Words that fall into deaf ears, scattered by the winds of time.

They will never listen, learn or understand the truth behind these words.

Like with almost anything else, you see the problems that you avoided your whole life in front of you only when it's too late do do anything about them.

Yggdrasill4 • 142 points • 18 September, 2021 03:01 PM

It is almost comical seeing this trend of late age realization these women have from the choices they made in the past, and then you look at the younger generation of girls making all the same mistakes. Such an idiotic cycle to behold.

DaMeteor • 73 points • 18 September, 2021 09:51 PM

It's straight up not even funny, it's just insanely sad. This post made me want to cry.

Kardis_J • 45 points • 18 September, 2021 10:03 PM

I'm with you on that. This is just sad.

MMAjambo • 16 points • 19 September, 2021 11:25 AM

Well when she was young she probably never gave her looks match a chance and only dated guys way above her, who in turn pump and dump ransay3277 • 7 points • 19 September, 2021 03:42 PM

Agreed. Very sad to see a person with such personal demons.

I_actually_prefer_ • 21 points • 19 September, 2021 07:02 AM

Additionally she seems to be on disability. Zero % chance same ailments would allow a man to get disability and sit around playing games

Bob_and_Virginia • 15 points • 18 September, 2021 11:24 PM

Such an idiotic cycle to behold.

I had trouble accepting this at first, but it must be biology. Surely no human could be that stupid?

xain1112 • 50 points • 19 September, 2021 12:23 AM

You've clearly never been a teacher or worked in retail. I can assure you that the average human is very, very stupid.

Newbosterone • 16 points • 19 September, 2021 06:12 PM

To quote George Carlin, "You know how dumb the average person is? Well, half the people are even dumber!" mclusk3y • 9 points • 19 September, 2021 06:14 AM

I concur

xineNOLA • 1 point • 6 October, 2021 10:07 PM

They truly are! I worked in a public school for only a year, because it was so depressing how incredibly stupid the majority of people are.

princessyungbunny • 9 points • 19 September, 2021 03:14 PM

It's not a cycle of stupid. It's a cycle of narcissism where she can't critically look at her actions.

WalnutManTrader • 1 point • 24 September, 2021 06:59 PM

All young women should read that post... but knowing this generation it wouldn't change anything

braucifur • 1 point • 28 September, 2021 03:31 PM

The difference is older men will try to coach and inform younger men. This largely doesn't happen with females. It's almost as if because they made shit choices in life they want younger women to bear the same burden and have the same outcome. That's the difference between males & females.

mustangfrank • 64 points • 18 September, 2021 03:22 PM

Like with almost anything else, you see the problems that you avoided your whole life in front of you only when it's too late do do anything about them.

And she was not 1% responsible of any of it.

This man keeps repeating but they never pay heed. What applies to men is the same for women. Chasing happiness as sold in materialist stuff and experience can seldom match or compensate what one is losing out by choosing degeneracy.

lurkerhasarisen • 77 points • 18 September, 2021 05:11 PM

choosing degeneracy

Note that she was married for eight months and has multiple children. It would be easy to miss that little detail. Not only did she not manage to stay married even for a year, but unless she had twins, at least one of her kids is illegitimate.

She's doing a lot of complaining and feeling sorry for herself, but there is not even a hint of self-reflection in evidence. Her only problem is that she's too giving and too loving.

Yeah... and I'm the Princess of Persia.

If everything about your life sucks after 45 years of trial-and-error... if everyone in your life avoids you like the plague... the first place to look for problems to work on is in the mirror. It's certainly not because you're too perfect.

southerncraftgurl • 36 points • 18 September, 2021 06:12 PM

If everything about your life sucks, then you are the only constant in all the suckiness. So it's your own fault and the change should come from inside. But these victims just want to be victims and whine to get attention. They don't plan on doing anything different.

lurkerhasarisen • 33 points • 18 September, 2021 06:49 PM

I've encountered a few of those people over the years: they don't have friends but they have a lot of "frenemies," and the people who know them best (like their own kids) are nowhere in evidence. Every last one of them can list 10,000 little things wrong with everyone else, but comes up empty when it comes to their own faults. To the extent they acknowledge their role in their plight it's always some variation of, "I'm just too nice / giving / loving / trusting for my own good." It's NEVER true: those people are toxic, and when people figure it out they bail out. You can't save someone who doesn't want to be saved, and people who think they're already perfect aren't interested in changing. Eventually you either cut ties or they take you down with them.

southerncraftgurl • 21 points • 18 September, 2021 06:52 PM

Your words are so true in my own life. My sister is like this and I've had to cut contact down to minimum because it's so awful and she's so awful. Never met anyone so judgemental of others but thinks she is literally perfect. Gets mad if you even tell her you don't like her nail polish.

lurkerhasarisen • 15 points • 18 September, 2021 07:54 PM

I'm curious how you handle it. A few months ago I went "comms black" on a guy less than two years after I was in his wedding party. He lives 1000 miles away and we're not otherwise connected (I don't do social media) though, so there's no blowback from me blocking him.

