It finally happened. We've been quarantined. It's a matter of time before we're entirely removed.

The mods will discuss our next move and report back.

In the mean time, make sure you visit Stony Brook University to find out what real positive masculinity is.

That's right. The people telling men they shouldn't be heard or seen are telling us they know what real masculinity is.

You couldn't prove TRP any more right than the admin are right now.

I don't expect to be here much longer. Make sure you register on <https://www.trp.red> today.

It happened as we approached 300,000 subscribers. Guess what quarantined subs can't see? Their subscriber count.

THEY ARE SCARED OF US.

If anybody feels inclined to help support our offsite page- which may very well become the homestead of TRP in the very near future, here's a bitcoin address to donate to:

The most ironic thing that the site they linked links to a bunch of articles/videos by Michael Kimmel, a male feminist and an expert on "masculinity" with a degree in gender studies.

He also recently stepped down from his position at the UN because he was accused of sexual harassment. Guess being a cuck really doesn't work. Also, isn't this very problematic? Why are they linking to a bunch of material written by some pervert?

TheImpossible1 • 129 points • 27 September, 2018 09:16 PM

Degree in Gender Studies

Holy shit.

Please read this. This is the opinion Reddit supports. This is the founder of Gender Studies.

Reddit supports male genocide. I have no words.

Sepean • 30 points • 27 September, 2018 10:16 PM

To be fair, she doesn't want male genocide, but that women use embryo selection or something similar to ensure that only very few male babies are born. Still a crazy idea, but not actually killing anyone.

TheImpossible1 • 67 points • 27 September, 2018 10:18 PM

How do you cut it down from where it already is without killing people. I can't imagine a load of impatient radfems waiting for people to die.

Also, limiting births deliberately is genocide according to the UN.

"Genocide is any of the following acts committed with intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial or religious group, as such:

- (a) Killing members of the group;
- (b) Causing serious bodily harm, or harm to mental health, to members of the group;
- (c) Deliberately inflicting on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part;
- (d) Imposing measures intended to prevent births within the group;
- (e) Forcibly transferring children of the group to another group."

While there isn't a listing for gender based genocide (probably because no one thought there would be a group that stupid), limiting births is classified as genocide under international law.

Sepean • 26 points • 27 September, 2018 10:24 PM

It's not my idea so I'm not going to defend it. And we should also remember that all sorts of progressive and leftwing ideas tried in the real world often begin with sounding nice but when people don't comply they quickly swing into massive oppression to make reality fit their twisted ideologies.

TheImpossible1 • 28 points • 27 September, 2018 10:27 PM

I fully agree with that point. The left has gone from "black people are people and need to be treated that way" to "white people are scum that should die"

Then you look at socialism, which doesn't work when human nature is applied.

The whole book of leftist ideas is just things that sound good without research on their viability or just outright hatred of majority groups.

[deleted] • 25 points • 28 September, 2018 01:19 AM

1. Leftism is a totalitarian force. Wherever leftism is in a position of power it tends to invade every private corner and force every thought into a leftist mold. In part this is because of the quasi-religious character of leftism; everything contrary to leftist beliefs represents Sin. More importantly, leftism is a totalitarian force because of the leftists' drive for power. The leftist seeks to satisfy his need for power through identification with a social movement and he tries to go through the power process by helping to pursue and attain the goals of the movement (see paragraph 83). But no matter how far the movement has gone in attaining its goals the leftist is never satisfied, because his activism is a surrogate activity (see paragraph 41). That is, the leftist's real motive is not to attain the ostensible goals of leftism; in reality he is motivated by the sense of power he gets from struggling for and then reaching a social goal. [35] Consequently the leftist is never satisfied with the goals he has already attained; his need for the power process leads him always to pursue some new goal. The leftist wants equal opportunities for minorities. When that is attained he insists on statistical equality of achievement by minorities. And as long as anyone harbors in some corner of his mind a negative attitude toward some minority, the leftist has to re-educate him. And ethnic minorities are not enough; no one can be allowed to have a negative attitude toward homosexuals, disabled people, fat people, old people, ugly people, and on and on and on. It's not enough that the public should be informed about the hazards of smoking; a warning has to be stamped on every package of cigarettes. Then cigarette advertising has to be restricted if not banned. The activists will never be satisfied until tobacco is outlawed, and after that it will be alcohol, then junk food, etc. Activists have fought gross child abuse, which is reasonable. But now they want to stop all spanking. When they have done that they will want to ban something else they consider unwholesome, then another thing and then another. They will never be satisfied until they have complete control over all child rearing practices. And then they will move on to another cause.
2. Suppose you asked leftists to make a list of ALL the things that were wrong with society, and then suppose you instituted EVERY social change that they demanded. It is safe to say that within a couple of years the majority of leftists would find something new to complain about, some new social "evil" to correct because, once again, the leftist is motivated less by distress at society's ills than by the need to satisfy his drive for power by imposing his solutions on society.

Throwaway45-- • 2 points • 28 September, 2018 01:28 AM but being a man does not count as a national, ethnical, racial, or religious group. So therefore, it is not technically genocide.

Hoodwink • 2 points • 28 September, 2018 10:11 AM*

If you read into enough eco-feminism, you'll understand that essentially men are not human.

And that testosterone is a poison (no I'm not putting words into their mouths or exaggerating).

There's a lot of mirroring of ideas with Jewish anti-semitism, but applied to men.

I consider myself progressive and socialist, but there's some truly fucked up people on the left.

[deleted] • 20 points • 28 September, 2018 12:54 AM*

Feminists are going to be in for it when embryo selection becomes a reality. What's actually going to happen is almost all make children will be born, with almost no girls. There's a reason why the Chinese gender ratio currently is what it is. The majority of cultures throughout history have preferred sons to daughters, because they realized that women are virtually useless at anything besides making babies.

CeleritySteam • 3 points • 28 September, 2018 02:51 PM

They're gonna be in for it when artificial wombs become a reality, you can already select gender. Oh hey would you look at that, your planned obsolescence is complete.

orcsorper • 2 points • 28 September, 2018 12:02 AM

Nope. That's still genocide. Nobody has to be killed for a genocide to happen. Everyone who was ever born died, or will die. That's life.

It's genocide when the victims have no births within their subgroup. They exist currently, but will not exist in the future.

HelpfulTomatillo • 36 points • 27 September, 2018 10:09 PM

She based that supposition on: "Real danger is in the phenomenon of male-bonding, that commitment of groups of men to each other whether in an army, a gang, a service club, a lodge, a monastic order, a corporation, or a competitive sport." ~ Salley Miller Gearhart, 1950s

When did Reddit become a pro "Gender Studies" website?

pill_miner • 28 points • 27 September, 2018 10:18 PM

It was always a leftist site. Leftists couldn't or wouldn't stop the gender crazies from overwhelming them and were corrupted as a result, this is what we're left with.

TheImpossible1 • 13 points • 27 September, 2018 10:41 PM

This. The left got bought by/taken over by female supremacists.

[deleted] • 2 points • 29 September, 2018 07:02 AM

Where did female supremacy come from?

I would argue the "black feminist" movement specifically is essential to understand how the prototype of ethnic disintegration was designed by commissar oppressors. A conspiracy prone view of the subject that is pretty accurate

Gloria Steinem first came across the radar of Black men in 1978 when Steinem put a book called "Black Macho and the Myth of the Superwoman" on the cover of Ms. Magazine, the magazine which she controlled. The book was "written" by a Black "feminist" and "activist" named Michele Wallace who came out of nowhere. Wallace was in her early twenties at the time, yet she was being touted as the "leader" of Black feminism. In the book, Wallace called abolitionists like Harriet Tubman and Sojourner Truth "ugly" and "stupid" for supporting Black men. She called Black Revolutionaries "chauvinist macho pigs" and advised Black women to "go it alone."

