The amount of women pushing for this is ridiculous.

A week or two ago a close family member told me about a family friend named Wayne getting the same talk from his lady. Wayne's girlfriend wants to leave him now because she doesn't feel like she's getting what she "needs."

There is going to be a massive backlash against all this. I have no doubt as this becomes more common more and more men are going to go nuts. If the numbers are actually true that 50% of women are cheating and the number is going up it is going to become so obvious to men that all of the old customs are going to come flooding back in.

It makes good sense now why all older societies have rules in place about marriage. It is the only way to keep society functioning.

India: parents decide (this helps the incel category)

Muslims: some free choice -- adultery is punishable by death (reduces the PUAs tendencies)

Christians: similar to Muslims -- with commandments against certain promiscuous behaviors

All of it makes sense when viewed through the lens of promiscuity.
