

Holy Fuck men, always protect yourself

June 18, 2017 | 1186 upvotes | by [\[deleted\]](#)

Just had a nightmare of a hookup.

Things were going great, brought this tiner girl back to my place, had some drinks, watched some netflix, the usual. Girl ends up giving me some head, and I bust a fat nut. Immediately, shit goes south. After the post nut high my horny goggles came off and realized I had no physical attraction to this girl. From there, we chilled for a bit, and I eventually told her I wasn't going to fuck her, and she had a complete meltdown, threatening to accuse me of rape unless I fucked her right then (The god damn irony).

Immediately, I walked out of the room, grabbed my phone and tossed that baby on voice record. From there, I continued to talk with her from a distance, making sure to get her voice admitting her entire plan, and only once disclosing that I recorded her did I manage to get her to leave.

Honestly I'm super shook up right now, I think I handled the situation correctly, but I felt like I had to get this out here. I'm honestly thinking about investing in a hidden cam of some sort for any future hookups. Stay safe men.

Always protect yourself.

She. Knows. Where. You. Live.

I live in an apartment with pretty good security and am moving out of town in the next month or so, but yea I'm scared as hell right now

RedDeadlift • 449 points • 18 June, 2017 05:50 AM

What kind of crazy backwards society do we live in where our biggest fear is a tiny girl going psycho. Falsely accusing us of something We didn't do and destroying our lives with zero repercussions when caught lying.

So crazy. Stay safe indeed.

Edit: thanks for the warning by the way, always good to be reminded to protect yourself.

no one fears tiny girls. we fear the state and her ability to wield it.

41ph4 • 113 points • 18 June, 2017 09:51 AM

No you fear the thugs of the state. That girl is as helpless and hopeless as ever. But the cops, those fuckers will hurt you for her sake.

tuzki • 58 points • 18 June, 2017 03:56 PM

I think really, this is the key bit.

The cops and politicians will fuck over a regular joe because they're white-knighting so hard just to get ahead. Look at this

PEPEdamus • 12 points • 18 June, 2017 07:24 PM

She's not exactly helpless if the state bows down to her whims and carries out her vengeance fantasy for her.

41ph4 • 13 points • 18 June, 2017 07:35 PM

she is if guys stop doing her whims. Thats my point. Its not women who are the problem, its the men giving women permission to be the way they are.

PEPEdamus • 7 points • 18 June, 2017 07:45 PM

Women voters lead to this policy passing. Women voters lead to this idea being brought up in the first place.

This is not a chicken or the egg thing.

The woman wields the power here. Blaming the men who do their bidding is not going to fix the root cause.

wiseclockcounter • 1 point • 20 June, 2017 12:39 AM

You're mistaking the State's motivation. They don't want to help women, they want to co-opt women's interests to expand their power and control over people.

women (not all, but a large percent and it's a huge denominator) are effectively unionized. the larger the group, the more force they can exert on markets and elections.

ColdIceZero • 37 points • 18 June, 2017 11:25 AM*

The kind of society that won't last long

I could never understand doomsday thinking like this, saying that under the current conditions, "society won't last long." What does that mean?

How does this play out? The end of commerce? People will inevitably stop purchasing goods and services?

Are we talking about the end of government, where society suddenly falls apart into some sort of Mad Max style dystopia as a result of women behaving exactly as they have since at least the beginning of recorded history?

Thinking along these lines, saying "society won't last long," is the same bullshit fantasy that people have been harboring for thousands of years; yet after all this time, every morning, people still wake up, find work, gather resources, and try to smash their genitals together. That shit hasn't changed since the beginning of time, and it's not going to change because we presently live in an era that sometimes (and mind you, it is sometimes, not all times) temporarily affords more credence to false rape accusations than they deserve.

We are facing real, discernible problems; and we need to focus on practical solutions to address those problems. The situation OP described is a serious problem, and saying the sky is falling is not a productive contribution to the conversation.

tyrryt • 9 points • 19 June, 2017 01:11 AM

The US, Russia, China, Brazil, Nigeria - all of them have tremendous resources, large populations, access to trade, etc. But one has enjoyed far greater levels of innovation, wealth, quality of life, education, etc. Why? What is the difference?

Political and justice systems matter, and fucking with them has consequences.

obama_loves_nsa • 35 points • 18 June, 2017 11:33 AM

No you are wrong. In less than one generation this will not be a sustainable society. Class and sex warfare will push us into a tribal society where the federal government will lose its grip on the people. Look at countries beginning to fall apart in Europe both literally (Ukraine / Brexit) and figuratively (France and Sweden) who will fall next. The problem of Islam being one of the biggest time bombs because of our shitty feminist societies letting them in... France will be an Islamic nation with nuclear weapons in less than 15 years. How does that make you feel?

ColdIceZero • 6 points • 18 June, 2017 11:45 AM*

That sounds like the same Chicken Little, "the sky is falling" rhetoric that has been popular since Antiquity. Supposedly, society has been in a perpetual state of collapse since Ancient Greece, and every generation is worse than the one that came before it.

Assuming you're absolutely right, that the world is going to come to an end on October 22, 1844 or whatever day you choose, what are you advocating? What's your solution? What are you proposing we do about it?

If you don't have a solution to an identifiable problem, then all you're doing is making noise.

segagaga • 56 points • 18 June, 2017 12:05 PM*

Uh except Ancient Hellenistic Greece did collapse, it was invaded on three sides. The rich sat squabbling in their palaces', concerned with fighting one another, while the poor died defending what little they had.

ColdIceZero • 12 points • 18 June, 2017 12:22 PM

Ok, that's a fair point. I concede that many governments throughout history have collapsed for economic reasons.

The point I was making was in relation to the following comment chain:

What kind of crazy backwards society do we live in where our biggest fear is a tiny girl going psycho. Falsely accusing us of something We didn't do and destroying our lives with zero repercussions when caught lying.

The kind of society that won't last long.

This wasn't a discussion about financial disparity between social classes, followed by analyzing its potential long term economic effects. It was a conversation that said "we're on the edge of social collapse (a scenario that is still undefined) as a result of believing girls who make false rape accusations and don't punish those girls accordingly." That's the hyperbole I was addressing.

