

Few basic readings Body Language

November 30, 2017 | 847 upvotes | by machialon

If she says hi to you before you say hi to her when you meet her, and you do not know her a lot, she likes you.

If you do not know her at all and she approaches you to chat, even to ask a question like what time is it, or whether you are XYZ, she is opening you.

If she enquires about your girlfriend, or mention anything resembling talking about a possible girlfriend, she likes you.

If you change something on you (haircut, beard, cloth, accessory) and she mentions that she liked it better as it was before, she likes you. It's a subtle compliment.

If you catches her stare and her gaze linger, or she maintains it with a faint smile, a sneer, or any gut feeling you have that she likes what she sees, do the math. Also, if you catch her looking at you and she immediately look elsewhere, she was checking you out. A female doesn't gawk at guys like in movies, in plain sight within meters, unless he is stunningly good looking or high value. It's too obvious, she looks easy, and she surrenders her power to choose. They'll wait that you look elsewhere instead, or when they are too far to be noticed.

If she acts submissive towards you and complies to your requests, she likes you. The more demanding or the more daring things she complies to, the more she is into you.

If she is finding time to spend with you on her own accord, she likes you.

If she constantly leans towards you and laughs even your lamest jokes, she likes you.

If she attempts to find a way to see you alone, she likes you.

If you find her invading your personal space often, or she hovers around you and she seems to be always there when you go somewhere, she likes you. Proximity is a dead-on indicator.

If she keeps touching you, she likes you.

Informative post.

Here's a couple more.

If a girl disregards any negative opinion from her 'girlfriends' - she likes you.

If a girl goes along with anything you do "Yes let's do that!" (I.e suggesting to do something) she likes you. Bonus points if its in-front of a social circle.

If a girl does little things for you here and there, out of the blue, unprompted - she likes you.

Any sign of nervousness, higher pitch tone and a locked up face, and breathe rate, she likes you.

I stress the importance of alone time and touch. These two are the prime give aways. Regarding touch, the duration context and feel are the most important.

If she follows you anywhere you go when she is alone with you, without even resisting, she likes you.

If she can't stop playing or placing her hair, exposing her neck, scratching her hand, or acting fidgety and nervous towards you, she likes you.

If there is a lot of lighting and her pupils are still heavily dilated, she likes you. Nothing she can do about it, it's reflexive.

If she always look in your eyes with a calm, easy-going face, or lowers her eyes often when you make eye contact, or looks away then looks at you again, whether you are looking at her or not, she likes you.

If suddenly she acts pissy at you for no particular reason at all or for imaginary reasons, or she hates you for no reason at all, she likes you but can't handle it. Girls that don't like a guy don't waste time being emotional on them, they are apathetic instead, they ignore him and avoid him.

If she is friendly with you in public, but you learn she badmouths you heavily to her friends in private, behind your back, it's possible that the girls likes you and wants to dissuade her friends to go after you. That's the kind of toilet room power play that queenbees play in their cliques. Girls are highly competitive and they'll never hesitate pick up fights or say made-up shit about a guy to weed out her competitors, even within their circle of friends. Same if she treats you like shit in front of her friends, but act totally differently when she is alone. In these case, if you like her, approach her when she is alone.

If she invites you in her home, in her own bedroom or she follows you inside your bedroom, with the two of you alone, it's strongly implied that she accepts the possibility of making out or having sex, if you take the lead and don't rush things.

As a proofing method, I asked my girlfriend for each item above whether it was true or not, and she agreed with all.

If you think she likes you, well be a man and take the lead. That's very important, you are in control and you're cool. Just tell her you want to grab a coffee to talk, sit besides her, and have fun with her, invade her personal space AND touch her playfully. The more she complies and answers positively, the more you may escalate the tension, and go with the feedback. If she backs off, don't panic, if she isn't leaving it's just that she was not ready to go there yet and she needs to be more comfortable. Get to know her story, her passions, her values. Project in the future, talk about things that light her up. If you find her looking at your lips or biting her lips, she wants you to kiss her.

