

Dropped a girl who put me in the friendzone, people hate me for it.

February 2, 2018 | 62 upvotes | by Joeatomic

What's up guys, I'm a sophomore in highschool and this girl and I have messed around before. However, atm she has a bf and I have tried escalating but was shut down physically not verbally, so I decided to drop (due to other orbiter like reasons too). Apparently she had a breakdown and cried about me not being her best friend (with benefits at the beginning) anymore . How do I blow these annoying flies off of me? They keep asking me why I dropped her and how I should be her friend.

Archived from theredarchive.com

Comments

fnordsnord • 1 points • 2 February, 2018 06:28 PM [recovered]

The correct answer to "why can't we be friends" is "we are."

And then don't.

Any time the subject comes up, look baffled and say "We're friends. Who says we're not friends."

But don't waste any time, money, or energy on her. If you're not getting what you want, why should she get what she wants?

(For God's sake, don't EXPLAIN that. Just stick with, "What? We're friends.")

zbo01h • 21 points • 2 February, 2018 10:49 PM

This is the correct answer, and an excellent example of not just an abundance mindset but also a DGAF attitude.

Girls want drama. You can give it to them to make them fuck you, or you can let them give it to you for free. Don't do the latter.

And that part at the end about not explaining - YES. DO NOT EXPLAIN YOURSELF SO MUCH. In fact, tell yourself to fucking speak less.

WideawakeMind • 1 points • 3 February, 2018 03:47 AM [recovered]

What's the benefit of not explaining yourself much?

EGOtyst • 29 points • 2 February, 2018 07:44 PM

This is an excellent answer. Think about it like this: She is no different now than any of your guy friends would be. You are NOT going to be hooking up. Treat her like you would any of them.

"You want to come pick me up and we can go to the mall while I look at clothes?" Nope.

No reason to make a thing out of it. Just don't bend over backwards for her.

chazthundergut • 8 points • 2 February, 2018 09:53 PM

Pay attention. This is how you think. This is how you act.

Should be applied to many similar situations.

max_peenor • 2 points • 3 February, 2018 03:11 PM

Exactly. She is trying to get him to argue the point. Never argue the point with women.

MrButtholePoopy • 2 points • 3 February, 2018 01:13 AM* exactly, you can be friends but not have to be invested in her/(dont say the last part lol) when i was in high school i had lots of people who i considered "friends" who i literally only saw in school. you do not owe her or anyone else an explanation. do what the guy above me said, if someone asks just say "we are firends" and thats it. never explain yourself.

dr_warlock • 1 point • 3 February, 2018 01:05 AM

This could somehow be a mini post. Copy&paste his post, followed by your response and some extra.

</end thread>

/u/bsutansalt, lock it.

smirk_addict • 1 point • 3 February, 2018 01:18 AM

Damn this is good.

rttrBuck • 1 point • 3 February, 2018 12:40 PM

Not that I disagree with it, I see the logic in it, but why not answer "no, I dont wanna be friends anymore" ? I'm just trying to understand things a little better.

fnordsnord • 4 points • 4 February, 2018 11:17 PM

He lives in a closed social ecosystem. Breaking off a friendship without "cause" is "mean," and it will affect how he is perceived in the social gestalt.

Worse, it will give the impression that all he was interested in was pussy, and when he was denied that, he got all butthurt. And looking butthurt over pussy lowers SMV.

rttrBuck • 1 point • 5 February, 2018 09:50 AM

Makes perfect sense, thanks!

menial_optimist • -23 points • 2 February, 2018 07:35 PM

So you advocate dishonesty as a general life principle? Dishonesty is a fear based action, so because he fears verbal retaliation from those around him he is supposed to lie? Not the sign of a red pill individual. He does not need to explain every detail, but when asked he may say "I am not interested in beings friends with her". When pressed further, he might smile and change the subject.

EGOtyst • 12 points • 2 February, 2018 07:42 PM

Don't be pedantic.

What is to say they aren't friends?

thefisherman1961 • 26 points • 2 February, 2018 07:44 PM

It's called plausible deniability. It's a Machiavellian technique. If he goes around saying they're not friends and explaining himself it makes him look butt hurt and weak, which is what she wants. That's losing frame by being pulled into other people's.

If he is completely stoic and holds frame about it then it will drive her crazy and give her more tingles, which may be enough to drive her back into his dick at some point.

askmrcia • 9 points • 2 February, 2018 08:33 PM

So you advocate dishonesty as a general life principle?

The girl is the one being dishonest. She says that op is her best friend when all she wants from op is attention and validation. Doesn't sound like a real friend to me.

Gawernator • 3 points • 2 February, 2018 08:00 PM

It's not dishonesty, it's not being socially retarded. Male female "friendship" dynamic is nothing like same sex friendship killxorxbexkilled • 3 points • 2 February, 2018 09:12 PM

I'll tell the truth to those I feel deserve to hear it. This isn't bible school. Fuck the other guy.