It's actually almost impressive how much damage one tiny group can do, while staying hidden from the public eye and using frontmen to distribute their poison. More details on the "new left" social engineer:

GLORIA Steinem is hardly the anti-establishment figure she pretends to be. The Central Intelligence Agency launched Steinem's career as a leftist activist. In the recorded interview above, Steinem openly discusses her work as a CIA agent, a fact which she later attempted to suppress. Here are more details from Kerry Bolton's book Revolution from Above: Manufacturing 'Dissent' in the New World Order (Arktos, 2011): One of the seminal ideologues of feminism, Gloria Steinem, got her start as part of the CIA policy of co-opting the Left during the Cold War era. From this beginning she was promoted and nurtured by the foundations and others of the globalist oligarchy.

In 1958 Steinem returned from India and was recruited by the omnipresent Cord Meyer of the CIA to direct 'an informal group of activists' called the Independent Research Service. This was part of the CIA's Congress for Cultural Freedom. It should be kept in mind when considering the pivotal role of Cord Meyer, that he was not only working as a CIA operative in recruiting Leftists as part of a Cold War anti-Soviet strategy, but as we have seen, he was a dedicated internationalist who co-founded the United World Federalists with James P. Warburg, and held the USSR responsible for having stymied US post-war efforts to create a World State through the UN.

In 1967 the New York Times reported that the CIA had funded American students to attend the Leftist World Youth Festivals in Europe. It was as an American delegate that Steinem was funded by the CIA to set up her Independent Research Service...

When you view such people like Gordon as intentionally inflicting a social disease (Ethnic disintegration) by attacking a social structural unit (male/female relations within an ethnic group) you can start to understand their MOA.

Steinem is like the George Soros equivalent of feminism: the most easily visible tip of the iceberg. If Steinem died, a different tribeswoman would replace her role.

Angela [Davis is another golem like Michele

Wallace](sfgate.com/opinion/openforum/article/Gloria-Steinem-had-strong-influence-on-black-women-2335328.php):

As national treasurer of the 1970s-era "Free Angela Davis" campaign, Steinem was a critical link in the legal defense of the Oakland scholar then jailed for her radical politics. She crafted the television speech that black Rep. Shirley Chisholm (1924-2005) delivered in her historic 1972 bid for the presidential nomination of the Democratic Party. And it was at Steinem's direction that Ms., in the early 1970s, began to publish Alice Walker and later appointed her one of the first black editors at the magazine. This, long before the author won international acclaim for her Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, "The Color Purple."...

I would argue that even from a white/asian perspective one should Ignore her racial inequality rhetoric and push for details on her intra-black community stances to see how she incites hate there as well.

The "globalist" Beate Gordon subtly did something similar in the 1940's by attacking a large part of the Japanese family structure. During the 1940's post-WW2 reconstruction as she wrote the "gender relations" part of that constitution, and her tribal elites are further trying to attack Japanese homogeneity (and increasingly also that of China) as visible today. The "globalist" promoted/chosen "miss Japan" 2015 was a half african woman, who stated; src

"I want to start a revolution," Miyamoto added with a laugh. "I can't change things overnight but in 100-200 years there will be very few pure Japanese left, so we have to start changing the way we think."

The woman who led and promoted this "miss Japan" had a blog at "Inesligron.com", now down/removed, but older web archives of that page had posts that mention her sons Bar Mitzvah

Rest of male population is worthless to her, she would love to genocide us all.

It reminds me of polish movie Seksmisja, it depicts fully feminized matriarchal society where men doesn't exist anymore, out of sudden two men get re hibernated from sleep, females want to give them death penalty just for being born as males, they discover that females are taught from birth that every single inventor/explorer was female (while in reality all were male). All of this reminds me ideas of her, except she want it to became reality.

This is a very disingenuous argument.

1) She was a founder of ONE of the FIRST formal university programs, not the founder of the area of study. In fact, there is no mention of her AT ALL on the "Gender studies" wikipedia page.

2) What you are suggesting is the equivalent of saying, "X person founded the study of Economics; therefore, everyone who studies Economics agrees with the opinions of X," which is patently absurd.

The only thing that separates their behavior from the textbook definition of Fascism is "ultranationalism" which IMO could easily be replaced with "ultraglobalism" and have pretty much the same connotation whereas the nation group is replaced with the unified Progressive™ in-group.

They use it as an ad hominem that doesn't mean anything to anyone with a triple digit IQ, but the great irony is that they themselves frequently resort to actually fascist means to accomplish their ends.

The real puzzling thing about masking our user figures is that mods can still see them in the about/traffic page. The only reason they're masking this is so the public cannot view how popular a subreddit is. It's Orwellian to say the least.

itiswrltten • 47 points • 27 September, 2018 08:37 PM*

Admins have learned a few things:

Bans create shit storms

This galvanizes a group and increases its numbers

"Permission to exist" creates control

They've done this very intelligently. Mask subscriber counts, hide from the front page and all = suppress discovery. I'm sure there are now firewalls against linking directly to quarantined subs, and overview pages of users hide posts to quarantined subs.

It's careful thought policing. They've even taken an upfront stance and linked to the approved thought source SPECIFIC TO THE QUARANTINED SUB.

Surprised it took this long. Time to get linked up in a new space and start over.

bsutansalt[M] • 33 points • 27 September, 2018 08:43 PM

it all started with leftist subs being allowed to ban mention of other subs, all of which is against the site's design. same with banning users from subs for having ever posted in other subreddits.

what's going to happen is there will be a flag day where a giant swath of the userbase (read: customers) leave the site and go somewhere else leaving reddit a shell of its former self and an echo chamber for those who remain.

the only question is where will the old membership centralize and when, not if, it'll occur.

'regression to the mean' level growth.

My impression is that it would be 0 growth, since people could no longer stumble across the sub. I mean.....there has been so much brigading lately, it would be nice for that to never happen again, but I don't see any growth. I'm guessing it's a segue into a ban, thought, after the furor dies down.

itiswr1tten • 5 points • 27 September, 2018 10:55 PM*

The difficulty with this Rian is it's not like putting the fraternity on double secret probation - outside a really deep inner circle our connections are (intentionally and otherwise) really loose. Without the in-person human interaction element the names I know here are just "nicks" (revealing my age probably...). My boys and I would just regroup away from the administration's clutches, and amusingly our allure to outsiders would become stronger from the meddling.

The advantage of an online community for the topic we're discussing is the same advantage usenet and the like used to have - you are your ideas. Merit is based on the shit you type into the ether. The disadvantage is just as obvious, our contributions lack connection to a real human being. So when it gets killed eventually or there are no more noobs I think, "eh, that was nice while it lasted. But I'm good." Flip side is if I could have KNOWINGLY convinced one more guy to just go to the gym and question what he's told I would probably never quit.

It's genuinely difficult to be motivated to join another Treehouse of Misogyny (much less get the newbs and developing characters to do so) when you really liked the existing structure or it was a hobby (source: WAS's mod post in MRP on this topic). Not ready to offer a solution just yet. But that's the problem.

I'll say one thing - they have to operate within a LOT of rules. They have shareholders, advertisers, RMR goals to hit, etc. That's why they had to disable ads and gold in the naughty subs. We don't have nearly as many rules....