Marfi09[S] • 4 points • 19 September, 2021 04:19 AM

I had some bad friends in high school. Since then, I am very cautious about moving some guy from acquaintance zone to being actual friend. No need to block if you don't let them close from the start.

mclusk3y comment score below threshold • -8 points • 19 September, 2021 06:18 AM

Oh... you're one of those people

southerncraftgurl • 2 points • 27 September, 2021 07:35 PM

Do you mean how I handle backing up communication with my sister? It wasn't really hard actually because we got into an ugly fight so I just used that to not talk to her a lot anymore. She got used to it I guess and now only calls when she needs attention like narcissists do. I also told her I wasn't going to talk to her much anymore when I did it but since we were arguing it was pretty easy. Getting our dad to understand was the hard part. Watching him having to face what a narcissist she is has been heart breaking. She was his favorite (dont mean that in a bad way, they were just real close and loved to do things together while mom and I hung out). It wasn't until mom died a few years ago that dad started seeing her for what she really is. It's been hard on him to accept.

lurkerhasarisen • 2 points • 27 September, 2021 08:09 PM

Yeah... I was just curious how you handled going "comms black" on a sibling. I have some cousins who were like brothers to me growing up, and I haven't spoken to any of them in 20 years, but I live half a continent away and we have no social overlap. Cutting ties with a sibling would be a different matter.

I'm sorry you're dealing with that. It's gotta' suck.

southerncraftgurl • 1 point • 28 September, 2021 02:04 AM

It's an experience, that is for certain. It makes me sad more than anything. Sad for my dad mostly. and sad for the person she used to be. She used to be the life of the party in every aspect. Now she is just some miserable woman blaming all her woes on everyone but herself.

princessyungbunny • 3 points • 19 September, 2021 03:19 PM

That is textbook narcissism. It is much more common in women.

southerncraftgurl • 2 points • 27 September, 2021 07:29 PM

Oh yeah, she's a huge narcissist. I lived with her for 2 years and I literally had to go to therapy when I moved out because she messed my head up so bad. She's a miserable person, very unhappy, but it's always someone else's fault.

MMAjambo comment score below threshold • -5 points • 19 September, 2021 11:30 AM

Well sleeping around isn't seen as degenerate when men do it so I guess it's not the same

The_Meep_Lord • 27 points • 18 September, 2021 05:40 PM

That is because we are ultimately just tools for Mother Nature. We are designed to lose.

In matter of fact, it is inevitable. Winning in life is about being the last one to lose and/or the one who loses the least. It is why crab bucket mentality is rampant in nature. It doesn't matter if you are better or the fittest, that is just a natural coincidence because of our environment of scarcity.

Take that scarcity away and you end up with shit talkers, trust fund kids and other "frauds" at the top.

This is no different.

We are designed to fall for these traps for nature's shitty game. So we often only find out the truth when it is too late on purpose

It is why society constantly goes into states of oppressing us...our natures, locking them away. They feel good, but they suck for us in the long term and make life empty.

southerncraftgurl • 22 points • 18 September, 2021 06:10 PM

All she wants to do is be a victim. She's been a victim her whole life it sounds like and THAT is why she has no friends. Who wants to listen to a perpetual victim whine every day all day. I have had friends like that before and had to nope out. If you aren't going to help yourself then do not come to me for support. I'd rather go outside and beat my head against the brick wall, it would be less painful.

MMAjambo • 8 points • 19 September, 2021 11:39 AM

The thing I find funny about them is how often they pull the suicide card, like you think I'm gonna feel bad for you you toxic fuck??

princessyungbunny • 4 points • 19 September, 2021 03:22 PM

Narcissists will 'pull the suicide card.' The constant feeling of victimization is a great wake-up call for budding narcissists to seek mental help.

MMAjambo • 5 points • 20 September, 2021 08:48 AM

I was a victim myself when I was using so I know what bullshit it is. I just wanted people to feel sorry for me so I could use it as an excuse to keep doing drugs.

IoSonCalaf • 166 points • 18 September, 2021 02:05 PM

If her children don't call her unless they need something then that's most likely her fault. I don't call my parents or even visit them anymore (unless it's something like a death in the family, etc) because they were awful parents. They were abusive and they both took their deep-rooted psychological problems out on me.

The people I know who call their parents and like to spend time with them had loving, caring parents who were good to them.

Kenshin86 • 69 points • 18 September, 2021 03:19 PM

I don't think you can make this a blanket statement. There are probably parents who are great people with selfish kids that just don't care and awful people whose kids still call and visit.

I like my parents and like to spend time with them. I call my mom once a week at least. My dad on the other hand is not interested in small talk over the phone so I only talk to him if I need something or want advice. In my dad's case that is purely because he wants it that way but the one time he said something like "you only call when you need something" years ago I said "you don't want to talk unless I do" and I have not heard a complaint since.

I think that you are probably right in more cases than you are wrong but it isn't necessarily true all the time.

