Teen calls 911 when bouncer confiscates her fake ID, gets hit with a felony charge

BY BRIAN NIEMIETZ
8 FEBRUARY 2021 • 1-MIN READ

An 18-year-old woman was arrested after she called police to complain that a bouncer at a bar had confiscated her fake ID.

Blakelee Sands — or “McKamie Queen,” according to her driver’s license — became

Do you want to go to WAR, Buh-LAH-kuh-lee? 'Cause we COULD go to war.

felixthecat128 • 7 points • 16 February, 2021 08:28 PM

Broccoli?

goboks • 56 points • 16 February, 2021 03:49 PM

Srsly, if I was a bouncer, an ID that said Blakelee would be hellas sus.

TheUltimateSalesman • 11 points • 16 February, 2021 04:46 PM

I think it's pronounced Blah-Kelly with the emphasis on the second syllable.

a_leash_on_a_sloth • 19 points • 16 February, 2021 05:15 PM

Kinda like if The Count mispronounces broccoli?

BluetoothMcGee • 13 points • 16 February, 2021 06:18 PM

Incorrect. It's pronounced "buh-lah-ke-lay".

I've taught in inner city schools for over 15 years. Trust me on this.

In pittsburgh, I'm not joking, there were two students.

Or-ahngh-illow and Luh-mahngh-illow. Spelled differently. Orange Jello and Lemon Jello.

potandcoffee • 9 points • 16 February, 2021 06:13 PM

That is a very stupid name and it makes me hate her parents a little bit, tbh. No wonder she's a moron.

Flakey_flakes • 6 points • 16 February, 2021 07:53 PM

She might not be a moron. It just might only be the first time she didn't get to do whatever the hell she wants. "No???? what do you mean....No?"

[deleted] • 2 points • 19 February, 2021 02:04 PM

She might not be a moron.

She called the cops to incriminate herself for forgery. She's a moron.

Why. Why Blakelee? Just name her Blake FFS

TheFr1nk • 207 points • 16 February, 2021 11:15 AM

It was either that or Mohammed yaboifiretruck • 98 points • 16 February, 2021 11:52 AM

Went to a bar with my Bolivian friend who had an Indian ID. The first name was Upinder and the last name was some kinda spelling like kahr. The first time we tried to use it with her, we were terrified that anybody would ever believe 'up in da car' was a real name. It worked flawlessly everywhere we ever used it and she was never questioned.

indianshitsRtheworst • 11 points • 16 February, 2021 05:03 PM

Last name was probably "Kaur" it's a common name in north India (Punjab) and Upinder also sounds Punjabi, I would believe it. We got some wild ass names lol

DirteeBoo • 3 points • 16 February, 2021 05:06 PM

Thank you for the info, my understanding may have been very simple lol. But we are also talking about 15 plus years ago so I definitely forgot the spelling.

In high school our house was known for the parties my sister and I threw when my parents were out of town. I had grown people I had never met approach me about them. It was wild.

TimAllensBoytoy • 21 points • 16 February, 2021 01:55 PM*

For a graduation party I got really messed up, we ended up leaving because guns were being pulled and "gangs" were getting heated. On the way out we hit a road block, we get asked to pull over so we do.

My friend was driving, some other guy was in the passenger seat (21+ yo), and I was in the back. My friend and I ended up getting arrested for minor possession of alcohol, meanwhile the other guy was able to leave. While all this is happening a bunch of people from the same party are just breezing through the road block.

Edit: just for clarification we did not have any alcohol in the vehicle if we did the 21+ yo would have had ownership of it, the minor possession was for being drunk, not sure how it works but the charge was dropped.

Cerg1998 • 29 points • 16 February, 2021 02:07 PM

Being allowed to drive, but being arrested for having booze in the car. US is funny.

TimAllensBoytoy • 10 points • 16 February, 2021 05:23 PM

I forgot to mention, there was no alcohol in the car. I got arrested for being drunk as a minor more or less, not sure how it works but it didn't really matter as it got dropped.

Cerg1998 • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 10:39 PM

That makes more sense, thanks.

xplosm • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 03:21 PM

It's easy to buy guns. It's easier to buy ammo. But try to buy alcohol or even a joint and all hell breaks loose...

goboks • 11 points • 16 February, 2021 03:56 PM

You've never bought a gun clearly.

