Greetings to everyone who made it here. If you joined this sub you're probably, like me, not really "convinced" of the mods' decision to take TheRedPill and especially askTRP off of Reddit. I can only speculate about their reasons for doing this, and in the end it doesn't matter. What matters is that the fundamental "modus operandi" of TRP is to share wisdom with other members and give advice to people who need it. Our goal is not to indoctrinate as much people as possible, we're not a cult, but the bottom line always was that if you looked for us, you would find us.

The new site is not compatible with this idea of "being accessible". It's an obscure forum hidden deep within the Internet, but unlike classic PUA forums (which may have been the start of many of our journeys) it's only a matter of time until it'll be blacklisted from every major search engine. As far as I know, you can still access it on google by looking up very specific terms, but it's post won't come up in the results bar if you type in "girlfriend cheated on me after I did everything for her", like on Reddit. You can't click on the profile of the guy who posted a smart comment on your question on relationship_advice and see that he also posts in this interesting, quarantined forum called "askTRP", full of guys who really seem to know their way around women.

So until this situation has been resolved - which it undoubtedly will, as "moderators" typically like their power; so when they realize that no one uses their shitty website they'll probably reinstate their reddit subs - I'll do my best to help keep the community alive on Reddit. I'm not an EC on the main sub or anything, as a bunch of ultra instinct Alpha Males™ will surely cry out, but at least I'm not a pussy who freaks out and runs away because "muh Reddit changed their rules!".

So until then, I'll build this bad boy up, first thing is to get an automoderator going, at the same time I'll be making a sidebar (probably not an exact copy). I will enforce site-wide rules. This is not me being "cucked" or anything, I just want this sub to stay unquarantined for as long as possible. Contrary to what a lot of moderators of "controversial" subs say, my experience with the Reddit administration has generally been pleasant because I'm not autistic. A lot of the subs that get mentioned for being "unjustly banned", like the Dotard or consume product, had a long history of blatantly breaking site-wide rules for no reason other than being edgy. Their mods, instead of enforcing the rules which mostly wouldn't even have infringed on the spirit of the subs, either did nothing at all or passively encouraged rule breaking by looking for and highlighting loopholes.

If you have suggestions, post them here. If you know people within the community that might want to stay on reddit instead of migrating to a third party website, send them an invite. That's about it.

By the looks of things it's seems that we have a peasant revolt against the Red Pill. And like all peasant revolts it seems like y'all are copying the form without understanding the underlying function.

You see nobody wants a more moderate reasonable Red Pill. There's plenty of communities like that already AskMen Seduction Relationship Advice. All of the communities are filled with politically correct beta males parroting the dominant ideology.

If you want to contest the Red Pill you need to out compete it in content which means you need more flavor posters and better flavor posters. Unless you can produce better content than the Red Pill this place is going to rot in obscurity.

Happy someone stepped up. You're doing a good thing, man. A lot of people will benefit and appreciate you doing this.

The mod team and a large number of members were triggering Reddit's anti-evil operations. We lost moderators, many of them. Reddit's making a play at replacing the mod team with politically correct replacements (much like they did with the donald).

Don't be fooled. Half the shit you'd consider red pill can't even be spoken on this platform. We used to have regular posts talking about the real, dark red pill. I can't even say the words here without getting perma banned.

Enjoy your pink pill

You mean how jews control everything? Yeah, I remember the mods and a bunch of the guys dropping those posts around trp and asktrp that made obvious comments about (((them))). I also remember the mods deleting threads about actual content relating to women. I remember asking about some girl I knew who I suspected was doing things with her dog, only to get my thread deleted and banned because apparently "girls aren't like that". I was told to stop watching porn because clearly that's where I got the idea from, even though I do nofap and hate porn. Of course, I found out the hard way that girls are, indeed, like that. I also remember posting about sleeping with barely legal girls and getting my threads deleted for talking about girls who were young but entirely legal.

TBH, I never got anything out of the mods posts, a number of them were clearly just doing steroids or sarms and getting girls from tinder. Imagine injecting your body with experimental hormones like a fuckin' tranny and referring to yourself as "red pill" lmao. Majority of the guys who posted on that sub were still clueless about how women really are, just saying the same old phrases over and over again like a robot.

If you guys just want to complain about (((them))) all day long then just go post on pol, it's not that hard, there's already a place on the internet to do that. If you want to get more organized than /pol then just join atomwaffen and get it over with.

No it's not the JQ- My post about the JQ is here: <https://trp.red/p/trp/885> but the short version is that we aim not to devolve into the (((conspiratard))) nonsense and won't be hosting it.

What makes TRP so great is that, while we talk about ideas that are outside the overton window, we are also very selective about what ideas we discuss and entertain. We want the best, most intellectually rigorous discussions. And that flies somewhat counter to free-speech as a concept, because we have to moderate this discussion to keep it intellectual. If you start posting racist jokes in TRP you will be removed. Not because we are anti-free-speech but because it doesn't serve our topic or add to our discussion, which under attack enough for its own reasons.

I want to apply this selectivity to Forums.Red. I want to engender other topics that have been run out of the other towns because of their position outside the current overton window - thus the tagline "Forbidden Ideas." But I want to select the ones with intellectual rigor, because I want to attract the smart people, I want to have the smart conversations.

Is this truly free speech? No, it's not. But I think everybody will be able to understand that this undertaking is going to be a fight. It will be work and will cost time and money to protect. So if I'm going up to bat for discussion groups, it better be ones I find value in and can defend from an intellectual standpoint - even if I disagree with them entirely.

Any forum that gets along with reddit admin can't possibly give better advice than men already hear on the regular:

JUST BE YOURSELF and BUY HER FLOWERS

Love, the ultimatecad

I dislike the new site and congratulate you on starting your own sub.

ONE question: You have written nothing about the red pill.

What's the plan on actually teaching and helping people take the red pill?

Finally it's back.
