

My 32-year-old simp friend is about to get #MeToo'd by a Spanish roastie of same age and there's nothing I can or want to do

I had this beautiful friendship with a man my age, or so I thought. We walked, talked, barbecued and rode bikes together for several years. At some point, I notice he's putting distance between us, probably because he had just finished college and I only have high school. I post something on his Facebook wall and he lashes out; I mention him to someone and he lashes out.

He introduces me through Facebook to a Spanish woman our age that is thoroughly fucked in the head. She admits to me she's been raped, has sucked dicks in night clubs and her dad beat her. I promptly scold and block her; my simp friend lashes out.

A couple days ago, my simp ex-friend crosses my path and admits with a superior smirk that he went on a 1,200-mile trip abroad to visit the roastie. I congratulated him. The only one who I feel sorry for is his mom. She's 66 and has been frantically calling me for any info on women he's been seeing. She can smell predatory women. I can feel she wants me to do something, to intervene in some manner. There's nothing I can or want to do.

Simps are on a path of self-destruction. Don't be a simp. Don't let yourself self-destruct. Don't get involved trying to save simps or they'll drag you down with them.

Good. Never date a woman claiming to be raped. And they always make a point of telling you in the first 2 or 3 dates. Never went to the police half the time and about continuing to date the guy they claim raped them. They're all screwed in the head.

I promptly scold and block her; my simp friend lashes out.

Off topic, does your friends know who you blocked on Facebook ? I blocked my friend's wife, because she is annoying as fuck with her spams.

Reminds me if that creepy 90s song:

And I'll walk 500 miles and I'll walk 500 more!
