

AMA - Milo Yiannopoulos - Thursday, Dec 10th, 5pm London time, (12pm EST) on TRP

December 2, 2015 | 614 upvotes | by redpillschool

EDIT 12/10 12:22 EST - Milo appears to be running late. Rest assured we'll sticky the thread when we begin.

British journalist, Breitbart writer Milo Yiannopoulos, who is well known for his coverage of Gamergate and defense of the masculine in the media will be here Dec 10th at noon (EST) for an AMA.

Special thanks to /u/CisWhiteMaelstrom for doing the legwork.

Don't miss it. It's gonna be good.

Let's not waste his time, gents. I got a pretty good question for him, you should as well.

[deleted] • 28 points • 3 December, 2015 12:36 PM

Up-vote this. We need to be prepared and not waste the man's time.

Does someone have a recommended reading/watch list so we can get to more specific/valuable/current topics than re-hashing what he has already said?

GooseJuice-xo7 points 4 December, 2015 04:36 AM [recovered]

You can check out his recent appearance on The Joe Rogan Experience to get a decent idea of what he's about.

zpatriarchy • -1 points • 3 December, 2015 09:32 PM

i don't understand, this is the red pill, what question would i have for a gay guy? don't get me wrong, i like watching his videos & reading his articles, but an ama on redpill? huh?

L33TPWNERS • 2 points • 4 December, 2015 12:44 PM [recovered]

His sexual orientation means nothing. He is an avid red pill follower/defender , and all of his political oaks line up right next to ours.

I encourage you to look at his work and generate a couple of questions because if you don't you're missing a fantastic opportunity

zpatriarchy • -1 points • 4 December, 2015 02:39 PM

i already said i'm very familiar with his work. He's a great man, but i'm not asking a gay guy any questions.

[deleted] • 261 points • 2 December, 2015 10:57 PM

It's amazing how our biggest public defenders are a gay guy and a woman. The little ironies in life are fantastic.

Sdom1 • 103 points • 2 December, 2015 11:51 PM

Irony, or the tyranny of identity politics?

Milo would be a fantastic defender even if he were straight. If you've ever seen him debate, he's quite a swordsman. You don't face him and escape without a few cuts.

[deleted] • 164 points • 3 December, 2015 01:09 AM

However, if he were straight, he would be dismissed outright. Milo confuses the opposition because they don't want to dismiss a marginalized homosexual, they're forced to at least hear him out.

Cheveyo • 50 points • 3 December, 2015 03:52 AM

It's rather enjoyable to watch his opponents. You can tell they're just DYING to scream obscenities at him.

But none of the ones that could be used on him are very PC.

The best part is that he knows this. So he can go full diva and there's nothing anyone can do about it.

satanicpriest13 • 35 points • 3 December, 2015 06:13 AM

Good on him for fighting the good fight to be honest. He could have cashed in his gay points and reaped SJW sympathy, but he is more manly than most men today. His talents are better spent on defeating the feminist agenda than talking about microaggressions against gays. Loads of respect for him for embracing who he is yet being rational.

[deleted] • 8 points • 3 December, 2015 01:44 PM

He does all the time:

Look, I don't even care, I don't have skin in the game on this fight.

He has a variation of this on most interviews

Subcommandante_Khan • 9 points • 3 December, 2015 02:47 PM

Yep, it's a winning strategy.

Only a fool would not play to their strengths.

srtor • 2 points • 7 December, 2015 03:11 AM

He is like 'The Daily Show'. You can't attack it because it is actually a comedy show. But it delivers all hard hitting news and criticisms.

worldnewsrager • 11 points • 3 December, 2015 07:12 AM

Wait.... You're saying that the man who has said 'I think my god put me on this earth to infuriate SJWs' knows he's getting under their skin?

DogeMcDogeDoge • 3 points • 3 December, 2015 04:14 PM

So he can go full diva and there's nothing anyone can do about it.

As Milo himself said, "As a gay or lesbian you can get away with anything, especially bad behaviour!"

doublereignbeau • 6 points • 2 December, 2015 11:54 PM

I've read he is quite deadly with a katana.

[deleted] • 13 points • 3 December, 2015 12:20 AM

I don't like him much to be honest.

He argues the point until he runs aground on something then uses the gay card "I am absolutely fabulous hahaha darling" to wriggle out of it a tactic he shuns feminists for, being strong and assertive on point, and when losing revert to "I'm just a girl".

I can respect what he's doing - and that's building an empire, I don't really believe he is sincere for "The cause" whatever that would be. The AMA will be interesting none-the-less.

MortalSisyphus40 points 3 December, 2015 01:00 AM* [recovered]

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uyQWY5Wdec0>

He trounced this woman in debate and didn't once use any "gay card" to wriggle away.

