off and start doing things that are going to draw her to you.

Three Important Questions For You

Before I get into explaining some of the mistakes that guys make when trying to get a woman back and then explain what to do instead, I'm going to ask you these three important questions:

1. When you talk to her, are you making her feel drawn to you or repelled by you?
2. When you text her, are you making her feel drawn to you or repelled by you?
3. When you interact with her, are you behaving in a way that makes her feel drawn to you or repelled by you?

[image: Stop turning your ex off]

That's what really counts.

It doesn't matter that you want to get back with her, that you're sincere and that you're promising to change.

It doesn't matter that you experienced good times together in the past or that she used to feel attracted to you, used to respect you or used to really love you.

Those things really don't matter at the point where a woman has broken up with a guy and is thinking about moving on or has already moved on.

The only way to make your ex care enough to want to get back with you, is to start saying and doing the things that are going to make her forgive your mistakes, feel respect for you and feel attracted to you again.

[image: Start turning your ex on]

When that happens, she automatically opens herself back up to the love. She automatically reconnects with her old feelings.

[image: Ex reconnecting with the love]

5 Common Mistakes to Avoid When Getting an Ex Back

Some of the classic mistakes that guys make when trying to get an ex back are...

1. Asking her to explain why

[image: Asking ex to explain why]

When a guy gets broken up with, it's only natural that he's going to be asking why. "Why are you breaking up with me? What's going on? What I have done? What can I change? Why are you feeling this way?" etc.

So, don't worry if you've already done it.

It's only natural that you're going to ask her questions like that, but the point here is this: A woman doesn't want to be a man's teacher in life.

[image: Women don't want to teach men how to be men]

She doesn't want to teach you how to be a man. She doesn't want to teach you how to be the sort of man that will be attractive to her. She wants you to be able to work that stuff out yourself and start being the type of man that she actually wants you to be.

If you can't do that on your own, it means that she has to teach you.

Most women do not want to play the role of being a guy's mother, big sister or teacher in life.

Women don't want to take on that role because it doesn't make them feel feminine, it doesn't make them feel girly and it doesn't make them feel like a real woman.

She wants to feel feminine in your presence. She wants to feel like you're a man that she can look up to and respect, not a man that she has to guide, take care of or be gentle with.

2. Rushed apologies

[image: Rushed apologies to ex]

Once again and quite naturally, when a good man gets broken up with by his woman, he will want to apologize and say sorry for how he has made her feel. He assumes that if she gives her a sincere enough apology, it will change how she feels.

Yet, it doesn't.

Why a rushed apology doesn't work in almost all cases when getting a woman back is that she will have broken up with him for deep, complex reasons.

[image: Insecure boyfriend]

For example: He might have been clingy, needy or insecure or on the opposite end of the scale, he might have taken her for granted and not really given a shit about her.

[image: Taking girlfriend for granted]

During the relationship, he didn't really care about her, took her for granted and may have even broken up with her a few times. Eventually, she had enough and decided that she wanted out.

Rushed apologies don't work because women instinctively know that it's going to take you a couple of days or a couple of weeks to fix any emotional issues that you have and improve on the mistakes that you were making.

It's going to take a bit of time for you to think about it, maybe do some learning and then start to behave, think and talk differently around her.

3. Begging or crying

[image: Crying to her and begging for another chance]

Not all guys make this mistake, but it is a pretty common one.

I've helped more than 100 phone coaching clients to successfully get their ex back and some of the times when I talk to guys, they are confident, masculine men who are successful in their career, whereas other times, they are guys who don't really yet know how to be a man.

In some cases, a guy was a confident, masculine man prior to meeting his woman and was able to maintain that for the initial part of the relationship. Yet, over time, he lost his way and became a bit insecure, needy or clingy of his girlfriend, fiancé or wife.

He lost touch with what it means to be a man, so when she broke up with him, he reacted by crying, begging or pleading for another chance.

One of the reasons why begging, crying or pleading doesn't work is that women aren't attracted to the weakness in men. Women are attracted and drawn to strength in men, so when you present a woman with emotional weakness, it doesn't draw her to you or turn her on.

It doesn't make her think, "Wow! Cool! This guy wants me so much that he's begging and pleading. That must mean that he's 'the one' ...it must mean that we're meant to be together." All it does is turn her off.

4. Over-texting

When I help guys to get their ex back, one of the first things that I advise is to stop texting.

