

Older (30+) guys living near college campuses: what's your gaming strategy for college girls?

6 upvotes | 18 January, 2018 | by InscrutablePUA

Currently live near a big university (30k+ population) and see tonnes of cute girls walking around during the day which is my preferred time to approach. Even though I look younger than my 30+ age, I find it difficult to get 2nd encounters since I'm not a part of the college social scene and girls get weirded out pretty quick by 'townies'.

Advice for strategies to bang college chicks?

They only get weirded out if your SMV isn't high enough.

30+ isn't too old to frequent the college bars on campus (if there is any). Follow the basic red pill advice: lift, look good, be successful, etc & it's just business as usual.

Same shit, different day. Your age isn't the issue.

I'm 31 and yesterday I went to a campus in order to study. I haven't approached any girl, but I'm confident I have huge chances. My SMV compared to the pool (lame students who dress bad and beta as fuck) is high...so in theory I'm in the best spot. Just look at other guys and see who you fare compared to the rest of the pool

That's what I love about college. 90% of the competition are soy boy retards with less than an ounce of testosterone in them.

how are planning on achieving that when you are 10 years older than most people there and culturally out of touch with them...

ex.. you wont like the same music they are listening, you wont like the shows they watch... you wont recognize their popular references...

have you seen how akward it was when one of your parents or grandparent tried to be "cool"? thats what you are now...

The age gap doesn't matter. Obv we share different views, behaviors, tastes etc... But this isn't a problem. This maybe tip the scale in your favour, since you are different from everybody else. Anyway from you POV, girls shouldn't be attracted by older guys, while this couldn't be farther from the truth do university women ever need game? i mean i live right next to my town's university and i dont even go there and i never seem to have a problem getting a woman. im not even that decently attractive, most women just happen to have low standards like myself. its not like either of us will date or anything
