Before they turn 18...

1 in 6 boys experience
some form of sexual abuse

1 in 4 girls experience
some form of sexual abuse

Except for the fact that boys don't experience "some form of sexual abuse" ever, and all apparent "cases" of male sexual abuse are always from people who lack any understanding of the definition of such terms.

Sexual abuse involves mental trauma, males do not experience mental trauma as they are incapable of doing so, similar to how males cannot experience emotions such as remorse and generosity and therefore the term sexual abuse does not apply to men, there should be another term that does apply to men but I have been unable to locate such a term.

But of course, feminists take rape against men very seriously, and want to end it, can't you see it?

Well, after all, one way to stop rape against men IS denying it even existed in the first place...

Guess my first twenty years of life feeling like absolute sh*t abt myself riddled w/ guilt, shame, repressed memories, feelings of being "damaged," depression, suicidal thoughts, etc -

Must've been all my imagination! Wow if only someone like her had told me no you see, you have a penis so you can't experience trauma! (Even though its literally my penis I experienced this trauma through) Wow thanks doc I never saw it that way I'm cured!

Was posted by a twitter account that posts TERF tweets (their Ls more specifically) and everybody in its comments was treating it like it was real.

I'm in an extremely left wing industry and work with some feminist who's misandry is scary at times. But I think even they would find this outrage.