BluepillProfessor • 21 points • 18 June, 2017 04:57 PM

The false rape allegations along with the total power women have over their husbands has caused men stop marrying and having kids.

That is the very definition of social collapse.

So yes, false rape allegations and women's power to say anything and destroy whatever they want, and rule over their husbands are all factors in "social collapse."

segagaga • 36 points • 18 June, 2017 12:51 PM

A great many wise and advanced civilizations have fallen to younger, more vigorous, less civilized, less enlightened, less scrupulous races and states. Its not strictly about economics. It is exactly the "enlightened" beliefs and sense of their superiority that is our undoing. Those people with the absolute 100% belief that multicultural relativistic unity government is perfect and has no flaws. Except for the most obvious one, that it is entirely ineffective against those who do not share those beliefs and are willing to exploit those that do.

"Those without swords can still die upon them."

BOSpecial • -2 points • 18 June, 2017 09:01 PM

You don't know what you are talking about. You sound like you heard this on some YT channel or some 2nd amendment website. Greek city-states collapsed in a single pitched battle that they were unlucky they had to fight, facing 2 of the most brilliant generals of their time.

This subreddit has been falling in quality for a while now....and I see it is continuing on that path

segagaga • 0 points • 18 June, 2017 09:21 PM

I am talking about the Diadochi and the post-Alexander Hellenistic period and subsequent collapse and defeat to the Roman, Parthian and Kushan Empires. You are talking about one battle, which appears to be the only one your mind can encompass.

BluepillProfessor • 11 points • 18 June, 2017 04:55 PM

One solution is MGTOW. If enough quality men walk away from all associations with women they will have to pass laws to force men to enslave themselves to women- or they will have to change their behavior.

Roaring40sUK • 3 points • 19 June, 2017 08:45 AM

Or kidnap men and force them into marriage like they do in India..

dr_warlock • 1 point • 20 June, 2017 04:18 PM*

Confirmed.

https://en.m.wikipedia.org/wiki/Groom_kidnapping

But this only occurs because of the history and cultural practice of dowry (only the countries around India). Western nations got rid of most marital practices, including the dowry. Now we have 'wedding gifts' and 'baby showrd' which are often functionally useless and only a symbolic gesture.

ex_addict_bro • 2 points • 19 June, 2017 02:16 PM

Nice straw man but societal decline and the world ending are two very different things.

Wanting to prevent and pointing out the decline of a society that you're a part of isn't akin to screaming "the sky is falling" in the town square.

I'm not arguing the validity of his/her argument, I'm just pointing out that neither are you.

ColdIceZero • 6 points • 18 June, 2017 12:28 PM

The guy I responded to literally said society is going to end (technically, he said society wasn't going to last. Semantically the same point). How is my argument not a representation of society ending? More importantly, how is asking for a solution to whatever problem they've identified not crucial to the conversation?

I've met an American who's lives in france working for Michelin, he's been there for about 20 years and he can tell you that Islam is slowly taking over. If nothing is done Sharia law WILL proceed. By comparing this to chicken little, you're just adding yourself to the list of people who think they are invincible, and that they will never have to worry about being executed for not having a certain belief. If all citizens are armed, than there really isn't anything to worry about.

But that's the problem. Progressives and the like (i.e. The current younger generation) in European countries think that guns cause violence and should be banned (Take the UK for example). So when the islamic state decides to take over it will look like the level out of MW2 "No Russian".

Edit: disclaimer I'm just a 19 year old college student

ColdIceZero • 22 points • 18 June, 2017 04:44 PM*

I'm going to use this as a teaching opportunity because a lot of people and politicians do what has just occurred in this comment chain to get people on their side of an argument, and I'm telling you this as a lawyer in his 30's. Go ahead and check my post history.

I'm not going to argue whether Sharia law is taking over in France or whatever else has been claimed; I'm going to teach you about how to tell when someone is full of shit (or crazy) in an argument by pointing out what was said in this comment chain.

As a college student, imagine you're sitting in History, and the class is talking about Neil Armstrong landing on the moon in 1969. Then, in the middle of a class discussion, some kid raises his hand and says "hamburgers taste great because of the moon landing in 1969." Hamburgers tasting great have nothing to do with the moon landing, Neil Armstrong, or anything else to do with what everyone else is discussing.

So you indulge this kid and ask, "wtf do hamburgers tasting great have to do with the moon landing?" You're trying to see the connection between hamburgers and the moon. How did the moon landing cause hamburgers to taste great? Did hamburgers not taste great before the moon landing? What was it about the moon landing that caused hamburgers to taste great?

Then, other kids start chiming in about how great hamburgers are and how great they are with fries and ketchup. Suddenly, the conversation is now all about hamburgers; and while you're still trying to see how that kid made a reasonable cause-and-effect connection between hamburgers and the moon landing, other people are attacking you as though you don't believe hamburgers taste great.

Hamburgers tasting great has nothing to do with the original claim, which was "the moon landing is the cause of hamburgers tasting great." It may very well be a fact that hamburgers taste great, and you're not arguing whether or not hamburgers taste great. What you want to know is how the fuck did the moon landing cause hamburgers to taste great in this kid's mind.

These are tricks people pull in arguments to distract you from illogical claims. Look for the pattern "A causes B." Then see if their response has more to do with A or B. Valid arguments will focus on A and further describe how A causes B. But if they spend more time talking about B or otherwise completely ignore A, then they are either crazy or full of shit.

"Eating roast beef (A) causes your hair turn red (B)." "What? How does it do that?"
"YOU DON'T BELIEVE THERE ARE PEOPLE WITH RED HAIR??"

"Picking your nose in the summer (A) causes you to get sunburned faster (B)."
"What does picking your nose have to do with getting sunburned?" "BECAUSE PEOPLE CLOSER TO THE EQUATOR ARE CLOSER TO THE SUN!"

"False rape accusations cause the collapse of society." "What? That seems a bit extreme." "MUSLIMS ARE TAKING OVER FRANCE AND SHARIA LAW WILL REIGN OVER EUROPE!"