IoSonCalaf • 25 points • 18 September, 2021 03:20 PM

Oh absolutely. I tried not to make it a blanket experience by limiting it to just my experience and the people I know.

princessyungbunny • 3 points • 19 September, 2021 03:26 PM

I don't talk to my parents. I am in several IRL and online support groups for people who are no contact with their (most likely mentally ill) parents for years. I've never heard of children cutting contact with the parents for any other reasons but toxic parents or children who have been financially cut off. The latter is much less common.

Kenshin86 • 3 points • 19 September, 2021 05:23 PM

There is a difference between going no contact and just not actively contacting your parents. There are awful children too, who don't contact their parents because they just don't care about them. They are not blocking all contact because their parents are awful.

When you are in a situation like yours, where your parents are indeed awful and you participate in support groups of people with the same problems then it seems kind of natural to be hearing about it a lot and not much about the other way around.

mustangfrank • 33 points • 18 September, 2021 03:26 PM*

How do you get children with being married 8 months? So there were other men who were in her life and vagina. And it all turned out bad. BTW Who choose those men? What did these men do for a living? How did you meet them? Was there a common pattern that you could not or would not break. Let me guess they all had to be 6' and ex cons. How could you lose on a deal like that. Did she ever choose good men? NOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOO They were sooooooooooooooooo boring.

You got what you wanted and got what you deserved.

BobbingForBunions • 27 points • 18 September, 2021 05:45 PM

If her children don't call her unless they need something then that's most likely her fault.

A notion that strikes modern women as foreign and bizarre...

"I'm responsible for the choices I make."

MMAjambo • 7 points • 19 September, 2021 11:44 AM

A girl told me that if a porno producer put in the contract he sent to a model he had to fuck her first purely because he wanted to then it's rape... Even though I specified that he makes it clear it's in the contract she still said it's rape (this girl supports prostitution btw so she's not of the opinion that selling sex is rape)

Just think about that. The guy sends the girl a contract specifying she has to have sex with him first off camera if she wants to star in his porno movie having sex with other guys. It's in the contract and it's clear as day, she signs the contract, gets paid, travels to the studio, goes in, further agrees in person to have sex with the producer, rape.....

princessyungbunny • 7 points • 19 September, 2021 03:32 PM*

I notice younger women want to pick and choose when they are used for their bodies. There is an entitlement level to having the same work conditions, work respect, work rights as white/blue-collar jobs while these women are using their bodies as blow-up dolls. To her, it's rape culture that contracts are sent with that clause and it's the producer misusing his power. It is chauvinist culture. But really, it's women denying the consequences of their actions. It's women wanting to manipulate the entire world to serve female wants. I truly think part of female nature is being sexual, dancing sexually, talking sexually. That is possibly the most valuable part of a woman. You don't see rich people holding expensive stuff with 1 finger in the hood. But you see women barely clothed in a porn studio expecting fair work contracts.

MMAjambo • 3 points • 20 September, 2021 08:56 AM

Here's what does my head in about it yeah. If she was like FDS and just anti sex work it would annoy me less.

So if I'm a producer and I send a contract asking the girl to fuck a guy and I film it, that's cool cause it's porn and sex work is work and it's a valid job.

If I send a "contract" to a prostitute asking to fuck her for money that's cool because being a prostitute is liberating and empowering yada dada.

If I send a contract to a girl asking her to star in my porno movie with me, that's cool because it's just porn and I'm a porno producer/actor

Buuuuut

If I send a contract for a porno in which she works with a different actor but I specify she has to fuck me first off camera cause I'm a perv then that's RAPE□□□

The world is dizzy I swear down

princessyungbunny • 4 points • 20 September, 2021 01:41 PM

liberating and empowering

Prostitution is only liberating and empowering for promiscuous women. Women are wired to want an exchange for sex. If the exchange fails so many times, there is a feeling of empowerment or freedom when an exchange occurs i.e. prostitution.

MMAjambo • 3 points • 20 September, 2021 03:25 PM

So essentially they're broken and rather than trading love, family and happiness for sex they trade raw cash in a never ending pursuit of happiness that's more like a loop because no matter how much they get they'll always want more because money will never fill the void in them but they think it will.

It is messed up how much money they make so easily though

Vikingbeard1 • 2 points • 22 September, 2021 03:22 AM

Oh yeah, absolutely. Look at the women who legit think that if the guy they voluntary fucked last night turns out to be, in the morning light and when viewed soberly, to be sort of unattractive, they can call it rape. Or the trend of calling it rape when they choose to get drunk off their asses and then have sex (with equally drunk men, but somehow they are still at fault). And then, of course, everything under the sun is sexual harassment or assault...which they sometimes want and get mad at you for not giving it. "Cat-calling is bad!" and also "Why didn't Brian ogle my heaving tits when my top 'accidentally' slipped off!?" At least a prostitute is honest.

You jest, but that's more true than you may realize. Torrid sizes their clothes according to the number of X's. I'm not making this up.

A Large (L: size 12) is a Torrid size 0.

An Extra Large (XL: size 14-16) is a Torrid size 1.

An XXL is a Torrid size 2.

An XXXL is a Torrid size 3.