MikeLinPA • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 06:00 PM

He didn't say buy it legally.

goboks • 5 points • 16 February, 2021 06:20 PM

I mean it's pretty easy to buy beer and weed illegally. Easier than a gun. There aren't dealers in every city park holding inventory like weed, and you can't just sit outside a convenience store and pay off the first red neck you see for beer.

TimAllensBoytoy • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 05:24 PM

It is easy to buy guns depending on how you buy them, private sales are instantaneous

goboks • 5 points • 16 February, 2021 05:34 PM

So are private sales of booze and weed.

TimAllensBoytoy • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 05:36 PM

But its only bad because the poor government can't get their tax from something that may or may not have happened

19Jacoby98 • 0 points • 16 February, 2021 04:22 PM*

I haven't, but I know the steps to take. Far more [steps to purchasing firearms] than just alcohol or weed.

Edit: I am agreeing with person above me. Added brackets for clarity.

danraw_uk • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 05:06 PM

You need a background check to buy beer?

goboks • 4 points • 16 February, 2021 05:35 PM

Nihilistic_Creation • 0 points • 16 February, 2021 04:56 PM

WolfShaman • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 09:44 PM

Are you serious? You think that's the law everywhere? The US is a huge place, with many different laws in many different areas.

There are places where open containers of alcohol is perfectly fine, and others where containers have to be sealed.

What's funny is when people automatically think everywhere in the US is the same.

Cerg1998 • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 10:37 PM

Were have I said "oh the whole US is the same", cant seem ro find it, maybe you know, 'case I didn't.

albino_acorn • 4 points • 16 February, 2021 03:05 PM

i think the real problem in this story is that a bunch of intoxicated teens were carrying guns

smokeitindohomie • 8 points • 16 February, 2021 03:18 PM

I can't believe you guys have to hide to party in your teens or you risk getting felonies... This is utterly ridiculous imo

iWasAwesome • 12 points • 16 February, 2021 05:31 PM*

That's not true. Getting caught drinking underage is not a felony. My friends and I (all underage) were caught drinking a beer while walking down the sidewalk by an officer. He made us dump it out and throw the bottle out. Then he left. The girl in the article commuted a felony by being in procession of a fraudulent government I.D

Also, where I live, even if you are underage, you are allowed to drink on your own property with parental supervision. Now if the parents are getting every kid in the neighbourhood wasted, that might be a different story...

smokeitindohomie • 3 points • 16 February, 2021 05:48 PM

Ahhh, thanks for clearing it up. I'm obviously not from the USA and thought it was ridiculous. Same here basically, our legal age is 18 but we got caught multiple times between 13-17 drinking in parks but we never got arrested for it, cops just dump em out and go on their way.

I_Guess_Im_The_Gay • 3 points • 16 February, 2021 08:07 PM

Depends on where you are from.

16 year olds caught with minor drugs or booze can absolutely be charged heavily. I know from experience.

iWasAwesome • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 05:51 PM

I'm also not from the US lol □□□□□ but what I said applies to the US as well (I think)

ColdHooves • 6 points • 16 February, 2021 03:09 PM

Some places allow minors to drink on their land with parental oversight.

Soup-Wizard • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 04:16 PM

That's not the point though. I mean I don't even like going to clubs, but for the people that do, I'm pretty sure the "getting drunk with friends" isn't the point. It's the getting dressed up and going out on the town, meeting new guys, etc.

Or don't be train wreck teenagers that jump all over intoxicants as soon as they become a thing in your world view?

If we educated teens properly and gave them the emotional / psychological support to understand why they always feel so trapped yet lost yet crowded yet alone, they might not become so dependant on the shit and instead choose to do something ABOUT IT, unlike all our previous generations.

EDIT: Sure downvote me because you want everyone to continue to be as confused and miserable as you are, which by the way is exactly why we warp reality with alcohol/drugs to escape it.

ForeverRollingOnes • 24 points • 16 February, 2021 01:09 PM

You're assuming they're just getting drunk because of emotional troubles, and that none of them are doing it for fun.

