Young girls are going to grow up watching these movies, getting an over-esteemed sense of their strength and power. One day, they will push a man too far who won't hold back, and they'll be klapped into reality.

Yeah , like the "intimidating" stare is gonna chase robbers and rapists away lol plus they won't scream for help because they are too mighty to do so.

Belrick_NZ • 57 points • 23 July, 2019 08:52 AM

nope.

women like to pretend that they can be heroes.... for the attention but actually risk their lives and doing so competently? nope.

Same as with those BS women-only martial arts classes, it'll teach them confidence based on false pretenses (followed by a massive ass-whoopin once reality kicks in).

Bobby Hill: THAT'S MY PURSE! I DON'T KNOW YOU!

[deleted] • 7 points • 23 July, 2019 01:28 PM

Even though its dated, the traditional pepper spray in purse is probably as effective as it gets. I watched a college professor take down a methed up bear of a dude trying to break into a computer lab with one of those things.

If she tried to fuckin fem-jutsu him or w/e the hell those classes are called, she'd have been hospitalized and some lucky junkie woulda made off with a couple grand in brand new computers

urwrong54 • 1 point • 23 July, 2019 11:32 PM

A gun is a bit more effective

[deleted] • 2 points • 23 July, 2019 10:55 PM

Yup, happened with an ex.

Her "oh I can take any man blah blah I did kick boxing"

Me : Sure...

Her : NO I really did for years and I can TAKE ANY MAN!

So I asked her if she was sure she said yes and then I whooped her ass into all four of the corners.

her excuse was that I was going "full contact" and with training they never did any contact. Don't know about that but when I did some martial arts we trained at half to 3/4 contact and at rugby always full contact.

She didn't have a mark so I was really gentle, this was a mistake.

McDojo is a good one.

That Meme of "we trained him wrong as a joke" surely applied. Her defensive stance was fists on cheekbone level with the knuckles forward (towards target) and the ellbows rotated out and up to shoulder height like a chickenwing.

First time I had ever seen that "I can take any man" stance.

So apparently women who are cops or firefighters dont exists huh?

They only exist because of quotas and lower standards.

The average white male cop can bench 97.4kg (214lbs) with a standard deviation of 20.7kg (45lbs).

The average white female cop can bench 40.8kg (90lbs) with a standard deviation of 7.6kg (17lbs).

The average white male cop is 2.5x stronger than the average white female cop.

The top 2% of white female cops overlap with the bottom 2% of white male cops.

BooBear6969 • -5 points • 23 July, 2019 06:33 PM

Yes the standards for women are lower for the police force because men are biologically speaking on average stronger than the average women, but I wasn't arguing that was I? I was calling out how many men seem to be butthurt about how women can be heros, and per that "quotas" statement women have to work just as hard to achieve those standards for them as men have to too reach the ones placed for them i think the whole point is about a universal standard, not within gender. yep, kudos to the women who maxmize themselves. but it doesnt mean anything when the average women is deluded about her capabilities relative to average men etc.

[deleted] • 1 point • 23 July, 2019 08:23 PM

Bro, get out of this subreddit, you still have a chance to be a normal human being, but you gotta leave now!

duong9006 • 55 points • 23 July, 2019 10:28 AM

When I was in the Army, back then there was no internet, no social media. Some chicks who got into, I don't think it was special force but smth between infantry recon or ranger. Just a little higher level of training than the normal infantry, I mean. They often beat us in some demonstration show and we let them, but really sometimes this or that chick who got carried away too much and challenged us in daily training, LOL. A pussy lieutenant who ranked just because she finished her training and meanwhile being a Communist party member, once went to far to come to me... and sobbed later because I apparently "didn't hold back" and "went to hard"... she seemed to think a sergeant as meself should let a higher ranked beat me voluntarily.

Besides, I got to back a fellow vet who taught a young butter bar* a lesson (a female one too, props bro). Listen and learn from your NCOs, if you take the rank off and get in the ring expect no mercy.