Just curious if you think that there is anything to the new highly contested Linux Code of Conduct that just got put into the kernel right when Linus went out for self-improvement? Over the last few months I've seen a sustained multi-spectrum attack on a great many media sources relating to my interests and it has me on guard. Now I didn't bring up the Linux CoC so you wouldn't have been able to respond to that, but its exactly the larger cultural issue that I'm concerned with while I was dodging the self-improvement aspect. I don't see these developments in a vacuum spaced out over many months and years and so I was trying to alt strafe that conversation to get to the meta conversation, which is simply what I wanted to converse about.

The way that I see it is that we are twenty years into something and then suddenly something happens. Why did it happen just at that moment? In a vacuum or without other events then its just confirmation bias but if its a string of events then the many events are more relevant to me than a single event. Its just kind of funny that all whole bunch of one-off events are happening to the web pages and tech that I use, right? 2018 or something?

So that you don't get me wrong. I'll be fine, I have my degree, my experiences, my notches, etc. I grew up essentially being banned from noticing anything and if the sky is falling then I'm fine with that and I'll just get some cover.

By this I mean not only for a tolerant platform for the manosphere but for every other topic possible in human existence. Sure there's 4chan but it has horrible formatting. As long as the majority of Reddit users still feel comfortable in this site (either because they don't subscribe to the persecuted subs or they just don't care about politics at all), I don't see Reddit crumbling down, not least in the near future (I can say the same for Facebook and Twitter)

What I'd like to see is a 100% free-speech platform that doesn't curate content at all. The only time something would be removed is if the police required it because the content breaks the law. THAT is what reddit was intended to be by the creator, but he's been dead for a while now.

We_Are_Legion • 34 points • 27 September, 2018 08:57 PM*

Our visitor numbers must have decreased too. This post should easily be above 100 points.

I'm guessing TRP is disconnected from our 300,000 readers until they individually come back here and say they want to opt in again. TRP is not in my "home" feed either, which is pretty subscriber based, and shouldn't have affected.

That means, our sub no longer reaches users just browsing reddit. They have to first opt in, and then come here explicitly through the URL each time they want to read.

There's a public image that the red pill is a subreddit dedicated to abusing women.

This subreddit literally helped me get my life back on track, I was so emasculated and unhappy, I was following society's rules but it wasn't giving me fulfilling relationships.

There's some serious irony in the thing they linked because this was one of the first places to teach me masculinity is okay.

I don't agree with every single thing posted here but for the most part this subreddit is positive and helpful.

It's about becoming independent men; again, dangerous.

Dangerous....and panty wetting.

Society is built upon the idea a man works for it. Acts of selflessness and sacrifice are portrayed everywhere from religion to media, because it benefits those in power.

If said man becomes self-aware he doesn't have to sacrifice his happiness for others and stops obeying "morality", a lot of the bullshit going on today can't continue. The beta bucks, the overstrained slaveworker, the obedient castrated man, they would be gone. So they do this.

destraht • 2 points • 28 September, 2018 05:27 AM

For me the correct term is tithing. I like to tithe helping out very personal causes once in a while and right now that means help somebody X or buy a new tablet. Right now for example I wouldn't feel very good about myself if I didn't do one particular thing. That isn't exactly sacrificing unless I'm entitled to have the latest tech or that I'd even notice the loss. Sacrificing, no.

Thor-Loki-1 • 17 points • 27 September, 2018 11:53 PM

Simple.

The women don't like the game being run on them. This is a strategy where we see everything about them, and do what's needed to overcome.

They want the 20% to be there, naturally. Not made.

rebelde_sin_causa • 3 points • 28 September, 2018 05:23 PM

Me either. All I see here is men improving themselves. What's objectionable about that?

[deleted] • 3 points • 2 October, 2018 01:57 AM

Some consider us sociopathic. Considering our focus is male sexual strategy, and the concept of 'game' overlaps with the admittedly manipulative PUA community, some people believe TRP to be men who take advantage of female vulnerabilities. This is, in my opinion, a valid but overblown concern, considering women openly discuss strategy to 'finesse' men for resources.

Others are simply turned off by the anger-phase guys who tend to express their fury at women for their own nature of hypergamy. It comes off as misogyny in the same way as "men are trash" feminists come off as nutty misandry, because they are. Anger phase is an accepted part of TRP, but the rage posts and comments are not, and it looks bad even though mods do their best to clean them up.

[deleted] • 29 points • 28 September, 2018 12:47 AM

Leftists tend to hate anything that has an image of being strong, good and successful. They hate America, they hate Western civilization, they hate white males, they hate rationality. The reasons that leftists give for hating the West, etc. clearly do not correspond with their real motives. They SAY they hate the West because it is warlike, imperialistic, sexist, ethnocentric and so forth, but where these same faults appear in socialist countries or in primitive cultures, the leftist finds excuses for them, or at best he GRUDGINGLY admits that they exist; whereas he ENTHUSIASTICALLY points out (and often greatly exaggerates) these faults where they appear in Western civilization. Thus it is clear that these faults are not the leftist's real motive for hating America and the West. He hates America and the West because they are strong and successful.

Well - if this sub does get banned, I want to thank you all for being the push I needed to get off my ass.

You helped me lose 45 pounds, from 200 to 155, then bulk back up to 170 with a healthy amount of muscle. My life now revolves around the gym and what I eat and maintaining my health. I also discovered that I had hypothyroidism and TRT was a good option for me.

I went from depressed and wanting to get hit by a car just so it would all end because I was too much of a pussy to do it myself to genuinely wanting to experience more, get out there, do stuff. I'm not perfect yet, but so, so much better, happier, and glad I'm alive.

I added about 50% to my income can actually afford to save, go on vacation, take bigger chunks out of my student loans.

I have success with women again. I went 3 years without a single date. I couldn't match anyone but landwhales online. Today, I'm having to try to figure out how I'm going to fit meeting 4 new women into one week.

Thank you thank you thank you!

18 year old here. Discovered when I was 16/17. Considered myself to still be learning till this happened. I'd like to say thank you to everyone on here that has made my life so much more meaningful and made me a happier and better person overall. I worked on my body and health, my mind and mindset, academics and relationships just to mention a few things and everything improved. I can look people in the eye now, I have a firm handshake and stand up for myself. I also used to be soft like OP and I'm still working on it but am nowhere near what I was thanks to you guys.

Many of you will never know the impact you've had on my life and will continue to have as I grow older. I'm very grateful I found this resource so young and before this quarantine BS. I could see you out at a restaurant or at fucking Home Depot and you'd never know you helped me out so much with my life with one post you wrote up in 15 minutes a couple of years ago. I figured at some point I will have to leave this community and forge my own way as a man so I guess this is the beginning of the end, or the end of the beginning.

Thank you guys for your help I love you guys (nohomo). Make sure you guys stay lifting, make eye contact, firm handshakes, stand up for yourself, read books, go on adventures, don't be gay, lift weights, put your phones down, love everyone, meditate, work hard as hell, and lift.

Good luck to everyone with their journey, and may God help us through these tough times society is in.

nicethingyoucanthave • 71 points • 27 September, 2018 11:35 PM

Want to see something funny?

If you log out and check your comment history, you wont be able to see any posts you've made to TRP. What that means is, nobody else can see them either. What that means is, when you drop a red pill on someone in a different subreddit they are no longer able to view your post history and respond with, "ZOMG! A TRPER!!"

LOL. We're free! The reddit admins have made it impossible for blue pillers to follow us around and poison the well when we post on reddit! From now on, if you see someone mention TRP on reddit you can say, "what's that? Never heard of it" and nobody can prove you wrong, because they can't see your posts here!

immibis • 22 points • 28 September, 2018 10:59 AM

We_Are_Legion • 186 points • 27 September, 2018 07:44 PM*

It's a matter of time before we're entirely removed.

