Closure is Bullshit

As a man, you don't need closure.

A girl either wants to fuck you or she doesn't. A long, emotional conversation will not change this fact. Girls, however, need to put a man they are dumping into a desexualized box and wrap a pretty bow of closure around it.

By participating in the closure process you are helping her tie the bow around your desexualized fate.

If a girl breaks up with you: Do not talk about your feelings Do not talk about her feelings Do not argue with her reasons Just accept it and grieve on your own time. This is hard.

Why?

Because a woman will never give her ACTUAL reasons for breaking up with you. She will only give you society-approved bullshit that makes her look innocent.

She will never say "you didn't fuck me good enough" or "you're too nice and not exciting" or "no other girl I know wants to fuck you so something must be wrong with you".

She will say "I'm really busy with school and work and don't have time for a relationship now" or "you're great but I'm not ready for anything serious" or "I care about you as a friend". Sometimes the reasons she give will be SO false, such obvious flowery bullshit, that you will feel a deep burning need to set her straight, to correct her misunderstanding.

Don't.

You can't logic a woman. You can say "okay", walk away with a smirk and never contact her again.

Being robbed of emotionally dripping closure, she'll always feel a little incomplete. Why didn't he fight harder for me? Did I really not get to his emotions? Am I not as desirable to him as I thought? Is he more desirable than I thought?

Girls have egos. They WANT to know you're emotional about her breaking up with you. It validates her. So don't do it.

You want a girl dumping you to question her reasons, not verify them.

When a girl dumps you, you want to be able to look back on how you handled it with pride. When you give a girl closure, you give her your pride.

I was lucky to have my first gf ever. She straight up told me that I was too nice and she liked assholes particularly criminals.

Harshest slap of reality I ever had in my life.

At least I'm here now and I have you boiz

So which bank are you robbing next?

BigBoiBahmani • 38 points • 7 October, 2020 05:02 AM

Just open a bank bro they are the best at robbing people

Grandazer • 114 points • 7 October, 2020 12:05 AM

I don't know whether to reply with a joke or a serious answer but I will give you both :

1-serious : even tho I believe that criminals are for women like fit and sexy instagram bitches for us men (extremely high sexual market value) I will still never even think about going that route for two reasons

A- it is not a viable long term option (even though the benefits are sometimes luring) B- I have always considered criminals to be the absolute scum of society and it would an absolute shame for me and my family to be one.

2- joke : my local bank is old and still uses out-dated security measures so that can be my first target.

Fakercel • 2 points • 13 October, 2020 11:30 PM

Have a criminal mindset without employing criminal behaviour. Criminals are so attracted because they live a low inhib lifestyle, where they are the main focus of their world.

You can do the same thing without the downsides and risks of actual crime.

How low are the chances of her not being an obese single mom by 30s, having being beaten several times?

ThrowawayYAYAY2002 • 1 point • 17 October, 2020 11:28 AM

I wish I had that same level of honesty from my recently departed Ex.

I said some nasty things, she ended it. Then she tells me she needs to "work on my mind, kids etc" two months later she's dating other men. Hurts like a motherfucker.

You got lucky there.

LotBuilder • 168 points • 7 October, 2020 12:22 AM

"Girl I get it, things have been stale for quite awhile, best of luck to you." Then she's mind fucked wondering when exactly things got stale.

Dimenzije90 • 46 points • 7 October, 2020 10:11 AM

This, i said exactly this to one girl and she was like whaaaat and started chasing me lmao.

LotBuilder • 19 points • 7 October, 2020 04:01 PM

They can't handle that YOU could possibly be getting bored with THEM. It blows their mind so they try harder for a short period of time.

GhostWCoffee • 2 points • 19 October, 2020 04:12 PM

A guy doesn't worship the ground I walk on?! WHAAAAAAAAAAAAAAT?!?!?

CaptainFajita • 9 points • 7 October, 2020 03:20 PM

Yes, that's exactly what they do. A mature woman I'd known for close to 10 years gradually went cold on me (found out she started fucking someone else). Very painful at the time but I eventually sort of shrugged and thought "welp, she's moved on.". So I cut her off cold and moved on with my life. Five years later I happened onto an article closely related to her professional field and thought she'd be interested in the information, so I pushed it to her and said I hoped she was doing well. Next day she drove three hours and showed up unexpectedly in my driveway, claiming she had no idea why I left her, then in the next breath giving some total bullshit reason why she shut down.

