June 8, 2015 | 934 upvotes | by redpillbanana

This thread from the AskWomen subreddit is an interesting example of what goes through the minds of attractive woman when they are complimented/approached by unattractive men. (screen capture here).

Note that the top comment is one that admits a slightly uncomfortable truth: compliments from attractive people carry more weight.

I always appreciate compliments, but honestly they have more weight when they're coming from attractive people.

The response admits a more uncomfortable truth: compliments from unattractive men can be insulting:

I feel mean admitting it, but sometimes a compliment from a guy I am not attracted to is like a job offer from a company I am not interested in. It's not really all that flattering, and depending how badly it's done, it can feel a bit insulting.

The next response gets to the raw truth: being hit on by unattractive men is an honest insult.

When unattractive men have hit on me, I have honestly been insulted. It's sort of like having an amazing degree and work experience, and someone seriously asking you if you want a minimum wage job.

Note that this last commenter is obviously an attractive woman - she's says that, "Being hit on has grown tedious," and actually says, "If you're going to scrape your fingernails against my scar tissue, I'd prefer you be cute."

Further responses talk about how "red pill" her statement is, probably because it is the reality of how most attractive women think:

Your edit brings up many legitimate complaints that many women deal with, but none of them have anything to do with you believing ugly people are lesser than that insult you by thinking they could get a date with you. That's why you have so many comments calling attention to this. This is red pill type thinking.

Reply to the above:

I mean, she's being honest. And she's definitely not alone in that thinking, in my experience.

And this response shows the importance of grooming:

It has a point when for example, for a date I put on full makeup, shave everything, wear nice clothes and have a nice hairstyle, while he doesn't even bother to shave or put on anything nicer than a shirt and jeans. That's an immediate put-off.

Lessons to be learned here:

- If you approach a woman to flirt with her and she finds your SMV to be beneath hers, she'll probably take it as an insult. This explains many of the harsh rejections that you'll see.
- If your SMV is low, monk mode is your friend. Work on yourself until you get your SMV to a reasonable level. The PUA "fake it until you make it" isn't going to help if your SMV is below average.
- Your grooming is an important component of your SMV.
- Attractive women are tired of receiving complements and getting hit on constantly. Don't be like the other men who fawn over attractive women, smothering them with complements. Now you understand where negging came from - at first, it make people stand out from the other men.
- The truth can be uncomfortable/inconvenient/ugly but the truth will also help you understand and succeed in the real world.

It's not just if your SMV genuinely IS lower than hers. It's if SHE THINKS it is lower than hers.

And not all of these snowflakes are geniuses either. ;)

redpillbanana[S] • 180 points • 8 June, 2015 12:51 PM

Yes, and since social standing is an important part of a man's SMV, a sudden dose of social proof can immediately change the situation.

I've had the "Oh really, you're the guest of honor?" moments from women who were actively ignoring me. It would be like a HB9 removing some sort of Scooby Doo-style goblin mask.

CopperFox3c • 145 points • 8 June, 2015 01:49 PM

A woman's number one priority is to be desired. The issue is that - for a woman - desire cannot come from below, it must come from above.

man of average SMV demonstrates women's desire to be wanted by someone of higher social status than them.

they all watch jr fuck up kicking the ball while thinking of the stud that will fk them in the bathroom next to the nacho stand. 100% accurate.

mrmevhemn • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 08:14 AM exactly why you should always let women of average smv know they are wanted by you (someone of higher social status) because they are fairly useless without their vagina.

not trolling. just being realistic.

mrmevhemn • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 08:12 AM indeed +1 approval from a lesser source is not approval.

[deleted] • 31 points • 8 June, 2015 04:53 PM

In college this was EXTREMELY notable at parties whenever someone found out a guy (completely average looking) was president of the Fraternity.

Men can judge 90% of a girls SMV within seconds. Women need more time to get the complete picture favours_of_the_moon • 89 points • 8 June, 2015 01:06 PM

Then there's the issue of the "construction worker/pool guy/surfer dude, etc."

If a dude is muscular or comes across as "alpha" in whatever way, the dude doesn't even have to have a job. Remember the pic of that guy who was in jail that all the women went crazy for? Went viral some time ago.

There's a weird scuzzball factor in play too. lol

[deleted] • 132 points • 8 June, 2015 02:09 PM

Remember also that when women were surveyed by big dating sites like OK Cupid, they found 80% of men to be "below average".

(Men, when asked the same question found (as one might expect) about 50% of women to be below average.)

So if women think that it's "offensive" when a below average guy hits on her, she is talking about 80% of men.

Rathadin • 105 points • 8 June, 2015 02:42 PM

Funny thing is, this just reinforces the notion that the top 20% of men get 80% of the women... the reason the top 20% of men are fucking 80% of them women is because the women are only seriously considering the top 20%.

veggie_girl • 125 points • 8 June, 2015 04:21 PM

This isn't a mere notion. This is a fact. Women will share an alpha before they will settle for a beta.

What I'm about to say will come back to haunt me the moment I post anywhere else on Reddit (but I don't believe in using separate accounts), but this is my honest opinion, reinforced by experience.

I guess about five years ago, in 2010, I started doing a cost-benefit analysis on dating vs. seeing an escort. I kept a Microsoft Excel file detailing the amount of fucks I got from a girl, along with specific sexual acts (blow job, anal, you get the picture). I lived in area with lots of cheap, hot escorts (large college town, around 19,000 students, another 50,000 townies), many of whom were just young college girls trying to pick up an extra $200 - $300.

The moment that the amount of fucks I got was over $100 in terms of her and I hanging out (her coming over to my place to drink and eat, watch a movie, whatever), I'd start scaling back on talking to her.

I know there's a disconnect between the $100 plate figure and the $200 - $300 escort figure, but here's the deal... with all those 8 - 10 hotties posting on escort sites in my college town, it was easy to pick out the college girls by doing reverse image searches and finding their Instagram / Pinterest accounts. From there, I could see who were actually in college, which means I could nab them for $150. A particularly cute tiny Latina girl who was 32C-20-36 and 5' 1" would let me fuck her in the ass bareback and nut in her. Turns out she was 20 and in my psychology class, I just never noticed her.

I'd honest rather fuck a 9.5 petite Latina for 2 hours until my dick hurts and her ass is sore, for $150, than deal with drama bullshit from a plate that costs me $120 in "dates" and expenditures. With the Latina, I just call her up when I'm DTF. With the plate, I may or may not get what I want. I love fucking girls in the ass. I've never had a girlfriend - or even had a one night stand - where I didn't bang a chick in the ass. Its just my thing. I'm an ass man, I love it through and through. Sometimes they're not "in the mood". Sometimes they're already fucking around with another guy. Its college, and they have their pick of the litter.

I try to live my entire life using a cost-benefit analysis. Maybe its because I'm cynical and jaded, maybe its because I'm an international business major, but I see all of life as transactional. What can you do for me? What can I do for you? When those things line up, I commit to an action. When they don't, I'll pass.

This is TRP man... I haven't spent $120 in a month of dating multiple times a week.

First date, somewhere low key, no cost... park or something like that. Second date, movie back at her place. If she doesn't want to do that, something cheap, pool or minigolf. Third date, movie back at her place. If she doesn't want to do that or fuck... soft next.

Prostitution establishes a price ceiling for sex.

This is why men need to be aware of escort prices even if they never use one.

[deleted] • 6 points • 9 June, 2015 07:47 AM

Man, where is this $120 is coming from? You could literally spend 0-5$ per date and she can experience it as the ride of her life.

With my current plate:

Same night lay: 0$

Second date: Took her in a scenic area that overlooks my city, with a half-empty bottle of wine i found in my fridge and two glasses; fucked her brains out afterwards: i guess 2-3$ for the gas

Third date: Bought 10$ of provisions and invited her to my house for dinner. I specifically instructed her to provide the drinks - she brought two bottles of wine AND flowers. Most of the wine is still in my fridge and will be available for the next plate: net cost $0

Also you are comparing the cost of a one-out experience with a prostitute that will not be emotionally involved with you and will often have the look/attitude of "ok get done with it, i have to go to the next client" to a month of fucks with an emotionally involved chick?

If a given plate of yours is a drama queen with lots of baggages carried over, just next her and go for the next one - preferably a 9.5 chick that will fuck with you because she regards you as a high value, top 20% male, not as a customer

vengefully_yours • 18 points • 8 June, 2015 04:56 PM

Agreed, have been knowingly shared and without jealousy. Have also been fought over, which was amusing. I'd say I'm in the lower half of the 20% but it still works that way.

Lhtfoot • -2 points • 9 June, 2015 12:17 AM

Can confirm... Fucking at least 80% of these bitches.

DonBravera • 17 points • 8 June, 2015 03:58 PM*

I'm really growing to hate women and their emotions, average doesn't mean "alpha"... I believe this isn't a sign that men are beta, but that women base all their choices on emotions -_-

Edit: i don't hate women, just the way they use their emotions

TheSKSpecial • 44 points • 8 June, 2015 04:17 PM*

I believe this isn't a sign that men are beta, but that women base all their choices on emotions -_-

Now you're getting it. Women base almost everything they do on their emotions. It's feminine nature, hating women for being ruled by emotion is like hating them for having to breathe.

But you can harness their emotions to your advantage. You don't have to be alpha, but if she feels you are it works for you all the same. You ever wonder why women stay in obviously shitty relationships? Because they don't feel like they're in shitty relationships. They feel fine, thus, they think they are fine.

vengefully_yours • 31 points • 8 June, 2015 05:00 PM

Don't hate them for being different, recognize they are, accept it, and learn to utilize it. Being angry at them is ok for a while, but really the anger is because you've been told bullshit about how wonderful and pure they are. They're like us in that we will fuck about any willing female, but they get to pick and choose so they don't have time for male notions like honor or loyalty. If they can fuck Chad tonight, they will.

