

Lesbians VS Gay Men

March 27, 2020 | 28 upvotes | by Rozycka123

---

Feminists love to talk about “male privilege” but I’ve noticed that lesbians and bisexual women are more socially acceptable than gay and bisexual men. I’m a bisexual woman and aside from my parents telling me I’m just confused, some homophobes telling me I’m going to hell, and this one asshole accusing me of coming out for attention, my coming out journey has been pretty easy. I didn’t expect it would be so easy to come out. I know that if I was a guy and I came out as bisexual that it would be harder.

---

Archived from theredarchive.com

---

Comments

---

make-me-yours-please • 2 points • 28 March, 2020 12:44 AM

That's somewhat true. I see a lot more people shaming lesbians for not dating trans women than gay men for not dating trans men. I also feel that both sides have a Lesbians VS Gay Men mentality. There's definitely a very big stigma against bi men though.

KindPrecise • 2 points • 27 March, 2020 04:43 AM

As a gay man, I hate feminists. They seem annoyed by this, almost as if I owe them something.

Rozycka123[S] • 0 points • 27 March, 2020 01:10 PM

Hate is a strong word. How about you say you dislike their ideology or disagree with them?

KindPrecise • 1 point • 27 March, 2020 11:18 PM

How about THEY stop saying things like 'kill all men' (Australian news columnist and published author, Clem Ford)

Rozycka123[S] • 1 point • 28 March, 2020 01:40 AM

Not all of them say that though

KindPrecise • 1 point • 28 March, 2020 05:14 AM

You're right. Most of them just want men eradicated

Rozycka123[S] • 1 point • 28 March, 2020 03:45 PM

Not really

bRuH_MoMEnT-16 • 1 point • 27 March, 2020 07:29 PM

I asked this question to a friend of mine once. He said that if a man has intercourse with another man, the sperm cells that are lost are potential children being "killed" which is an ideology that neither of us agree with but whatever

PaladinGamer563 • 1 point • 27 March, 2020 05:34 AM

Okay, call me anything names you like, but I'm not a fan of LGBTQ, but my agenda is I can live with abnormality, but I can't stand absurdity (feminism).

Rozycka123[S] • 2 points • 27 March, 2020 01:09 PM

LGBT people aren't an abnormality

PaladinGamer563 • 1 point • 27 March, 2020 03:05 PM

To me they are. If you disagree, try and convince me instead of calling me a bigot. I respect your decision, and I will not attempt to dissuade you.

Rozycka123[S] • 1 point • 27 March, 2020 03:57 PM

I didn't call you a bigot so don't make a strawman argument

PaladinGamer563 • 1 point • 28 March, 2020 12:37 AM

Oh, I was just thinking in advance, because some people did that to me, which only strengthened my belief.

Rozycka123[S] • 1 point • 28 March, 2020 01:40 AM

But I didn't. When you assume you make an ass out of u and me.

pandolfio • 0 points • 27 March, 2020 06:28 PM

of course they are an abnormality, the same way being short-sighted, diabetic, or taller than 7 feet. Abnormal just means something that does not fall within the norm, i.e. the majority.

Rozycka123[S] • 2 points • 27 March, 2020 07:07 PM

Well then he should say unusual or different, abnormality just has a bad connotation to it

pandolfio • 1 point • 27 March, 2020 07:33 PM

And btw I think the reason people don't like the word 'abnormal' is that they have trouble with the idea that there is a norm. Terms like 'heteronormativity' are complete aberrations. It consists in having a problem with the fact that the majority of people have some features, and this majority needs to make special efforts to pretend the norm does not exist.

Rozycka123[S] • 1 point • 27 March, 2020 07:49 PM

Then in that case I'll assume you're Asian

pandolfio • 1 point • 27 March, 2020 08:38 PM

Huh?

Rozycka123[S] • 2 points • 27 March, 2020 09:36 PM

Most people in the world are Asian so for now on that's the default and everyone else is an abnormality

pandolfio • 0 points • 27 March, 2020 09:58 PM

Terrible analogy. What you don't seem to get is that things can be a function of context. Sure, if you do not manage to get any context out of the fact that I am on reddit and writing in English, then, by all means, assume that I am Asian.

In some professions, being gay can be the norm, in (most) others it's not. In some professions, wearing glasses is the norm, in the wider population it's not. In some places / races, having some characteristics may be the norm, in some others it's not.

I am left-handed, and when I grew up I did not expect people to pretend that being right-handed is not the norm. I actually grew up in a community and went to a school where all my friends mother tongue was different from the local official language. I knew I was a minority, and I did not expect people to start pretending like I am the majority. I just adapted.

pandolfio • 0 points • 27 March, 2020 07:28 PM

That's just a product of the snowflakiness of people.

Abnormal is a perfect word that says what it says: away from the norm.

