

Trickle Down Media Whore

March 18, 2016 | 1063 upvotes | by GayLubeOil

This week I accomplished my dream of bringing my trolling to national television. If it wasn't for the Red Pill, and its culture of shitlord excellence my dream would never have become a reality. For the past two years you guys were by my side critiquing, encouraging and helping me grow from cultural critic to Black Knight Juggernaut. I've had the unique opportunity of speaking with many of you face to face and learning from your experiences.

When the producers of Full Frontal with Samantha Bee contacted me to be part of their show, I immediately recognized it for what it was: a trap. Samantha Bee has been tearing people down on television for the past twelve years. Having watched the Daily Show I knew that gotcha questions and deceptive editing were par for the course. I also knew that without preparation I would end up a casualty like Peter Schiff.

However, I had a weapon of my own: The Red Pill. I leveraged the contacts I had gained from my fitness consultations. I contacted marketers, advertisers and speech coaches to help me develop a strategy for surviving the ambush. The consensus was that I should speak in short powerful sound bites, so that my words wouldn't fall victim to deceptive editing. I was advised to keep a calm neutral demeanor, ignore her bait and that the best defense is a good offense. My mentors imitated Samantha's persona so that I could practice going up against it. I knew that I only had one shot, one opportunity, to seize everything I ever wanted, which I why I practiced until I felt confident.

On the show, with the cameras rolling and the microphones on, I recognized that the other guests were unprepared. They were enthusiastic to be on television and didn't think how their words would be used against them. Samantha Bee had a two part strategy. She had a script of loaded trap question and reframed the conversation in her favor with snarky responses. My strategy was to avoid her traps and use agree and amplify to turn her snark against her. Samantha was ready to tear down Trump supporters but nothing could prepare her for Red Pill Superstar GayLubeOil.

There are times in life when you have a shot at winning big by playing a stacked game. Maybe its a nailing television appearance. Maybe its negotiating a promotion. Maybe its winning a divorce. Or maybe its just pulling hypergamous sluts off Tinder. The Red Pill is an invaluable resource that can help you accomplish any of these noble tasks. It is a collection of the experiences of 140 thousand men. There will always be someone here to help you. You just have to find them.

"So, am I the lowest whore in here?" "I think that's an accurate assesment", with a poker face.

Nice black knighting, congrats

GayLubeOil[S] • 271 points • 18 March, 2016 04:10 PM

The best part of all of it was that I triggered the entire liberal media establishment. If you Google "Trickle Down Media Whore" you will see that I got Buzzfeed Jezebel and Cuck Master Ezra Klien right in the pussy with this one.

Clint_Redwood • 49 points • 18 March, 2016 05:58 PM

God that was beautiful to watch.

Since only you really know the transition you've gone through since joining TRP, you care to share how this skit might have went down before you found TRP?

GayLubeOil[S] • 69 points • 18 March, 2016 06:02 PM

It probably would have gone down like the other guests. The Red Pill is excellent practice for agree and amplify and recognizing leftist's games.

chootey • 12 points • 18 March, 2016 08:48 PM [recovered]

Why were the other guests bad? I thought they all seemed relatively articulate and reasonable, even if they never scored over Bee. What am I missing here?

[deleted] • 72 points • 18 March, 2016 11:03 PM [recovered]

They were defensive. Their arguments were in response of Bee, so they never attacked. GLO attacked and forced her to take a lowly stance. Action vs. Reaction.

TheInevitableHulk • 2 points • 18 March, 2016 09:51 PM

There was no giant leftist conspiracy when the liberal party won overwhelmingly in the national and provincial elections nor was there a circle jerk on issues such as these in our left leaning media even with the cbc a nationalized channel making it literally a leftist establishment

sjw Witch hunts have happened though those type of events are caused by those that want control not necessarily left leaning

-viewpoint from Canada

Clint_Redwood • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 03:34 PM

Can you give us a run down of how they questioned you in the party? We only get to see your one comment.

John_E_Vegas • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 09:01 PM

I thought the gay black dude got owned, but the blond kid did ok when he pointed out to her "fact checker" the difference between threatening to murder someone and a rhetorical joke.

theultimatewarriors • 1 point • 7 April, 2016 03:42 PM

Recognize drama for what it is. You had no agenda, but were prepared.

Agree with their traps and amplify them. They're never prepared for their own bullshit because they're always so sure it's going to work.

[deleted] • 94 points • 18 March, 2016 05:38 PM*

Nicely done GLO

EDIT: LOL You got your own article on Salon!

Senpai noticed you.

Truthsitter • 28 points • 18 March, 2016 06:09 PM*

I'm not clicking on Salon, but I assume they were highly offended that the media was called out for what it is? Or white knighting on her behalf?

Sam brought up media whoredom, you reap what you sow.

[deleted] • 31 points • 18 March, 2016 07:42 PM

All the recaps I've seen have concentrated on the 'Tricke Down Media Whore' headshot and skip the very important observation that the presidential election has degenerated into a reality show; which was presented as the only thing that could be agreed upon. Moreover, Bee used whore first at Trump, and then reveled in calling herself a whore.

In short, anybody that watched the entire clip would say Bee got checked hard. As it is, the media is packaging it as a failure to reason with Trump supporters.

[deleted] • 16 points • 18 March, 2016 08:25 PM

Yes absolutely. Can't let too much of the truth get out, now can we media?

[deleted] • 12 points • 19 March, 2016 04:51 AM

The wall could be paid for out of the monetary aid the US already sends to Mexico. No problem.

