

AWALT Confirmed. Thanks Redpill, I owe you one.

1859 upvotes | 29 March, 2017 | by [deleted]

I posted something not too long ago about whether AWALT is true in ALL cases as I'd presumed my girlfriend was "the one". The fellows in the comments gave me enough mistrust to decide that perhaps I should check her messages right when she left the room (something I wouldn't normally do, because I trusted her), but almost like clockwork, I found a group message with her and her friends, with her talking about how she wants to fuck this guy in her study group, a guy that was previously flirting with her over text and when I confronted her about it before, she claimed that she didn't think it was flirting and that she could handle herself.

In any case, right when she came back in the room I confronted her about it and she tried to rationalize it in some absurd ways, but needless to say I said "we're done" and walked out right there. She's been trying to call me and knock on my door and shit, but I'm just keeping up no contact.

We've been together for 3 years so it's somewhat solemn that she's just another woman when I took her for a unicorn for so long. In any case, I got a haircut and some new clothes earlier and plan on going out to get some new pussy tonight for the first time in 3 years.

All I can say is, thank you Redpill. Thank you so much.

I wonder what excuse she'll tell her friends is the reason they broke up? Love to be a fly on the wall them days. Trust me, this is a hard lesson for her to learn. She's the one in pain and knows she screwed up. He could own his ex now, without any commitment towards her.

[deleted] • 226 points • 30 March, 2017 01:38 PM

She'll probably tell them that he was abusive and controlling and didn't trust her. These will be the same friends who were encouraging her to cheat on him.

Slut_Slayer9000 • 138 points • 30 March, 2017 04:07 PM

"Me and X broke up, he was really insecure and controlling, he snooped through my shit so I decided to break it off with him." Que "You go girl, girl power. Now you can go fuck Y from your class!"- Group chat.

theoctopuss • 23 points • 31 March, 2017 06:48 AM

They don't even understand the damage they're doing to themselves. She'll wake up when she's 30 wondering what happened.

hamsterenema • 5 points • 3 April, 2017 03:26 AM

This is precisely what she did.

co65 • points • 30 March, 2017 02:43 PM [\[recovered\]](#)

Funny you should say that... I have never encouraged a man to cheat on his gf or wife. I do just the opposite. A married friend of mine, got 2 phone numbers 1 from a casual encounter and another from a girl at work. I told him delete those numbers as absolutely nothing good can come from it. If you leave a temptation like that hanging, you will bite the forbidden fruit. (I'm speaking from a position of a married man here.) His wife is very cautious about other bitches, because she KNOWS how they are. She gives him as much sex as he wants, keeping his sack drained so he has no excuse to run.

DadoFaayan • 77 points • 30 March, 2017 03:22 PM

A blowjob a day keeps the hoes away...

[deleted] • 37 points • 30 March, 2017 04:06 PM

I've got a buddy who's wife's sister is relentlessly pursuing him. He thinks he might be able to fuck her without it blowing up in his face. I have only ever told him he's crazy if he thinks that.

In my experience women think that just agreeing with whatever their friend wants to do is being supportive. They hardly ever call each other out on this kind of bullshit.

cooled8611 • 22 points • 30 March, 2017 05:30 PM

It WILL blow up in his face.

I made the mistake on fucking one of my exes while in a brand new relationship. She found my then gfs (now wife) Facebook, and proceeded to tell her EVERY LURID DETAIL of what happened, bc I didn't choose her after she's been pining after me for the longest time. The ex was fucking crazy, that's why I never made it official. I thought it was gonna be, one of those crazy last romps, shake hands, "it was good knowing you" and she goes her way and I, mine.

In short, don't do it. Of course it's hella tempting...but your sanity is worth more than the pussy being thrown at you.

Bullfrog777 • 13 points • 30 March, 2017 04:55 PM

I wonder what excuse she'll tel her friends is the reason hey broke up?

I know human nature and curiosity makes it so you would like to know, but it's probably best to not even think about it. Not only will you probably never know what she told her friends, but what she tells them will most likely be a lie. There's no need to defend yourself in these situations, just leave.

Cozc • 10 points • 30 March, 2017 06:09 PM

She is in no pain. She has a vagina. I would be surprised if there was less then 5 different cocks inside her within a week of the breakup.

And she will actually be able to convince herself that her sluttiness is really admirable piety.

DarkRenaissance • 1 point • 31 March, 2017 03:03 AM

"Well, his dick is too small." That's exactly what she'll say.

OneRedSock • 415 points • 29 March, 2017 09:59 PM

My 7 year BP relationship from college ended on mutual terms, but a point of contention was definitely when I saw that her coworker was texting shit like "I bet you look good naked" and her responses were smiley faces and "Oh, you..." types of responses. I quickly found a history of many texts from him like this, and not once did she rebuff him.

I only happened to see it pop up on her phone one day, otherwise I never checked her shit -- trust and all that. When confronted she played it off as "Oh, he's just kidding. It's no big deal" The usual bullshit.

The irony, of course, being that she would constantly try to check my phone which bothered me, as I was 100% faithful. The lack of trust pissed me off, but even more so was seeing that she was doing the exact shit that she suspected me of doing.

TL;DR AWALT is fact.

ObnoxiousDrunk • 367 points • 29 March, 2017 11:16 PM

That's known as classic projection. She doesn't trust you because she inherently knows she's untrustworthy and assumes everyone else is like her.

justj6sh • 69 points • 30 March, 2017 03:29 AM

If someone doesn't trust you, and you've done nothing to earn that mistrust. It's a huge red flag of their own guilt/shady behavior.

Cozc • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 06:15 PM

Does it count that in my opinion being female is plenty reason to not be trusted?

abc69 • 4 points • 31 March, 2017 03:17 AM

You shouldn't trust anyone, period.

eatinrice • points • 30 March, 2017 12:48 AM [recovered]

So that's the name for it. My ex did the same thing, never trusted me and would fight with me when she found a lady texting me, then I found her snapchatting her ex, and saw that she was calling him for hours almost daily. Right when you think that they are special or a unicorn or whatever. AWALT is a hard pill to swallow but it keeps proving itself to be true

Robotemist • 71 points • 30 March, 2017 01:32 AM

As did my ex. She would check my phone whenever I left the room, come to find out she was flirting with another dude.

