

"I have no interest in taking time off from work to raise the kids, I'll hire a nanny instead" — Muslim women of the future.

April 27, 2020 | 1 upvotes | by Beyondthet

r/MuslimMarriage

Posted by u/aylasaidso • 50m

Would I be displeasing Allah by getting married?

Serious Discussion

Salam

So I'm not very knowledgeable about islamic marriage although I would like to get married some day.

From what I've seen of my parents marriage and my relatives, I understand that there are certain roles. The husband must provide financially to support a home, food, clothing etc, and the wife is the expected caretaker of the home who may also work if she wishes.

Here's my dilemma. I'm a believer in mutuality. I'm not going to be supported, I'll be working just as hard to support my family financially. If we had kids, I have no interest in taking time off my job, I'll hire a nanny to care for them while we're at work.

I'm aware that as muslim women we are to obey our husbands, but my understanding of this is because traditionally, the husband is the one who puts in hours upon hours of work to provide for his wife and any children. But since I don't plan to be provided for, I see no point in blindly 'obeying' my husband since I wouldn't need or want his financial support (as in I would not be financially affected if he wasn't there and he does not put in more effort than I do).

My family doesn't agree with any of this. They believe

Comments

Beyondthet 1 points 27 April, 2020 01:36 PM

I think she's got the right idea folks. Work first, kids second. Who would have thought?

Funny how she says she wants to help support the family but doesn't even want to be in her kids life and work is more important lol.

Clown world huh? I bet you anything this post won't be removed either.

leopardinstinct 1 points 27 April, 2020 01:39 PM

This is what feminism has done to these girls, they prioritize feminism over the Deen

Beyondthet 1 points 27 April, 2020 01:43 PM

Exactly. If you read what Shaykh Akram Nadwi said in my earlier posts, he suggests that this is what feminism has done to women. Feminists never recognise the virtue of raising their children and treating her husband's kindly. All they want to do I prioritise worldly things like work and status. They give more importance to that than family values.

Not that the Shaykh said anything special. This has been said a million times over at r/MGTOW. We know this already.

Yet, these Muslim subs are plagued with this kind of rhetoric and the pathetic mods who run them don't even do anything about it. Like they know any better themselves lol.

submit3r 1 points 27 April, 2020 01:46 PM

They clearly don't know better, most are probably BLUEPILLED.

leopardinstinct 1 points 27 April, 2020 01:49 PM

I read through it, unfortunately besides him not many raise his points so it's pretty blue pillled Muslim world out there. Most Imams are encouraging men to buy into feminism indirectly and also indirectly to man up and marry those sluts that went through the CC. I'm not the biggest fan of some forms of mgtow as it is quite defeatist. After all we are trying to find solutions instead of whine and complain about the messed up world.

Beyondthet 1 points 27 April, 2020 01:50 PM

Most Imams are encouraging men to buy into feminism indirectly and also indirectly to man up and marry those sluts that went through the CC.

You said it right brother.

GottaAskGang 1 points 27 April, 2020 04:24 PM

What are mods supposed to do about posts like that? Censor them? What will that achieve?

Beyondthet 1 points 27 April, 2020 04:53 PM

I believe they shouldn't be censored but corrected. Unfortunately the mods remove posts that go against them though what's why their way of thinking is so rampant in Muslim subs.

submit3r 1 points 27 April, 2020 01:47 PM

"Not very knowledgable (about marriage)"

"wanna get married someday"

>incoherent feminist bitching

Hard Pass.

Beyondthet 1 points 27 April, 2020 01:48 PM

Broo great assessment ☐☐☐☐☐☐

sithdowell 1 points 3 May, 2020 09:12 AM

Maybe the dad could...I don't know...be a parent? ☐

TrynaBeTheBest 1 points 14 May, 2020 08:36 PM

"I believe in mutuality" - LITERALLY GOING AGAINST ISLAM

i swear most of them are muslim by name not actions

888AlphaMale888 1 points 14 May, 2020 10:57 PM

Astagfirullah.