So a size 30 (XXXXXXL) would be a Torrid size 6.

I don't know about the rest of you guys, but when I think of a woman who wears a size 3 dress, this is not what comes to mind (risky click - you've been warned).

When women call in to Keven Samuels' show to complain about men because they think they're so fabulous, he usually asks them their dress size. He doesn't mean their Torrid dress size.

Harry_Teak • 4 points • 19 September, 2021 04:32 AM

Ugh. I knew that vanity sizing was way out of control, but that? Yikes. Leave it to Torrid, they were a store for fats even before the obesity epidemic really took hold so I guess they would be ahead of the... curves when it comes to fantasy sizing.

And yeah, I clicked. Hasn't that thing died yet?

lurkerhasarisen • 10 points • 19 September, 2021 03:06 AM

Don't forget that any age is the new 12 if the guy is older than the woman. They seriously use the word "pedophile" on men who date younger women - even if the women are in the 30s.

Yet they will unironically say that literal girls should be treated as if they have full adult agency, and that women are more mature than men are.

Cognitive Dissonance, thy name is FDS.

UhBallsDontTalkBack • 9 points • 19 September, 2021 03:55 AM

Oh i love this. What i do when they say a woman in her 20's is being taken advantage of theyre just girls, I say "exactly, i dont think woman should vote until they're 25 or older, they're just girls before that." Which leads to them getting mad and saying they can vote, and start insulting, then I say "they don't have the mental or emotional capacity to decide who to date, let alone matters of state." To which they get even angrier, say they absolutely can, to which i say "Exactly! They're able to make these decisions, they're adults, so quit treating them as though they're children. It's an adult dating an adult.

throwsFatalException • 43 points • 18 September, 2021 02:11 PM

I feel like most women think this will not happen to them. I'm sure she thought the same thing too. It seems like this woman has a whole lot of things about herself she needs to fix before worrying about getting a man though. But when all you do is work, watch TV and play games on your phone, you are probably not motivated to do any self improvement.

This is one situation where I'm okay with it. She can fuck the bad boys because she's a bad person. If nobody wants to be around her or talk to her it's not some party girl that fell victim to the CC. She's gotta be just awful. Let the bad boys do their thing with her. Hell, she might serve as a warning sign that they could do better. They could look down after they climax and think "What the hell am I doing with my life?!"

skint_back • 20 points • 18 September, 2021 04:14 PM

This one doesn't even work. She's "disabled."

Anyone wanna bet on the likelihood of her "disability" being an autoimmune disease?

Martellus732 • 24 points • 18 September, 2021 04:43 PM most likely she's using being obese as a disability.

skint_back • 12 points • 18 September, 2021 04:48 PM

Very possible as well.

UhBallsDontTalkBack5 points 18 September, 2021 11:33 PM [recovered]

My girlfriends mom has an autoimmune disorder, a side effect of cancer treatment. And she doesn't complain about shit. She works out, cleans the house to a fucking ridiculous extent, she's pretty damn active.

skint_back • 6 points • 19 September, 2021 12:46 AM*

I know not one, but two one-legged men who work full time jobs (one in construction, one at a hardware store) and have active hobbies. Also know a one-armed man who works full time and is active.

Anyway, yep, that was my point. Autoimmune disease is rarely going to incapacitate someone to the point of being bedridden, although many women portray it that way to garner sympathy. Besides that, I've personally known several women who actually faked symptoms to secure an autoimmune Dx and a subsequent disability check.

UhBallsDontTalkBack3 points 19 September, 2021 01:09 AM [recovered]

Haha, absolutely. And my girlfriends mom doesn't collect disability. She saved like crazy and worked like crazy in the medical field. And plans to continue working when able (once covid dies down, as an autoimmune disorder, covid, and working in a hospital, dont mix very well)

This chick is likely, as you said, just lazy, and trying to garner sympathy.

lurkerhasarisen • 2 points • 19 September, 2021 03:31 AM

My wife has an autoimmune disease that has landed her in the hospital many times, and there are numerous secondary effects that send her to various doctors pretty regularly. She takes a cocktail of drugs for it. Not only does she have a full-time job, but she works out most days.

That's not to say that autoimmune diseases are not serious. Hers is very serious, and we don't know what tomorrow may bring, but a lot of people (mostly women if we're being honest), self-diagnose with autoimmune diseases and/or mental health issues to gain sympathy.

Whenever someone claims they attempted suicide, I always think of this old Seinfeld joke.

“The thing I don't understand about the suicide person is the people who try to commit suicide, for some reason they don't die, and that's it. They stop trying. Why don't they just keep trying? What's changed? Is their life any better now? No. In fact, it's worse, because now they've found out here's one more thing you stink at. And that's why these people don't succeed in life to begin with. They give up too easy. I say, pills don't work? Try a rope. Car won't start in the garage? Get a tune-up. There's nothing more rewarding than reaching a goal you've set for yourself.”