* A butter bar is a US military slang term for a O1 second lieutenant. Green as grass and often as dumb as a private just out of basic.

Miggymoggy • 23 points • 23 July, 2019 09:55 AM

If you provoke someone then you deserve exactly what you get, which women don't realise this until it is too late because they are told in society that men will never lay a hand on them regardless of what they do, so they are totally brain washed into thinking that they can do what they want to a man without any consequences whatsoever.

Play a stupid game, win a stupid prize.

Skipped Captain Marvel, watched Endgame.

Couldn't not finish the story.

Several scenes made it painfully obvious what direction they were headed though. So no more for me.

Jackoffalltrades89 • 8 points • 23 July, 2019 02:03 PM

Yep. Don't regret seeing Endgame, but by the same token, I have no desire to see it again. They made it abundantly clear with that one, if the forced intrusion and replacement everywhere else wasn't enough, that their goal is to kill all of your heroes. Dr. Who, Star Wars, STD, Marvel, GoT, Bond, and on and on, there will be no sanctuary, no quarter. All your heroes must kneel before the leftist feminist march and beg for mercy before having their heads cut off and waved around atop a pike.

Of course, in an age of seamless CG coverups, the problem is a "lack of diversity" and not the producers pushing diversity over qualifications. They have to push the narrative over people's lives.

At the gym, my favourite cardio machine affords me a bird's eye view of the workout studio where whatever the jazzercise/cardio kick-boxing/zumba fad of the minute is being 'taught' and I cannot help but laugh...

Whenever I make the mistake of looking up from whatever I am reading or playing, I see these lumpy creatures (interspersed sp.?) with frail anorexics engaged in hilarious combat mimicry.

The funniest move is where they imitate grabbing a grown man's head and pulling it down for their devastating knee-strikes... uh-huh, sure bitches... maybe don't try that one when you're getting gang-raped on your backpacking trip through Morrocco.

MrMagtow • 5 points • 23 July, 2019 11:39 AM

Femininity is a male projection. Women are amazing at using their Chameleon skills - honed over 400,000 years of human expansion.

My dates come from earliest known ritual tribal burial - obviously humanoids were around longer - but this is as far back as archaeologists have discovered, humans buried with tools and baubles, things important to them. Where we can show that we were no longer just animals, but able to perform funeral rites.

Elijah2Kane • 1 point • 24 July, 2019 03:12 PM

What? That is a far stretch from the truth. Superheros or myths about extraordinary people are just fictional characters in a fictional world. It's just like saying male superheroes will get someone kill because men will have an over-esteemed sense of their strength. Myths and superheroes are made to make people want to be like that person, to be strong, powerful, and brave. There is nothing wrong with having female superheroes or having male superheroes.

https://en.m.wikipedia.org/wiki/List\_of\_female\_mixed\_martial\_artists

First of all you are fooling yourself if you believe every woman on this list can beat the average male (5'9.5", 197lbs), let alone easily.

Most WMMA fighters are in the 115/125lbs weight classes and they are not elite powerlifters. In exhibition matches they fight below average untrained men, their size.

Secondly, women who compete in the 135/145lb weightclasses have visible steroid side effects (e.g Cris Cyborg). Only these women can legitimately beat the average man.

So you are comparing 1 in a million women, on steroids against average men and use this as proof that women can fight.

The best 10 year old gymnasts are stronger than some adult women. Does that mean that children can beat women? By your logic there are plenty of strong children who can woop some ass in a fight against your average females.

Infinitewisdom1984 • 3 points • 23 July, 2019 10:45 PM

lmao then why was everyone so pissed off by the fact that a transwoman was fighting in womens MMA? She even hit one woman so hard, she cracked her fucking skull and she's not even big nor does she possess average male testosterone anymore. And everyone was livid!

Also, to your "best athletes in the world" comment. In every sport it's ever been tested, the best female athletes in the world are routinely embarrassed by highschool aged boys. So basically, I could take a teenage boy and train him how to fight just enough that he'd compete well against his own peers, and then if I let him loose on MMA "pro" adult women, he'd whoop their asses just like every other sport.

