Blue pill = mainstream fairytale view of love Red pill = women are brutal. Women choose the winners. Focus on yourself and you'll attract women you desire. Black pill = Red pill views EXCEPT that you can't do much to improve and your attractiveness is what mostly matters. You can't change it easily Purple pill = mix between red and blue. It's more of a balance.

Blue = women will love you for your personality (lol)

Red = women will love you for your physical attributes mostly but there is stuff you can do to improve

Black = women will love you for your physical attributes only so just give up

Blue = what your mom told you

Red= what your uncle told you

Black= red with a fatalistic outlook based on genes.

Purple = not fully red(I think most self proclaimed rpers fall into this)

Bluepill: Accept societal norms as your own personal values. Stay in vogue with things. Do not question. Reproduce established ideas and essentially form little to no opinions of your own.

Redpill: Wake up to "uncomfortable realities" and become essentially a contrarian. In the dating sense, this means learning to become "alpha" and improving things on yourself to pick up potential people.

Purplepill: This is usually only included in the dating context, rather than the broad philosophical one. It usually means a rejection of either "pill", seeing all people as unique and acknowledging that both sides have valid arguments.

Blackpill: This is pessimistic, depression inducing nihilism. Blackpillers believe that the world has gone to shit, and that there is no point in trying anymore. Blackpillers often believe in nihilism, misanthropy, incelism, and usually become quite bitter and resentful towards everything around this. In the dating context, blackpill refers to the belief that only looks matter, and that "subhumans" will never be able to get a date.

Whitepill: Whitepill is often called the final pill. It is an acknowledgement of the world being in a less than optimal state, but instead of anger, the response is acceptance. Whitepill philosophy focuses on internal peace, stoicism, self-fulfillment, and happiness. You acknowledge your flaws, focus on what makes you happy, and live a fulfilling life.
