

Have any of you guys ever wondered how discussing TRP with parents or a therapist would be received? Have you had that convo? If so, was it regarded as crazy?

February 17, 2019 | 3 upvotes | by dtyler86

/r/asktrp/comments/arhogl/have_any_of_you_guys_ever_wondered_how_discussing/

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

Oio- • 27 points • 17 February, 2019 07:02 AM*

Never talk about Fight Club. Just don't use any red-pill lingo and everyone will agree with it.

I've decided to get in really good shape because my health is important to me.

I have to focus on my own needs first right now.

Before I commit to anyone, I want to date a variety of people.

I got too involved in a bad relationship in the past and got hurt, so I've decided not to get so deeply involved right away...

I over-invested in a previous relationship and discovered that even though I was faithful, my partner was unfaithful to me...

In the current me-too climate, I've decided to record all my sexual encounters to prove that consent was present at all times.

Whatever you do, don't talk about Fight Club.

throwitpplaway • 10 points • 17 February, 2019 05:51 AM

Sometimss I talk trp shit with my mom.

Honestly get mixed replies from her. She was born in a heavy heavy macho culture, so she agrees with men having multiple women, abundance, not chasing, feminists are bullshit, and that there is a huge case of false rape going on.

She doesn't agree that women are solipsistic, need a man to be happy, aren't self reliant and things of that nature.

Psychotherapist going to see this week. Not going to blurt it out but plan to do a litmus test and see if he turns more red or blue.

dtyler86[S] • 2 points • 17 February, 2019 05:56 AM

Very interesting. My mom is similar

Oio- • 5 points • 17 February, 2019 07:09 AM

All moms are like that :)

rus9384 • 1 point • 17 February, 2019 01:02 PM

Nah, my mom believes that One True Love is the way, but believes that nowadays women don't even play ASD. That's like fall of morals for her. Disagree with both positions.

ArchsofArch • 2 points • 17 February, 2019 07:03 AM

My mother worked as a coder for the government so she tends to have the same thought process about the world being gamed against women.

CharlesChadworth • 6 points • 17 February, 2019 08:47 AM

Parents are from the Balkans, as patriarchal as it gets. We are ingrained with red pill. Western world yea....not so much, so speaking to a therapist is a no go.

Sexy_Serratus • 1 point • 18 February, 2019 02:22 AM

Which country?

SeasonedRP • 4 points • 17 February, 2019 10:48 AM

I don't see any reason why you should do this.

dtyler86[S] • 2 points • 17 February, 2019 04:33 PM

I know TRP is more than a subreddit, but most people I've ever spoken to about it look at me the way I look at feminazis. I can't stop myself from loudly scoffing at every female reboot movie trailer and it's caused a lot of fiery debate. The MeToo era we're in is directly affecting my income and badly. I do voice overs. Everyone is hiring feminine black men or "strong" androgynous female voices to sound strong and stick it to the patriarchy. I'm growing more angry than I used to be. While a TRP is eye opening and is the way I've been gladly living for about 6 years, I sometimes can't stand the culture I'm forced to live in and am curious about non red pill perspectives gregoire_ • 2 points • 17 February, 2019 11:19 AM*

I talk about some of the concepts with my cousin. I use layman's terms and we agree on most things. Naturally, my cousin is a great girlfriend to her guy.

My parents, not really. Dad minds his business and I just tell my mom that life's too expensive to have only one girlfriend and she never takes anything I say seriously. The most serious it got was that I told them I'd never choose a girl with a flat ass.

319Skew • 2 points • 17 February, 2019 01:49 PM

Dad lives TRP life. Lives alone, does what he wants and bangs women half his age. Mom embodied hypergamy at its finest. Remarried a provider and is a sad glimpse of hypergamy end game post wall.

I chat with dad about TRP concepts but see zero point doing so with mom.

reddit309 1 points 5 March, 2019 03:35 PM [recovered]

i mistakenly told my mom about and she got pissed and said it all sounds like stuff coming from someone like my dad ("your father"). this has turned me away from her and it's sad but i realized how she's been trying to blue pill the fuck out of me and i'm honestly mad about it. i'm not gonna let someone who abandoned (cheated on my dad and left) me and my siblings tell me a god damn thing about relationships or whatever. the reason she got pissed i think is that she can't shelter me anymore.

dtyler86[S] • 1 point • 5 March, 2019 03:47 PM

Honestly good call on your part. My parents divorced when I was six and I live in the household with my mother and two sisters and my mom's ultra beta boyfriend that she dated for 26 years until last year. I literally had a very rude awakening in my mid 20s when I was being cheated on in a five-year long-term relationship realizing all of these sweet, pliable personality flaws my sisters and mother had told me would make me a good man review exact bullshit that got me shit on at work, by my girlfriend and left with a weirdly low level of confidence. Even my actual father and stepmother are a shining example of beta bullshit. Despite my family being very nice very intelligent and successful people, when it comes to TRP it really seems like some deep mystery to most people and I have learned the hard way as you have, it's probably better not to discuss it with parents.

imtheoneimmortal • 1 point • 17 February, 2019 01:38 PM

Why you feel the need to discuss trp?

I never feel the need to discuss trp things with others in real life, maybe here yes