Model? Ha, ha, ha! Prostitute!

theLeftHatesReality • 170 points • 16 January, 2020 02:44 PM

It's PC to call whores models now.

Yashugan00 • 80 points • 16 January, 2020 05:31 PM

any girl without a job and a social media account is an "aspiring model" yeshabibi • 41 points • 16 January, 2020 06:31 PM

nonono, "influencer" maybe prostitutemonger • 3 points • 29 January, 2020 09:56 PM

I like to call sex workers hookers because it offends them even though that is exactly what they are.

No chance she actually gets jail time. Probation at best.

MartiONE • 161 points • 16 January, 2020 12:43 PM

diariosur.es/marbel...

That's not how it works on Spain, she will hardly be ever prosecuted by this, the DA will not risk a scandal by prosecuting a Woman here otherwise she will be every single TV show telling how our justice is "Patriarcal".

The gross amount of false accusation not prosecuted or ever investigated is extremely high here, women can send you to jail with just a phone call.

Redpiller77 • 95 points • 16 January, 2020 01:10 PM

Gender perspective is the most stupid law ever created. Spain is a feminist trainwreck.

TL;DR

They went to his car for 15 minutes then went back to the club, Where security footage observed them chatting.

A little while later he left with three different women, she actually seems to have had some type of physical altercation with them.

Doctors report found that she had had sex recently but no signs of rape.

She claimed to have been drugged but she tested negative or anything like that.

Basically he banged her, then passed on her for the prospect of three women, she got butt hurt, tried to fight the other chicks, then filed this false claim

She looks fake. And do these filthy women really think it's believable that a famous athlete who's rich needs to rape any woman? What went through her mind? She likely got blown off or ghosted or something. Fornicate, get burned.

Yashugan00 • 27 points • 16 January, 2020 05:33 PM

no, women know what's up, but they collectively hold their mouths as they don't want to pierce the illusion whilst being incredulous that men are so stupid as to fall for it. This behaviour gets filed away in their brain for the day they need to use this tactic. women have evolved through survival to manipulate men (we are their Swiss army knife of utility), so any tactic they learn gets filed for later use pacjax • 60 points • 16 January, 2020 04:44 PM

I know Ill get flak for playing devils advocate about this but famous people have absurd egos I wouldnt put rape in the realm of impossible

Jkrew • 30 points • 16 January, 2020 09:02 PM

Extremely rich people just got burned by associations with Epstein. They could pay any hooker they imagine but the pervs have such insane lives where nothing's off the table to them the power led to messing around with underaged girls.

SalporinRP • 1 point • 17 January, 2020 11:26 PM

Actual rape is more of a power thing than a sexual pleasure thing anyways.

dovahkitch • 35 points • 16 January, 2020 02:33 PM

I hate to break it to you but it's not like if you're good looking then you can't be a shitty person. You can still look good and don't know how to take a no as an answer.

Lo-G • 38 points • 16 January, 2020 03:17 PM

Looks, money, status. He has all 3. Zero need to rape anyone because 99% of women will consent immediately.

sehns • 7 points • 16 January, 2020 03:34 PM

"Aggressive consent" would be a better description

SalporinRP • 2 points • 17 January, 2020 11:26 PM

So why do rich people hire escorts frequently then? Including famous celebs and athletes.

Lo-G • 5 points • 18 January, 2020 09:36 AM

You don't pay them to fuck, you pay them to leave.

dovahkitch 1 points 16 January, 2020 04:51 PM [recovered]

I don't agree. I personally would not have sex with a guy just because he's successful /good looking. Actually, if he's too confident it would make me understand he has everything for granted because of his position and therefore he's taking my yes for granted, which is not.

Are there people who sleep with other people for clout? Oh yeah sure! And it's something I personally hate but I also think it's more generally frowned upon. Not that it matters but oh well...

Actually maybe just because he "has all 3" as you say, that's what could bring him to ignore a no as an answer and therefore rape somebody. "I'm good looking and rich, they can't be serious when saying no to me, right?". Makes my skin crawl.

ColdBrother • 7 points • 16 January, 2020 05:11 PM

You don't need to lie. Irl you would be all over him

dovahkitch • 0 points • 16 January, 2020 06:52 PM

There's no point in lying. It's up to you of course if you want to believe me but regardless, I really do hope you and everyone else find someone who values you for more than money or good looks. And I hope you won't settle for less.

isweartoofuckingmuch 1 points 17 January, 2020 10:21 AM [recovered]

dovahkitch • 1 point • 17 January, 2020 01:28 PM

dan523 • 1 point • 16 January, 2020 07:02 PM

Obviously but they're just talking about sex, not a marriage.

