

Apparently, people deserve to be found attractive just because they are human. If only we could hook this hamster to the power grid...

March 21, 2013 | 20 upvotes | by Whisper

---

http://www.reddit.com/r/Fitness/comments/1alg3b/some\_thoughts\_regarding\_a\_date\_i\_had\_with\_an/c8zo174

---

Archived from theredarchive.com

---

Comments

---

bigyellowtwink • 10 points • 21 March, 2013 12:41 PM

When I was at my most white knight I told a girl that obese people were still beautiful because they were alive (I had recently seen a lot of pictures of dead people, and even people who were attractive in life are hideous in death). I felt that by virtue of life, people were thus valuable, which may or may not be true, but it sure as hell doesn't make them aesthetically attractive.

[deleted] • 5 points • 21 March, 2013 08:34 AM

Hamster meet facepalm.

seanholio • 5 points • 21 March, 2013 04:49 PM

Attraction is not a choice. Ask any homosexual.

This point blew my mind with its brilliance.

VZPurp • 6 points • 21 March, 2013 06:35 PM

And they'll reply, "Yeah we don't find fat people attractive either."

siralgo • 4 points • 22 March, 2013 11:56 PM

Frankly, I think you completely misunderstood what that person was writing... your title here really spins what that guy wrote in a crazy way.

All he's saying is that it's wrong to get into a relationship with somebody you're not attracted to. To most people, if someone dates them, it means that person is attracted to them. So most people would feel misled if they discovered that their partner was never attracted to them. That is what he's saying...