Be Chad. Fuck bitches.

kireol • 4 points • 9 June, 2015 01:11 AM

We get to pick and choose too. Just wait until you are 30 or 40. Then they all want the D and fight over it.

[deleted] • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 04:41 AM

False sense of security. 40 YO women can still bang college guys. That changes nothing fundamentally.

BrunoOh • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 10:18 AM

Yeah, but not attractive college guys. Chad isn't going anywhere near her.

She isn't happy getting used as a 2 am emergency hole by a thirsty beta male.

If you're an attractive 35 year old guy with his own home, you're in shape and you can hold frame, you won't have a game problem, you'll have a scheduling problem.

Shaft-of-Patriarchy • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 12:10 PM

Can confirm, hell I'm at the bottom of all of those ranges, and I still had more availability than I could handle

Eventually I had girls nexting me because I wasn't fucking them often enough. Most of them are still available on speed dial though, they just stopped trying and got regular betas

[deleted] • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 03:47 PM

Guys much more attractive than her. Your dream of what happens at 35 isn't ever going to happen. Women don't stop being women just because you're a 40 yo plumber who lifts. All the post wall theory is way over exaggerated. Yes they will typically lose access to the 20% and that sucks for them, but it's not a big deal. And it's not a game changer unless you are 20%. You're still a fall back option that no one really wants to use.

vengefully_yours • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 06:22 PM

I'm closer to 50 than 40, and there is no shortage of girls 18 up shooting me ioi while her Bf or husband is looking somewhere else. Hell, I'm even short and stocky, look like a silverback gorilla and they still wriggle when they see me. My friends wives do it constantly, and of course my friends say no way.

duxtur • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 12:49 PM

What if you legitimately don't give a shit about social standing? Like you recognise the world as it is and just have no innate desire to compete in the fallacious game of it all? Is that the germination of MGTOW style attitudes?

redpillbanana[S] • 2 points • 10 June, 2015 01:24 AM

Is that the germination of MGTOW style attitudes?

Pretty much. You can be a lone wolf and still do pretty well.

Merica911 • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 01:59 AM

Or how about social media proof.. Like her Facebook selfies gets tons of likes to your few likes.. Does that make her SMV higher than mine?

mrmevhemn • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 08:11 AM this is what i was getting at, its all subjective. BE THE MAN, and you win!

UrsusG • 64 points • 8 June, 2015 01:58 PM

This can't be overemphasized.

Your opinion of your personal SMV means nothing to her, no matter how objective and fair you might want to be in your self-assessment.

The only thing that counts is what she perceives.

On the flipside, this is why dating/LTRing women way below you on the SMV scale in an attempt to secure a safe and easy relationship doesn't work.

The moment you get with her is the moment she starts thinking she's your equal, SMV-wise

(you picked her, therefore she must have been special in your eyes, therefore she's probably awesome, yes, I'm awesome, hmm, could I do better than this guy...?)

MattyAnon • 33 points • 8 June, 2015 05:24 PM

The moment you get with her is the moment she starts thinking she's your equal, SMV-wise

And then she starts working on dropping your SMV ...

tallwheel • 8 points • 9 June, 2015 05:43 AM

juanqunt • 4 points • 9 June, 2015 03:28 AM

Genius post. I'm sick of all the beta posts here that advocate for marrying below your SMV. If you marry, that means that you've lost the gambit. Even in a "LTR", always play the dread game to have her over-speculate your own SMV.

[deleted] • 23 points • 8 June, 2015 05:18 PM

But seriously though, its just a rude, bitchy attitude to have, regardless of SMV. Like when someone compliments me, I just take it graciously for what it is, a compliment. Hot chicks, ugly chicks, it could be an old lady who compliments me, I just use it to raise my self confidence. These girls seem to easily forget that the only reason their SMV stays high is because betas keep it there, so they should at least give their betas respect. But of course that won't happen.

[deleted] • 18 points • 8 June, 2015 08:05 PM

Not to mention it violates numerous of the 48 laws as well as overtly stating that you are powerful - a huge misstep. Real power is very covert, very hard to detect intellectually, but easily felt.

[deleted] • 20 points • 8 June, 2015 09:28 PM

As a sub post of a sub post, I'm afraid your observation may be overlooked. It shouldn't be though - this is more important than I think a lot of guys here have a grip on yet. There is often more to be gained from saying nothing then from saying anything, as far as frame and power go.

Silence is a good first step towards learning how to actually convey power. It's not something that's (usually) said.. it's something that's felt. Over time, you learn to use other things like body language posture eye contact and general demeanor to convey your power instead of your words.

You'll notice women start looking at you different. Trying to get closer to you, get you to check them out and talk to them. Fumbling at the register "oops i'm pressing all the wrong buttons look at how clumsy I am" and all I hear is "you could totally fuck me because I can tell you are a boss by the way you stand and the way you look at me".. because that's what they are actually saying. And that's without you even saying a word. Guarantee that if you keep your mouth shut in general, then when you choose to speak they are going to listen to what you say. Again, this is just a good place to start. Mainly I wanted to draw attention to the point that /u/friedrich101 made, it's a valuable one. Be good

[deleted] • 1 point • 10 June, 2015 06:09 AM

There was a post I read a few days ago giving this same advice. I can't find the link but I remember it saying it's not what you do, it's how you do it.

Linrraba • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 12:19 AM

The women that compliment me are either too old to be my mom or want to sell me something yet i don't bitch about. It's flat out cuntness.

DaphneDK • 11 points • 8 June, 2015 03:02 PM

It's not just if your SMV genuinely IS lower than hers. It's if SHE THINKS it is lower than hers.

It's funny because when you see what the most recent post of the top-voted comment on the page is, you get: I'm in my 20s and wear shapewear. I'm fat though so I kinda need it to make sure my wobbly bits are under control.

But whatever, if I'm getting complimented for something, it feels more valuable when it comes from someone who're competent in the field.

Linrraba • 3 points • 9 June, 2015 12:14 AM

I know that first hand. I'm currently on an unflattery shape. When i'm walking out in the streets, listening to some comedy podcast, i start laughing (or at least smiling) in public. If a woman is on my way she immediately starts to think i'm hitting on her because of it and gives me weird looks.

krakosia • 2 points • 12 June, 2015 12:58 PM

USmellFunny • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 01:41 PM

Exactly. "Fake it till you make it" doesn't only refer to confidence, but also SMV as a whole. I know a plumber that gets more ass than a plumber should simply because he's a genius when it comes to fooling women. Fake designer clothes, fake expensive watch and a big talent at lying about his wealth and possessions. "Let's order a cab, the BMW's at the mechanic, doing some upgrades".

Unattractive women hit on me all the time. I'm never an asshole about it. Am I disappointed she wasn't hot? Yes. If it's a compliment I'll graciously accept it and move along with my day. On dating sites I just won't answer the mail she sent me. To be insulted by someone finding you appealing is bizarre to me. How narcissistic do you have to be for that to seem like a reasonable reaction to something like that.

As for being rejected it hasn't happened that much but often enough to not P-hound these days. I'll just be me and do me-stuff and if someone who contacts me is good looking enough according to my tastes I'll bite. I've fucked enough chicks to not be desperate anymore. I love pussy as much as the next guy but I won't jump through hoops to get it.

mathis5332 • 33 points • 8 June, 2015 02:49 PM

That's the crux of the matter: how you view yourself and how you handle it. To stay with the metaphor, even if you have an advanced degree and you are offered a minimum wage job. Why be a dick about it? If it's in person, acknowledge the offer, appreciate the intention and politely decline. No need to not have common courtesy.

RealRational • 15 points • 8 June, 2015 08:37 PM

I was an Engineer in Molecular Imaging when this happened, but a Manager of an Arby's offered me a Manager position at said Arby's cause we had been chit chatting a bit. I did exactly as you said and it was a pleasant interaction, no harm done.

I guess they never found a passable manager because that Arby's went all to shit.

TurgidMeatWand • 23 points • 8 June, 2015 07:32 PM

How narcissistic do you have to be....

It's really easy to become narcissistic when people compliment you 100 times a day and no one ever calls you on your bullshit, it's not just a woman thing either look at male celebs

Overkillengine • 4 points • 8 June, 2015 10:30 PM

The only real difference there is the level of enabling available; our society has failed its men for the last few generations and raised them to be emasculated and needy.

Which isn't good for women either in the long run.

srsh • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 02:21 AM

Friend of mine calls this the bullshit distortion field. Some individuals are surrounded by people that are constantly complementing them or kissing their ass; never getting called out on their bullshit. It makes them lose track of reality and skews their views towards many topics. It's a little hard to blame them because they're not living in the same reality that most of us are living in.

ColdEiric • 36 points • 8 June, 2015 02:50 PM

The major difference is that you aren't worried about maybe getting knocked up with her unattractive, ugly, fat, lazy, slow-brained child.

For guys it's signal that we're kind of attractive. Not very attractive, but still attractive to make average girls start conversations with us. For us, it's a signal that the very attractive girls might notice us soon.

[deleted] • 9 points • 8 June, 2015 07:52 PM

hah this is the reason I dont fuck ugly fat lazy slow brained women, I dont want to knock one up somehow.

AkaviriDragon • 14 points • 8 June, 2015 08:15 PM

The major difference is that you aren't worried about maybe getting knocked up with her unattractive, ugly, fat, lazy, slow-brained child.

Right on. Fear and avoidance of weak males by females seems to be a pre-programmed emotional response. In the wild it would make them more careful around weak males who may rape them and thus give them low quality offspring that they'll be forced to take care of for years, as opposed to the female mating with alpha male that has the high quality offspring. So the female has a natural response of fear/disgust/avoidance around weak, low smv males. I've been told primates show this behavior to an extent aswell.