The only time you should be texting your ex is to get her on the phone, so you can then arrange a meet up.

The reason why is that if you think about what a text actually is, you will realize that it's just words on a screen.

When you send her a text, she doesn't know what state of mind you're in at that point, so she has to GUESS.

...and in most cases, she guesses in a negative light.

[image: Ex turned off by text]

She'll be thinking things like, "Hhh...he's just trying to get me back. He's trying all sorts of text tricks to get me back" or "Ohh...that text that he just sent me there was supposed to make me jealous or make me miss him. I get it...I see right through it...it's not working!"

What I always advise for guys and what I provide in my program for getting an ex back, are texts that actually get her on the phone.

To get an ex back, you've got to get her on the phone and you've got to meet up with her in person. The most efficient and effective way to make a woman feel attracted to you, to respect you and to forgive you is to talk to her in person.

You have to push to get a meet up with your ex. You can't just be hiding behind text because most texts are actually going to turn her off.

5. Trying to be her friend

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that the path to getting an ex back is being her friend.

A guy may think, "Okay...I'm going to be a really good friend to her. I will pay her rent, buy her gifts, talk to her, be there for her in any way I can....and hopefully that will make her realize that I really do love her, that I'm serious about wanting to get back with her and that I'm serious about doing the right things this time."

Yet, it doesn't work because being a woman's friend doesn't make her feel sexually attracted to you.

It doesn't make her feel like she wants to be with you in a romantic, sexual relationship. In most cases, it just makes her experience friendly types of emotions towards her ex where she likes him as a person, but doesn't feel attracted to him in a sexual way.

This is especially true if the guy is acting like he doesn't deserve her, can't get her back and is only good enough as a friend. Behaving like that turns women off because they aren't attracted to emotional weakness and self-doubt in men, especially after they've broken up with him.

Getting Her Back For Real

When getting an ex back, you actually need to have a plan.

There are way too many mistakes that guys make because they don't have a plan or the right advice to follow. It's way too easy to mess up the process of getting an ex back if you don't know what you're doing or learn the right way to do it.

Some guys have friends in their life, or brothers, cousins or a father who they can turn to who will help them out and teach them what to do. Those guys are great with women and can provide advice to him to follow to get his ex back.

However, after being dumped, what a lot of guys find is that most people around them say, "Just move on...there's plenty of fish in the sea" or "Leave her alone and if she comes back to you, it's meant to be" and other bits of unhelpful advice that don't actually help him get her back.

[image: Get help to get your ex back if you need it]

So, if you don't have people in your life that are willing to help you out or are capable of helping you out, then that's what I'm here for.

No-One Was Available to Help Me Get My Ex Back...So I Lost Her

I don't know if you know my story already, but basically what happened to me is that I got lucky with a girl that I met at a party when I was 19 years old.

Her and I got into a relationship and then a year and half later, I had become needy, insecure, over-protective and she cheated on me and then dumped me.

I was destroyed.

I didn't know what to say or do to get her to forgive me, to get her to give me another chance or to feel respect and attraction for me once again.

Pretty much everything that I was saying and doing around her (including cussing at her and calling her all sorts of nasty names for cheating on me), was turning her off and pushing her away.

I didn't know what to do, so I was lost.

I only had one friend who was basically telling me that all women are bitches and can't be trusted, so I should just move on. Obviously, that "advice" didn't help.

So, basically I was on my own because back when I got dumped, there was no internet with people online helping each other out.

Pretty much everyone in my life was just saying, “Get over it” or “Move on” and all those sorts of unhelpful statements that you’ve probably heard from people in your life too.

As the years went on, I lost a lot of confidence in myself around women and I eventually got to the point where I had to move on. I had to work out how to attract women.

So, one day, I made a decision and said (something like), “Okay, I’m going to go out and approach women every weekend until I work out how to attract women, have my choice with women and not have this (being dumped and alone for years) happen to me again.”

After a bit of initial effort, I worked out how to attract women. I worked out what to say and do to make women feel attracted to me and want to be with me. I worked out how to kiss women within minutes of meeting them, how to take women home for sex and I enjoyed that lifestyle for about 10 years.

I then met my sexy, 20-year old girlfriend when I was 35 years old and recently we got engaged (at age 22 and 37) and are going down the path of marriage.

So, in other words, I know how to attract women, I know how to pick them up and I know how to keep a relationship together.

Yet, that doesn’t make me an expert at getting an ex back.