Ojisan1 • 3 points • 19 March, 2016 07:39 AM

I had always assumed he was talking about tariffs on Mexican imported goods, but your suggestion makes a shit ton of sense. And it would have the supplemental bonus effect of shutting down the failure that is the drug war, since most of our aid to that shithole of a country is based on our government wanting their government to fight against the cartels.

AwryyrwA • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 02:56 PM

That's misleading. The US would still pay for it.

It's worse than smugness. It's deliberate misinformation. They want to keep people ignorant of how the world really works so they can more easily control us.

maynihc • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 07:55 AM

How can Trump just charge Mexico for a wall?

[deleted] 19 March, 2016 03:39 PM

[deleted]

maynihc • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 05:49 PM

He could reduce aid, yes. I'm pretty sure he can't collect tax from Mexicans though

John_E_Vegas • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 08:58 PM

Easy: instead of sending Mexico $10 billion in foreign aid, send them nothing. Then use the proceeds to fund construction of the wall.

Boom. Mexico just paid for it.

[deleted] • 13 points • 18 March, 2016 06:27 PM

1. You stuttered like a dork.
2. The media wasn't trolled: your performance served their message.
3. Sam Bee gets all the payoff.
4. Your big zinger was "trickle down media whore", and look how proud you are just to be the dried up shitnugget on her media boot for a minute. Irony!

Gawernator • 7 points • 18 March, 2016 10:44 PM

That was beautiful. I watched the rest of the video and she's barely even funny. Yuck

RojoEscarlata • 5 points • 18 March, 2016 06:15 PM

I was expecting something like what happened to Rush when the video was posted on the Donald, and it certainly was an ambush but God damn that trickle down media whore line was pure gold, any chance at all of getting an UN edited version?

I'm sure there was lots of fun there, maybe even a FR?

Linrraba • 7 points • 18 March, 2016 07:19 PM

How did the other Trump supporters reacted to your performance? On that note, the interview kept going after the media whore comment?

the_number_2 • 12 points • 18 March, 2016 07:15 PM

Big bukkake of media... good lord, that's funny.

BTW, LOVE the blond in the blue dress just in front of you flips her hair and keeps checking you out when you don't succumb to the BS.

[deleted] • 5 points • 18 March, 2016 06:50 PM

Between the subtle nod to shitty regonomics, slut shaming, direct mockery, subtle self awareness, and trump-esque catchy sloganeering, I'm impressed with the statement.

No wonder they hated Trump, people are starting to get clever now.

CQC3 • 3 points • 20 March, 2016 01:10 AM

Yeah, yeah you did. The hilarious part is that all it took for these losers to blog up a shit storm is for you to make a terse comment with your eyes practically glazed over with disinterest (feigned or not).

Congratulations on also stirring up your own hate circle jerk on the TPB, I've never been there until today when I googled "trickle down media whore" and it listed in the top 5 or so, but those guys are apparently all feeling the tingles of affirmation that you're not a big scary alpha, not that attractive, not that muscular, not that impressive. Hmm...I feel like I've seen this kind of behavior somewhere...

Ojisan1 • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 07:23 AM

Congrats to a brother in arms.

and it triggered a hardness in my pants.

[deleted] • 71 points • 18 March, 2016 04:10 PM

I noticed they didn't ask him any more questions after that one..

Marsupian • 127 points • 18 March, 2016 04:46 PM*

When nothing you say can be edited to fit the narrative your responses don't get edited in. I bet he was asked plenty of questions but they select the answers that best fit their idea for what the show should be.

Gaylubes comment is brilliant because it draws viewers. They can't leave it out because the combination of humor and controversie triggered their wallets.

[deleted] • 16 points • 18 March, 2016 06:52 PM

he gave smathantha to give her 'I'm a self aware woman' bit, so they kept it in.

Let them have their narrative.

blacwidonsfw • 11 points • 18 March, 2016 05:47 PM

I was waiting for him to be in the one on ones after but they chose the dumbest people to fit their narrative, wasn't surprised.

i_forget_my_userids • 8 points • 18 March, 2016 04:07 PM

Well what she meant by that is OP is getting trickle from her. All her guests are lower than she is in the whore pile. Her retort was the only reason OP's line was aired.

zeny_two • 1 point • 20 March, 2016 02:53 AM

For those curious, what she said while GLO was speaking:

"[...] I'm the one at the bottom of the fuck-pile. That's sloppy... thirds."

thiasus • 193 points • 18 March, 2016 03:36 PM

Getting her to self-describe as someone at the receiving end of a media bukkake was masterful.

[deleted] • 52 points • 18 March, 2016 07:35 PM

Correct me if I am wrong, but was she not "agreeing and amplifying" right there (or just had a convenient response)? I'm not getting the ass-kicking tone overall. GLO was awesome on the show, she kind of took some of the wind out of the sails with that one no? Anyways, awesome appearance GLO!

thiasus • 140 points • 18 March, 2016 07:44 PM

She was. Nobody lost. But GLO wasn't in a position to win.

This was rigged. The script, the editing, the entire set up were crafted to make the Trump supporters look stupid and the interviewer look the smart proxy of her clever liberal audience.

GLO couldn't win. If he had won too much of the sparring match, he would simply have been edited out. There was no way for him to deliver a smackdown even if he could come up with one in the moment. He could only put in a zinger that she'd leave in because it makes for good television and decent rabble-raising ("he called her a WHORE!"), but still make some of audience do a double take and think "hey, this guy has a point".

That's what he achieved. He didn't kick her ass because he couldn't have. But he did achieve as much as was possible in the (difficult) circumstances, and that is what's masterful about this.