So when someone makes the claim "A causes B," it doesn't matter if B really is real or is a fact or true or whatever. The claim being made is that A causes B. When people shift the focus of the conversation away from A and how it causes B and focus instead on other things that make B true, that means they are trying to trick you into believing something when they don't have any evidence or otherwise can't prove it, just like a false rape accusation.

"He raped me!" "Do you have any evidence to prove he raped you?" "WHAT? YOU DONT BELIEVE RAPE CAN HAPPEN?! PEOPLE GET RAPED ALL THE TIME!"

What they're doing here is trying to prove their claim that A causes B by proving that B is true. But the argument isn't whether or not B is true. The argument is whether or not A is the reason why B is true. Anything that the other person says that tries to get you to believe B is true, other than focusing on A and how it relates to B, is tricking you into believing A causes B.

wiseclockcounter • 6 points • 20 June, 2017 01:44 AM

Your wall-of-text teaching moment only teaches us that you don't know what a strawman argument is. Kind of disappointing coming from a lawyer.

All you've done is twisted the argument into an irrelevant set of constraints where you insist there's no direct cause between claim A and claim B. But no one was saying that there was.

What was being said is that women making such frequent and flippant false rape accusations is symptomatic of the larger societal trend. The trend we're seeing is one where men are socially and politically disincentivized to pursue committed, child-bearing relationships.

One of those disincentives is how women can falsely accuse men of rape or spousal abuse to bludgeon them with the State for personal gain or revenge. So what happens when a societal model like Islam comes in where women cannot do those things, and where people marry young and have 5, 6, 7 children? In 20 or 30 years time you have a knew majority. The society that was producing children below replacement level has now been outbred, outvoted, and outmanned.

You can call it crazy all you want, but at a certain point it just boils down to mathematics. A society that doesn't replace itself will dwindle into nothing eventually. It seems you have it in your head that buildings need to be on fire for society to be collapsing. While there's a good chance actual violence will pop off in Western Europe, the lead up to that is gradual and the warning signs are many.

Just because you don't read hieroglyphics, doesn't mean there isn't writing on the wall.

You are mostly right. However, never before in history have women had so much power and men been so emasculated. This is unprecedented. The problem is right there. Women are way way too powerful today. You let them run the show and massive shit happens (mass immigration, IQ decline, general societal degeneracy, men's lack of incentives to shine, directionless countries, etc) . He is right in saying that all of this will end up very badly.

Solution: put the hoes right where they belong, a mile beneath you and 2 miles behind you. Enforce some godamn standards, treat hoes like utter shit, fuck them hard and dump them hard, be so valuable that bitches fall from the skies and so scary that the turds from the dirt world run away from you in the streets, lead by example and things can change.

what about women's choices leads to IQ decline?

Jax77789 • 2 points • 20 June, 2017 10:15 AM

K/ R selection. In a nutshell : without societal pressure and control women opt for males displaying primitive dominance traits (agressiveness, strength...) over traits that signal intelligence. Isaac Newton gets ignored while the monkey beast gets the shag.

Now that they can do whatever the fuck they want they select mostly worthless " alphas " and that had led to a solid decline in global IQ.

France will be an Islamic nation with nuclear weapons in less than 15 years.

that's not how international politics work. How the fuck do you think the world bank and the vatican would let that happen?

BluepillProfessor • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 05:06 PM

It is happening. How the fuck do you think the vatican and the world bank- or the Bildeburgers and the Trilateralists and the Free Masons- are going to prevent it?

Our President can't even temporarily issue a NON-RELIGIOUS citizens ban of carefully selected Muslim majority nations with extensive ties to terrorism. There is absolutely nothing in the feminist led governments of Europe that can prevent the hordes.

Check your history. Muslims have taken over scores of nations using this immigration and fertility tactic. It is hardly a secret. They talk about the "Arab Womb" as the ultimate weapon openly and often. Europe will be next to fall. Even if a "right wing" or "fascist" government rises in Germany the hordes will continue to come into France.

I would say last Christian out, turn out the lights but they will already be out by then.

ChadThundercockII • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 05:25 PM

Lern2army • 12 points • 18 June, 2017 02:54 PM

Western society IS collapsing and it is highly visible. Declining birth rates, social justice, and liberal fiscal policies are speeding this up. Europeans (white people) are the minority on earth and won't last long.

Fixing these issues would require things that people find very, very ugly i.e. take women's right to vote away, make sex outside of marriage illegal, make abortions illegal, get rid of no fault divorce, etc. Basically, a hard patriarchy. This won't happen and I don't want it to because it will make my short time on earth less enjoyable.

As long as there is mankind, there will be society. Western civilization will collapse just like every great empire before it i.e. Roman, Ottoman, Byzantine. I imagine the future will be Muslim and the vast majority will be Middle Eastern Asian and Far East Asian followed by Central and South American.

SpecOpsAlpha • 4 points • 18 June, 2017 04:12 PM

vengefully_yours • 12 points • 18 June, 2017 03:27 PM

Islam isn't very big on tech and science, thanks to Al Ghazali. They will always be limited in the scope of their power as long as the religion rules their countries, due to that fact. What the christian propaganda tells you is meant to inflame you, make you afraid, and demonize them. The majority of it is false, absolute bullshit fabricated to make them look even worse. Really there is no reason to do that, other than the christian religion calls for the same things as islam, and pointing it out would make themselves look bad.

The muslim world is backwards, always will be due to the era the book was written in. The reason the west has made advances isn't due to christians being more enlightened or intelligent, it's due to the countries not having the religion make the laws. If the USA was a theocracy, the Wright brothers would've never flown, because attempting to fly was punishable by death in christian law. Imagine where we would still be if the USA was a theocracy. You should be thankful it is not.

[deleted] • 12 points • 18 June, 2017 03:38 PM

'They will always be limited in the scope of their power as long as religion rules their countries...' - Yes, but the fact is they're no longer staying in their countries.

I know you are American because I've seen your previous posts, so I'm not accusing you of ignorance, but Islam is actually far worse than what it is portrayed as by Christians or the media - and as an atheist I don't mind telling you they are NOT the same value-wise.