Me too. But it also prevented me from reaching out. Small victory acoltismypassport • 60 points • 7 October, 2020 12:10 AM

Said the same thing to friends of mine for years. Closure is for women, you don't have to give them shit. Only should you wind down with a chick if it's to sweeten them up in order to prevent or reduce the chances of being metoo'd, false accusations, if she has dirt on you, etc. Otherwise, ghost, radio silence, pretend you moved to Tbilisi to become a logger.

SalporinRP • 2 points • 8 October, 2020 01:45 AM

Closure is for women, you don't have to give them shit.

Closure is for women to make sure they "won" the breakup. Because like it or not, 99% of breakups have a winner (initiator) and a loser (the party being dumped). And usually the loser is the guy.

Fakercel • 1 point • 13 October, 2020 11:42 PM

When there is equal smv between people the girl will be chasing until she can win with a LTR. If the LTR breaks up it is usually in favour of the women.

The girl is only losing when she is chasing non stop while also not winning commitment.

Women progress their side of the relationship by pushing for more and more ownership of the man. (Time/commitment/control)

When the ownership is complete then she will look elsewhere for progression. Or opportunistically if someone else is offered her way.

Hence breakups of LTRs are usually by women.

salinorum • 59 points • 7 October, 2020 05:25 AM*

Had dinner tonight with a chick. She was showing me the monologue of texts her ex Bf had been sending her over the last month begging for her to come back. Don't be this guy, ever. You leave and don't look back. That's your only option. Otherwise, you look like a weak, needy wimp. I've wanted to talk rationally to ex girlfriends but it's never a good choice, ever.

Don't ever be the guy that your ex shows to the new guy. No matter what you say, your ex and either her friends or new lover will be laughing at you.

I've had chicks before show me all the pathetic shit their ex boyfriends or ex plates texted them. Don't be that guy. If a chick doesn't want you, doesn't respect you, let her go. And maybe she'll come back, maybe she won't. But at least you didn't look like a giant needy pussy when she left.

Keith_Valentine • 9 points • 7 October, 2020 06:38 AM

Yea. I had a 'unicorn' i loved like a pussy but one thing I had going for me was whenever she spazzed out and nuked the relationship, i just left. First time I had to tell her how happy i was for the great times but I didnt cry or yell etc. After that I got better and now i dont care at all. And ive also had women tell me so much embarassing shit about their exes. As soon as they dump you that stuff is gettin spilled.

SalporinRP • 6 points • 8 October, 2020 01:46 AM

She was showing me the monologue of texts her ex Bf had been sending her over the last month begging for her to come back.

I think a lot of guys found the red pill after being on the wrong ends of situations like these. I know I did.

HotConclusion0 • 6 points • 9 October, 2020 08:30 PM

Right. Never look back my friend.

ThrowawayYAYAY2002 • 4 points • 12 October, 2020 09:30 AM

Spot on.

I've had a woman show me messages like that...

We was at hers, she showed me the messages, I whipped out my dick and told her to "suck it". Guess what? She gobbled it. That is how they want to be treated, and that's what's going on at that time.

Don't be that dude that is looking at his phone every 5 minutes or stalking her social media. Start spinning plates! Because whilst you're crying and hurt, she's bouncing on cock. Lots of different cock.

Less is more when you are going through a break up.

You need to realise that your turn is up, stay silent, and let her have doubts about her choices whilst she's thinking about why you haven't initiated contact in a week or so.

This. Don't forget exes are a renewable resource.

BrazilianTerror • 3 points • 9 October, 2020 08:26 AM

You honestly kinda sounded butthurt, specially with the blocking. The post talks more about an indifferent tone. Although I must admit is pretty hard thing to do considering that your a break-up always stir some feelings. It's still better to block and sound a little butthurt than to fall for her tricks when she contacts you.

Don't listen to all these 'too good for school' comments my man. After I read the thing all I did was doing a physical thumbs up to my screen. Of course, you would express some sort of anger/disappointment. It was a relationship, there was feelings involved and we are all human so it's all okay, to be honest. People cut him some slack.