What has made me an expert at getting an ex back, is helping more than 100 phone coaching clients to successfully get a woman back.

After completing that, then I recorded my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System. This program is a 7 step system that a man needs to follow to get a woman back.

To get a woman back, you’ve got to be prepared to do what it takes. If you’re not prepared to say and do the things that are going to make her feel respect and attraction for you, then you’re most-likely not going to get her back.

The steps that I provide in my system have been developed by helping more than 100 phone coaching clients to get their ex back.

Not all cases are the same...

Some guys that I’ve helped out are good with women and have no problem at picking up new women, but they lost their way with their current woman and simply don’t know what to say or do to get her back.

Some guys are okay at picking up new women and kind of got lucky with their current woman when they met her. She has now dumped him and he doesn’t know what to do to get her back.

Some guys are completely hopeless at picking up women and don’t know how they even picked up their ex or what to do to get her back.

Regardless of a guy’s skill level with women, what remains the same every time is that you’ve got to say and do the things that are going to draw her to you and make her feel like she’s losing a great man.

When you do that, she starts feeling like it’s okay to forgive you. She starts feeling respect for you again, she starts feeling attracted to you again and she starts opening herself up to the love.

Are You Going to Get Her Back or Find a New Woman?

How do you feel about other women at this point?

If you're like most guys who are trying to get their ex back, other women don't really seem that appealing to you right now. You might have tried to meet other girls, but they just don't make you feel the same way as your ex does. In fact, they probably just make you miss her more.

You really want to get back with your ex, but guess what?

That doesn't actually matter to her. In most cases where I've helped a guy get his ex back, the woman doesn't care about what the guy wants.

When you're talking to her, when you're texting to her and when you're interacting with her in person, it can't be about you trying to get her back and your reasons for wanting her back. What you need to do is trigger feelings inside of her that make her want to get back with you.

So, if you are serious about getting her back, begin watching Get Your Ex Back: Super System now and I'll guide you through the step by step process to make that happen.

Don't get started though if you're not prepared to do what it takes to get her back.

You've got to be prepared to make changes to how you're talking to her, texting her and behaving around her. You've got to make changes and I can explain exactly what you need to change right now to get her on the phone and be willing to meet up with you in person.

Then, at the meet up, you need to say and do things that trigger her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again.

So, my question for you right now is...

Are you prepared to do what it takes to get her back?

If your answer is "Yes" then get started now and I will guide you through the process of getting her back. If your answer is "No" then maybe you need to start thinking about meeting new women, in which case, I recommend that you watch this video...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Refuses to See Me or Answer My Calls

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex refuses to see you or answer your calls, it means that (right now) she doesn't feel good about the idea of interacting with you.

However, no one is ever stuck on one feeling forever. Feelings always change. Your ex's currently negative feelings towards you WILL change.

How quickly you can make her negative feelings for you go away depends on how you interact with her from now on. If your ex is refusing to see you or answer your calls, then it's pretty clear that you aren't making her feel drawn to you or attracted to you.

The approach that you've been using so far has been repelling her and you need to change that.

You need to start making her have SOME feelings for you and she will then open up.

Your ex might be stubborn and try to stick to her decision not to be with you, but as long as you can create a spark of her old feelings for you again, her guard will come down a little whether she wants it or not.

Once her guard is down, you can then guide her back into a relationship with you.

How Long Will it Take For Her to Feel Good About Seeing You or at Least Talking to You Again?

[image: How long will it take for her to open back up to you?]

Based on my experience of helping hundreds of guys to get back with their ex girlfriend, fiancée or wife, I know that an angry woman can calm down and become more open immediately, within a few days or after a couple of weeks.

In most cases, a guy will be able to get his ex girlfriend to agree to meet up with him in person after the first or second phone call. Sometimes, he is able to get her on the phone right away and other times it takes a few days and a couple of specifically worded text messages.

Yet, sometimes a guy has really messed things up with his woman and it can take up to 2-3 months before she feels okay about answering him back. That is rare though. Most guys are able to get their ex on the phone pretty quickly.

As long as you can show her that you have changed rather than trying to tell her that you have, she will naturally start to look at you in a different light and will become more open to you.

When a woman is presented with a new and improved version of her ex, it's only natural for her feelings towards him to change. It's only natural that she will drop her guard and open herself back up to talking to him again.