ColdEiric • 5 points • 9 June, 2015 01:41 AM

Fear and avoidance of weak males by females seems to be a pre-programmed emotional response.

It's what I look for now, after the redpill. Nothing is more honest and true than her emotional, biological, gut-level feelings whether I'm a man, whose child she wants to carry for me.

Maxxxz1994 • 0 points • 9 June, 2015 02:56 AM

You have to be at least a facially 8 to get a female who's a 5 to start a conversation with you.

[deleted] • 54 points • 8 June, 2015 03:33 PM

I am a woman (if it wasn't obvious by the username) and I completely agree with you. If I get hit on by an unattractive man I may feel awkward telling them I am not interested but I am by no means "insulted". If anything, it's a compliment and makes me feel good to know that men find me attractive.

evilquesadilla • 54 points • 8 June, 2015 06:01 PM [\[recovered\]](#)

That's because you're not entitled. It's pretty rare these days. Kudos.

Maxxxz1994 • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 02:54 AM

I'm kinda entitled (i don't think so, but others have told me so) and i get annoyed when unattractive girls hit on me. I seriously get repulsed. These are facially disfigured morbidly obese hippos, i feel revulsion that they're the only kind of women that hit on me. It's like they have a make-up to their eyeballs than average+ women. And that's fucking infuriating.

evilquesadilla1 points 9 June, 2015 07:04 PM [\[recovered\]](#)

No big deal. When it comes to pulling chicks, the only thing that matters is your game. Once you have that, either the good guy or asshole path is just personal preference.

As far as going through life, being entitled may not be such a good thing, but that's up to you.

Maxxxz1994 • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 07:12 PM

So i can be a good guy and still get a (reasonably attractive) girl? I can be an asshole and get a girl for sex, but i don't want that. I wanna be myself and get a girl for the relationship and love and be good to her, is that even possible for reasonably attractive girls? Or must i always "play the game"?

evilquesadilla1 points 9 June, 2015 07:32 PM [\[recovered\]](#)

Good guy, asshole, either way you have to play the game. It's all about the dog and pony show. Assholes have the neg game and lies at their disposal. Good guys would want stay away from those things. But even the good guy's way doesn't mean "a saint's" way. It just means "the socially acceptable way to game", and it differs according to local dating culture.

For example, one of the pieces of the puzzle is social status. Women are attracted to men of high social status. How do you gain social status? Either be rich and/or famous, or be the big fish in the small pond... like say a DJ, or a dance instructor. They are really nobodys, but in their small world, they are the man.

So what if you are not a DJ or a dance instructor? How do you artificially boost your social status? Assholes may elect to acquire a group of friends that he gets to kick around to show he's in charge. A good guy, instead, may choose to be popular instead, which depending on your personality, may take more or less work, because finding a group of people that will let you kick around also takes work. Disclaimer -- over simplification, but you get my point.

Hence I say it's just personal preference. Good guy or asshole, make sure you put your best foot forward. If you don't play, you don't win.

I used to think assholes can't keep relationships. Actually they can. You just need to know when to back off. IMHO there are two best ways to go... A good guy that's an asshole, or an asshole that's a good guy. The Jekyll and Hyde bullshit only makes you more mysterious... see... dog and pony show.

Maxxxz1994 • 1 point • 10 June, 2015 12:16 AM

Man, that's so complicated and requires a lot of self control for a long period of time. I'm able to do that, but not for long, and I'm not after women who only want me for the sex after i "play the game" on them. I want a (equal in attractiveness) woman to love me for who i am (cheeky, childish at times), not for what i pretend to be (alpha, cocky, dgaf). Is that even possible? You know..without having a 9.5/10 face and a 7 digit bank account. I won over an attractive girl with my "game" recently, but as soon as i reverted back to my normal self (lost the energy to continue), she fucked off. Which kinda tore at my heart evilquesadilla1 points 10 June, 2015 01:11 AM [recovered]

Actually it's worse. After you "get them" you have to now play a different game... the relationship game.

What you described is like the woman that works out and diets, puts on make up, looks pretty, and as soon as she land a guy, she stops, and blows up to be a whale. If you don't want your woman to do that, you can't do that yourself. Your "revert" is the equivalent of what I just described. You'd dump her if she did that, that's why she fucked off.

Attraction/dating/meeting women is a game that I'm more familiar with, like the social status stuff I talked about and all that.

The relationship game I'm working on myself, so I can't comment much. But you still have to play. I'm sorry. You don't get to walk off into the sunset. Relationships require a lot of work, and really is only worth it to people that really need it, IMHO. This is something I'm struggling with right now... are LTRs worth it... Maybe TRP people can help you more with how to keep a relationship. Whatever I say is like the blind leading the blind. But no matter what it is, I can tell you, zero effort is never going to work.

Maxxxz1994 • 1 point • 10 June, 2015 02:56 AM

Dang. I do have a number of women right now who (romantically) love me for who i am. But they're below 3 on the attractiveness scale, and i don't want ugly short children with fat genes. I realize that i have to put in a lot of consistent hard and painful work to get and keep a girl who's thin and a 5 and above facially, and that's a really rough reality check. The only option i have, to make it much easier, is to study hard and become a doctor. Then I'll have the status and money that i need in order to make it easier to aquire and keep a decent girl.

rearended • 8 points • 8 June, 2015 07:23 PM

Same here. My problem is I am nice to everybody. I work retail so I have to interact with men and women alike. I start conversations (trying to find out what they do for a living etc) so I can find out what kind of product they'd be interested in and take them around the store to show them as we're talking. I sell a LOT by being friendly and smiling. When a man attractive or not starts hitting on me I kindly tell them I am married. This doesn't phase some men and they will continue with it anyway. This is when I get bothered by it. I have to find an excuse to leave the floor so they'll leave me alone.

RedHeimdall • 8 points • 8 June, 2015 04:59 PM

Yes, if the guy is unattractive but just giving a nice compliment, they shouldn't feel insulted... but we know they do.

I recently had this happen to me where I did feel insulted and kind of pissed off at the attention of this woman at work. But here's why: she was constantly rubbing herself against me as she walked by in a "plausibly accidental" way. If a low SMV guy was doing this to a girl, I would agree she'd have a right to be insulted.

But if they're just giving me a compliment or something I'm not insulted I just say thanks and move on.

This thing did piss me off though because she was rubbing up on me and because of the magnitude of SMV difference. I mean I'm probably a 7 or 8 and this chick is like a 2 or 3. There is no amount of alcohol that would make me fuck this chick. (And I have gone dumpster diving more times than I'd care to admit.) It would take like 6 months to a year on a desert island for me to get this desperate.

After a while I just said "What are you doing? Why do you keep rubbing against me every time you go by?" Blah blah embarrassed excuses blah blah, hasn't happened since.

mojo_juju • 11 points • 8 June, 2015 03:21 PM

To be insulted by someone finding you appealing is bizarre to me. How narcissistic do you have to be for that so seem like a reasonable reaction to something like that.

It's their ego, their shamefully shallow ego. They all love to bragplain, not only to their friends and Reddit, but to themselves. For them it's an ego boost.

WHAT-WOULD-HITLER-DO5 points 8 June, 2015 11:53 PM [recovered]

It's not so much being insulted that an unattractive person finds you attractive. There's nothing insulting about being wanted. It's when an unattractive person approaches you believing they have a shot, that you question your own attractiveness. And that part I think creates that appalling reaction from some women. I've never treated a guy like shit over it. I've always been very polite. But in the back of my mind I then can't help but wonder "so if this person who I find extremely unattractive thought I was within their range, then am I actually less attractive than I think I am?". That's the part I think some women can't process, so you see lashing out. People tend to lash out when faced with possible truths they don't want to consider. Hope that shed some light.

Sherlock--Holmes • 43 points • 8 June, 2015 04:52 PM

I have seen hundreds of photos of very average or below average women who put on a ton of make-up and become stunning, until they wake up in the morning again.. Their value is so variable that their league can't be effectively quantified. In their heads they are amazing because men hit on them when they're out constantly. They take the good looking men home but when men see them without makeup then the men are above them and they get dumped.

That's it... "we're taking a shower together" to all future potentials.

Let's see who looks hottest afterwards when we are really "just being ourselves". Did my abs just wash away? Are my biceps weaker? Does my hair look retarded? Does my face look like it's just aged quarter of a century? Nope, I think I'm good ...

Overkillengine • 17 points • 9 June, 2015 12:05 AM

The sad part is the makeup contributes to the bad complexions most of them have out of makeup.

Something that moderate sunlight, exercise, and a decent diet would fix well enough to pass most men's boner test easily.

TamingDebt • 12 points • 9 June, 2015 01:40 AM

That's part of the reason why men age better aesthetically. We don't put toxic shit on our skin constantly. It's amazing to me that girls never even bother to read the label of the products they're dumping on their face (quite often their most valuable asset).

jewishclaw • 1 point • 15 June, 2015 01:36 AM*

Look, I'm 100% on board in the notion that everything about a girls appearance is enhanced, but these before/after shots are bullshit.

1. Immediately after you scrub your face (as they have in all of these photos, as everyone does before they apply makeup), your face turns splotchy and red and simultaneously dry in certain regions while oily in others. You will never look worse than you do immediately after you chemically exfoliate. e.g. stridex pads
2. Makeup has more of an effect in photographs than in person. Cameras do not capture light exactly as the human eye. And we have two eyes, seeing two 2D images, that your brain infers depth and dimension depending on how cross-eyed you have to be to focus on a point with two eyes at a given distance. Most people, especially pale or dark people look featureless and washed out, whereas, in person they don't. In many cases, a photo with makeup can look more like the person irl with an unaided eye than a "natural" photo.
3. Lighting makes a huge difference. It makes a huger difference in photographs. In almost every case, the lighting is better in the after photo.
4. These broads may look significantly different in these photos, but most of them still look like pounded dogshit with makeup on.
5. If the photos weren't potato quality (or if you saw them irl) you could see the puddied on foundation peeling off like a melting wax statue.
6. I've taken pictures of girls (and men I suppose lol) and been like wtf, this looks nothing like you. i'm looking at you, i take a picture, i look at you agin, i look at the picture, i look at you, wtf, this looks nothing like you.