For those who can't be bothered to watch the whole thing, at least watch the brilliant closing remarks.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UDn-xvvhSIk>

[deleted] • 6 points • 3 December, 2015 01:47 AM

That closing speech was excellent but damn he moves around a lot.

ILoveSunflowers • 2 points • 4 December, 2015 08:13 AM

Joe Rogan said he thinks he's on speed

[deleted] • 20 points • 3 December, 2015 01:07 AM

He's generally good at trashing women because they don't know how to attack a gay man, I drew my conclusions from the JRE podcast, I have heard him be well presented and slick in often smaller segments but the meandering nature of the JRE podcast had more than a few cracks appearing in the armour.

I compare him rightly or wrongly to a negative version of GayLubeOil - GayLubeOil I believe is riding TRP to earn an income but does legitimately care about the issues contained therein and for the welfare of his fellow man. I believe Milo can and will just abandon the current wave he is riding the second it becomes profitable to do something else.

I don't deride him for that, I'm merely pointing out that he's a smart businessman - which I can respect but not admire. I find Karen Straughn to be much more interesting personally.

cocaine_face • 19 points • 3 December, 2015 01:30 AM

He's trying to build an empire AND defending men? How is that not to admire?

[deleted] • 5 points • 3 December, 2015 01:36 AM

Because I believe he would happily deconstruct "men" if there was a counter culture wave for him to ride doing that too. I guess we will just have to see. The takeaway message is don't advocate taking women off a pedestal only to replace it with a gay man in it for the money.

I'm merely cynical in the true sense of the word.

BoogersAreTasty • 1 point • 10 December, 2015 04:43 AM

Do you see that someday, Milo will be to the TRP community what David Brock became to the conservative community?

[deleted] • 0 points • 3 December, 2015 03:22 AM

He's a bit of a degenerate too. Not for being gay or anything like that, per se...but for some of the things he's into. I'm not going to elaborate.

It would be nice to have a good role model for the young ones.

[deleted] 3 December, 2015 05:12 AM

[permanently deleted]

[deleted] • 11 points • 3 December, 2015 10:50 AM*

Sorry; why are we hating on him for this?

If that's what he likes, more power to him. Kinda sad seeing this shit on TRP. Nor do I understand the comments above alluding to insincerity, he could have just cashed in on being gay and articulate and would be a much bigger deal if he were on the other side.

This guy was fighting our fight since way back when he was working on news broadcasts of all things, it's something he seems genuinely passionate about and there's nothing to really indicate otherwise.

Take this shit elsewhere.

Primemale • 0 points • 3 December, 2015 10:52 PM

Yeah he's decadent as fuck, hardly a role model. Every other sentence is about getting fucked by black guys or sucking dick, or a sexual innuendo, he's TYPICAL is what he is. He is above average intelligence so he can think about arguments and articulate them better than the average Joe, but he is far from the best for 'the cause'

[deleted] • 1 point • 4 December, 2015 12:46 PM

but he is far from the best for 'the cause'

I disagree. The flamboyant gayness makes him untouchable to SJW's, because he can just fall back upon "I'm gay, stop oppressing me" narrative.

In other words, he's a perfect propaganda tool.

[deleted] • 14 points • 3 December, 2015 01:43 AM*

I know GLO personally, he breathes TRP shit 24/7.

[deleted] • 7 points • 3 December, 2015 01:43 AM

This is the impression I get. I would rather it be GLO on TV than Milo.

GayLubeOil • 31 points • 3 December, 2015 02:06 AM

My onscreen presence needs a lot of work and I'm doing my best to develop this skill.

[deleted] • 44 points • 3 December, 2015 02:44 AM

I don't know why you're fucking about with T shirts.

I've heard nothing but good from your skype calls and you can articulate about a variety of topics and you obviously have a gallows humour. Get on Patreon and let me pay you £1 for each video you do. Get 500 of us doing it, make 3 videos a week.

I don't want a T shirt, I want to give money to something that has actual value.

Your thoughts are more valuable than something made in China.

GayLubeOil • 17 points • 3 December, 2015 08:03 AM

My Shirts are printed in the United States on American Apparel blanks which are also made in the United States. The illustrations are created by a professional out of London. So to be honest with you I worked very hard to create a product with lasting value because I believe that it is a reflection of myself and my brand.

I went to a factory and felt a bunch of different shirts to figure out what feels and fits the best. I also worked my ass off trying to find a good artist which is really fucking hard.

However point taken I understand what you are getting at and I am moving in that direction.

[deleted] • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 01:46 PM

Another kickstarted video campaign. promise 12 videos, and spend the next 3 years at the UN complaining, and release 3 videos.

