

“I wanted to show that average is beautiful,” Lamm says in a video promoting the doll, Lammily. “Lammily promotes realistic beauty standards, because she is made according to typical human body proportions.”

The Ken version will still have washboard abs, bulging biceps, and be the equivalent of 6' 4" tall.

But the feels, YOUR IGNORING THE FEELS

If average were beautiful, then getting C's in school would be rewarded to the same extent as getting A's.

Makes no fucking sense. Let the hamsters keep spinnin'.

"I want the fat doll!"

Standards of beauty according to WHOM? Gay men and women are the only ones who think attractive women are rail thin.

Heterosexual men want curves. What we don't want is FAT.

Might be a good investment by the backers. Could very well be a collectors item in some decades. We all know a production line won't sell shit so we can expect them to be quite rare.

Lammily has a way better ass than Barbie. Don't forget that aspect.

Good grief, that's the average 19 year old girl today? I guess every girl I've been with in the last year is a 9.9/10. And nice job to the guy doing this for being a gigantic white knight.

HullBredd • 2 points • 8 March, 2014 07:07 AM that barbie looks like the top 85th percentile of women.

[deleted] • 2 points • 7 March, 2014 11:21 PM

Average is beautiful to who? Instead of trying to improve herself, this author tries to make everyone change what people naturally find attractive, which is ironic since that's harder than putting the damn fork down.