Gagnostopoulos • 29 points • 18 March, 2016 08:26 PM

Exactly. They didn't even use him at all for the party segment.

trpftw • 7 points • 19 March, 2016 12:03 AM

Exactly, there is no way for him to kick ass. But the fact that he made Samantha more funny by setting her up to pull out her bukkake joke was quite impressive for both of them.

I am not sure if that part was scripted/ready, I think she just improvised that and that was really good.

Ifuckinglovepron • 9 points • 18 March, 2016 11:02 PM

I honestly thought the blonde guy did just as well if not better with the "that isn't anger it is passion." Comment, plus he had more dominant body language.

uberrific • 10 points • 19 March, 2016 02:12 AM

He looked like he was totally losing his cool. Not good.

[deleted] • 9 points • 19 March, 2016 05:54 AM i actually never got that impression. he just seemed nervous (who could blame him in such a hostile treacherous environment)

i actually thought the way she said "I feel like you're losing your cool right now" was such a trashy misdirection from what he was saying.

it's such a typical SJW tactic. so dirty

trpftw • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 12:02 AM

That guy was straight up retarded.

InflatableRaft • 13 points • 19 March, 2016 02:10 AM

By using the term bukkake, Sam is trying to reframe herself as a willing and active participant in the sex act, the focal point even. This is a relative position of power as opposed to someone lurking around an orgy where other people are fucking and all she can get is the scraps of cum men have shot over other women, which the phrase "trickle down media whore" implies.

Ojisan1 • 5 points • 19 March, 2016 07:28 AM

Except that the image left by the joke is her face covered in jizz. Which is exactly what she's worth as a political commentator.

[deleted] • 5 points • 19 March, 2016 12:38 AM*

[deleted]

What is this?

theultimatewarriors • 1 point • 7 April, 2016 03:48 PM

She did amplify it in a destabilizing way, but that's the brilliance of a "persona". The persona is who the audience is supposed to identify with, so when these personas come to some deeper understanding of themselves, it's funny in an endearing way (even if it is that she finally realizes she's a media whore).

There is no alternative. That's why they work so well. You can't beat them, you just manage to make the audience go through some sense of understanding along with the persona. GLO is not the star of the show, the persona is. But he certainly wasn't another pebble that got steamrolled by the persona, he managed to make the steamroller turn off, even if just for a second (or for the rest of the clip until the party).

mojo_magnifico • 50 points • 18 March, 2016 06:44 PM

mojo_magnifico • 18 points • 18 March, 2016 07:43 PM

Agreed - Isn't it easy to picture Amy Schumer or any other female comedian saying something similar?

Still made me laugh out loud.

trpftw • 11 points • 18 March, 2016 11:57 PM

No, it was her joke.

I'm really confused by this... If a guy says something funny, couldn't you say the same thing about that? "I could totally imagine another male comedian saying this dick joke..." wtf?

adamryanx5 points 19 March, 2016 02:42 AM [recovered]

You could, and people do. Think of the men who've tried standup and failed to break through that lowbrow barrier though (Dane Cook and Carlos Mencia come to mind). These male comedians aren't respected in the comedy circles, and they likely won't ever be considered one of comedy's "greats"- they're loudmouths pandering to audiences who watch TV shows with laugh tracks. Let their career play out and they'll peak with a movie or two under the belt and a better-funded coke habit.

When you put in the work, honing your craft over decades, meeting other comics along the way who aren't afraid to give your sets criticism, and you actually learn the craft, things happen. Your comedy changes. Take Louis C.K. for example. Here's a clip of him not even telling a fart joke, just describing why he thinks farts can be funny:

http://youtu.be/WeKNSXj_ZII

You can't bullshit originality. There are no shortcuts. Do the work.

trpftw • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 02:43 AM

Yes, I do NOT think Samantha is a good comedian that deserves many awards, but I certainly think she's funny in this segment.

Carlos Mencia is probably the worst comedian in US history.

Dane Cook achieved quite big arenas back when he was popular before it got repetitive. His humor was mostly about delivery not content though.

It's hard to find greatness like Louis C.K. though.

MrOake • 6 points • 19 March, 2016 04:28 AM

Louis is alright. Always preferred Burr and Patrice far more. To each their own i guess

MuhTriggersGuise • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 05:34 AM

Not really. I can think of ton male comedians I like who would never say a dick joke. That's the point. Sure, there are low brow male comedians (Larry the Cable Guy) that play off lame stereotypes. The point is that the vast majority of women comedians are just female versions of Larry the Cable Guy, except instead of "Git 'er Done!" it's "OMG I HAVE A VAGINA!!" OP's point is valid.

TurgidMeatWand • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 01:44 AM

You could say that of any joke. A lot of people find certain brands a female humor tiring I.e. "I'm a whore! Penis! Black dick, tee her her". When they offer no other insights into literally any other thing.

trpftw • 3 points • 19 March, 2016 02:42 AM

I mean it wasn't like she started with how she's slutty or anything, it was the fact that they were talking about trump whoring for attention which he frequently does.

MuhTriggersGuise • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 05:36 AM

But the problem is that women act like you are attacking their sex by calling them a whore. Ok, fine. But she threw out the word "whore" first, and GLO threw back "Well, you're just as bad." Then she tried to act like she was owning someone assaulting her sex. She's trying to have her cake and eat it too.

TurgidMeatWand • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 08:06 AM

I'm replying to your "any man could say any dicknjoke wtf?" comment. Not what led to the set up of this specific instance of this specific woman making a whore joke.

In general far too many female comics rest on their labias and just cynically make "shocking" "I'm a whore!!!! It's funny cause it's considered shameful but I act so proud of it! What a clever bait and switch I made!" It can be funny yes, was this funny? Yes, but so many female comics have next to no other material about anything.

