

Red Pill Reading List

20 upvotes | 22 March, 2013 | by redpillschool

People keep asking for a reading list, so here's what PK and I had compiled. Some of these books seem out of context, unless you consider the red pill an existential crisis, and want to get to the bottom of existence..

To get to the bottom of reality, he said, he had to research reality itself. Wanted a full picture to understand the world. Here's his library, what he sent me: (RPS: I read these upon his recommendation)

Quantum Enigma: Physics Encounters Consciousness - Kuttner, Fred, Bruce Rosenblum

Consciousness: A Very Short Introduction - Blackmore, Susan

Nothing: A Very Short Introduction - Close, Frank

The Grand Design - Hawking, Stephen, Mlodinow, Leonard

The God Delusion - Dawkins, Richard

Physics of the Impossible: A Scientific Exploration into the World of Phasers, Force Fields, Teleportation, and Time Travel - Kaku, Michio

A Briefer History of Time - Hawking, Stephen, Mlodinow, Leonard

Freakonomics Rev Ed: (and Other Riddles of Modern Life) (P.S.) - Levitt, Steven D., Dubner, Stephen J.

The Religion Virus: Why we believe in God: An evolutionist explains religion's incredible hold on humanity - James, Craig A.

The Fabric of the Cosmos: Space, Time, and the Texture of Reality (Vintage) - Greene, Brian

The Mating Mind: How Sexual Choice Shaped the Evolution of Human Nature - Miller, Geoffrey

Day Bang: How To Casually Pick Up Girls During The Day - Vörek, Roosh

A Dead Bat In Paraguay: One Man's Peculiar Journey Through South America - Vörek, Roosh

The Manipulated Man - Vilar, Esther

The Way of Men - Donovan, Jack

The Essays of Arthur Schopenhauer; Studies in Pessimism - Schopenhauer, Arthur

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

[deleted] • 8 points • 22 March, 2013 02:02 AM

48 Laws of Power, Sperm Wars, The Red Queen, and basically anything this guy recommends.

[deleted] • 3 points • 22 March, 2013 05:17 AM

[permanently deleted]

92648 • 1 point • 22 March, 2013 05:20 AM

Can you elaborate?

[deleted] • 2 points • 22 March, 2013 05:27 AM

[permanently deleted]

[deleted] • 2 points • 28 March, 2013 03:28 AM

I found that having a strong background in history helped, it took me a hugely long period of time to get through that book because each one was an example, but there are soooo many other choices he could have used. It's more a training in how to percieve things than a statement of facts, I just notice more now that I've gone through 48 laws.

GaiusScaevolus • 5 points • 22 March, 2013 04:15 AM

Also recommend the Red Queen, Bang (for new guys) and some Fredrich Nietzsche, Ayn Rand, and Edmund Burke.

HumanSockPuppet • 5 points • 22 March, 2013 04:21 AM

The Black Swan by Nassim Nicholas Taleb.

nicethingyoucanthave • 0 points • 22 March, 2013 05:05 AM

What?? Why?

HumanSockPuppet • 5 points • 22 March, 2013 05:12 AM

It's a book about statistics. Not that story about a ballet dancer of whatever the fuck it was.

It discusses how the things we think are improbably are actually much more likely than we think. A great little academic piece on idiosyncracies and impactful events. Perfect when you consider that the behaviours that actually work with women are the last thing blue-pillers typically expect to be true.

[deleted] • 5 points • 22 March, 2013 05:22 AM

[permanently deleted]

[deleted] • 3 points • 22 March, 2013 09:09 AM

"The Art of Seduction" has gotten me tons of pussy and money.

krackato • 1 point • 22 March, 2013 11:46 AM

What did you find useful in Robert Greene's book?

[deleted] • 3 points • 22 March, 2013 03:24 PM

Have you read it? All I can say is read it over and over again. I don't consider myself a PUA, I guess I'm what they call a natural. But this book definitely helped me a lot. 71 women I've bedded so far and I'm 27. A good portion of that time I was looking for God and wife, so Imagine I'd be a lot higher on the scale if otherwise ;)

noizef • 2 points • 22 March, 2013 03:09 AM where have all the leaders gone? (lee iaccoca), drink play f@#k (andrew gottlieb), god's debris (scott adams)

[deleted] • 2 points • 22 March, 2013 08:26 AM

Alone Together - Sherry Turkle, it is an interesting look at how technology and the internet is changing human interaction. Whilst she is not red pill and has a lot of focus on robotics (entire first half of the book, which is very interesting) there are some great gems when she is speaking to young women about their relationship and expectations thanks to technology

A Professionals Guide to Ending Violence Quickly - Marc Mcyoung, whilst he is a bit controversial and has his flaws this is a decent read on recognising violence and how to deal with it. You want to understand alpha fighting, escalation patterns? This one is worth a look.

SuperNinKenDo • 1 point • 22 March, 2013 01:41 AM

Looks good, all the ones I've already read, I too would recommend, so I feel confident the others will make the grade too.

[deleted] • 1 points • 22 March, 2013 05:11 AM

[permanently deleted]

[deleted] • 1 point • 24 March, 2013 05:21 PM

Just finished Donovan's book, The Way of Men. I recommend it. It's a very straightforward read, and it has some fantastic information.

[deleted] • 1 point • 24 March, 2013 09:52 PM

Think! And Grow Rich - Napoleon Hill

Excellent book, in terms of self-control of one's own energies (like sexual) and projecting said energies instead of wasting them.

[deleted] • 1 point • 22 March, 2013 12:32 AM

Why so much atheistic material?

redpillschool[S] • 7 points • 22 March, 2013 12:35 AM pk stands for preacher's kid.

he lost religion and took the red pill at the same time.

he wanted to know what reality was.

I didn't say my reading list was good. he and I chatted a lot, and I read everything he gave me. I enjoyed it.

Rollo is a better read if you're concentrating on red pill only.

[deleted] • 2 points • 22 March, 2013 12:37 AM

Ahh durr, I thought PK was a Red Pill bro, like Virgin Kent = VK.

redpillschool[S] • 7 points • 22 March, 2013 12:40 AM pk_atheist launched the subreddit. I respect him for what he did, though he left early.

VZPurp • 2 points • 22 March, 2013 02:05 AM