Them cheating and acting inappropriate makes them realize how possible it is for it to happen to them. Ironically they find it acceptable from their part but they he damned if you do it.

Me being the beta at the time came up with every excuse for her. Never again.

Lazysaurus • 75 points • 30 March, 2017 11:24 AM

It gives them good feelings when they do it. It gives them bad feelings when you do it. It's that simple.

Eat_Animals • 24 points • 30 March, 2017 12:23 PM

SecretAsianMan27 • 1 point • 22 August, 2017 08:12 AM

Damn it bro. AWALT really is a hard pill to swallow and it bloody sucks.

I love the cuddly feelings you get in a BP relationship but women just keep proving that AWALT. Time and time again.

At this point, I can understand why some MGTOW. Despite loving pussies, all the bullshit is depressing to deal with.

I've learnt from my personal experiences that women loves you when you treat them like trash. When you show them love and care, they'll always take you for granted and treat you like trash.

I keep trying to find a unicorn but everytime I try to see my women as anything but things made to serve me, it backfired. Everytime :\

bluedrygrass • 39 points • 30 March, 2017 05:53 AM

That's known as classic projection. She doesn't trust you because she inherently knows she's untrustworthy and assumes everyone else is like her.

That's also why the people that throw around the term "racist" the most tends to be the biggest racists themself. They can't understand how could anyone else not judge anyone on race.

muh_posts • 19 points • 30 March, 2017 11:07 AM

The biggest racists are the liberals in the big city. You look at their social circle and they are literally incapable of seeing other races as equals and friends.

[deleted] • 16 points • 30 March, 2017 01:25 PM

Doesn't even have to be big cities. I'm from a leftist town in NJ. It's nauseating listen to people talk about morality, tolerance, and acceptance when the only minority they ever see is their friendly Chinese dry cleaner. Moving to a less affluent, more 'multicultural' town was the biggest red pill for me.

Ou-tis • 7 points • 30 March, 2017 05:52 PM

Uber moral leftists in my country babble about diversity, strangers welcome and so...but they live in ivory towers and don't want refugees or other coloured scum near their houses or where they go for vacation.

John_McFly • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 07:21 PM

And it's amazing the things they'll say to the dry cleaner.

A friend is first generation American, her mom is from SEA and doesn't talk in English but can understand just enough to run their dry cleaning shop. A few days a month, my friend will help out at the shop, everyone assumes she doesn't speak English because she talks to her mom in their native tongue. The customers that say anything mean get a quick lesson in manners with tons of profanity.

user_none • 21 points • 30 March, 2017 05:21 PM

Good to see someone else replied with the explanation of projection.

Accused of cheating, yet you've been faithful? Yep, the other person is probably cheating.

Does he/she want to check your phone/Facebook/email, etc...? Yep, they've probably got incriminating evidence in their account.

Does he/she start taking the phone into the bathroom, when in the past he/she didn't? Probably chatting with a new love interest.

Does he/she quickly close a laptop lid, or minimize/close browser windows/tabs, or turn off mobile devices when you come around? You guessed it.

Has he/she started a new regimen of getting in better shape, and it's at your exclusion? Hint, it's not to attract you.

I could go on, but eh, AWALT.

beeringbanterer • 19 points • 30 March, 2017 06:28 AM

Yes. I think it's also some psychological trick like, "I know I AM lying and hiding shit, so if I act suspicious towards HIM and talk about trust/honesty it will seem like I really care about these things (therefore he will think I'm trustworthy and deflect suspicion away from me)" As we can see its often the opposite.

[deleted] • 8 points • 30 March, 2017 11:56 AM

as stated this is classic projection but its also classic example of plausible deniability

She didnt flirt! How dare you accuse her highness of misbehavior?

LordThunderbolt • 62 points • 30 March, 2017 01:41 AM

If they accuse you of something it's because they're doing it themselves. She's accusing you of cheating out of nowhere? She cheated or she's about to cheat. She's accusing you of talking to other chicks? She's talking to other guys herself.

Never fall for or dupe yourself into thinking "I trust her". Trust nobody.

Forcetobereckonedwit • 44 points • 30 March, 2017 04:24 AM

Thankfully I was smart to end it once the messages are seen and AWALT surfaces.

TRP <3

bigk12345[] • 37 points • 30 March, 2017 01:34 AM

Exact situation x4.

Funny how women are no longer some mythical, erotic creatures once you see the same pattern over and over again and TRP breaks it down to a science.

MuhTriggersGuise • 32 points • 30 March, 2017 10:57 AM

As a man, aging is awesome. You see women for what they are, they lose complete power over you. Your life comes together a lot more (if you've been working at it), your charisma and charm are off the charts (again, if you've been developing yourself over time), and basically if you don't fuck yourself by getting married or having kids, you're set for the rest of your life being awesome on easy mode. It's great.

Women on the other hand, have a tremendous amount of power when they're young. They can do no wrong in most of society's eyes, and betas are falling over backwards to accommodate them in any way they can. But man, I feel bad for them. Once they hit that wall, their life is practically over, and all they have left is cats, hopefully a good relationship with their children, and the sad ability to milk whatever poor sap married them or knocked them up. What a miserable existence.

I am certainly glad I am a man and had to pay my dues when I was young, and now can reap the benefits; instead of being a woman who is handed their power, yet burn out young and spend the majority of her life reminiscing her hey day, living with no talent and ability, and only being able to impact the world by making other people's lives shittier.

[deleted] • 6 points • 30 March, 2017 01:54 PM

you're set for the rest of your life being awesome on easy mode

Just wanted to say I love this analogy. It's so perfect if you grew up on Nintendo and Sega. Hard Mode was usually just so hard, and playing the game was a chore. It was stressful and time-consuming. You didn't really even want to play. Switching to Easy was a whole new ballgame. It was always enjoyable and you felt like master of your domain. This holds so true with life. Growing up, if you do things right (save money, hold frame with women, give to others, etc.), is like switching from Hard mode in your teens/20s to Easy mode in your 30s/40s. It's a beautiful thing.

Ou-tis • 2 points • 30 March, 2017 05:57 PM

" living with no talent and ability, and only being able to impact the world by making other people's lives shittier" Yes

Forcetobereckonedwit • 10 points • 30 March, 2017 04:21 AM

It's mathematics really. Once you see the pattern everything is obvious.