Sounds like a solid career path to me

TRPShill6 points 3 December, 2015 06:21 AM [recovered]

I've never understood criticism for anyone supplying anything. The demand side of all economic exchanges is where the guilt lies. Only moral idiots refuse to capitalize on would be consumers. All shirt purchases are voluntary.

[deleted] • 4 points • 3 December, 2015 01:45 PM

I guess you are the most vocal public figure RP has at the moment.

too bad the whole of our contributions is to tell the MRA movement to go fuck itself, and start lifting fatty...

lycanthr0py2 points 4 December, 2015 12:51 AM [recovered]

That's not the whole of our contribution to MRA. RP is aware of, and concerned with the quality of women as well as the economic reality of the world. MRA is interested in these things too. That's the reason the sun has an MRA flair. There is a dialogue between the communities, although it's mostly indirect.

polyethene1 points 3 December, 2015 10:46 AM* [recovered]

No offence to you but Milo is a much more suitable candidate to represent us since he's a journalist with other interests besides one particular acute topic.

[deleted] • 0 points • 10 December, 2015 11:12 PM

disagree. Only because trp is about theory AND application and making the most of what there is and manipulating the fucked up world to your favour.

Milo, doing what he does, implies he's trying to change that. He'd be miles better than /u/GayLubeOil at representing MRAs I'll give him that, because their ideology aligns better with him.

Too tired to explain it any simpler.

worldnewsrager • 7 points • 3 December, 2015 07:15 AM

nah... it's not just women. He obliterated some male university academic not long ago.

Subcommandante_Khan • 3 points • 3 December, 2015 06:42 PM

What a shyster. The madness of this whole dogma in academia is a complete rejection of the obvious facts of life. Religious idealism by other means.

worldnewsrager • 3 points • 4 December, 2015 12:47 PM

What? You mean you don't agree that if someone feels victimized, that that means they WERE victimized?! Color me shocked.

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 December, 2015 07:00 PM

In the time of empire it was pragmatic to teach the gifted how to think. In post empire it's only purpose now with little exception is to teach the average what to think.

[deleted] • 2 points • 4 December, 2015 09:58 PM

You're thinking of the clowns in sociology departments. Look at Chomsky or Dawkins, that's a different story. By the way, hard to find more of a bleeding heart liberal than Chomsky, but he's been kicking SJW butt decades before they were called SJWs, back when it was merely postmodernism.

RedPillDad • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 08:03 PM*

Glancing at the comments below that video, loe and behold is a heavily upvoted one from Karen Straughan... and she nails it.

MortalSisyphus7 points 3 December, 2015 01:20 AM* [recovered]

Did you watch the closing remarks? Karen Straughn has never come close to that level of eloquence. If you want to criticize Milo you at least have to point to someone who is better. I haven't seen anyone who comes close.

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 01:23 AM

I'm not critiquing his skill at articulate discourse, merely remarking on what I feel to be his personal sincerity.

Our views are not incompatible.

gekkozorz • 3 points • 3 December, 2015 05:11 AM

Milo is Milo. If you doubt his sincerity, check his twitter feed.

Christopher Hitchens (is better).

tallwheel • -2 points • 3 December, 2015 06:07 AM

No way. Karen would mop the floor with Milo if they ever faced off in a debate.

RedPillMagazine • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 05:10 PM

Not likely. Karen is great and all, but Milo is off the cuff funny a lot more. And that always tips the balance.

lycanthr0py0 points 4 December, 2015 12:55 AM [recovered]

Being funny has nothing to do with winning a debate, unless you judge by the audience rather than truth and logic.

RedPillMagazine • 1 point • 7 December, 2015 03:40 PM

Being entertaining has a lot to do with being invited back, or elsewhere, which increases exposure. And winning a debate in logic, while losing the audience with boredom, is a Pyrrhic victory at best. So many people get autistic when it comes to this stuff, I don't get it.

It's serious topics, yes. That does not mean people want to listen to some guy drone off facts for 22 minutes. Milo gets more exposure than Karen (and both get more exposure than any straight male in the movement) because he is provocative and entertaining - more so than Karen, likely because Karen doesn't strike me as an attention whore, whereas Milo does.

But entertaining and provocative, as I said earlier, ALWAYS tips the balance.

tallwheel • 0 points • 4 December, 2015 01:02 AM

Exactly. Karen also backs up her claims with more hard statistics and historical facts. She has tons of them to pull out when she needs them too.

Besides, Karen isn't completely unfunny either. She has a sense of humor. Come to think of it, watching Milo and Karen riff off each other would be frickin' amazing.

[deleted] • 3 points • 4 December, 2015 11:03 PM*

I actually just got done listening to the JRE where Milo was on. Jesus, Milo got insufferable when he was getting triggered by Rogan challenging his religious beliefs. It also revealed his style of filibustering an argument he's losing - stalling while slipping facts and quips in every so often so you don't realize he's stalling.