"But..." you might ask, "What about when my ex refuses to see me or answer my calls? How can I get her back if she won't even talk to me? How can I get her to agree to meet me if she doesn't even answer my texts or phone calls?"

Simple.

You have to change what you are saying when you text her.

Iâve dealt with more than 100 cases where it initially seems like a completely hopeless cause to try to get the girl back, but when the guy follows the advice from my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System he not only gets her back into a relationship, but she becomes more loving and devoted to him than ever before.

I know, it might sound hard to believe âand it is.

Getting an ex back seems like it's almost an impossible thing to do.

I understand that.

When a woman is saying to you, "Never call me again!" it sounds final, but in most cases, it isn't. I've literally helped guys get an ex back when their ex girlfriend or wife has refused to talk to them for weeks prior to using my approach.

Just because she is saying, "Leave me alone!" now, it doesn't mean you can't get her to open back up to you again. As you may know, most women are pretty emotional and dramatic, especially when it comes to break ups. An emotional woman might say something in the heat of the moment and then completely change her mind an hour later.

What you need to understand is thisâ

You can change the way that she feels about you, BUT you have to willing to change some things about yourself first or at least give her the impression that you've changed.

How can you do that? Let's start by looking at how you might be turning her off when you are attempting to contact herâ

Are You Making Any of These Mistakes When Contacting Your Ex?

[image: Huh? Why is he texting me this insecure crap?]

1. Repelling her rather than attracting her.

When she is telling you things like, "Leave me alone," "Give me my space," or "Canât you understand I donât want to be with you anymore?" it's only natural that you might feel annoyed, frustrated or even betrayed by her.

After all, she most likely once told you she loved you and wanted to stay with you for life, or at least gave you that impression. So, how could she be so cold now and turn her back on you?

Yet, that's the last thing you need to be thinking about right now.

No amount of complaining, whining, pleading, begging or arguing is going to get her back. You can't convince her to have feelings for you. You have to make her feel respect, love and attraction for you by the way that you interact with her.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really worksâ

As you will learn from the video above, you need to make her feel attracted and drawn to you by the way that you interact with her.

Unfortunately, most guys never get taught how to attract women as they are growing up and end up getting into relationships that fall apart after the initial lust has faded away.

As a man, you will either go through your life never truly knowing how to make a woman feel attracted to you, or you will learn this stuff and begin enjoying much easier, consistent and natural success with women.

[image: Are you making her feel enough attraction for you?]

When it comes to getting an ex back, many guys further ruin their ex's attraction by sending her endless texts, messages on social media sites or calling her to try and reason with her and find out why she won't talk to them or see them.

I understand why a guy would do that because it sucks to have a girl break up with you, but what you need to realize is that it will never, ever help you to behave in that way.

Women are attracted to the strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity in the way you think, behave and take action in life, etc) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. insecurity, neediness, clingy behavior, etc).

You must stop doing the things that repel and only do things that attract her to you. Doing anything that doesn't attract her is a complete waste of time and energy.

[image: Girlfriend on an annoying call with her long distance boyfriend]

For example, a guy might say, "Please just talk to me. There's unfinished things between us that we need to talk about, I really need to see you so I can explain, I'm sorry, please forgive me and give me another chance" "Why won't you just give me chance to apologize, or" "I love you with all my heart. You are everything to me. Have you forgotten the time you told me that you'd always love me?" etc.

That doesn't make her feel attracted.

If your ex currently hates you, getting endless messages and calls from you will only make her feelings of dislike for you more intense. She will perceive you as being needy, desperate and smothering and she will feel repelled by what she perceives to be your weak state of mind.

The only way she is going to feel open to talking to you and seeing you again is if you make her feel attracted and drawn to you. One of the ways you can do that is by the way you talk to her on the phone.

I know, she is refusing to talk to you on the phone.

That can be fixed though.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I provide tested examples of what to text her so she does get on a phone call with you. If your texts aren't working, then try mine. Mine have been tested and proven to work.

On a phone call, your ex will be able to hear the tone of your voice and hear your confidence and emotional strength (which will attract her to you) and if you suggest it correctly (what to say is provided in my program), she will be curious enough to want to see you in person.

Then, when she sees you in person and suddenly begins to notice qualities and features about yourself that are now way more attractive to her, she will naturally begin to feel more respect for you as a man and she will feel drawn to you.

Yet, that isn't the only weapon you have.

At the meet up, I explain how to use reverse psychology on her to the point where she feels like it would be stupid to fully break up with you and not give the relationship another chance.

