

Loneliness?

9 upvotes | 22 November, 2019 | by ArnoldT1000

Although I'm on my purpose (getting all my shit done, gyming, avoiding vices, etc.) I still have kind of a sense of loneliness in me. Not a sense of rejection (I have an abundance of associates and pussy). Just constant loneliness. I feel like I can't ever fully connect with people around me, men or women, knowing what I know.

No sense of purpose has ever gotten rid of this feeling. It's always there. I've found that it's at its least when I have a certain woman in my life I'm close to (yeah I know, this is beta bullshit).

Is this something that you will always feel? How can a man who is red-pilled ever feel a sense of genuine connection to those around him?

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

MotorsportEnthusiast • 16 points • 22 November, 2019 07:26 AM

You can't. Make peace with being all by yourself.

redepicw • 4 points • 22 November, 2019 09:58 AM

This.

Warren_Bateman • 2 points • 23 November, 2019 02:06 AM

+1 it doesn't get better. You get better at dealing with it.

[deleted] 22 November, 2019 08:29 AM

[deleted]

LucyDD69 • 2 points • 22 November, 2019 08:50 AM

Beautiful

ghosts_of_me • 4 points • 22 November, 2019 08:34 AM

Everyone needs human connection. Find some friends who you can kick it with on a regular basis.

Kobinks • 3 points • 22 November, 2019 08:31 AM

I used to feel the same way, it was just a transitional phase for me though.

Just because the blue pill fantasies of unconditional love have been shot down doesn't mean you can't enjoy companionship for what it is, just two people that want to share something fleetingly and in the moment, we're here for a good time not a long time.

It all comes down to perspective.

Nastynatee • 1 point • 22 November, 2019 01:04 PM

Your still hanging on to the ideal that fulfillment can come from a girl. That's not what they can offer us (it's just our turn remember). Takes a while to realize this is our old blue pill mindset/expectations. It gets better dude and you will find the sort of fulfillment your looking for without a girl

Smuggler-Tuek • 1 point • 22 November, 2019 05:18 PM

Genuinely learn to love yourself. It may seem weird and can take awhile especially if you have low self esteem but it's necessary.

alexanderthegroovy • 1 point • 22 November, 2019 05:41 PM

I think we feel that way with women because it hits on something deep within our psyche - intimacy.

Imagine being in a tribe. Going to war. The bonds you would feel with the other men, they would be like brothers to you. In fact, a large reason soldiers suffer PTSD is not necessarily from the acts of war, but integrating back into society and feeling a loss of that connection they had with their brothers in arms.

The solution? Practice connecting - with friends, family, even nature.

Corvus_Uraneus • 1 point • 22 November, 2019 07:24 PM

That kind of loneliness is felt by a great many men sleeping next to their wives.

Get a dog.