

Submission Guidelines - Reopening Submissions.

98 upvotes | 25 April, 2016 | by redpillschool

This weekend we had a nice refresher on some basic red pill articles and knowledge, and I'm happy to say it was a great success. We were featured as subreddit of the day, which is pretty cool.. and based on the traffic stats I think it's safe to say we made them a little more popular rather than the other way around..

So we're reopening submissions today, with a few caveats. We're looking to increase the average quality of our submissions so with that in mind please observe the following:

- All posts should tie into red pill theory.
- If you are posting a red or blue pill example, don't open with your example. Instead, formulate your theory and use anecdotes to tie it together. Bring trends to the table rather than individual experiences where you first saw TRP in action. Any anecdotes missing solid reasoning and analysis will be removed. That includes examples with a small low-quality analysis at the bottom. If you're surprised that TRP works, that's great, but we don't need to hear your first time, we already know.
- Don't post individual field reports. Include multiple field reports that tie into a common theme or theory. If you observed theory in action, make a hypothesis, test your hypothesis, report the results.
- If you're in doubt, read the sidebar to see the sort of quality analysis we're looking for.
- If you are posting about current events, include a red pill analysis of what is transpiring, and why.
- If your analysis is "You are the prize" don't submit it. While this platitude isn't wrong, it provides zero new insight about sexual strategy. And platitudes are annoying.

We're going to remain very strict about what sort of quality we're looking for.

If you're not sure you've quite got it, take some time to browse and read before participating.

Seems like a good idea to ease back into it to try and keep the new members. Also seeing they theory in practice rather than a field report with AWALT tacked on the just seems like a better idea over all. More education and less circle jerking seem to be the way you are steering and I'm all for it.

less shitposts for us to wade through? yes please

DocForcekin • 7 points • 25 April, 2016 04:43 PM

Before you post ask yourself if anybody will benefit from reading it, besides your own ego, then act accordingly.

Red Pill School is basically Moses at this point. He is trying to take you from Egyptian Blue Pill bondage to the Red Pill promised land. The problem is that you're being a fucking Jew and complaining concern trolling and building the Golden Calf of insecure beta macho poster. So now Red Pill School has to strike down all of the betas among him.

That being said happy Passover

He went up the mountain and brought down the sidebar?

Onward to the land of milk and honeys!!!

I didn't know you knew the Bible.

GayLubeOil • 4 points • 25 April, 2016 07:29 PM

I went to religious school for a little bit.

[deleted] • 2 points • 25 April, 2016 02:48 PM

Wouldn't he Abraham, maybe Noah? I think you would be Moses, or Mel Brooks or something

GayLubeOil • 8 points • 25 April, 2016 02:56 PM

If he's Abraham then he has to circumcise himself. If he's Noah then his son jerks off to his naked passed out body. So I guess all of us are Moses.

Setting up Lego's as bible scriptures...interesting hobby.

Little known fact, the phrase "to uncover your father's nakedness" is a euphemism for fucking his wife, it has fallen out of use for obvious reasons but basically Ham cucked his dad.

150k subscribers!!!! Good job mods, great community we have here.

JohnDoeDude • 3 points • 25 April, 2016 03:25 PM

These are very good points.

The mods know what to do to keep trp clean from the low IQ toxic individuals.

csehszlovakze • 3 points • 25 April, 2016 03:32 PM

also congrats to the 150k subs in advance

What about posts that indirectly tie into TRP e.g. SMV boosting posts such as Fitness and corporate land ?

redpillschool[S] • 3 points • 26 April, 2016 01:36 PM

Yes those are related to sexual strategy.

I think that as there is quite a large difference between information that's based at the 'new guys', and the RP philosophy at times being discussed by 'older more experienced' members.

So maybe we should try and develop some kind of sliding scale to nominate the "level" of "RP knowledge and comprehension" required to get the most from the thread/post/discussion, which gives the reader an idea of it's "RP difficulty" levels' in the thread and whether or not they are in a position to contribute -- just as has been requested by RedPillSchool of the submissions ITT - make it stuff that's almost TRP2.0 that's been given serious consideration by RP members with a solid grasp of RP philosophy.

e.g none of Rollo's posts are on a 101 level anymore, a few years back sure, but a RP noob would most likely flounder in current TRM discussions due to their lack of understanding of what is being discussed amongst experienced RP practitioners -- those guys wgo are now Living by RP philosophy, having passed the initial learning phases and have Real life experience of it's application, not simply a theoretical grasp of TRP's philosophy.