Whisper • 33 points • 8 June, 2015 07:30 PM

Female solipsism.

As a software engineer with an impressive resume, I match a lot of keyword searches by recruiters. So I get approached all the time for jobs which turn out to pay about half my current salary. I don't throw a tantrum. I simply start any interaction with the question "What is your client's salary range for the position?"

If the answer isn't anywhere near my market value, I say "no thanks, that would be a substantial pay cut for me", and that's that. I have no need to get angry at these people because they are no threat to me. I'm not going to be paid less because they offered me less.

The real reason women get mad when approached by an unattractive man is that they think everyone's attraction works like theirs.

Men's SMV in their eyes is completely mutable depending what other women think. A man can be fat, homely, out of shape, and working at a grocery store or car wash, and if attractive women are hanging on his every word, then other women will be attracted to him, too. If he is a squaredjawed brooding hunk of rippling muscle, and he has an ugly woman on his arm, other women will want nothing to do with him.

Because of female solipsism, women think men work like that, too.

So they are terrified that the ugly, awkward man hitting on them is decreasing their SMV. That's why they are angry.

wattwatty • 14 points • 8 June, 2015 09:52 PM

I have wondered if this is part of why you see so many pictures of women on Tinder where they pose with other men, either in groups or as a couple. They think being seen with an attractive man raises their SMV. At best, I don't give a crap. At worst, I am put off.

PSA: Though Tinder is a horrible way to accumulate plates, it is a wonderful microscope for female solipsism.

Philhelm • 5 points • 9 June, 2015 04:35 PM

Maybe it's a filter of sorts. You must be as good looking or better than the guy in the picture to ride.

ubercoolhipsterguy • 1 point • 10 June, 2015 12:09 AM

Jesus fucking christ this is the dumbest shit I have ever heard. I mean, middle schoolers can reason better than this.

Quintus_Pillus • 103 points • 8 June, 2015 12:35 PM

If you approach a woman to flirt with her and she finds your SMV to be beneath hers, she'll probably take it as an insult. This explains many of the harsh rejections that you'll see.

It probably also explains the overuse of the word "creepy". A man attempting to hit on a woman that is, or considers herself, of much higher SMV.

redpillbanana[S] • 52 points • 8 June, 2015 12:40 PM

Women these days seem to be using 'uggo' as the new 'creep'.

Rathadin • 131 points • 8 June, 2015 02:46 PM

I'd honestly prefer this.

I'd rather a woman just admit a guy is 'ugly' to her, instead of saying he's 'creepy'.

therealpkg • 14 points • 8 June, 2015 09:37 PM

They're too stupid and cognitively disconnected to know this is actually what they're thinking.

FinallyRed • 54 points • 8 June, 2015 02:57 PM

At least that's honest. Instead of ascribing malicious or nefarious intent to an action they are saying it how it is: the guy is unattractive.

What riles me up is that women can be so open about the double standard of how they treat men yet we are expected to bury our head in the sand because misojunny

Hydris • 26 points • 8 June, 2015 04:07 PM

That's actually better. At least Uggo is just a way of saying ugly. Creepy is a whole other term that almost has nothing at all to do with those guys usually.

Overkillengine • 9 points • 8 June, 2015 10:36 PM

Color me surprised. Using "uggo" doesn't give them the layer of plausible deniability that "creep" does. Of course if their self image is inflated enough they may just not care about that anymore.

[deleted] • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 03:18 AM

Uggo is popular lately, but its more of a joke word. Like ha ha. If a woman is being more serious she will still defer to the plausible deniability of 'creep'.

forbin1992 • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 04:16 AM

I remember when I was 18, I told the first girl I hooked up with at college that "it's only creepy when you don't like it." She laughed for a good 15 seconds because she knew it was true.

JumpXVI • 29 points • 8 June, 2015 02:00 PM

This can really be boiled down to relative value and its demonstrations (DHV/DLV) if we want to simplify it. A hot girl (HB8+) knows she's hot, so she knows she has high value (HV). An "average" girl (HB6-7) knows she's kinda hot on a good day.

Any guy who verbally acknowledges the value of a woman gives her validation of her HV. This validation actually serves to confirm the HV of the HB6-7 girls that they are indeed having a "good day" (HB8+ girls need no such validation even if they love it anyway).

Any guy verbally acknowledging the value of a woman in a compliment is essentially saying: "you have high value". This holds none of the mystery and aloofness that is attractive to women. More importantly, though, verbal acknowledgements of a woman's value absolutely make her assess the value of the complimenter. And since you're stating that hers is high, she is, in a purely relative manner, less likely to see yours as high even if your own value is a 7-8 yourself. (This has a little to do with men's value being less tied to looks than women's.)

A very HV guy can "get away with this" if he is sufficiently high value enough to still be above the woman's value despite his voluntary levelling of the value playing field. But an "uggo" (h/t /u/redpillbanana) lowers the value of a HV girl because if she were to acknowledge it in any way, it would imply to her and others that her value is commensurate with that of the LV guy. Hence the insult that HV women feel when this happens.

So what does all this mean? Virtually never compliment a woman on her looks, period, even if you're Brad Pitt or Idris Elba's stunt double. Exceptions to this are rare and usually involve the woman being your SO or plate (you've already boned her), or a backhanded compliment that makes a woman qualify herself—think Mystery's "Nice nails. Are they real?"

TimPartendale12 points 8 June, 2015 10:29 PM [recovered]

I started following the red pill a year or two ago and have NEVER complimented a woman on her appearance since (during the "dating phase"). These girls dress stunning for dates too and always fish for compliments. For me, it doesn't make sense to compliment pretty girls, you just give her an idea that she's above you AND I'm 100% sure she already knows she's moderately attractive.

My caveat? When she's sucking on my dick then I say something about her hair, pretty eyes, nice ass, etc... It's the right validation at the right moment to enforce her behavior.

JumpXVI • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 02:32 PM*

It's really simple when you think about it with red pill knowledge, too. If you don't tell a hot girl she's hot in the "dating phase", she will literally think: "um, wait, does this guy even think I'm attractive? I mean, I'm pretty sure he does, but, like, does he? maybe he's had better...oh gosh maybe he has better right now...or maybe he's into me not cause of my looks?"

Not complimenting a girl is simply a refusal to acknowledge her value. This literally makes her demonstrate (additional) value to you because as far as she knows, the value of her looks doesn't matter to you. And if she tosses her hair, or bats her eyes, or adjusts the strap of her bra or whatever, it's not going to "work".

She's going to have to start laughing at your jokes and holding your attention and demonstrating value in whatever cute creative way she can think of when Plan A (for Attractive) doesn't work. Which basically results giving you the IOIs that you already wanted from her fine self in the first place.

Philhelm • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 04:40 PM

I never compliment people anyway, unless I'm truly impressed by something, which is rare. Really rare.

fckredditt • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 06:45 AM

it's just that guy who can easily get hot girls would not be highly impressed over 6 and 7s. it's just a part of our nature. that's why this mechanic works in the dating game. you have to pretend or refrain from expressing the compliment. we do because it feels so good to tell a beautiful girl that she's beautiful.

Reanimate_87 • 25 points • 8 June, 2015 01:19 PM*

Let us not forget how clueless most guys are about hitting on women. Within seconds you will know if she digs your vibe, and busting her balls, instead of supplicating compliments -this almost always the get-go approach.

Edit: We might not have the power to change their blueprints into our favour, but remember: novelty is sexy as heck. Bonding and chemistry is not some abstract process, but it's more about a whole range of emotions. Why would you play by her rules? She doesn't really know what she wants anyway. Be the guy that makes an impression she never forgets.

[deleted] • 48 points • 8 June, 2015 04:30 PM

That's why you NEVER compliment a woman. NEVER. They have lost that privilege 30 years ago.

[deleted] • 18 points • 8 June, 2015 05:39 PM

I was JUST thinking this last night watching TV. None of them deserve it and it will only make them fight harder for your affection if you don't. Also not getting a stiff boner will drive a girl nuts, she'll blame it on herself if you play it right.

[deleted] • 13 points • 8 June, 2015 06:03 PM

Also not getting a stiff boner will drive a girl nuts, she'll blame it on herself if you play it right.

That's the best dread game. Dead boner lowers her perceived SMV.

TimPartendale5 points 8 June, 2015 10:33 PM [recovered]

ChairBorneMGTOW • 3 points • 9 June, 2015 12:18 PM

I take forever to bust a nut. As long as I do in the end, most women still feel validated. It's the rare times where I can fuck for a long long while but get tired or bored and stop without coming. That drives them up a wall.

Relevantex18 points 8 June, 2015 08:10 PM* [recovered]

I actually would have no problem with this mentality if a woman's perception of her own value wasn't so skewed. Men usually have a good idea where they stand - hell, they'll even underestimate themselves. On the other hand every pig with access to heels and eyeliner thinks she's a goddess and deserves only the best.

I guarantee this chick is a 5, thinks shes a 7, and caked on enough makeup so she thinks she's a 9. Meanwhile, a mr. 5 comes around and says hi then she explodes with rage because only 10s should be hitting on her in her own head.

