

The most active job offer/request Facebook group in Poland is exclusive for women and has a rule specifically stating that no man can be helped through that group, even if the person asking is a woman.

November 25, 2021 | 38 upvotes | by TheSpaceDuck

---

Give Her A Job

🔒 Private group · 56.8K members

 Join Group

---

Archived from theredarchive.com

---

Comments

---

TheSpaceDuck[S] • 8 points • 25 November, 2021 01:32 AM

As if men weren't disadvantaged enough when it comes to being hired, Poland has taken that gap further with a dedicated group for finding jobs that is only for women. The rules (written in Polish) state that it's strictly forbidden to ask for a job for a husband, brother, father, etc. even if you're a woman. It's not just by women and for women, but also has a strict rule that no man shall benefit from it.

This is not some "fringe" group either, it's actually Poland's most active job offer group, with 16 times more monthly posts than the 2nd most active group ("Work in Poland!").

Source

Kinexity • 5 points • 25 November, 2021 01:38 AM*

Bruh wtf. And in my country too. How did we get here? I have never thought we would have such an evil spawn within our countrymen. I would have reported it but there isn't even a proper category for that. You could throw in the post about it on r/MensRights

TheSpaceDuck[S] • 3 points • 25 November, 2021 01:45 AM

Facebook wouldn't remove it unless the genders were reversed.

Regardless, I don't think it should be reported or removed at all. It should stay there for anyone to see how much of a misandry problem Poland has.

"Cancelling" hateful people doesn't solve the problem, it just makes it invisible.

Kinexity • 6 points • 25 November, 2021 01:51 AM

It's not about cancelling. Cancelling would be when you try to shame people responsible. Reporting such group is a way of showing that such behaviour is not acceptable even if FB does not remove it.

It should stay there for anyone to see how much of a misandry problem Poland has.

I wouldn't say we necessarily have a big one right now but judging the whole political scene and society it is growing.