Are there male comics that make a lot dick and sex jokes? Of course! All jokes have the potential to be funny, but if more than half their routine is just body parts humor they fade away from the spotlight a lot faster than their female counterparts.

The Amy Schumer comment is a dig on how tired her schtick is than whoever we are talking about now.

trpftw • 11 points • 18 March, 2016 11:57 PM*

She agreed & amplified and did it correctly.

GLO retorted with calling her a whore after she mentioned that trump was an attention whore.

Then GLO went full serious mode but I don't think anyone who is watching would have noticed that as a joke, because you're not expecting a person who is being polled/interviewed to be making a joke. I certainly thought he was not that funny because I had seen the video before I saw this post. But now that we can see he was trolling, so it became a bit more funny. It was really Samantha's bukkake joke that was the funny part so we really have to appreciate GLO for bringing that out of her.

BuddhistSC • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 07:30 AM

"Trickle down media whore" is by far the funniest line in the segment, imo. I feel like the way he said "you're whoring off of his whoredom" was pretty bad though.

MuhTriggersGuise • 0 points • 19 March, 2016 05:37 AM

Samantha's bukkake joke was just reframing the one that GLO made. He was clever, she just tried to take his cleverness and claim it her own.

Cyralea • 22 points • 18 March, 2016 06:37 PM

That entire thread could be summed up by the "Pointy knees, would not bang" meme.

Ishouldbedoingkegels • 29 points • 18 March, 2016 08:26 PM

That entire thread is full of idiots. I think its very telling that GLO showed that he took steps to prepare for this, to prevent getting caught offguard and afterward came out of the situation looking good. You know like a real man, helping others so we better prepare for shit and come out winners, i like stuff like that...

Then you see that thread and because he is "not on their team" all they can do is mock him. They are the exact buffoons real great men always elude to; the ones who drag down anyone trying to become great, the crabs, the ones who are asleep in life, clinging on to their ideals and so are afraid of what they cant comprehend.

Notice most of those comments are filled with qualifers like "i think", and asking questions, but no bold statements. They reason they do this is because they have done so little introspection they are unsure of their reactions to things and so must herd together to tell each other they are right... like some kind of wierd bird? (really though who fucking says dumb shit like that besides a woman, and $20 says it isnt a woman)

RedPillDad • 14 points • 18 March, 2016 09:01 PM

Take their mocking as a nod of respect. Their satirical swords are their swinging dicks, and they used them to flail at GLO.

trpftw • 7 points • 19 March, 2016 12:07 AM

Honestly, I'm fully in TRP, but I thought Samantha Bee's Agree & amplify was funnier than G.L.O.

It's not really about "redpill vs bluepill" it's just that it was a funny exchange and it was worth watching the whole video. Samantha Bee shouldn't be hated on like as if she messed up or something.

She was genuinely funny (usually I don't find her funny). I don't think she's that talented, but GLO didn't really do that much (can't blame GLO because it's a heavily edited short exchange segment. I'm sure GLO is more funny in real life than that short segment showed.)

I'm sure those BP guys are exaggerating and being nonsensical though.

MakeEmSayAyy • 3 points • 19 March, 2016 04:53 PM

Did you see her face after she said it? LOL watch her face dude.

MuhTriggersGuise • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 05:41 AM

For argument's sake, even if she is funnier, shouldn't she be? She does this shit day in day out. It's her fucking career. She's been at it decades. A relative novice comes in with a couple weeks prep and completely derails her attack, and she retreats in "humor". Aside from that, she gets the benefit of editing everything. The most he can hope for is her including something that he looks relatively ok in, because in the process she said something amusing. I doubt they included all the zingers he made that she had no response for. I wouldn't be surprised if in the clip of GLO there was much more time between his words and her response that was edited out to make her look more like she had quick response.

[deleted] • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 06:06 AM

true i never even thought of that (and probably no viewers ever do which is why it works)

"hey now! He makes alpha shirts and Skypes exercise lessons too.....that is much better and productive then being a comedian/tv personality" just fucking wow.

Offering time for free and helping countless people with accurate fitness advice vs. producing entertainment which is exactly that and provides no other value.

Only a idiot thinks that being a bitchy TV personality provides more value to society than helping other people change their lives. Stuck in the narrative, lost soul.

I was disappointed not to see you shirtless drenched in baby oil and flexing while taking questions.

Great job though. You stuck out way more than the others and did well with your opportunity.

LyricBaritone • 6 points • 19 March, 2016 01:38 AM

Eh, the black guy was leaking spaghetti pretty hard, and the dude she called out for getting worked up was pretty cringeworthy.

Elodrian • 5 points • 18 March, 2016 09:11 PM

I used to watch the Daily Show when Jon Stewart was still at the helm. Correspondent segments by Sam Bee or Lewis Black were my queue to skip to the 3rd act.

Johnny_Lawless_Esq • 9 points • 19 March, 2016 01:19 AM [recovered]

Her incompetence is palpable.

No, it isn't, she's actually superbly good at her job. Goad people, lead them down the path of taking their beliefs to a logical but ridiculous conclusion, get them to blurt it out, and most of all, she does it almost entirely off the cuff. She's masterful at it. But she's only accustomed to dealing with defenseless lambs who think that she and the show are actually interested in portraying them in a fair and reasonable light. Put a wily bighorn ram in the herd, and she's completely unprepared. She has absolutely no toolkit for dealing with someone who knows EXACTLY what she and the segment editor are looking for, and is ready and willing to give it to them.

