This is obvious to any self respecting non-white knighting man. As a non-Chad male no one really cares about you, you either suck it up or you kill yourself

She killed herself like 20 years later. So i don't think this was related.

Yep. Her experiment was in early 2000, the book about her experiment came out in 2006. She killed herself last year. Not that she had such a great time after her experiment, but she didn't kill herself right after her experiment.

I agree with the message but did she really kill herself for that reason?

We don't really know....but I think she had like gender confusion and that maybe contributed to her assisted suicide. But she did mention after the experiment she did decades ago that male privilege did not exist

I read she fully identified herself as a woman even after the experiment, was feminine and proud of liking feminine stuff.

Learning how reality is for men perhaps made her more vulnerable to depression but I don't know what happened to her, she might have had chronic pain or something unrelated to the experiment. Her work was very valuable for men but it's mostly focused on toxic masculinity towards men themselves. She basically came to the conclusion that men are also suffering societal indoctrination, perhaps more than women and in a ruthless way, so obviously there's no privilege.

It's tough being a man especially in western societies. I literally only like women because of my sexual urges, there's literally no other reason why women are needed
