If all your past partners found out about eachother and started a fan/hate page regarding you, how would that make you feel? Do you think that would make you more attractive or less attractive to future partners? Do you think it would help your future relationships? Would you want the fan page to grow?

this sounds like fan fiction man

Nope happened to my gf. She got around, and her exes formed a social club based on having sex with her. Ya, she's a huge slut.

Naturally we both do. All clear.

I will subscribe to that fan page without letting them know my real self and pretend to be other girl.

I will comment like , " You deserve better,king ", "Your ex was bad,what a bitch".Just flirt with them online. If we got into chat,I will ask them what type of woman he wants,what food he likes.I will learn that so that I can apply it if I get into next relationship.

Do you think that would make you more attractive or less attractive to future partners?

Am I suppose to know?Only men can tell.

Do you think it would help your future relationships?

It depends on what partner feels.

Would you want the fan page to grow?

I wouldn't mind since I already dealt with bullying, people hating me and heartbreak.

404: Page does not exist.

I broke up with every one because they were clingy and needy. They would warn future men that I'm emotionally unavailable or something. It would reflect more on them than on me.

I broke up with every one because they were clingy and needy.

So, if you have a pattern of breaking up with all the men you have dated, why would your next bf stick around if he believes you will just break up with him?

TsugaC1 points 10 November, 2022 09:25 PM [recovered]

Because I finally found one who can entertain himself and doesn't call or message me every five minutes.

Because I finally found one who can entertain himself and doesn't call or message me every five minutes.

Did you think this about all your past bfs? Didn't you vet your past bf's? Didn't you communicate what you expect to your past bf's? Would all your past bf's agree that they texted you every 5 mins?

But I'm not concerned about "keeping" him.

Of course you aren't concerned with choosing the right man for the rest of your life. There are plenty of cocks/men for you, right?

If he's unhappy, he leaves.

And you would careless.

My life will continue apace.

Right, because to you, men are disposable and replaceable.

TsugaC1 points 10 November, 2022 09:44 PM [recovered]

I absolutely communicated my desire for space and independence. Things started off well, but each grew more and more dependent and insecure and behaved as though they needed a mother, not a girlfriend.

Human beings are not parts.

And you would careless.

Of course I care, I miss the men I fell for and certain aspects of their personalities and some of the experiences we shared were invaluable. But I'd breathe a sigh of relief if a clingy man left.

Right, because to you, men are disposable and replaceable.

The opposite is true. I set them free to find someone who is better suited to their personalities and habits.

I absolutely communicated my desire for space and independence. Things started off well, but each grew more and more dependent and insecure and behaved as though they needed a mother, not a girlfriend.

So, you have a poor record of choosing men to fuck, yes?

Human beings are not parts.

Then what are men to you? Obv, you dont care enough about them to vet them? Or are your vetting skills poor?

Of course I care, I miss the men I fell for and certain aspects of their personalities and some of the experiences we shared were invaluable. But I'd breathe a sigh of relief if a clingy man left.

This gives off the vibes that you look at men as pets, and not human beings. Not equals. Not someone you communicate and reflect with. More like someone who is a pet or a pest that you cant wait to get rid of. You dont try to understand them. They are meaningless unless they provide you with some sort of pleasure.

I set them free to find someone who is better suited to their personalities and habits.

If you think you set them free, then you must think that you had them captured or trapped in some way. No one uses the language or phrase of setting another human being free unless they felt as if they owned the person.

You have some issues, ma'am.

HateSpeechFanBoy • 1 point • 10 November, 2022 10:36 PM

Only a celebrity would have this and you would have to date a lot for this to happen

_Duriel_1000_[S] • 1 point • 10 November, 2022 10:55 PM

Do you understand "what if's"? I think not lol

HateSpeechFanBoy • 1 point • 10 November, 2022 10:56 PM

I didn't say that it isn't a valid question

_Duriel_1000_[S] • 0 points • 10 November, 2022 11:32 PM

oh okay :)

JumboJetz • 1 point • 13 November, 2022 07:07 PM

I'd be shocked they feel so passionate and remember me.

I think my biggest issue is how unremarkable and drama free I am. I'm shocked to elicit any kindof extreme emotion in an ex like that.

NotARussianBot1984 • 1 point • 21 November, 2022 03:16 AM

Ok im a guy.

But my gf had this happen. All her exes formed a club and met up. All they had in common was having sex with her. She shrugs it off, wasn't a big deal just weird ish.