MuhTriggersGuise • 7 points • 19 March, 2016 05:44 AM [recovered]

she does it almost entirely off the cuff

No, it's edited to appear completely off the cuff, or to only include the 1 in 10 instances that actually is off the cuff. Let me interact with people for 6 hours and film it then edit it down to 6 minutes. I'll look like one smart clever funny fucker.

Johnny_Lawless_Esq • 3 points • 19 March, 2016 06:02 AM [recovered]

No, you won't. Even the best comedians will tell you that nine out of ten gags they write are crap, and never see the light of day. Even considering the amount of time and editing that goes into this segment, she still manages to get a few zingers per hour, which is way more than most of us could. If you think that any twit could do her job, you're wrong. I'm not a creative myself, but people who underestimate the amount of sheer work that creatives do is really demonstrating their ignorance.

[deleted] • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 06:09 AM [recovered]

i think you missed his point. he would edit the nine shitty ones out and only include the one that went well. that's how it works

Johnny_Lawless_Esq • 1 points • 19 March, 2016 06:42 AM [recovered]

I didn't; he missed mine: Even with the magic of editing, it'd be a mistake to underestimate the difficulty of what this woman does, and to misapprehend how good she is at it.

[deleted] • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 06:44 AM [recovered]

all he did was respond to your completely incorrect statement

she does it almost entirely off the cuff

the rest you are just projecting

MuhTriggersGuise • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 06:59 AM

If you couldn't come up with 6 minutes of funny when hanging out with people for 6 hours, while trying to be funny, while being delivered obtuse opinions by people who are nervous to be on camera, IDK WTF is wrong with you. Yes. Yes I do believe it is way easier than you make it out to be.

[deleted] • 0 points • 19 March, 2016 01:00 AM

right wing satirist

Unless Fox wants to give you a time slot, no other network would dare put a conservative on TV.

monsieurhire2 • 121 points • 18 March, 2016 04:17 PM

Hilarious. Nicely done. I'm no fan of Trump, but congrats on sticking it to her. Also, in my opinion, I agree with you 100%. They are whores that feed off the public outrage produced by the policies of the elite while offering no solutions. People watch the Daily Show and shows like it as therapy for getting their asses kicked by the people in power, and somehow think they are "doing something." It's like a form of Church.

Another point. It's clear from her reaction that you scored some points, but interestingly enough, she attempted to counter with an agree and amplify tactic, which I think actually blew up in her face, pardon the pun. You basically tricked her into framing herself as the receiver of bukkake. Nice.

mojo_magnifico • 56 points • 18 March, 2016 06:48 PM

It didn't blow up in her face - it was a funny agree & amplification by a comedian. I dislike Samantha Bee, but why does everyone keep framing it like G.L.O. masterminded her off hand joke? His "accurate assessment" line was the real highlight.

okkyle • 27 points • 18 March, 2016 07:15 PM

You need to pay better attention and read the OP, particularly the part about Peter Schiff.

GLO did mastermind her. Samantha had a clear objective, and it wasn't to pal around have some funny banter, she was specifically trying to goad this group into saying something clumsy that could be taken out of context and edited down into a soundbite that would make Trump supporters look racist and uninformed. GLO took her loaded question and turned it into a joke on HER. Brilliantly done by GLO, back to the classroom with you

[deleted] • 27 points • 18 March, 2016 08:10 PM

Bee's agree and amplify stopped her from 'loosing'. /u/GayLubeOil stuck to his guns by saying 'accurate assessment' was necessary for him to protect his claims.

Hilary Clinton recently lost major swaths of black voters for apologizing about her 'Super predator comment'. Look at her toolbox; pressure flip, agreed and amplify, reload- not retreat, anything but apologize.

Look at the scientists that dropped a fucking rocket on a asteroid. He was reduced to tears because no body taught him to maintain frame in the face off a bunch of women.

As the Left races to don the mantle of victim hood and oppression apologizing puts you in the place of being the oppressor, the bad guy. Samantha Bee is a trickle down media because she was called one and GLO stuck to his guns. Clinton is a racists because a bunch of career criminals kept committing crimes and when she called them out on it she didn't double down, she apologized.

Never apologize. Not unless your in a orange jumpsuit and shackles and have already been convicted. And maybe not even then.

okkyle • 10 points • 18 March, 2016 08:26 PM*

You're technically right, but you're looking at this from the wrong perspective.

Bee's agree and amplify stopped her from 'loosing'

No it didn't. This is where you're missing the point. This was not a PUA contest to see who could be the biggest AMOG. Samantha did maintain frame, yes, but that wasn't her goal. She wasn't trying to best GLO in a battle of wits. She had specific objective in mind to get GLO and the others to say something that could be edited to make Trump and his supporters look a certain way. GLO played it smart by not stepping into her trap.

It's sorta like if me and a sales rep from another firm meet up with a prospective client each trying to win his account. Let's say we go to a billiards bar and talk about everything over some pool games. My objective to win the client, the pool playing is secondary. I lose the account, but win every round of pool, I pointlessly "won" in a way, but really I lost because I didn't accomplish my objective.

[deleted] • 6 points • 18 March, 2016 08:51 PM

As Ive said elsewhere

All the recaps I've seen have concentrated on the 'Trickle Down Media Whore' headshot and skip the very important observation that the presidential election has degenerated into a reality show; which was presented as the only thing that could be agreed upon.

Moreover, Bee used whore first at Trump, and then reveled in calling herself a whore.

In short, anybody that watched the entire clip would say Bee got checked hard. As it is, the media is packaging it as a failure to reason with Trump supporters.

