True Story!

Trying to find Real Love in a hook up world.

Actually read profiles.

Need to see your eyes as its the only way I know...and when I know, I'm forever yours.

Was once a hopeless romantic. Used to believe in fate and need help believing in the idea of "Real Love" again.

The whole concept of dating, courting, chivalry, being romantic, having something "real" and meaningful, lasting, and "forever" has completely changed. Someone once told me, "Forever, is as long as it lasts." Technology has truly disconnected us from ourselves and each other so much so that we are so dysfunctional without our stupid cell phones!

I think, dream and love on a different level than most.

More to me than I'll share here. Had a whole profile and pretty sure most didn't even read it.

I love this part

Yeah that concept was right there in front of you in your 20s when you chose to ignore them for the aloof 6'3 dickheads who left you on read while they were screwing their rotation of baby mamas. Too late to cash out now, granny.

Honest_Solution • 57 points • 2 April, 2020 04:45 PM

I would argue that most women still ignore it in their early and mid-30's. It's like those very last chances come along and they don't realize they're getting to the very end of the line, so they do what they've always done and that's reject non-Chad's for the stupidest of reasons. Now that she's reflecting on her aloneness, it's all men's fault that she isn't being courted or loved properly when in fact she's the one who made this bed but refuses to take a nap in it.

-Numbers- • 39 points • 2 April, 2020 05:07 PM

Sadly that's true about their 30s being no different. We're still expected to get out our violins because Chads find her repulsive and are busy with girls 19 years her junior. Gives me the warm and fuzzies seeing them suffering over the beds they themselves made

HikageBurner • 31 points • 2 April, 2020 06:59 PM

Tfw the 39 year olds want our attention but instead we'd rather fuck their daughters.

-Numbers- • 19 points • 3 April, 2020 12:39 AM

If you managed to pull that off a couple of decades later on a woman who ignored you back when you would have given the world for her then that is hands down one of the biggest middle fingers I can think of.

HikageBurner • 19 points • 3 April, 2020 01:02 AM

It's our job as men who wish to stand up for ourselves to fuck the daughters of the Stacys who rejected us in high school and college.

Women stop maturing about mid puberty and they don't start maturing again until men start ignoring them. A pre-wall woman is literally a child mentally.

user_miki • 9 points • 3 April, 2020 12:55 PM

I'm an old dude and I found that some women never mature. I know personally some >60 old laddies making girly weird faces (they think that is flirting) and behaving like a spoiled 20 year old girls when asking some favors from a man.

It is really creepy to see that.

maruadventurer • 4 points • 4 April, 2020 01:39 PM

Under the patriarchy of old, women were not required to mature so long as:

They raised the kids,

Maintained their duties on the homestead. (which is quite enough by the way.)

Being an old dude myself which would you rather come home to? A wife who has man handled the rug rats all day long but still has a smile on her face to see you home? Or some full fledged man-bitch with an attitude griping the bills have not been paid? Yeah me too.

The feminists are at war with their inner selves. Be the neutral country and refuse to participate. Its your only choice. Men cannot change women, only other women can do that.

rvail136 • 1 point • 5 April, 2020 12:19 PM

Except most "old women" has long since lost interest in sex...the only thing that an "old" man expects from them!

I-am-the-lul • 7 points • 3 April, 2020 12:01 AM

I heard that factoid from watching both Donovan Sharpe and Coach Greg Adams.

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 April, 2020 02:12 PM

I made a video about that a long time ago but YouTube took it down for hate speech. I personally believe a lot of it is simply the fact that women go through puberty between about 9-15 and puberty is when the brain does a lot of development so they get kind of frozen in that teen and tween mindset. Then because life is so easy for pre-wall women, they are never forced to grow beyond that.

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 April, 2020 04:39 PM

Women evolved to nurture and then maintain friendship with their offspring. The nurture is for their babies development early on and to keep the woman interested in their survival. The friendship is for the woman later on, so that the children continue to take care of their mammas. That is why they don't mature past the post-pubescent expectations of mental development. The reason this works is because men take care of innocent children and are triggered to take care of women at that level of mental faculty.

ZealousMaths • 4 points • 4 April, 2020 01:28 AM

I don't think they even consciously ignore them. I think its automatic. Unless the guy actively presents himself, its like walking by a stranger.

