

Sensing the "main event" is imminent and looking for suggestions

I have been upping the Dread a bit and I'm sensing that my wife is getting the hint. Sexual frequency and enthusiasm is increasing, BJs are back, and she's following my lead around the house with kids, chores, etc. I'm starting to get a few remarks along the lines of "What are you thinking? Is everything okay? You seem different.". I'm sensing the main event may be coming soon. Does anyone have suggestions on how to handle this? Are there sidebar resources or favorite posts of anyone having gone through this? I'd like to be prepared.

Stats - 45 y.o., married 15 years, 5'8" 175 lbs, 12% BF, 3 kids (13, 10, 7), unplugging for six months, Crossfit for 1 yr, max lifts: BP 175, DL 350, BS 285 (about 4 months out of date). DL 3 or 4. Readings: NMMNG, MMSLP, MAP, WISNIFG, Book of Pook, Saving a Low Sex Marriage, Seven Habits, currently reading Models. Tried WOTSM but I don't think I'm ready for it.

UPDATE - Helpful comments from everyone here. Maybe I'm not as close to the main event as I had imagined. Back to the grind.

You don't have to "do" anything. Her mood doesn't affect you.

You only need a main event -where you say hit the fucking door- if she wasn't improving. But she is... so keep improving and upping your SMV.

She WILL reach a saturation point and probably accuse you of cheating... just AA and give her a strong oak comfort hug. Don't be a bitch and DEER. Don't bring up the last 10 years of your sexless relationship or past resentments. Let all that shit go.

Don't say shit & Don't talk about fight club.

Throw in some comfort here and there.

How do you "sense" something you've never experienced.

The main event doesn't just happen out of the blue. It builds. A couple comments from her in no way suggests a main event is coming. Keep up the dread, but mix in a little comfort...

Just had one, a week ago. I can tell you this: it's either going to happen or not. It doesn't sound like she's throwing massive shit tests your way yet everyday to poke at your frame.

For me, I had shit tests everyday for weeks. It builds. The more I passed them, the more crazy they got. Until one day I had passed enough of them to be prepared for the main event.

At least that's how it seemed to me. I was training the whole time for the main event. It was like lifting for months pushing every fucking workout when suddenly I knew what was going on. I was getting stronger.

Then one day she tried to throw every weight I'd ever lifted at me. When she realized that I could lift them all with ease she broke down and wanted to know in so many words how she fit into my life when she felt like such a failure of a wife... which she is. But that's not her fault - it is mine.

I simply told her my mission and my expectations of a marriage, including regular fucking. Only tell her once overtly, if you have to.

Then your actions speak.

You'll be tempted to get comfortable after a main event because things will be "nice". You'll be tempted to take a day or two off. Hold frame motherfucker and don't slip. We don't get days off.

If you take a day off after the main event you'll reset back to zero. Trust me. I did, and it set me back just as long until my 2nd main event. I wasn't prepared for the first

Your woman will reach a point where:

1. She is very pissed off about losing her cozy position of being married to a supplicating beta who does everything for her for very little in return
2. She has come to the realization that you have other options and feels actual dread of you leaving her for greener pastures.

At that moment she will find some bullshit reason to have a major blowout fight. The original reason for the fight will fade quickly as her hamster spirals out of control and she "garbage cans" you (throws everything she can think of at you).

Your response is to be an oak. You acknowledge that you remain dedicated to your family, but you have been unhappy with the way things have been going, and expect change.

In a few days she'll calm down and go back to giving you base-level shit tests.

Enjoy. The main event is a sign of progress.

Or. If it fails- it is a harbinger of the end.

I never had a main event. I feel left out. The main event was me articulating my vision for the marriage.

If it comes, you sound like you have prepared. Don't worry about something that hasn't happened

Sounds more like you have months of getting called an asshole before you get near the main event.

Just hold frame

Could be that she's along for the ride, and there will be no main event. I haven't had one and feel like things are getting pretty close to what I want. Since she hasn't fought you on giving up her power, it could be that she trusts you to steer the ship and is just relieved that you're now man enough to do so. Keep working, just know what you want out of life and refuse to accept less than that. Overtly state that should a main event occur and be prepared to outline your vision ONCE during the main event.

Main event is the fight over who's going to control billy beta or billy has found his ball sack, and he will stay in frame, and lead the relationship

This is comfort testing.

Sidebar —>>>>.

Educate yourself. Apparently, you aren't thinking as the "prize" and your lack of knowledge could send you into Rambo shit not knowing what is going on.

STFU. Read. Identify tests. Reward good behavior. Lift.

Here's a great example of a Main Event. I'm sure you will find it useful.

It is helpful and a good read. I'm in the "wife is having an emotional and possibly physical affair" portion of the story. But, as you know as well as anyone here, you can't just cut out that tumor and call it good. There needs to be a fundamental remaking of yourself and then a reassessment. It happened / is happening because I'm a weak beta autistic fuck. But every day the rope gets a little less slack in it.

I'm in the "wife is having an emotional and possibly physical affair" portion of the story.

Kind of a buried lead here, dontcha think? This should be in your post.

I talk about this all the time in my OYS posts and get tired of repeating myself on it. Besides, the consensus around here and my internal conclusion is that all I can do is Dread and Red.

Don't have one. Continue being great. If she shit test you no matter how minor or main / major.. don't let it change u in any way shape or fashion.

You are the captain .. you dictate when you want to have a main event .. and then even then you calmly tell her what it is.. the goal is to never ever let a woman or any human being for that matter draw u that deep into their drama. Your too busy being locked in on your mission to main event with anyone even your wife.
