

Are there any books for my wife to read to set her on her own path of enlightenment that will help benefit our family?

She's got to want to do it on her own. Don't just give her books and expect her to act like a man and willfully self improve. But, if she is interested:

Can you provide a summary or key points?

I've seen a response to this same question and wish I could find it to give the person due credit.

His answer was something along the lines of "go to the store and get a notebook. on page 1 write "how to be a better wife". On every page after that write "give your husband blowjobs". Give her the book." lol!

Clearly that's not what you're looking for here, but you've got some good responses so I figured there's no harm in a little humor at this point Straight up. Be a great man . Be masculine Lead.

She will follow to keep up. Notice how I wrote masculine. Not fagguline i believe /r/RedPillWomen has some resources for women to read. here is a place to start. it does not have all the books i see generally recommended there, but there is a category for family that should still be helpful.

Is she asking? Or are you trying to get her to be easier on you trying to be captain?

She's crying for help. Like me, she wasn't taught how to be an adult/wife, and like me needs guidance, like i found in the side bar.

I commend you both. I wasn't taught how to adult either, and crashed a marriage and business before figuring it out. Good for you both.

Crying for help meaning she's actually asking, or do you mean you are crying for help with her behavior towards you and you are trying to get her to do your work?
