

Stop trying to explain your failures away.

March 9, 2023 | 7 upvotes | by crypto_druid

You can research and debate all you wish, you can find studies, surveys, and anecdotes to explain why you are disadvantaged, and you may or may not be right, not none of that matters.

What matters is that you know you are disadvantaged, explaining why you are disadvantaged isnt going to stop you from being disadvantaged.

The only thing that can create advantage for you is you, no one is coming to save you, no one else cares if you are disadvantaged....every person has their own flaws and mental bullshit they have to deal with in their own heads, people care about themselves, not about you.

Life is extremely competitive, as a male, it's even more fierce.

The way to create advantage is to develop a unique sets of skills or qualities that make you valuable to other people, and to use those skills to create value.

What can you currently offer the world?. If I was to meet you in person for the first time tomorrow, can you demonstrate anything to me that would make me want to meet you again? If the answer is no, can you demonstrate anything to anyone that would make them want to meet you again?. If the answer is no....then why? And why would anybody want anything to do with you if you offer no value to them? Think about that.

Please no idiotic comments. Let's try to have a mature discussion about personal responsibility for once with out triggering of snowflakes. If you're offended by reality.....then be offended...nothings going to happen, dont tell me, I don't care.

this is true but rather than explaining to others why you're disadvantaged, finding out that you are and understanding how can go a long way in gaining advantages. not knowing how your situation is different from someone else's is how french people who watched too many american police shows end up citing the bill of rights to french cops when they're under arrest and making fools of themselves.

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 9 March, 2023 02:02 PM

Yes, like I said....you can know why, but it's still not going to change anything.

People can dedicate their time to do something about it....or they can be black pilld and dedicate their time to do nothing but focus on the disadvantages and use that as a reason to do nothing about it

The idea that sex is the result of "hard work" and "taking responsibility" is idiotic

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 9 March, 2023 03:58 PM

I'm glad you posted.

You've made it clear you are not interested in what I have to say and that's fine, For the sake of people reading....

Going back to what I said about having qualities that would make people want to meet you again....

Imagine you were invited by a friend to make some decent contacts that he knows, you show up and you're sitting in the company of some serious people, they are all discussing important topics like improvement, responsibility and work, everybody is chipping in ideas, expressing themselves to the best of their ability and trying to inspire each other. And one guy is sitting there sniggering, offering nothing of substance at all, just jeering at them, making wise cracks, minimising everything anyone says.

Do you think these men are going to say after "this is a guy we would love to have as a friend, ally and colleague?. Or do you think they'd say to whoever invited him "why did you invite this guy?" and ask him not to invite him again?.

I already touched on the importance of value, if you can't bring substance, or at minimum, respect to others, then you're always going to be disadvantaged in life, no one is going to want to help you or be around you.

debatelord_1 • 1 point • 9 March, 2023 04:48 PM

You must be real fun at parties, always discussing "serious topics" and "work"

Tbh irl I'm often the guy people come to with serious topics because I'm well informed. I'm the guy with the plan and known to be extremely reliable.

So, you should understand what ive been talking about.

And you obviously also know there's a time to be serious and a time to be a clown, if you didn't then your friends wouldn't take you so seriously

Show me your company and I'll tell you who you are.

I'm not stopping you.

I think the biggest problem is that the (percieved) reward is not worth the effort and in addition the energy level of people is proportional to their self esteem, which most always is based upon being good looking.

It's a matter of chicken and egg: if you end up a "loser" how are you going to find the will and energy to try to improve yourself?

I'm not saying this to discourage people, I just want to point the main problem that is not talked about in self-improvement speeches such as this post. Most times the energy to self improve won't and can't come from the inside because most people need the feeling that their goal is reachable and not too far away

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 04:38 AM*

If it can't come from you, where can it come from?.

why can't it be far away? Why can't things be difficult to attain?

100ks-p1lled • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 11:28 AM

I don't have a definite answer, I suppose most humans are naturally designed to give importance to short term and mid term goals, if something is too far away in time or difficulty humans will usually give up or shift goal.

crypto_druid[S] • 0 points • 10 March, 2023 12:47 PM

Are you sure we are naturally designed? Or coddled by technology to expect everything to be quick and easy.

It's a form of entitlement. IMO

I wouldn't imagine anything came quick and easy to anyone pre industrial revolution time, and really not until around maybe the 1960s things just started becoming more easily available

A one liner with no substance designed to minimise a persons effort to express himself as articulately as he can.

clearly my efforts were the idiotic ones and yours fantastically showed off your intellectual prowess. Youre an asset to the community.

