

One short dialog that redpilled me

27 upvotes | 23 June, 2017 | by bad_guy_steve

It happened few years ago when I had my first a girlfriend for like two months. I wasn't familiar how women behave that much and I thought the smarter ones are not whores. There was small dialog between her and her roommate (she was 8 or 9 on look scale). Roommate got back from some date and was disappointed. She was heading then to some party.

| Ex: Just don't go to bed with random guy.

| Roommate: I don't have place to do it anyway (pointing out that we were taking the apartment)

Edit: So conclusion is that a lot of girls when something bad is going on with their lifes they just fuck random guys.

I dont really understand why you were redpilled by this, meaning I think I'm missing the point of the dialogue, I'm quite new here. Can you explain what about this dialogue made you go MGTOW?

The only thing stopping her from fucking a random Chad is not having a place to do it.

That's how I took it.

Yup, that's how easy they have it.

Going out means they can hook up with anyone who looks at them if they so wish.

Another thing I would probably be thinking in a situation like this is:

"Hmm, if they are talking about hooking up with random guys so nonchalantly that must mean she does it regularly. That also means there's a good chance my gf brings home random men regularly... "

I seen a study where if a woman cheats, she's 350% more likely to cheat again.
