

Couldn't help but be a little pleased

323 upvotes | 2 April, 2018 | by Ohboohoolittlegirl hrs ·  ...

Europe, 2018, and a table at work just told my manager they'd rather be served by a man. Thank you, feminists and good job.

 Like  Comment

   15

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

[deleted] • 102 points • 2 April, 2018 10:51 AM

Men need to do more of this.

logicAndFury • 52 points • 2 April, 2018 02:28 PM

Ever since this sub pointed this out, I've noticed my interactions go a lot more smoothly if a man is helping me. If a woman is helping me, I got to be careful not to say something to set her off and get her to be spiteful, whereas I never experience men being this vindictive. Men usually take pride in doing a good job, even if there is tension or if a party is out of line.

IntrovertedMagma • 14 points • 2 April, 2018 10:23 PM

I used to work in retail.. Only female costumers used to treat me like shit..

Men always were humble and didn't want to be annoying.. men usually treat people with respect

[deleted] • 2 points • 3 April, 2018 08:11 AM

noticed the same thing, women (probably correctly) think that they dont need to work because they could quit anytime and be supported by some man.. so they feel like they have a right to have an attitude at work.

[deleted] • 8 points • 2 April, 2018 05:11 PM

I am doing this everywhere I go from now on.

[deleted] • 79 points • 2 April, 2018 12:20 PM

Once the mystery and charms around women are undone, there's no reason you want them around.

Embrace the monk mode.

urban_hermit91 • 5 points • 3 April, 2018 12:56 AM

It actually becomes exhausting to be around them doesn't it? All the attention they are trying to earn, all the tip toeing you have to do when you speak to them. It's work I tell Ya!

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 April, 2018 08:41 AM

I would analyze time spent with/around women to the MH/FH - man hours to flight hour which means how much of effort you put in to get the desired outcome. Time is better spent elsewhere than to chase this ephemeral phenomenon which in this modern times is beyond the point of diminishing returns anyway.

BachelorInc • 34 points • 2 April, 2018 01:03 PM

Europe 2018...feminists and good job

I'm assuming this is the result of Islamic immigration, pushed by feminists. Not a patron who incidentally happened to be MGTOW.

Isn't THAT precisely the point of this post?

this_parrot • 35 points • 2 April, 2018 01:24 PM

I was on a 16 hr flight. Male and female flight attendant in my cabin. Male handing out dinner in left and woman on right. The guy finished his side and made it to mine and kept going while woman attended barley made her way up.

GYN-k4H-Q3z-75B • 35 points • 2 April, 2018 02:58 PM

paymetoo

NaughtyFred • 15 points • 2 April, 2018 05:13 PM

barley

I'm not normally a grammar nazi but I see this spelling mistake being accepted so often it's beginning to rustle my jimmies. The word is barely not barley. Barley is a cereal crop.

arcb7c69e2 • 7 points • 2 April, 2018 06:09 PM

The rest of the story is that she accidentally destroyed all of her meals, and was instead handing out uncooked barley as a substitute. So she was a crappy flight attendant for multiple reasons. For people trying to do a low carb diet, that'd piss 'em right off! (But not as bad as that guy last April who was literally dragged off an aircraft for refusing to give up his seat. He didn't even have an emotional support hamster to help him through that experience, but I suppose that's more a female thing.)

NietzscheExplosion • 2 points • 2 April, 2018 10:41 PM

haha somehow that's how I read it the first time.

[deleted] • 24 points • 2 April, 2018 01:31 PM*

If a female server doesn't find you attractive, and you look directly at her, and don't tip her enough free money, that can be misconstrued as sexual assault.

lovethcomm • 2 points • 2 April, 2018 02:53 PM

Any proof I can read on that?

Infoisaweapon • 11 points • 2 April, 2018 04:14 PM

Yes, a woman herself said the only difference between being considered romantic and being considered creepy is whether or not she is attracted to you.

lovethcomm • 2 points • 2 April, 2018 04:16 PM

I was talking about whether or not she can legally sue you for sexual harassment if the above conditions are true.

[deleted] • 7 points • 2 April, 2018 05:25 PM

Where have you been? There's literally thousands of MeToo lawsuits where women who were hit on by a business man (and later decides he isn't attractive) sues him for sexual harassment.

The definition of sexual harassment is now so vague that most businessmen in high positions are no longer willing to be in the same room as women (Pence Rule) and it's already starting to spread out beyond offices.

lovethecomm • 1 point • 2 April, 2018 06:23 PM

I am aware but that's US exclusive and it's slowly creeping its way through Europe sadly. However, that's the corruption of the law. Which US law states that a woman can file a rape claim and why is it not revoked yet?