Dreaminofthepasts • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 06:48 AM

"Idiotic comment" was given a commensurate response. You get what you dish out

You could have, for example, chosen to explain why it's idiotic.

But nope, you didn't.

So far all I see is it's length

Well the words idiotic comment isn't really long either, and at least mine was actually engaging the material and not just overturning the game board

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 09:02 AM

“ You could have, for example, chosen to explain why it's idiotic”

I assumed it would have been self apparent, but seeing as it wasn't, I explained why in the above comment

“ You get what you dish out “

I also explained in the above comment that your response to my OP was a far cry from what I dished out.

here it is again in case you missed it...

“ A one liner with no substance designed to minimise a persons effort to express himself as articulately as he can“

at least mine was actually engaging the material you are more than welcome to clarify what relevance or substance your comment had in relation to my post

Dreaminofthepasts • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 10:37 AM

Either muh equality is true, or a wicked fucking lie used to exploit men.

If

Life is extremely competitive, as a male, it's even more fierce.

Is true, then muh equality is a wicked lie.

If it is a wicked lie, the liars need to be held to account

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 12:43 PM

What has equality got to do with my post?.

Answer, nothing.

No substance, no relevance.

You're just thread hijacking.

Idiocy.

Nothing good can come from engaging with a bad faith actor, I have said everything I want to say.

Single motherhood is feminists' fault. Before liberation, there were intact families not sure what that has to do with my post. But ok.

Dreaminofthepasts • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 05:59 AM

How are their dads gonna give them talks when they ain't even in the house

Very true.

and sometimes even at home fathers are absent fathers

The way to create advantage is to develop a unique sets of skills or qualities that make you valuable to other people, and to use those skills to create value.

That's a way. It's actually a pretty hard way. There's another option where you create problems until people accept to treat you fairly. The reason you aren't considering that "negative" option is because you're trying to convince the slaves to keep working instead of rebelling.

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 04:36 AM

“ It's actually a pretty hard way”

Why does it have to be easy? Where are you adverse to difficulty and challenge?

”There's another option where you create problems until people accept to treat you fairly” hows that been working out for you?.

Sea-Cow4216 • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 01:10 AM

Playing the red pill game here (and the rock on my finger says I played it well) If I work (and work is the key word here) to be a good homemaker, and I bite my tongue, and take a pause before I start nagging because I want to cultivate the best home and relationship, why would I expect someone who prioritized self improvement as well?

It reminds me of that scene in gone girl where Amy talks about "he honestly expected me to love him unconditionally." No, to be in a relationship means to continually be improving/maintains yourself as you're subjecting someone to you.

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 04:05 AM

why would I expect someone who prioritized self improvement as well?

did you mean “why wouldnt I” ?

of course, you would if you bring value to the table then you should expect that in all relationships with all people.

gruckendud • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 01:53 PM

Getting a unique set of skills is important for getting a career and finding success in life. To relate that to relations between men and women, the money you get from a successful career may definitely help you in becoming a beta bux provider, or being even more than a chad than you already are, but at the end of the day the main "qualities and skills" that women care about are looks and height, which are immutable.

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 10 March, 2023 06:05 PM

The only immutable thing in this conversation is your mind.

You saying that all successful men are “beta buxers”? That's silly.

Looks and height are not qualities or skills man, they are characteristics.

Your qualities and skills are what you can DO for others.

Occams_clipper • 1 point • 12 March, 2023 11:56 PM

The 20th century disproves everything you are so vehemently asserting.

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 13 March, 2023 12:19 AM

That's a great way to say absolutely nothing

Occams_clipper • 1 point • 13 March, 2023 03:07 AM

Feminists were told all the same things that you are now saying to blackpillers. They did the OPPOSITE and got what they wanted.

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 13 March, 2023 04:09 AM*

you're taking the discussion into a Segway. Perhaps make a fresh post to discuss that idea? It's not what I've been discussing. And you have failed to disprove anything

SlapThatSillyWilly • 1 point • 16 March, 2023 02:22 PM

What can you currently offer the world?. If I was to meet you in person for the first time tomorrow, can you demonstrate anything to me that would make me want to meet you again?

Men don't seem to ask women this question.

crypto_druid[S] • 1 point • 17 March, 2023 12:34 AM

The men I know do. Why don't you?.

That's a question every man should ask, not out loud, but ask himself.

“What would make me want to meet her again?”.

There are plenty of women ive had no interest in after first encounter.

Why would you want to meet a girl again who offers no significant value to you?.