Whisper • 3 points • 3 February, 2018 12:13 AM

Sperg-like typing detected.

chazthundergut • 1 point • 2 February, 2018 10:08 PM

It's not a lie. I'm friends with lots of people who I don't hang out with frequently, don't talk on the phone with, etc.

Friendship is a very broad definition. He knows this chick but for his own wellbeing he is limiting his exposure to her, like he could with any other friend. And he does not need to explain himself to anyone at all.

redd_reality • 15 points • 2 February, 2018 10:43 PM

The master is upset her slave is taking off his mental shackles and deciding he isn't going to be her slave anymore.

Society, and even your friend circle shames beta boy slaves into remaining slaves.

How do you deal with those who would shame you back into your shackles? Shame them. Tell them they're overstepping their bounds. You decide how people treat you and you decide if you want others advice.

If you let people they will tell you exactly how to live.

Put your boot on their neck and tell them how to live once in a while.

MrButtholePoopy • -2 points • 3 February, 2018 01:17 AM

what happened to you?"

redd_reality • 5 points • 3 February, 2018 02:07 AM

I got woke, son.

Edit: The boot on the neck was a metaphor, btw. I mean, use cunning the way everyone else uses it.

MillionaireSexbomb • 1 point • 3 February, 2018 02:12 AM

He's right, this is what you have to do, especially if you don't want to deal with continued nonsense

Merwebb • 8 points • 2 February, 2018 06:37 PM

She is being you asking why no more sex.

You did not get closure on the sex stopping, why should her get hers?

She could be using this in order to get people point at you on your "social break up" and get under that cover. People always assume (wonder why) that a dude and a girl hanging out means sex. Now she has a boyfriend and wants to look clean and pristine. Who knows?

As the other dude said, play it cool.

LordThunderbolt • 3 points • 2 February, 2018 06:50 PM

Just tell them to mind their business and stay in their lane. Literally say "You should mind ur business and stay in your lane. That doesn't concern you"

BestSC86 • 3 points • 2 February, 2018 06:46 PM

Make it sound like you are just being honest.....

You have different feelings about the relationship than 'girl' so pretending otherwise isn't honest to her or you.

I would just say "hey we are friends". But you have to make them understand that she is being very unfair to you in that she wants to get from you what she wants without meeting your needs\wants in the relationship which makes the relationship untenable. Girls do it all the time....they want the validation\boyfriend experience from all sorts of guys without having to provide anything in return...like sex or kissing or other....it isn't fair and it is selfish on their part.

Nobody's fault, it is what it is.

Gawernator • 4 points • 2 February, 2018 07:59 PM

This explains everything for you: <https://therationalmale.com/2012/11/29/friends-like-these/>

After her LJBF, you can say, "I really wish I could be your friend, but I'd really thought we meant more to each other than that after so long, and honestly, I'm looking for more. Sorry, but I guess I was wrong about you."

I wouldn't use this verbatim as some kind of script to follow, but this approach effectively puts the onus of the rejection back on her and makes her aware of the LJBF as a rejection. It's very similar to a neg hit in that it puts her into a position of not qualifying for your own intimacy. The idea is to defuse any "he just wanted to fuck me" ideas and draw attention to it as a rejection. The problem with a LJBFs as a social convention for women is that it's gotten to a point where it's a default, autonomous response, and not a real rejection of intimacy. It's become such a useful tool that women no longer understand the latent function of it. When they're made aware of it, in a responsible way, recognizing the rejection aspect is unavoidable. In a rational world it's a Man's responsibility to approach, initiate, be decisive, etc. with a woman, it should be incumbent on a woman to give him a straight rejection or acceptance of his approach. Unfortunately not all of us are mature enough at any given stage to do so, so we develop social contingencies to cope with uncomfortable circumstance.

awareness1111 • 1 point • 3 February, 2018 01:10 AM

There are no rational answers to irrational questions.

The answer, 99.9% of the time, is NO.

Become impervious to manipulation...

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 February, 2018 03:08 AM

It's high school, people will forget in a week.

If someone actually gives you shit for this, stand your ground and tell them to mind their business and get a fucking life. Any real bro would not give that much of a shit.. Even the ones who are friends with the girl.

Don't give in to her bullshit and start puppy dogging her. Stand firm. Focus on your studies so you can get into a damn good college on scholarships and grants or enter a vocational trade apprenticeship.

DirtyBastard13 • 1 point • 3 February, 2018 10:25 AM

Ignore them. It's not their business.

EhzmwGGh • 1 point • 3 February, 2018 11:49 AM

Tell them that you saw her as more than a friend and it is painful to hang around her knowing there will never be more than friendship between you.

sporifix • 0 points • 3 February, 2018 04:38 AM

"Put me in the friendzone" = "Realized I'm a douche and decided not to fuck me."

juliusstreicher • -2 points • 2 February, 2018 11:04 PM

"Of course I'm her friend. You DO realize, don't you, that she's had a mental breakdown, and is in an altered state of consciousness, and, well, she may not be fully in touch with reality?"

Then, of course, do your best to make her life miserable.