FUCK_YEA_GLITTER • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 09:08 PM

[deleted] • 18 points • 8 June, 2015 09:53 PM

Scary how many of these women compare looking good to having a degree or experience in a field. As if they've earned something.

vengefully_yours • 15 points • 8 June, 2015 05:17 PM

This is why I sit back and watch everyone. I am proficient in reading body language, I can tell when any woman looks at me and is thinking about fucking me. Indicators of interest is something you need to learn, that way you can tell which girl is interested and which one isn't. It saves time, and builds confidence. Learning to read them makes it even easier, you can tell if she'd be down for sucking you off in the restroom or if you'll get pepper sprayed for saying Hi.

You can get relatively uninterested girls to want to fuck you with game, but you need to know which battles or projects you wish to begin. Don't take on pepper spray girl, it's not worth the effort.

I can't tell you what to look for, but once you know you can spot it easy. I watched girls talk to guys I knew, and I found out which ones fucked them, so I learned the tells they have. I also had girls who tried to manipulate me into things like giving them rides, so I learned the minute difference between wants to fuck me, and wants to use me for something.

One of those, a big tit blonde, learned the hard way. She wanted a ride to a town 50 miles away to go to the state fair. I'd been telling her no rides for weeks, but this time she wouldn't leave me alone. I took her and her friend along because I was going anyway, and when she started giving her attention to some guy, I left. This was 1985, no cell phones, no bus, she had to call her parents to come get her. Thus ended the constant begging for rides with the promise of sex that never occurred.

Intersivity • 6 points • 8 June, 2015 07:41 PM

Any advice on ways to learn this? Besides spend more time observing people?

vengefully_yours • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 06:40 PM

I learned early on, had to because I was severely abused by my family and at school. Knowing who is about to beat the fuck out of you and when is good info.

I watched the first girl I dated interact with a friend of mine. I wasn't even there anymore once he showed up, to her anyway. I watched her facial expressions, her body language, and I could tell she wanted to fuck him. There are a handful of looks girls have they display when they see a man they want to fuck. They all do it, and they're the same look and body language for every girl I've known. Even in other countries it's the same.

Learn two or three and you're in, because they go through a few usually when they meet someone new. One big one is her chin down, looking up at you with her head tilted just a little, usually accompanied by a smile. One is a nearly blank stare that is similar to when she wants the steak on the grill, a hungry sort of look. I see the second over their shoulder as they walk away with their Bf/husband.

Go out and watch girls, watch everything she does. Hands, feet, knees, face, hair flips... It's lots of shit.

fallenpollen • 1 points • 9 June, 2015 12:48 AM [recovered]

Go people watching

This is best done with a friend and a public place with a lot of people passing by. Pick a guy/girl and discuss with your friend; What kind of job do u think they have? Are they married/have children? etc.

Next level is trying to anticipate the strangers next move. example: "I bet u 5$ that this guy is waiting for his wife to come"

Haha don't worry you gonna get old sooner than you think and nobody will find you attractive anymore so relax.

All in all, she'll be just another brick in the wall.

windowstapedshut • 35 points • 8 June, 2015 01:03 PM

I can't deny feeling something akin to this when I get a FB add or even a Tinder match with a girl well below my own SMV.

I'm more of a fan of the soft next than being a cunt about it...because I'm not a bad person. Admittedly, I am a serial unmatcher.

u-r-silly • 25 points • 8 June, 2015 01:07 PM

Tinder match with someone well below my own SMV.

Why the hell would you swipe right, then?

redpillbanana[S] • 43 points • 8 June, 2015 01:13 PM

Many guys advocate swiping right on everything and seeing who matches with you, probably as a time-saving device vs reading every profile, since for most guys, matches will be relatively rare.

RichardPalma • 8 points • 8 June, 2015 01:44 PM

I've seen this advice and probably it applies in major cities. Where I'm at, I never run out of the free likes and I like to take some time looking at the pics. If someone has something interesting, I might look at their profile and other pics but there is no point in reading all the profiles. When I've talked to my matches, they've all said they don't even look at the profiles until they get contacted.

RedPill4LYF • 5 points • 8 June, 2015 03:30 PM

It's Tinder, the Craigslist of dating apps. Why the hell would anyone take a profile seriously on there? If you're going to use it, swipe right and treat matches like the whores they are.

Hydris • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 04:09 PM

Simplify put, it's the numbers game that puts some of the responsibility on the women.

esperanzablanca • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 12:35 AM

I think that tinder penalizes you if you do this.

yaardi • 26 points • 8 June, 2015 01:22 PM

Maybe he does this

windowstapedshut • 11 points • 8 June, 2015 01:30 PM

Nah, I'm actually very picky but I only really look at the display picture, unless she's really hot or I suspect she has atrocious teeth/Myspace angles.

Some will slip through the cracks inevitably.

[deleted] • 2 points • 8 June, 2015 03:41 PM

I wish I could be choosy, but the majority of women in the area I live in are below a 5. I'd say the average hovers at around a 4 but the kicker is that they think they're at least a 7.

newls • 2 points • 8 June, 2015 05:03 PM

Online dating only ever worked for me when I was in a big city with several universities. Lots of young women with mostly tight bodies and smart brains.

If you move to a small town or the sticks then the pickings are slimmer. Loads of under-educated fatties with inflated SMVs.

Overkillengine • 6 points • 8 June, 2015 10:39 PM*

And single moms. Goddamn single moms everywhere. Blech.

Of course every one of them wants a real man. Bitches should have thought about that before getting a fuck trophy from the Special Olympics.

robo23 • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 10:01 PM

I haven't used it since they limited your picks, but I always liked everyone first and filtered out the ugly chicks after we matched

windowstapedshut • 8 points • 8 June, 2015 01:17 PM

Deceptive profile pictures, adding new pictures after I'd swiped. Oversight on my part undoubtedly.

[deleted] • 3 points • 8 June, 2015 03:39 PM

Men dont have the luxury of being choosy. So we blind swipe right. A technique women should be doing in theory. As they have nothing to lose with 1000s of men available to choose from.

juanquant • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 03:41 AM*

TMRL... that's my problem with Tinder and similar apps. When I match with a few whales, I just cringe and delete the app, so I never get anywhere with online dating. At least in person I get to make my own choice about who to approach.

(Exception in Asia where nobody is fat and I've actually met up with a few cute ones, but it's so depressing in America.)

jewishclaw • 1 point • 15 June, 2015 01:50 AM

Yeah, honestly I think too many people here are still in the anger phase. Offended is probably the wrong word, but I am mildly annoyed when a fat chick or a post-waller hits on me. It's absolutely not a compliment. I don't blame a girl for feeling the same way. Just like it doesn't make me angry that they want to get gutted by various chads thundercock for 15 years before latching onto barry betabux. It's a commendable strategy. Too many people get lost in the us versus them instead of just accepting the way things are and...well, being chad thundercock.

ExpendableOne • 52 points • 8 June, 2015 02:03 PM

If you feel offended that companies are offering you jobs, there is something wrong with you. It's disturbing just how entitled, privileged and narcissistic these women can actually be. Most men wouldn't react that way about interest from even the most unattractive of women. That kind of shit and vitriol is just another example of women just not being held accountable for their disdain towards men.

[deleted] • 14 points • 8 June, 2015 06:32 PM

Most men wouldn't react that way about interest from even the most unattractive of women.

Yeah, they do. Someone who's spent years to get "swole" and then gets approached by a fattie? He'll later post either on r/fatpeoplehate or here, saying: Look what a ridiculously inflated sense of self-worth she has! Both genders act offended pretty soon.

Edit: Likewise, people here again take the words of these girls for the truth. In fact, these words are tools to increase their SMV, just as the threadstarter already assumed that this one chick must be attractive, because she wrote something.

[deleted] • 3 points • 8 June, 2015 10:57 PM

Red Pill is all about gender symmetry. The bitter part for so many is that we have been taught that women were inherently better than men. It's not so, TRP is the radical notion that men and women are people.

[deleted] • 1 point • 26 October, 2015 12:43 AM

Look I know that's what you think, but one of the top posts on here encourages you to "touch her, you are entitled to her body," and encourages you to treat her like a ragdoll during sex. This sub tries to make it clear that men are "better" than women to the point that they are entitled the bodies of women juanqunt • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 03:45 AM

Agreed. I hate it when ugly/fat/awkward women talk to me.

RPMav • 3 points • 8 June, 2015 09:28 PM

An offer for a crap job really demonstrates that the person making the offer doesn't value you. Maybe you shouldn't be insulted, but it is annoying to have to even acknowledge it. A better example might be someone offering $300 for your 2012 Porsche listed as "For Sale; make offer". An offer that low is a waste of everyone's time.

ExpendableOne • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 10:48 PM

An offer for a crap job really demonstrates that the person making the offer doesn't value you.

How is that person not valuing you, by offering the best possible job they can offer you with the best possible incentives they can? That is literally you not valuing their offer, and thinking that you are either above it or feeling completely entitled to more. That is narcissism and entitlement, and a complete disregard for even being in a privileged position to get any kind of offers at all.

A better example might be someone offering $300 for your 2012 Porsche listed as "For Sale; make offer".

No, that's like someone offering you everything they have for that 2012 chevalier, that you are trying to sell off as a porsche. Or, it's someone trying to trade you their porsche for your porsche, and you telling them "gross, your porsche is a piece of shit and mine is great", even when they are entirely identical. That is not wasting anyone's time, and you are insulting them by thinking that they are. It's like telling them their dollar has no value, or telling them that what they have to trade isn't worth shit when it you are hardly in a position to make that claim. It's like being insulted when someone is giving you their life-savings, and then calling them spitting in their face for even thinking they could make an offer in the hopes that someone would take it.

juanqunt • -3 points • 9 June, 2015 03:52 AM you're a blue pill phaggot. it's more like someone offering you a beaten up chevy for your new porsche. You're implying that a used up woman has the same SMV as a man who is top tier.

