

I dont want to work because then I have no time for my gf

July 15, 2015 | 0 upvotes | by dongpal

I'm 23 and first time in my life I have a gf, for 1 month now. I found work/a job but I dont really want to go there because then I dont really have time for my gf anymore. What should I do or how should I think about it? I dont have much money but I value time & being together with her more than earning money. I was suicidal because I was always alone in my life. Now I finally found someone and we did a lot of things already in 1 month relationship.

You are going to smother her and drive her away because you are desperate to keep her. Go to work.

You ditch work to be with her: she leaves you and you get no money.

You don't ditch work to be with her: she doesn't leave you and you get money.

but ... all the sex and time we spend together, it's now rare. Today she would meet me at my home at 11am and we would fuck each other until night.

But now I have a job and I had to cancel it and instead work 7 hours every day.... my brain tells me sex > work

Seven hours is not a long work day. Fuck her in the morning and after work.

Career adds to your smv. That's more important than one girl. She won't find it attractive that you took her over a job. On the flip side, all of a sudden you have a job, an income, and you are too busy being you to have time for her sometimes will increase your smv making her and other women more attracted to you.

Addiction to a bitch can fuck with your friends, your health; and scary enough even your money. - A Pimp Named Slickback.

I just resign from the job. I think the problem was the job I had and not the working itself.
