

Wherein AskMen fumbles around with the subjects of female hypergamy and modern female entitlement

May 1, 2014 | 11 upvotes | by HumanSockPuppet

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

[deleted] • 10 points • 1 May, 2014 08:35 PM

Women, tell me more about how men have to be more accepting of beauty standards when we're statistically being fair while you are not.

southernmost • 1 point • 2 May, 2014 02:20 PM

Hey, those land whales ARE in the top 20%. Just ask them.

Invalidity • 10 points • 1 May, 2014 08:54 PM

All those girls and women you see jumping up and down and screaming for guys like Justin Timberlake? Yeah, they're going to be mothers and wives someday. They will marry someday, and maybe if the guy they marry is lucky, it'll be his kid and not some other guy's bastard child.

There's no reason to hate the things that women do, just understand that it is in their nature. Marriage is not a natural thing, don't jump into it especially when you know that your wife was once one of those girls.

EducatedCavemen • 3 points • 2 May, 2014 03:51 AM

Very well put. Marriage is not for men, any man that WANTS to get married must have something wrong with his head.

chucklo • 8 points • 1 May, 2014 03:02 PM

So much frustration expressed in that thread. And it is caused by a lack of understanding. Ironically the very thing these men reject most strongly is the thing that would open their eyes. Everything in the article is something I already know and understand thanks to TRP.

southernmost • 6 points • 1 May, 2014 05:25 PM

Their wealth of ignorance is astounding. I found this particularly offensive:

A few people cannot represent a population.

Hence why the results are meaningless, and we're having this discussion.

Statistics and sampling, how does it work? OKCupid has a huge sample size, and while it may bias towards the tech savvy, it definitely looks to be a good representative population.