As a TRP man, you should be narcissist. You are the top 20% and narcissism is one of the Dard Triad traits. Go check your privilege with all the other SJW retards. GTFO

[deleted] • 1 point • 18 June, 2015 03:39 PM

I react the same way, from what i can remember of myself. I felt annoyed by ugly girls who would watch me in classes and stuff several times. It's a totally different thing if prettier girls are watching you. So no, I don't consider myself "better" than those narcissistic women (how you call them) and think of it as something natural.

[deleted] • -6 points • 8 June, 2015 06:20 PM

Are you fucking kidding me? This woman isn't allowed to be annoyed by compliments/people trying to hit on her?

I hate most conversation the general person is going to offer, and I hate people I don't know trying to talk to me for no reason about completely irrelevant shit.

And a minimum wage job offer isn't really a job offer, anyone with enough time for an interview can get one, and it's not a livable wage.

ExpendableOne • 4 points • 8 June, 2015 06:40 PM*

I hate most conversation the general person is going to offer, and I hate people I don't know trying to talk to me for no reason about completely irrelevant shit.

I don't care how much you hate people, or how much of a narcissist sociopath you are. If you have people offering you jobs left and right, that is not something you should just scoff at (especially not when there are so many people out there who are actually out of work or working jobs they hate), let alone complain about or stigmatize. The fact that the opportunities are there, and that you essentially have every type of business offering you employment and incentives, is not something anyone should ever just take for granted. There's a certain bare minimum level of decency and humility that should be expected of people, including women.

And a minimum wage job offer isn't really a job offer, wtf? A job is still a job. You would have to be a pretty entitled and privileged fuck to think "I'm too good for those people, so they are the assholes for even offering". Just because someone is making a lot of money at whatever job they already have, doesn't mean that those jobs are worthless. Just because someone thinks they are above a certain job, doesn't mean they are. Just because someone thinks they are above any given job, does not mean that those jobs are meaningless/worthless. Just because you think anyone can do that job, doesn't mean that anyone could, actually do that job. Just because you have unrealistic expectations in life, does not mean that you are also entitled to more or that you couldn't live on that wage (or, for that matter, that you couldn't take that job and end up doing very well with it).

[deleted] • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 07:35 PM

I am neither of those things, stop projecting. You're really telling me, "weather today" type conversations are awesome and you couldn't live without them?

You're also just incoherently rambling at this point. "If you have people offering you jobs left and right". Nobody said that. You're just saying "getting hit on a lot is like having a lot of job offers" and it's a stupid relation. I don't need to get hit on to make money and put food on the table.

And yes, I most certainly am too good for a minimum wage job and now you're just pandering to the lowest common denominator. The jobs are worthless and the only reason these people haven't been replaced with machines is because it will cause an economic collapse, depression, and a war.

I, or anyone else, don't deserve this bullshit "level of decency that should be expected". Why? This is supposed to be TRP, not social justice warrior.com. Are we really saying merely existing is enough to mean you deserve anything? How can you go from calling me narcissistic to entitled when I'm saying you dont deserve certain things. Where is the entitlement?

juanqunt • -1 points • 9 June, 2015 03:56 AM

Sorry, but I'd rather bang a woman with standards who'd only fuck Chad Thundercocks than a valueless whore bending over for anyone. I'm high value with high standards and I expect my women to be the same.

[deleted] • 26 points • 8 June, 2015 01:57 PM

All bitches think of men like jobs. This is amazing because it is a LITERAL example of a great TRP post from a while ago. U know what they say... art imitates life, life imitates neckbeard misogyny.

Maybe we would stop talking about hypergamy if these bitches could stop talking about how hypergamous they are.

redpillbanana[S] • 1 point • 10 June, 2015 01:29 AM

That is a great connection that you made - makes perfect sense in light of that post.

UrsusG • 31 points • 8 June, 2015 01:53 PM

It's the same feeling when a street bum approaches me in the parking lot and starts complimenting my car (to get me to give him some change). His compliments are insultingly manipulative and just annoy me.

Now, when a fellow car club member compliments my car on our annual meeting, that's a different story entirely.

newls • 9 points • 8 June, 2015 05:05 PM

Although I agree with people about her entitlement and solipsism, I think this might be a better analogy for what the girl wrote.

[deleted] • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 06:31 PM

Jesus it's not about being entitled. Why the fuck should she have to be grateful for being hit on by ugly guys or at all? Because a man hitting on means he deserves your respect! And we're forgetting the way most men hit on women, it's god awful and worthy of pity, I don't want them bothering me.

Intersivity • 3 points • 8 June, 2015 07:36 PM

No one said you have to be grateful, or that men hitting on you deserve respect. No one is going to pity you either, since all you have to deal with is people liking how you look, which is about 1000x better than nobody liking how you look. Not an ounce of pity for you.

[deleted] • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 07:37 PM

It's probably better than everyone thinking you're ugly, and I'm not offering pity. I'm just saying we cannot say this person is displaying entitlement just because its a woman. I'm a man, and I'm busy, I don't want bs conversation either.

fckredditt • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 06:40 AM this is such a good analogy and i almost can't argue with this. i'm trying very hard though. i guess i would have to use the same analogy but elaborate on it because your story is not complete. if the analogy is to be like the real world, then you would actually want to give change to someone. you also never actively approach anyone and expect all beggars(rich car club members or bums) to approach you. you love being approached by beggars. beggars also know that they have to approach other people for change and that they are not a good beggar if they don't. their entire life worth is dependent on getting change. so aren't you an entitled little shit for being born rich and expecting the entire world full of beggars to do exactly what you want? as in, you want only specific beggars to approach you even though it is the entire life purpose of all beggars to get change? you want all beggars to automatically know whether they are worthy of you or not? especially when it is fully known that when a beggar acts like a car club member, you will give them change? lol this analogy is getting way out of hand.

If you haven't gone through it then you have no understanding and therefore should have no opinion. This has happened to me. 3 women who were all unattractive making continual sexual passes on me. They were my physical therapists. After a point it pisses you off.

Rathadin • 42 points • 8 June, 2015 02:45 PM

I upvoted you both. I think you're both right.

That said, its annoying to have fatties in the gym try to touch me when I'm working out... it always starts with "asking about workouts" and leads to them putting their normally eclair-filled hands on my biceps or my stomach.

It really is disgusting...

Jaereth • 35 points • 8 June, 2015 03:03 PM [recovered]

I hate this with a passion. In the winter i'm wearing a sweater and everything is cool. In the summer i'm out at the bar in a sleeveless shirt and most women think it's a-ok to just touch my arms because they happen to be muscular. Something really attractive to them. Well i'm attracted to big tits, but I have the common decency not to start stroking a stranger who's expressing no interest in me.

Rathadin • 19 points • 8 June, 2015 03:16 PM

Oh man, I wish this were socially acceptable... feeling up cute girls' asses after they feel up my arms??

This must be what Heaven / Paradise / Nirvana is like.

JumpXVI • 21 points • 8 June, 2015 03:43 PM

The last time this happened to me in public, the girl said: "Geez, you have really nice abs...", and proceeded to feel them through my shirt. So I stepped a little closer, maintained laser eye contact, and gently squeezed her ass.

She said "Hey!" I simply said, "if you're gonna feel me up, I'm gonna feel you up too". She protested, "well...feeling my midriff too would be equivalent..." But I gave no fucks.

This was before I ever swallowed the pill too. She'd had a boyfriend, who actually showed up not seconds later (I'm friends with him too). That's probably why I was so forward, because this chick wanted to have her cake and eat it too (her boyfriend is in pretty good shape too), and I've always had principles if not always an RP mentality.

RPAlternate42 • 20 points • 8 June, 2015 04:42 PM*

I did this to my buddy's wife (G):

First off, his wife is fucking cute... tight little body, nice proportions, cute face: 7-8 face, 8 body. Not objectively beautiful but American Apparel face-model pretty.

We were having a crab feed (It's what Maryland does) and everyone was a little buzzed (It's what crab feeds do) and as I was making my way to the bathroom, G and her friend stop me and she starts tweaking my nipples. "What the hell?" I said, a bit surprised. "If they're out there I'm gonna touch them."

I looked at her friend, smiled, and reached out and tweaked G's nipples too. She stepped back and looked at her friend like OMG, I can't believe he just did that. They spoke as if taken aback, but the giggling and smiling said otherwise.

Later my bud comes to me, "Did you grab my wife's nipples?" I answered with a grin, "No. I pinched them lightly so they'd be erect and excited." "Good. I told her that's what she gets."

Then we high-fived for some reason.

This was pre-RP... now I understand the dynamic: He's successful and driven, good with investments, and an all-around bucks. He's social, leads group activities, tends to AMOG his group, but then I come along: I'm the HS buddy, who is taller, more muscular, more fit, sexually forward in conversation, and physically forward in interaction, and I'm only in town for a few days; I'm forbidden fruit that she at least wants to hold for moment to see what it feels like.

I don't believe she'd cheat on him with me, but AWALT. To be clear, I'd never do that to him.

coffee_and_lumber • 6 points • 8 June, 2015 08:06 PM

There is a lot of value in being the outsider, especially the temporary outsider. Leaving some city where you know a lot of people, then coming back bigger, richer, more powerful is a magnificent pussy magnet.

RPAlternate42 • 3 points • 8 June, 2015 08:15 PM

I've heard advice that says to "date" other people from your country when you visit another country:

You go to visit Italy... Flirt with Italian women and maybe you get lucky (cross-national flirting with a language barrier can be difficult).

But if you spend time with a woman from your own country, you are both temporary outsiders and you are both familiar through culture and language to find shelter from being in a foreign place. You both also know the "relationship" is fleeting and the likelihood of knowing each other afterwards is slim to none.

forbin1992 • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 04:40 AM

Yep, if I'm getting laid in a foreign country it's almost always with an American. Go figure.