To delay the inevitable, I'd like to ask fellow readers: Do NOT to send admins angry and hateful messages.

Instead... Go apply what you learned, improve your life, avoid the dangers.

This is a lesson on the decline. As for reddit itself, You may register your discontent and concerns if you have them. But do not give them the self-satisfaction and the vindication they need to ban us outright.

Instead, turn the other cheek. Us 300,000 are, in fact, powerless here. Angry mails is the type of protest that will not accomplish much. It will actually hurt us. In this struggle, PR is everything. Dignity is important.

What we can do though, instead of lashing out and justifying them, is Satyagraha.

This community is very creative and thoughtful. Resist by remaining resolute in who and what you are.

[deleted] • 30 points • 27 September, 2018 08:15 PM

send_nasty_stuff • 3 points • 27 September, 2018 09:55 PM

Have you guys considered allowing more political posts or at least throwing a sticky up to direct people to (insert sub suggestion) and (insert debate sub suggestion). There are many red pill users that haven't taken all the pills and this sub has always stayed out of that fray but the enemy is forcing your hand. If we are men of values and courage we shouldn't back down from a fight.

What's more of a big fuck you to leftist redditors then waking up a third of a million people to (insert dissident political ideas related to recent quarantines.)

destraht • 6 points • 28 September, 2018 12:03 AM

I like it, but perhaps its better to allow the community leaders more time to process this. For example, if they are smart they will now upgrade their server since it doesn't feel like it will handle a shit load of people on there at once.

destraht • 4 points • 27 September, 2018 09:47 PM

I believe that this will really benefit the community and especially people who have just found their way here. What this will accomplish is making tens of thousands of more men just get it and they will know what they are up against for the rest of their lives. In my life the big ones were 9/11, Ron Paul 2008 and living in Ukraine during Maidan and the war. So men new to all of this will have found this subreddit and learned valuable lessons that changed their lives and then it will be taken away from them. At this moment they'll just get it and then they'll view hyper-liberal SJW not with grumpy suspicion but with utter contempt. In this moment the people who make up the system become just a bunch of quacking heads. That is a monumental achievement.

pill_miner • 7 points • 27 September, 2018 08:25 PM

Our side is always on the defensive. They ban us, doxx us, harass us, accuse us of ridiculous things and we always try to defend ourselves. Doing the same and expecting different results isn't going to work. We have to turn the tables on them somehow or we'll be exterminated and no one will care.

Reddit is simply not for discussing anything relating to politics or culture as there is only 1 Correct Opinion allowed. What a fucking joke, they even tell us to read about "positive masculinity".

Is it possible for trp.red to be shutdown? I wouldn't be surprised.

CHAD_J_THUNDERCOCK • 17 points • 27 September, 2018 10:00 PM

Hosting companies shut down alt right websites when Charlottesville happened. Broke their own TOS and the law to do it. The sites did not support violence. All the old rules are out and deplatforming is increasingly used. Look at how all big tech colluded to shut down infowars on the same day. Worrying.

pill_miner • 10 points • 27 September, 2018 10:09 PM

Azor_AHYPE • 68 points • 27 September, 2018 08:20 PM

It's pathetic. I used to believe in this "positive masculinity" before and I was way more angry and depressed because of it. I didn't lift ("You don't need to be muscular, it's vain. Just be yourself!!!!"), I couldn't approach any girl ("It's not polite to approach a girl when she is doing X, Y and Z. Leave her alone you freak!"), I lacked ambition ("Power will not increase your happiness, only a nice relationship with an Amazing Independent Girl™ and 2 children will make you happy") and wasted my days daydreaming ("Everything is going to be all right! No need to worry or take action!").

Fuck that shit, it's not healthy. Your masculine energy needs to be used productively, not repressed.

A bunch of grassfed feminist soyboys on the main page of that bullshit of a site promoting "Positive masculinity". Not surprising. It's a wonder how TRP held on this long in a site such as Reddit, considering the internet is full of millennial liberal far leftists, younglings who don't have a tiny bit of RP knowledge, feminists and SJWs.

karmalizing • 82 points • 27 September, 2018 07:23 PM

Positive masculinity == be a huge pussy, don't think for yourself, always put others needs first over your own, be a cog in the wheel.

I think that this wouldn't have happened so soon if Trump had lost due to the wider perception shift around that event. They would have continued believing that they were winning with their limited hangouts and alienation strategies but when Hillary lost they collectively lost their shit and so they broke the game since it wasn't working for them anymore. It was always going to happen, I'm just making an argument about why it is happening right now instead of a bit later on. I personally think that its very positive that they are forced to show their hand now rather than later and that we should congratulate ourselves on this. In a similar vein, Ron Paul hasn't been working to save our current system so much as to have a post game when its time to rebuild. I've now lived in Ukraine during the war and Colombia on the edge of the Venezuela crisis. Welcome to the desolation. Welcome, welcome. Start thinking about the reconstruction on the other side of this insanity.

I feel like it would be nice if you stored emails using a one-way hash. It would be a little tricky but it could be done using another temporary table that is cleaned often or at least extracted to only offline access after the email verification goes through. The reason I'm concerned about this is that due to how politics are going I feel that there is too massive of an overlap with sexual strategy and male empowerment. So if someone hacks in and grabs the email list then this community will really be at a disadvantage. I'm further concerned because the types of people who would want those emails are probably just about the meanest and most terrible people in society.

redpillschool[S] • 5 points • 28 September, 2018 02:09 AM

You know, I agree. We're dealing with spammers and trolls which is why we're dealing with emails. But I want to find a better solution. Expect an answer from me about this very soon.

destraht • 2 points • 28 September, 2018 02:23 AM

I think that its fine to store emails for a period of time in the main tables but long term is an issue, assuming people use their primary account.

You could either simply not ever store them in the main system and just store the hash with an activation link and then pass that straight through to a mailing system, or temporarily store the email for a period of time and then later zero it out. Its probably worth at least backing up that data offline since it could be useful for figuring out who is bad later on but if its accessible forever on the webserver itself then it becomes a liability for the community. You should probably at the very least recommend that people create a new email just for the forum and keep reiterating that point. Maybe that is just a simple low tech way to handle this.

You guys are likely getting far more than you bargained for due to just how whacky sex politics are these days, but so it is. They didn't quarantine the conspiracy subreddit so that just shows how much more relevant you guys are to the screwing with the power structure where it hurts.

redpillschool[S] • 3 points • 28 September, 2018 02:48 AM

The thing is- people like getting responses in their email. And if they don't, they forget about the site.

But requiring email has the problem of throwaways just to get in.

I want to fix this. I'm wary of emails being required. I will update you, but I think we're going to lax that.

BigBallsJamesHunt • 7 points • 27 September, 2018 11:19 PM

What do you mean by no harm? You harm all these women you seduce, as we all know that women don't have their own free will and you can enslave them with your toxic masculinity voodoo magic. Hopefully the forums get more populated

It's insane. You think that you may find some really disturbing content here after reading that. But just take a look at TRP's front page right now. The most upvoted posts are about self-improvement and independence ("Why You're Still Getting Shitty Results", "The key to relationship happiness is reasonable expectations", "She's just your Girlfriend, she's not your Siamese twin. She's not your partner on a mission to Mars. She doesn't control your oxygen supply", etc)

What search engine? Try Duck duck or Quant.

destrah • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 10:14 PM

HOLY SHIT! I use Firefox logged in under my account so I had to pass that "own risk" button. Then I fired it up on Chromium without logging in and I'm getting just a blank content body with "500". That corresponds to HTTP error code 500 for server error.