RichardInaTreeFort • -1 points • 16 February, 2021 01:23 PM

BloodprinceOZ • 5 points • 16 February, 2021 02:41 PM people don't always do drugs or alcohol to get away from their problems, especially as a teen/young adult, sometimes they just want to get smashed so they can have fun, i mean people don't usually do LSD or weed just because they've got problems, sometimes you just want to get high or something to experience it rather than getting away from something.

the only time you could say for sure that someone is drinking or getting high to escape is generally when they get super addicted, because then they either want to dull their feelings or are chasing a high that made them forget, but not with general use

An 18-year-old woman was arrested after she called police to complain that a bouncer at a bar had confiscated her fake ID.

Blakelee Sands — or “McKamie Queen,” according to her driver’s license — became upset when a bouncer at a bar outside Oklahoma City took the identification she’d tried using at the establishment last week, The Smoking Gun reports.

She then doubled-down on her bluff and called 911. When police arrived and checked out the phony ID, they discovered the driver’s license number on Sands’ identification card was registered to a 43-year-old man who lives in Texas.

Video posted to Tulsa, Okla., station KOTV shows police in the town of Edmond standing with Sands outside the Wolf Trap bar asking if the ID is a fake.

“No,” she answers, adding “Yeah, I’m sure,” when asked if she’s positive the ID is authentic.

Sands was arrested for using false identification to mislead a peace officer, which is a felony. A police department spokeswoman said that had Sands just cut her losses and left the ID at the bar, there would have been no charges.

Moxdonalds • 22 points • 16 February, 2021 12:52 PM

The US drinking laws are archaic.

SavvySillybug • 116 points • 16 February, 2021 11:56 AM

As a German, agreed. I've been able to legally drink beer and wine since 16 and everything else since 18. Kids are going to do it anyway, why criminalize it? Why is 18 the legal barrier for everything ever except sipping a beer?

NoctuaPavor • 35 points • 16 February, 2021 01:46 PM

They raised the federal smoking age to 21 in 2019 also. And weed is 21. Everything is 21 now in the US

Except the military of course

MxCmrn • 38 points • 16 February, 2021 12:19 PM

As a American I totally agree. IME it just encourages bad decisions, like excessive drinking.

TheGruesomeTwosome • 26 points • 16 February, 2021 01:18 PM

Man, as a first year university student and a very international uni, and as an RA working in first year accommodation for 4 years after, the insanity of 18 year old Americans coming here and experiencing their first pre-drinks then club night is ridiculous. Many are KO'd before they even leave the building.

All the Scottish natives have been drinking at least a little from at least like 16. I got al that shit outta my system at 15. In a serious way. I still fuck up occasionally like anyone else

MxCmrn • 6 points • 16 February, 2021 01:59 PM

Thanatos2996 • 3 points • 16 February, 2021 06:10 PM

It was that way in many states pre-NMDAA. In Colorado (IIRC) you could buy 3.2 ABV beer at 18, and everything else at 21. There were even "3.2 bars" around colleges that only stocked 3.2 beer for that clientele.

[deleted] • 16 points • 16 February, 2021 12:23 PM

It's 19 here in Canada. I think it should be brought down to 18 anyways. It's so stupid. You can do porn at 18, join the military and vote but you can't drink or smoke some weed till you're 21 in America? So stupid.

Jumpierwolf0960 • 9 points • 16 February, 2021 01:08 PM

The logic I've seen used for 19 is that most kids graduate at 18 and you won't find many 19 year olds in a high school. So it's to prevent high schoolers from getting access to it.

[deleted] • 6 points • 16 February, 2021 01:10 PM

Makes sense I guess. But at least it's only 19 and not 21 like America. If I went there today then I wouldn't be allowed to enter a bar.

HalfChocolateCow • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 02:44 PM

And tobacco is 21 in America now too for the same "keep it out of schools" reason.

[deleted] • 0 points • 16 February, 2021 07:54 PM

I've got nothing against guns but it's ridiculous that you can own a pistol at 18 but you can't drink or smoke. Such dumb and outdated rules.

HalfChocolateCow • 3 points • 16 February, 2021 08:21 PM

You actually can't buy a handgun until 21 unless it's through a private seller, and then you still can't get a concealed carry permit until 21. My buddy bought his .45 at 17 (well, his dad bought it), and when he turned 18 he "bought" it from his dad and transferred it to his name. So still not impossible to buy a handgun but you can't just walk into a store and get one like you could a rifle. I agree, the whole you're an adult at 18 but you can't make your own decisions thing is dumb.