NoTearsNoTingles • 25 points • 18 September, 2021 06:05 PM

Women like this aren't suicidal. Killing yourself is incredibly easy. These dumb cunts are too lazy and narcissistic to put actual work into their relationships, so they become “suicidal” and pop a few Tylenol to get the attention they crave.

lurkerhasarisen • 6 points • 19 September, 2021 03:42 AM

Tylenol is really dangerous in large quantities. There have been cases where people took a bunch of it as a means of getting attention ("She attempted suicide"), only to discover too late that a Tylenol overdose will kill you deader than disco. Once enough of it enters your bloodstream there's no way to save you, either. All the doctors can do is wait for you to die.

I read about a case like that just a few days ago: as I recall, some teenage girl wanted to make a point by "committing suicide" in a way that wouldn't actually kill her. She chose Tylenol. Bad move. By the time they got her to the hospital it was too late. She was still coherent, so she understood the doctors when they told her and her parents that there was nothing they could do to save her.

As Celine Dion sang in her song "All By Myself".

*"When I was young I never needed anyone And making love was just for fun Those days are gone Living alone I think of all the friends I've known But when I dial the telephone Nobody's home
All by myself Don't wanna be All by myself Anymore
Hard to be sure Sometimes I feel so insecure And loves so distant and obscure Remains the cure
All by myself Don't wanna be All by myself Anymore"*

Whenever i come to this sub this song always comes to mind. It hits very close to home for these women. Thank you Celine Dion.

A bit unnecessarily cruel. The women featured in these posts are people. They act the way they do because society has failed them. They should be pitied and not mocked. They are cautionary examples of what happens when you swallow the disney/rom com lie and believe that you're special and deserving of love. They are products of their environment, if they were raised differently and experienced the real world before they hit their 30's things would be different.

mr_kuk • 23 points • 18 September, 2021 03:02 PM

I rebuke.

A moderate level of cruel. The women featured in these posts are people and no one here ever claimed otherwise. They act the way they do because they want to. They are be pitied and are mocked by people. They are cautionary examples of what happens when you do exactly what you feel like exactly when you feel like it. They are products of their own decisions once they turn 18, if they behaved differently and experienced the real world before they hit their 30's things would be different.

What you really are saying is that it's bad to point out her failure as a woman because it protects some helpless chap from falling in her trap of misery. Miss me with that shit.

Do you ask for sympathy for her exhusband who had his home wrecked? What about her kids who never had a chance at a real family? You didn't even mention them, they still have a chance to make good decisions, but no, her feelz over all reelz.

mustangfrank • 14 points • 18 September, 2021 03:34 PM

She made her choices. She has to live with the results, just like us all.

If I dated prostitutes, drug addicts and criminals, them complained that all the relationships failed, you would say stop dating prostitutes, drug addicts and criminals. And you would be right, but women think differently. Think of this, women place height above anything else in judging a man. What does height have to do with anything? Yet you see this here all the time, posted by women.

AncientMGTOWWISDOM • 10 points • 18 September, 2021 03:23 PM

upsidedownbackwards • 12 points • 18 September, 2021 03:52 PM

I feel like the cards are stacked against them because women crab-in-a-bucket pretty hard and they're indoctrinating younger women with "BEING FAT AND SLUTTY IS OKAY! LIFE WILL TURN OUT GREAT!" as they pet their cats and drink their wine.

But they're not victims, they're just losers. They changed an old legitimate competition of dating/relationship and turned it into a game of Calvinball. They're upset that nobody wants to play, and the ones who do get out after saying they scored infinity +1 points.

Unfortunately we're all losers now that the rules have been burned. Guys have less of a chance at a LTR because they can't compete with "Mr Perfect" who is the best qualities of her last 5 exs combined. Children are losing because they end up in these single bimbo mom situations where their father is badmouthed even though he's paying his child support fine and always ready for his weekends.

It's fucking society. Nobody wins. But there's no putting the toothpaste back in the tube because dem crabs are always feeling pinchy.

I think what you what you're trying to say is feminism failed her and most women.

Being strong and independent and acting like men, is actually a lot less fun and rewarding as they've been told.

Being told to waste your 20's and wait until your fertility window is at its end, is kind of a bad idea.

And the fact woman will give horrible advice to either: save face, or reaffirm their poor decisions by making others make the same poor decisions, may not be in their best interests.

To have unconditional love, she must set an unconditional life. She has:

Children

a disability

Active relationship with ex (probably involved with ex for child support)

suicidal

There will always be conditions. She should settle for someone with similar circumstances so they both can be on the same level.

I'm getting the vague feeling her "disability" is obesity related. She has a strong "Nothing is my fault!" attitude. It's her genetics!

She just skimmed over it trying for the pity card. She's only telling the part she wants us to hear.

Harry_Teak • 11 points • 18 September, 2021 10:21 PM

Her "disability" is most likely fibromyalgia which is something slack doctors will diagnose just to be able to avoid pointing out that the patient's obesity is the problem.

anykah_badu • 29 points • 18 September, 2021 03:46 PM

Depressed vulnerable narcissist. 100%

I've met women like this in real life. One was at the clinic where I recovered for 4 weeks from surgery with a dozen of other women, all going through the same thing.

