

Questions about the redpill sidebar and "must-reads"

January 6, 2016 | 12 upvotes | by AnonymousAndLovinIt

Hi.

So I've been digesting some redpill stuff on and off for a couple of years, but decided to finally eat up the daunting side-bar of redpill. Don't know why I put it off up till now.

I have a couple of questions, though. Is the order of the books there the best order to read them in? What are the "must-reads"? And what books that are "essential" that aren't on the sidebar?

I ask about it because I felt I got all I could out of Mr.Nice Guy from the first third of the book, and The Manipulated Man was too black-and-white. I have limited time, and have other things to read, so I don't want to wade through books if I'm not getting much out of it.

Any help is appreciated.

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

its-iceman • 7 points • 6 January, 2016 05:23 PM

You can't rush this shit. I felt similarly about parts of NMMNG, but the rest of it really rung true. If you're too "busy" to endure a few chapters of a book that aren't 100% relevant to you, you're doing things wrong.

fr0i • 3 points • 6 January, 2016 03:21 PM

In terms of what books I consider essential I always use this post

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/26a8r8/my_compilation_of_core_redpill_books_read_now/

Good reading order.

Ojisan1 • 2 points • 6 January, 2016 10:26 PM

I think the reading order kind of depends on what your issues are, so I would say look at the titles and descriptions and whatever sounds most appealing to you is probably what you need to read - whether it's about pick up, getting your life in order, finding some spiritual center for yourself, or pure RP theory, or whatever.

But I highly recommend the Book of Pook as a good primer in any case.