MuhTriggersGuise • 13 points • 30 March, 2017 11:00 AM

I agree but it's not just mathematics, it's evolution. You can see how the behavior has propagated the species. It's hard to even get mad at them. It's their nature. A man can be with peace with much of his existence if he stops thinking of humans being some altruistic being above animals, and acknowledges they are animals. If you can truly accept that, much more makes sense and you can navigate the world much more easily.

[deleted] • 66 points • 30 March, 2017 12:03 AM

Real talk she have snapchat? Then he saw her naked alot.

In a givin month ill have around ten different chicks sending me nudes , some of them are chicks accrossed the country, one is gay, a few are married. All that I keep in semi regular contact with because why not and I like nude pics.

Snapchat is a cheaters app. And I love it. Don't house wife a whore gents, and they are all whores.

MrAnderzon • 41 points • 30 March, 2017 12:18 AM

I remember reading that was one of the main reasons Snapchat was created. To give someone the illusion nobody is going to find out. Which is totally wrong.

garbagejooce • 24 points • 30 March, 2017 02:56 AM

Remember reading that? That's literally the entire premise. Sexting. I thought that was so blatantly obvious. The only reason the shit's supposed to disappear. At least in the beginning when it was just used by college kids

EmpReb • 10 points • 30 March, 2017 07:25 AM

Yup. People said "but it deletes in five seconds..." and I was just shaking my head thinking they had forgot the damn capture screen feature BUILT INT TO THEIR DAMN PHONES.

PrimeNumber301 • points • 30 March, 2017 07:49 AM [recovered]

But the app shows you if someone screenshotted your snap. I don't know if that's what it was like from the beginning though.

FatStig • points • 30 March, 2017 08:04 AM [recovered]

It wasn't. Even now you can root the phone and save it without her knowing. At least on android. You can also record a video of the screen and it doesn't tell them it is recorded. Without rooting. Even when they send videos. It's impossible to enforce if you have a dev/rooted phone. And shit the NSA and the CIA both record all that shit.

stfarn • 16 points • 30 March, 2017 08:55 AM

Take a photo of the phone with another phone?

the_number_2 • 5 points • 30 March, 2017 05:46 PM

When it first launched, it would only delete images every so often, so batches of images would get stored on your phone with the extension ".NOMEDIA"; all you had to do was change the extension to ".JPG" and BOOM, photo.

LLL3peat • 2 points • 1 April, 2017 06:07 AM

You don't even have to root. Just get a screen recorder app and you are golden. Works like a charm if you really really want it

ITS_JUST_2015_BRO • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 11:38 AM

I had an apprentice, 21 year old, volunteer fireman, a "nice" Chad. We had a lot of time together testing equipment and talking about life. He's hooked up to all this, being young and sexy. He used a snapchat emulator app that saves any pics and doesn't let the other person know and had a whole folder of tits and asses. Those were fun times.

commander_zoidberg • 3 points • 31 March, 2017 03:03 AM

I'm 43, and 100% of the jealous gf's in my life have been jealous because they would do the wrong thing if they were in the situation they're jealous of me being in.

I keep trying to find an exception to this rule, but it's 100%, no exceptions.

Even for us men...if we're jealous of our gf's/plates, it's because we'd do the wrong thing if we were in their shoes. 100%...no exceptions.

Azzmo • 8 points • 30 March, 2017 11:46 AM

I'm an exception to your rule. I autistically adhere to honorable and fair behavior but I've felt plenty of jealousy and mistrust in relationships.

A few years ago I helped a bachelorette party push their suitcase cart to their suite and denied increasingly desperate invitations to come in. They were thirsty and they were almost all hot. Wished them a good night and was on my way because I made a commitment to my girlfriend and I do not make commitments unless I intend to honor them.

Your rule is true 99% of the time though.

Because she was projecting. When a girl has severe trust issues, it means she fears you would do to her what she knows she can do to you. She knows she can, so that's only a small step to actually doing it.

It's sad how women do this once a guy emotionally invests in them. It's really just a game to them when, especially if they wanted a family and kids, they'd realize the toxicity of this behavior. But they don't, that's just how they are.

godmarck • points • 30 March, 2017 01:38 PM [recovered]

[deleted] • 5 points • 2 April, 2017 11:25 PM

Women with daddy issues get off on hurting men. Also, women cannot win in physical violence against men (for the most part) so emotional violence is what they use to indulge that aggressive side.

ioef_afterdark • 75 points • 30 March, 2017 06:06 AM

Very similar story happened to a friend of mine a few years back with his then fiancée. He checked her phone and was enraged to find out she was sending nudes to some guy and texting about him with some of her friends. Instead of confronting her then, my friend played it off for a few days, then he dropped the "We're done" bomb. When she asked why he would only say "You know why", and then he completely ghosted her. Massive drama ensued, with her accusing each of her friends of ratting her out. My friend was buddies with one of his fiancée's friend's husband; after the drama hit the guy eventually divorced her for being such an enabling cunt. The fiancée moved out of town within a few months of the breakup.

EPIC next/ghost technique! 11/10. More proof of this reality being more common than many would like. Engaged? Married? Have several kids? Doesn't factor into their equation.

Goateeki • points • 30 March, 2017 12:31 AM [recovered]

You're going to reach a point where you think you've pushed her away enough and that you've taught her a lesson. Your next thought will be that you can let her back in because you've asserted yourself and she knows who's boss, etc.

DO NOT DO IT. The greatest feeling in life -- I mean it's better even than destroying your enemies -- is to go so cold and silent on a no good woman that she cannot bear the silence, and every second of it is pain to her. Of course, it's just the pain of confronting reality, something most men do every day. You must never let her back in. Never.

So you saw that she wants to fuck some guy in her study group. Sometimes the nicest thing you can do for someone is give them exactly what they want.

APock • 47 points • 30 March, 2017 09:55 AM

I agree that you must never let them back in, but the rest this paragraph has this sort of "revenge porn" feeling wich I know we all like to believe it's true.

But the truth is, woman are biologically programmed to forget you as soon as you step out of the picture, she's not "suffering every second" of her day because you ghosted her, she's too busy being pampered, and fucked, by all her orbiters.

She might think of you with some remorse every now and then, but don't get hang up on this revenge fantasy because you're only lying to yourself.