Im-a-bench-AMA • 0 points • 16 February, 2021 09:07 PM

SavvySillybug • 5 points • 16 February, 2021 01:05 PM

Christ: This wine is my blood you need to sip it

Christians: Alcohol is evil

HalfChocolateCow • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 02:51 PM

It's not Christians as a whole though. My grandparents are conservative Lutherans, yet their children were allowed to sip wine in their early teens and drink for real not long after. Even my other grandparents, who are catholics have never had a problem with alcohol. Most Christians seem to draw the line at getting drunk rather than just drinking, as that's where it's drawn in the bible.

Travenzen • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 05:53 PM

I don't know the whole story, but a lot more drunk driving deaths occurred when the drinking age was 18 they couldn't really justified keeping it that low cosworth99 • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 06:25 PM

It's not criminalised. Using a fake ID is.

Also, as a German, I'd like your opinion on who is more responsible: A german 18 year old or an American 18 year old? Don't wait for the translation!

zackplanet42 • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 07:01 PM

The drinking age in many US states was actually 18 not terribly long ago. There were however increasingly worse drunk driving statistics that drove the increase to 21. I don't know that I agree with it as a decision but it did drive down teenage automobile related deaths which is certainly a positive result.

Fake_Dick • 5 points • 16 February, 2021 12:18 PM

Playing devil's advocate here, I'm not sure "kids are going to do it anyway" is necessarily a great justification for changing a federal law. Just a thought!

mechesh • 16 points • 16 February, 2021 12:40 PM

It's not a federal law. It is state law. The federal government does not have the constitutional authority to create a drinking age.

In 1984 the fed passed a law reducing federal highway funding for any state that didnt raise the age to 21, so eventually all states did.

TreeChangeMe • 11 points • 16 February, 2021 01:06 PM

Thanatos2996 • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 06:12 PM

Isiunl • -7 points • 16 February, 2021 12:43 PM

Drinking alcohol is bad for you so removing that law would only entice more people. That's the point of the law is to provide preventative measures to an issue we've been having is people underage drinking alcohol. It's also to prevent overuse of alcohol on an underdeveloped brain. Bringing the age down to 18 makes more kids want to drink when they are 16 opposed to 21 and 19 which that 3 year difference is pretty huge.

Alcoholism is no joke and getting it early age is something that's trying to be prevented.

i-am-a-passenger • 3 points • 16 February, 2021 12:53 PM

It's a fair point, and it would be interesting to see some data on the levels of underage drinking in the USA versus other countries. One issue with making it difficult for people to access alcohol however, is that people are more likely to try out illegal drugs as these are far easier to gain access to. So it may just lead people to more addictive substances.

Home--Builder • 3 points • 16 February, 2021 01:27 PM

This line of thinking has a major flaw in the fact that when you "outlaw" something for a group of rebellious teens you have now put a luster on whatever is banned. If it's "banned" it's now cool and now you have more teens interested than if it were legal and boring. I sure as hell already wanted to drink when I was 16, drinking age could have been 75 for all I cared.

SavvySillybug • 9 points • 16 February, 2021 01:02 PM

Making alcohol illegal does not prevent alcohol use. Humans love getting drunk, and no amount of prohibition will change that.

Normalizing alcohol means safer consumption of alcohol. Doing something illegal is exciting, doing something normal is just something you can choose to do. The German law allows beer and wine at 16 so you can drink socially, which is a big part of German culture. Having two years of experience with beer means you know how to drink alcohol when vodka is unlocked.

Alcoholism is not a symptom of alcohol use, alcoholism is a symptom of other issues, it's self medication. Ask me how I know, I was an alcoholic for ten years to try to endure all the bullshit my parents were hitting me with. I was not an alcoholic simply because beer existed and was legal.

Removing the law would entice more people to drink safely and less people to overuse it. Be 16 years old in Germany in a social setting and your parents will let you drink some beer while watching over you. Be 16 years old in America and you go to some shitty house party where everybody is trying to get blackout drunk with no supervision. Hooray, laws!