If you are interested I suggest you read 'The Strange Death of Europe' by Douglas Murray or look up Tommy Robinson on YouTube but if you want further material still then a German man called Kraut and Tea has a YouTube channel that you would find enlightening.

BluepillProfessor • 9 points • 18 June, 2017 05:22 PM

the christian religion calls for the same things as islam

Really? Let's compare!

Jesus said: "go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, 20 and teaching them to obey everything I have commanded you.

If anyone will not welcome you or listen to your words, leave that home or town and shake the dust off your feet.

Mohamed said: "'Say to those who have disbelieved, if they cease (from disbelief) their past will be forgiven... And fight them until there is no more Fitnah (disbelief and polytheism: i.e. worshipping others besides Allah) and the religion (worship) will all be for Allah Alone [in the whole of the world]."

Fight those who believe not in Allah nor the Last Day when the forbidden months are past, then fight and slay the Pagans wherever ye find them, and seize them, beleaguer them, and lie in wait for them in every stratagem of war.

And fight them until fitna is no more, and religion be only for Allah

It seems the message is different. I am pretty sure "Fight...Fight...Fight" means something DIFFERENT than "Leave." I am certain that FORCE them to accept Allah and pay taxes means something different than "Baptise" and "teach."

[deleted] • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 11:23 PM

Thank you.

The constant praise for a certain ideology here, and on other subreddits is disturbing to say the least.

Beyond fitnah, westerners need to educate themselves about shirk, dawah, hijrah, taqiyya, kitman, takfirism, and several other important Islamic concepts.

ezone2kil • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 03:53 PM

The irony of those fixes is that all of those things are exactly the teachings of Islam.

No sex outside marriage? Check.

Man as the head of the family unit? Check. There's even a saying in Islam Man is 9/10 mind 1/10 lust/emotions. Women is the reverse.

Divorce in Islam is basically only by consent of the husband (he's the one that has to say "I divorce you").

Abortions illegal? Check.

BluepillProfessor • 3 points • 18 June, 2017 05:26 PM

Every monotheistic religion has had every single one of these rules that you give. It's not Christian vs. Muslim. It's Christian vs. Atheistic cultural Marxism. Guess which one rules the U.S. today?

Lern2army • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 08:10 PM

They're the teachings of quite a few religions. It's no mystery that liberalism leads to the death of civilizations.

It's like a controlled burn in a dense forest. Sometimes you need to start over with a civilization and it's only a matter of time with the west. It's much more difficult to go through the forest and deal with the overgrowth and trees individually.

sayywhaaaaat • 2 points • 22 June, 2017 03:49 PM

This is the best response I've read for that aphorism in years. With a slight tweak to your response, it could serve as the right answer to a lot of the other bullshit on the net these days.

Surviving and finding meaning is what we need to do.

I mean how many times in history have societies turned south because people just sat on their asses in disgust all while waving their fists in the air in vane.

Magnum256 • 1 point • 19 June, 2017 05:06 AM

You speak as if civilizations have never crumbled and been rebuilt as something new. Of course they have, many, many times. When someone says something like "society won't last long" they aren't talking about the end of the world, or some apocalypse, they're essentially talking about "the fall of Rome" type scenario.

Realistically what I suspect, and I say this without any prejudice, is that within ~200 years (or perhaps much sooner) the planet will be Muslim majority both socially and governmentally. We'll likely re-enter an age of religion under Islam, and that reign will continue for anywhere between ~500-2000 years give or take. We're on the horizon of that right now, more so in Europe than in North America but it's happening - 2 billion Muslims now, estimated 3 billion by 2050 I believe.

Of course none of that relates to the false rape shit, that's a separate issue, but I think it is indicative of the collapse of traditional Western values, both in the false claims being made

(abhorrent) and the way society punishes false claimants (not at all)

PEPEdamus • 0 points • 18 June, 2017 07:41 PM

It's always eye opening to realize this for myself. The moment a random girl I barely know at a party talks about her past because she doesn't expect to see me ever again is full of her cheating and laughing at the idea of anyone trusting her.

Western women are barely even people and I'm learning that I need to treat them as such improvising1 • 7 points • 18 June, 2017 12:46 PM

My brain autocorrected that to tiny at first too but she was a tinder girl.

Judging by OPs post nut reaction she was probably not tiny.

BluepillProfessor • 5 points • 18 June, 2017 04:53 PM

It's not the tiny girls. It's the big men with clubs and guns that we fear.

You are quite correct to blame society. This is not an individual problem. This is a textbook social problem and individual men cannot win. Collectively we could win, but not divided as we are. They will keep pushing until we stand up as a group and force them to stop.

I made a rule when I found the red pill, and when all the false accusations were going around. Never my place, never my name, never where I work. No plates or one night stands have ever seen the inside of my house, I don't use my real name when picking up or leave my wallet in plain view when clothes are off, and never tell them where I work, or hit on anyone I work with. Most of the time, the good action goes on clear across town. Call me a liar but I'm not under oath so why should I tell the truth to someone I barely know.

Dude, this is what everyman, should do now. I mean, the world has gotten even more dangerous than WWII. Men can't do anything without some cunt watching his back, because she didn't like him calling her pretty, so she needs to cut his balls. This shit is why I never hangout with pretty ones, much less the ugly ones. I only hang with my bros I trust.

I learned my lessons at work, my time with dating girls, and everything else. When I'm with my bros, I can relax. with girls, my guard is way fucking up, sky high, and as coolly as possible. I don't trust them or want them.

Treasure_hand • 2 points • 19 June, 2017 10:37 AM

It doesn't quite fit the alpha persona, but it protects me from meaningless litigation and in my job a simple accusation could be enough for a court martial. Military justice doesn't work the same as civilian court. Once your in that hot seat, especially for a sexual related accusation, the officers might want to make an example of you. No thanks.