In the secondary media (like salon, even lower down the fuckpile than Bee) Samantha looks like a good-natured comedian dealing with a room full of idiots. Most people are just going to watch the highlights in Salon and their Facebook feed. The left is going to turn this into a win among women user_none • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 04:53 AM

What you've stated can be summed up in one sentence, and it comes from the movie Focus, and that is "Die with the lie."

I certainly don't advocate lying, but if you're going to do it, stick to your guns. And it doesn't even have to be a lie; just have conviction in your words. Know yourself, what you believe in, and don't easily waver from that belief.

ArkAngelEV • 1 point • 21 March, 2016 08:34 PM

True this, he had her with blood coming out of her eyes, ears and wherever

mojo_magnifico • 2 points • 18 March, 2016 07:41 PM

Yes her objective was clear, but unnecessary. Donald Trump and his supporters are already extremely public about attacking non-whites and non-Christians. Donald Trump has by far more campaign misstatements than any presidential nominee in history, so how can any supporter truly call themselves informed on his policies in any way?

Where is the loaded question? She asks very simply "You like his media whoring?" GLO avoids answering and reactively attacks her. Okay. Best defense is good offense. She agrees and amplifies. His (meticulously rehearsed) poker face totally saves it.

[deleted] • 0 points • 18 March, 2016 11:07 PM

He sounded like a fucking nerd when he said that tbh.

[deleted] • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 12:58 AM

I saw that clip before knowing that was gaylubeoil, I thought he was being a non PC conservative. I thought it was fucking great.

privyetiki • 14 points • 18 March, 2016 03:22 PM

One more lesson to learn here: The reason GLO was able to get help from the marketers, advertisers and speech coaches was only because he offered value to them once back in their life in the form of fitness consultations. This is the power of networking, only achieved by offering others something they want.

The only reason why he was able to do that because he is a value GIVER more than a TAKER, what we all as men shall aspire to be.

Humon1902 • 41 points • 18 March, 2016 04:53 PM

Trickle down media whore

That is excellent phrase. You coined that? Sick.

You worked with what you had: you showed admirable restraint. Good job.

trpftw • 7 points • 18 March, 2016 11:54 PM

It looks more like Samantha Bee got the better of OP. GayLubeOil, she literally Agreed & Amplified YOU.

Both of you were really funny in that exchange to be honest.

But more funny than that was watching the other victim attendants as they constantly contradicted themselves. At least GayLubeOil avoided that.

Really impressive stuff GLO & Samantha.

InflatableRaft • 10 points • 19 March, 2016 02:13 AM

It's not an agree and amplify, it's a reframe.

rp_valiant • 1 point • 3 April, 2016 07:53 PM

compare how GLO came off to how almost everyone else did and you'll see he played Samantha pretty well. All she could get from probably hours of goading editable statements was GLO ripping on her. Everyone else managed to come across stupid because they were trapped into making editable lines rather than short, context-immune soundbites like GLO.

[deleted] • 41 points • 18 March, 2016 03:39 PM

Can we acknowledge how delightfully feminine the girls were in your Trump supporting group? Long hair, healthy skin, bright smiles, dresses (not pantsuits, unlike the Hillary camp). It speaks to the polarization effect that u/Neoreactionsafe keeps bringing up. In the presence of the frame and game they got in proximity to GLO, they polarized to the female extreme very sexily.

ProductivityMonster • 8 points • 19 March, 2016 03:36 AM

Most young women are probably not going to wear a pant suit on tv, and there is likely heavy makeup for tv as well. All the people were probably chosen because they're reasonably good looking (lending some credibility so you can't just write them off), but nothing special because they have to be mocked as Trump supporters.

You're the only person I can recall that walked onto one of these shows (Daily Show, Colbert...) and owned it without looking like a schlub. Even the other people in the segment come off looking like bozos. This is a great example of the power of preparation and framing.

MakeEmSayAyy • 5 points • 19 March, 2016 05:02 PM

They have EVERY advantage, they can edit it, they get the last say, they control the topics, they can do anything.

GLO got the best case scenario, he got a memorable insult in on her and they published it. Are you kidding me? That's amazing

This 100%. Very well composed, calm, and he kept the poker face even when he was dropping the joke.

cholomite • 36 points • 18 March, 2016 03:05 PM

I saw the clip on YouTube but had no idea it was you. Good stuff. I thought her response was funny although it was just a deflection that didn't counter anything. Yours was the only response that didn't sound shaky or nervous compared to the rest of the panel.

Has anyone tried contacting you for additional media appearances because of this, either on her show or another outlet?

What is this?

War2kali • 7 points • 18 March, 2016 11:23 PM

I'm waiting for the segment where they put up 10 Hillary supporters for hours with an open bar and try to goad them into saying stupid things, then put up the "highlights." They may do it, I know some of these shows do like to poke fun at both sides. I'm not holding my breath, though.

Overall I'm amazed that there really wasn't any smoking gun horrible sound bite making all Trump supporters out to be idiots. They even had a black dude there who was kindly trying to explain why he supported him... this almost seemed pro-Trump now that I think about it.

Lintmin • 7 points • 19 March, 2016 04:46 PM

Did anyone else notice how EXTREMELY racist her comment was about the black dude?

I find it ironic that despite all this bs about trump being a racist and over sensitivity to race related issues, the MOST racist thing I have seen this whole year was her treatment of that black guy.

she basically says he must be confused and alone because he is black and supporting trump.
Fuck this lady.

[deleted] • 35 points • 18 March, 2016 07:21 PM

RP picks their heroes (Patrice, GayLube, Rollo) just like any other group. At the end of the day, RP for RP sake is a circlejerk like anything else, and it's definitely not immune to the trickle-down whoredom that he emphasizes here.