Again, I've tested these techniques, so if you want something that is going to work for you when you meet up with her, make sure that you use my approach. If you've made a lot of mistakes with her so far to the point where she refuses to answer your calls or see you, then it's pretty clear that you'll mess up the meet up conversations as well.

I'm here to help you, so get started with my program now if you are ready to take immediate action to get her back.

2. Never truly knowing what really caused her to break up with you.

You have to know the real, true reasons why she has broken up with you. If you don't, you will be promising to change things that she secretly doesn't even care about.

A woman will rarely tell a guy the real reason why she's breaking up with him, because:

1. She doesn't want to hurt his feelings because she knows that a guy may become aggressive or violent.
2. She doesn't want to give a guy too much information to the point where he can talk her out of her decision by promising to change those things or by pretending to have already changed those things.
3. She doesn't want to be his teacher about how to be a man. She wants him to know how to be a man without her guidance or teaching. She doesn't want to take on the role of mother or big sister and give him the education about being a man that he seems to be missing.

For this reason, a woman will usually let a guy down gently by saying things like, "It's not you, it's me," "I just need some space to figure things out by myself," "I think we need time apart, but we may get back together in future" or "I don't feel like I want to be in a relationship right now."

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I explain 70+ reasons why a woman will break up with a man. When you watch that section of the program, you will be shocked when you realize some of the hidden reasons why she may have broken up with you.

Luckily though, most things you can fix pretty quickly or even immediately, BUT you have to be willing to put in a bit of work to make some of them happen. If you aren't willing to do anything or change anything about the way you interact with her, don't bother getting my program.

Get Your Ex Back: Super System is an opportunity for you to rapidly transform and improve yourself as a man. If you aren't willing to do anything to improve yourself and fix any emotional issues you have, then my program isn't for you.

Additionally, if you aren't willing to find out what she really needs you to change (she most-likely hasn't told you the deeper, more fundamental reasons), then she probably won't be willing to give you a chance.

To become back open to talking to you and even seeing you in person, your ex may want you to change certain things about how you communicate with her, interact with her and even how you live your life.

In almost every case that I've dealt with over the years, the woman will never tell her man everything that she wants him to change. She will tell him some things like, "You don't treat me the way I want you to" or "I don't love you the same way anymore," but that doesn't actually tell you what you need to change.

When a guy doesn't know what to really change, he will most-likely annoy her further by promising to change things about himself that she doesn't even care about. When that happens, the woman realizes that he doesn't understand her and probably won't unless she teaches him.

Yet, as mentioned already, a woman doesn't want to do that for her man. She doesn't want to be your teacher in life. She wants you to know how to be a man without her guidance.

She also wants to feel understood by you. She wants you to understand how to be the man she really needs you to be.

To get your ex's love, attraction and respect back, you need to learn the REAL reasons why she broke up with you so that when you next speak to her, you can let her know that you truly understand where you went wrong.

When she hears you talk about those things, it makes her drop her guard and feel more open and even happy to be interacting with you again because you've actually made the effort to see things from her point of view.

3. Promising her that you will change.

When a woman doesn't have much experience with relationships or will find it difficult to find a replacement guy, she will usually accept a guy's promises to change and give him another chance.

However, if your ex won't have much difficulty attracting a new guy or if she's had a bit of experience with relationships, she will know that when a guy promises to change, he rarely even knows how to do so.

If your ex is refusing to see you or answer your calls, this is not the time to be making promises to her. For most women, promises aren't what she needs to hear from you.

What she needs is for you to make her feel differently about you by actually changing the way you interact with her. You've got to be able to make her feel respect and attraction for you on the phone, not pity.

When you contact your ex, you have to be ready to show her that you've fixed your emotional issues (e.g. being clingy, needy, jealous, taking her for granted or neglecting her, etc.) and that you've transformed into the type of man she wished you were all along.

You don't have to fully fix everything and become perfect to get her back. As long as she can see that you've already improved yourself and fixed at least some of the issues that were causing her to feel turned off by you, it will make her drop her guard and become more open to talking to you.

Once you've made the changes, you will be ready to contact her and arrange a meet up. It doesn't matter if she's not taking your calls right now; you can still contact her via a text message or via e-mail to get her to agree to a phone call.

I provide tested examples of how to do that in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System. So, if you're saying, "My ex refuses to see me or answer my calls" it's because you're sending her the wrong type of message.