RedHeimdall • 6 points • 8 June, 2015 05:13 PM

"well...feeling my midriff too would be equivalent..."

No sugar tits, it would not be equivalent, because your abdomen is incapable of turning me on. It's either neutral or a turn off if you are fat or have a manly six pack.

fckredditt • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 06:32 AM

i'm pretty sure you could do it. even if they get mad, you have a reasonable excuse for it.

[deleted] • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 05:33 PM

Yeah but the woman was likely just getting talked to, not touched. If they touched her she'd probably claim sexual assault.

But that does sound annoying, and of course as women they can get away with touching and grabbing men.

[deleted] • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 10:52 PM

I have been motorboated by a 45 y/o woman.

gokurakumaru • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 02:28 AM

The question in the thread that the guy posed was if it was okay for him to compliment women. That's worlds apart from making a sexual pass, and the fact that this woman equated it with being hit on or being the equivalent of a minimum wage job offer speaks volumes about her character. She's a bitch, plain and simple.

Sexual passes being made at you by someone providing you a service is inappropriate regardless of how high your or your physical therapist's SMV may be. It's a false equivalence.

fckredditt • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 06:31 AM i know what you're saying and it's totally fair to feel annoyed by it. at the same time, women should accept that as a fact of life. they want to play the passive partner in the mating game, so men have to come to them. so they don't get to choose who comes to them. at the same time, they want to dress as attractive as possible but then only want to attract specific men? too bad, that's not how life works. i target women specifically because most men don't complain about this problem. the shit that women want men to do is so fucking stupid that i just can't stand it. they both want a man to be confident and approach women and want men to not approach them, specifically and exactly how they want it. they only want the men they want to approach them. how fucking childish is that? they think they can control the world and the current feminist movement is just ridiculous. they are crying because they can't control everything a man does.

[deleted] • 2 points • 8 June, 2015 06:27 PM

You're saying they must be grateful for being attractive? You're the embodiment of the circlejerk aspect of this sub.

I don't like cashiers who are too chatty. I don't like people trying to talk to me because God forbid a silence exist at a bus stop. It would definitely be very annoying to have people thinking they deserve my attention and respect based only on the fact that they find me attractive.

Intersivity • 0 points • 8 June, 2015 07:33 PM

Who ever said they think they deserve your respect or attention? You may not personally like strangers striking up conversations with you, but many people do enjoy that. How narcissistic can you be to find it insulting that others might want to know more about you and hang out with you?

[deleted] • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 07:40 PM

In this instance, it is not that "others might want to know more about you and hang out with you". They are strangers, and do know nothing about me other than my appearance. I don't think it is a display of entitlement to want to mind my own business, and I'm not a narcissist for not wanting to talk about the weather 12 times a day.

[deleted] • -4 points • 8 June, 2015 05:24 PM

I've been hit on by a lot of old and ugly women but that didn't mean I had to be a piece of trash about it. These bitches should just accept the compliments and move on.

And yes, women DO look at men like jobs. But the problem is a lot of men are STILL living with the fucking fantasy that there's truuuuuuueeeeeeeeeee looooooooooooooooooove. What a bunch of pussies.

[deleted] • 9 points • 8 June, 2015 05:11 PM

Part of the problem is that women just think to damn highly of themselves. People lie to them constantly and tell them they are special and beautiful etc. etc. whether its true or not.

As a result women have a skewed reality and self worth. Fat girls think they deserve ripped men and ugly girls think enough make up fixes everything.

What I take from this is that you have to bring your A game every time because every 7 or 8 you hit on thinks she is a 9 or 10.

MattyAnon • 4 points • 8 June, 2015 05:39 PM

every 7 or 8 you hit on thinks she is a 9 or 10.

She thinks she's a 9 or 10 because she once got hit on by a 9 when she was 17.

jayhovaasmywitness • 5 points • 8 June, 2015 10:15 PM

It seems a little disgusting to define a man as a "minimum wage job", cuz let me tell you something, the vast majority of these hoes aint CEO material

Cyralea • 11 points • 8 June, 2015 02:33 PM

Ever been hit on by a fatty? Same deal, except women have far more markers for what constitutes unattractive. Most times I just take it as a compliment though, instead of acting like a cunt about it. One thing I've noticed is that a lot of women just assume you'll want them, like their vaginas are gold-plated or some shit. Women really don't accept that they might be rejected, it's too damaging for them to contemplate.

Jaereth • 2 points • 8 June, 2015 03:14 PM

A fatty can still find a guy with much higher SMV than her to fuck her. Women just need to be attractive to get a top mate. Men need to be attractive and hold frame. This is basically the dividing factor on why women are so much more shrewd with selection.

Stationarity • 6 points • 8 June, 2015 03:02 PM

More and more I accept that women get their worth from the man they are with. In their head, if an ugly is hitting on them, it's a reflection on their worth.

plentyoffishes • 7 points • 8 June, 2015 03:28 PM

Just think of what it's like when you get hit on by an ugly or fat girl. Or you do online dating, where you get 2 emails a week from women, and they are strictly heavyweights or post menopausal gals. Don't you feel the same way as these women do?

Destroyer_Wes • 6 points • 8 June, 2015 07:10 PM

I have been hit on by attractive women and unattractive women as well as a few men. In any case I do not feel insulted by any of them, yeah being hit on by a man was awkward but still all compliments are welcomed by me.

[deleted] • 15 points • 8 June, 2015 01:44 PM

And this response shows the importance of grooming:

It has a point when for example, for a date I put on full makeup, shave everything, wear nice clothes and have a nice hairstyle, while he doesn't even bother to shave or put on anything nicer than a shirt and jeans. That's an immediate put-off.

BETA ALARM, I groom as much as I want to, not as much as she wants me to

This thread was already discussed on TRP four months ago.

Can't link within reddit, but you find it easily if you search TRP for "compliments". ("In a rare moment of honesty...")

mojo_juju • 3 points • 8 June, 2015 03:13 PM*

This demonstrates the importance of indirect approaches. (Approaches where you naturally fall into a conversation without it being forced or obvious that you're trying to converse)

Also, the same goes for guys (just about)-- When a fat fugly talks to me or stares at me, my thought is "what the fuck are you thinking" I.e. "be realistic, you must know you're a fat fugly. Do yourself and me a favor-- go bug someone on your own level and leave me alone"

It's simple SMV economics. And in this regard, women have higher standards than men--simple biology. Again, can't blame em for it, blame nature.

[deleted] • 2 points • 8 June, 2015 05:39 PM

[deleted] • 3 points • 8 June, 2015 06:39 PM*

Don't take the words of these girls for the truth. Saying these things is a tool to increase their SMV: Look at me, so many orbiters, and my standards are so high! I MUST be pretty, right guys? Guys?

And they are successful, even here on TRP, just as you already assumed that this one chick must be attractive, because she wrote something that made her sound like she were an attractive woman.

I don't know how she actually feels when approached by an ugly man. Probably she just feels confused, scared, irritated, whatever. What is important is that this kind of female shitposting is just bragging, just like a neckbeard imitating a brodude going "I benchpress 350lbs and bang supermodels, brah!" on the internet. Ignore it.

Her "omg _____ was so creepy" Me "was he creepy or just unattractive" her "no he was creepy" me "if I did it would it be creepy!" Her "well, that's different....." me "if Ryan gosling did it would you find it creepy" etc...

Although sometimes they'll tell me stories that so sound legit creepy haha! But I always take it with a grain of salt

I used to be "creepy" when I was like 17-19. I got it allot because I was a thirsty chubby beta fucker. Shockingly I can do the same stuff now and they find it sexy

ManUp_youBitch • 2 points • 8 June, 2015 02:49 PM

What if everyone starts negging? Will that not become 'old' and thus become the same as everyone complimenting women?

BUt yea, basically never compliment women

IllimitableMan • 11 points • 8 June, 2015 07:00 PM*

It's not about novelty. It's about ego. Most women are incredibly narcissistic because they live in a delusional self-important princess world. Negging them causes them to feel vulnerability, which leads to feminine behaviour instead of the usual dismissiveness and pumped up boisterousness. Negging is the only way to get the respect or attraction of a narcissistic girl. Sad but true. Women whose ego isn't sky high are becoming increasingly rare. The neg will always be necessary. At least in our lifetime.

Women are always talking about how they find confidence important in men. You never hear guys saying "I love how much self-esteem she has!" do you? No. Bitches with too much self-esteem are more annoying than the whiny ones who are always worried about every tiny little thing. Balance in all things.

Unfortunately, we've got too much of the delusional "I can do anything, I'm so special, I can get any guy I want" bullshit going on these days.

Bitches are far too self-important and gassed up these days. Insulting them, making them doubt themselves and penetrating that thick narcissistic confidence is necessary to getting laid. Otherwise, she immediately thinks she is superior to you and therefore, you're unattractive/unworthy of her highness. Women don't make an effort to be feminine or demure anymore, they're stuck-up, bratty and entitled for the most part. When you realise you are dealing with cunts like that, you realise why insulting them generates attraction. If you can insult someone who is that much of a cunt, you communicate in subtext "I have even higher confidence than you, and therefore, I must be superior to you." Superiority real or perceived generates respect and attraction.

Feminism/society, betas as well as the girl's hamster itself have placed them on such a high pedestal that they think they're better than 99% of the men they meet. When the fact is that once you disregard aesthetics, most women are inferior to most men that you meet. They are less talented, less interesting, and whatever. It's all looks charm and ego with bitches, very little have any real depth to them. You have to ruin that self-esteem, or at least lower it, to get them to learn humility, give themselves a more accurate self-assessment and thus assess you as superior. The game is real fucked up these days but once you adapt, it isn't so bad.