It's also extortion.

saargrin • 92 points • 18 June, 2017 07:53 AM maybe theres a case here for him to accuse her of attempted rape?

mushroom_overlord • 49 points • 18 June, 2017 09:00 AM

I'm pretty sure threatening to use the legal system against someone counts as coercion, so it would have been rape if he fucked her because he was under the duress of having his life potentially ruined. I don't know if there's anything he can do since he didn't give in and fuck her, but either way good luck getting that conviction in the gynocentric society we live in.

lukmeg • 35 points • 18 June, 2017 09:11 AM

Threatening is already illegal, but as you say good luck getting a conviction when its a woman doing it to a man. If it was reversed it would be a slam dunk case with the audio, but being a woman threatening a man it would not go anywhere.

mushroom_overlord • 4 points • 18 June, 2017 09:21 AM

I figured the threat itself was illegal, but didn't want to assume for lack of knowledge about OP's situation.

SimianFriday • 19 points • 18 June, 2017 10:18 AM so it would have been rape if he fucked her because he was under the duress of having his life potentially ruined.

Guys, be very, very careful because this is actually not always true - the legal definition of rape in most states only applies in situations where the victim was penetrated. So unless she whipped out a strap on and went to town on him, it would not be considered rape in the eyes of the law.

This is why there are numerous cases every single year of drunk / drugged men who are taken advantage of by women and unable to file rape charges. It often comes down to a vague or poor legal definition of the term rape that is the problem.

Roaring40sUK • 3 points • 19 June, 2017 08:48 AM

Yes, the legal definition of rape leaves no room for a male victim when a woman is involved.

You're gonna have to wait until a seasoned lawyer with recordings does this and then gets it on the news a couple times.

Only then will the paradigm shift a bit.

It's harder for someone who is merely a man. Because what could happen is a backlash where the prosecutor believes the girl more and the girl blurts out a bunch of lies as a way to "defend" against the actual crime she committed.

World isn't fair guys, a billionaire, a leader, or a woman can break a lot of laws and get away with it.

UnKnownSurviving • 1 point • 19 June, 2017 01:04 AM

It should have been death sentence. If she attempted to kill him, that is. But I'd like her, any bitch to suffer 5-7 years of prison time. There should be harsh sentence like whipping, club beating, as prison sentence. If women want to be "equal" to men, she should suffer harsh consequences. Really, brutal consequences.

bluedrygrass • 14 points • 18 June, 2017 10:12 AM

It's the message that counts. Women are highly impressionable, if the risk of being jailed (and thus judged negatively by the society, which is the worst thing ever for a woman) become even remotely viable, most women would change their actions in a heartbeat.

analyticaltoafault • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 08:49 PM rp_valiant • 12 points • 18 June, 2017 09:54 AM

I think the idea is that you can rescind it at the time. No-one openly supports a legal framework of retroactive consent withdrawal, some women just practice it when they "realise" they were raped because their boyfriend caught them cheating.

radfemtori • 3 points • 18 June, 2017 11:23 AM

I want to add in that the revoking consent is important in situations like, say, your partner wants to do something with you mid-sex that you don't feel comfortable doing and they force you to anyway.

rp_valiant • 6 points • 18 June, 2017 12:09 PM*

that's more just not extending consent to the new sex act. The way I see it, once you're having sex consent is assumed to be continuing unless someone says they don't want to do something. That's not to say you just jam it in her ass without warning, but you can test the waters before moving onto more contentious stuff and see if she says no.

The feminist idea of constantly asking for consent for the next act sounds good in theory but it's just going to instantly kill any mood.

radfemtori • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 01:20 PM

Well, honestly, changing positions, maybe moving around, performing oral or something (if visibly consenting) is alright. But if the words "no" or "I don't want to do this anymore" or "I'm not comfortable with this" come up - that's all we mean.

rp_valiant • 5 points • 18 June, 2017 02:38 PM

well there's the whole affirmative consent thing. Sounds like you take the reasonable position but there are plenty out there who take it too far.

There's no way to win in courts that are biased against men when it comes to men-to-women type incidents. The mistake was to dump without prep-work. There's an art to breaking up that makes them less likely to want to get back at you.

What OP did was break up thinking that girls are non-emotional and rational. He broke up, as a women would to a man, "cya". A lot of women these days do not have discipline. They don't have self-control of their anger. They'll blurt out all sorts of nonsense, sometimes even following through with their nonsense, other times, just blurting it out and then retracting later.

Last girl I hooked up with, after going down on her she says "that was great but I don't give blowjobs". I let it go because we moved right to the fucking which was good, but in principle it was a shitty thing. If I put my face in the very personal area that is your crotch and you accept it, there is an unspoken expectation that you'll give the favor back to me.

Now if afterwards she'd have said "thanks but I have to go / we're not going to have sex" or something like that, I've have felt used and would have been rightfully pissed. So this girl is at least in the right to be mad. Not the further actions, but OP isn't 100% innocent here.

There's no madder woman than a rejected one.

ciarao55 • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 12:56 PM

But isn't this just a mental health issue? I've known plenty of people in general that can't handle rejection. this woman is certainly fucking batshit, and that behavior is beyond shameful. Faking a crime like that is evil. Not only because it has the potential to ruin someone's life, but it also takes credence away from those whose stories of assault are actually true.

Op- Maybe you should report the incident to the police anyway, because what if she does this to someone else? Or has done this before? I mean maybe she's just a sad, vengeful person and was only trying to scare you by saying something reckless (probably), but what if she ruins someone else's life or has in the past by bringing false charges? She likely won't get in criminal trouble, but at least your local department will know this woman has a mental health problem and her stories are suspect. I had a family member that had a serious personality disorder (narcissistic) and when crossed would sic police on people under false pretenses. Don't fuck around with people like this, they don't have a conscious and are incapable of empathy on a biological level.

Sorry this happened to you. Good on you for audio recording, but video just for filming your tinder dates sounds creepy and I can see that giving a stranger the wrong impression of you so be careful with that.

Eric_Wulff • 30 points • 18 June, 2017 09:41 AM

Fickle emotions are the province of women. He's a man. His change of emotions didn't "just happen" to coincide with ejaculation. Male psychology simply works like that. The more experience a man gets, the more he will be able to predict when his attraction won't be sustained past ejaculation. Any self-respecting man does his best to avoid the walk of shame to the bathroom after oral sex or penetration with a girl they'll be averse to after the deed is done.