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 April, 2018 01:12 AM

Because that is handled by the States.

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 April, 2018 01:13 AM

Huh, missed the part about "There isn't really a 'US Law' - "

tconwk • 18 points • 2 April, 2018 03:52 PM

Legit question and not being facetious. Is there anything that someone can point to that women are clearly and demonstrably better at? Obviously excluding biological things where men cannot be included.

Luminaffy • 13 points • 2 April, 2018 04:22 PM

They are better at manipulating, blackmailing and gossiping and when they do all of them at the same time they call it multi tasking.

Whymn are better at multi tasking REEEE

elkeryos • 3 points • 2 April, 2018 06:13 PM

They really aren't. This requires logic and understanding your prey. It's just that they do it way more often because of their lack of a moral compass.

RetiSetGo • 6 points • 2 April, 2018 08:13 PM

Agree. They're only "good" at it because their victims are completely unsuspecting. In an open competition they always lose.

grewapair • 2 points • 3 April, 2018 02:39 AM

Don't forget 'scamming whatever system they can'.

RetiSetGo • 7 points • 2 April, 2018 08:15 PM

Arguably, they are better at tedious tasks. Tasks in which the process is already safe and understood, but still tedious and meticulous (think secretarial, nursing etc.). Which also happens to be the type of jobs they gravitate towards naturally (weird coincidence right?)

[deleted] • 8 points • 2 April, 2018 04:20 PM

Apart from biologically being required to be 50% of creating life I can't think of anything. Ever ;/

Oh and soon Women won't be required to create life anyway so.

IntrovertedMagma • 2 points • 2 April, 2018 10:25 PM

Actually the majority are doing a shit job at creating life since they remember to get pregnant over 30..

adventurefoundme • 2 points • 2 April, 2018 08:08 PM

I'd say maybe having a maternal connection with their child and that thing about them seeing colours better and having better memory. But I'm probably wrong, men were simply made to be better in many things, it's sad how we stand by and let these feminists take over

IAmASeeker • 1 point • 2 April, 2018 06:45 PM

Recognizing subtle differences in color and lighting. Picking out smells, especially the smells of rot and decay. Hearing high pitched sounds at the expense of less sensitivity to deep sounds. Bending at the hips.

That's all I've got off-hand.

[deleted] • 13 points • 2 April, 2018 02:41 PM

I am so happy to see a man take a stand like that and show some balls, I'm almost tearing up.

Yehoshua_Benaiah • 11 points • 2 April, 2018 04:04 PM*

Thank God for the #metoo movement. Just goes to show that feminism does harm women also. But they asked for it. So enjoy not being allowed to attend parties, not having men meet with you privately and not having men interact with you ladies. This is what happens when you go on a bogus witch hunt. Now everyone has seen your ugly face for what it truly is. And so now you have become exactly what you accused us men of being, which is TOXIC. LOL! XD

[deleted] • 10 points • 2 April, 2018 12:22 PM

Can't blame them. Men seem more into the point and faster/more knowledgeable when it comes to that stuff. Just anecdotal of course by still. I've had some very good service from female bartenders/waitresses but those seem to be the exception sadly.

Infoisaweapon • 5 points • 2 April, 2018 04:10 PM

I'm going to do this at Hooters. I can't wait to see the looks I get.

[deleted] • 3 points • 2 April, 2018 12:57 PM

I go out to eat like this maybe once or twice a year. I'm not even mad. It's a stupid hobby but generally the staff is okay, both men and women. Like I said in my previous post I give anybody working a job like that credit, especially decent looking girls because let's face it. They don't ever ever have to work a day in their life but they still go and clock in and serve other humans food at 2+ in the morning.

dosemyspeakin • 1 point • 2 April, 2018 02:22 PM

Don't feel sympathy for the animals

[deleted] • 3 points • 2 April, 2018 02:54 PM

I don't. Humans who serve no purpose can natural die off. Still. I give anybody credit working 3rd shift.

[deleted] • 3 points • 2 April, 2018 06:04 PM

I'll do this if someone is a typical modern feminist.

[deleted] • 1 point • 2 April, 2018 07:34 PM

That's an easy way to bring a lot of negative attention to yourself.

digitalEarthling • 1 point • 3 April, 2018 01:22 PM

Ice all females out!