By comparison, I find most guys are incredibly unconfident and have huge self-esteem issues. Just walk down the street and read the body language of the most guys you meet. Heads down, avoidant, unassertive. Generally submissive body language. Whereas the bitches swan around like they're the shit.

So the bitches are all gassed up and the guys undervalue themselves. Fucked up times we're in. Neg, neg, neg. Feel no remorse. Ignore her beauty, good chance she's actually not very hot and is extremely reliant on make up anyway.

"You need better makeup and your tits are small, why are you talking to me?"

^ Negs like this are how black knights are born.

ManUp_youBitch • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 10:50 AM flip69 • 2 points • 8 June, 2015 03:58 PM

As a reasonable looking guy.. that was popular a couple of decades ago, I can confirm that when some woman was "reaching too far" in approaching me ... yeah I got a bit upset myself.

I saw it as an indication of not only her arrogance but also that she thought that "I had slipped" and was now in her reach... "insult" is too harsh of a word... but I'm honestly having a problem finding a better one to use.

How a immature woman might react.. or say they'll react, that's going to be kinda different of course as they'll usually be more heavily reliant upon their appearances and self perception of their attractiveness as the basis of their own self worth and status. That's just a formula for defensiveness right there.

RPthrowaway123 • 2 points • 8 June, 2015 04:52 PM*

I find it hilarious when these sorts of things happen. They know what the truth is, but they refuse to talk about it and even when one of their own admits to "red pill" thinking they close ranks and go on the attack. Heaven forbid anyone think that women aren't all wonderful.

Never forget the cardinal rule: be attractive, and don't be unattractive.

TRP is just something you learn, it's something you live by.

[deleted] • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 06:11 AM

I've noticed this as well! The other day we were walking down the street and a not so attractive guy complimented my friend on her looks and she was offended and outright mad.

I guess a lot of girls think that if a guy with low perceived SMV hits on a girl who thinks she has a much higher SMV, then therefore she might be low SMV as well. It works the other way too. If a girl on my college campus sleeps with a hot alpha, she tells everyone about it because her SMV depends on the guy she can get with.

Sad but true

freethinker34 • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 06:33 AM

I feel the same way when unattractive women approach me, especially in online dating. I consider myself to be a decent looking guy who is tall and works hard to be physically fit. When unattractive women message me it actually makes me feel shitty, like wtf is my SMV that low? So I can relate to how attractive women feel when neckbeards with negative SMV hit on them

thredditsowaway • 2 points • 9 June, 2015 01:15 PM

Great insight, but I feel like a lot of us are guilty of this logic too. In my BP days it would drive me almost to tears when I got hit on by an unattractive girl or a gay guy. I think it's because it made me feel like I couldn't get hot girls. Now that I am getting hot girls, it doesn't bother me as much. It used to subtly say to me "you don't deserve a 9 and you know it."

Maybe it just bothers these girls because it's a subconscious reminder that they're not really worth the attention of a top-tier man.

Edit: and most of that can be solved by hitting the gym and skipping the afternoon Starbucks 600 calorie sugar fuckstorm. It's just really hard to admit that and actually commit to making progress, so people just get angry instead.

Sir_Shitlord_focker • 2 points • 10 June, 2015 12:02 PM

As an unattractive men myself I can confirm they are not just insulted but also quite insulting:-)

BlackHeart89 • 2 points • 12 June, 2015 11:10 PM

For the most part, this is common sense. If she's hot and you're not, stay away. You're wasting her time. The only reason I would say to approach is if you're new to the game and trying to get rid of your approach anxiety or you just want to troll for fun.

wanderer779 • 3 points • 8 June, 2015 01:26 PM sounds like a classy lady. I guess if you are just looking for sex it's irrelevant, but I prefer not to sleep with women with character flaws, lest I end up stuck with them.

Of course the flip side with these women is that if you are tall and handsome you can get away with about anything.

BlueFreedom420 • 5 points • 8 June, 2015 06:30 PM

There will be a day when we will return to the time when a warrior, when the strong can pick any woman he wants. Doesn't matter if he is a troll or a Adonis. Women should have no damn say in mating choice.

Civilization was not built on their choice and will collapse if we keep allowing women to chose.

the importance of grooming

I was watching a re-run of the old 80's TV show "married with children" this morning at the gym. What I remember best about that show from when I was a kid was how hot Christina Applegate was. However, since there was no sound this morning, I wasn't paying attention to anything but the visuals and I realized: she's actually pretty ugly. She has a weird looking face. But the hair, makeup and wardrobe people hid it so well, you'd have to be very critical to actually notice.

This works for us, too. We have the male equivalent of teased hair and tight dresses, and they work.

superyay • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 06:05 PM

Hey to be honest, i feel the same when gay dudes or ugly women compliment my looks.

Mensphysique12 • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 06:35 PM

Yes this is true. I have one friend that is a woman (we did engineering school together and she is super open with all of women's goals, she validates the red pill theories). We were out a few weeks ago at the bar and an "ugly" guy hit on her, later she told me she was insulted and it made her feel ugly that he would even consider hitting on her (she is attractive, and her guys usually are pretty alpha).

newmewuser4 • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 07:41 PM

fluxburn • 1 point • 8 June, 2015 11:38 PM

Well the opposite is true with a super hot hooker. Since ugly people make more fucking money then pretty people on average. Check out Bill Gates, man and his woman is ugly as fuck. But I bet that bitch is smart as fuck like Bill is. I dated an alright looking bitch once, fucking smart a fucking hell. Kinda sucked, she was smarter with words and history, but I'm smarter with engineering and math. Oh and I make shitloads trading stock, but it's so fucking easy I work daily in engineering technical computing. Man Reno NV was fun, those 2 women were hotter then fucking hell.

DarthRoach • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 12:01 AM

You don't even have to hit on them to insult them. Existing and not scampering off to the shadows in the presence of the princess is enough, if your perceived SMV is low. I've had girls act offended for me simply engaging in work/school/situationally required interaction with them in the past.

midnightbean • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 12:07 AM

I know where they're coming from. It's always nice to get hit on from a girl but when it's overt and she's low SMV it becomes an argument that says, "I consider us compatible". It's one thing to stare or show interest with doubt, but when fuglies seriously think they have a chance I'm like "yo, wtf is this shit, seriously?" And if hot girls are ignoring you as they do or even should it kills your confidence.

I imagine girls are always getting stares from men because we want to bang most women. These girls will probably have inflated SMVs, we know this.

If you actually have specific skills you've acquired then being asked to work a lower job position is insulting.

We fight for what we want and we deal with the consequences of choosing rather than begging. Let em choose, they'll be begging for a good chunk of their lives.. Give em a break.

fekredditt • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 06:27 AM women have this idea of "friendship with men" and it's just absolutely ridiculous. adults almost never establish relationships just for fun. adults have all the company they need and they don't crave it like they did in their youth. when was the last time as an adult did you meet a new friend who didn't have any use for you or you for them? this is between people of the same sex. it's infinitely worse with the opposite sex because there is absolutely nothing a woman can give a man other than sex and introduction to more sex. women have a lot of uses for men because men have a lot of skills. that's why women love to be friends with men. it's very useful for them. so that woman wishing that men would just want to be her friend well, why does she even want to be their friend to begin with? there was this thing that i used to put up with women who friendzone me in my youth. they would use me as an ear to complain about the most inane shit. as a man, think about the last time you ever let another man do that to you. it's fucking annoying right? and you would drop him in a second. well, women don't let other women do that to them neither.

[deleted] • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 06:40 AM

The PUA "fake it until you make it" isn't going to help if your SMV is below average.

You can "fake" SMV as well, it's just easier to get caught doing it.

An easy way to fake your SMV is to stand up straight ie. fixing your posture. It's something that happens automatically when you lift weights for a bit, but easy to do before that.

ExBABYYy • 1 point • 9 June, 2015 06:56 AM

Well I honestly do feel offended when another single-mother or obese girl approaches me or invites me over. I'm well trained, talented, close to 7 digits. What on earth makes you think I would date you or even look at you.

Let's assume this attractive woman is an 8.

The guy can be an 10 or a 6 based simply on the first thing he says (all else being equal. Normal height, normal looks.)

His compliment screams "I'm really a 6 but I'll buy a point being nice"

She knows that those words are manipulative rather than sincere. Why would she enjoy that?

A neg or two says "I'm so used to hot women that i don't care if you feel good or not. Do you have anything else than your fortunate genetics. Prove yourself to me."

The attractive dude can be the biggest beta of them all. COULD be. It's not always but it could happen.

Patrice O'neal and Dante Nero were/are so big dudes like myself, yet they still managed to pull some great pieces of ass.

Granted, both were/are well known and famous somewhat, yet fame and money won't keep a broad stuck on your dick long enough without game.

Point is, you as a man can change a broad's thinking with strong game and unconscious like confidence in one's belief of self and value.

Had Patrice had no game there is a VERY high chance he would of never been able to bag Von's phat butt self.

Women are attracted to high status and good looking men. Cool it's obvious at this point but, you can still change her thinking with a strong game plan.

Don't let women and society hold you back because what THEY deem right or wrong is the only authority. Screw that

Modern__Day__Pricus • 2 points • 8 June, 2015 03:35 PM

Actually no but, I understand why you say that and don't fault you for it.

My intentions are always coming from a place of positive thinking as well as with action, in trying to advance and become better than I was yesterday.

OP's post was truthful, but at the same time so was people's views on Hip-hop being a fade. It changed because someone had the forethought to go beyond and show that Hip-hop can be a powerhouse in the world. Guys like Jay Z and Eminem are facts of this.

My point being, it's not a bad thing to take a alternative view (Like the Red Pill) and apply it when others are stuck on one viewpoint.

So, I understand your reaction and hold no problems with it. My views, actions, and philosophies are always one of going forward and looking for new ways of approaching life.

Appreciate the comment thank you.
