

How direct to go with girls in college classes

4 upvotes | 6 February, 2019 | by latinasonly

- generic indirect is a method where you talk to her and she expresses romantic interest in you before you express interest in her.
- And direct is where you express your romantic interest first.
- 'WestIndianArchie' - <http://www.westindianarchie.com/>

the question of direct vs indirect has plagued me for some time. I am a college student at a smaller school. I too have noticed that confident direct game builds "social proof" (commands respect) even when getting rejected. A lot of random girls I have asked out very directly and have rejected me will smile and say hi, when they see me around. people gossip about my approaches... sometimes they are talking trash when i get rejected, some times giving props for an attempt even if i failed, other times they are praising when I score.

I have a cute girl that has been smiling at me in my class. i have also made a bit of chit-chat with her, and it is fairly clear she likes me. i made scene when someone tried to take my seat, and immediately afterward when I made eye contact with this girl for the first time, she smiled at me . (I am the fucking man in that class, its all women (including prof.) and geek guys) I have been in many scenarios like these, where I ask a girl for her number after brief chit-chat in class and get rejected. other times, I tell myself to wait it out and go less direct, to deal with the girl as if she was a guy... and end up never making a move.

how direct do you recommend to go in a classroom scenario ? should I ask a girl to go for some food and then go to a party... or to meet up and study first ?

in a social circle scenario? with a girl giving obvious (nonverbal) interest (always looking at me, smiling, standing very close to me) ?

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

PotatoWatt • 7 points • 6 February, 2019 02:36 PM

You are overthinking a bit, here are my takes on this:

-Direct game wont work unless you have high SMV, because girls like to make it look like "oh it just happened" like oh it was supposed for us to go and study but it just happened... So that when she breaks up with you its your fault, they dont like to have anything on their shoulders.

-People talking a lot about you is good and bad, depends on your SMV. If your SMV is high you will get 'he goes for what he wants' vibe, if your smv is low you will get 'he so desesperate he goes for everything jeez', it depends honestly let another person make a note on this topic

-Try this: Make convo, if she is showing IOIs then go for "hey I heard about this place at X the other day, I was going there with some friends but they cant go you wanna join me sometime?" if she says sure or maybe then ask her for her number and boom, wait a day or so and ask her out. If she comes great, if not oh well try to t get her to introduce her to her friends.

-Use common sense and calibrate, dont be the creepy weirdo. Always be improving your SMV the best you can also.