

Alpha Males Do Not Exist

November 24, 2017 | 5 upvotes | by davmpls

---

Archived from theredarchive.com

---

Comments

---

andrew21w • 12 points • 26 November, 2017 08:52 AM

This guy is one of the most beta cucks I have ever seen

davmpls[S] • 8 points • 27 November, 2017 04:19 PM

You are an internet cliché. I posted this knowing someone would post this answer. No regrets.

gyiparrp • 8 points • 18 December, 2017 08:57 AM

"Adam ruins" is classic satire. Typically, but not always, and not in Adam's case, the requirement for satire is humor.

His science isn't incorrect. In wolves, "Alphas" are the heads of families of migratory wolves. The bonobos are our most closely related evolutionary cousins, and their hierarchies tend to be non-linear and matriarchal.

But so what? The common chimp is closer to the Bonobo than the Bonobo is to humans, and chimp societies do follow linear patriarchal patterns. The wolves must reproduce, and what do male cubs do? Either find females and bring them back to the group or become alphas by venturing out on their own.

Again, so what? The label "alpha" connotes to each species meaning relevant to that species. It's the term used to describe the phenomenon that females of a species all tend to be most attracted to males of a certain type. Those males are considered "alpha". This applies even in matriarchal societies -- the alpha males are those that the alpha female chooses.

The "alpha" term doesn't apply in groups where mate-selection is forced, coerced, or desperately driven. It also doesn't apply when members of the species are genetically or phenotypically indistinct. In peaceful and free human societies, none of the above apply.

You can remove the relevance of the Alpha male by emboldening young females risk-taking and aggressiveness, by punishing male aggressiveness and risk-taking, and by removing cultural barriers that reinforce these behavioral tendencies.... exactly what the BluePillars and much of western media are trying to do in the name of 'equality'.

davmpls[S] • 1 point • 18 December, 2017 01:41 PM

Thanks another sexist pig heard from. So many words!

gyiparrp • 8 points • 18 December, 2017 01:56 PM

I am deeply DEEPLY shamed -- and hurt -- by your harsh discriminatory labels! I must now cry and make an appointment with my psychiatrist, after I OK that with my mother.

davmpls[S] • 3 points • 18 December, 2017 09:24 PM

On your way to the shrink, pick up a dictionary.

[deleted] • 1 point • 6 March, 2018 10:26 PM

Mate, I'm not a regular member of this subreddit, but you should at least take a look as to what they're saying. I mean, I get that you're trolling, which is great and all (I was thinking about doing the same thing, actually), but there are some interesting points the lengthy comment posted here.

davmpls[S] • 0 points • 8 March, 2018 12:34 PM

No there are no interesting points

[deleted] • 1 point • 8 March, 2018 02:30 PM

I highly suggest you actually check out this subreddit, in all seriousness, lol :)

davmpls[S] • 1 point • 8 March, 2018 07:03 PM

Did.