[deleted] • 1 point • 5 December, 2015 12:42 AM

He's very good at what he does, he's like Katie Hopkins reversed.

The best manipulation is the one that you weren't even aware of.

Subcommandante_Khan • 3 points • 5 December, 2015 02:29 AM

It's very easy to tell when he gets cornered, he starts fidgeting, touching his hair, starts muttering really fast. Everybody has a tell. His are pretty obvious. Usually he never comes up against anyone with his level of incisiveness.

[deleted] • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 08:22 AM

Yeah for some reason on JRE he was acting like a dick - normally he's better. I thought he was really good until I saw him on that - had to turn it off half way through...

[deleted] • 4 points • 3 December, 2015 01:47 AM

U have any more Milo Yiannopoulos debates like that? I enjoyed watching that

[deleted] • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 05:57 AM

There's a solid minute at about 59:00 where the awesome ginger moderator kid is personally identifying with Milo's description of MGTOW. He's focused like a motherfucker.

L33TPWNERS • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 08:18 AM

Watching the debate now, at 40 mins in, the topic of male circumcision came up and he made a joke about how he prefer circumcised, because he has to look at them. it's not a big play of the card but its still there, ever so subtlety.

It's nothing to dramatic, and I love his style of debating and he hit a home run on every single point.

blacwidonsfw • 1 point • 5 December, 2015 06:55 PM*

At 28:30 he delivers a fucking awesome blow when talking about wage gap and she mentions "girly scientist" and he demolishes her.

Another even more fatal blow at 36

[deleted] • 1 point • 9 December, 2015 06:27 AM

Thanks for the links. Damn, that was a great speech!

[deleted] • 6 points • 3 December, 2015 04:34 PM

He uses the gay card to highlight how ridiculous the left is. He's got the card that trumps the woman card so he uses it as a bludgeon to show them how ridiculous it really is.

selfsufficientnigga • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 05:40 AM

I am fine with that. Fight them with their own weapons.

deepfriedcocaine • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 12:59 AM*

Link? I'd like to think he'd say that ironically to point out the irrational power of pulling an "-ism" or "-phobia" card in today's society but I haven't seen the video. If so, and if it worked, it'd probably prove his point (but at the expense of nobody noticing).

[deleted] • 4 points • 3 December, 2015 01:03 AM

JRE Podcast is where I largely drew this conclusion.

Subcommandante_Khan • 5 points • 3 December, 2015 02:28 AM

You should give a specific point in the interview. Most people are not going to sit down for 3 hours and watch this.

[deleted] • 4 points • 3 December, 2015 02:34 AM

Without being an edgelord5000 i'm not concerned that most people won't listen to Milo for 3 hours except to reflect that if you want to enter into an AMA with him you kind of owe it to yourself and to Milo to listen to the JRE podcast no matter your bearing on what I am saying about him.

Memory serving Joe cornered him on a matter and Milo then went all effeminate whilst claiming he had a 6-some as a 15 year old and has drunk loads of cum, the feigned outrageousness used as a tool to distract from the line of questioning came up about half a dozen times.

Subcommandante_Khan • 5 points • 3 December, 2015 12:42 PM

Good point. I remember that, both on the circumcision and religion issues. I'm not surprised when your average person has some dumb closely held belief that they won't budge from. Religion never was about logic.

He's good at bird-dogging the left, a shitty job that I don't want to do personally, so I appreciate it.

TRPShill • -1 points • 3 December, 2015 06:25 AM

Ive seen the whole thing. I recall Joe being a bit of a dunderhead and Milo gracefully trying to end the subject because Joe was ignoring his arguments

BoTuLoX • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 01:05 PM

then uses the gay card "I am absolutely fabulous hahaha darling" to wriggle out of it a tactic he shuns feminists for, being strong and assertive on point, and when losing revert to "I'm just a girl".

Would you suggest writing a thesis for debating with SJcunts? The ones whose ground is supported solely by these petty victim tactics?

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 December, 2015 05:46 PM

Disengage from them, don't give them air time.

They're fire and every time someone talks to them we pour petrol on them. We don't elevate westboro church by debating them, we shouldn't debate SJW either.

You cannot reason someone out of a position they did not reason themselves into. SJW are mentally ill, they truly are and so you can't grapple with them or debate them, same as feminists you cannot ever change a feminists mind. How many YouTube fights have you seen with feminists or debates where one of them has said "oh wow you're right that's bullshit"?

The entire Anita Sarkeesian thing is such an obvious scam she can be dismissed with nothing more than "OK dear".

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 05:10 PM

That's how you play the game when you're fucking with the public media. If he didn't do it as well, people wouldn't hear him out.