That is a trip because to me that seems to imply that the quarantine "feature" code isn't well baked and so was added in a rush. That gets my gears spinning that they are panicking and very higher up forces are yelling down at the dev team to do it right now or else.

I love this shit.

Random_throwaway_00037 points 27 September, 2018 08:09 PM* [recovered]

In other cases, communities may be dedicated to promoting hoaxes (yes we used that word) that warrant additional scrutiny, as there are some things that are either verifiable or falsifiable and not seriously up for debate (eg, the Holocaust did happen and the number of people who died is well documented). In these circumstances, Reddit Administrators may apply a quarantine.

Well, since we don't promote any hoaxes, I guess the only option left is that taking the RedPill is the equivalent to denying the Holocaust. Nice one Reddit. I love how it's stated that our ideas are "not seriously up for debate". Just giving more proof to the fact that they know they can't debate us, they would lose, hence they resort to censorship every time.

I looked through their website.

They have released two white papers:

Gender Inequality in: STEM Fields and Beyond: The Case for Engaging Men and Boys.

Men as Allies in Preventing Violence Against Women: Principles and Practices for Promoting Accountability.

The center for studies of men and masculinity have so far focused on violence against women, not against men and the favorite feminist talking point - STEM.

Their partners are no better:

<http://genderjustice.org.za/>

<https://promundoglobal.org/>

<http://menengage.org/>

Instead of focusing on the rights and well being of men(as women center claim they do for women) these sites are all about gender equality and gender justice, but not justice for men - for women.

EDIT: Naomi Wolf is on the board of directors..

TacoMedic • 14 points • 27 September, 2018 10:04 PM

The overarching idea behind TRP is that each man should be the best man that he possibly can be. I honestly don't agree with a lot of the principles that TRP stands for. Following some of the more popular ideas perpetuating this community is an undeniably effective way to get laid, but a lot of them come at the cost of losing some of your humanity. IMHO, anyway.

HOWEVER,

I have followed TRP for years across multiple accounts for a reason. Listening to an echo chamber of your own beliefs makes you a weaker individual overall, so having communities to challenge my own position will always be welcome as you can never stop growing or be too wise. I follow both politics and T_D for the same reason. They're both echo chambers full of people that believe the other side are blundering idiots, but studying both allows you to form your own opinions and ideas.

Freedom of Speech is the absolute cornerstone of Western civilization today and censorship should never be tolerated. This makes me so mad. I may disagree with a lot of you guys, but I signed up on trp.red today.

I mean, that's pretty much why he won last time. Sure, there are some people who love Trump, but most of his voters were more anti-Hillary than pro-Trump. And her camp turned out in way lower numbers than what they were expecting.

The funny thing, is that they think Trump is so awful, the next election will be a slam dunk. This is exactly how they behaved last time. Similarly, they are doing fucked up stuff and saying fucked up things, which are pushing people out of their camp again. I swear, Dems are experts at snatching defeat from the jaws of victory.

What the ever living fuck? This needs push back. You need to hire an attorney and sue the fuck out of Reddit. Original_Dankster • 12 points • 27 September, 2018 07:52 PM

If money (i.e. clicks and pageviews) was the reason to not ban us, then I would suspect that somehow, from someone, more money became the reason to actually follow through with a ban. I wouldn't doubt that in the culture war, our enemies are very well financed and they are willing to bribe a site like reddit to make up any advertising loss incurred.

destraht • 2 points • 27 September, 2018 10:07 PM

Modern news and social corporations only need to make enough money to cover a portion of their operating costs. They can keep rolling up the captured baby boomers through stocks with a pathetic P/E and then they'll just get round after round of "investment" from elite insiders once they have been blessed with the gift of being the Thing. The big boys have been getting basically ZIRP (Zero Interest Rate Policy) free money for approaching a decade now and this gets floated around to buy up the country. There is just a lot more money to be made subsidizing thought control than running it as a profitable business. Then if it makes money, fucking great but that is just a little perk in our system over the dry USSR style propaganda that wasn't appealing outside of their territories. Its just a roundabout way of centralized control with higher production values and sexier outfits. There isn't all that much of a system left anymore like what people reminisce about.

Among not only religious conservatives who had their views bestowed upon them by the unconscious process of cultural evolution, but also secular analysts who built their worldview from the ground up through independent thinking, it's common to lament the modern destruction of what we could call civilization-era sexual controls. Simply put: In the ancestral environment a small minority of men mated with the great majority of the women, and most of the men were left out in the cold to live a harsh life of involuntary celibacy. However, within civilization this natural fact about the human species has been traditionally turned in its head, and a one-man-for-one-woman norm has been established: the marriage institution. Biologically polygynous, yet culturally monogamous, the human species marched forward through the agricultural revolution and then the industrial revolution. But it doesn't end there. What most people don't realize is that this civilization-era system is starting to fall apart, and people are once again entering a more primitive form of sexual organization where men separate into the haves and the have-nots. Pornography, anime, prostitution, and other such devices might be useful to pacifying these have-nots and making sure to prevent too many of them from following in Elliot Rodger's footsteps. But this sudden unleashing of primal nature within the modern urban landscape isn't without grave dangers for societal structure.

You make some good points, but free speech and the first amendment might be the one thing the vast majority of Americans agree on. The far-left obviously doesn't. The far-right obviously doesn't. Despite what the media (run by the far-left) claims, most Americans view attacks on free speech as abhorrent. Call it the silent majority, if you will.

The vast majority of people at my work are Democrats. I am one of maybe 3 people out of 100+ that are not. That said, most (though, not all...) of them understand that they need to let people like Ben Shapiro speak even when they disagree with them. Bill Maher even said recently that Alex Jones gets to speak. More Americans share this sentiment than is reported.

Though this is bad, we are a long way away from choosing between silence and death. Plus, if the first amendment fails we have our second. Peace.

EDIT: Fixed typo.

iLLprincipLeS • 3 points • 28 September, 2018 01:03 AM*

Corporate-left's attacks have all been ad-hoc to this point. Think of it as artisanal totalitarianism. All communist heroes and no five-year plans. The entire process relies too much on individual bolshevik valor. Normally it requires a twitter bugler to scream anathema, which may or may not generate the necessary prog frenzy, which then induces the relatively slow corporate gears to grind the offender into unpersonhood. It's effective, but inefficient. And inefficiency is something corporations can efficiently resolve. But they formal need policy and procedure.

The corporate-left or, for sake of accurate brevity, simply corporations require a task list, an archive of social non-compliance, remediation metrics, service level agreements, and audit. They need to know what consumer units are defective, how these defective units will be removed, and what proactive steps are being taken to prevent their reintroduction into the production environment.

The keystone to all of this is a registry, or an E-Verify on Legacy Americans. I presume this will be called a Hate-List, or Justice-Sheet, or Nazi-Latte, or whatever the most actresses demand. The intent being to maintain a list of untouchables. This will assuredly be managed by one or both the SPLC and ADL. And once they secure IP addresses of hate-speakers from Internet providers, an amply-populated catalogue will be available for broad corporate resolution.

It should be no small irony that the industries most highly regulated by the government will be those least moved to destroy the right. Thus I presume public utilities like gas and electric will be available even to people who liked the country they were born into. Similarly, government-examined banks are more likely to remain benignly aloof of the conflict. But Visa and Mastercard will cancel accounts vigorously. Just as mortgage-companies, realtors, chain grocery stores, restaurants, retail, Uber, Amazon, and any other enterprise that has a recognizable brand and thus sensitivity to public pressure will likely join the effort. Many will join with glittery-eyed religious rapture, while many others will join for the same reason conscripts joined the Red Army: Going to war meant death was likely; refusing to go meant it was certain.