If outlawing things fixed them, you could just outlaw alcoholism! But it doesn't work like that. You need laws that make sense, laws that don't outlaw things just because you disagree with them personally.

Isiunl • -2 points • 16 February, 2021 01:24 PM

This is more of a cultural issue in my opinion. I don't think Americans are smart enough to not abuse alcohol, it's just adding more to glaring issues our system hasn't tackled properly. I disagree that breaking the law is exciting and many would agree. But that's great that Germany handles it well but I still don't think allowing a 16 year old to make those decisions is a good thing. There are countries like Japan that have a legal drinking age of 20 and they don't face many issues.

Someone as young as 16 can often times make horrible decisions and adding alcohol to the mix is just bad. Just because it's a tradition doesn't make it acceptable that 30,000 kids get hospitalized a year from alcohol poisoning in Germany.

SavvySillybug • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 01:52 PM

doesn't make it acceptable that 30,000 kids get hospitalized a year from alcohol poisoning in Germany.

maybeitsdoomed • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 03:56 PM

I agree with what you're saying but we are not talking about kids, we are talking about adults.

DJThomas07 • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 10:18 PM

You sound like someone who is still young. As a 31 year old, I wasn't really an adult until 25. Coincidentally, that's also the age we stop growing I believe.

maybeitsdoomed • 3 points • 16 February, 2021 11:04 PM

No I get it. I'm also 31 and I feel like I shouldn't make decisions sometimes. But the point is that we have defined being 18 years old as being adults. 18 year olds are legally adults, and should have the same freedom every other adult has. You can argue that some people are not ready for adulthood, and that's a different discussion because we cant judge people based on how developed they are after becoming adults, we all have the same rights.

I think some people shouldn't vote because they can't comprehend elections and can't think for themselves,. But I would never try to take away their right to vote just because they don't meet my qualifying expectations. If you're an adult you're an adult.

Case and point: every time a bouncer just confiscates a fake ID instead of letting them take a felony.

Is it a felony to have a fake ID?

imnotwearingany • 28 points • 16 February, 2021 12:46 PM

She completely shot herself in the leg. Had she just accepted the loss and left, she'd have slept in her own bed that night. Bars are only required to confiscate fake ID's. They're not required to report them.

jarinatorman • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 09:22 PM

Generally in the US (everything that follows assumes you are white and police in your area aren't completely corrupt dickheads) this kind of light community policing is smiled upon by the local police. Maybe not outright encouraged but this kind of 'you've committed a small crime were confiscating X illegal item, never come back or we contact the police' interaction is an important part of learning the difference between being a dumb kid and committing real crime. We can't rely on the criminal justice system to do that since it's hilariously unjust so in these smaller instances it seems relatively common to just take the id and tell the kid to fuck off with their bullshit and if they don't there will be real consequences.

The unbelievable part of the story is this girl basically got a candy coated free pass that many youths sitting in prison right now would literally kill for and she's SO FUCKING ENTITLED that she doubled down; while in the wrong, because she assumed she could manipulate the police when they arrived, because she's a manipulative little shit that apparently needed this slap down. Hopefully she learns from it.

averagedude4 • 3 points • 16 February, 2021 04:21 PM

channel4newsman • 23 points • 16 February, 2021 03:25 PM*

Using a fake ID is definitely a dumb teenager thing. Having your fake ID get confiscated, then calling the cops, and lying to them because you thought you could get away with it is totally different. The amount of audacity and entitlement it takes to make those mistakes is mind blowing to me. And her not suffering serious consequences for this only enables that incredibly terrible behavior. This goes past the line of dumb teenager shit and goes into the area of actual criminal shit. I personally hope they throw the book at her. I've known so many people who have had fake Id's taken from them and not a single one was ever entitled enough to call the cops on the establishment.

Edit: Also the felony was for using a fake ID to mislead police officers. Which wouldn't have happened if she didn't call the cops in the first place. So yeah, I hope she pays the price for that stupidity.

Uxt7 • 0 points • 16 February, 2021 03:43 PM

Yeah, it's unfortunate that drinking was such a priority that it was worth it for her to call the police and lie to them. Very sympathetic to that cause.