HobKing • 50 points • 30 March, 2017 01:29 AM

Question about the AWALT theory: If all women are like this, then what's a "no good woman" if not just a woman? Sounds like if you reject all women like this, you might as well turn gay now because you know a priori that you won't ever find one that's different.

If you believe/know all women are the same in that way, how can that characteristic be used as cause for rejection? I feel like it can't, and that TRP is more about accepting that and dealing with it. Finding out that your girl is "like that" can't itself be a valid reason to reject, or you've backed yourself into a corner where you must reject all women before even meeting them.

10J18R1A • 122 points • 30 March, 2017 01:41 AM

You don't necessarily have to reject all of them, as there are various levels. You just have to always be prepared and never be surprised. She's not yours forever, just yours today.

What you'll end up finding in a weird kind of way is that the more you learn about women, the less you'll end up chasing them or sweating them, the more they will chase you and behave themselves. Dread game and the constant need for affirmation are truths.

Doesn't mean you can't have fun. Doesn't mean you can't like a woman. Doesn't mean that women are inherently bad. But if you stay ready you don't have to get ready, red pill knowledge is just the seat belt and defensive driving of relationships .

bigk12345[] • 8 points • 30 March, 2017 05:48 PM

This is so true. Once I found TRP and all the misogynistic shitlords here, the concept of dread, ghosting and nexting was foreign to me.

I started looking back at my relationships to see if any of those applied in previous relationship.

Two come to mind.

First one: Relationship of 4 years, which should have ended because she was needy, no father and I was just scared to lose her. Constantly breaking up and getting back because of hot sex. During one of our fights, I yelled " I don't love you anymore" on top of my lungs. I didn't even realize what I said. Of course, for the next month, she prepared me meals and great sex. Of course, it only lasted a month because she got too secure again, went travelling with slutty ass gfs to cancan for spring break, branch swung to another loser right after. Funniest thing we never had a break up talk. We just stopped talking.

I was supposed to "just get it" that it is over.

Second one: BPD ex. Any girl hitting on me in front of her, or even looking at another girl (I shit you not), would result in fights that "men are pigs". A hot girl would walk by and she would stare at me to see if I looked. Of course, she was an Alpha Widow and got pumped and dumped too many times.

It is funny how girls do self destruct over time. This born again Christian went from self prescribed angel to a cheater, an alpha widow and who had an abortion before me.

During the last week of our relationship, we barely spoke because I was depressed with personal shit and no one to turn to. This was painful to her because her cheating ass could not get closure if I ghosted and her hamster was freaking out.

DubbleFUPAwitCheez • 23 points • 30 March, 2017 04:46 AM

I take awalt as, don't forget all women are capable of that.

asspwner • 3 points • 30 March, 2017 11:37 AM

Yeah. Same here. But what about us men? Are we not also capable of that? Is awalt something that applies just to women?

DubbleFUPAwitCheez • 3 points • 30 March, 2017 02:59 PM

You can see it if you look. An easy example is if a guy can choose between a still attractive 32 year old single mother and a bangin 20 year old he's going with the 20 year old. All dudes are like that. The things men and women are designed to chase are different but they are still the basis of our nature and we will follow it. Heartiste calls it the god of biomechanics

Forcetobereckonedwit • 20 points • 30 March, 2017 04:26 AM

You just learn that that's the way they are going in. Everything has a best-used-by-date, relationships included. Some are worth 40 years, some 20, some months, some weeks, some a few hours.

nonanon111 • 11 points • 30 March, 2017 11:47 AM

Great comment.

Maybe the better model is not that they always behave that way, but that all of them are capable of behaving that way - and that no action on your part will allow you to predict or prevent it.

Like a wild animal that is sometimes manageable and cooperative, but that at other times goes berzerk for no reason and mauls its trainer to death.

Men are conditioned into the fantasy that male behaviour codes also apply to women: respect and honour will encourage loyalty, being true to one's word is universally preferred, debts should be repaid, fair fighting, etc. The modern western woman may follow those codes sometimes, but they are all capable of ignoring them or acting in the opposite way and nobody can ever predict when - and no amount of love, sacrifice or provision for her will guard against it. Future incentives (money, fame) can shift the odds, but it's no guarantee, and past incentives are meaningless.

LordThunderbolt • 5 points • 30 March, 2017 01:57 AM*

You don't have to be in a relationship to fuck someone. You can fuck and hangout but never forget that she'll never be "yours". So enjoy the decline and live your life.

SnickeringBear • 5 points • 30 March, 2017 06:15 AM

All Women Are Like That It Varies Only In Degree - Awaltivoid

I can make a good argument that some women are not like that, but they have flaws that prevent consideration for a serious relationship.

Don't arbitrarily reject. Consider carefully what you are getting from a relationship and if you reach a point where you are putting in more than you receive, it is time to re-evaluate and perhaps exit stage left.

You will run into a range of types such as Serial Support Sally who gets married and divorced several times over the years as she searches for someone to pay her bills. She is usually attractive physically but is not a good companion.

Then there is the classic "have my cake and eat it too" who wants a man or three to keep her interested and have fun with.

Of course, there is always a black widow or two who are looking for a way to trap a man into becoming her personal ATM. The typical method is to get pregnant while supposedly using birth control. Advanced technique is to pick a rich beta and make him emotionally dependent and therefore a non-ending source of wealth.

The best advice is to live deliberately meaning to bring into your life what you choose and exclude what you don't. Avoid putting yourself in a position where anyone can take away your hard earned lifestyle.

Nergaal • 2 points • 30 March, 2017 11:14 AM

You have to accept AWALT like you accept the fact that you irrationally like pussy. It is irrelevant if you think it is a good thing. It is how the world revolves.

Ou-tis • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 06:21 PM

10J18R1A is right. AWALT is real, but we live in a society, not in the wild nature and we have rules to maintain it. Men have too some instinct bad for society, like killing a man and impregnate his woman. But we don't tolerate it anymore. So for women, they can act by behaviors considered good. But good for what? Maybe a girl is good just for bang few times, maybe another is good to give birth to your sons. You have to judge them, and don't be afraid of doing it.

beeringbanterer • 53 points • 29 March, 2017 11:31 PM

Sorry to hear it, but great that you took it like a man and didn't let her emotionally manipulate you into staying with her. That said, there are so many avenues of communication these days with smartphones. Facebook, Insta, Snapchat, Tinder, Dating Apps, Skype...closed and private groups as well...Tell me a decent looking modern chick who doesn't have a bunch of men available at the press of a finger on her smartphone.

