

How might prostate play and pegging affect a M/F married relationship?

November 3, 2018 | 2 upvotes | by Drinkingcoffee402

I've become RP aware since about March this year but have been increasingly getting into prostate play and pegging with my wife for the last couple of years.

I'm the more dominant one in our relationship and I lead in the bedroom but I love encouraging her from time to time to physically take charge when we play this way.

Generally I'm more closed book than open but when I get turned on I love how it makes me feel so open and vulnerable with her and I end up telling her what I want us/her to do.

Basically, will this have any unforeseen negative shift in dynamic as our relationship progresses? Have any of you tackled issues surrounding this in your LTRs? Feel free to PM if you'd rather not engage in open discussion. Thanks

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

RubyRyder • 1 point • 5 November, 2018 08:36 PM

Found your post in a search for 'pegging'. I've been teaching about it for 6 years now, and have talked with many, many couples about it.

I teach a free webinar that addresses much of what you are curious about here, the power balance, dominance/submission, vulnerability, as well as the how tos, safety, equipment, etc.

<http://peggingparadise.com/blog/webinar-signup/>