On reddit, the only penalty is death.

lxnch50 • 26 points • 16 February, 2021 02:18 PM

Fake ID use isn't a joke ever since 9/11. Also, the bar was probably just going to toss it into a pile of fakes and laugh about it. She did it to herself by calling 911.

amazingoomoo • -6 points • 16 February, 2021 03:55 PM

So is it a joke or not?

TruthPlenty • 14 points • 16 February, 2021 02:55 PM

No, she got a felony charge for trying to mislead an officer. They asked her if the ID was legitimate and she said yes.

WildBizzy • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 10:31 PM

Still not worth ruining a teenagers life over

[deleted] • -4 points • 16 February, 2021 03:59 PM

Lying is constitutionally protected speech

Lying to police officers or federal agents is a crime

As a free speech absolutist I would LOVE to see this get pounded all the way up to the Supreme Court to overturn bs laws saying you can't lie.

First of all the felony charge for lying is bullshit, and the lying shouldn't be a crime either!

mongoosefist • 6 points • 16 February, 2021 04:02 PM

Not only that, but if a police officer lies to you they're also protected by the law.

[deleted] • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 04:04 PM

Which is also a bullshit double standard. Rules for thee...

CKOiLkTTiQIJ • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 06:09 PM

"We the people" my foot!

TruthPlenty • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 04:26 PM

Lying about your identity isn't protected speech dude.

[deleted] • -1 points • 16 February, 2021 04:30 PM

and I'm saying it should be protected speech, and shouldn't be a crime

Because it's no ones fucking business who I am unless I want you to know.

TruthPlenty • 2 points • 16 February, 2021 04:31 PM

It's very important that law enforcement be able to identify you easily, sorry you think otherwise.

There's not a single good reason being able to lie to an officer should be protected speech.

[deleted] • -3 points • 16 February, 2021 05:47 PM

Keep licking that boot

TruthPlenty • 0 points • 16 February, 2021 06:04 PM

No, I just understand that freedom of speech doesn't also mean freedom from repercussions. Which is exactly what you free speech idiots don't comprehend.

You've always been free to lie to the police, there's just consequences for doing so.

UnrealDwarf434 • 3 points • 16 February, 2021 06:25 PM

You realize that that adage means consequences from your peers, not the government right? If you receive consequences from the government for saying something it's not free speech. I'm not really on your side or the other guy's, but lying to police can be justified as well. If I'm committing a nonviolent crime and I fear for my life since the police in this country are freaks, I think I would be justified in trying to lie my way out of it.

TruthPlenty • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 06:34 PM

The consequence will be her pleading her case to a jury. And not everything is protected either, that's the part most people don't understand. Lying is one of the things that aren't protected.

Lying in that case is absolutely not justified and you would also suffer the consequences for that as well.

ChigahogieMan • 0 points • 17 February, 2021 01:52 PM

Holy fucking shit you're dense. Identification is extremely important for a number of reasons. Concealing it is one thing. But lying about it? No. Not tolerable. This opens the door to pretending to be a legal gun owner, to pretending to be a legal resident. To pretending to be someone else. You name it. You most definitely should not be able to lie about facets of your identification that have reference to law, ie drinking age / renting age / age of firearms carry

Making a false statement to a federal agent [...] even if you made it during an informal questioning, you can still be charged.

<https://blogs.findlaw.com/blotter/2016/12/what-are-the-penalties-for-lying-to-a-cop.html>

If there is an ongoing investigation and you are questioned, lying to officers could result in an obstruction of justice charge this is a very widely interpreted and used law that they can and will nail you on.

Owning firearms is the least of your concerns.

Having a felony on your record completely bars you from many forms of government employment, and makes it nearly impossible to enter most professional careers or higher learning.

A teenager in my region committed suicide after being charged with a felony, as it lost him the military career he'd dreamed of for years.

NO_FIX_AUTOCORRECT • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 08:30 PM

Idk, i think teenagers that commit felonies should be charged for them. There's nuance in law though, a judge can decide if she should be fully penalized for this.

The warning was the bar taking it away. She decided to call the police to get her fake id back.

She decided to waste police resources and then lie to them that the ID was legitimate. If she didn't lie to the police that it was legitimate she wouldn't be in this situation.

Context matters.