Damn 3 years sunk in. AWALT is absurdly true I guess

MuhTriggersGuise • 37 points • 30 March, 2017 11:07 AM

Eh don't make a sunk cost fallacy. It was three years of a good relationship (at the time) where OP got sex and fun and hopefully some good food. He was aware of redpill theory and kept it in the back of his mind, and now that he's facing AWALT he's able to handle it with composure instead of melting down or ruining his own life. It wasn't time wasted, it's just time to move on now that she's ruined their dynamic. Oh well, plenty of women out there.

RPStone • 9 points • 30 March, 2017 01:24 PM

All women are temporary, time is never wasted.

[deleted] • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 04:43 PM

Exactly, OP did good so far, but I think the next level is to be able to break it off but keep her as a plate/fuck-buddy.

To promote someone to full LTR right off the bat is the key problem, women need to be trained otherwise the barrier to cheating is so low that it will only ever be a temporary thing.

thewrightstuff88 • 2 points • 30 March, 2017 11:47 AM

There is no such thing as relationship equity. You may value the time and effort you put in but she will never care when shit hits the fan. At that point it's too late anyways.

Auvergnat • 44 points • 29 March, 2017 11:28 PM

I posted something not too long ago about whether AWALT is true in ALL cases as I'd presumed my girlfriend was "the one".

THIS is what AWALT truly means. The emphasis is not about what exactly is "that" which they all are, but they fact that they all follow the female pattern. It's just a way to say that no, your girlfriend is no exception.

NeoreactionSafe • 56 points • 29 March, 2017 11:54 PM

I found a group message with her and her friends, with her talking about how she wants to fuck this guy in her study group

AWALT means the desire to do this type of thing is always there.

Does he do it?

...that depends on the situation.

If it was the 1800's and Marriage 1.0 probably not.

Today... the Cock Carousel™ calls them all... it's on television after all.

[deleted] • 28 points • 30 March, 2017 12:09 AM

If she has snapchat, look at her Snapchat history and see if she sends PM's and pictures she how long of a string of messages she has with some one.

If you don't have the app of you "snap" back and forth with a girl it adds a tally to the number of days of consecutive conversation you have.... but other then that and who sent the last message you can't look at any of the content.... aka a cheaters wet dream for full proof sex contact with strangers and you not being able to see.

Whats the cat string theory?

10J18R1A • 45 points • 30 March, 2017 10:28 AM

So if you hold a piece of string just out of reach of a cat, like dangle it over them, the cat will break its back trying to get to it.

If you lay that piece of string down, however, the cat is no longer interested.

So it is with women. The moment she knows she has you, she doesn't want you.

ellenpaoisanazi • 3 points • 30 March, 2017 02:28 PM

Its worth noting that every bitch has guys in her pink phone that she wants to fuck and has kept waiting in reserve (in case you get eaten by a dinosaur)

The real issue here was your faulty expectations that she could be trusted and was special and different and blah blah blah

Now, Im not suggesting you swear off evil women. Or relationships if that's your thing.

Just start living a life where other women talk about wanting to fuck you and whatever women you are involved with knows she is with a man who has boundaries and will enforce them by walking away and whistling dixie

TLDR... Don't sweat a woman cheating. Just be your woman's best alternative and always be willing to leave and everything will turn out ok

maybeee a year or two

That is what the young men may not realize. They can put up a facade for years. Long enough for you to think NAWALT and put a ring on her. But once that facade drops, you're fucked.

murvish45 • 14 points • 30 March, 2017 11:37 AM

Yeah I've been in an LTR for 2.5 years. Have yet to argue or fight, and she acts like a unicorn. But im not letting myself get lazy.

The reason she's like this is because my game is tight not cause shes "different" or a "good girl"

PizzaFaceGuy • 6 points • 30 March, 2017 02:24 PM

Can you go into detail about your game. I want to have a relationship like that one day.

I'm interested too in the details of your game with your LTR

MuhTriggersGuise • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 12:12 PM

Yeah I've been in a similar boat. She acts like a unicorn because you keep a tight game and don't get lazy. Keep it up, and she will too. Drop the ball (by choice or circumstance), and I wouldn't gamble on her being there for the long haul.

DysfunctionalBrother • 13 points • 30 March, 2017 10:21 AM

Girls have so many options nowadays since the so called "sexual revolution" that it's hard for them to stay committed. They don't have to have as much self control as our grandparents did and won't be shamed by society for sleeping around, instead the person who shames gets shamed. "How dare you shame someone to dissuade them from developing a reputation that will make them not marriage or relationship material".

Classic example of "have your cake and eat it"

Not saying this is you OP, but also the difficulty is that most guys are boys, not men, and women want men, so if there is a guy who is perceived as being more alpha or dominant then women will cheat or think about cheating on their boyfriend with him (some may even leave their boyfriend first, but only so they can fuck the alpha and then come back if the fucking doesn't develop into a LTR), it's just female nature.

Anyway big up OP.

Let this be a lesson out there for all the guys who think they're hot shit and have found a unicorn. Reality check: You haven't and they don't exist. When we say AWALT we literally mean AWALT; your mom, your sister, your grandma, your gf, it all applies to them too. You're not special and you damn sure don't have the perfect that detector. Just because she's your girl it doesn't mean she's not up to trifling.

Shaman6624 • 2 points • 3 April, 2017 10:19 PM

I don't even know what a unicorn would be.. A girl who keeps loving you and stays attracted to you even if you become a slob, also who isn't attracted to other men? Is that what they mean by unicorn?

LordThunderbolt • 2 points • 4 April, 2017 12:00 AM

A mythical creature of great beauty. Many legends speak of it, but no actual proof of its existence has ever been found.

[deleted] • 11 points • 30 March, 2017 02:22 AM

It is a sad but true fact. There is nothing nice about knowing the truth, but it is better than being deceived and broken. There are no exceptions to AWALT, a woman may be loyal temporarily, but only if you are her best option. Read the Manipulated Man, it will open your eyes even further.

MattyAnon • 9 points • 30 March, 2017 02:00 PM*

We've been together for 3 years so ...

This is about the maximum time you can maintain somewhat exclusive sexual interest from a woman.

After that they assume you're a beta, go off sex, and push for marriage.

