

I'm moving to a small town an hour outside of a major city , what the hell do I do to meet people?

I'm 25, above average looking. Photographer and musician. I don't work because I have bad sleep disorder and a chronic stomach issue. You'd never know it by meeting me.

I'd like to get portrait clients or meet friends and take pictures of them to expand my portfolio.

I'll be about 35 minutes from the beach and an hour from Orlando.

I don't have a gym membership (I live in an apartment with a decent gym, and where I'm moving has a gym in the community)

So it's not like I'll incidentally meet people by having a normal job or school.

That's not gonna happen. Unfortunately I have to live around them.

meet people

You meet people by doing things. Go do things.

Like if I just start talking to people it's weird is it not? My only friends are an hour away ;(

Not weird at all, get over this.

Go to town "gathering" days, like downtown small business night.

Take a class like "wine and painting", doggie grooming, etc.

Tinder, etc.

Part time job somewhere cool.

Unfortunately my health issues prevent me from having a job because I can not commit to a schedule some days I'm normal, and some I'm unable to function.

You'd never know it

There are some town events I'll check out!

You are full of excuses.

SICFJC[S] • 0 points • 3 August, 2019 01:40 PM

Yeah I didn't know a chronic illness was an excuse.

fuck_everyone__ • 1 point • 3 August, 2019 08:30 PM

Yeah you sound like a chronic faggot. It's no wonder you have not made any new friends.

Have you tried smoking weed

SICFJC[S] • 1 point • 3 August, 2019 01:40 PM

What?

bluepillcarl • 1 point • 3 August, 2019 01:49 PM

Have you tried to smoke weed to see if it helps with your stomach and sleep problems

Get the fuck out

bluepillcarl • 1 point • 3 August, 2019 02:25 PM

Well my buddy had a very bad stomach issue for years and nothing helped him but then he started smoking weed and it changed his life. Might want to give it a shot if you havent already.