That's the best way to describe it.

mustangfrank • 6 points • 4 April, 2020 07:15 PM

Just like the site says

Women in their 20s have numerous opportunities to date the decent men they claim to want, but they consistently reject or friendzone these men for jerks and promiscuity. She takes advantage of a man's kindness for attention and favors, then accuses him of thinking he was entitled to sex just for being nice.

But when she's in her 30s with depreciating looks, jerks who won't commit, the likelihood of being a single mom, and the social pressure from her married friends, she asks "Where have all the good men gone?"[1][2] Funny how back when she was chasing the bad boys he was a "NiceGuy™" unworthy of dating, but now that she's past her prime and needs a bailout he's a "real man" who treats her with respect.

Is this sub openly for men who are bitter that other men are getting laid and blame women for it? Or am I misunderstanding the nature of the misogyny in here?

-Numbers- • 3 points • 4 April, 2020 04:26 PM

Is this sub openly for men who are bitter that other men are getting laid and blame women for it?

In my opinion, no not even close. In fact if you actually pay attention a lot of guys here have no problem getting laid (plenty have even had the awful experience of being married) but even if they aren't does that make the exposure of the horrible dating scene any different?

Or am I misunderstanding the nature of the misogyny in here?

Yes the problem seems to be you. Exposing true nature does not equal hate. I don't know what it is with society today turning something they don't agree with into extreme bullshit like hatred, racism, or homophobia. It's getting really old. I have yet to see any person here openly say they hate women. This amazing sub is more like walking into a courtroom and presenting your case as "here's exhibit A, here's exhibit B, etc. on why dating/mingling with the opposite sex sucks and why you should focus on yourself". You're free to ignore this place and go back to whatever happy go lucky utopian sub that you came from?

I wonder what the problem might be....☐

I have an idea: could it possibly be that she's been rejecting good men for the majority of her life?

She's 39. Her 18th birthday was 21+ years ago... she probably got started on rejecting good men while in middle school, but even if it started at 18, it's still most of her life....

And she isn't done yet, as expressed by her suffering from swipe left syndrome.

Lady, you're 39. You're almost old enough to be a grandma. You can't afford to keep rejecting good men, but what do I know? Enjoy your cats, boxed wine and your trusty crusty dolphin vibrator.... ☐

Thanks for the post OP. I'm going with "leftovers" for this one since she spends most of the time bitching about how chivalry is dead and no one believes in forever love anymore and I am pretty sure that she didn't give a shit about forever and long term commitment when she was younger and had options that disappeared as she face planted the wall.

bitcoin-optimist[S] • 15 points • 2 April, 2020 04:08 PM

Wish I could have included all the questions. It is obvious she got around and that's only recently changed. The sad thing is you can tell she genuinely wants kids and she still thinks that option is on the table. I kept wondering, "What in the world were you thinking waiting?"

[deleted] • 8 points • 2 April, 2020 07:00 PM

I hate that, like just don’t claim it, how does saying Christian make your profile any different? Just leave it off. You think God is going to let you into heaven based on what your dating profile says lurkerhasarisen1 points 3 April, 2020 12:24 PM [recovered]

I see your point, but have a different take on it. Religious affiliation is extremely important to a lot of people. I did not even remotely consider the possibility of marrying a woman who was not a Christian, for example, and my wife would not have been interested in me if I hadn't been one.

That said, I don't see the point in her claiming a religion she doesn't practice. By her profile she is sending a very strong signal that she's 1) not serious about one of the most basic "Thou Shalt Not's" of the Christian faith (fornication), but also that she doesn't understand anything about Christian matrimony.

She can be a practicing Christian or she can be a THOT, but she can't be both at the same time, and it's very clear what her choice is.

ZealousMaths • 1 point • 4 April, 2020 01:38 AM

I bet I know more of the Bible than she does. All the “thou shall submit to thy husband” content alongside a few choice bits.

But she’d probably call herself an Adventist or some eclectic sect and refuse to talk about her favorite verse and run, leaving behind by ignorance her Latin Roman Catholic Bible “stand-in.”

What is it? Is that Crenshaw, that 6'4" easygoing black swimmer no longer good enough around West London because he devotes time more to teaching kids and not making you money? Rakesh from banking left you and didn't take you into his BMW payed for by his Barclays position? Or was it "Oppa" who you fetishized for KPOP that didn't see you as an ideal wife and once he found out why you dated him you broke up so you could have the final say?

The crone desperately tries to compete based on looks and virtue signalling, but daw....nope.

It's common knowledge that crones are MASSIVELY, MASSIVELY shallow, that Chads do not want to deal with the headache of trying to keep a crone who is always constantly tempted to branch swing.