This whole "trust" thing is garbage. Men entering into a LTR are making a huge investment in time, resources, opportunity cost and risk. We should not be expected to do this on a trust basis. Women do not have to trust men

- they get all their rights and insurances enshrined in law (alimony, child support, instant victim status on a whim) and only engage with men on a negligible risk basis (ie we have to prove everything to their satisfaction prior to any form of sex or commitment).

Yet women insist on being trusted... why? Because this gives them maximum opportunity to branch swing but keep their options open to maintain our support.

TL;DR trust is a beta characteristic and means "I give you the option to secretly betray me".

I recently wrote a post called "TRP - Lessons In Economics". You pretty much just summed up the entire post in this comment. They are maximizing their economic value. The most fucked up thing in this world is that men are being told to do the opposite. Society is blatantly telling men to not maximize their value. In economics, that's a fucking sin. They call it inefficiency.

How did she try and justify it? I know there's always the typical justifications people come up with - but I'm just curious how she struggled with it?

[deleted] • 18 points • 30 March, 2017 06:35 AM

Well the message exactly that she sent her friends was a link to a Twitter post that was about sexting which read "fuck me in the school hallway. Fuck me when I'm drunk. Fuck me before bed.." etc. Just shit like that, along with a message afterward which read "@(his name) to me plz, all of the above."

Upon seeing this I had initially assumed it was her telling her friends she wants said guy to do that shit to her. She tried to explain to me that she meant the guy has been saying those things to her and she was telling her friends about it, and that she didn't want to tell me he was requesting they fuck frequently because "she isn't into him" and "she can handle herself".

Frankly, I took this as a last minute made up bullshit to explain her telling her friends how she wants to bang her group mate.

At this point though, I don't give a fuck who she bangs. I'm going to try and just move on with shit. Maybe I'll get back into playing violin.

[deleted] • 14 points • 30 March, 2017 07:12 AM

As I said in my previous post, I've always had very Redpill ideals before even discovering TRP.

I do admit that I am feeling emotionally quite lonely now, but I wager that the primary cause of that is simply the detachment from normalcy. Being in a relationship you are constantly in communications with somebody else, and it is just odd to be completely detached at the moment.

Interestingly my friends have all noted today that I am terribly calm about the whole ordeal.. they think I'm trying to "look manly" and that "it's cool if I'm sad" but honestly, although I am certainly sad to a degree, I see no reason to wallow in it.

<http://www.dailymail.co.uk/femail/article-2769593/HALF-women-fall-partner-standby-fancied-case-current-relationship-turns-sour.html>

Half of all women have a backup man in case the main relationship fails.

Add in all the women who cheat because they want their kids to have genetic diversity (four kids from four Chad's provides more genetic diversity than four kids from one Chad) and Yeah, a lot of women are going to fuck around.

3years, your a better man then me, christ, 3 years. NEVER ever done that, Good stuff just walking away, Dont invest so much time in these fun emotional creatures, they are dopamine dumps (enjoy the game and the field) but more importantly focus on yourself, your passion, hobby etc the women will come, thats the easy part.

but needless to say I said "we're done" and walked out right there. She's been trying to call me and knock on my door and shit, but I'm just keeping up no contact.

This right here is so So SO critical for redpill men who come to the pill from either ambushed realization or sensing something isn't quite "right in the force." Having vested yourself in an LTR of any significant time period, it is very difficult to completely cut ALL strings and ALL ties with a subversive harlot and allow them to play you. BUT YOU MUST DO THAT!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

let her make it up to you with the craziest kinky sex ever. then bounce when you get bored. that's what i always do X'D. On another note, you know how men fuck around and talk about wanting to bang some hot chick. Women are the same way, they just hide it better. Also it's easier for them to actually act on it without investing a lot of time, so it's harder to catch them. But no worries man, learn to love yourself and live for yourself. And dont stress it.

cashmoney_x • 2 points • 30 March, 2017 01:13 PM

Humans aren't monogamous and this is why relationships are fucking stupid. If you can't be with someone who wants to fuck someone else you can't be with anybody.

bottlesandcutlery • 2 points • 10 April, 2017 09:26 AM

So you've dumped a loyal girlfriend of three years because she joked about fucking another guy with her friends. Have you never fantasied about fucking another woman and joked about it with your male friends? You have a woman who still wants you back after you invaded her privacy by reading her messages. Imagine how you would feel if your ex did that to you. I really hope for her sake you don't take her back.

Well done.

However not confronting her would have been even better. It breaks your frame. Just break-up with some bullshit excuse. Confronting her and all the drama just helps her for closure plus will make her more careful in the future.

belsnickel222 • 2 points • 30 March, 2017 01:09 PM

Let's have a little alternate thought point here. You've never texted your buddies saying you'd like to fuck someone else? You probably no intentions of acting upon it can you honestly say you've never done that?

deville05 • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 08:08 AM

Hmm.. Just to be the devil's advocate.. should private conversations between her and her friends be something you should be privy of? I mean the only reason we can spy now is because this technology exists. You can't wipe thoughts away. I'm sure you talk about fucking other women with your buddies.

Also it is also true that many women are oblivious to what flirting is. They don't learn it like we do.

Nevertheless your happiness matters and if you feel you can't trust someone then it's your call.

[deleted] • 8 points • 30 March, 2017 08:21 AM

Surely her wanting to bang her group mate wouldn't be enough alone to make me want to break it off alone. There have been other things leading me to this decision.

In any case, about whether or not reading your SO's messages is moral: I don't really care. After this I don't plan on getting into another relationship for quite some time, so I see no reason why an issue like this would bother me again.

muh_posts • 5 points • 30 March, 2017 12:42 PM

You don't see the difference?

When you look at a hot girl, maybe even a new colleague and joke about her to your friends, it's different from a moderately attractive woman who has the power to absolutely make things happen on a timescale she chooses.

Also, men and women are different. Men have an inherent lust for strange. Women, when they get that lust while in a relationship, are just looking for a branch they can swing to because they're read to jump, just looking for an opportunity.

deville05 • 1 point • 31 March, 2017 04:51 AM

I disagree on the second part. Modern society now brainwashes women into lusting..like its natural and okay to do and there is nothing to it. I think modern sexual programming confuses the fuck out of both men and women especially if you aren't aware of the pill

MTG_Leviathan • 3 points • 30 March, 2017 10:02 AM

Bit of a difference between some banter between your mates, and actively flirting and hanging out with someone when you're with someone, if OP confronted her about the study group and she said no, then she broke a boundary and you should either exit stage left or dread game. Obviously doing this for every man in her life is silly, but for men who openly flirt with her (And thus actively trying to cuck you.) they are only a threat if you let them be.