Primemale • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 10:44 PM

I'm with you, and aside from what you've mentioned, he's got that typical decadent way of being that a lot of camp gay guys do, where every other word is something about getting fucked by black guys, or sucking dick, yeah we get it Milo, your queer, I personally think he is a pretty terrible man for "the cause" but at least someone in the media is talking about it so reps for that, I Spouse I just don't really like him as a person.

Sdom1 • 1 point • 4 December, 2015 10:19 PM

I listened to the Rogan podcast. Rogan wore him down when it came to his schtick, and also was digging at things Milo didn't seem to like to discuss.

Remember that Milo uses identity politics as a shield and that causes him to emphasize or play up certain things.

Subcommandante_Khan • 1 point • 4 December, 2015 10:32 PM

I don't judge someone's usefulness in terms of any single belief I find incorrect or irrational. In the culture war sense, if someone can be an icon while simultaneously confusing and deflecting criticism of your enemies then you use them to your advantage. I look at him purely from the Machiavellian angle. He assists my cause. Then entire right, right now, I regard in the same way that they obstruct the left. They have their use.

When Republicans were in power I regarded the left in the same way. They prevented the excesses of the right when possible. Our system is based on gridlock and ideological warfare. Any time you see a unilateral domination by one party of the entire government is when you see crazy shit get passed into law.

Whisper • 8 points • 5 December, 2015 02:09 AM

That's no coincidence.

Our biggest external advocates are a bisexual woman and a gay man, because if they weren't a bisexual woman and a gay man, they would be us, getting all that lovely hateraid right along with the rest of us.

/u/girlwriteswhat is shielded from criticism by her vagina. Milo is shielded by his metaphorical limp wrist. We all say the same sorts of things they do. We can be dismissed as bigots spewing "hate speech". They can't.

The trick is to let that work for us. Let it train us not to care about it. Better yet, let it train us to crave the disapproval of cowards and idiots as the sincerest possible flattery they are capable of.

Bask in the hatred. And one day, you will discover that most of the men capable of doing anything useful are standing on our side of the great divide.

rpscrote • 1 point • 8 December, 2015 09:04 PM

Better yet, let it train us to crave the disapproval of cowards and idiots as the sincerest possible flattery they are capable of

So much this. I've found the best indication of my success is others unjustified jealousy and hostility. Drink those sweet hater's tears.

[deleted] • 4 points • 3 December, 2015 02:31 AM

It's because they are the only one's allowed to have an opinion on the matters. If you are a straight male, you aren't allowed to participate in the debate because you are automatically a shitlord blinded by his privilege. Being gay or a woman is the only way to dodge the sexism accusations in today's society.

BlackPhoenix01 • 6 points • 3 December, 2015 01:12 PM

It completely messes up the Politically Correct narrative.

Black and conservative? You're not a real black person and you're an uncle tom sellout.

Female and anti-Feminist? You don't know what feminism is and you're not a real woman Gay and anti-liberal? Gee, I don't think the regressive left has come up with anything to take that down yet.

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 December, 2015 01:43 PM

woman

What is this, MRA? GWW and that femenist 'filmmaker' do not speak for the community in any way.

He doesn't really either, he is just anti femenist, not pro RP.

the closest we have to a public spokesperson was Roosh, until he told RP to go fuck itself, and then rag on homosexuals and american girls with neo-masculinity.

[deleted] • 4 points • 3 December, 2015 03:27 PM

That is why I said defenders and not supporter or member. Karen Straughan even defends TRP against other MRAs. While I don't agree with everything that Karen and Milo say, the great war right now is between rationality and insanity.

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 03:30 PM

meh, it's a little heavy on the 'validation of others' side of things for me to care enough, but good point.

rpscrote • 2 points • 8 December, 2015 09:05 PM

Dont forget Rollo Tomassi (The Rational Male). Great writer with remarkably keen insight. Maybe not as "public" but still public enough as a manosphere leader. He posts here too

[deleted] • 1 point • 8 December, 2015 09:49 PM

I was referring to those who primarily deal outside the manosphere

[deleted] • 3 points • 5 December, 2015 12:13 AM

In fairness, they both acknowledge that. Milo has said repeatedly he wouldn't be taken seriously if he wasn't blowing black guys.

[deleted] • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 11:57 PM

Amazing? No. A product of social justice politics. If our biggest public defenders were men, they would hold no credibility in our current climate. It should be the same for all groups. Someone with no stake in the game hold far more credibility.

DoesNotMatterAnymore • 18 points • 3 December, 2015 12:25 AM

True, but let's not forget that I've got massive tingles every time, when he crushes some random female feminist journalist on TV. In a debate, where his opponent has 0 chance against him, usually they can't even keep up with Milo's rational explanation.