Bear in mind, that a window of opportunity can close very fast, and most guys are bad at catching social cues. If you take too much time, she might think you are not interested or a total wuss, move on, and see you as a friend instead. That is why it's better to go for the type of relationship you want at the beginning of you knowing one another, rather than befriend her beforehand.

Flip this for men towards women (when applicable). How many are you doing by accident that makes you seem desperate?

ItsYough123 • 46 points • 30 November, 2017 12:06 PM

We've hit a winner! You often find guys who aren't as successful seem to react to the girl instead of the other way around. Now that's not to say you don't mirror behaviour etc and end up being an awkward cunt, it's just means sometime's it's good to be aware of what you're doing. Let her be the one to come up to you, let her be the one who tries to touch you.

If you're walking down in the shop and meet a girl and she's walking towards you, giving you lots of eye contact, let her be the one who moves for you. Of course, that means you can still get out of the way for girls looking to get past you etc but do so by having solid body movements. Don't be like a woman tip toeing, making jerking movements. Maybe I'm off topic now though lol

How can you be sure it's not just another shit test?

machialon[S] • 3 points • 1 December, 2017 09:25 AM

It can be, but you play it out either way. You don't respond to girls liking you by exhibiting excess interest. Stand your ground. Many guys play the cool guy card and girls will think you're not interested. Just commit. Qualify them. Don't be a dick.

I stress the importance of alone time and touch. These two are the prime give aways. Regarding touch, the duration context and feel are the most important, a girl means different things when she touches certain parts (i.e shoulders or arms).

There needs to be a section on the sidebar for body language and flirtation.

Original_Dankster • 48 points • 30 November, 2017 01:39 PM

Not body language, but still indicators she likes you:

1. She changes her opinions or preferences to match yours. This could be superficial preferences like food, drink or venue... Or it could be profound ones like politics or adopting pastimes.
2. She adapts her schedule to accommodate yours. Self explanatory.

WallOfFlame • 15 points • 30 November, 2017 11:12 PM

I notice #1 frequently. A girl will explain her opinion on a subject, then ask mine. After my opinion is said and conflicts with hers, she will completely contradict herself. Even if it's not true, she does this to establish your commonalities.

TheProphetPhysiquiel • 3 points • 1 December, 2017 05:17 AM

Similar to number one, if she says something to you like "I don't like guys with beards, but I really like yours," or "I hate flannel shirts but you look good in them," she didn't just suddenly develop an appreciation for something. Her hamster is telling her that since you have a beard and she likes you, she must like your beard too.

sumethreuaweiei[] • 4 points • 30 November, 2017 04:17 PM

The video you linked, couldn't she just be a newer reporter that's nervous? Looks young enough for that to be plausible bluesnsouls • 7 points • 30 November, 2017 05:45 PM

A moment of that video was converted into a meme some time ago, she was biting her lips so hard when he was talking.

EnzoGold • 4 points • 1 December, 2017 01:04 AM

She clearly is heavily attracted to him, what are you going on about?

machialon[S] • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 09:28 AM

Great additions. I'll add to the post.

TheWhiskeyTickler • 258 points • 30 November, 2017 10:47 AM

All of a sudden she dims the lights, pushes you onto the bed, rips off her clothes, and you start having sex....is she into you? Yeah still can't really tell, it's pretty dark in the room and she can't see you properly. Maybe she's Canadian and was just being polite.

and a shit test. don't go back to what she said she liked better.

imaginethegainz • 14 points • 30 November, 2017 06:42 PM

mr_excitement • 1 points • 30 November, 2017 06:48 PM [recovered]

Hang in there bro. Your time will come just keep working on yourself. I just got lucky with genetics. 6'5" dark hair, thin women tell me I'm gorgeous shit like that. luck of the draw. The moral is I took no action and missed dozens of chances. Do your thing, play your cards right and you'll be more successful than I ever was. You got man, no problem.

imaginethegainz • 10 points • 30 November, 2017 06:56 PM

I'm working on myself, but I too was born with semi-decent genetics (naturally muscular and lean, good jawline, dark hair). Throughout my childhood, adults would always compliment me on my looks so I never really tried to get a gf because, as the adults would say, "you'll have beat all the girls away with a stick!" Surprise surprise, I'm now an 18-year-old kissless virgin. It dawned on me only a year ago that I'm a 6/10 at best and that I would actually have to put in some effort to get into a relationship. Who knows, I'm still relatively young and naive and maybe sometime down the line I too will realize that I missed some opportunities. Thanks for the kind words.