Op shoulda put his foot down and walk if she didn't bite, not wait for months, even catching her alone with this guy on webcam with her hiding it and listening to BS excuses as he admits in his other posts.

TIDR: OP has been beta-ing the fuck for months, admits it in other posts, finally wises up and leaves, which is better late than never.

deville05 • 1 point • 31 March, 2017 04:55 AM

On one hand I agree. On the other.. Women every guy try to flirt? Your relationship isn't his problem. From. A pro to a beginner, every man who is aware is gonna try to flirt. How do you expect to avoid that or women to avoid that? OK maybe killing the flirty vibe by not reciprocating flirty talk is a way..

MTG_Leviathan • 1 point • 31 March, 2017 01:52 PM

Not every guy who tries to flirt as long as they set clear boundaries and tell them to fuck off if they're persistent. It's not about avoiding it, it's about not encouraging it when you have a boyfriend.

Lsegundo • 2 points • 30 March, 2017 06:40 PM

[deleted] • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 06:17 PM

Did she say she was trying to fuck him or that he was really haawwt? This clarification is very important. What did you consider "flirting?"

I'm not trying to knock you, just trying to understand the full picture.

I see a lot of people jumping the gun here. Would you think you deserved to be broken up with simply because in a male only group chat you said this chick in your study group is smoking hot? Nah. Now if you were detailing how you were trying to get with her, than yeah. So details matter here.

Just because your dating a chick does that make all good looking dudes invisible.

textualintercourse • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 07:37 PM

I [39M] have my GF (25F) of 1.5 years and I'm having a blast, but an under zero illisions that as soon as she doesn't "feel" how we used to be that she'll bail in a NY minute.

ozaku7 • 1 point • 31 March, 2017 01:47 AM

AWALT, yes and yes, but I do the same with my friends. We talk about who we would bang, we also write with chicks, but not necessarily that I really want them in my bed. It's just a fantasyfuck and that's that. In some cases I would tease my girlfriend by telling her that I would fuck some colleageu of mine.

In other words, good luck finding a woman that doesn't do this crap. You are expecting a woman to be only sexual towards you and find noone else on earth attractive.

DarkRenaissance • 1 point • 31 March, 2017 03:01 AM

Temptationn • 1 point • 31 March, 2017 06:11 AM

This right here is why I'm the female in that scenario. Even in LTR's never settle for 1 pussy. I still act like I'm single, got a few plates, still go to clubs, etc. It really helps and if a situation like this ever happens all you gotta do is leave and text one of the girls on standby. Yes it's immoral but if they're always playing the game you mine aswell beat them to it. Best of luck, though sounds like you're on the right track. Been in that situation before which lead me to be like this.

Kinote_42 • 1 point • 31 March, 2017 02:19 PM

Kind of bullshit, or lacking context. Men say this stuff all the time ("Man, I'd bang her" etc.). This is most likely no different. But as I said, I might be missing some more context.

[deleted] • 11 points • 30 March, 2017 07:28 AM

Well the guy she was talking about wanting to bang has flirted with her before, and we had an ordeal recently about how in spite of this she continues to study in a study group with him. I wouldn't give a shit if she wanted to bang some random dude in her class. But I would definitely be concerned if said guy she frequently studied with, and whom I have caught flirting with her before.

Some other things too, but I don't see the need to get into it.

IV-IVm-I • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 09:55 AM

[deleted] • 2 points • 30 March, 2017 03:38 PM*

If she talks so openly about it, she has no respect for OP anymore. When girl lose respect for her bf, she'll branchswing or fuck another guy sooner or later.

If I'm in LTR I would just say that "she's cute" and not how I would bang the shit out of her infront of my friends.

bobbytrp • points • 30 March, 2017 04:04 AM [recovered]

I'll probably get down voted hard for saying this, but from what you've described she actually didn't fuck you over that badly. There are far more brutal ways to discover AWALT.

Should you break up with her? Yeah probably, but you don't have to be a total dick to her. Immediately and permanently ghosting someone that has loved you and been in your life for years is a pretty harsh form of mental abuse. The total no contact route is better served for less serious relationships.

AWALT doesn't mean men should be dicks too. Rise above and be the better man. Tell her why you're not coming back and be firm. If she has been a big part of your life it would be better to end it being more positive and moving forward. Ending it by intentionally causing pain may be justifiable, but it won't make anyone better off in the long run

Dofis • 29 points • 30 March, 2017 05:24 AM

Not trying to start a debate here, but I'm genuinely curious; why does a woman clearly setting up a money branch to swing to deserve any better than what OP did? By what we can read from his story, he didn't set off some huge argument, he didn't drag her name through the mud. He just said, hey, I saw what you were doing, sorry, it's over. She was about to jump right into the CC on his watch if she hadn't been already, why does she deserve any better than no contact?

Hell, it's even better that he didn't, no chance of getting manipulated back into a relationship on the promise that she'll change.

Guess I just want a clarification here. I was in a very similar situation to OP's, 2yr LTR, things going fine, then bam, "hand me my phone baby" turned into me seeing a notification from her co-worker asking for another pic. Took her back, and 2 months and a trip to Disney land later, I found panties and used condoms on the floor of her room. OP here is simply protecting himself from making the same dumbass mistake that I did: not even giving her a chance to slip back in. His pill swallowing moment, wish I would have sooner.

bobbytrp • points • 30 March, 2017 04:10 PM [recovered]

Yeah I guess you're right. She was probably about to start cheating on him if she wasn't already. No contact is fine as long as you provide an explanation in ending a long relationship. I was more arguing against ghosting without telling her why.

I've talked to girls about the concept of ghosting and it can really mess them up. I feel like after sharing something real with a woman you could at least follow up with her as you end it so you don't destroy her trust and ability to function in a future relationship. Completely ghosting someone hurts more than people realize around here and I think it is a concept that is taken too casually.

