I'm a teen female and I am definitely not a feminist. The reason why I'm not a feminist is because I don't care about anything. When I'm asked if I'm a feminist, I reply with a no and the person that asks me always looks disgusted, what happened to freedom of speech? I get called a "pick me" girl, when in reality, I honestly don't care about men or female, hence why I'm not feminist.

It is very rare for a female to not be a feminist, but when they share their opinions and choices they get shitted on by feminists.

Some may say i hate women, no I do not. I simply do not care for your “equal rights“. Women in the west already have as many rights as men. Women other than the east are the ones suffering, so how about posting shitty feminist memes, you actually help women That need help. Definitely and will never be a “pick me“. Just because my views on particular issues oppose yours Doesn’t give you the right to call me a “pick me”. sincerely, fuckface

Even then the situation isn’t good for most boys in the Middle East, and as far as the west goes you seem like you’re still buying into a bit of revisionist history

I am sorry that happened to you. But that's what feminists do. They talk about respect and then proceed to say names to people like you. There is a large diversity in East. In India, 53.2% rape accusations were found false. That scared me to my core and I have to watch my every word when I talk to friends who I have known for years. It's scary but what can I do. I also got picked by similar people but I didn't say anything, I don't wanna run circles around court. Hopefully you will be in a better place than me, you are obviously far better than those idiots.□

I'm all for women's rights, I'm just not a feminist. And yes before anyone calls me out I know feminism is women's rights, but these days its sooooooooooooooooooooooooooooo toxic and anti men that I just can't Fellow teen here. I'm not a feminist because I'm for equal rights. I'm an egalitarian but leaning more towards mens rights than feminism.

What do you think is the definition of feminism?

The real definition is *'The advocacy of women's rights on the ground of the equality of the sexes.' *

If you believe that both women and men should have the same rights to vote, be educated and live their life the way they want to then you are a feminist. In its true definition, feminism wants people to have rights that don't depend on their gender.

Unfortunately the word has a lot of stigma associated with it now because the loud minority (what people call SJWs etc) have caused people to think it means 'women superior'. The effect of the loud extreme minority exists within almost all groups of people, be it religion, political stance, and even in fandoms. Think about the extreme right or left wing fanatics. The extremists of both sides are generally awful and don't represent most people who have middle ground liberal or conservative views. Similar to this issue, we have real feminists who just want an equal society for both genders and those who are on the extreme minority end who say things like 'kill all men'. Men's rights groups have the same issue - most people in this group just want issues that affect men to have more attention but the extreme side makes women the enemy and calls for a repeal of women's rights.

It is true that in the western world women and men do have mostly equal rights, and you might say 'who are first world women to complain when there are women in the third world who don't even get an education?' It's hard, but we need to try to avoid this line of thinking. We cannot compare ourselves to those worse off and not improve because we are doing better. Some parts of society favour men and some favour women. We in the developed world can improve this because we know that both women and men contribute to society and have their own agency.

Not for me. The meaning of feminism has drastically changed from “equal rights“, some don't even want equal rights but to cage and kill men. I'm not for men nor women.

Well, if you want to know what I think, you might be either seeking out the extreme minority or Reddit is just exposing you to it from r/all. You're on r/antifeminism right now, which seeks out and concentrates posts from illogical women so people think they're the majority. The other side of that is that people who legitimately hate women also seek out these kinds of subs.

If you don't care, then why be on a sub that's purpose is to feed into a mindset of hate? The meaning of feminism has not changed, it's just that stupid people have always existed and now we can just see it so readily. Maybe you should try to ignore stupid people and just live peacefully. I dunno.

well, I hope you get picked. you deserved it.

VestigialHead • 3 points • 26 May, 2020 02:40 AM

Wow you are a piece of work aren't you. Do you believe any of the garbage you post? Or are you just a troll?

Gdrew72 • 3 points • 26 May, 2020 03:24 AM

Troll. Fishing □ out of her normal stomping grounds. Just look at the name. All these wannabe goddesses throw that shit on as a tag. It makes them all gushy inside to think they have made any one feel as miserable as they are. Looked at its page. All the major feminazi reddit's are there.

You're literally a troll, stop shaming people for having differing opinions.

Dorothythedinosaurr[S] • 2 points • 26 May, 2020 06:21 AM

If I were you I'd get checked out, you're a full on misandrist, what happened to equal rights? You're disgusting. Hope you have trash thrown at you. <3