TheTalkingLurker • 3 points • 23 July, 2019 06:40 PM

Yo so the top tier could beat the average Joe sure but the average Joe could beat every above average woman. Also I have known plenty of "top tier military women" I served in the navy and saw both marine and army women and every one of them that I saw could not stand up to their male peers. This thing about women being strong for the most part is a lie you have to look at the exceptions while we men don't have to.

Ganjaleaves • -1 points • 23 July, 2019 07:06 PM

TheTalkingLurker • 3 points • 23 July, 2019 11:51 PM

Ok, yeah that might happen but the odds of a female "klapping" (whatever the fuck that means) a male is more likely to end in a female getting her ass beat.

[deleted] • 2 points • 23 July, 2019 05:54 PM

Women being portrayed as badassess in movies and the media focusing on a couple hundred roided female freaks does influence people's perception of female strength. Even a lot of men here didn't know beforehand that 14 year old boys are on average as tall and strong as women at their peak.

Do most women believe they have a chance to beat men twice their size? No.

Do most women believe they have a chance to beat men their size or slightly larger? Absolutely.

JesterBombs • 2 points • 23 July, 2019 07:43 PM

I've never heard a man reference a superhero when trying to prove his combat abilities. I've heard women reference Atomic Blonde and other superheros as "proof" women can keep up with the men.

Ever see a UFC heavyweight knock out his opponent with a single blow? I'm sure a woman literally half his size can take on a group of them and live to tell about it. Rhonda Rousey wouldn't fight a woman 10 lbs heavier than her because she knew she'd get wrecked but that didn't stop her from bragging about how she thought she could beat Floyd Mayweather.

JesterBombs • 1 point • 24 July, 2019 06:52 PM

Decades of studies are useless when the world changes so much from generation to generation. I'm not saying a woman sees a strong woman and says "I'm strong too." What I'm saying is when you ask the average female any variation of: "Is it possible for a woman to physically perform at the same level as a man," a baby boomer would reply "probably not" whereas a millennial would reply "of course." When asked to give proof or examples of that claim, millennials will reference "strong female characters" from TV and movies because that's a primary medium by which they receive information and because there aren't any real life examples.

Want to apply what I've said to the real world? Ask any number of females if a woman in full armor can beat a man who's similarly equipped. The ones who say yes will 100% of the time reference Brienne of Tarth from Game of Thrones.

I love how you also conveniently avoided my example about Rhonda Rousey. She was considered to be the top female fighter in the world at that time and despite her public bragging that she could beat Floyd Mayweather, she refused to fight him or any other man despite plenty of offers.

Want another example? Most people consider Serena Williams to be one of the best tennis players in the world. If you ask a woman if either of the Williams sisters could beat a top ranked male, most would say yes. Despite her and her sister's claims that they could beat any man not ranked in the top 200, they both lost to Karsten Braasch who took them up on their offer and was ranked 203 at the time.

In both those examples the real world "strong women" don't even have a handle on their own abilities, let alone the public's perception of them. Combine that with the fact that most people get their information from fiction or unverified sources and that's why so many females (at least the younger ones) believe they're capable of being physically equal to men when they aren't.

Any woman you haven't made up in your head to fit an agenda?

Your post history explains your ignorance. I bet you love getting pegged by your girlfriend. Or boyfriend. Can't tell by how much of a pussy you are.

What a sad ideology where all you have left are personal insults because of your inability to come up with a valid response.

I give valid responses to valid questions. Doesn't change the fact that you're consistently downvoted whenever you post. Must suck to not have any friends in real life or the internet.

Except that war movies showcase death all the fucking time. If you wanna talk about brainwashing, the brainwashing that war inspired through propaganda pieces already killed billions of males in countless wars because they thought that there was something worth fighting for back home (women) and that the enemy was outside the country.

Now the brainwashing has worn off and we know that the enemy is our own government, and it's time for women to die in active war zones while we enjoy sitting on our ass watching Netflix instead.