So I can imagine businesses plastering participation propaganda in every window as much out of fear as enthusiasm. We participate in Hate-Watch. Keep America diverse! Those, increasingly smaller, businessmen who decline to participate in the program—refusing service or employment to any on the list and submitting to regular validation audits—will be prone to unexpected bouts of hate themselves. Bill's Dry-Cleaning doesn't participate in Hate-Watch. Is this the type of business we want in our community? No!

Obviously such a liberal utopia places power beyond the President in the hands of unelected, intensely hostile (and ethnically homogenous) List administrators. This is, of course, the entire purpose of being one. Such clawed-creatures will rapidly become the most feared in the country. Though frequently fear may be allayed through generous financial contributions.

But for those less generously inclined toward mortal enemies, life can be made quite difficult indeed. This as avenues for earning or enjoying a living become tightly constricted. And those who presume their children won't suffer from taint will be highly disappointed. Why should our University accept the son of a registered hater when there are so many qualified foreign applicants?

Perhaps most drolly amusing of all are the certain reactions. We can be sure democrats have lost any aversion to blacklists; as such their enthusiasm will be extreme. As for the National Review/Paul Ryan wing this tyranny of mass-colluding corporations will have only one possible name: Free Enterprise!

Because if there's no big-government coercion then conservative principles are intact, even if conservatives are not. And if you don't like what corporations are doing to you then just build your own Internet backbone, data centers, payment rails, and global logistics chain. I mean did it stop Sergey Brin, Jack Dorsey, or Jeff Bezos when they were denied income sources, commercial outlets, and marketing platforms? I'll just ask Senator Ben Sasse if he knows the answer.

In the meantime I'd like to imagine Jeff Sessions will stop making cookies and crawl out of his tree before it comes to this. Plainly the Republican Congress will not be moved to action. And as a result, are not long to be the Republican Congress. Though ignoring those dormant entities, Trump needs to start issuing some highly motivational executive orders. Perhaps he will understand the gravity of this issue when his own card gets denied at Mar-a-Lago.

If you think you're red-pilled and you're also a leftist, you're wrong about one of those two premises.

It's been fun, guys. I never posted much here, but I found the community in high school and this subreddit changed my life.

I knew reddit would get rid of TRP someday. It was too edgy, it was too much "dark enlightenment". In a time when ideas are crimes and censorship runs high, this is only inevitable.

Peace out TRP!

johnnyann7 points 28 September, 2018 02:37 AM [recovered]

I've never understood why theredpill is so hated. It's the only men's advocacy movement that concedes and even respects the ability of women to have agency over their own lives, and tells men to be better.

[deleted] • 6 points • 28 September, 2018 04:24 AM*

If this was an elaborate scheme to get people to mentally prepare to hop off the tit and get down to business, it would be ingenious. Anytime shit goes down in my life, I get laser focused and start adapting. With no more TRP (or other places to congregate depending on how far this goes), we would all have to take what we know right now and go forward into the world, reasoning and questioning, ultimately focused on getting the best outcomes for ourselves.

Which is exactly what you guys want us to do.

I just find it amusing how the law of unintended consequences plays out. The attempt to snuff us out, while done with the best of albeit misguided intentions, in reality unleashes hundreds of thousands of men in the making, who will ultimately HAVE to step into the physical world and engage; while simultaneously affirming the horrifying truths they have already digested.

Maybe they take us off the quarantined list and everything goes back to normal. Maybe TRP never grows past 300,000 members because it was just the incubator phase and the egg is about to hatch.

Who knows? Either way it's time to win with our actions, our significantly stronger frames, our indifference, our independence, our amusement, our level-headedness and our intelligence.

BitOfALurker • 7 points • 28 September, 2018 07:13 AM

If they consider this "hateful" towards women, fair enough. It does get a bit vulgar at times, however I noticed the Feminism sub isn't quarantined. I've seen some incredibly hateful posts towards men over there, so obviously this is a matter of identity politics and not about hate. If it was truly about hate plenty of subs on both sides of the ideological spectrum would be included, but obviously this policy favors a specific side. Reddit has shown it's true colors.

[deleted] • 6 points • 27 September, 2018 10:51 PM

Almost never posted in this sub but what a disgrace to reddit. Reading Red Pill stuff significantly improved my life and yanked me out of depression a few years ago. I became a better person for myself, my family and in my relationships. What a shame. This was actually helping people.

DavidJewenstein • 7 points • 27 September, 2018 10:55 PM

Its time for men to find a way to take away women's "right" to vote or hold political office. Make no mistake the timing shows this quarantining is about Kavanaugh and how they don't want men to be able to express our opinion on this MeToo bullshit they're using as a Leftist political weapon.

RudeScarcity • 5 points • 28 September, 2018 08:39 PM*

Hearing about this made me sad. Haven't been to r/TheRedPill in years but when I first came here I was in depression, confusion, hopelessness, desperation for any answer but suicide. I didn't want to die but reality kept kicking me in the balls every day. I was the kiss-less virgin introvert loser who friends all had dozens of girlfriends or fwbs and made fun of for having 0 experience with women while already being a grown junior in college with average looks. I suspect the people quarantining this have no idea how tough it can get for the average guy out there brainwashed by modern society. Or those who simply don't know certain truths in life and are playing the game following stupid rules.

I studied TRP trying to find out what I was doing wrong, only knowing that something is seriously wrong in my life and its my job to find out what. The only thing I knew about PUA or anything like that was that women see me as a nice guy. I was confused how this was a bad thing so never wanted to change myself. Then after studying TRP it all made sense. I started lifting, running, stretching, eating better, fixing every single aspect of my life you could possibly improve and striving to become the greatest man I could be. I ignored all PUA, strictly followed TRP, nothing else. Everyone started treating me with respect and for the first time in a while I felt like life was worth living, I got the attention of attractive women I would never have dreamed of in the past. All the guys from everywhere, dudes I have never even seen around campus or heard of before came literally begging me for advice about women. I had no idea women could act this way, literally squealing from me just talking to them. I had no idea other men could look up to you with such high regard. I was a completely different person from 6 months before TRP and 6 months after following it rigorously.

The Red Pill was the most empowering thing I have ever had in my life, I didn't follow every message I saw, I took what I thought worked best for me and applied it to every day life the best I could, but I don't think TRP deserved to be quarantined... nothing I have seen deserves this. Men will always be men, locker room talk will always happen, if this disturbs you then don't read those threads, don't even bother coming to TRP at all? I have never seen any truly sexist men on TRP, only misguided confused ones. TRP encourages men to love all women, accept who they truly are, and treat them equally. Is this not what a feminist would want? I am seriously shocked this could even happen, like what the fuck? TRP is nothing more than a self-help community, its not even about women if this is why it was quarantined. Its to make guys feel less alone and teach them how they can become victors in life too, or at least get them to not give up on life with no answers and turn to suicide. There's nothing else as beneficial as this community has been to me in the entirety of the internet. I will never forget how this community saved me.

This community helped me become the man I want to be, and see more important things in life past women. Maybe it was inevitable, when I first learned about TRP I kept asking myself stuff like

"What will happen if this community becomes mainstream?" "How would people react to this?" "This is like all the stuff people would never ever say in real life, the taboo truth in a collection on the internet, isn't it too much for anyone who comes across it to handle?"