RP tenets have helped me out so much but this sort of shit is just fucking around for fucking around's sake. I agree with you that it's not that impressive. I'd actually say it's lame because he lacks the self-awareness that he's actually the one on the bottom of the pile, trying to milk the fact that he rubbed elbows with Samantha Bee of all people on "national television." Shit, a retarded kangaroo can get on national television.

[deleted] • 12 points • 19 March, 2016 12:47 AM

I agree with you and the deleted user who replied on your post. GLO makes good contributions to the sub, but we shouldn't revert to the default reddit stance and salivate over new heroes.

GLO is playing this off as some colossal victory but it's really just witty repartee. And it's funny and that's fine. But that's all there is to it and it feels like he's milking it for all it's worth.

What can we learn from this? How to maintain frame and how to pick your battles. GLO didn't wage fucking war because the setup was not in his favour. That's it. Let's not read too much into this.

[deleted] • 3 points • 19 March, 2016 06:16 AM yea ok it's not a colossal victory, because like other's have already said, he was set up for massive defeat to begin with, and any actual victory was not possible simply because no matter how perfect anything he said was, she could just edit it out after.

it was a small victory. just small enough that it wasn't edited out. it is such a difficult thing to do in a normal environment, let alone on a show like this where they literally have ALL the power to include or exclude whatever they want.

[deleted] • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 04:20 PM

And respect for that. He deserves some level of praise for that. But everyone here's acting like he's restored western civilization, and as if Samantha Bee must feel so bad that she had to concede that point. Things will continue the way they are and she's been in the industry a long while. This is nothing.

[deleted] • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 05:49 PM

not a single person here is acting like that

zeny_two • 1 point • 20 March, 2016 01:27 AM

You're giving this sub too much credit. Almost none of the posts here are really newsworthy.

This is just a regular field report, but it comes with video and a good joke. It has fewer upvotes than many of the written field reports. Gotta agree with /u/slooberki here, nobody is acting like that.

[deleted] • 2 points • 20 March, 2016 01:35 AM

That's fair, maybe I'm reading too much into the reactions.

[deleted] • 7 points • 19 March, 2016 12:42 AM

Damn, you're right. Like the deleted post says, redditors here revert to the default and eventually pick new heroes to salivate over.

Real TRP is about being your own man. GLO shouldn't be a new idol to blindly worship.

He's got good points and contributions, sure. But he's framing this as some colossal victory. It was good witty repartee, and demonstrates holding frame. But nothing more.

for example, no average joe could get away with saying the things trump says, but he's powerful enough to do it.

it's complicated, difficult, and high risk high reward

As for Roosh, I'm sure he does just fine balalasaurus • 3 points • 19 March, 2016 08:08 AM

It's telling that all the articles on this clip have already painted her as the victim and you as the oppressor. Even concessions of the validity of your assessment of the election and the media surrounding it take a backseat to you calling her a 'whore'. The bluepill is everywhere.

zombiesunflower • 14 points • 19 March, 2016 01:05 AM

I think I'm done here you have all lost your collective minds Trump and the red pill have nothing to do with one another. You have all turn this into a collective group think religious Dogma when to begin with it was a strategy for dealing with the female aspect of society and to empower men to have at a minimum a equal outcome when dealing with women. I can't deal with you people turning into a bunch of weirdo zealots with no real concept of reality anymore. I sit here and watch this place turn into money-making strategy sub where you sell books on how to pick up chicks which is this is clearly turning into.

zeny_two • 3 points • 20 March, 2016 01:20 AM

What are you on about? The video was a piece on Trump fans. Obviously, he'll come up in the comments.

Some people like discussing things other than women. Like money, or fitness, or politics. Having disagreements is healthy. But labeling people you don't know "zealots" and inferring they're imbeciles makes you look like a child. Learn to disagree like an adult.

ArkAngelEV • 1 point • 21 March, 2016 02:25 PM

Yeah sounds like he's got blood coming out of his ears, eyes or wherever

Politikon • 3 points • 19 March, 2016 07:05 AM

Agreed. Seriously can't take this RP cult-like circlejerking anymore. I thought this sub appreciated reason, substance and actually thinking outside the box in order to find truth instead of shamelessly encouraging amateurish self-promotion and clickbait. I guess there are still some of us that still appreciate what the RP was originally intended for but I guess it is natural that we are thinning out as the herd continues to grow.

AwryyrwA • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 03:07 PM

I came here to say this. I like that you used the term "zealots" because that's pretty much what everyone on this thread has become.

DannyDemotta • 0 points • 20 March, 2016 07:14 AM

I like how you can sit there and run your dick-suckers about what this sub is and isn't, but haven't bothered to familiarize yourself with the rules.

Its going to be a shame when I look for your comment tomorrow and it's been deleted because you're a fake-TRP concern trolling cuck

Great work! The amount of straw manning going on in that show was ridiculous. I wish that one lady in the front would've kept her mouth shut about white supremacy and let the men handle it - the women who spoke generally sounded confused.

uberrific • 1 point • 18 March, 2016 09:11 PM

Preparation or not, he certainly handled himself far better than any of the other guests. And how is being serious about approaching a task where the odds are stacked far against you wrong? This wasn't a grand victory, but it is evidence of personal improvement, his growth in his charismatic ability. Being able to go toe-to-toe with Samantha Bee with editing going against you is a powerful skill. Trump will be the Rep nominee and probably President because of that charisma.