Whilst beginners are often told to just "read the sidebar material" first as it's "RP101" level I think we should also give the new guys an idea of which sequence to read them in e.g "All in One RP101" is what it says, a coverage of TRP basics, and IMO The Schedules of Mating is also RP101 level as is the Misandry Bubble and new members must first comprehend ALL these concepts before they move onto others - we must crawl before we walk --

Whereas a thread like "Relationships, the Red Pill, and you" requires a greater level of RP comprehension to be properly comprehended as does one's like Briffault's Law which is more a "RP 201" level and makes no reak sense to a rp noob, if read 'on it's own'.

All the way through to conversations in posts between the much more 'experienced' RPer's are discussing the finer points of game/Holding Frame' that would be more like "RP401" level" and up ... almost like developing a RP curriculum to take you through the levels as you progress in "digesting TRP"

Whereas I think 'dread game' (a last resort/desperation and rather beta tactic imho) in particular is minimum RP201 level with "dread game on Plates", and "Dread Game in an LTR" being on very different "levels" altogether, more like "RP 3-401" as it requires far more finesse and understanding of many RP factors and a very solid understanding of RP philosophy to pull off DG in an LTR successfully, in fact I think 'dread game' in general is a last resort in any relationship and not for 'RP noobs' to even try and pull off until they have developed a reasonable Frame etc.

Hopefully by 'flairing posts by their "RP difficulty level"' (maybe by the mods and EC's et al' could decide on the 'level' of any given thread,, we could help keep the noobs on track and raise the signal to noise ratio in the more esoteric threads written by the much more experienced members, something I'd like to see happen.

Of course things like Game and Frame start at the 101 level all the way through to "RP801+" but advice on exercise and lifting might top out around the RP 500 levels as once you've got a solid understanding of "why TRP advocates 'lifting' and the importance of a high quality nutrition etc, once those members have begun DOing these things, the rationale for such advice becomes "self evident" and needs little (if any) further RP advice (also as personal preferences play a large path, i.e we all don't need to eat exactly the same foods to have a nutritious diet etc)

However, things like "how to successfully manage an LTR with a RP lifestyle" is, in my opinion, a work in progress, there's the "RP101" level which basically says "you're the Captain and she's the First mate" which is a great analogy to RP LTR basics BUT as any LTR progresses and evolves it constitutes far more than just that, i.e. "push/pull" and "Alpha's being a little beta at times (by choice of course) to maintain a harmonious LTR I think this would facilitate newer guys leaning the basics faster and more easily due to the guidance given Lurker here...haven't fully swallowed...but I'm happy to see this because certain posts felt like rants/vents or makeover rather than useful, heavy, content that can be used for personal growth in given areas (depending on what you prefer). I thank you for the renovation.

It would also be nice if the comments were policed more rigorously. I know the mods are busy, last thing I want is to ask more of them but the lack of quality new posts is not as serious an issue as the sea of idiotic and offensive comments in here. The vitriol and hate levelled at each other in here is completely unacceptable and juvenile. Junior members should get a 30 day ban for significantly stupid or disrespectful comments. We need some fucking respect in this club.

Members do not want to dob in other members for offensive/ disrespectful comments because this is feminine and weak to complain and ask the mods for help. So unfortunately it will be left up to the mods. If they want help identifying toxic comments then I volunteer, so mods, PM me if you want that help. The pups in here need some beatings from their elders so they can learn some goddamn manners and respect. Let the beatings commence.....

redpillschool[S] • 1 point • 26 April, 2016 01:37 PM

If you see something bad- report it. The mods will find it that way.

[deleted] • 1 point • 27 April, 2016 05:55 AM

Sure, I will do that, I did not want to as it seems weak to "dob" people in but I care about the site. I will reserve reports for the most offensive and dangerous stuff. I am not a prude and robust masculine debate is one of the reasons I am here.

RPmatrix • 2 points • 29 April, 2016 04:23 PM

I did not want to as it seems weak to "dob" people in you're not dobbing in people so much as you're dobbing in their post
It's all good bro