SteroidsFreak • 3 points • 16 January, 2020 05:08 PM

You might say no but other women will say yes. If he says "no" to them because he's not inclined to sleep with them and they accuse him of rape, then who is at fault now?

dovahkitch • 3 points • 16 January, 2020 06:54 PM

Them, of course. A false accusation of rape is something that blows my mind with anger and nothing will ever change that.

Yeanahyena • 6 points • 16 January, 2020 03:24 PM

A lot of the times rape is about the feeling of being in power rather than the inability to get women

Maxur9119 1 points 16 January, 2020 01:27 PM [recovered]

You heard about Harvey Weinstein? Jeffrey Epstein?

Lurkingnpost • 16 points • 16 January, 2020 02:56 PM

I have yet to hear about a case where Weinstein physically forced himself upon a woman. An actress who drops to her knees for a role is not a victim. She is a whore.

DarkSyde3000 • 7 points • 16 January, 2020 03:19 PM

Put it this way, his production company allocated millions of dollars a year in the company budget to constantly be paying off his accusers. Getting accused once or twice in Hollywood these days? Eh, pretty standard depending on what you control. Having your company literally allocate funds because of how normal of an occurrence it is with one person in particular is pretty telling. Dude admitted he has a problem lol. Will he actually go to prison for it? Nah, just some fancy rehab bullshit for the ultra rich where he'll probably fuck some of the staff for however much money.

Absolutely true though that most those women in hollywood dropped to their knees or spread their legs for roles are usually the ones accusing others of raping or assaulting them decades later because they don't want to admit they're whores and want people to feel sorry for them.

There is a difference between rape and sexual harrasment.

DarkSyde3000 • 5 points • 16 January, 2020 03:27 PM

Correct and he has accusers of both. The difference is he hasn't fought any of the allegations which if you're innocent with that much money, you destroy those bitches in court and in the public eye. He didn't though, he let the me too movement decimate his standing in Hollywood. Which in all honesty I couldn't give a shit about, those people are fucking worthless and way too full of their own shit.

Phaeer 1 points 16 January, 2020 03:11 PM* [recovered]

He is charged with rape though.

In my book he didn't rape anyone, from what I've heard. He abused his position to get whores to suck his dick which if illegal should be punished but let's not equate that with rape. That is an insult to women who have been raped for real.

Lurkingnpost • 2 points • 16 January, 2020 03:18 PM

As long as there is an element of force, then I'm fine with the charge. I just hope he is not charged because he took a blowjob in exchange for a role in one of his movies.

StringTheory • -5 points • 16 January, 2020 03:13 PM

On the contrary. An actress who drops on her knees on the threat of losing her career is not a whore, she is blackmailed.

FinalFormal2 • 6 points • 16 January, 2020 04:37 PM

Sometimes it be that way, but it there were also women who would take the initiative, putting 'DRR' (director's rights respected) at the bottom of their photographs proposition the directors in hopes of getting a role. (Ian McKellan being the source.)

Blue_Andre • 16 points • 16 January, 2020 02:15 PM

The dude is a 10/10 if you combine looks, status and money. In terms of looks alone, he is blessed. Your comparisons are foolish. Sit down.

And has there been any proof besides social media tweets about Harvey Weinstein? I'd be open to seeing it.

StringTheory 1 points 16 January, 2020 02:49 PM* [recovered]

He says famous athlete implying famous people don't rape. People will rape independent of class.

Weinstein is in court, we'll see, but media reports seem pretty damning.

Blue_Andre • 2 points • 16 January, 2020 03:03 PM

You said famous athlete implying famous people don't rape.

Woah there. Stop straw manning me with those accusations. Stop your emotional drivel.

Zanford • 19 points • 16 January, 2020 10:42 PM

Heartiste had the best explanation for this trend.

"I fucked a celebrity" is no longer really that special for hot women. There are thousands of male celebrities who each bang hundreds or thousands of groupies.

Now they have to up other girls' ante to "this high status male celebrity was so intoxicated with lust for my hotness that he became an animal and..."

Also you have things like medieval cases of one girl saying a guy was literally possessing her with Satan..then lo and behold, other girls overhear this and amazingly come up with the same story

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/List_of_mass_hysteria_cases

The-Peter-Principle • 7 points • 17 January, 2020 08:39 AM

But wait this would mean that women compete with each other (for attention). And the APA has clearly stated that competition is a "toxic male" behavior. Therefore you're hypothesis must be wrong...

lol at the nuns all meowing like cats, that's some next level mind control.

Zanford • 3 points • 17 January, 2020 07:44 PM

It really is remarkable how many 'authoritative' institutions have been completely captured, isn't it. The APA is pathologizing normal competition and trying to normalize child castration.

The Long March Through the Institutions.

