

Resetting my life : is it a good idea?

November 19, 2015 | 2 upvotes | by RICCIedm

Hello fellow TRPers. I've been here for a year now, and this community has changed my mindset in pretty much all areas : I am now more confident with myself and ready to do whatever I want to, not what I am told to do.

I've gone from having a 1 year long LTR with no sex (bp days) to fucking 16 girls that I am attracted to without paying money or going to expensive dates (in 2015). Brags aside, I still need help.

While my sex life is going better, I still haven't found a career. I've gone from great student to civil engineering college, then quit to play poker. I've then left to teach martial arts but decided to leave. Am now studying Physical Education at a shitty institution and plan to leave.

I am 22 years old and plan to have kids around 30~35, so it's not like I can waste time. I am brazilian (and live here), where there aren't many opportunities for unskilled workers. In december, I'm going to USA as a 'tourist', but I plan to do TONS of gigs and raise money(maybe get some MMA fights and see where it goes). Any tips on how to proceed? I perceive myself as smart and capable of doing this move.

Thanks for everything

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

[deleted] • 2 points • 19 November, 2015 07:46 PM

Research affiliate marketing, dropshipping and start working on content development. Meaning learn to create media - write, make videos, design websites, take photos, whatever. Go for online income, regular jobs should only be used to support you while you build other income streams.

Read 4 hour work week, vagabonding, listen to the beastly gentleman podcast, develop your creation skills. Higherperspective.com makes like 30$k a month and its just clickbait. If you can convince people to click on your stuff you can make bank.

RICCIedm[S] • 1 point • 20 November, 2015 02:03 AM

thanks

RICCIedm[S] • 1 point • 20 November, 2015 01:49 PM

I've been reading about what u said and looks like writing clickbait material (5 tips to ...) can be interesting. Would you reccomend me to produce content in English (broader field of readers, but I don't write that well and the competition is tougher) or Portuguese ? (only 180mi brazilians, +some portuguese and african)

[deleted] • 1 point • 20 November, 2015 02:51 PM

Do both. I'd say start with English, learn, then start a second website. Try to find writers eventually by leveraging how many readers you get instead of paying them (til you can afford to) because writing these articles is annoying.

RICCIedm[S] • 1 point • 20 November, 2015 02:56 PM

Ok, nice. After I start writing, what can I do to make it popular? Will I wait for people to find it on search engines, or will I be following strategies to market my website?

[deleted] • 1 point • 20 November, 2015 03:53 PM

Hardest part. Be consistent on social media (all) and make intriguing content. Get people taking about your website or stories by creating discussion groups (fb groups are great)

[deleted] • 1 points • 19 November, 2015 05:15 PM

[permanently deleted]

opening_eyes • 2 points • 19 November, 2015 05:38 PM

"needing only a couple years to finish my degree" is way easier to actually finish at 22 than 32. Get a degree. If you ever decide to move to another country or find yourself needing to do temporary office work, a degree, especially in a science, puts you at extreme advantages.

RICCIedm[S] • 1 point • 19 November, 2015 06:18 PM

I was 17, started experimenting alcohol and drugs, had no idea of what to do with my life. And now I'm not close to finishing anything : I'd need 7 years to get selected in again and then finish the course. Not an option.