Lsegundo • 2 points • 30 March, 2017 06:52 PM

Boo fucking hoo. These hos need to learn how to act properly. OP said she was flirting with the same guy in the past she said she wanted to fuck.

Ghosting to me isn't about hurting her. Its about protecting yourself when she starts trying so spin things and get you to take her back.

AwakeningLion • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 07:28 PM

You're still oozing litres of blue-pill from your pores... What you're essentially saying here is that women are allowed to hurt men – do we need to remind you who fucked who here? – yet men need to cushion their response to said fuckery. In other words, women are less accountable to their actions than we are, which is exactly the agenda that our gynocentric society is pushing. The pussy is on the pedestal.

She knows she fucked up. She knows why he's ghosting her. What else does she need? Flowers and an apology for looking out for oneself and refusing to be fucked over again?

[deleted] • 16 points • 30 March, 2017 06:22 AM

The thing is is that we had somewhat of an argument less than a month ago about this dude and her, where I was relatively triggered due to him telling her to do sexual things to him, and her being very passive in response rather than telling him to fuckoff. She would reply like "um... What" and things of the like, whilst continuing to converse with him.

About 2 months ago she had been webcamming me when another one of her study group mates had suddenly put his hands on her shoulders (not knowing that she was webcamming) and she immediately closed her laptop. This ordeal I had eventually gotten over too, as she rationalized that this particular group mate was just very touchy and she didn't think I'd be happy with it so it was instinct to try to hide it.

The combination of these recent happenings are the cause of my walking out. One could say that it was the straw that broke the camels back. Sure, I have no solid evidence of her actually cheating on me, but frankly at this point it seems like I would be foolish to trust her. I did explain to her these reasons as to why I do not trust her, and thus why I no longer desire a relationship with her, but she still keeps coming over. I'll be leaving back to school in a few days though, so I should be on the fast track to forgetting about her soon, hopefully.

Arnoux • 17 points • 30 March, 2017 07:16 AM one of her study group mates had suddenly put his hands on her shoulders (not knowing that she was webcamming) and she immediately closed her laptop

That is bigger red flag, than what you have mentioned in the post.

MTG_Leviathan • -4 points • 30 March, 2017 09:56 AM

Turns out OP is a cuck after all.

Askada • 14 points • 30 March, 2017 10:55 AM

OP is most likely just a human, not a robot. And swallowing red pill is never instant. I'm quite positive that a lot of guys around here have had mixed feeling about girl from their, lets call it, in-between phase.

MTG_Leviathan • 1 point • 31 March, 2017 02:39 PM

That is a fair assumption, but be open and frank about it to learn from it in a place like this.

Lsegundo • 2 points • 30 March, 2017 06:58 PM

She would reply like "um... What" and things of the like, whilst continuing to converse with him.

This is an absolute fucking deal breaker. It's sad that modern women have no idea how to behave and beta losers let themselves get disrespected.

ne of her study group mates had suddenly put his hands on her shoulders (not knowing that she was webcamming) and she immediately closed her laptop.... Sure, I have no solid evidence of her actually cheating on me...

You do not need absolute proof. Don't buy into the modern BP garbage. A woman in an LTR used to know how to set appropriate boundaries.

I doubt that was the first time the guy put his hands on her shoulders.

zephyrprime • 1 point • 30 March, 2017 06:16 PM

You over reacted. There are always going to be men that she want's to fuck. Aren't there any women you want to fuck? There are dozens of women I want to fuck right now.

Assert your rules. Don't let her flirt with some guy. If she does, drop her. But just talking with her friends about some guy without actually fucking him is a crime that hasn't happened yet.

[deleted] • 0 points • 30 March, 2017 12:53 PM

Yoo... so she told her friends she wanted to bang some dude, and you dumped her for it?

... How many times have you told your friends you wanted to sleep with some woman who you didn't end up sleeping with?

Even when I've decided to be in monogamous relationships for a period of time, I'm always desire-impulsed towards women I want to fuck. Lots of times, I talk to my friends about them, in lieu of actually bending them over.

Was there intent behind her messages or did you just throw away your woman because you're scared of her sexuality?

nilco • -2 points • 30 March, 2017 12:18 PM

Honestly brah, and this is out of place for this sub but dont prematurley dump a girl. She said that in a private conversation, not that private matters to me, but it was spoken to her friends and not the guy in question.

Put your foot down and say that shit like that is not ok. If she keeps it up, kick her out. But a thought expressed verbally or in text shouldent be the reason you throw 3 years away. AWALT is true, but ride the wave til it happens.

[deleted] • 7 points • 30 March, 2017 03:26 PM*

Disagree. OP should be happy it's "only" 3 years. You could live all your life with this whore who would fuck others on regular basis and you'd never know it. And I've seen tons of men who have no fucking idea what their unicorn gf is doing behind their back. Fuck, I was even one of them. And later, the more women you meet , the clearer you see more of the same shit over and over again.

Women are masters in covering their cheating adventures. If she talks so openly to her friends about fucking some other dude, she would do it sooner or later or she probably has already done it.

Have some self-respect, spin plates and don't go into a relationship until you master the game and your life.
Just my opinion.

AwakeningLion • 2 points • 30 March, 2017 07:37 PM

Oh yes, let's inverse cause and effect: man looks through woman's shit, therefore woman cheats! It's not that the man caught her cheating, no, of course not, the woman wouldn't have cheated in the first place had he not discovered her cheating!

These days people give away more of their privacy to various corporations than they realize. Given that, snooping is not a big deal to me. If these convos were on some social media messenger, they are stored on some server who knows where and someone gets a free reign to use those convos in whatever way they please. And you are assumed to know that and agreed to it, since you accepted the EULA.

LMAO.

You obviously have no idea what RP is.

Him learning his gf actually desires other guys brings him CLOSER to RP, not further from it.

"Invading privacy" is irrelevant, when privacy is merely an illusion. We in RP don't cultivate illusions, otherwise it wouldn't be RP. And yeah, I'm suuuuuure she would disclose all that on her own... It may be debatable if he actually went through her things and read a diary or sth, but online? Meh.

What he did wrong is actually confronting her. There is nothing whatsoever to gain from it, when you made a decision. Hard next and move on, cultivating your abundance mentality. Once he gets enough of abundance mentality, he won't even bother snooping, he will figure things out on his own. And she doesn't even need to know why you're moving on - again, decision has been made and she's put before a fait accompli.