[deleted] • 6 points • 30 November, 2017 08:37 PM

Exact same thing happened to me... Everyone said I was naturally good looking. I got fat and didn't dress well. Oh well, the improvement process is fun halfback910 • 27 points • 30 November, 2017 04:29 PM

A trick I've used that really seems to work for me is asking someone what color they think my eyes are over text/when they can't see them.

Most people, even close friends, probably won't know. I can't tell you what color my coworkers eyes or my boss's eyes are (I haven't consciously looked at them) but I could abso-fucking-lutely tell you the eye color of people I've found attractive.

Bonus points if they say something other than brown/blue. Like if your eyes are brown and they say "chestnut" that's as good as a blowjob.

lilstopligh • 17 points • 1 December, 2017 04:41 AM

This definitely isn't working for black people lmao but good observation.

Girls are very emotionally driven as you know already, nobody respects the timid they respect the bold. Your timid behavior inspires insecurity in her. Boldness shows dominance. Dominance inspires her femininity.

Redpilledaccordingly • 20 points • 30 November, 2017 12:51 PM*

Girls oftentimes do this to "save face", when an attractive guy isn't reciprocating or she just deems him "too good" for her, she puts up defensive walls to protect her ego. This defensive wall can easily be shattered by displaying to her you're interested.

machialon[S] • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 09:43 AM

XndrewKTB • 8 points • 30 November, 2017 04:14 PM

Moral of the story: If you don't get a flat-out "go away" there is a chance she likes you. If you start questioning "Hmm, does she like me?" based on her actions - there is a much bigger chance she likes you.

So no need to cold approach after all huh?

I mean cold approaching is WRONG. They know how make Chad know and they will let Chad know they want Chad to approach them.

Once they let Chad know they want Chad to approach them, Chad doesn't really need any theory regarding how to approach: just saying hi will work anyway.

Since Chad needs no 'behavioral game', the only game Chad needs is the only game the female brain understands: physical-visual game, that is, LIFTING = MUSCLE = ATTRACTIVENESS.

(Female body language should be unnecessary and uninteresting to anyone who honestly believed in male 'behavioral game').

Remember: talk is cheap; muscle is expensive.

Pussy gets REALLY wet when it sees a man's lack of 'behavioral game' can be clearly understood on the basis of that man's really visible muscles and physical attractiveness.

It was about swallowing bitter realities hard to swallow, wasn't it?

More on girls staring at you and when you make eye contact they sneer? Is that actually a positive. Why do they do it? I thought these girls were bitchy af tbh and ugly personally.

I guess you address it whenever you say that if a girl hates you for no particular reason she likes you, does that apply in this case?

My personal favorite and one that should not be overlooked:

If she talks to you and says she thinks she recognizes you from somewhere, she is not only interested, but bold enough to approach.

(If she actually does recognize you from somewhere, obviously this is not true)

Girls do this to have an excuse to talk to you, even though they're completely aware they don't know you. Act like a normal person and she's yours.

Does the square from highschool know this? We're all here to help each other out.

HellRaisor • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 09:58 AM

I have a question since this hasn't happened to me before. Some may despise a comment like this but this is so relevant to this post. I will tell u a story and u tell me wtf is that.

So there was that girl that saw me during my last year of high school but we only talked like once. This girl moved to the same university as me. She is a year younger. Saw her on her admission day to my uni and made an indirect gesture so i approached her talked for a minute and she said something like "oh u remember me!" Then left since i didn't know what to say but made sure to leave a masculine identity that im not a pussy.

Now she is in my uni and would not move her eyes from me i would hold eye contact with no smile but wouldn't approach her since she was with her girls.