McLovinReturns • 38 points • 7 October, 2020 12:27 AM

I got hit with a "I have to trust my gut on this" which pretty much meant hey I am swinging over to a new branch. Thankful for the redpill I just replied with "Unfortunate, wish you good luck" deleted the number and went about my day lmao. Shits rough but once you realize you are the prize you just don't care what their choice is cause you have a surplus of women to choose from out there

NeedToLearnToListen • 27 points • 7 October, 2020 02:42 AM

The last girl I went on a date with was something. By the end of the second date we were dry humping. After that she started getting further and ignoring my messages or responding a day after I send them. She ended up ghosting me. On a couple of drunk occasions, I was tempted to call her up and get some closure. "Why did you go cold on me out of no where?". Fortunately, I was not that drunk.

aweful_aweful • 39 points • 7 October, 2020 12:54 AM

Comparing how I handled different breakups and the results, also how I felt afterwards this poster has a 100% great analysis, amazing lesson.

My first serious girlfriend, how I handled that -oof- it hurts to think of. When I figured out what the OP states next time on a subconscious level I understood was a truth. Every action confirmed it. I gave no or minimal reaction, didn't care about closure. Like many of you I learned you can't get true answers from woman with direct questions anyway.

We're talking about the difference between looking down on you and feeling sorry for you and hysterical calling a week later and for years on to fuck and party together. Kinky stuff and hot af shit as she tries to pull you back in.

By the way NEVER get back with her officially in this situation. Realize she through your relationship away but you can hang on Fridays and do crazy kinky shit etc. If you do get back together she will 100% break up with you and it probably won't take long.

Had to learn this shit myself. Hope some of you realize how lucky you are to get this knowledge directly -don't waste it.

zino193 • 18 points • 7 October, 2020 07:04 AM

I think men have a thing too, they need things to make sense, to have a cause, causality. That's I think what brought most people to TRP, it gives sense to female behavior, to the timey wimey woowoo of relationships and love™. We need to know that our mental model of the world is accurate, and we can rely on it in the future, because for a man, not understanding the world is death.

Women on the other hand need to feel like they were in the right, that they acted right. That you are indeed a cheater, a liar or the source of their unhappiness. They need to have moral certainty, because if there is a sliver of chance that she is even a little bit in the wrong, if she is the bitch, irrational or even difficult, that means that she is socially in danger, and that for a woman is deadly.

kray67 • 9 points • 7 October, 2020 11:16 AM

Thing is, once you take the pill, you realize this is an exercise in futility.

You don't need her reason. Mainly because she'll never be able/willing to give you the real reason. Either she actually isn't consciously aware and is acting based on feelz... Or, she's gonna feed you some bullshit like "you're sweet but I only see you as a friend/brother", when the reality is "I need a man who gives me tingles and can treat me like a woman, and you're just too much of a pussy".

Once you get here, it's already over. Take the L and move on. Trying to reason with her will only further her point that she's the best you can ever get.

So grieve on your own time, work on yourself and on to the next.

zino193 • 5 points • 7 October, 2020 04:31 PM

I agree... I was just saying men are irrational as well. They need closure, the reason...

And, most relationships aren't going to end in let's be friends - you get off easy when you're just not man enough to play.

The hard part is when a dude is a natura, plays all the right tingles, then becomes domesticated, she loses attraction and then after months or years out of the blue she just says: I don't love you anymore, or I am not happy. Solve for X, Einstein... That's the real tragedy of man. Under any normal circumstances a dude that is reasonably fit, that does make her tingle, should be enough. They should be enough for one another. They should be happy.

But modern men are not developed to be men, they are weak, they are comfy, they are encouraged to be friends with their women, to whine and complain, to seek advice and share their fears and weaknesses. To look for acceptance. Nothing that dude will do isn't bad, yet it is the reason his relationship will fail, without him even knowing.

DerekMorganBAU • 77 points • 7 October, 2020 12:00 AM

Reminds me of how one of my exes used to say "I don't think we're good for each other..."

So I would just shrug and say "Okay," then turn on my phone and start texting.

She'll immediately back track and five minutes later I'm fucking her.

Bitches are easy to read. You have to understand subtext. When a bitch is really determined to break it off with you permanently, she'll be gone with the wind.