TruthPlenty • 5 points • 16 February, 2021 03:37 PM

She then doubled-down on her bluff and called 911. When police arrived and checked out the phony ID, they discovered the driver's license number on Sands' identification card was registered to a 43-year-old man who lives in Texas.

Video posted to Tulsa, Okla., station KOTV shows police in the town of Edmond standing with Sands outside the Wolf Trap bar asking if the ID is a fake.

“No,” she answers, adding “Yeah, I’m sure,” when asked if she’s positive the ID is authentic.

Don’t lie to officers. This is on her.

Laws are weird sometimes. Like an 18 year old in America can sign up to be shot at in war but a drink is too dangerous. They could be getting deployed in a week and still technically be charged if they try taking a shot of rum but a bullet or bombs are fine.

MxCmrn • 4 points • 16 February, 2021 12:22 PM

Iamlegend_future • 0 points • 16 February, 2021 01:33 PM

I guess saying signing up makes it sound like a choice. I was referring to selective service. Which males have to do at 18 but can't have a drink for another 3 years. If you are legally an adult then you should be free to do anything an adult can do.

No. It's a sub for women using their "pussy pass". It's about women using their gender as an entitlement and getting denied. This isn't that. Go away little incel.

Edit: for the dick who deleted his comment after posting it Again. One more time for the fucking morons not listening or understanding. I will say it again.

Being entitled for any reason is not a reason to post on this sub. The entitlement has to come from having a pussy hence the name.

I cannot spell this out any more simply for you. It's like talking to a wall.

I will try again anyway.

Woman use vagina to get away with things. Woman caught. Post it here.

Woman use wealth/employment/relatives to get away with things. Woman caught. Don't post it here.

If in the article the woman claimed she should be allowed in anyway because she's a woman that's her using her pussy pass.

If the woman tried to use a fake ID and was arrested, that's not her using a pussy pass, that's her using a fake ID... it's literally in the title.

It hurts having to lower myself to your level of intellect to try and explain usually simple concepts. I can't do it any more, my brain has started to turn to sludge and run out of my nose.

Bobthegoose • 7 points • 16 February, 2021 04:06 PM

She wasn't charged with a felony for under-age drinking. She had her ID confiscated and was let go. She then calls the cops and lies to them saying the ID is real. The felony is for the fake ID, for which she was given multiple chances to be let go.

I mean the sub's name is r/pussypassdenied not r/penissypassdenied. What did you expect?

Yurishirox • 0 points • 16 February, 2021 04:44 PM

Great comment, thank you for your intellectual insight.

ogrelin • -1 points • 16 February, 2021 01:28 PM

Bimbo: I'm calling the cops!

Bouncer: oh no, you will?

BigDaftBastard8 • -1 points • 16 February, 2021 02:02 PM

Stupid...stupid...stupid blonde.

Anthaeopraxia • -1 points • 16 February, 2021 02:04 PM

If she's 18 why would she use a fake ID?

jayrady • 5 points • 16 February, 2021 02:09 PM

The audacity of this bitch...

Machine-Icy • -2 points • 16 February, 2021 03:53 PM

The bouncer was probably a minority

ZeroProz • -6 points • 16 February, 2021 02:14 PM

Isn't this article illegal since she's a minor?

HalfChocolateCow • 9 points • 16 February, 2021 03:08 PM

18 isn't a minor.

clique34 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 01:28 PM

What a moron

ButterAndPaint • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 01:38 PM

If you have such an easily Googlable name that no one else has, maybe don't get arrested for dumb shit.

dr197 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 01:42 PM

Is it common for bouncers to take IDs they suspect are fake? I thought places just turned them away without confiscating on the off chance it's actually a real ID so they don't catch hell for taking it.

willfordbrimly • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 01:57 PM

I thought "Blake" was the most WASPy name ever, but then "Blakelee" just runs up and blindsides me like this.

ynwace96 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 02:00 PM

Not pussypass?

Theycallmechingon87 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 02:01 PM

Hahahaha both sound like stripper names though!

sieberde • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 02:07 PM

I wanted to write something in the line of " You wouldn't need a cake ID in europe because you'd have all the rights at the age of 18" but her actions make me question if that should be.