GayLubeOil • 21 points • 3 December, 2015 02:08 AM

The exposure that he will provide is very beneficial to the men who spend countless hours creating content.

Cyralea • 10 points • 3 December, 2015 02:04 PM

I suspect the same is true with Joe Rogan. When you listen to them speak, they channel nearly the same language we see here. They're savvy enough not to reveal their ties to this sub.

theredpilluminati • 13 points • 3 December, 2015 12:54 AM

Someone offering a different opinion is not an internal division. I don't agree with his views on monarchy, abrahamic religions, and circumcision.

attemptist • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 02:40 AM

That's fair enough. I got the impression you didn't think he should be here because of it. Whatever our differences, he does a good job of wrecking feminists.

theredpilluminati • 4 points • 3 December, 2015 03:16 AM*

When one has a ridiculous position and defends it with ridiculous evidence as feminists do...pointing out how they are ridiculous is not heroic. If he wants to think critically he should question the validity of a system of government based on who's vagina you fall out of...he should question if humans are born with a stain of original sin and should be punished for it. He defends those positions so I question his motives.

seriously wtf! Milo gives scientific facts and these people don't get it. It's either that they're way too dumb, or they are willingly denying that they understand it. I would definitely lose my cool and become frustrated.

My question is, Milo how do we become better at debating these leftists. How not to get frustrated, and how to make them understand?

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 December, 2015 12:49 PM

Milo makes claims, supported by reasonable evidence, and presents them as a set of arguments to prove or disprove something. Femicows then attempt to negate his reasoning by moving the argument to the Fee-Fee Dimension, where the laws of argumentation do not apply, and discursive re-definition of key terms occur in order to avoid cognitive dissonance and make them think they've won. That, and a liberal heaping of logical fallacies.

worldnewsrager • 8 points • 3 December, 2015 07:36 AM

So, yea, he's wrong. Ben Shapiro is a virulent zionist, but I agree with him on virtually all his other arguments, I'm not going to throw away such a staunch Constitutional defender who's quite rational in every debate that isn't Israel, where he thinks 'god did it' is a sufficient answer.

I support him, where i agree with him, and i detract, in areas where i don't. It's that simple.

[deleted] • 12 points • 3 December, 2015 02:01 AM

you're acting no different from feminists and the rest of reddit who take one bit of information about someone which isn't necessarily even related to the topic and because they disagree with that person on topic y they dismiss any of his views on topic x.

It's pathetic and is about as good as a feminist saying "yea but those red pillers are neck beard virgins".

Classical ad-hominem attack.

Or if I have a math tutor telling me you have to show your steps and I tell the guy "yea but you're fat! You can't even count the calories you eat , genius!" I thought we don't do that on this sub.

CaptainObivous • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 02:16 AM*

you're acting no different from feminists and the rest of reddit who take one bit of information about someone which isn't necessarily even related to the topic and How insulting that you think that just because I commented on one aspect of his persona that that's the sum total of my opinion on him. And how is my commenting on his Catholicism different than others commenting (getting wet, actually) over his homosexuality? Do you bitch at them, when his gayness is not "related to the topic"? Or is it just me you get pissed at, because my nipples are not getting hard at the thought of Teh Great Milo coming to this sub.

But it's not just his raging Catholicism (which is at least as important to him and his identity as his homosexuality). It's that he's a fuckin' mess of a man and a clown. Listen to his performance on Joe Rogan's podcast and tell me you don't agree. He's a complete mess, a troll and a jackass and his affiliation with men's issues should be a source of embarrassment rather than pride. Maybe some of us can or are willing to ignore his frequent and public ass hattery in favor of his ability to pen an occasionally fine essay, but I cannot.

And how is my commenting on his Catholicism different than others commenting (getting wet, actually) over his homosexuality? Do you bitch at them, when his gayness is not "related to the topic"?

Um.. difference is they are kidding? You don't always have to be playing "Donald Trump AMOG game", we're on a subreddit with a bunch of other men discussing stuff and learning and sharing, not at a bar in LA. The purpose was not to compare you to feminists, just your strategy which is very typical of all of reddit and part of the reason why no one critically thinks anymore.

But it's not just his raging Catholicism (which is at least as important to him and his identity as his homosexuality). It's that he's a fuckin' mess of a man and a clown. Listen to his performance on Joe Rogan's podcast and tell me you don't agree. He's a complete mess, a troll and a jackass and his affiliation with men's issues should be a source of embarrassment rather than pride. Maybe some of us can or are willing to ignore his frequent ass hattery, but I cannot.

His raging Catholicism is not relevant and is distorting your views about him. Him being a mess of a man and a clown apparently is also not relevant to the fact that he can be more educated about a certain topic than me or you and is free to express his views on them without people bringing up his personal choices. I'm not responsible for the actions or lives of others so I find no reason to apologize for the actions of be it another terper, man, whatever. I also tell my religious friends to not apologize for something they didn't do. Fuck that.