Found that she was alone on a day so i approached her with do u have an extra pen, sat beside her got and closed by "give me your number maybe i can send her some material" idk why i didn't go full direct

I messaged her hi to days later and she just ignored it and didn't even read. That never happened to me but i didn't message her another time. Can she go so cold or that's a shit test? If she is not interested that can save me some time not thinking about talking to her, since i already approached another girl. The approach and text happened a week ago

There are a few good bits of advice here, but most of them are pretty much, "If she spreads her ass cheeks and sits on your erect dick, she probably likes you." How this fucking post got 700 upvotes is beyond me.

bunny1947 • 2 points • 2 December, 2017 05:23 AM

If she is a girl, she likes you.

[deleted] • 2 points • 2 December, 2017 06:10 AM

Can we get the same but "she doesn't like you"?

If she takes doesn't reply to texts, she doesn't like you (or whatever...)

usedsparingly • 2 points • 3 December, 2017 02:59 PM

I'm genuinely curious about a few of these. It's a nice thought to think that if you catch a woman looking at you and she looks away, or down and away that it means she was checking you out. But how do you know she wasn't just looking at you in general and looked away? Men do the same thing. It doesn't necessarily mean she was checking you out.

If she has her legs behind your ears, she likes you.

Fedor_Gavnyukov • 1 point • 30 November, 2017 07:38 PM

if a girl snaps "i can't wait to have you in my mouth tonight, daddy", she likes you

If you and her are talking and making jokes within a social circle of people and she laughs when you laugh and looks over to you directly to see if you're laughing, she's into you.

Also if on the first date you don't bang, but then she pretty much initiates the second date within a few days from the first one, this means she's ready to drain your cock into her mouth and was trying her very best to suppress her urges on the first date and not come off as a slut. This also means you did something right on the first date.

Most men will get some of this from some women at some point. Part of developing game is knowing how to see it and act upon it. You have to calibrate, which is what this post is about. It doesn't replace lifting, dressing well, fixing your posture etc. But it enables you to use your developed physical attractiveness.

Some of these sound so obvious that I feel really dumb for wishing I saw something like this 5 years ago but seriously, where were posts like this when I needed them. Thanks OP

Feminists gonna have a field day with this XD

[deleted] • 0 points • 30 November, 2017 02:59 PM

She's a stalker and wants to rape you. Back away slowly...

hawkjor • 0 points • 30 November, 2017 02:27 PM

Sone of these more casual ones are not sure signs of a girl liking you, for example if shes approaching you about something simple like the time. Some girls just don't have a watch.

Also, if a girl catches you looking at her and she "sneers", she's probably not into you.

FrankUnderwhat • 0 points • 1 December, 2017 09:20 AM

Yeah right

I asked ladies about the gaze into your eyes part and the look away part. They all said it's nothing and women just look around like normal people.

Go figure

machialon[S] • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 09:58 AM

Why would women admit to their weaknesses?

FrankUnderwhat • 0 points • 1 December, 2017 02:33 PM

Why would they not admit? They are not the subject of my case emcax24 • -1 points • 30 November, 2017 06:40 PM

These body language lists are bullshit. Women aren't like this. They can do all these things and it doesn't mean shit. Source : most of my friends are chicks. I've asked about all this nervousness and hair playing shit for years. means nothing. Her hair was just tickling her neck. Nothing more.

virusofthemind • 7 points • 30 November, 2017 07:15 PM

I must admit, I used to think the same way. In my mid 20's one of the guys who I worked with was a seriously good looking chap (as in male model looks) and when we went out on works outings and nights out as a group, the amount of girls who used to do this with their hair when he was in their vicinity was fucking unreal.

In one of my previous posts I wrote about the "foot point" ioi, this is where I first noticed it before I knew it was the car salesman's biggest tell in customers.

Some nights it was like he was a super conducting magnet and every woman in the venue had steel toe capped high heels on.

lsarcreator • 2 points • 30 November, 2017 07:57 PM

cmon man are you serious?

its all subconscious, and also why are you taking the advice from women? that is totally opposite of what you're supposed to be doing.

ever get nervous and see somebody scratch the back of their neck? all that was was a itch on the back of their neck that randomly appeared at the right time?

dont jump in to the comment section sounding like a bad boy who knows everything.
