Feminism is mostly an echo chamber comprising of people with individual experiences and then grossly interpreting it as the universal truth.

Depends on the type. 1st and 2nd? No. 3rd wave is pure evil.

Are supremacy movements hate movements or do they just leverage existing fears and divisions in order to manipulate their members and attract new ones?

I'd say it leverages and promotes hate, and if it weren't for the fact that it is also a gaslighting operation, this would be quite obvious.

Feminism is destructive to women as well as men. As girls start noticing the irrational fears they have, and how much emotional damage has been done to them by feminism, they are not going to be very happy about it.

It's actually very sad.

Yes. It may be defined otherwise, but people have deformed it and twisted it to become a sexist, gender supremacy movement.

The concept of hate movements as a whole is stupid, there is not a single movement that was created to make other lives worse, movements are made to make people's lives better, either for all or for only themselves, feminism does strive to make women's life better even at the cost of men's.