Dat_Chad • -1 points • 18 June, 2017 10:13 AM

Sure, there's a lot we can learn from women. But all I mentioned about women was fickle emotions, which isn't something you want to emulate as a man. Women hate fickle men as much as they love being fickle themselves. Being capricious does not mean using her weapons against her. It means shooting yourself in the foot. It means drying up her attraction.

also, you're projecting your own feelings onto OP. his psychology, his self-respect, his right to refuse service. his own damn business.

Denying that there are objective truths about the structure of male and female thinking is what the feminists are famous for. I'm not sure why you're bringing such things into this discussion. The walk of shame is a real phenomenon, and men who regularly indulge in sexual encounters which produce those feelings are men who are putting their self-respect on the line.

He has a right to refuse service, obviously. Who here would disagree with you on that? The point, instead, is that it be useful for him to look for the signs of attraction that's unsustainable past ejaculation during his future encounters, as long as he's a man who values his view of himself and doesn't want to feel like an degenerate.

Yeah I believe in the covert contract of being a decent person and treating others how you'd wanna be treated, you know the cornerstones of western civilisation.

Keep being a dick if you want but that will get you nothing more than shallow relations and meaningless sex with damaged girls. If you think getting a blowjob from a girl who's so ugly you don't even wanna fuck her, kicking her out and then sitting alone in your apartment is winning at life then go ahead. You can be a decent person without being a WK sissy you know.

You're right... but OP doesnt sound like an asshole. He just sounds like an idiot.

Dat_Chad • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 11:25 AM sorry, I don't see it. OP sounds like a hero we don't need, but a hero we deserve

[deleted] • 4 points • 18 June, 2017 11:27 AM

He could have got himself sent to jail because he brought home some fat minga he didnt even want to root.

What a hero.

[deleted] • 9 points • 18 June, 2017 09:37 AM

He doesn't HAVE to do anything. He's still a dick if he doesn't. Please. He's well within his rights to withdraw consent at any time but that doesn't absolve him for being a dick. You're right, feminism is about equality, and it would be a bitch move to invite a guy over, have him eat you out then kick him out your door. Same rules apply

Ask_Djhinn • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 03:22 PM

This resonated with me.

It's not wholly that OP rejected her. He could have still rejected her like others have said. By taking care of her "a Manuel"/cuddling (PP). It's that she was rejected in the way she rejects BB's (RP). He took a page from thier book in using her, then changed his mind to reciprocate. Upon realization her mind melted.

My copper contribution. MCC sex is different for different people, some are givers, some are takers and some are both givers and takers. Consider Dom's and Sub's, and people who are sometimes Dom and sometimes Sub. People's sexual behaviour are individual.

Sure, if this is the agreed upon situation

if you re-read OP, thats not what happened. he said his perception of her changed after, he then said they chilled a bit and said he didn't feel like having sex. what he missed out was her subtle pressuring him for sex and sense of expectation. hence him having to say he wasn't having sex.

Oh come on. Let me tell you something since you seem to not already know: girls generally don't want to come back to your place just for the extreme honor of giving you a blowie. There's an unspoken contract of mutual pleasure there let me ask you:

did he owe her sex?

No. What he owed her was making up his damn mind before he allowed her to blow him with no reciprocation. That's a shitty position to put her in. One could argue that she wouldn't have consented in the first place if she knew there was going to be nothing for her in the equation. He owed her a conversation of "I might not be up to anything afterwards, is this still ok" and if he couldn't be arsed to assess the situation beforehand that thus might happen, he's a fucking dick. A dick well within his rights to say no. Still a dick should he be expected to have sex?

Should she have been expected to blow him without reciprocation?

is she entitled to him?

Certainly not. He's STILL A DICK

Sorensofos • 4 points • 18 June, 2017 04:51 PM

Eric_Wulff • 10 points • 18 June, 2017 09:34 AM

That's a normal experience that virtually every man has had. Sometimes men feel attracted to a woman until they ejaculate, after which they enter a new state of being actively averse to touching or even being around the woman. There's nothing wrong with that, and over time you'll learn how to avoid those situations because you'll see the signs before you decide to take them back to your place. Either that or you'll embrace the common tendency for degeneracy and indulge in the present emotions, knowing you'll feel empty, unsatisfied, and even disgusted with yourself later on. You may also do that with junk food or other such things.

The real question, though, is why you explicitly told her that you weren't going to fuck her and how you let it escalate into her having a meltdown. You could have just made small talk for a while to show that you're a mature human being able to be patient and non-impulsive, and then told her that you have work to do and that you'll need your place to yourself. Then you could have just not contacted her, and she would have forgotten about you.

BOSpecial • 3 points • 18 June, 2017 09:10 PM

OP probably thought that it was alpha thing to do, being respectful of another person is so blue pill :D

BestSC86 • 9 points • 18 June, 2017 12:37 PM

Damn...being attracted to a damn girl is usually a prereq for letting her touch my dick.

I guess other people roll a different route.

Op needs to work on his damn selection methods and stop being so damn thirsty that he is considering ugly chicks then bailing. Messing with fire tends to get you burnt.

bizmarck • 17 points • 18 June, 2017 09:29 AM

Well, I'm not saying she's not batshit crazy, but she did do something for you... and you gave nothing back.

If the scenario played differently and she simply walked out on you with a look when you told her there's gonna be no nookie it's definitely you who'd be the douche. You brought her home to fuck, that was the silent agreement. I can understand why she was pissed, but the way she dealt with it... textbook redpill stuff :)

Zohso • 8 points • 18 June, 2017 10:39 AM

[deleted] • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 08:14 PM

[deleted] • 15 points • 18 June, 2017 04:37 PM

How about:

have some common decency and reciprocate.

She shouldn't have gone to the false accusations, she should have just gone straight to kicking you square in the nuts. Looks like a situation of two assholes finding each other in the night.

Red pill isn't about shitting all over people. It's about bettering ourselves.