Zech4riah • 29 points • 16 January, 2020 02:41 PM

Imagine how many of these cases never see the sunlight when the pro athlete is innocent. They just pay the accuser to keep silent because they fear they would be misjudged in court or crucified publicly.

A "model" being arrested for a false accusation...IN SPAIN??? That country is one of the biggest promoters of liberalism and feminism in the world. It's quite ironic knowing that just 50 years ago Spain was a super religious and traditional nation, it did a complete 180.

2 - 10% of rape claims are ultimately felt to be false.

JMVanOrmer • 54 points • 16 January, 2020 01:30 PM

In order for a rape accusation to be classified as false the accused must file a countersuit and prove defamation of character, loss of wages, etc so the amount of false rape claims are much more than 2-10 percent. Imagine how many falsely accused men get off because of an unsubstantiated claim but don't go through the hassle of a countersuit

Geleemann • 3 points • 17 January, 2020 11:07 AM

You have no idea how the law works. It's innocent until proven guilty.

Helenoftroysboytoy • 21 points • 16 January, 2020 03:14 PM

In theory, yeah. In practice, nah dream-hunter 1 points 16 January, 2020 04:31 PM [recovered]

No. And if it does happen, you can appeal the case. Downvote me all you want but this is the truth.

The reason most guys get punished for false accusations is because they can't keep their fucking mouths shut.

Helenoftroysboytoy • 3 points • 17 January, 2020 03:49 AM

Unless you've actually worked in a law office or are an actual attorney, there's no real basis for what you're saying other than mere speculation. And even then, every state has noticable discrepancies in law application, on top of having different laws for the same situations, that no one generalization will apply across the board. Personally, romanticizing how the law should work always sounds admirable, but, unfortunately for us men, currently, the law doesn't really work that way

VoidInTheBody • 1 point • 17 January, 2020 04:16 PM

Amen. Dream Hunter is lost in a fantasy world. Clearly he has never talked to attorneys about this. I've actually talked with several attorneys and their assistants about women's claims against men and they all say "this is so common. Every day we get tons of calls about this kind of situation where a woman makes false claims against a man and they're guilty until proven innocent because the courts favor a woman's word over facts"

OhNeptune_002 • 11 points • 16 January, 2020 04:53 PM

How deep is your head buried in the pile of bullshit?

All a girls has to do is make an accusation and it's a done deal. Men literally have to give evidence to prove their innocence while women just have to give their "word" it happened. It's more like guilty until proven innocent.

dream-hunter 1 points 16 January, 2020 05:55 PM [recovered]

How about you disprove what I said instead of resort to insults? That would make you more mature.

Look at Brock Turner. Everyone in the world was saying he raped the girl. Media made it worse. There were witnesses that said he raped. But because he knew how to shut the fuck up and let the court do its job, which is innocent until proven guilty, he only got 6 months.

OhNeptune_002 • 10 points • 16 January, 2020 06:20 PM

Lol thats not justice. He's name got dragged through the dirt, lost 3 months of his life, and damaged his career over a lie.

You don't see an issue? The system is broken and women are weaponizing accusations.

dream-hunter 1 points 16 January, 2020 06:42 PM [recovered]

If he wants, he can sue all the media companies who lied about him the same way Nick Sandmann did and made millions in return.

OhNeptune_002 • 9 points • 16 January, 2020 07:01 PM

Or we can have a system that protects both parties identities until proof is provided from the accuser that the person actually committed that crime.

Why the hell would he sue the media company when the person who lied goes free? He should be suing the girl who lied, her face should be on the news as the criminal, and she should be jail for crying wolf and hurting real rape victims. It's not a game or joke. It's serious and can get people killed or ruin their lives.

Again have to ask, how deep is your head in the pile of bullshit?

FrigidWinterWeather 1 points 17 January, 2020 06:34 AM* [recovered]

As one falsely claimed to have raped someone and suffering over a year of trauma fallout from it... I can tell you that you're not innocent until proven guilty. I was punished immediately. I lost my concealed carry license immediately. I was threatened with permanent firearm ban. My job requires certain legal requirements and I almost lost legal authority to do my job all because some confused crazy girl made a single false claim. She didn't even show up in court to make a statement.

dream-hunter 1 points 17 January, 2020 02:24 PM [recovered]

I'm pretty sure something else made it happen. You can't go to the police, say someone did a horrible thing, and have that someone punished just like that.

VoidInTheBody • 1 point • 17 January, 2020 04:11 PM

Actually... You can. That is exactly how most protective orders are made. Claims that don't make sense and a win by default for several months while the court fucks the other party with a protective order with no basis.

empatheticapathetic • 21 points • 16 January, 2020 02:31 PM