Another time one of my exes straight up said to me "You're emotionally distant and a cheater and I can't be with you." This was all true too so I said stone faced to her (cause I legit don't give a single fuck) "Okay," then I started putting my clothes on to leave.

Again, she back tracked and ten minutes later I'm fucking her again and suddenly I'm boyfriend material after all.

I've never been broken up cause of the way I reacted to them trying to break up with me. Shit's hilarious as fuck ☐ strikethrough123 • 18 points • 7 October, 2020 08:02 AM

This is the giant fucking irony of it all. No woman in her right mind will leave you if you don't give a fuck if she leaves (LTR-wise), but the second you start actually caring about her that's when she starts looking for the next branch. It's fucking sickening how this is the way things are, but it is what it is.

Keith_Valentine • 18 points • 7 October, 2020 06:31 AM

In life sometimes the only thing you can do is truly accept something, like the fact you are going to die or many of us will never get the white picket with a loyal babe and cute kids that we wanted.

But by accepting that, you can continue forward and make the most of your reality as it is. Think of the guy that gets dumped and is depressed over it for years. He never accepted what he did wrong or what caused that to happen, so he doesn't move on or learn. Or a fat person that is continually hurt by being called fat, they have not accepted what is and won't work to change it. They're just stuck in perpetual vulnerability because they don't want to face the truth. You can run but reality always catches up to you.

This is big facts. I have a friend (beta as hell!) who asks me for advice all the time on chicks because he broke up with his girl. He always says "She left me because we were both so busy I want her back".

Knowing how I know him this kid is so clueless all he does is smoke weed, play video games and is very socially awkward/ doesn't have a nice look. She dumped him 1st year of college (found better males) they were together since Senior year high school.

So when he told me this I knew it was because of how much of a doormat/undisciplined person he is. Thanks for posting this, this made me reinforce some current knowledge.

Very interesting, and something I haven't thought of before. Before I graduated to toxic BiPo/Borderline sociopaths (gave up amateur status and went pro), I had a couple of girlfriends who perfectly epitomized the whole "monkey swinging on a vine" thing. At the time, I thought that they were so classy, and that I had outkicked my coverage. But they weren't. They were just indecisive 20somethings that had all of their catty friends and family tell them that I wasn't good enough long enough for them to buy in.

I am still on very casual speaking terms with one ex who I was once madly in love with. She was very forthcoming about her mental health issues, and rationalized dumping me with the whole "It's not you, it's me" thing. It wasn't, and it was. She also said that she believed every word that she said to me, and I believe she did. But she absofuckinglutely did me the biggest favor of my life.

In the future, I think I'll treat getting dumped a bit like a self-defense situation. Avoid the fight in the first place, and if you must, eliminate the threat and escape. I also spent 15 years as a teacher, and the best way to end a power struggle with a defiant child is to turn your back to them.

Thanks for sharing. Pretty solid inner game material here.

winstonreefers • 9 points • 7 October, 2020 03:01 AM

Extremely solid post. This is the only way to turn a loss into a win.

To take it even further dedicate all that energy to finding a new hotter fuck and watch the last chick do a complete 180.

ConfidenceCat • 9 points • 7 October, 2020 02:03 PM

Closure can be more of an one sided thing too. You can get it without needing her or giving her closure.

The reason we experience the need for closure is because humans are wired to understand threats. Rejection is painful and the human mind desperately seeks to understand what happened so it doesn't have to experience this emotional pain again.

To get closure is to feel capable of handling romantic relationships without having to fear inevitable pain. To feel capable of that we need to understand what went wrong and how we can avoid having the same happen in the future.

The girl won't give the information you won't (nor does she accurately know herself because she thinks in feelings, not facts) that's why we need guy friends that experienced similar situations. We communicate in straight talk about what happened without any of the bullshit. That is why The Red Pill is so perfect. They openly talk about these subjects without trying to spare your feelings.