Great clinic, busy schedule, we were all grateful for the staff and amenities (all paid for by our healthcare providers!), supporting each other and forming lasting friendships. Then she showed up. We called her "the cloud" because she would hang over every conversation like a dark cloud

We tried to integrate her into the group at first but it was impossible. She complained about everything, insulted the staff, and sucked all the happiness from the room with her attention seeking graphic stories about suicide and injury

She was the reason I had to take ear plugs to relaxation treatments in case she gets one at the same time, whining and moaning FOR NO REASON other than her severe personality disorder

Everyone turns away from people like that because they are negative all the time, appreciate nothing, always act like they're the victim etc

Every single statement this poster made is a telltale sign of this particular condition. They sound exactly like that (that is the toned down version they'd give internet strangers of course, you wouldn't wanna encounter them in any other context in real life)

Because of their negative effect on others, my sympathy for these people is pretty much zero. They cannot be helped anyway, and should be cut off by family members and kept away from healthcare facilities. Give them individual care if you must. Like no one should have to interact with them who doesn't get paid for it bwahaha

Life is analog. There has to be a continuity in the curve. You can't be a whore in your 20s and magically transform into a family woman.

And no, it is not the wall slamming physically. The psychological wall slamming where she couldn't seem to get excited about anything and for anyone.

When we said sexual discipline is vital, we got called as Incels. Look where they are now. It could have been a decent life: man and woman, a kid or two. They ruined it.

I know the traditional sense of meaning to my life through a family is done with. It's fine. Been dealing with loneliness all my 20s and early 30s. I can handle it for the rest of my life.

mustangfrank • 19 points • 18 September, 2021 03:39 PM

Unconditional love? Just get a dog or something lol.

Life is what you make it... this woman sounds like she has an awful mindset, probably due to depression or something like that. Tbh I don't really believe in depression or anxiety that much. I experience both of these things from postpartum but I do something about them so that they become feelings, not long term states of being. People who do nothing about it become truly depressed and at that point it's their fault. Going for a walk is free. Fresh air is free. Ranting on the internet to strangers is even free.

Her daily life doesn't sound much different from mine and I'm in my 20s. I stay at home, entertain the baby and dog, watch some tv, chores, games/Reddit then good night. Every day. Also I broke my hip from running almost 10 years ago so shit I'm in pain a lot too. Still I run and if it hurts that day, walk. I still lift for gods sake. This lady is doing absolutely nothing then complaining she has absolutely nothing. Life is what you make it lady wanderingNotLost1980 • 8 points • 19 September, 2021 03:33 AM

Unconditional love? Just get a dog or something..

No need to go further than that. The dog loves you no matter what (almost). If you can't get a dog to love you (requiring almost nothing more than feeding it and not hurting it) then you really are a true shit person.

UhBallsDontTalkBack • 5 points • 19 September, 2021 12:50 AM

You broke your hip from running? I didn't even know that was possible. Was it during a run and you just collapse? Did you land funny mid-stride? Did you fall, causing the break? I'm, for some reason, quite interested in this.

littlestminks • 5 points • 19 September, 2021 01:18 AM

It was a stress fracture. I was about 110 lbs, started lifting and put on 20 lbs of muscle, and kept running like I was still tiny. My left hip kept hurting but I kept suppressing it with tons of ibuprofen cause I didn't know any better. 6 months of this and I went to the doctor. MRI showed crack in my left hip. Doctor said stress fractures are actually pretty common with runners

I've waited my entire life for unconditional love and to feel wanted

She thinks that life is just something that happens to her. If it doesn't just happen, then the universe is at fault. It can't be her fault.

Life doesn't give you everything you want. It takes effort, struggle, and sacrifice to get what you want.

Men know this. Life doesn't just happen. Consequences are the results of our actions - both for good and bad. If we want to achieve a goal then we do something about it.

News Flash: your life ain't getting any better. It's only getting worse.

upsidedownbackwards • 4 points • 20 September, 2021 01:38 AM

She could improve it. Get out more, lose some weight, find some real hobbies. But it sounds like she doesn't want to fight it.

CatRelocator • 10 points • 18 September, 2021 03:26 PM

Honestly very sad

Wildhouse83 • 9 points • 18 September, 2021 04:33 PM

And here comes the bad news: She still has almost another 40 years to go.

TheSkullsOfEveryCog • 6 points • 19 September, 2021 08:31 AM

Thanks, my tax dollars are just ecstatic about that.

Wildhouse83 • 4 points • 19 September, 2021 01:45 PM

But she is a strong and independent woman who will finance the whole government by her own....Oh wait, she is just another freeloader ;)

Sufficient_Winter_45 • 9 points • 18 September, 2021 10:19 PM

How the hell do you raise children so they only call when they need something?

Gary-the-Duck • 1 point • 29 September, 2021 05:27 PM

And that's only if they REALLY need something, like bail or a kidney.