You need to work on how to better treat the people around you. That will go a long way towards making you a better person, and will certainly help you avoid finding yourself involved in such fucked up situations.

Whoa, whoa, whoa. I didn't say I knew what the right answer I was. I was just saying that's where the question is. Do you have the right to surreptitiously record someone in your own home? How about in a public place? These are questions I don't have answers to, but the 4th amendment does figure in somewhere.

kadykinns • 4 points • 18 June, 2017 02:17 PM

That's such bullshit, thanks for answering though. :)

SirKolbath • 10 points • 18 June, 2017 02:38 PM

Uhh... Actually, most states allow voice recording as long as one party had knowledge and consent. Thus you can record a conversation of which you are a part, but NOT a conversation you are (for example) listening to at the park.

I believe only New Jersey and those dipshits in California require informed consent from all parties before allowing a conversation to be recorded.

This applies to video recording as well, so I strongly recommend that you video every sexual encounter simply to prevent situations like this one. It's not about titillation or porn. It's about self defense.

Gadnuk_ • 4 points • 18 June, 2017 03:45 PM

Generally there is an assumed privacy clause and in public you have no assumption of privacy, so a stranger's park conversation you're not party to would be (weird AF but) fair game to record whereas in a private residence you often need consent to record from all parties.

That's why paparazzi can be so aggressive and intrusive without violating the law, because there's no expectation of privacy in public. They'll wait at the end of your driveway with a trove of recording equipment because as soon as you hit that public ground you no longer have a legal claim to privacy.

SirKolbath • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 07:04 PM

Thanks, Gadnuk. I knew there was something I was forgetting. "Assumption of privacy." Appreciate you picking up my slack.

The fault is with the men that have women making false accusations dead to rights and they don't pursue charges because they're beta cucks. One guy even mentioned how the arabs stroll in their neighborhoods chests held high and he said he was sad to admit it but arabs are taking the Jewish women.

WTF israel is cucked

dr_warlock • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 12:05 PM*

Israel, home to the owners of most of the world's federal reserve banks (including the IMF), printers of most of the world's currency. Home to the owners of most major media outlets. Home to the owners of western porn. Homw to the United States owner. Home to a supposedly tight knit group of people. Home to the most powerful people in world history... they have armed walls to keep out non jews especially palestinians that they shit on. But they allow the passing of this law to be a dwelling place for female demons.

The parent mentioned Federal Reserve Banks. Many people, including non-native speakers, may be unfamiliar with this word. Here is the definition: (In beta, be kind)

A Federal Reserve Bank is a regional bank of the Federal Reserve System, the central banking system of the United States. There are twelve in total, one for each of the twelve Federal Reserve Districts that were created by the Federal Reserve Act of 1913. The banks are jointly responsible for implementing the monetary policy set forth by the Federal Open Market Committee, and are divided as follows: [View More]

This may be going out on a limb here, but I question the authenticity in this video.

No doubt this absolutely happens to men, but this being a normal thing in Israel is very unlikely. I'm Israeli and I can tell you it's absolutely not "cucked". As a matter of fact it's very anti-cucked.

But the real reason this particular video raised a flag is because the language being spoken in the subtitled part was definitely not Hebrew. It wasn't a 'dialect' of it either (Hebrew doesn't have such a thing), it sounded nothing like it. It sounded like Russian or something Slavic. Seems a bit odd that all the 'natives' in the video speaking about the apparent horrible situation had their own native language which happened to not be Hebrew. I have no idea what the language is, but whatever it was is definitely not universally spoken there. Even Russian - yes, there are a handful of immigrants, but the fact that not one person speaks Hebrew in the video (not just the people talking to the camera, the background stuff as well with the women yelling "RAPE! GET OUT!" and all that, was not Hebrew either) does raise suspicion.

A lot of this does seem staged.

Assuming you are in a one-party consent state for recordings, go to the cops and give them a copy of the audio. Let them know she's psycho and may try to pull some shit on you. Getting to the cops now will help you out a lot later if she goes full psycho.

I'd rather protect myself by avoiding the need for recording devices.

Having sex on a first ever tinder meeting? That doesn't seem safe. Better for both of us to meet then have some time apart to ponder each other before deciding whether to move forwards. There's no need to rush. I don't have a terminal illness. Being horny for another week (which isn't how it really works, but whatever) won't kill me.

I don't think false rape allegations are ever appropriate but it sounds like she was pissed and irrational after finding out you were an asshole. She probably won't press charges or come get you in your sleep but I'm sure she'll tell anyone who will listen what kind of scumbag you are. Maybe even outside your place or at whatever bar/restaurant/coffee shop you two went to. I'd be more worried about the recording depending on the consent laws in your state. Secretly recording voice of someone doesn't magically become legal if you tell them after the fact in my state.

jakeinmn • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 03:41 PM

This is why theres a thing called Beta Game. You actually try and get super needy and return all the tingles back to the muff in which it came.

The point is to turn off people you wouldn't want to be with.

The positive applications of shattering attraction can be left to your imagination.

RenaissanceMan79 • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 04:37 PM

I've long contemplated, even advocated, installing a spy cam in ones apartment as an insurance policy. Right now I have an iPhone dock that's mostly for playing music, but the phone is jailbroken and can record video in the background. It's not ideal since I still have to go turn that on, but I can do it while "putting on some music" Don't stick your dick in crazy to be sure, but sometimes you just don't know when it's someone you met that night.

BluepillProfessor • 2 points • 18 June, 2017 04:51 PM

Unfortunately this is what they do.

Although you could have been a bit more discrete over the loss of attraction. I would have waited a few minutes and then bent her over. Taking one for the team might have made everybody fEEEEEEEL better about the whole encounter.

Not being able to pity fuck a chick who just gave you head is pretty pathetic imo

[deleted] • 4 points • 18 June, 2017 06:42 AM

Don't waste your semen on one night stands or girls you've just met. Practice karezza (sex without orgasm). Cum in a girl you want to bond with.

_BITCHES_LOVE_ME_ • points • 18 June, 2017 10:18 AM [recovered]

Lol you fucking serious? That's like going to the kitchen, making a sandwich and then not eating it.

