I didn't know FDS wrote a book.

From New Yorker and Onion writer and comedian Blythe Roberson, How to Date Men When You Hate Men is a comedy philosophy book aimed at interrogating what it means to date men within the trappings of modern society.

Congrats, you fell for The Onion.

Yeah, it's just a joke. Maybe patriarchy is just a joke too?

Haha you fell for The Onion.

Did no research, didn't even check Amazon for the dust jacket. Just jumped in headfirst cause it fed your narrative.

I'd love to get your thoughts on the following questions:

Do you believe the feminist movement contains a misandrist element?

Can equal rights ever be achieved by the feminist movement given the undercurrent of posts that they are generating?

Why is it a gender so held back by sexism appears to be so keen to continue it's practice?

Not trying to be a smart Alec here, just interested given you're the only female who even engages with the sub, where your thoughts are? I applaud you for at least even posting here and showing up. I honestly do.

You don't engage in good faith so I won't engage with you.

and that's pretty much feminism in a nut shell.

"We want equal rights, that's what feminism is"

"You know, there's a lot of hate, bigotry, sexism and misandry in the feminist movement"

SILENCE

That's straight from the autoban message. Dude literally fell for the onion, but if you think FDS is engaging in good faith... whoa

Was absolutely aware it was an Onion book, the point is, how is that as a title even acceptable? As I said, whether it's a joke or not is unimportant: sexism is offensive irrespective of whether it's misandric or misogynistic

Keep it □: why are you here?

Every post you make is outright, needlessly antagonistic, and a cursory look at your post history heavily implies you are not here for honest debate or good faith discussion.

So... why? Time is something no one has enough of, and you spend it here? Somewhere you clearly disagree with ideologically?

I welcome anyone posting here and adding to the discussion/ /u/starspider is absolutely welcome here and I'm very interested to hear her opinions.

We can't turn into TwoX / Feminism or any of the other hate subs who bans anyone who doesn't agree with the echo chamber. It should be a free area welcoming of everyone who wants to end sexism and promote equal rights for men and women. Women's rights are an integral part of that.

There is offering honest critique and observations, and there is shitposting like its a chan site.

To wit, that is why I didnt call on the mods to ban them, or anything of the sort. I question anyone who believes their time is well spent making disingenuous statements on the internet.

No, not everyone's word or opinion actually has value, especially when it is off topic or actively detracts from the discussion.
