

Study suggests that feeling sexually desired by one's partner is more important for men than we think

August 24, 2021 | 80 upvotes | by empatheticapathetic

Crosspost "Study suggests that feeling sexually desired by one's partner is more important for men than we think" from /r/science:

Posted by Alaishana | 24 August 2021 | Link

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

RICEand420 • 28 points • 12 September, 2021 03:58 PM

yikes maybe they should get a hobby

meltbananarama • 21 points • 13 September, 2021 11:19 PM*

Anyone surprised by this (which I'm guessing is a decent number of straight women) is a moron.

EDIT: after reading comments from asexuals it seems a good deal of them are in fact morons

ArgentinianAlpha • 14 points • 9 September, 2021 10:58 AM

Have we ever thought it was unimportant?

studiocel • 10 points • 15 September, 2021 06:04 PM

Study suggests water is wet

WaterIsWetBot • 18 points • 15 September, 2021 06:04 PM

Water is actually not wet; It makes other materials/objects wet. Wetness is the state of a non-liquid when a liquid adheres to, and/or permeates its substance while maintaining chemically distinct structures. So if we say something is wet we mean the liquid is sticking to the object.

[deleted] • 1 point • 23 April, 2022 01:16 PM

Bad bot.

[deleted] 12 October, 2021 01:37 AM

[permanently deleted]

AutoModerator[M] • 1 point • 12 October, 2021 01:37 AM

Sorry UnfalteringTruth_, your submission has been removed from BlackPillScience because your account is new.

I am a bot, and this action was performed automatically. Please contact the moderators of this subreddit if you have any questions or concerns.

Additional_Vanilla31 • 1 point • 22 July, 2022 03:46 AM

Yeah since we get so few compliments so of course we like it when a girl tells us that she likes our style for exemple .