I can see how it might help for pair bonding but jeez, that seems extreme. Why even bother with ONS at that point?

WolfofAnarchy • 0 points • 18 June, 2017 11:45 AM

Not quite true, you can orgasm, just not cum.

That's the ultimate discipline

[deleted] • 6 points • 18 June, 2017 01:32 PM

theres a thin line between discipline and fucking stupid

[deleted] • -1 points • 18 June, 2017 06:33 PM

It's not stupid. It retains energy which you can use in much more valuable ways. The benefits are myriad.

Occams_Stubble • 2 points • 19 June, 2017 03:35 PM

It should be mentioned that OP acted like a douche. They both wanted sex, she gave him sex and in return he denied her any pleasure. She was used in a very obvious and selfish way, of course she reacted. Yes, over reacted, but OP started the snowball down the hill.

lancer000 • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 09:45 AM

LancerZ Lifestyle's Tip: Even when you fuck a bish, don't forget you use protection. Nobody rapes a lady, while wearing a condom...

peltosenkeke • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 03:37 PM

In my country it is illegal to record voice or video without permission. So in your situation, I would be the bad guy anyway.

aldokn • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 04:28 PM

I'd go to the Magistrate and play the recording. Tell the Magistrate her name and info and hopefully he can put out a warrant for her arrest.

Wraeclast_Exile • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 05:54 PM

I'm honestly thinking about investing in a hidden cam of some sort for any future hookups. Stay safe men.

Just get a 360 degree camera that goes on the ceiling. You can make it hard to notice. It does video and voice. You'll be set.

[deleted] • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 06:33 PM

Damn dude what a crazy bitch! Thanks for posting it's definitely a good reminder to screen girls as hard as possible. Even a hint of crazy, peace out!

Desadarius • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 06:41 PM

Insane. Women are insane. Why are they so hot?

JimiJons • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 07:51 PM

What she did is already illegal. She attempted to extort you for sex. Take your recording and go to the police, if nothing else than to protect yourself.

Sir_Distic • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 10:05 PM

So much moralizing going on in this comment section.

Lets_Do_ButtStuff • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 11:56 PM

Always send a "That was fun we should do it again sometime" text when they leave... protect yourself

UnKnownSurviving • 1 point • 19 June, 2017 12:50 AM

Goddamn, boy. Honestly, you need a batcave of some shit. Or a get-away. Seriously. I'd never take a girl to my place. Girlfriends, (as friends), yes, but to fuck? Hell, no. They will do some crazy shit to you. Once they have a fucking meltdown, who the fuck knows what they could do? They go with their feelz. One recent story this year, of one girl, murdered her boyfriend/stranger, because he rejected her. She tried killing three times, and third time, she finally murdered him. She had a trial, and the male judge was disgusted, and she pretended to cry. Apparently the judge didn't buy her story, and she has no parole. At all. She is to live in a stone walled-room box in prison with no window. By the way, that bitch smiled later, and was happy she got her "revenge". Unfucking-real.

[deleted] • 1 point • 19 June, 2017 01:12 AM

Why dont you take this to your local politicians? why dont you organize a protest group against such kind of criminal injustice?

Thats what women do. You dont have to tell them. They will cry on demand.

We on the other hand...we seem to be to "proud" to do it.

It is true, in the so called "battle of the sexes" we men fight on a raft while the women fight on a Dreadnought.

axeAce90 • 1 point • 19 June, 2017 02:08 AM

I never bring em back to my place.

Ever.

It either happens in the car, bar, or her place maybe but never, ever mine.

Teapot_Dragon • 1 point • 19 June, 2017 03:33 AM*

Screwing her and having a one night stand may have been wiser than cucking her.

MentORPHEUS • 1 point • 19 June, 2017 05:22 AM

OP was lousy in bed, histrionics follow. Film at 11.

Reniboy • 1 point • 21 June, 2017 04:10 PM

Nah OP is just being a dick here. You busted a nut and now you've decided that she's not good enough. Fuck that. If a girl decided to do that, she'd be a massive bitch. You're an asshole.

PantsonFire1234 • 1 point • 23 June, 2017 03:07 PM

Hahahaha man you rained nuclear hellfire upon this Plain Jane and the resulting shattering of her self image caused massive cognitive dissonance. The build up of social media likes, Tinder matches with heaps of unmeant compliments all went up in flames the moment you, a simple guy she thought to play up, told her you wouldn't even fuck her sad sack of meat.

It's the highest insult you could have made. God bless you son.

chad_thunderwang • 1 point • 27 June, 2017 07:16 AM

Upload the recording and post a link. It would REALLY serve as a wake up call.

[deleted] • 0 points • 18 June, 2017 05:45 PM

Honestly this is the most bitch approach I've seen a dude take. Act like a man and pound her ugly brains out. Backing out shows you're a bitch.

LordASCII • 1 point • 19 June, 2017 09:23 PM

So she can accuse him of rape with DNA evidence?

awake283 • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 03:01 PM

you're kind of a dick. you're not wrong... but that was kind of being a dick.

Eb73 • 0 points • 18 June, 2017 05:51 PM

Find a "nice" girl who wants a monogamous relationship.. I'm telling you that BY FAR the best sex you will ever have is in a committed long-term monogamous relationship...

[deleted] • 1 point • 18 June, 2017 06:12 PM

Haha, she was going to accuse you if rape if since she wasn't able to rape you. Also, maybe having a hidden hookup camera isn't the greatest idea, what with it being essentially filming a porno with someone without their knowledge.

nik27 • 1 point • 19 June, 2017 02:14 PM

Sounds like a brilliant idea to secretly tape all of your future hookups! Maybe you can distribute them too just so other guys can learn how to protect themselves, ya know?

Alchemist_XP • 0 points • 18 June, 2017 04:38 PM

Lol a hidden cam for hookups hahah

[deleted] • 0 points • 18 June, 2017 04:13 PM

You just described rape regret cash in everything unless you are bill Cosby and can get away with anything

ayylma088 • 0 points • 19 June, 2017 03:19 PM

I wouldve ... just tapped her