Well, it looks like shutting it down was the answer. This community must have grown a lot since I first browsed it, I had suspicions after I heard my older brother who doesn't use Reddit a lot mention it, then I knew for sure when I started seeing the "Chad" meme used everywhere.

TRP is literally being censored because its becoming popular and its too controversial. This is how Net Neutrality ends btw. This is how people begin to breach the first amendment, a crime against not only TRP but mankind itself. TRP goes against everything society teaches men and women, the way everyone expects men to act so they want to delete it's subreddit out of fear of it being true. OUT OF FEAR THAT INDIVIDUALS, MEN WILL DECIDE WITH THEIR OWN FREE WILL TO CHOOSE THE RED PILL RATHER THAN WHAT THEY'VE ALWAYS KNOWN AND BEEN TOLD BY SOCIETY FOR THEIR ENTIRE LIVES. Every other controversial subreddit can exist but if you become too controversial, question peoples ingrained beliefs you get kicked out of society, or in this case Reddit.

Next thing you know TRP gets banned from the internet.

This is nothing new, TRP already knew this would happen because TRP understands exactly the way the world works. Meninism? no, that's not the answer. Don't let this stop you, keep your frame. Look at the bigger picture. They can delete the subreddit or erase TRP from the internet but they can't erase your mind, your frame, and how clearly you see everything now. Reddit is just one dumb discussion website. Out of millions that can be made to replace it. In the grand scheme of things it is... nothing. It just happens to be the most popular one. Every website is nothing. What's most important is you practice it in your life and find happiness. As long as you do this no matter what anyone says or does TRP will never die. Do not side with the people who would censor, commit genocide, kill millions and millions of others simply for thinking different, harmless things.

Use this as a learning opportunity, this is how the real world is too. We live in a uniquely shitty world worse than any fiction ever imagined. However we just can't see it because we don't want to think that negatively. There are still a lot of truly blind and closed minded folks out there who can read all TRP they want but never understand it, everything will never click in their minds and the world will never come full circle. Thus they rationalize censorship being the right thing, justice, when in reality it is... a great evil.

Not to compare the two communities but incels did get a maaaasive traffic boost when they were restricted/banned the first time, and while the posts on the top right now are unusually consistently good, the sidebar is a high bar and is what hooks us all to start with.

Shortly after being appointed CEO of Reddit in 2015, Huffman said that some controversial communities should not be on Reddit, writing that "neither Alexis nor I created reddit to be a bastion of free speech, but rather as a place where open and honest discussion can happen." [13] Huffman later stated while Reddit had not been created as a "bastion of free speech," the concept "is important to us." This in contrast with a 2012 interview in which Alexis Ohanian verbatim described Reddit as a "bastion of free speech." [14][15] Huffman later created new policies that would require users to opt into seeing some content, and blocking material that encourages "Systematic and/or continued actions to torment or demean someone."

Reddit is shit now, tbh. They are censoring everything that is not liberal feminist.

[deleted] • 2 points • 28 September, 2018 11:17 AM

They will do everything in their power to prevent you from being Red pilld guys. I guess MGTOW is the only way, leaving the plantation completely is the way to fight against it. The best fight is not to fight at all.

JonathanMekerset • 2 points • 28 September, 2018 08:51 PM

Honestly we should just move over anyway, too much of a pain in the ass to worry about these fuckers censoring us. That's just my opinion though.

AnjaJutta • 2 points • 28 September, 2018 08:59 PM

I need to quickly save all the posts by Uncle Vasya.

AllahHatesFags • 4 points • 28 September, 2018 03:07 PM

"Positive Masculinity" means:

Be a male feminist.

Eat lots of soy.

Give your money and time to any woman who asks for it regardless of what they give you in return, if anything.

If you are in a relationship, cuckoldry is the norm.

Be sure to prep the bull yourself, also cook for him and let him sleep in your bed with your gf/wife while you sleep on the couch.

Feels over reals.

dontTalkJustListen • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 08:26 PM

Long time lurker, created this user to say thank you to this community. It has given me everything.

Highly controversial or offensive content? Heck yeah, of course. I'd rather have a mangina tell me how to be a men, how couldn't I have realized sooner.

I'll move over to trp.red. I'll start contributing. I will donate if that's an option. We don't know what freedom is until they take it from us (and then it's too late).

Plazma_doge • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 08:31 PM

Someone please archive the sidebar. The links in the older archives are not working and some of the links are linking to posts which need to be archived too huhub • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 08:39 PM

I'm working on backing up the entire TRP subreddit starting from the newest posts. I hope I'll finish before it gets killed by some rabid SJWs.

It was an honor to meet you and learn from you. See you on TRP.RED.

Batmanforreal2 • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 08:58 PM

Cant we just keep making trp1, trp2, ... etc?

redhawkes • 5 points • 27 September, 2018 09:02 PM

Not here. Different leash, same owner.

trp.red

Dawnguards • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 09:33 PM

What about theory reading column from this subreddit..and "new here" and all other super useful information? It has to be preserved!!

Brutal13 • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 09:42 PM

What about steemit? Do you plan to create a community there?

I've been reading this sub for 3 years. Keep it up.

I'm not surprised that Reddit as a centralized system works like this.

KrustyKrabReject • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 09:47 PM

What about taking the subreddit private?

Kevo4ever • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 09:47 PM

For anyone concerned about this I HIGHLY Suggest copy/pasting some of your favorite bookmarked posts/insightful comments into some type of folder.

I let one of my favorite subreddits be deleted and forever lost those golden nuggests. Don't let it happen to you too.

BlackendLight • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 09:55 PM

Anyone know how long it takes for the verification email to go out to the off-reddit site? It's been about 30 min, which is strange.

redpillschool[S] • 2 points • 28 September, 2018 02:58 AM

Should be instant. What's your username. (PM me if need be)

RedBlueGiG • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 10:57 PM

REDDIT CAN GO FUCK ITSELF. I HOPE ANY ADMIN READS THIS. FUCK YOU

[deleted] • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 11:38 PM

How the hell did the Stony Brook University link get approved? I want to know who picked it out and who approved it.

What an absolute disgrace. If Aaron Schwartz were still alive, this would not have happened. It is time to #ReplaceReddit. See you all on trp.red.

YaseenNoorani • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 11:56 PM

This day was going to come sooner or later. Found the sub about 2 years ago and learnt a hell of a lot, I have become a different person in no small part because of this sub....the theory posts, the field reports, the blue pill examples.....

It has been a pleasure folks...thank you.

themaxspence • 1 point • 27 September, 2018 11:59 PM

We are a legitimate threat now. We must be onto something.

Theguygotgame777 • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 12:12 AM

I can't even access it on mobile now. It won't turn up in my subscriptions, and I can't access it from the search bar. My post here had over a thousand upvotes, and it was deleted. I'm glad I'm able to come here at least for one last gasp. I'll miss this subreddit.

Lifteador • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:17 AM

I knew this moment would come eventually but damn I'm so sad it's happening already... this sub changed my life and I'm still only half-way from my goals. Just want to thank all of you for making this sub one of the few places nowadays where you can talk about masculinity without being labeled a sexist pig. I know we still have trp.red but it's not the same.

thesquareroof1 • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:18 AM

What can we do to fight this ? Message Reddit admins ? There must be something I can do to help us not get removed all together...

redpillschool[S] • 3 points • 28 September, 2018 02:54 AM

Do nothing right now. Mods are working the situation.

We will let you know if anything changes.

[deleted] • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:23 AM

I genuinely laughed when I saw that message about stony brook masculinity centre.

Nov51605 • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:23 AM

The Empress's Clothes have been torn the fuck off - LOLOL !