DarkDoomDoom3 points 18 September, 2021 03:13 PM* [recovered]

I feel pity for her, I think it's doesn't fit the sub she's not complaining about where are all the good men

southerncraftgurl • 9 points • 18 September, 2021 06:08 PM

My God was this a dating profile??

slipkid223 • 6 points • 18 September, 2021 05:19 PM

She is giving you fair warning; she has been chasing Chads and is mentally unstable. At 45 she is only going to get worse.

Heed the warning the gents.

Joaquino7997 • 7 points • 18 September, 2021 07:46 PM*

I hear this story often, and in my personal life it's always a woman and she has serious mental issues. This physically-disabled divorced mother attempted suicide and can't seem to figure out why her own children don't want to be around her, much less other people...?!?!?!?!?

If all these people are walking away from her, then she is clearly the problem.

I wonder if one of those "bullshit platitudes" was to seek professional help.

[deleted] • 6 points • 18 September, 2021 08:21 PM wants unconditional love but will never receive it

I guess she knows what it's like to be a man now lol kidruhil • 7 points • 18 September, 2021 08:25 PM

Choices have consequences. Zero Fucks Given over here for that sluts pity party

Bob_and_Virginia • 8 points • 18 September, 2021 10:34 PM*

"Unconditional love"?! ☐ Oh honey, somebody should have told you! There's no such thing!

UhBallsDontTalkBack • 7 points • 19 September, 2021 01:03 AM

Some conditions i impose is no cheating. No getting knocked up by another dude. No beating my children. No smoking crack in front of my kids. (All these are examples, i dont have kids...and i love crack) I think most people have conditions.

peguy2000 • 6 points • 18 September, 2021 05:58 PM

Could be my mother. My mother walked out of my parents marriage when her blackmailing and cheating were succesfully done. Shes in her late 50s now and it seems like her family also doesnt talk to her anymore. I honestly feel sorry for her but shes burned the bridges all by herself. I wish i could fix things but its up to her

MAFiA_79 • 7 points • 18 September, 2021 11:46 PM

Men can grow. Women always sink.

You can't be the best version of yourself when you are a couch potato playing games and watching TV. Grow the f up.

[deleted] • 7 points • 19 September, 2021 12:48 AM

"Everyone I have ever had in my life has told me "things will get better."

Yeah, sure... More like, I cut everybody who has ever said anything remotely critical of my behavior out of my life, and the only people who remained were just trying to appease me/get me to stop bitching about my life.

Hunk_Maggot • 6 points • 19 September, 2021 01:10 AM

The few people i had in my life decided to walk away.

No wonder why the child will do the same in the future, no man wants a drama in his life.

I've waited my entire life for unconditional love.

Unconditional love are for parents to their respective biological childrens, not for an grown ass adult who wants to be loved like a child. This much says that she didn't have the love of her dad in her life.

coloradocaniac • 7 points • 19 September, 2021 03:59 AM

There's a part of me who'll always want kids.

With how selfish and self-absorbed the world is, I think it's for the best I didn't, and since I come from a place of often severe depression all I can say is it really opens your eyes to who really cares about you.

I have more "friends" than I could count who are sunshine friends, only there when I'm in a good place and want good times. Moonlight friends, the ones to light your way when life is at its darkest, are so seemingly rare and personally have been so rare that I've begun wondering if I've ever had a real friend.

While I sympathize with feeling like no one in the world cares about you, at least this person got to have kids. Maybe celebrate that.

soonershooter • 7 points • 19 September, 2021 04:16 AM

While a social trainwreck for sure, this lady also has serious mental issues that require massive mental health intervention, no man on this planet can fix her. There is a reason that everyone in her life leaves her after some point in time.

NoNameAvailableSee • 5 points • 18 September, 2021 03:24 PM

Put that woman on suicide watch before she hits menopause.

MissiveGhost • 4 points • 18 September, 2021 06:02 PM

27 years lol

braucifur • 6 points • 18 September, 2021 06:21 PM

Yup her life situation is just something that happened to her that she watched passively she had nothing to do with her current predicament whatsoever.

kgm123 • 6 points • 19 September, 2021 04:05 AM

At least she has a cat. That's a positive

DISHONORU-TDA • 5 points • 18 September, 2021 06:29 PM

Soon: Nobody else to blame. . . already tried the attempt for attention. . . why is the world wrong and why am i so right? :(

Harry_Teak • 3 points • 18 September, 2021 10:16 PM

I am so moved by this sad tale that I was going to write a poem about her life but I can't for the life of me come up with anything that rhymes with "morbid obesity."

thesquigerrr • 4 points • 19 September, 2021 01:52 PM

"Fucks Chad easily." "In sex and the city". "No longer as pretty" "her life is real shitty"

Harry_Teak • 3 points • 20 September, 2021 01:23 AM

Needs more cowbell.

RolandDelacroix • 5 points • 18 September, 2021 11:21 PM

Based on the response of the people around her, it does sound as if her relationships were indeed all one-sided.

Miggymoggy • 3 points • 19 September, 2021 09:53 AM

You reap what you sow and these women have had opportunity after opportunity to have the most amazing wonderful men as partners but do these women want such men? Absolutely not, so when they get older and start to cry, complain etc. It is 100% their fault and the blame can only be put onto them.