You can in fact get closure. Often this is by finding out that your idea of love doesn't align with the reality of it. You need to stop doing what you thought you should do. Becoming a high value male is a matter of trial and error. You can get real closure but often she won't. Her inability to get closure is also a tool for you to use to keep you in girl's heads.

saruin • 11 points • 7 October, 2020 02:04 AM*

RP was very new to me at the time but, I remember one instance I was told by my years long LTR to never contact her again. I just replied "ok" and walked away since. I remember SOO wanting to find some sort of closure or explanation or argument over it... anything really. I've done it many times prior and I end up looking like a cuck/simp after all is said and done (they've all ignored me since goes without saying). But the smallest voice of reason within just told me to leave it alone for good. Years later I'm still amazed how I left that baggage under the best outcome (to me) possible. She actually tried to reach out to me recently which I'll admit made me feel a bit empowered. I have no intention of reciprocating to that which just adds to that feeling. Spot on post! Sometimes you gotta /thread right then and there and simply move on.

Great post, thank you for reminding us

So here's my question. When they randomly message you. Even send you pictures, what is the point of this behavior? What are they trying to get from you? Or what is the subtext?

Say they actually are really busy like a medical residency and work 80 hour weeks and randomly message you but then ghost you?

Is this like a serial killer returning to the crime scene or is it something else?

So here is my next question. Why even tell her anything. Why not just ghost her and block her and be done?

Jesus I've turned down more pussy than I've had and only had a dry spell when I got hit by a car or my hands were broken. I'm not going to have a dry spell because someone on Reddit says so lol.

Hey, respect. Just seeking the perspectives of others when this post jarred my memory.

You're obviously average and need to project otherwise. Keep in mind I live with my gf and I don't need either woman. I don't give a fuck about screwing anything up just because I asked someone else already babbling what their thoughts were lol. I like hearing people out but that doesn't mean I need you vicariously simp on my behalf.

I didn't ask for advice. As in "what should I do". I asked what someone thought to see what they'd say. My mind has long been made up. You're overthinking all of this at this point. I didn't read most of that btw. But after seeing some details at the end you're definitely far below average. Thank you though.

I am printing this out and framing it on my wall.

SKRedPill • 5 points • 8 October, 2020 05:30 PM*

There's only one reason for her breaking up really - her attraction to you went down and died and/ or said attraction wasn't strong enough.

Or there's someone else.

Often both.

If none of these, it means she's dead.

That's how they all end.

What more closure do you need?

bigdudecfc • 4 points • 6 October, 2020 11:34 PM

This is an excellent way of handling your shield and sword tactics when maneuvering though the world today, the way you defend against these scenarios should help build up the experience to attack back when ready.

As we know, it takes time to accumulate the mental strength needed for mishaps such as these but it's on you to find use when hit hard so you can hit back harder.

Equanimity. Accept it with equanimity and move on.

In a way all forms of formalizing change in a relationship is bullshit, whether it's ending, starting, taking a break, etc.

Best post I've seen in awhile. No fat on it; every line is necessary. Thanks for sharing this

I have gotten the "you're too easy" and "too sensitive" from past LTRs. One was a BPD and the other a feminazi and helped me find the red pill.

TrainingBoard6471 • 2 points • 7 October, 2020 02:29 PM

How do you deal with the grief?

blasted_biscuits • 3 points • 7 October, 2020 04:16 PM

Introspection and time. The pain will eventually go away become a lesson for the future.

[deleted] • 2 points • 7 October, 2020 04:03 PM

How to avoid wanting closure? Break it off first saying she just isn't fun enough ;)

negdawin • 2 points • 7 October, 2020 04:45 AM

Good post. I especially liked the part about grieving on your own time. Too many guys can't process their own demons, and look to others for approval

Em muitos momentos de brigas com minha namorada, apenas fico em silêncio, ela fica louca, tem ataque de ansiedade por ver que eu não dou a mínima

"o silencio pode ser ensurdecedor "

My ex ghosted me after 4 years and fucked some sissy boy scumbag just because he had an Audi and knew the lyrics to every drake song.

bigdicknicklick • 1 point • 8 October, 2020 11:12 AM

My GF broke up with me last month. Basically did everything he said not to do. Is there a way I can fix it for myself? I've been working out a lot and loving myself and plan to start more cold approaching. She's nothing to me now.

NobodyP1[S] • 2 points • 8 October, 2020 04:55 PM

All you can do now is work out getting that revenge body and if she ever texts you say something like "who's this"

GreatJobOffers • 1 point • 16 October, 2020 01:26 AM

Yea I completely agree, but my rationale is that understanding why they don't want me will let me know what to work on myself so I find it hard to get closure.