Similarly, I find no reason to be embarrassed by another person's actions. I can't even mentally fathom that anymore. If you are embarrassed by him, then you need to be less emotionally invested and a bit more selfish. You sound pretty angry, and I can't understand that because the only source of anger should be something that directly impacts you and your life.

You get mad when some idiot posts about some slut on 2x over here to get upvotes as well?

tallwheel • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 06:13 AM

Japan vs Nigeria

South Korea vs Russia

nyrp • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 05:40 PM

Nigeria is less than half Christian. 50% Muslim. And Christian heritage only arrived principally in the last 200 years, that's not a "strong Christian heritage."

I don't think South Korea is particularly more moral than Russia. At best they're maybe equal. But North Korea, of course, is way worse, which probably just goes to show that the American and international aid given to South Korea since the Korean War makes up a lot of its culture. What was Korea like before 1951? Not like Italy.

I will concede that Japan and South Korea are two exceptionally bright, civilized and sophisticated societies. But can you really name more than two high-IQ East-Asian countries that could even compete?

Not even Laos, Cambodia, Vietnam, Phillippines compare. Isolated Japan, and half of the Korean peninsula might be unfucked-up.

national_sanskrit • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 05:41 PM

I would much prefer to live in taoist Buddhist Taiwan than one of the oldest Christian country Ethiopia.

nyrp • 0 points • 3 December, 2015 05:58 PM

Great, you found one exception. But Buddhism is not a religion.

Ethiopia's population 100 years ago after 1500 years of Christianity was only 20 million people. So it's a tiny population that maybe doesn't fit the mold. Most of the growth since has been among the Muslim population.

It's also been held down and isolated by Islam since the 7th century:

With the emergence of Islam in the 7th century, Ethiopia's Christians became isolated from the rest of the Christian world... Ethiopia was the only region of Africa to survive the expansion of Islam as a Christian state.

So it's a pretty unique case; doesn't disprove the general rule.

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 04:11 AM*

When I first heard that I thought it was rhetoric. Then I thought for a minute and couldn't find a substantial fault.

nryp • 4 points • 3 December, 2015 05:51 AM

Exactly.

Column A: France, Italy, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, USA, Canada, Spain, Belgium, Argentina, New Zealand, the Netherlands

Column B: Tajikistan, India, Myanmar, Nigeria, Sudan, Tunisia, Zimbabwe, Iraq, Syria, Sri Lanka, Jamaica, Indonesia

Which would you rather live in?

Even among poorer countries: Poland, Hungary, Romania, Croatia.

More decent cultures than rich non-Christian countries: Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, Egypt

[deleted] • 4 points • 3 December, 2015 06:14 AM

Colonialism is a factor as well. Those places occupied by Column A generally have higher standards of living.

nryp • 3 points • 3 December, 2015 05:43 PM

Places with stronger morals colonize lesser moral powers. That's how they're able to organize and take control.

When Islam comes, they don't colonize, never have. They conquer and force into submission, which is what happened from the Balkans to India.

[deleted] • 2 points • 3 December, 2015 12:41 PM

I think they see him as enough of a misogynist now that it would come as no surprise to them... although, since he's gay and automatically a "victim", I think they have some cognitive dissonance about calling him a misogynist.

tallwheel • 2 points • 4 December, 2015 12:57 AM

I'm not so sure. A lot of Milo's fans are moderates, and could be better described as "sympathetic" to men's issues and anti-feminists. They don't consider themselves MRA's either, and I wouldn't be surprised if a lot of them would not be sympathetic to TRP, or would just go with the "TRP are the real misogynists" narrative that the moderates and MRA's have been trying to brand us with.

mister_dice • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 08:05 AM

I stopped liking him when he said that gay men are superior, maybe it was one of his jokes that I didn't get, but I just can't stand people like that.

dontdrinkthekoolade2 points 3 December, 2015 03:25 PM [recovered]

Statistically they do have higher IQ's, and from an evolutionary point of view I can see the argument for it.

stawek • 2 points • 5 December, 2015 09:29 AM it's likely only the smarter gay people come out of closet, so it's selection bias.

Anyway, every hypothesis is worth considering.

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 12:43 PM

Likely a joke... but superior to what, and in which context? I'm sure he doesn't think in such black-and-white terms.

Truman14 • 1 point • 6 December, 2015 01:48 PM

There's an awful lot that Milo says that shouldn't be taken seriously.

JuiceIncinerator • 1 point • 3 December, 2015 10:19 AM

Reminds me of a question; do feminists (or women in general) have a harder time arguing against a gay man or an asexual man?