[deleted] • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 02:20 PM

HereForTheComments86 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 03:11 PM

2 last names? Bitch don't you realize mord people have 2 FIRST names? Her shit coulda said Larry David and I'd buy it. Shit, if a black chick had that name I wouldn't question it.

meronparker • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 03:11 PM

Well that was stupid on her part.

JamPantstheFif • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 03:18 PM

AllieFalcon07 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 03:24 PM

Multiple levels of pure stupid right here.

UbiquitousWobbegong • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 03:31 PM

Man, I really hope that doesn't stick. Can you imagine being convicted of a felony for something so minor? This is just stupid kid shit that everyone does to some extent.

Felony charges are no joke.

How you manage to use a reverse uno card on yourself?

TipMeinBATtokens • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 03:50 PM

I had someone try to tell me my real I.D. was fake and refuse to sell to me for it. So I called their bluff and told them to either call the cops like they were supposed to do or call their manager.

The manager took one look at my very real I.D. and pulled her aside to have a discussion with. Her issue was it showed my height in inches instead of feet and inches on the military I.D.

She actually said, "This says you're 70 feet tall!"

It said inches that dumb bitch.

-Listening • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 04:08 PM

It's because you're supposed to let her win or something?

grizzlyblake91 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 04:11 PM

Of course my hometown makes national news...for something so idiotic and stupid. Stay classy, Edmond.

shamblam117 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 04:23 PM

Loved taking fake IDs as a bouncer. Legally I wasn't supposed to, but not a single person called the cops when I told them to do so.

02201970a • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 04:23 PM

Someone thinks she is above the law. Well thought she was above the law.

dababyyy_ • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 04:41 PM

if she ain't stupid

armitageskanks69 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 04:53 PM

Her real name and fake name are literally as unbelievable as each other

Huko • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 04:57 PM

Everyone is instructed to keep fake licenses etc. Even your cashier at Walmart will take it and not give it back

Living_Shadows • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 05:06 PM

This doesn't really belong in this sub.

McLovin

highwayrobberyman • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 05:34 PM

A felony charge? What would the charge be? And why so severe?

Roadrunner571 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 06:00 PM

In which shithole country people get arrested for showing a fake ID to a bouncer?

ReallyCouldBeAnybody • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 06:01 PM getting ur fake confiscated is infuriating because you're ABOUT to have a good time and suddenly you're powerless and embarrassed

EdgHG • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 06:04 PM

This reminds of an episode of Cops that I saw long ago where a woman called the cops because she was not given the crack that she paid a drug dealer for.

Twink4Jesus • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 06:12 PM

How are people this dumb?

ramsey17 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 06:16 PM

Many years ago went to bar with my brother and his then future wife. She was a hair dresser at the time and changed her often. Anyway the bouncer took her id and was going to let us in. It was her actual id. My brother went to the two cops standing out front of the bar who refused to do anything about it. As my brother walked away he called them dicks. They arrested him for drunk and disorderly. He had 3 beer and was a little buzzed only. My dad and him along with Now sister in-law went to the bar the next day to get the id they "lost it" cops still wouldn't do anything hamishjoy • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 06:37 PM

"Yes, officer. This is the guy who was impeding my attempt to break the law. I'd recognize him anywhere."

pavlovslog • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 06:47 PM

Why am I not surprised "Blakelee" actually thought she could call the cops for this lol.

Illusion740 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 07:05 PM

I'll sell it back to you for $100

Antiqas86 • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 07:15 PM

It's justice served, but not pussypass denied.

Put_It_All_On_Blck • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 07:15 PM

Glad she is getting charged but I don't think this situation exact situation should give her a felony charge regardless of gender. Hope she is offered a plea deal for a misdemeanor and community service.

Krogg • 1 point • 16 February, 2021 07:44 PM

I worked as a bouncer at a local downtown club for a while years ago and those at the door would get shit like this all the time. We were paid $10 per ID to keep fake IDs. We would constantly get yelled at to give it back to them and each time we would tell them:

"There's an officer right over there. Go get him and when they verify this ID as being real, we will give it to you."

Officers routinely stood close because of city hall being so close, DUI arrests being popular there, and to keep the peace. Out of the 14 months I worked there, I had 1 person actually go get an officer and that was the only time, that I know of, that the ID I thought was fake, ended up being real.