PrinceofSpades • 8 points • 18 March, 2016 05:07 PM

Only non-cringe person, including her, in that party interview video was you. Those other guests made a fool of themselves.

exit_sandman • 3 points • 18 March, 2016 06:17 PM

Well, that probably was the idea behind that clip.

PrinceofSpades • 4 points • 18 March, 2016 06:25 PM

Obviously; I'm supporting what he did and how he did it by showing that even with only the worst clips edited for the final cut, they still made her look bad instead of him, while everyone else came off as nothing short of disabled.

Woo America.

I'm presuming they avoided any further talk with you after the great response?

wiseprogressivethink • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 12:51 AM

Question: When one is invited to participate in one of these "We are going to ask you loaded questions and edit your answers to make you look like a stupid and evil person" interviews that the shitlibs love so much, is it possible to bring a camera or other recording device of your own into the taping, so that you would have a recording of all that is edited out? Or is there some legal contract you are required to sign that forbids you from doing that?

GayLubeOil[S] • 6 points • 19 March, 2016 12:53 AM

You sign a contract that gives them exclusive rights to the footage and the right to do anything they want with it on penalty of legal rape.

SkorchZang • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 01:03 AM iopq • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 08:35 AM

I did enjoy "trickle down media whore", it's making me all warm and fuzzy inside.

fakenate1 • 2 points • 19 March, 2016 11:15 AM kellykebab • 1 point • 20 March, 2016 04:11 AM

I appreciate his manhandling of the ladies as well, but purely as entertainment. The actual presidency, though, involves vision and tough decision making beyond gut-level reactions and unfailing self-promotion.

Trump is the guy you want to watch ruin a family reunion, not the man to hold the entire free world together.

Did you get in any other responses or was that the only time they went to you?

GayLubeOil[S] • 12 points • 18 March, 2016 04:56 PM

I only spoke when I 100% new I would come out on top. I spoke the least out of anyone on the segment during filming.

blacwidonsfw • 13 points • 18 March, 2016 06:06 PM*

You were the opposite of the black guy. Dude had no self control over his micro expressions. Can't even call them micro. I want to play poker with him.

Had no idea what this show is or who the host is but she seems more alpha than most men. She agreed and amplified you which lessened the blow, but she still took a blow for sure.

If I was her I would have amplified and brought you into the metaphor...Something like:

"Yeah the media is whoring it up but since you agreed to come on my show, does that make you the fluffer?" That's not that great but something similar would have been better for her.

MakeEmSayAyy • 1 point • 19 March, 2016 07:07 PM

Seddit is soft, but it certainly has a far better community than the harsh generalizations and racist remarks found here.

Sure, whatever you say. If that's what you believe, then take my advice and go back there.

I'm all for red pill ideology but am repulsed to see it now revolving around white supremacy and closed-mindedness perpetuated by users like GLO.

I don't think you truly are "all for" Red Pill ideology, and it certainly doesn't "revolve around" white supremacy and closed mindedness.

It also irks me that he tries so hard to sell his shit here... there I admit it.

That's really the crux of your issue. Its funny, he doesn't even include links in all of his posts, and when he does, its one line at the end of a multi-paragraph posting.

It might benefit you to be less of a whiny bitch about some things some guy you don't know wrote on an internet message board.

SureImShore • 2 points • 18 March, 2016 08:42 PM

"ban"... for what? Dude, you're the troll here. You're not a part of this community and posting in a thread to take GLO down a few notches. He's an OG EC around these parts.

I've seen the hoodies before and thought they looked pretty cool. GLO has made some posts that I have gotten a lot out of, and find him generally pretty funny. I get a cool hoodie and a dude who has added some value to my life gets some cash. Solid transaction all around if you ask me.

[deleted] • 0 points • 18 March, 2016 09:09 PM

Who the fuck are you to come into a place where you disagree with most things said here, then bad mouth it? What content are you providing other than the reiteration of "oh RP is woman hating, racist blah blah". You literally provided nothing. Your content was selfish and hurtful. You obviously have no idea what sexual strategy is about if your applying your morals to our sexuality. I would rather you share an experience, any experience, that you have had with a woman so we can point out where you fucked up and maybe you could learn something.

Then you do the most childish thing and tell us to enjoy our ban, like we can't just make a new account.

Look here, buddy. TRP is an idea, and it's not going away as long as someone still holds that idea. So stfu and learn something, or gtfo.

Most people don't take the time to read. He is doing much better on video format than before. Very well executed on Bee's program and he did a nice job of pointing out that RooshV basically raped himself by screwing 100+chicks. RooshV had to sleep with a lot of low hanging, rotten fruit and that's why his opinion of women is so bad.

How much more was said, either by you or the other guests, that wasn't shown in the broadcast? Was there anything that was particularly devastating that was edited out, like any strong counterpoints that Bee could not refute?

In the segment, you were shown very little. I see in another comment that you said you spoke the least out of the other guests, but what other conversations did you partake in that weren't shown? I don't expect you to remember word-for-word, obviously, but I think everyone here would be interested to know everything that wasn't shown in the aired segment.

What was so wrong about her question about Trump's media whoring?

It seemed like an adequate follow up to you comparing the presidential nomination to a reality show. I mean, reality shows are sort of acknowledged to be exploitative and farcical.

EntitledShitHead • -8 points • 18 March, 2016 04:19 PM

This is a perfect example of what separates a red pill man from a Chad. When red pill men are presented with one opportunity to get what they want, they prepare the fuck out of it and capitalize on it, while Chad just sits around and if he gets lucky it'll go his way. This dedication can be applied to job interviews, negotiations or even laying a tinder slut. Good job GLO! You're the man!