[deleted] • 4 points • 3 December, 2015 12:56 PM

A gay man is a primary victim in their perception of the world. He is effeminate, and therefore a pseudo-woman. They can't call him a misogynist or other terms they'd like to use, because he's a pseudo-woman and a member of the underclass they are "heroically" trying to protect.

An asexual man, on the other hand, is not only a man, but a fraction of a man, simultaneously unworthy of pity and worthy of contempt. He is not to be protected by them, nor is he of use to them since he can't be convinced to part with his commodities (money, status, semen) because their only weapon is ineffective on him.

I can't get enough of this dude. Every interview he just spits logic after logic. I loved his bit after the Oregon shooting. Made so much sense

Redasshole • 1 point • 4 December, 2015 10:20 AM

Any advices for mommy issue boys?

OMG. I was so excited when I saw this I suspected I might be gay! (Kidding about the latter bit.)

[deleted] • 1 point • 5 December, 2015 05:32 AM

Wont be here but I would appreciate if someone could ask these questions please:

"It's fantastic that you and Breitbart report on topics which are never reported anywhere else. As short as 10 years ago, and in theory of "traditional journalism" this meant that the outlet reporting on this was generally a crackpot. It's a sad state of affairs that being a lone voice is no longer a strong sign that your a crack pot.

That being said, despite covering issues that are important and unreported, I find Breitbart as a whole is a very poor journalistic outlet. I will drop it like liquid once I find something better. What is your opinion of Breitbart as a journalistic outlet?"

What's the quality and quantity of criticism/abuse that you receive for your support of Gamergate like? and do you ever think of the money you could be extracting from this if you were an "anti gamergater"?

What is your opinion on the Fermi Paradox?

When are you blokes ever going to get a decent cricket team again?

I remember reading somewhere that you said that you only needed 4 hours of sleep a night, is this correct or an exaggeration?

In your experience what is the best response to someone making the claim you are X-ist against [insert minority here]? For most of us being charming and flaming isn't an option.

Not a question but a sincere thank you. In case people reading this are not aware but (I think?) Milo is the first "celebrity" to do an actual name to paper AMA on here. Thank you for doing it Milo but I question whether this is a wise career move for you. I hope everyone understands the risk he is taking to do this.

Petrarch1603 • 1 point • 8 December, 2015 12:27 AM

He posts a lot in KiA, you could try to engage with him in one of those comment threads.

Dude's a winner in my book. Has the balls to publicly say shit anyone with a brain has been thinking

[deleted] • 1 point • 10 December, 2015 05:18 PM

Is it starting ?

redpillschool[S] • 1 point • 10 December, 2015 05:21 PM

He seems to be running late...

[deleted] • 1 point • 10 December, 2015 05:24 PM

Hopefully it's not postponed, this should be a great AMA

redpillshadow • 1 point • 10 December, 2015 05:22 PM

London, Thursday 10th - 5pm. That's 20 minutes ago

redpillschool[S] • 2 points • 10 December, 2015 05:22 PM

He seems to be running late...

redpillshadow • 1 point • 10 December, 2015 05:23 PM

So it's still happening. Good.

RedSugarPill • 1 point • 10 December, 2015 05:32 PM

He seems to be running fabulously late. I took the afternoon off work for this :/

rp_valiant • 1 point • 10 December, 2015 05:42 PM

has anyone been in touch with, or heard from, Milo since we went past 5pm?

rp_valiant • 1 point • 10 December, 2015 05:42 PM

has anyone been in touch with, or heard from, Milo since we went past 5pm?

redpillschool[S] • 1 point • 10 December, 2015 05:43 PM

We've been in one-way communication. Perhaps he's napping.

rp_valiant • 2 points • 10 December, 2015 05:45 PM do you want me to give him a ring? He publishes his phone number and I'm in the UK.

[edit] never mind, his phone apparently doesn't accept calls. I'll whatsapp him though.

mksu • 1 point • 6 December, 2015 03:49 AM

What do you guys think of the fact that he's a gay christian who hates atheists?

[deleted] • 1 point • 9 December, 2015 08:37 AM

A lovely contradiction. Even as an atheist I think his ridiculous stance on religion doesn't discount his anti feminism

LegElbow • -1 points • 3 December, 2015 02:57 AM

I see TRP as a male adaptation to feminism(a female adaption), not an enemy.

This sub is becoming more and more men's rights and less about ADAPTING and finding SUCCESS in the current social climate.

It's better to adapt to change, not fight it. Why? Because change is unstoppable.

indica_thecoli • -10 points • 3 December, 2015 12:22 PM because homosexuals are so red pill. fuck out of here with this faggot.

redpillschool[S] • 5 points • 3 December, 2015 04:24 PM

Good argument.
