I love how she said “I don’t see men saying anything nice about women at all” as if historically men weren’t the ones saving and protecting women, performing all the hard jobs to make sure their wives and children had food on the table and shelter and risking their lives to defeat the bad men meanwhile historically women would kill children and the elderly, bathe in the blood of young girls to stay youthful and are the biggest bullies to women and girls causing many to have low self esteem and low self worth but it’s just the men with the problem

She said that she doesn't feel bad for being a misandrist like .if a man said anything like that they will attack him

Ah yes, the typical feminist. I don't think she even knows that it takes both a mother and a father to create a baby.

So she thinks that men don't like woman.

But she openly states that she hates men.

So what's her point exactly?

Oh yeah speaking of hating women. Calling women pre pubescent for being in porn is pretty nasty and hateful. She's implying something is wrong with them because of their career choice? And she's bodyshaming them to boot. I thought people couldn't help the way they look? Hmm. It's almost like she's projecting or something.

She is probably insecure. So she hates men and bring other women down

UltimateStrenergy • 2 points • 24 April, 2020 06:14 AM

I think so too. She clearly isn't that fond of women or herself if she's going to target other women to lift herself up.

Individual experiences doesn't change the world. You know, in my community men are supposed to touch the feet of the female members of the family(whether it be sister or daughter) and I kid you not, most people in my country think so. So Stop stereotyping men just because you sold your self esteem and went out on dates with such men.

"men don't ever say something nice to women". I mean, why would anyone say something nice to that person?

“I don’t think men like women at all” Men were the ones who fought in the world wars and the conflicts in the Cold War to protect their families, especially their wives, from the fascists and communists. Also, women have the PRIVILEGE to not be drafted to war if need be.