Unlike most men, women are so incredibly blessed early on in life but they squander it in search of things that do not even exist (or maybe in a Disney movie).

Old_snowboarder • 3 points • 19 September, 2021 11:19 AM

The question I always want to ask it 'so what percentage of this fuckup is down to you' - it's a question most people wouldn't appreciate being asked.

pdoherly972 • 1 point • 21 September, 2021 01:46 PM

A question she should have asked herself 1,000 times, and which would have altered her course if she paid attention.

Reminds me of the movie 'The Cutting Edge' in which a figure skater woman continually has issues with the men assigned to skate with her, blames the men in every case, when she's the problem.

waveformcollapse • 2 points • 18 September, 2021 11:21 PM

I am sick of these bullshit platitudes.

ForsakeHope-BeStill • 2 points • 19 September, 2021 12:47 AM

Is she disabled because it was the remnant effect of her suicide?

PopularBug5 • 2 points • 19 September, 2021 04:00 AM

I get up, play with my cats, watch TV, play games on my phone, go to bed, repeat.

How about taking up meaningful hobbies instead? One that involves you stepping out of the house (GASP!), mingle with others who are not your family (GASP!) and contribute to the community (HOLY SHIT!)

Aldabruzzo • 2 points • 20 September, 2021 01:37 PM

Dear 45 year old woman

this happened because

- 1) You blame everyone else for your problems. You will not take responsibility for your own problems.
- 2) You are a terrible mother.
- 3) You did not spend your life "loving and giving". you spent your life taking and getting railed by Chads and Tyrones.

"Play with my cats"

45 years old, single mother, divorcee, alone.

You cannot make this shit up.

AggressiveProblem654 • 2 points • 21 September, 2021 04:15 AM oh well!

niks2592 • 2 points • 21 September, 2021 02:20 PM

Kinda feel bad for her, but this is her doing, so it's justice.

Vikingbeard1 • 2 points • 22 September, 2021 03:30 AM

Sounds exactly like my former sister-in-law; roped my brother in (whom she had "totally loved since we were teenagers) while he was recovering from a bad breakup, seemed decent at first and really worked to join our family, but eventually made everyone of us dislike being around her, because it's a never-ending litany of complaints, excuses, whining, physical health problems, mental health problems, bitching about all the other people who left her life over her bitching, etc. The only one who still likes her is my brother...whom she divorced, and he's an idiot who has had ALL the Kool-Aid from CNN, is broke, and basically scrapes by doing odd jobs, so his endorsement is the opposite of reassuring to anyone who knows him. They only have one kid, but that kid is currently with my brother because she's fucking homeless (moved in with some guy she met on Tinder, WITH HER DAUGHTER THE STUPID CUNT, and was shocked when he got bored of her fast ass in 2 months and threw her out). No one has ever even tried to tell her the truth, as far as I know, but it doesn't matter, she just thinks we all conspired to hate her and ruin her reputation with person after person. Depressingly, I have tried getting my brother to see, but he literally thinks a $100/hour minimum wage would instantly lead to global wealth and prosperity, so of course he doesn't understand why his ex is insufferable.

monkeybrains13 • 2 points • 24 September, 2021 08:49 AM

So sad. I hope this never happens to me

Existenceizfutile • 1 point • 19 September, 2021 07:27 AM

I feel bad for her. It's nearly impossible for women with children to find a new partner. We have no indication that this situation is her fault, and not bad luck plus depression.

upsidedownbackwards • 2 points • 20 September, 2021 12:54 AM

She can't keep a partner, her kids don't call her and her friends are avoiding her. She's probably not a very pleasant person to be around.

Existenceizfutile • 2 points • 20 September, 2021 03:30 AM

Probably not, no. Trust me, i know someone in the same exact boat as her, line for line. it's just sad to know that it's probably from mental illness, trauma, or something like that. at least that's the case for the lady i know. she's very whiny about medical problems, the pain and the meds she takes for it turn her into a zombie that rambles incoherently, and i think she has autism, or PTSD or some other mental illness that makes her unable to connect with people. Not really sure. Mom of a friend.

They always think their early twenties will last forever. Those carousel rides can last a long time but when they end, they end abruptly.

SladeWilsonXL9 • 1 point • 24 September, 2021 04:50 PM

Those fools on FDS need to read this and learn.

PhantomCowboy • 1 point • 25 September, 2021 12:15 PM time is the fire in which we burn

20210527 • 1 point • 28 September, 2021 01:55 AM

Is this a dating profile, or a search for a therapist?

Hard pass

YesYesYesVeryGood • 1 point • 11 October, 2021 02:58 AM

She lives in a house, has food, and has the means to educate herself online. She's better than most of the people on Earth.

juulboixd • 0 points • 21 September, 2021 07:30 PM

y'all fail to realize it's not ab the situation someone is in it's how they feel in that situations. don't compare yourself n try to understand someone's situation because u NEVER will. try to understand their emotions and what situation in your life would make u feel their same emotion. TWO different things. not everyone handles the same situation the same way