[deleted] • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:25 AM

Free publicity. People will look at what is supposed to be "forbidden."

sqerl • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:28 AM

Something about a community hitting 300K subscribers. Maybe it's the critical mass point... the longer we're here as a grass-roots, no advertising community, the greater our influence. People come for the novelty and stay because it works. 300K are not simultaneously wrong.

zeuD13 • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:32 AM

Hopefully we can make <https://www.trp.red> as popular. It will be a pity for all this source of knowledge and experiences to be lost. Meh, I feel like they closed down my gym and gathered all of my buddies in a communist gulag.

Nov51605 • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 02:25 AM

Man, so are all of those "endorsed/senior contributor" posts nuked &/or unsearchable now ?

Really rich info in those

redpillschool[S] • 3 points • 28 September, 2018 02:46 AM

Keeping as much as we can. <https://www.forums.red/i/theredpill>

slam9 • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 06:10 AM

Crap, I feel like I just scratched the surface of this sub and haven't really learned anything from here yet. Now it might not stay up longer. Can anyone who has been here a while put together a list of posts that are the best for newcomers to read? It's not hard to archive them after that.

Ainitux • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 07:02 AM

Plot twist: Jordan Peterson got you banned because you banned all the users that posted about him.

SecretMe42 • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 07:33 AM

I came here - not because someone told me to, but because my life was shit and internet searches lead me here. I lurked for a long time, but took in what I could, and over time am more confident, fitter, stronger and happier with who I am and my goals for life. Thanks for everything everyone has contributed. I find it insulting that the powers that be feel it appropriate to direct the community to resources that probably contradict everything TRP stands for. Although I won't waste my time looking - as I've found enough answers here already. Thanks TRP.

C19-H28-O2 • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 09:05 AM

It also means that users on the mobile app, or any of its superior alternatives like narwhal, can no longer access TRP. I had to pull up a browser and muddle through the desktop site.

FreeTheRepublic • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 11:46 AM

The real questions are these.

Will some of the attention addicted mods and karma addicted power users try to create a watered down version of the subreddit with another name splitting the community?

Will everyone be on board and use the new website's forums?

I don't see why not with Reddit becoming more and more hostile towards any niche communities but you never know until it happens. Some bitches love to cover themselves in drama.

ApugalyseNow • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 12:07 PM

Just wanted to say hello. I don't subscribe to this train of thought too much. But when I saw you folks were wrongthinked as well, I joined. If your online journal is thought of as "dangerous" by Reddit, you must be onto something. Keep the faith.

MattyAnon • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 12:45 PM

God damnit, without pressure of being banned I was getting scared we were not seen as relevant

GucciGabz • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 12:51 PM

The ones who desire the ban on TRP are insecure and sad as fuck.

einexile • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:29 PM

The next step is quarantining of users who frequent quarantined subreddits.

Apprehensive_Dog • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:37 PM

Man reddit really has gone to shit.

js390952 • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:55 PM

I've never really considered myself red pill, but the ideas shared here are ones that I independently discovered and have totally changed my life. There's a night and day difference between the person I was before I learned many red pill concepts and the person after. Sadly, this subreddit may be gone soon.

Maybe the redpill could evolve into a subreddit that could be more suitable for the general public, and still teach men how to be men. Either way, the ideas shared here have helped me be happier with my life and I'm thankful.

SaveTime • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 01:58 PM

So apparently I registered at trp.red with my email but completely forgot my username and password.

Anyone else in this situation?

coolredpill • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 02:35 PM finding this sub was one of the greatest things to happen to my life it has completely changed the way I think and it has provided me with guidance that I did not receive growing up.

most importantly, it has shown me the truth, and the truth has set me free.

I'm still very far, far away from becoming a real man, but I am deeply grateful for this sub

thank you all so much

BurnoutRS • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 03:41 PM

Power will never cease to exist. It will always be there for those who seek it. And so the forces of evil (or whatever adjective you prefer) shall always seek power to their own ends. So it shall be that the work of the forces of good, will never be done. The righteous must always work to seize power to keep it out of the hands of the unjust.

Now let's take the moral bullshit out and rework the message a little. You must always work to seize power to keep it out of the hands of everything which might work against you. You must always work to protect your own interests, because that's what everyone else is doing. Sometimes it's in another person's interests, to suppress another person's ability to protect their own interests.

I notice a distinct difference in bluepill and redpill thinking. Bluepill leads you to believe in happily ever after. Bluepill thinking states "you work hard and then when the work is finally done, you live the rest of your life in peace" this bled into everything I did. I think on a macroscale, I thought the world worked this way. That the wars of the last century were the final trials and tribulations and now we had finally achieved peace as a society. I thought work was like war, and retirement was the peace you earn after fighting.

The truth is that you can never rest. There's always a new battle to fight and in all honesty, happily ever after is one of the most boring, and soul sucking concepts imaginable. I'm terrified of the day that I wake up and everything is perfect, the weights lift themselves and I no longer have a purpose.

robmyux • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 05:15 PM

LOOK AT ALL THIS HATE!!

LOL.

Reddit is cuckold. Fuck Reddit admins.

VickVaseline • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 05:37 PM

I'm liking this quarantine so far. I've seen more good posts here today than I've seen in years.

FINAL_BOSS_HD • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 08:00 PM

I've been slacking in terms of lifting but I cannot imagine what kind of man I would be without this subreddit. So many things stated here proven through just observing how men and women act. So many other "redpilled" subreddits parroting the same things said here. FFS even some of those guys on 4chan spout some of the things here. This subreddit is truly a blessing and even if I may not call myself someone worthy of contributing to this subreddit (20 year old virgin, loner, not fat, but not fit either) I plan on taking a lot of the information from this sub to heart and to at least try and do better. Thank you guys for everything

Celicni • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 10:23 PM

A bit late, but it's been good fellas. This sub changed my life. Sad to (probably) see it go completely soon.

Watchingcluturefade • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 11:37 PM

Just wanted to add my $.02 at how absolutely disgusted I am that a company thinks they have the right to decide on the free speech that can be used on their business platform.

From the same people that sue bakers that don't want to make a certain cake, this absolutely ridiculous partisan authoritarianism will do extremely negative things to the Democratic Party which seems to be at the forefront of these types of social media silencing tactics.

Reddit, if you are reading this, you are going to get more people like Trump elected by taking actions such as these.

ivanms12 • 1 point • 28 September, 2018 11:56 PM

What will happen with older posts? Is there any way to view them after this subreddit is removed?

It makes a man better person and it both beneficial for men and women.

LeonBarosanul • 1 point • 29 September, 2018 07:21 PM

oh well, this is a nice cold shower to remind us all that TRP is fighting the good fight, and that we all have to remember to stay on track. this sham of a quarantine is a red pill in itself, if you know what i mean. throughout history, only the ones spreading truths (that are, first of all, uncomfortable) were marginalised and/or flogged. I believe in the truth, I believe in the resilience of this still growing community. fuck this shit, hard times create hard men.

DarkSyde3000 • 1 point • 1 October, 2018 09:16 AM

Whenever feminism takes hold in any society, the result is.....lunacy. Things like freedom of speech become policed on a massive scale, at least online. Go against the group think and these people, seeing most have nothing better to do or have what many consider to be an actual life, will try to destroy you. They will try to take your livelihoods away and reduce you to nothing. We've already seen it happen. They also eat themselves constantly when any of their own members dare to have a different opinion about something. Not an ideal group to associate yourself with lol. This is biological Leninism.....google it and read the wordpress.

plascra • 1 point • 2 October, 2018 01:32 AM