Plus, her habit of branch-swinging ultimately damages a crone and no guy wants to deal with all the bitterness and problems that come with it too.

For every 1 older woman who just barely manages to assume a semblance of an attractive appearance and personality, 100 younger women can do better.

bsutansalt • 3 points • 3 April, 2020 01:06 AM

Stunning. This is exactly the kind of woman who would have benefited greatly from hearing this 15-20 years ago. It's too late for her, but maybe her daughters nieces can avoid repeating her mistakes.

[deleted] • 2 points • 3 April, 2020 04:56 PM

can avoid repeating her mistakes

She is still competing with those women, so she'll sabotage their ability to get the men they are also interested in. Those younger women aren't interested in listening to anyone/thing but their own tingles while the State will take care of them and provide them the stability they would normally have to find from a good provider male.

RedPilling women seems to be a sunken cost fallacy. We want women to recognize their value so that they seek stable, long term relationships with men that make good provider males, but the value that men provide are already granted to women via the state welfare redistribution system. Since men chase after young, fertile women and can't be expected to give up their hormonal requirements for physical intimacy, then men will always attempt to offer what women are looking for. RedPilling women ends up attempting to change older women's mind after the damage of not getting precisely what they want has already been done while young women already have the power to get what they want, they just don't want boring provider traits the State has already fulfilled. It is only when getting everything they wanted doesn't materialize into getting what they expected to get in the future that they turn to other tactics to game the system in their favor again. But men aren't fooled by older women and the most those spinsters can hope for is to get a desperate man who they resent.

In summary, there is no point to showing women the perils of riding the Carousel, but instead to show men the result of having them already done that. Women will get in line when they have no other option, when the chips are down and StateWelfare Inc. has closed it's already bankrupted doors. The writing is on the wall, but women aren't reading until they slam into it.

bsutansalt • 2 points • 3 April, 2020 05:33 PM*

the value that men provide are already granted to women via the state welfare redistribution system

That and the fact women can make their own money, pay for their own houses, etc. The paradox of course is that many, if not most, don't actually want that life. The irony is that most don't often recognize this until they've hit the wall of course, and for many by then it's too late. As they talked about in the video, by the time women get into their mid-30s or later, the guys still available aren't the ones they desire, but rather are the leftovers women across the board have discarded in life, MGTOWs by choice and widowers not included.

In summary, there is no point to showing women the perils of riding the Carousel, but instead to show men the result of having them already done that. Women will get in line when they have no other option, when the chips are down and StateWelfare Inc. has closed it's already bankrupted doors. The writing is on the wall, but women aren't reading until they slam into it.

We agree that things won't fundamentally change until the state stops usurping men's roles in society as the father and husband. I'm talking the end of WIC, child support being needs tested with both parents responsible for HALF of whatever amount the state arrives at, no more alimony, welfare like section 8 housing--gone. When those kinds of changes occur the women we see right now, today thanks to this virus, who are looking around thinking to themselves holy shit, no time to waste, imagine that being scaled up at the macro level for decades. Women would be climbing over each other to marry early and forgot the cock carousel.

Tear out the welfare rot root & stem and society will change for the better in no time flat. Some women will have a hard time, and their kids might go hungry until those women get their shit together, but charities can step in to fill the gap until women as a class, single mothers especially, get their act together. THEN AND ONLY THEN will those women serve as proper examples to others of what NOT to do.

[deleted] • 1 point • 6 April, 2020 04:20 PM

It appears that we are in complete agreement here about the A) problem and B) solution. After having contemplated this for a few days, I am curious why this isn't being discussed more in RPW. There is almost no way to tell a woman to seek men for security and stability over the state because they are driven to extract resources from anywhere they can. They don't have the logical faculties to decide their own merits for the things they want and need which is partly why they take advantage and exploit men when men allow them to.

TRP and MGTOW are the response to female liberation and privilege. So what is RPW the response to in the same environment? Wouldn't that be a response required for a patriarchal society?

My apologies if this is off topic, but I would like to contribute there, only I haven't been able to wrap my mind around helping women who are already taken care of, often over the expense of hard working men that aren't.

It's all so tiring. Seeing the same bullshit over and over again.

Currently suffering from Swiping Left Syndrome (SLS)

She admits to not wanting the guys that want her. She created her own problem and now she's complaining about the problem that she created for herself. Women have no accountability and can never take responsibility for anything.
